The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 1 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1968

Nixon Warns of Mid-East War; Urges U. S. Support of Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon said Sunday that he favors providing Israel with "a technological military margin to more than offset her hostile neighbors' numerical superiority."

RICHARD NIXON

Nixon made the statement in a full-dress review of the situation in the Middle East, Soviet actions there, and the danger of another Arab-Israeli war.

In remarks prepared for an appearance before the triannual B'nai B'rith convention in Washington, Nixon said:

"The danger of war increases in direct ratio to the confidence of certain Arab leaders that they could win that war."

Jets to Israel

He repeated what he said in his first campaign swing for the presidency—that he would favor providing Israel with supersonic Phantom F4 jets.

Referring to the danger of another war in the Middle East, Nixon said: "Israel must possess sufficient military power to deter an attack. As long as the threat of Arab attack remains direct and imminent, 'sufficient power' means the balance must be tipped in Israel's favor.

"For that reason—to provide Israel a valid self-defense—I support a policy that would give Israel a technological military margin to more than offset her neighbors' numerical superiority. If maintaining that margin should require that the United States supply Israel with Phantom F4 jets—we should supply these jets."

Russian Fleet

Nixon said the ambitions of the Soviet Union to extend its sphere of influence into the Middle East underlies the threat of another conflict. He said the Russians have "systematically rebuilt" the armed forces of the United Arab Republic. The Russians have increased their fleet in the Mediterranean from "11 to nearly 50 ships," Nixon said. "Since the take over of Czech-

(Continued on Page 3)

HHH Links Nixon to Wallace; Calls GOP Reactionary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey launched his Presidential campaign Sunday by accusing Republican Richard M. Nixon of conducting "a campaign and a strategy essentially designed to exploit the fears and tensions that grip significant portions of our people."

Humphrey aimed his appeal at what he called the nation's "great moderate majority."

In the first formal speech of his drive for victory in the general election, the Democratic nominee made clear he will seek to link Nixon with third-party candidate George C. Wallace.

Competing with Wallace

The Vice President accused his Republican opponent of adopting a strategy aimed at wooing the Old South and asserted, Republicans are "openly competing with Mr. Wallace for the votes of people who, at very best, want to put the brakes on our progress toward full equality.

"They have made a calculated decision to ignore the demands of left-out Americans within their own party and in the nation."

Humphrey said the Republicans "have turned from the road of true justice and opportunity for all," so that "we are confronted not only with third-party extremism but with the old Republican-reactionary coalition that has always held America back."

In a speech before the national convention of B'nai B'rith, Humphrey posed the election choice this way:

"Either we turn backward into a contrary basin polarizing of the nation and a widening circle of fear—we continue to go forward into a new day of justice and order.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

"Humphrey said he believes "the majority of Americans know that their prosperity and their security do not depend upon these things being denied to others.

(Continued on Page 3)

UM-Boston Decision Off Till Oct.; Trustee Says Garden Not In Danger

By Jan Curley
Monday Issue Editor

GREENFIELD — The UMass-Boston site selection committee will meet in Boston today to receive a report from Sasaki, Dawson and DeMay Associates of Watertown on the Columbia Point and North Station sites for the proposed intown campus.

According to John W. Haigis, Jr. of Greenfield, a trustee of the University and chairman of the committee, the committee will hear the reports on the sites, pro and con, and make a recommendation to the full Board of Trustees which will meet Thursday. No decision has been made, either for the North Station site or against it, Haigis stated in an MDC interview last night.

He went on to say that it was not in "accordance with procedures" of the Board of Trustees to make a decision immediately without considering the reports first. No decision will be made until the Board meets in October.

Oust the Bruins and Celtics?

Boston sports fans were up in arms last week over a premature announcement that the North Station site had been chosen and that the Boston Gardens would be imperiled by the growth of the University around it. Weston W. Adams, president of the Boston Garden, and Paul Mannos, owner of the North Station, called a press conference last Thursday to announce that the North Station site had been selected. They are in opposition to the takeover.

Their press conference illicited a quick denial from Haigis. Haigis stated flatly, "No sir, that's not true. No decision has been made." Haigis went on to say that Mayor Kevin White had asked that the Buildings and Grounds Committee take another look at the North Station site after his committee had rejected it once.

Haigis scoffed at Adams' accusation that the University would takeover the Garden. He said, "We don't want to take over the Garden. That's ridiculous." Contrary to Adams' statement, Haigis did not feel that the end was in sight for the Bruins and Celtics in Boston. Haigis said that Speaker of the House Robert Q. Quinn had even asked them to consider Fenway Park at one time.

Legislature Would Locate

Speaker Quinn said recently that if UMass Boston did not locate themselves soon, they would be located at Columbia Point by the legislature. Haigis said that

(Continued on Page 5)

Israel and Egypt Exchange Gunfire; Worst Since War

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Egyptian forces traded heavy shellfire for more than four hours Sunday in one of the fiercest fights across the Suez canal since the Middle East war of June 5-10, 1967.

Each side blamed the other for starting the shooting, and Israel sought and was granted a special Security Council meeting Sunday night at the United Nations in New York, to press its charge of a "flagrant and unprovoked violation of the cease-fire" along the canal.

Ten Israeli Killed

Israeli spokesmen said 10 Israeli soldiers were killed in the battle and two U.N. observation posts were hit. One member of the U.N. observation team was reported wounded and Israel said the Egyptians violated one agreement with the observers to stop the shooting.

Israeli military sources said Egyptians opened up with light arms fire at an Israeli unit on the canal's east bank and, when the Israelis shot back, the conflict grew into a duel that sent clouds of dust and smoke rolling waterway. A U.N. arranged over the 100-mile length of the waterway. A U.N.-arranged stand-down restored quiet to the area in the early evening.

In Cairo, the Egyptian army said Port Suez and Port Taufiq, on Egyptian territory at the southern end of the canal, and Ismailia and Onatara midway along the waterway were shelled.

NEW TENSION

The Egyptians said they destroyed 14 Israeli tanks, 6 armored cars and 6 trucks and that "all Israeli control towers in the fighting areas were destroyed," as well as 19 artillery batteries and an Israeli Jeep.

On the Israeli-Jordanian cease-fire line, Arab gunners opened light arms fire on a border patrol along the Jordan River and an Israeli Spokesman said the fire was returned. There were no casualties.

UM Continues Expansion; Enrollment Largest in N.E.

The University of Massachusetts begins its 1968-69 academic year today with an expected enrollment of approximately 19,865 students at its Amherst and Boston campuses.

On this campus, the University expects to enroll 12,665 undergraduates—including a freshman class of 3150—3200 graduate students, and 600 two-year Stockbridge School students for a total of approximately 16,465. The expected enrollment at UMassBoston is 3400.

Freshman week began here Friday with the freshman convocation and freshman registration Saturday. Grad students registered Saturday and upperclassmen will today. Classes begin Wednesday. At Boston, registration will be held Sept. 11, 12 and 13 and classes will begin Sept. 16.

The 1968-69 year at Amherst will be marked by a number of new academic and research programs, important faculty additions and major changes in the face of the Amherst campus through construction.

New on the UMass-Amherst academic horizon this fall is CCENS—the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Negro Students, directed by a Negro faculty group to help Negroes and others who because of educational and economic deprivation may need financial and academic assistance to enter the University and to maintain good grades after entry.

Project 10

New in the UMass Residential College programs is Project 10, a new student community for a group of 262 volunteer freshmen who will take two required courses and up to five elective courses together. They will live and govern themselves as a unit and work closely with a faculty-grad student counseling and tutoring staff. Project 10's aim is a better learning climate through shared social and intellectual

(Continued on Page 9)

Book Store Moved to New Site

A new location for course book sales and extended store hours have been instituted by the University Bookstore, (See map p. 9).

Beginning today all textbooks for all courses will be sold on the top floor of the physical plant Building warehouse.

William Lasher, supply dept. manager, and Bud Wilkes, Book dept. manager, said that the change came because "the ballroom became too small for our use."

For the week of Sept. 9 to 13, the warehouse salesroom will be open from 7:45 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. In addition it will be open from 7:45 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 14.

The book store has issued several "book buying suggestions":

1. If you are unsure of a book title, buy your book after your first class to assure correct purchase upon your instructor's confirmation.
2. If you may need a refund, remember to keep your sales receipt, and to have your I.D. in your possession. These are a must!!
3. Full refunds are honored only within 30 days of the purchase, and only if the book is unmarked -- even pencil marks will designate a book as being "used".
4. There are no refunds on outlines, study guides or reprints, so be sure of your purchase of these items.
5. To help speed up lines, have your checks made out except for the amount BEFORE you get to the cash register. Make all checks payable to "The University Store".
6. If you have any questions, they can be answered at the information desk on the salesroom floor.

Broderick Named to Succeed Ryan As UMass Boston's Chancellor

Dr. Francis L. Broderick was named Chancellor of UMass-Boston last month, succeeding Dr. John W. Ryan, who resigned last spring.

In making the announcement, President Lederle said, "We sought a man for the Chancellorship who is attuned to the rapid changes being wrought in higher education, the cities and among the minority groups in this nation.

We wanted a man dedicated to undergraduate teaching of the first order and an experienced administrator, preferably with knowledge of the unique problems of the Commonwealth. Francis Broderick is that man.

Under his leadership I expect UMass-Boston, as a major part of our state-wide university system, to become one of the great urban, public institutions in the nation."

Regarding his new assignment, Dr. Broderick, said, "The tradition of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, and especially its dramatic growth in the last decade, provide a starting point for Boston. An able faculty and a lively student body supply a rich endowment for a University that scarcely owns the roof over its administrative head.

An authority on American social thought and the history of minority and religious leaders. In 1943 he graduated from Princeton with high honors in history. He was the first graduate of that institution's program of study in American Civilization.

Author of a number of articles in leading journals, magazines and encyclopedias, Dr. Broderick is currently President of the American Catholic Historical Association.

University Theatre To Hold Tryouts for 'Awake and Sing!'

University Theatre will hold open tryouts for Clifford Odets' social drama Awake and Sing! on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, in 119 Bartlett at 7:30 p.m. All graduate and undergraduate students are eligible to try out for this opening production of the 1968-69 season, whether they have had previous acting experience or not.

Awake and Sing! opened in 1935, in mid-Depression, and its message is one of hope rising from the despair of grave social and economic malfunctions. It is a realistic presentation of a middle-class Jewish family hard-hit by the Depression, living in the Bronx. Each member of the Berger household, from the domineering mother to the ineffectual son-in-law, the capitalist uncle to the Marxist-minded son, contributes some irritant to the increasingly bitter frustrations of poverty and social dissolution.

Awake and Sing!, 30 years after its opening, remains a powerful and relevant drama for the American stage, not only because the problems of the Berger family are still present in the ghetto and the slum but also because it reminds the present generation of youth that "their parents, too, once considered revolution a reasonable alternative."

Anyone wishing to read the play before trying out may obtain a script on loan from the Speech Department office, 352 Bartlett Hall. Rehearsals will begin September 16, and the production will be October 23-26.

Federal Funds Appropriated To Med School Construction

The UMass Medical School will receive $13.8 million in federal funds to start construction of its teaching and library facilities in Worcester.

Medical School Dean Lamar Soutter, in an MDC interview, disclosed that the added funds will have no immediate effect, as plans call for the first class to be initially housed in "improvised quarters", until the permanent facilities are completed in 1972.

A request for $23 million for construction of a hospital will not be acted upon until November or December.

Bishop Weldon Enters Hospital

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. AP —The Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishiop of the Springfield Roman Catholic Diocese, entered the Mercy Hospital early Sunday for, what his physician termed, "rest and studies."

It is the third time the 63-year-old bishop has been hospitalized this year. He was treated at Mercy for a virus infection in January and for an undisclosed illness in March.

Moving-In Headaches Relieved By APO and Campus Policemen

By Mark Silverman
Friday Issue Editor

When Mayor Richard Daley wanted security, he called in the National Guard, the Army, and the Secret Service. When UMass Police Chief Alexander Blasko wanted help directing traffic, he called in Alpha Phi Omega.

The service fraternity directed traffic Sunday through the Southwest complex in an attempt to facilitate student arrival by allowing cars to park nearer to dorms, and in this way, eliminate the long trudge from F lot to the towers. The plan, in general, worked well, according to observers.

Cars entered the complex near Kennedy tower, were allowed to park along side of the low and high rise dorms, and left near Washington tower. This one way stream of traffic inside the complex was complemented by one way traffic on the streets outside.

There were, however, several snags. One APO volunteer complained, "The cops don't know what's going on here. We really had to argue with one cop before he'd let us run the cars through here."

There was, in general, the complaint that the Campus Police and the APO volunteers were in competition with each other. Students claimed that the Police would not tell parents how to get into the complex itself. Police complained that the volunteers were too preoccupied talking to friends to do a good job.

The volunteers cited the example of one family which was told by police to park in F lot and walk up to John Quincy Adams. It took sophomore Joanne Shields and her family ten minutes to make the hike. However, when informed by the Daily Collegian of the APO parking plan, they drove from F lot, through the complex, and found a parking space directly in front of J.Q.A.

The Campus Police said students clogged the entry and exit points and often "did more to creat traffic problems than to eliminate them."

Despite this minor friction between the police and the APO students, most returning students called yesterday's operation a distinct improvement over previous years.

Southeast Asian Countries Braced For More Red Chinese Subversion

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP—The nations of Southeast Asia can expect another year of Communist Chinese-inspired insurgency and subversion, says the annual report of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization — SEATO.

The report, released yesterday by SEATO headquarters in Bangkok on SEATO's 14th anniversary, ruled out a Chinese policy change as "most unlikely, even if the domestic strife in that country forces its leaders to modify their internal policies."

The report singled out Communist China as the chief cause of political instability and instigator of Communist subversion in the countries of Southeast Asia.

It said China in the past year had "relentlessly pursued its avowed objective" of creating wars of national liberation "wherever it could find or create a pretext for one."

But in the past year, the report added, the non-Communist nations of Asia had shown a determination to resist Communist interference in their domestic affairs, a determination to maintain law and order and a determination to remove local discontent which Communists could exploit.

SEATO members are Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, Britain and the United States.

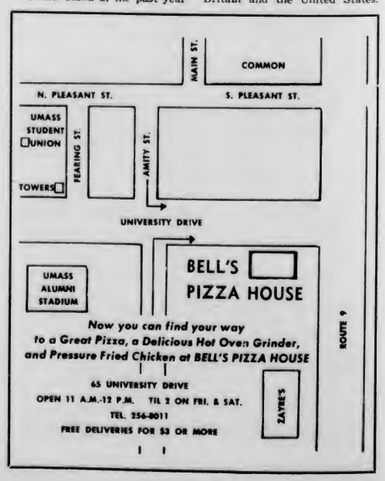
No Need to Run to BOLLES — The fine variety of distinctive shoes will still be there!

Take a WALK to BOLLES before classes start to see the best in men's & women's shoes!

For MEN:
- BOSTONIAN loafers & wingtips
- CLARKS desert boots
- VERDE imported shoes

also BURLINGTON socks Ties

Don't forget our famous BOOT - CELLAR for men & women



For WOMEN:

the most fashionable shoes including—
- SOCIALITE
- LA PIUMA
- NINA
- HALF-PINTS

also handbags gloves buckles scarfs

BOLLES
FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES

Nixon Favors Israeli Support

(Continued from Page 1)

oslovakia," he continued, "the Soviets have stepped up their anti-Semitic propaganda, connecting a 'Zionist plot' in Prague to win support in the Middle East."

At the same time, the GOP presidential candidate said: "It is my view that for Israel to take formal and final possession of the occupied territories would be a grave mistake but it is not realistic to expect Israel to surrender vital bargaining counters in the absence of a genuine peace and effective guarantees."

Nixon said he recognizes the "predicament" of Israel — "its enemies can afford to fight a war and lose and come back to fight again; Israel cannot afford to lose once. America knows that. And, America is determined that Israel is here in the family of nations to stay."

Humphrey . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

On Extremist Groups

He attacked extremist groups of both the right and the left and said he would propose legislation to curb what he described as their guerrilla activities.

Humphrey spoke to the Jewish service organization here a day before setting out on the first extensive road trip of his drive to win the November election.

The election, Humphrey added, is "a referendum on human rights and opportunity in America." He said "this nation has a great moderate majority within it. I believe that great moderate majority will prevail."

Humphrey leaves Washington today for a ticker-tape parade, speech and several television interviews in Philadelphia, then flies on to Denver and Los Angeles on the first leg of a campaign swing that will emphasize the big industrial states which have the bulk of the electoral votes.

Speeches Highlight Convocation

- President John W. Lederle opened the Freshman Convocation with a call for Student-Faculty involvement. He urged students to join with faculty members on a personal level.
- Provost Oswald Tippo spoke briefly of the teachers of old, with a few personal asides on his experiences of his freshman year, 40 years ago.
- Paul Silverman, President of the Student Senate, spoke on the Student Power movement, and said "students should be given the right to help make University decisions when those decisions affect their lives."

Music

UMass Concert Season Opens Tonight

Tonight the UMass department of music will offer its opening concert of the 1968-69 season in Bowker Auditorium — a collection of works by Schumann and Robert Stern.

The 8 p.m. program will feature Dorothy Ornest, soprano, Charles Fussell, piano, Joel Krosnick, cello and Robert Stern piano.

The program will present Schumann's Frauenliebe und Leben (A woman's life and Lovestar soprano and piano) and his Five pieces in Folk Style, opus 102 for cello and piano. Highlight of the program will be Robert Stern's Terezin, a cycle for soprano, cello and piano.

The idea for the program started with the premier performance of Terezin, Dr. Stern's cycle based on poems and pictures by children imprisoned in the Terezin concentration camp not far from Prague. Terezin was only a way station to the point of no return—Auschwitz. Approximately 15,000 children under 15 years of age were sent to Terezin. After the Soviet Army liberated Terezin in May, 1945, about 100 of the children returned home.

During the premiere an unique problem developed: for the three performers — Miss Ornest and Messrs. Krosnick and Stern — the poems were so touching in their innocent tragedy and the music so perfectly suited to the poems that the performers found themselves repeatedly being moved to tears. In fact, several trial performances were given in music classes while the performers worked toward reproducing the emotions called forth by Terezin without being moved to tears by them.

For this particular program, the performers searched for works which evoked emotions of similar power to those of Terezin. It was not long before Schumann's Frauenliebe und Leben (A Woman's Life and Loves) came to mind. A woman reflects: the first time she sees her husband, the ecstasy of the love being returned, the wedding ceremony, having their first child, and then her husband's death.

The performers reasoned further: that the Schumann 5 Pieces in Folk Style were also songs, though these pieces have no words. They have many of the same poignant emotions evoked in other Schumann song cycles, though in this case implied rather than explicit.

Fighting Erupts Around Saigon; Terrorist Attacks Continue

SAIGON (AP) — Sharp fighting surged around two sides of Saigon Sunday and terrorists assassinated an election official in the city in an attempt to disrupt voting for a vacant seat in the House of Representatives.

American paratroopers, infantrymen and helicopter gunships killed 75 enemy in two engagements Saturday and Sunday.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division lost 12 Americans killed and 21 wounded in a 16-hour battle with part of a veteran Viet Cong regiment at the village of X Sa Nho, near Trang Bang, 30 miles northwest of Saigon. They counted 28 Viet Cong bodies and took two prisoners.

After the enemy force pulled out, the paratroopers burned down most of the houses in the village. A spokesman said every home set afire contained North Vietnamese army equipment, weapons, packs or uniforms.

U.S. ground and air forces also pursued small groups of Viet Cong soldiers on the run in the Mekong Delta, 17 miles south of Saigon. Helicopter gunships accounted for most of the 47 enemy dead, while U.S. casualties were reported to number five wounded.

The delta fighting was touched off Saturday when more than 200 U.S. 9th Division infantrymen landed along the Rach Ben Tre River and engaged a Viet Cong force of equal size.

The answer to your cosmetic needs –

College Drug

4 Main St.

MEN'S
- English Leather
- British Sterling
- Jade East
- Pub
- Jaguar
- Hawaiian Surf
- Canoe
- Brut
- That Man
- Nai Karate
- Bravura
- Nine Flags
- 4711
- Chanel St. Johns

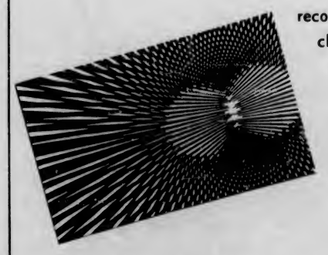
WOMEN'S
- Du Barry
- Max Factor
- Faberge
- Loreal
- Revlon & Demi
- Coty
- Bonne Bell
- Chanel
- Lavin
- Jean Nate
- Yardley
- Caron Perfumes
- Christian Dior
- Guerlam
- Jean D'Albret
- Raphael

Looks great... writes great... is great!

EBERHARD FABER'S NOBLOT® DESK SET with your college emblem

Two famous NOBLOT Ball-Point Pens—one black, one red—set in modern chrome holders on deep-lustre black base.

Handsome, handy, perfect for your desk.



$2.98 (with emblem) at college bookstore only

Pick up an Eberhard Faber TR 35% writer, too. With Perma-moist™ tip. Writes with a thin, strong line every time! Black, blue, red, green. 49¢.

EF EBERHARD FABER

dangling conversation

where it is records clothing

penny candy
handmade jewelry op-art posters
art blocks
art reproductions candles imported gifts
imported

103 north pleasant ... amherst, mas.

Broderick Named to Succeed Ryan As UMass Boston's Chancellor

Dr. Francis L. Broderick was named Chancellor of UMass-Boston last month, succeeding Dr. John W. Ryan, who resigned last spring.

In making the announcement, President Lederle said, "We sought a man for the Chancellorship who is attuned to the rapid changes being wrought in higher education, the cities and among the minority groups in this nation.

We wanted a man dedicated to undergraduate teaching of the first order and an experienced administrator, preferably with knowledge of the unique problems of the Commonwealth. Francis Broderick is that man. . . . Under his leadership I expect UMass-Boston, as a major part of our state-wide university system, to become one of the great urban, public institutions in the nation."

Regarding his new assignment, Dr. Broderick, said, "The tradition of the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, and especially its dramatic growth in the last decade, provide a starting point for Boston. An able faculty and a lively student body supply a rich endowment for a University that scarcely owns the roof over its administrative head.

An authority on American social thought and the history of minority and religious leaders. In 1943 he graduated from Princeton with high honors in history. He was the first graduate of that institution's program of study in American Civilization.

Author of a number of articles in leading journals, magazines and encyclopedias, Dr. Broderick is currently President of the American Catholic Historical Association.

University Theatre To Hold Tryouts for 'Awake and Sing!'

University Theatre will hold open tryouts for Clifford Odets' social drama Awake and Sing! on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, in 119 Bartlett at 7:30 p.m. All graduate and undergraduate students are eligible to try out for this opening production of the 1968-69 season, whether they have had previous acting experience or not.

Awake and Sing!, 30 years after its opening, remains a powerful and relevant drama for the American stage, not only because the problems of the Berger family are still present in the ghetto and the slum but also because it reminds the present generation of youth that "their parents, too, once considered revolution a reasonable alternative."

Anyone wishing to read the play before trying out may obtain a script on loan from the Speech Department office, 352 Bartlett Hall. Rehearsals will begin September 16, and the production will be October 23-26.

Awake and Sing!, opened in 1935, in mid-Depression, and its message is one of hope rising from the despair of grave social and economic malfunctions. It is a realistic presentation of a middle-class Jewish family hard-hit by the Depression, living in the Bronx. Each member of the Berger household, from the domineering mother to the ineffectual son-in-law, the capitalist uncle to the Marxist-minded son, contributes some irritant to the increasingly bitter frustrations of poverty and social dissolution.

Federal Funds Appropriated To Med School Construction

The UMass Medical School will receive $13.8 million in federal funds to start construction of its teaching and library facilities in Worcester.

Medical School Dean Lamar Soutter, in an MDC interview, disclosed that the added funds will have no immediate effect, as plans call for the first class to be initially housed in "improvised quarters", until the permanent facilities are completed in 1972.

A request for $23 million for construction of a hospital will not be acted upon until November or December.

Moving-In Headaches Relieved By APO and Campus Policemen

By Mark Silverman
Friday Issue Editor

When Mayor Richard Daley wanted security, he called in the National Guard, the Army, and the Secret Service. When UMass Police Chief Alexander Blasko wanted help directing traffic, he called in Alpha Phi Omega.

The service fraternity directed traffic Sunday through the Southwest complex in an attempt to facilitate student arrival by allowing cars to park nearer to dorms, and in this way, eliminate the long trudge from F lot to the towers. The plan, in general, worked well, according to observers.

Cars entered the complex near Kennedy tower, were allowed to park along side of the low and high rise dorms, and left near Washington tower. This one way stream of traffic inside the complex was complemented by one way traffic on the streets outside.

There were, however, several snags. One APO volunteer complained, "The cops don't know what's going on here. We really had to argue with one cop before he'd let us run the cars through here."

There was, in general, the complaint that the Campus Police and the APO volunteers were in competition with each other. Students claimed that the Police would not tell parents how to get into the complex itself. Police complained that the volunteers were too preoccupied talking to friends to do a good job.

The volunteers cited the example of one family which was told by police to park in F lot and walk up to John Quincy Adams. It took sophomore Joanne Shields and her family ten minutes to make the hike. However, when informed by the Daily Collegian of the APO parking plan, they drove from F lot, through the complex, and found a parking space directly in front of J.Q.A.

The Campus Police said students clogged the entry and exit points and often "did more to creat traffic problems than to eliminate them."

Despite this minor friction between the police and the APO students, most returning students called yesterday's operation a distinct improvement over previous years.

Bishop Weldon Enters Hospital

SPRINGFIELD, MASS. AP —The Rev. Christopher J. Weldon, bishiop of the Springfield Roman Catholic Diocese, entered the Mercy Hospital early Sunday for, what his physician termed, "rest and studies."

It is the third time the 63-year-old bishop has been hospitalized this year. He was treated at Mercy for a virus infection in January and for an undisclosed illness in March.

Southeast Asian Countries Braced For More Red Chinese Subversion

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—The nations of Southeast Asia can expect another year of Communist Chinese-inspired insurgency and subversion, says the annual report of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization — SEATO.

The report, released yesterday by SEATO headquarters in Bangkok on SEATO's 14th anniversary, ruled out a Chinese policy change as "most unlikely, even if the domestic strife in that country forces its leaders to modify their internal policies."

The report singled out Communist China as the chief cause of political instability and instigator of Communist subversion in the countries of Southeast Asia.

It said China in the past year had "relentlessly pursued its avowed objective" of creating wars of national liberation "wherever it could find or create a pretext for one."

But in the past year, the report added, the non-Communist nations of Asia had shown a determination to resist Communist interference in their domestic affairs, a determination to maintain law and order and a determination to remove local discontent which Communists could exploit.

SEATO members are Australia, France, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Thailand, Britain and the United States.

No Need to Run to BOLLES — The fine variety of distinctive shoes will still be there!

Take a WALK to BOLLES before classes start to see the best in men's & women's shoes!

For MEN:

- BOSTONIAN loafers & wingtips
- CLARKS desert boots
- VERDE imported shoes

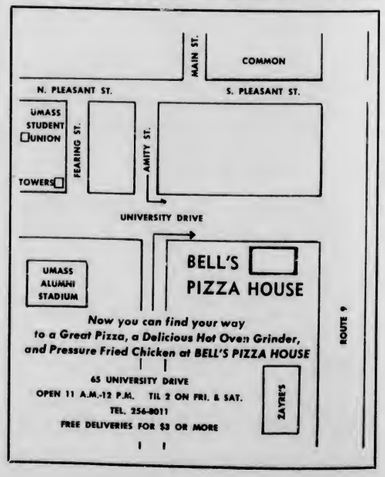
also

BURLINGTON socks Ties

Don't forget our famous

BOOT - CELLAR for men & women

For WOMEN:



the most fashionable shoes including—

- SOCIALITE
- LA PIUMA
- NINA
- HALF-PINTS

also handbags gloves buckles scarfs

BOLLES

FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES

Nixon Favors Israeli Support

(Continued from Page 1)

oslovakia," he continued, "the Soviets have stepped up their anti-Semitic propaganda, connecting a 'Zionist plot' in Prague to win support in the Middle East."

At the same time, the GOP presidential candidate said: "It is my view that for Israel to take formal and final possession of the occupied territories would be a grave mistake but it is not realistic to expect Israel to surrender vital bargaining counters in the absence of a genuine peace and effective guarantees."

Nixon said he recognizes the "predicament" of Israel — "its enemies can afford to fight a war and lose and come back to fight again; Israel cannot afford to lose once. America knows that. And, America is determined that Israel is here in the family of nations to stay."

Humphrey . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

On Extremist Groups

He attacked extremist groups of both the right and the left and said he would propose legislation to curb what he described as their guerrilla activities.

Humphrey spoke to the Jewish service organization here a day before setting out on the first extensive road trip of his drive to win the November election.

The election, Humphrey added, is "a referendum on human rights and opportunity in America." He said "this nation has a great moderate majority within it. I believe that great moderate majority will prevail."

Humphrey leaves Washington today for a ticker-tape parade, speech and several television interviews in Philadelphia, then flies on to Denver and Los Angeles on the first leg of a campaign swing that will emphasize the big industrial states which have the bulk of the electoral votes.

Speeches Highlight Convocation

- President John W. Lederle opened the Freshman Convocation with a call for Student-Faculty involvement. He urged students to join with faculty members on a personal level.
- Provost Oswald Tippo spoke briefly of the teachers of old, with a few personal asides on his experiences of his freshman year, 40 years ago.
- Paul Silverman, President of the Student Senate, spoke on the Student Power movement, and said "students should be given the right to help make University decisions when those decisions affect their lives."

Music

UMass Concert Season Opens Tonight

Tonight the UMass department of music will offer its opening concert of the 1968-69 season in Bowker Auditorium — a collection of works by Schumann and Robert Stern.

The 8 p.m. program will feature Dorothy Ornest, soprano, Charles Fussell, piano, Joel Krosnick, cello and Robert Stern piano.

The program will present Schumann's Frauenliebe und Leben (A woman's life and Lovestar soprano and piano) and his Five pieces in Folk Style, opus 102 for cello and piano. Highlight of the program will be Robert Stern's Terezin, a cycle for soprano, cello and piano.

The idea for the program started with the premier performance of Terezin, Dr. Stern's cycle based on poems and pictures by children imprisoned in the Terezin concentration camp not far from Prague. Terezin was only a way station to the point of no return—Auschwitz. Approximately 15,000 children under 15 years of age were sent to Terezin. After the Soviet Army liberated Terezin in May, 1945, about 100 of the children returned home.

During the premiere an unique problem developed: for the three performers — Miss Ornest and Messrs. Krosnick and Stern — the poems were so touching in their innocent tragedy and the music so perfectly suited to the poems that the performers found themselves repeatedly being moved to tears. In fact, several trial performances were given in music classes while the performers worked toward reproducing the emotions called forth by Terezin without being moved to tears by them.

For this particular program, the performers searched for works which evoked emotions of similar power to those of Terezin. It was not long before Schumann's Frauenliebe und Leben (A Woman's Life and Loves) came to mind. A woman reflects: the first time she sees her husband, the ecstasy of the love being returned, the wedding ceremony, having their first child, and then her husband's death.

The performers reasoned further that the Schumann 5 Pieces in Folk Style were also songs, though these pieces have no words. They have many of the same poignant emotions evoked in other Schumann song cycles, though in this case implied rather than explicit.

Fighting Erupts Around Saigon; Terrorist Attacks Continue

SAIGON (AP) — Sharp fighting surged around two sides of Saigon Sunday and terrorists assassinated an election official in the city in an attempt to disrupt voting for a vacant seat in the House of Representatives.

American paratroopers, infantrymen and helicopter gunships killed 75 enemy in two engagements Saturday and Sunday.

Paratroopers of the 101st Airborne Division lost 12 Americans killed and 21 wounded in a 16-hour battle with part of a veteran Viet Cong regiment at the village of X Sa Nho, near Trang Bang, 30 miles northwest of Saigon. They counted 28 Viet Cong bodies and took two prisoners.

After the enemy force pulled out, the paratroopers burned down most of the houses in the village. A spokesman said every home set afire contained North Vietnamese army equipment, weapons, packs or uniforms.

U.S. ground and air forces also pursued small groups of Viet Cong soldiers on the run in the Mekong Delta, 17 miles south of Saigon. Helicopter gunships accounted for most of the 47 enemy dead, while U.S. casualties were reported to number five wounded.

The delta fighting was touched off Saturday when more than 200 U.S. 9th Division infantrymen landed along the Rach Ben Tre River and engaged a Viet Cong force of equal size.

The answer to your cosmetic needs –

College Drug

4 Main St.

MEN'S

- English Leather
- British Sterling
- Jade East
- Pub
- Jaguar
- Hawaiian Surf
- Canoe
- Bruv
- That Man
- Nai Karate
- Bravura
- Nine Flags
- 4711
- Chanel St. Johns

WOMEN'S

- Du Barry
- Max Factor
- Faberge
- Loreal
- Revlon & Demi
- Coty
- Bonne Bell
- Chanel
- Lavin
- Jean Nate
- Yardley
- Caron Perfumes
- Christian Dior
- Guerlain
- Jean D'Albret
- Raphael

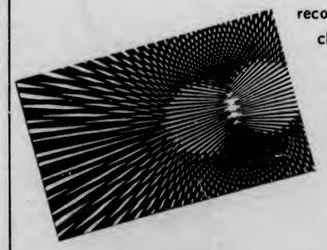
Looks great... writes great... is great!

EBERHARD FABER'S NOBLOT® DESK SET with your college emblem

Two famous NOBLOT Ball-Point Pens—one black, one red—set in modern chrome holders on deep-lustre black base.

Handsome, handy, perfect for your desk.



$2.98 (with emblem) at college bookstore only

Pick up an Eberhard Faber TR 35® writer, too. With Perma moist™ tip. Writes with a thin, strong line every time! Black, blue, red, green. 49¢.

EBERHARD FABER

dangling conversation

where it is records

clothing
penny candy
handmade jewelry
op-art posters
art blocks
art reproductions candles
imported gifts
imported

103 nor[illegible] mas.

Our Goal

More than a year ago the editors of the Daily Collegian made a policy decision of a major significance when they decided it was the responsibility of the campus press to print national and international news. This fall the MDC is again taking a major step in the same direction.

In order to keep pace with the fast-moving world of 1968, we have expanded our Associated Press coverage, and within the next month we will be joining approximately 30 other large universities across the nation in the first collegiate wire service, composed of member papers of the United States Student Press Association.

While many claim that the only function of a campus newspaper is to report campus news, and that anyone who wants news of a national vein can purchase a Springfield, Boston, or New York daily, it is our opinion that the role of a campus paper is to inform the campus community of all the news that affects that community. In the words of Yale Professor Reginald Green, the function of the Collegiate press is best met by "stimulating thought about significant campus, educational, local, national, and international events, policies, and issues . . . to report and discuss campus and non-campus events."

In 1957, the Student Editorial Affairs Conference endorsed the principle that "the student press has the responsibility and obligation of informing and educating its readers and interpreting for them local, national and international events."

While many students on campus have said they do not want exposure to national news, we nonetheless agree with the Student Editorial Affairs Conference that it is our responsibility to provide and interpret the news of the outside world for two specific reasons:

Firstly, the majority of students on campus read only one newspaper every day—the Daily Collegian. And, as the only regularly read daily news source on campus, we feel it is our duty to provide the important news of the day.

Secondly, in the womb-like environment that is a campus, the pettiness of this often isolated community assumes singular importance, and what is most vital to our lives is lost because it does not affect us immediately in this closed environment. It is only through an exposure to the news of the outside world that one can hope to gain some kind of perspective on the significance of that which occurs on this campus.

It is for these reasons that the Daily Collegian is presenting news of the state, the nation, the world, and other campuses as well as the news of this campus. This is, of course, not to say that the Daily Collegian is entering into competition with the New York Times. We realize that our primary raison d'etre is to serve the campus community, and hopefully at the important campus news will always be fully covered. For us to emphasize national coverage at the expense of campus news would be a disservice to our readers.

Our goal is to achieve a balance of news coverage that will effectively provide a media through which a perspective can be attained upon the many worlds in which each of us must function. The responsibility of this newspaper is to provide a source of information whereby an informed reader can meet these worlds intelligently and responsibly.

Three Cheers for APO

The brothers of Alpha Phi Omega, the UMass service fraternity, are to be commended for their fine job in facilitating the arrival of students at the Southwest complex yesterday. With few exceptions the system worked well and received a great deal of praise from many tired parents.

APO members also acted "above and beyond the call of duty" last Friday evening when they stayed out in the pouring rain to provide the same service to arriving freshmen.

To date this is the most successful effort of any to cope with the problems of this "complex" which obviously was not designed with students in mind.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

REGISTRATION ISSUE STAFF

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald P. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
ISSUE NEWS EDITORS ..... Jan Curley, Mark Silverman

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic [illegible] during vacation and exam periods, three or four times a week following [illegible] or exam period or [illegible] a holiday falls within a week. Accepted [illegible] authority of [illegible] 8, 1879, as amended by the [illegible] by Mail [illegible] year, $5.50 per semester.

INSIDE REPORT:

Humphrey vs. Schlesinger

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The true dimension of Vice President Hubert Humphrey's alienation from the anti-war Democratic liberals, and hence his own problem in unifying the party, was dramatically shown in a recent exchange of letters between him and Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

Humphrey's first letter to Schlesinger, in fact, had unmistakable earmarks of a tirade, setting a mood and tone that could only make a mockery of its ostensible purpose—to obtain Schlesinger's support for his nomination.

But quite apart from biting the hand Humphrey had hoped would feed him, the Vice President's letter to Schlesinger, the noted historian who now holds the Albert Schweitzer chair at the City University of New York, was another in a thick catalogue of shoot-from-the-hip letters written by Humphrey during his frustrating experience as Lyndon Johnson's Vice President. Many of these letters were dictated in momentary anger, and then dropped into the wastebasket. Not so with Humphrey's July 9 letter to Schlesinger, in which the Vice President wrote:

"It is downright insulting from a man of your intelligence to have you accuse me of being all wrapped up in the 1930's and the 1940's. My biggest problem in public life has been that I have been too far ahead of the times. . . . I have been a leader, and you know it. So, in the parlance of the street, knock it off."

For months leading up to the Democratic National Convention last week, Schlesinger had worked hard for the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's candidacy. After Kennedy's murder on June 5, Schlesinger continued to speak out against the Vietnam war, but he refused to join either of Kennedy's principal rivals, Sen. Eugene McCarthy or Humphrey. Thus the stage was set in early July for David Ginsburg, one of Humphrey's most influential inside advisors, to write Schlesinger and ask him to come out for Humphrey.

Schlesinger hastened to reply to Ginsburg, expressing sympathy for Humphrey's political problems and setting forth his own familiar argument against the Johnson-Humphrey war policy. He noted that Humphrey himself had said on May 27 that, if Nixon became the Republican nominee for President, his own and Nixon's views on the war would be scarcely distinguishable.

If that was to be the shape of the campaign, Schlesinger wrote Ginsburg, many anti-war Democrats might actually vote for Nixon so that their political battle to end the war would not be compromised by having a Democrat in the White House. Ginsburg decided that Schlesinger's letter had enough meat in it to warrant showing it to Humphrey, and he obtained Schlesinger's permission. The result was the Vice President's letter of July 9, so inflammatory that members of the Vice President's own campaign staff could not stop talking about it after it was mailed.

"Don't overrate yourself, Arthur," Humphrey wrote in that July 9 missive. "No one's trying to blackmail you or anyone else into coming over to support my candidacy. On the basis of your earlier and more mature liberal convictions, you ought to be supporting me, but undoubtedly something has happened. . . that has made you angry and bitter. These are two qualities that destroy a healthy sense of liberalism."

There was more. Humphrey (whose own agent had solicited Schlesinger's views) accused Schlesinger of making "snide comments" about his liberal record and defended his refusal to enter the primaries on grounds that there wasn't time after his late-April announcement. Besides, he said, John F. Kennedy "surely didn't get the nomination because he was in the primaries"—a statement no Democratic politician would agree with.

Schlesinger replied to Humphrey's July 9 letter directly (drawing an even sharper line between Humphrey's overall liberal record and his policy on the war), to which Humphrey sent a mild acknowledgement.

Altogether, however, the correspondence reveals how defensive Humphrey is in trying to bring Schlesinger, McCarthy, and the anti-war liberals under his banner. He knows that without them he will probably lose the election, but efforts to gain their support by righteous vindictiveness can only be counterproductive.

(c) 1968 Publishers-Hall Syndicate

TOMORROW

MDC Special Football Issue

SCHOOL OF ED

A Redefinition of Teacher Education

Growth and change are two words that exemplify the School of Education in the 1968-69 school year. Both the undergraduate and graduate programs have been vastly expanded, as reflected by a 47 per cent increase in the faculty, a 50 per cent increase in the number of doctoral candidates and a 20 per cent expansion on the graduate level.

This growth is accompanied by a change in attitude at the School of Education. Education is not taking a back seat to the other fields of study; instead, it is incorporating the other fields into education. The faculty with its wide range of backgrounds, experiences and degrees reflects the view that a juxtaposition of talents will create an innovative atmosphere which will eventually lead to changes in concepts of teacher education. The long-range goal of the school is a redefinition of teacher education, and all changes are focused towards it.

The leader of this movement is Dr. Dwight W. Allen, Dean of the School of Education. Among Dr. Allen's goals are "to implement a total teacher-education program based on performance criteria and multiple routes to the advancement of these criteria. A program that is organized to prepare different people in different ways for a number of emerging roles must be defined." He would also like to develop relevant programs in international education, higher education, urban education, minority problems, vocational developments, educational technology, and learning and curriculum [illegible] others. In order to achieve these goals, the 1968-69 school year has been officially designated as a planning year so that planning and development will be the primary concern of the School until the fall of 1969. At that time, present courses in the School of Education may be discontinued and replaced with those fashioned in a new mold.

DR. DWIGHT W. ALLEN

According to Dean Allen, "A major talk during the planning stage will be the development of the performance criteria for each component of the program. To our knowledge, this represents the first attempt at such an approach to a total teacher education program. Most schools of education define their programs in terms of courses that are offered and activities that are required. Our approach will be to define the behaviors, skills, and attitudes that we feel a teacher should have upon completion of the program. These trainees will not arrive at the criterial point by the same route. Many alternatives will be available to them in order to truly account for individual differences."

The kickoff for the planning year will be September 15-21, 1968. This entire week will be devoted to intensive planning and development.

Reinforcing the development of a new teacher-education program, the school continues to work on special projects funded by the Federal Government. These are Model Teacher Education and Uganda Projects.

The School has also submitted an extensive proposal for sponsored research beginning in 1968-69 under the Education Professions Development Act of 1967. If funded, this proposal will permit a number of specific projects to be started in areas of education of the disadvantaged, accelerated urban education, excellerated teacher preparation, and cooperative exchanges with the disadvantaged institutions of higher education.

Dean Allen is an intense, exciting man who is backed by an exciting, aggressive, intelligent and diverse faculty. They are ready to move in order to make a lasting mark in education. All this will officially begin September 11th at 4:00 p.m. at the School of Education when the School will hold a convocation. Dean Allen will introduce the faculty and speak on "Innovations in Education at the University of Massachusetts." All those interested in teacher education should attend the beginning of this adventure in higher learning.

UMass Plan Perils Boston Sports

Garden Too Vital To Be Strangled

HERALD TRAVELER SPORTS FRIDAY SEPT. 6, 1968 PAGE 35 C

By AL HIRSHBERG

So they won't give us a stadium. But do they have to take away our Garden, too?

This is the latest in the adventures of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts versus the New England sports public. Somebody in the [illegible] Department of Vacation Planning [illegible] Leader [illegible]

(Continued from Page 1)

The Boston Redevelopment Authority would rather see the $350 million dollar campus located there, but he reiterated his stand that no decision had been made.

The Columbia Point site has more acreage, Haigis said, but the North Station site has better commuting facilities which could not be overlooked since U-Mass Boston is a commuter campus. The students themselves would prefer that the campus be located within the city.

Adams and Mannos pointed out that the Garden pays $300,000 a year in taxes alone and other buildings on Causeway Street bring in at least $1 million a year in taxes. The Garden is presently undergoing a $2 million dollar renovation, and this made the thought of losing the Garden even more painful.

Charles W. Mulcahy, Jr., Boston Garden attorney and vice president, said that the site could be taken by eminent domain, and, in that event, they would try to collect for damages. Damages sought would include the cost of renovation plus the value of the 20 year lease which still has 19 years to go.

Campus Comment

Athletic Discrimination?

Dear Sir:

This past summer there appeared in Sports Illustrated, (July 8, 1968) a five part article on the black athlete in American sports. The author, Jack Olson, devoted one article on college athletics and described the surprisingly large amount of subtle discrimination and exploitation of the black athlete on American campuses today.

After finishing the article, I was forced to ask the inevitable questions. Is my university also practicing invisible discrimination? Is the black athlete exploited to the point where his athletic role is definitely secondary to his performance on the field? Is the black athlete a virtual 'slave' to his coach? Is his social freedom suppressed on campus? What really is the situation on the UMass campus? Are we forced to answer affirmatively to these questions?

As a member of the varsity athletic team I am familiar with the Athletic Department and our varsity teams. However, I have been unable to resolve the question in my mind. Perhaps token representation on the major teams adequately camouflages the situation to most--or does it?

Member of the Varsity
Wrestling Team

The Yan. Conference

Dear Sir:

Being a graduate of a so-called "powerhouse" football school, I would like to continue watching good football while I am at UMass. This, at present, seems impossible due to the Yankee conference. No one enjoys watching a losing team or, as the UM attendance shows, a team that continually wins against weaker opposition.

I would therefore like to see UMass break with the Yankee Conference and compete with schools its own size. True, UM may get murdered the first few years but I think spectators would rather watch UMass lose to Syracuse or Penn State with a big drawing card, such as a Czonka, than win against U.R.I. A good team more than pays its own way in gate receipts and U-Mass would eventually get a good team. Perhaps Mr. McGuirk hid better look out his window he may see a big-time university with a small-time football team.

Thomas Armata
Prince House

MDC STAFF MEETING

TOMORROW NIGHT

8:30 p.m. — Council Chambers — Student Union

All editors and old staffers should attend. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

— NEXT WEEK —

Watch closely for more information.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

will be looking for new staffers.

BROWN'S

DECORATING

in the center of town

- Bedspreads
- Pillows
- Draperies
- Curtain Rods
- Blankets
- Linens
- Fabrics

Save! on all your room decorating needs at BROWNS

REGISTRATION DANCE

Monday Sept. 9

THE BOLD THE BOSS TWEEDS THE FIFTH AMENDMENT

7 P.M. 50¢

Tuesday Sept. 10

S.U. Open House Mixer featuring

THE MAIN STREET SOCIETY

8 P.M. All in the S.U. Ballroom

UMass Undertakes an Experiment in Education

Last year there were 85 Negro students in a student body of 16,000 at UMass. One Negro professor said he was shocked that the university had more Chinese students from Taiwan than Negroes.

This week the campus will welcome about 120 Negro students who probably would not be entering college except for the first Negro recruitment drive known at a New England State School.

Funds Provided

They will be provided funds ranging from a few hundred dollars to $1600, the maximum offered by the school, during each of their four years. They will be given massive tutoring in addition to their normal course load, and counseling.

But perhaps the unique effect of the program is that conventional admissions standards were thrown aside, for the most part, when the students were invited to attend the university.

The students, all from this state and most from slum areas in Boston, Springfield and other cities, were hand-picked for their college potential by an all-Negro group at the University known as the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Negro Students, (CCENS).

The 11-member committee, led by Prof. Lawrence Johnson, assistant dean of the School of Business Administration, worked on the project for a year and a half, winning the strong support of the board of trustees. It also won about $150,000 from the Legislature.

William J. Wilson, assistant professor of sociology, said the program is expected to cost about $220,000 this year. Scholarship grants had been expected to amount to $130,000 but the need "may not be that great," according ot Dallas L. Darland, staff assistant to the provost.

Some $95,000 will be spent as salaries for a director, an assistant director, secretary, tutoring supervisor and 42 graduate assistants, who will provide tutoring services for part-time salaries of $3000, Wilson said. Supples and other expenses will also come from the $95,000, he said.

In addition to the state funds, about $65,000 will be taken from the Education Opportunity grants the university obtains annually from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The grants, directed strictly at the financial needs of each student, are being mailed to the new freshmen this week, according to Lynn E. Santner, assistant director of the placement and financial aid office.

The program also received a financial boost from the student senate in the approval of a $41,000 contribution to the Martin Luther King Social Action Council late in the last school year. About $30,000 was earmarked for CCENS, but the senate named the council, a group aimed at improving race relations on campus, as recipient since the senate can fund only recognized student organizations, according to Senate President Paul Silverman.

Because of the Senate approval of the funds, the tax paid by each student as part of his semester bill may be hiked $3 this year, he said. Although few students have criticized the action so far, he said, opinions on the matter may be heated when the students return in September, and a referendum may be held on the funds.

"Some people don't think the Senate should use money for things like this," he said. "I'm not so sure myself."

The committee figured that each student would need an average of $1,075 for the school year from the program, based on the average student need of about $1,800 for tuition, room, board, books, fees, and other expenses. The committee did not include spending money, Wilson said. A student on such a grant should earn at least $200 during the year in summer employment and part-time employment during the school year, the committee decided.

Housing Set

All the 120 students will be housed in the Orchard Hill area, a residential complex of four seven-story dormitories, two male and two female, with a capacity of 1,288 students. The committee has discounted charges that housing the students in the same complex will impede attempts to increase racial interaction on campus.

The students will be able to reach their tutors more easily by living in the same area, Darland said. "It's simply to solve a logistical problem," he said. He added that other residential areas on campus asked to serve as headquarters for the program.

Officials of the program insist that integrating the campus is not at all the primary concern.

"It is certainly not for image purposes," Darland said, and, if so, would be a self-defeating purpose."

Notes Strength

Calling the tutoring service the strength of the program, Darland said, "some schools have run-out and grabbed all the Negroes they could find." Relaxed admissions criteria are meaningless in such programs, unless extensive tutoring is provided at least during the freshman year, Wilson said. Tutoring will not be needed for most of the students in the program after their freshman year during which most of the academic casualties occur at UM, he said.

Next year the program may be expanded beyond another 120 students and will include underprivileged white and Puerto Rican students, the committee hopes. Officials are awaiting word on the results of an application for a sizable grant from the Ford Foundation to help fill expenses projected for the next few years.

May Do More

If any surplus of funds remains from the UMass program this year, with the possible aid of the Ford Foundation, similar programs will be aided at Holyoke and North Shore Junior Colleges, Wilson said.

About 35 students will enter Holyoke Community College under such a program this year.

In choosing the 120 students, who will be among over 3,000 members of the class of 1972, Wilson said, "We were trying to get away from the traditional middle class criteria in order to achieve a more realistic appraisal." Students from the ghetto are less apt to score high on Scholastic Aptitude Tests because the tests are based on middleclass experiences, he said. "The tests determine training, but they do not determine potential," he said.

The committee consulted civic organizations, high school officials and education leaders throughout the state to compile a list of Negro high school graduates with college potential who according to traditional admissions standards would be considered marginal "at best," Darland said. Few of them could otherwise enter college in September, he said.

Acceptance was based chiefly on letters of recommendation, achievement patterns, interviews and autobiographies, according to Wilson. A student who scored a low overall total on an achievement test might have been considered favorably because of a relatively high score in one area, which indicated something turned him on here," Darland said.

Conventional examinations discriminate against many disadvantaged students by posing questions based on experiences unfamiliar to them, Wilson said.

He cited a similar program begun in the New York City College system in 1966, in which 90 percent of the students admitted under the unconventional standards have survived. Other programs have been operated at Wesleyan, Antioch, California at Berkeley, Cornell, Michigan, UCLA, Harvard and Yale, he said.

Among the new Negro students will be 55 from Springfield and 65 from Boston.

UMass Pre-Law Student To Run for State Post

John A. Fiske, a 26-year-old pre-law student at UMass., has announced his candidacy for representative in the first district of Franklin County.

Fiske, a Deerfield resident, is also associated with Pioneer Valley Painters, Inc. of Deerfield. He is a veteran, and a volunteer fireman in Deerfield, a member of the Greater Greenfield Jaycees the Polish-American Club of Deerfield, and various civic and fraternal organizations.

He feels that more could be done for the area by stronger representation in our state government.

"The state has been allowed simply to mark time in the past several years in the proposed model farm of the University of Massachusetts School of Agriculture in Deerfield," he said. "When this farm is in operation it will be of both immediate and long range benefits not only to the farmers of this area but to the whole state as well."

This could have been pressed for by stronger representation in the government, which conceivably might have helped avert another area loss, the medical school at Amherst," said Fiske.

Absolutely! Nothing is too good for our girls. We give them our all in fabric, tailoring, color, fit, design. If that isn't enough to spoil them, the price is. Country Set Leather trimmed, black and white jumper, about $27. 3 to 15. White ribbed wool turtleneck, about $11. 32 to 40.
For free "Are Country Set girls spoiled?" button, write Country Set Inc., Dept. C, 1407 Broadway, New York.
Country Set clothes are sold at the nicest stores in town.

University of Massachusetts Theatre
OPEN TRYOUTS
for
AWAKE AND SING!
Clifford Odets' powerful drama of American life in the Depression-ridden 1930's
119 BARTLETT 7:30 P.M.
SEPTEMBER 11, 12, 13
- All graduates and under-graduates welcome
- No experience necessary
- Freshmen — an opportunity to get in early on University Theatre activity
- Everyone — gain some acting experience before the rush of academic work

Scripts available for loan at Speech Dept. Office, 352 Bartlett.

ARROW T.T.M. Collection in Decton Perma-Iron
Here's the popular oxford weave in today's new colorful stripes on contrasting solid backgrounds. Now long point button-down collar for that perfect roll. Luxurious fabric of 65% Dacron* polyester, 35% cotton is permanently ironed to last the life of the shirt. Taper-tailored for the lean look and "Sanforized-Plus-2" labeled for perfect fit.
*Du Pont R. T. M.
From $6.50

Thompson's
AMHERST CENTER
Serving University men for 81 years

The English Pub

Luncheon
•
Dinner
•
Cocktails
•
Draft Beer
THURSDAY NIGHTS ---- CHARLIE BRADSHAW AT THE PIANO
The Pub
15 East Pleasant St.
253-7226

THE AMHERST TOWER
11 East Pleasant St.

- Eat in
- Take out
- Fast Service
- Ample Parking

HOURS: 11 A.M. to 1 A.M.
Sat. and Sun. Open 11:00 A.M.
Fri. and Sat. Until 2 A.M.

PIZZA
PLEASE ORDER BY NUMBER

1—TOMATO & CHEESE (the favorite)	.99
2—ONION (tangy)	1.29
3—GREEN PEPPER (sweet and tender)	1.39
4—GREEN PEPPER & ONION (combination)	1.39
5—SALAMI (Italian cooked)	1.49
6—LINGUICA (Portugese sausage)	1.49
7—KIELBASA (Polish sausage)	1.49
8—HAM (Imported)	1.49
9—BACON (Canadian)	1.49
10—PEPPERONI (mild cured)	1.69
11—ANCHOVY (finest from Portugal)	1.69
12—MEAT BALL (our own)	1.69
13—MUSHROOM (fancy)	1.79
14—Italian SAUSAGE (special recipe)	1.79
15—MUSHROOM & GREEN PEPPER (comb.)	1.79
16—MEAT BALL & MUSHROOM (comb.)	1.79
17—MUSHROOM & SAUSAGE	1.79
18—SHRIMP (the Gulf's finest)	1.79
19—CLAM	1.79
20—CAMPUS SPECIAL (Linguica, Kielbasa, Mushroom & Pepper)	1.99
21—TOWER SPECIAL (Salami, Mushroom, Pepper & Onion)	1.99
22—FRATERNITY SPECIAL (Kielbasa, Ham, Mushroom & Pepper)
23—SORORITY SPECIAL (Green Pepper, Meat Ball, Mushroom, Sausage)	1.99
24—OUR CAPE COD SPECIAL (Italian Sausage, Meat Ball, Pepper & Onion)	1.99

Make your own combination — any 2 ingredients combined or ½ and ½ (higher price prevails).
SPECIALS WITH ANY 3 or 4 INGREDIENTS 1.89
All Pizzas basically contain tomato and cheese
All Pizzas are 10 inches, 8 slices

HOME MADE ITALIAN DISHES

25—SPAGHETTI with MEAT SAUCE	.99
26—SPAGHETTI with MEAT BALLS	1.19
27—SHELL MACARONI with MEAT SAUCE	.99
28—SHELL MACARONI with MEAT BALLS	1.19
29—RAVIOLI with MEAT SAUCE	.99
30—BAKED LASAGNA	1.19
31—ANTIPASTO (dish)	1.19

Call 253-7100
256-6667

Widely Imitated . . . but Never Duplicated SUBMARINE

	Reg.	Jr.
32—ITALIAN SUBMARINE	.79	.59
33—MEAT BALL SUBMARINE (4 Meat Balls & Sauce	.89	.69
34—SALAMI SUUBMARINE (Lettuce, Tomato, & Mayo.)	.89	.69
35—SALAMI & CHEESE SUBMARINE (Lettuce, Tomato & Mayo.)	.89	.69
36—TUNA SALAD SUBMARINE (White Meat)	.89	.69
37—HAM SUBMARINE (Lettuce, Tomato & Mayo.)	.89	.69
38—HAM & CHEESE SUBMARINE (Lettuce, Tomato & Mayo.)	.89	.69
39—PEPPER STEAK SUBMARINE (Sirloin Strips, Peppers & Onions)	.99	.79
40—ITALIAN SAUSAGE SUBMARINE (Pure Pork Sausage)	.99	.79
41—KIELBASA (Mustard or Meat Sauce)	.99	.79
42—LINGUICIA	.99	.79
43—ROAST BEEF (Choice)	1.09	.89
44—HOT PASTRAMI	1.09	.89

SANDWICHES
(the following served on . . . Rye Bread or Roll)

45—OUR OWN CHEESE SANDWICH	.49
46—SALAMI (Italian Cooked)	.59
47—SALAMI & CHEESE	.59
48—HAM	.59
49—HAM & CHEESE	.59
50—TUNA SALAD	.69
51—HAM, LETTUCE, TOMATO	.69
52—HAM, LETTUCE, TOMATO, CHEESE	.79
53—BACON LETTUCE & TOMATO	.79
54—TOSSED SALAD	.49
55—SLICED CHICKEN	.89

SEPT 9

Czechoslovakia Agrees to Occupation

Most All Soviet Demands Met By Leaders

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovak leaders, pressed by the Kremlin, have agreed to declare that their country's western borders are not secure and must be "defended" by its Warsaw Pact allies, informed sources said Sunday.

This means occupation troops will be stationed on Czechoslovakia's western borders indefinitely and the Soviet promise to withdraw when the situation "normalizes" does not mean a complete withdrawal, these informants added.

Although there has been no official announcement, articles in the Soviet Communist party organ Pravda indicate Russian intentions. Provda said Sunday that Czechoslovakia is taking "the first steps toward normalization" but it leaders have failed to deal "a decisive blow to hostile forces still trying to act."

Russian Demands

The informants said Czechoslovak leaders also pledged to:

—Change the political development of Czechoslovakia to conform with the conservative Soviet brand of communism.

—Remove from office Interior Minister Josef Pavel, Deputy Premier Ota Sik and Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek.

—Reintroduce censorship to insure that news media do not campaign against countries that participated in the invasion, the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, East Germany, Poland and Hungary.

—Declare invalid the 14th Congress of the Czechoslovak Communist party, held clandestinely while party leaders were prisoners in Moscow.

—Withdraw Hajek's formal request for a hearing on the Czechoslovek crisis by the United Nations Security Council.

—Take no reprisals against any Czechoslovak citizens who cooperated with the invading armies.

Troops May Leave

In return, the sources said, Czechoslovak leaders secured a Soviet pledge that when the occupation troops leave, Russian security organs will leave with them.

Other Russians also wanted Czechoslovak leaders to declare that there was a "counterrevolution" in their country, but the Prague leadership protested and the demand was dropped, the informants added..

Both sides agreed that a commission will be formed to discuss compensation to Czechoslovakia for damage caused by the invading armies.

Pavel and Sik already have resigned from their posts. The Kremlin apparently wanted Pavel ousted because he refused to cooperate with Soviet security organs, and Sik because of his liberal economic reforms that sought closer ties with the West.

Hajek, also blacklisted because his foreign policy sought closer ties with capitalist countries was in Yugoslavia during the invasion and later traveled to the United Nations in New York. He returned to Prague Saturday.

Withdraw UN Request

In compliance with Soviet demands, he withdrew Czechoslovakia's request for a hearing before the U. N. Security Council. But he is still in office, at least in name.

Czechoslovak leaders also reintroduced press censorship, but Pravda has repeatedly charged it is not strict enough.

PARTY CHIEF DUBCEK

Pueblo Rescue Uncertain; Korea Celebrates Independence

TOYKO (AP) — Communist North Korea celebrated its 20th National Day anniversary Sunday with no sign that it will release 82 crewmen of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo detained since Jan. 23.

The day was observed with delegations from 60 Communist parties around the world attending, amid rumors that North Korea would release the Pueblo crew for the occasion.

The official North Korean Central News Agency—KCNA—added to the rumors when it served notice that it would distribute "important reports" on a special Sunday broadcast. But neither KCNA nor Pyongyang radio, monitored in Tokyo, made any reference to the Pueblo and her crew before winding up the day's transmission.

Attendance at the celebrations from abroad reflected the split in the Communist camp resulting from the occupation of Czechoslovakia.

Communist Split Apparent

The Czechoslovaks, apparently angered by North Korea's condemnation of their liberalism, snubbed the celebration. So did the Chinese Communists, who denounced the Soviet intervention.

Those present at the celebration included a Soviet delegation led by deputy premier D.S. Polyansky and leaders of the East European nations which invaded Czechoslovakia.

North Korea's strongman Premier Kim Il Sung delivered a lengthy speech to the nation and foreign delegates underlining Pyongyang's anti-U.S. policy.

Pueblo Hopes Alive

In Seoul, South Korea, rumors persisted and foreign correspondents converged there in anticipation of possible release of the Pueblo crew.

U.S. military spokesmen in Japan and South Korea, however, discounted the possibility. In Washington, government sources said there had been no change in the situation.

UMass Renews Old Ties with Hokkaido U

A 92-year-old friendship between UMass and Hokkaido University in Japan was renewed this summer with the visit to UMass of a group of 135 Japanese, including the retired president of Hokkaido.

The group of young Japanese businessmen and government employees were guests of the University Aug. 3 through Aug. 6. Many were graduates of Hokkaido and one of the four directors of the group was Dr. Hurasade Suginome, retired president of Hokkaido.

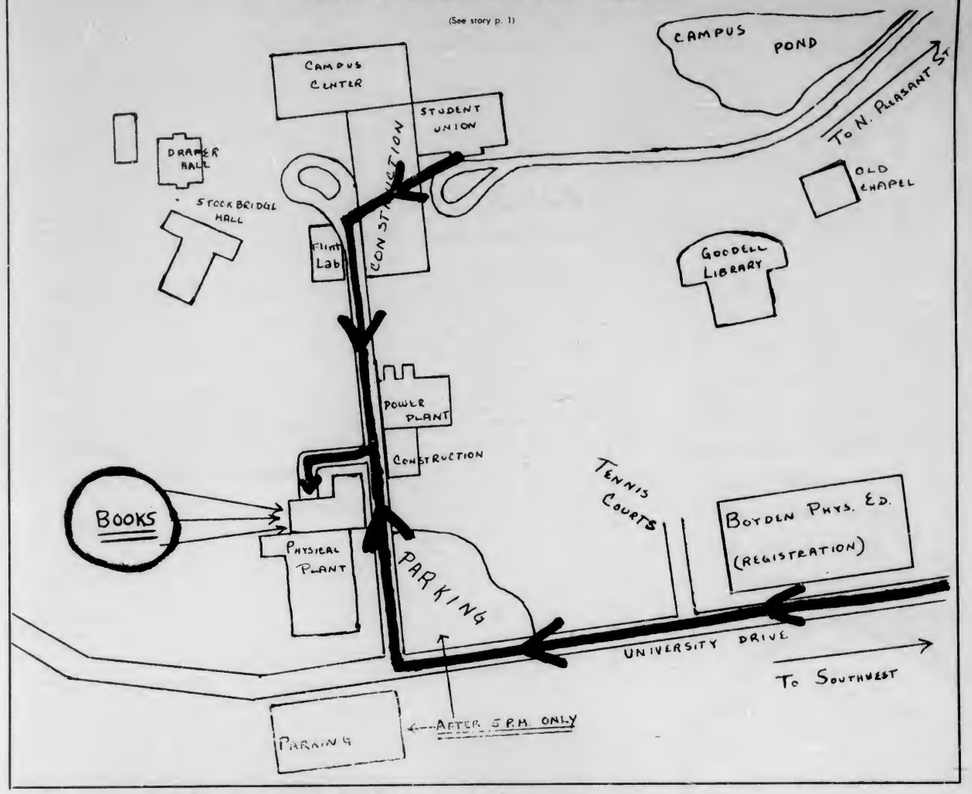
The UMass-Hokkaido ties go back to 1876, when William S. Clark, an early UMass president, went to Japan to breathe life into the newly-established institution at Hokkaido. The present visit by the Japanese group is in response to an invitation by UMass President John W. Lederle.

The group arrived in Amherst, Saturday, August 3. Saturday evening they were the guests of the University's Center for International Agricultural Studies at a performance of the UMass Summer Repertory Theatre play "The World of Sholom Aleichem." Sunday the group toured the University and visited museums in the Springfield area.

Monday morning they toured Old Sturbridge Village as guests of the Old Sturbridge Village trustees.

UMass President John W. Lederle was the host at a banquet honoring the visitors. Faculty, staff and others in the University community attended. Representing Gov. John A. Volpe was John Patterson, executive secretary of the Japan Society of Boston and former American consul in Japan.

The 92-year affiliation between Hokkaido and UMass is the oldest exchange program known between an American and a foreign institution of higher education. Exchange visits by students and faculty have been frequent through the years, particularly during a 1958-1962 AID contract, when 11 UMass faculty served at Hokkaido and 52 Japanese faculty and students came to Amherst for advanced training.



Dr. Suginome was awarded an honorary degree by UMass in 1956. In 1963, Dr. Suginome attended the UMass centennial and was awarded an honorary degree by President Lederle.

The grave of early University of Massachusetts President William S. Clark in West Cemetery received silent homage by members of a Japanse group visiting the University recently. The three-day visit was a renewal of a friendship that began when Clark left Amherst in 1876 to head a newly-founded institution in Hokkaido, Japan. The UMass-University of Hokkaido friendship is today the oldest exchange program known a U.S. and foreign institution. Left to right, Hiroshi Kitabayashi, Kenti Yamakage, Takashi Takeda, and retired Hokkaido President Harusada Suginors. The latter is a director of the tour.

New Location For Book Sales

(See story p. 1)

'Project 10' Is Newest UMass Idea

UMass begins an entirely new type of student community this fall in two brand-new houses of the Southwest Residence Area.

Called Project 10, it is a community planned and developed almost entirely by students at Southwest. It offers a group of 262 volunteer freshmen a chance for a shared intellectual and social experience. In other words of the planners, "This plan stems from the belief that the process of learning thrives best in a community of learners."

All Project 10 freshmen will take two required freshman courses together and may elect to take up to five other courses together. The required courses are English III and Western Civilization; the electives are Botany 101, Government 101, Philosophy 105 and discussion sections of Psychology 101 and Sociology 101.

A group of 144 Project 10 freshmen women will live in Pierpont House; 118 Project 10 freshmen men will live in nearby Moore House. The two houses will join in planning their own program of visiting speakers, films and other cultural and social events. They will join similarly in a co-ed government for the two houses.

Dr. Earl Seidman of the UM School of Education is Project 10's faculty director. An assistant director, UMass graduate student Peter Storandt, will live in an apartment at one of the residences. Instead of the conventional resident counselors, Project 10 freshmen will be assigned undergraduate teaching residents, who will help them with both academic and personal adjustments to university life.

The Project 10 students will occupy roughly half of each residence. The remainder of each will house upperclass honors program students. The two houses are in a group of four new buildings whose opening this fall completes the 5,500 - student Southwest Residence Area, begun in 1964. The area now comprises 19 buildings, including three dining commons, five 22-story towers and 11 lowrise residences.

The overall Project 10 approach, according to the planners, will be "more oriented toward study in depth than to the survey approach, toward problem - solving rather than questions and answers, toward discovery of information rather than the conveyance of it."

Project 10 is the newest program in the UMass residential college system, which began at Orchard Hill in 1964 and has been continued in the Southwest area. Dr. John A. Hunt, new Southwest Residential College master, assisted the student planning group for Project 10. The UM residential college system, through faculty - student contact, cultural programs and classes where students live, seeks to extend the learning process into the residence areas.

The 262 Project 10 freshman represent approximately 8 per cent of the total freshman class of 3150.

High School College Applicants Appear To Be In The Drivers Seat

PHILADELPHIA (CPS)—College-seeking high school seniors are now in the driver's seat, and many are rejecting college acceptance offers by the dozens, according to a report by the American College Admission Center.

The report says a recent survey of 560 Eastern colleges revealed that only one per cent are no longer considering qualified applicants. Some colleges reported that enrollments are 30 per cent behind last year at this time.

Dr. Henry Klein, president of the six-year-old Center, said there are three main reasons for the vacant seat awaiting students. "First, there are more colleges than ever before. This year a new community college opened every week somewhere in the U.S. Second, the rash of college dormitory building—with federal funds—has out-raced the number of available students. Third, there are fewer high school graduates this year than in previous years. While the number has increased annually, the rate of increase is slowing down."

Dr. Klein said the number of high school graduates increased 84 per cent between 1955 and 1965, but will increase only 29 per cent between 1965 and 1975. "Therefore, after the peak of nearly three million high school graduates is reached in 1970, the actual number will start to decline. By 1980, some college campuses may become ghost towns." Dr. Klein said.

School Year Begins . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

experience.

The final four buildings of the $36 million Southwest Residence Area open for use this fall. The complex, begun in 1967 and financed at no cost to the taxpayer through student rents and fees, will house and provide meals for 5500 students in 19 buildings — five 22-story towers, 11 low-rise buildings and three dining commons. The final four buildings are a dining commons and three low-rise residences — Alexander E. Cance House for 318 students, Mildred Pierpont House for 304 and Frank C. Moore House with 218.

More Construction

Also completed and being occupied is the new John F. Thompson Hall, 10-story adjunct to Machmer Hall named for the late speaker of the State House of Representatives from Ludlow. Completion is scheduled in the middle of the academic year for another classroom and office building, the seven-story Christian A. Herter Hall. A construction start is scheduled this fall on a third classroom building, Maurice J. Tobin Hall. The $3.6 million structure will be ready in mid-1970.

Work will continue through the academic year on two major additions to the Amherst campus—the ten-story Murray D. Lincoln Center, a $13.6 million conference center and student facilities building; and the $18 million Graduate Research Center, physical sciences laboratory and computer center building. The Lincoln Center will include an underground parking garage and is scheduled for completion in September of 1969; the Graduate Center is scheduled for completion a year later.

The University's new library, a 28-story tower in the middle of campus designed by noted architect Edward Durell Stone, is scheduled to go to bid in the fall. A construction start on the $14.8 million, 2 million-volume building is planned this winter. Off campus, construction is scheduled to start this year on the first houses of Fraternity Park, a unique private development on a 55-acre site northeast of campus that will eventually be the site of 23 UMass fraternities and sororities. Road, utility and landscape work in the site is scheduled for November completion.

New Academic Programs

Among the graduate - level programs that will be available for the first time this fall are a Ph.D. program in anthropology, one of the few master's degree programs in regional planning to be offered in the east, and master's and Ph.D. programs in both comparative literature and environmental engineering. For undergraduates, honors versions of 14 courses will be offered for the first time to provide special opportunities for superior students. A special 15-week bar review course in Worcester for the December bar examinations is new this year. A Center for the Study of Educational Innovation will make its debut this fall at the UMass School of Education.

Mansfield Suggests New Vietnam Policy Plan

By ROBERT T. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON AP — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield suggested Sunday a new Vietnam policy in which goals of the present U.S. war effort would be reduced.

That approach, the Montana Democrat said, might require a reconstituted Saigon government that would be willing to settle for peace with control of less than the entire country of South Vietnam.

Stalemate in Paris

Conflicting views of the two sides in the Paris peace talks are "irreconciliable in their present form," but a new approach might bring results, Mansfield said.

"The United States has never had and does not now have a commitment to take, retake or to hold all of South Vietnam for any particular government in Saigon," he added.

In the report dealing exclusively with Vietnam, Mansfield said this country had these alternatives.

Facing the question of whether vital U.S. interests require "a monumental U.S. military effort to create in South Vietnam a situation of security and control for the Saigon government," a course he said would involve years of involvement.

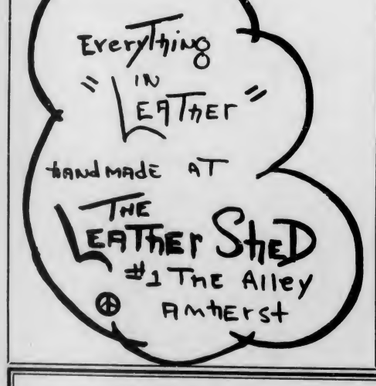
—Revising U.S. military strategy to concentrate and consolidate the military effort, pending negotiation of a settlement. "In place of the present attempt to blanket all of South Vietnam with our military power."

Possible Bombing Halt

Following the latter course, Mansfield said, would make a bombing halt possible without risk to American forces. North Vietnam has insisted on such a halt before peace talks can proceed.

Mansfield said a requirement for a plan to reduce territorial goals might be establishment of a privisonal, National Union government in Saigon.

It would include "civilian nationalist elements heretofore excluded or silenced by fear of repression," he said.



Then, he continued, successive steps would be the bombing halt, a cease-fire and negotiations between the new Saigon government and the National Liberation Front.

Those could be followed by the convening of the Geneva Conference or expansion of the Paris talks to include other nations in working out a peace plan for southeast Asia, he said.

WINN JEWELERS

serving the students' needs for the best in gifts — would like to take this opportunity to welcome you back.

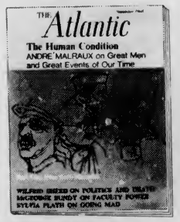
Remember — when in doubt as to what gift to buy — come to WINN JEWELERS and let us help solve your problem.

University Labor Dispute Continues Over Representation

Representatives of Local 1776, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, at UMass have appeared before the state Labor Relations Commission, continuing a two year campaign to gain exclusive representation rights among university employees.

Delay charged



"Once again, the company association the university chapter of the Massachusetts State Employees Association, which has contested the right of Local 1776 to represent the employees, has displayed a talent for causing confusion and delay which works to the harm of UMass employees." Local 1776 president Paul Korpita said after the hearing.

Last year, similar hearings before the state Labor Relations Commission resulted in a decision in favor of Local 1776's position of multiple bargaining units at UMass, rather than one, as favored by MSEA.

"Subsequently, in an election conducted by the state commission, May 27, Local 1776 won the right to bargain for three non-professional units at the University. hese were service-maintenance, security and agricultural employees.

Meanwhile, MSEA won the three "white collar groups." No group obtained a majority of votes in the large food service unit and local 1776 has requested a runoff election there.

At your newsstand NOW

ANDRÉ MALRAUX
plus
McGeorge Bundy
on FACULTY POWER:
Don't shoot the university president, says the president of the Ford Foundation. He's probably doing the best he can — but his job depends on more hard work by his professors.

And . . . Sylvia Plath, Wilfrid Sheed, Edward Sorel, Justin Kaplan

Gallup Poll Favors Republicans

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — The American public feels the Republican party can deal more effectively with the nation's vital problems than the Democrats, the Gallup Poll reported Sunday.

The poll, taken in mid-August, found that 37 per cent of those polled thought the Republicans were better on Vital issues. Another 25 per cent favored the Democrats and 38 per cent were undecided.

When the undecideds were divided equally, the Republicans had a 56-44 edge.

Four years ago, Gallup said, a similar poll gave the Democrats a 62-38 margin and they went on to win the election with 61 per cent of the vote to 39 per cent for the Republicans.

The present poll also reported that the four major worries of the electorate are the war in Vietnam, 51 per cent; crime and lawlessness, 21 per cent; civil rights, 20 per cent, and the high cost of living, 7 per cent.

Grad Record Exam Dates Announced

Anyone preparing himself for admission to graduate school should be sure he has fulfilled all the requirements in advance. Among other things, many graduate schools now require scores from the Graduate Record Examinations. This test is offered on October 26 and December 14 in 1968 and on January 18, February 22, April 26, and July 12 in 1969. Individual applicants should be sure that they take the test in time to meet the deadlines of their intended graduate school or graduate department or fellowship granting agency. Early registration also ensure that the individual can be tested at the location of his choice and without having to pay the three dollar fee for late registration.

The Graduate Record Examinations in this program include an Aptitude Test of general scholastic ability and Advanced Tests of achievements in 22 major fields of study. Candidates determine from their preferred graduate schools or fellowship committees which of the examinations they should take and when they should be taken.

Full details and forms needed to apply for the GRE are contained in the Bulletin of Information for Candidates. If this booklet is not available on campus, you may request one from Educational Testing Service, Box 955, Princeton, New Jersey 08540; 990 Grove Street, Evanston, Illinois 60201 or 1947 Center Street, Berkeley, California 94704.

MAMA'S PIZZA

103 No. Pleasant St.

	Reg. (10 in.)	Lg. (15 in.)
Tomato Cheese	.95	1.50
Pepper	1.50	2.00
Onion	1.50	2.00
Mushroom	1.50	2.00
Anchovie	1.50	2.00
Hamburg	1.50	2.00
Sausage	1.50	2.00
Pepperoni	1.50	2.00

Slices 25¢

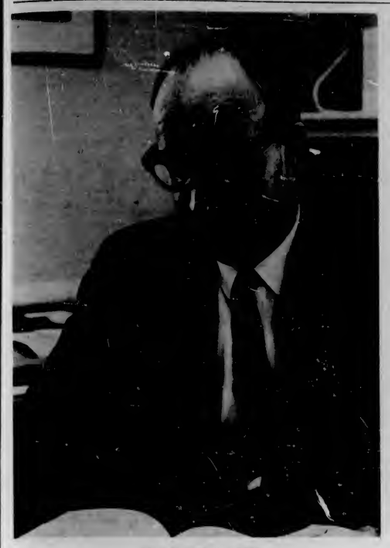
Combinations — each added ingredient

.15 Reg. .25 Lg.

OPEN TIL 2 A.M.

FREE DELIVERY

CALL 253-9858



FASHION FABRICS

of Amherst

SHOP NO. 5 AT 103 N. PLEASANT ST.

- Quality fabrics starting at 98 cents a yard
- Complete line of sewing notions
- Hand-wrought silver jewelry

OPEN 9-5:30 THURS. AND FRI. UNTIL 9

DEAN EDWARD C. MOORE

Dean Moore to Leave UMass; To Assume New Post at SUNY

UMass Graduate School Dean and Coordinator of Research, Dr. Edward C. Moore announced this Summer that he will leave UMass October 1 to become Vice President for Graduate Studies and Research at the State University of N. Y.

Dean Moore came to UMass in 1962 from the University of Idaho, where he had served as head of the department of philosophy. During his tenure as dean and coordinator of research at UMass, the graduate school has grown from 975 students to 2835 students. Sponsored research has increased from $259,000 a year to 7 million. The number of master's degree programs offered has grown from 22 to 55 and the number of doctorates from 12 to 42.

Under his leadership, a University Press which has published 39 books in the past two years has been instituted, a powerful CDC 3600 research computer has been brought in, and phase one of a new Graduate Research Center is being built at a cost of $17 million.

Author of many papers in the fields of philosophy and education, he has served as president of the Northwest Conference on Philosophy and President of the Charles S. Pierce Society. A member of the American Philosophical Association, he is listed in Who's Who in America, the Dictionary of American Schoiars, and other publications.

A graduate of Western Michigan University, Dean Moore received an M.A. in educational administration and an M.A. and Ph.D. in philosophy from the University of Michigan.

USSPA Director Refuses Induction

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Robert Johnston, the executive director of the U.S. Student Press Association, has refused to be inducted into the armed services.

Johnston a former editor of The Michigan Daily at the University of Michigan, said his decision to resist the draft "is a personal decision, and does not constitute in any way an endorsement explicit or implied by the U.S. Student Press Association of my action, or of any such actions by anyone at any time or place."

In explaining his decision, he said, "I have made every possible and reasonable effort to cooperate with my draft board in Atlanta, Ga. In response they have harassed me at every opportunity. For almost two years they have dealt with my case arbitrarily and capriciously at every hand, failing even to maintain a Board-appointed appeal agent to assist me as required by law."

He added, "All this has been in spite of every reasonable representation on my part to them, and on the part of many friends and colleagues, of my situation. Under the circumstances, they leave me no recourse other than to refuse to be inducted through such arrogant, medieval procedures, and to seek a full and hopefully fair hearing in the courts."

Cutbacks in Federal Spending Could Hurt UMass Med School

Cutbacks in federal spending could possibly delay construction of Massachusetts Medical School in Worcester and will drastically affect research projects in both Amherst and Boston, Pres. John W. Lederle told U Mass trustees recently.

In presenting the "bleak financial picture," Lederle said university officials will make every effort to expedite the granting of $18 million in promised federal facilities but held out little hope for averting cutbacks in basic research grants totaling $7 million already granted for the total university complex.

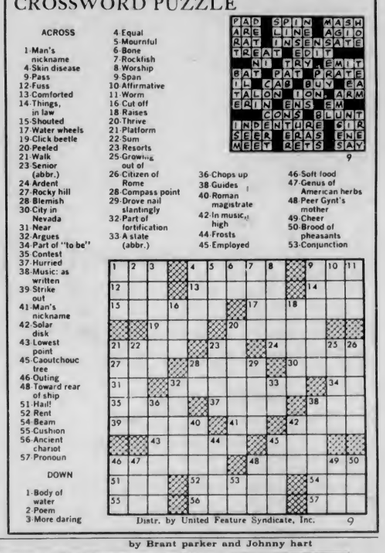
Congress this year sliced $6 billion from the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare budget, resulting in a 10 to 20 per cent cutback in federal funding of higher education research and development projects, Lederle said. Most UMass research projects will be affected immediately.

"To have a quality medical school, the university needs these research funds," President Lederle continued. "If we are successful in optaining retroactive funding of the basic science building in Worcester, we will request the state to put up the entire funds, with the understanding that the federal funds would become available at a later date. The medical school research facilities are expected to cost $45 million."

Provost Oswald Tippo said the 10 to 20 per cent reduction in basic research funds will affect the entire university within two weeks. University officials must decide where to apply the cuts in projects already approved and funded by the federal government. Affected will be research salaries, equipment purchases, and administrative research help.

Health Expansion

UMass' health facilities will be expanded. The Trustees authorized preliminary plans for an addition to the Health Services complex.



The proposed addition is part of a long-range plan to provide adequate health services for the burgeoning student population on the Amherst campus. No cost estimates were submitted.

In recommending the health services expansion, Fred Emerson, vice chairman of the Committee on Buildings and grounds, said, "present facilities had been designed for a peak campus population of 10,000 students and noted UMass Amherst now has an enrollment of 15,000. He said the proposed expansion would provide for an eventual population of 28,000 to 30,000 students. We must add on to keep up with the student traffic utilizing on-campus health services," Emerson said.

In other action, on recommendation of the Buildings and Grounds Committee trustees voted to explore the possibility of constructing a new athletic center and a convention center on the UMass campus. In addition, trustees expressed "favorable interest" in constructing a new fire station and dormitory for the town of Amherst on university property at the Tillson farm on East Pleasant Street.

Proposing the construction of an athletic center and a convention center, Emerson said the action has been recommended by Dean Warren W. McGuirk of the School of Physical Education. He said he forsees two separate facilities built near Boyden Gymnasium on the southwest corner of the campus for hockey and basketball and for conventions.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ACROSS

1 Man's nickname
4 Skin disease
9 Pass
12 Fuss
13 Comforted
14 Things, in law
15 Shouted
17 Water wheels
19 Click beetle
20 Peeled
21 Walk
23 Senior (abbr.)
24 Ardent
27 Rocky hill
28 Blemish
30 City in Nevada
31 Near
32 Argues
34 Part of "to be"
35 Contest
37 Hurried
38 Music: as written
39 Strike out
41 Man's nickname
42 Solar disk
43 Lowest point
45 Caoutchouc tree
46 Outing
48 Toward rear of ship
51 Haul
52 Rent
54 Beam
55 Cushion
56 Ancient chariot
57 Pronoun

DOWN

1 Body of water
2 Poem
3 More daring
4 Equal
5 Mournful
6 Bone
7 Rockfish
8 Worship
9 Span
10 Affirmative
11 Worm
16 Cut off
18 Raises
20 Thrive
21 Platform
22 Sum
23 Resorts
25 Growing out of 26 Citizen of Rome
28 Compass point
29 Drove nail slantingly
32 Part of fortification
33 A state (abbr.)
36 Chops up
38 Guides
40 Roman magistrate
42 In music, high
44 Frosts
45 Employed
46 Soft food
47 Genus of American herbs
48 Peer Gynt's mother
49 Cheer
50 Brood of pheasants
53 Conjunction

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 9

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. by Johnny hart

PEANUTS

Changes Effected in A&S Requirements

By Richard W. Story
Education Editor

Changes in the English, History and Speech graduation requirements of the College of Arts and Sciences were announced recently by the Dean of the College. The changes, approved by both the College faculty and the Trustees, are effective immediately and are applicable to all present members of the College. In outline, the liberalizations replace requirements for particular specified courses with general requirements for any of a group of courses—for example: any one of four specified Speech courses rather than Speech 101 as formerly required.

The English 125-126 sequence in masterpieces of Western literature, formerly required of all, has been broadened to one of a year's study of literature in the Western tradition. This now includes English 151-152, Forms and sources of modern literature: epic and novel, English 153-154, Forms and sources... drama and lyric, Comparative Literature 201-203, Modern European literature, French 161-162*, Great works in French literature, German 277-278*, Survey of German literature, Italian 161-162*, Introduction to Italian literature, and Spanish 161-162*, Introduction to Spanish literature. Note that the last four sequences in particular literatures, marked with an asterisk, presuppose proficiency in the respective language.

Modifying the requirement of History 100-101 for the Bachelor of Arts degree, the new form of the requirement reads, "A year's study of the Western tradition in history or philosophy." Toward the implementation of this provision, any two of the following seven philosophy courses may be counted for the B.A. requirement: Philosophy 105, Introduction to philosophy, 161, History of ancient and medieval philosophy, 162, History of modern philosophy, 201, Plato and Aristotle, 202, Medieval philosophy, 203, British empiricism, and 204 Continental European philosophy. Note that any of the last four 200-series courses requires any one semester of philosophy as a prerequisite.

The changed Speech requirement allows the use of any of these three new courses in the department — all too new to appear in the current University catalogue· in addition to Speech 101 which may still be used to satisfy the requirement, Speech 105, 107 or 150 — all 3-credit courses — may now also be used. Specifically, these three are Speech 105, Introduction to rhetorical theory, a new course involving the study of various rhetorical concepts in historical perspective. Various instructors will organize the course differently, with some organizing it around concepts, and others organizing it around historical periods. In either case, students will learn something about major theorists and how their concepts relate to the social climate of which they were (or are) a part.

Speech 107, Masterpieces of public address, a new course involving the analysis of persuasive speeches and other forms of public address which by virtue of their impact and/or fame, have become "masterpieces." The addresses will be studied in their historical context, with attention being given to their argumentative structure, logical validity and persuasive devices. Speech 150, Processes of speech communication, a new course involving the study of the oral communication process. Considerable attention will be given to various communication models, the nature of language, types and causes of communication breakdown, encoding and decoding, and the application of communication models to the study of rhetoric, drama and the mass media. (Because of staffing difficulties, Speech 150 will not be first offered until spring semester 1969.)

The net effect, then, of these several changes, all spawned by last spring's Cook Committee Report, is to diversify the options open to students in CAS in fulfilling graduation requirements. All of the singly-specified courses formerly required remain available as options for these requirements; the several courses listed here stand in addition to these under these changes. Freshmen were generally made aware of these during their summer orientation; but for those upperclassmen who have not yet fulfilled these requirements, the new courses are now available to them, and may be elected in the registration today and tomorrow.

School of Ed Creates Two New Posts

The School of Education has announced the creation of two educational lectureships for government officials beginning this fall.

The program is the School's response to the need for better understanding between government and the academic community. It will allow government officials who have demonstrated leadership potential an opportunity to increase their competence in their fields while at the same time permitting educators to realize the needs of government service.

The lectureships will be awarded for a one-year term in cooperation with the Government Employees Training Act of 1958. They are designed for individuals in government service who can combine advanced training with service to the University.

The Horace Mann Lectureship in Public Education Policy will be filled by a person who holds a governmental policy level position relevant to public education. He will be concerned with developing better levels of communication between the government and public education systems in order to increase coordination and efficiency of new policies.

A government employee who deals with the problems of international education will hold the John Quincy Adams Lectureship in International Education. He will work on the organization of a possible Center for International Education at UMass. This center will be designed to provide useful educational programs to international specialists in government service.

Under the program a lecturer will remain under salary from his agency and will also receive a $2,000 award from the University. Each lecturer will teach a seminar in addition to pursuing his own studies in the field of public education.

Hampshire College Receives Grant For New Library

Franklin Patterson, President of Hampshire College, has announced a $4,500 Library planning grant from the Educational Facilities Laboratories. The grant will be used to develop methods of predicting changes in technology and assessing its effect on library building, functions, and organization. Robert Taylor, Director of the Library, will supervise the inquiry.

Hampshire will break ground for the Library in October so that the building may be ready for the first group of students in 1970. But if this building is to incorporate advantageously the technological innovations which are numerous and rapidly changing, library planners must find ways of evaluating these innovations according to Hampshire's needs.

Hampshire planners are, therefore, concerned with three general problems: First, how will communications technology influence routine library processing and information storage, retrieval and display. An interesting example of possible obsolescence lies in the recent development of new vehicles, such as gas, flame, lasers and fluids, for the movement of messages. These may demand conduits of a radically different nature than those presently used. Furthermore, Hampshire wants to know what possibilities there are for cooperative activity among the college and public libraries and what effect these activities will have on library organization and administration.

Secondly, Hampshire's planners are concerned with how quickly library users can accept change and whether a library building can be designed to service users and experiment with technological innovations at the same time.

new! in Amherst — THE THREE C's

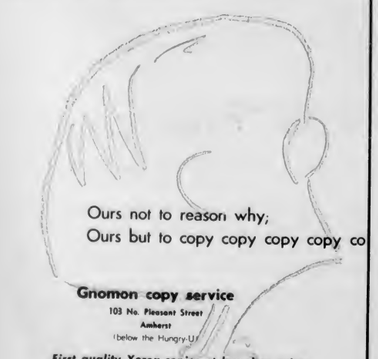
CARD & GIFT SHOP

Featuring an amazing variety of

• GREETING CARDS • GIFTS • STATIONERY

• BARRICINI CANDY

• HUMMEL FIGURES



also a complete line of School Supplies

As an added incentive — A FREE BIC PEN to all students who come in to get acquainted

at

191 North Pleasant St.

Ours not to reason why;
Ours but to copy copy copy copy co

Gnomon copy service
103 No. Pleasant Street
Amherst
(below the Hungry U)

First quality Xerox copies at low, low prices
5¢ for the first Xerox copy of an original
3¢ for the second thru tenth copies of that original
2¢ for the 11th and each succeeding copy of the same original
FREE COLLATING SAME DAY OR OVERNIGHT SERVICE

Rapp's Delicatessen
AND RESTAURANT
79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
Delicious Salads -- Desserts
HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE
HOURS FREE DELIVERY
Every night 6-11 p.m.
Phone 256-6759
FREE DELIVERY CALL EARLY
Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.
BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

School of Education

Nationwide Conference Attracts 200

More than 200 educators from all parts of the nation were at UMass this summer attending a five-day microteaching conference sponsored by the University School of Education.

The conference, centering around a series of lectures and workshops, was part of a series of summer programs conducted by the UMass School of Education, the conference is designed to provide leadership and direction in the educational field.

Microteaching is a new method of training teachers by scaling down the teaching encounter. Decreasing the time, size and objectives of the training class isolates specific teaching abilities and allows the trainee to focus on them.

Simplifies Teaching

The method simplifies teaching, permits greater control over practice and facilitates a better evaluation of the teacher.

Speaking before the group Dr. Dwight Allen, Dean of the UM School of Education, called upon educators to re-examine the outdated principle of teacher certification.

The first step in his program is for state boards of education to shift responsibility for certification from themselves to competent teacher training schools.

"In addition, individual school districts," he said, "should have the responsibility of deciding the qualifications for a position and who is most suited to fill it."

The idea that students must always be under the constant supervision of licensed teachers regardless of the activity in the school was cited by Dr. Allen as "nonsense."

"Half of the teacher's time is spent in non-teaching duties," he said. "We must get the teacher out of this non-professional role. Let the clerk do the clerical work and let the teacher teach."

The present teacher certification system is designed to insulate the student from incompetence, but it also burdens the teacher with duties not related to teaching, he told the group. Valuable instruction time is then lost because of this dual role of "general purpose" teacher and clerk.

A distinction between primary and secondary responsibility to students must be made in order to recognize the variety of tasks that are commonly labeled as professional, he explained. Such a distinction would open untapped resources in business and industry to a school that is not legally constrained from keeping people without credentials away from its students.

"Local certification would allow the school to get the best person for the job without worrying about non - essential requirements," Dean Allen said.

Certification at the local level would provide for the development of what Dr. Allen terms "differentiated teacher performance criteria." This is the decision-making process of determining the total tasks involved in running a school, pinpointing these tasks and deciding who is qualified to perform them. "We need to look at the task we're trying to accomplish," he said, "and decide the training and background necessary to that task."

According to Dr. Allen, "present certification methods, although designed to strengthen professionalism in education, in effect hinder it by obstructing good judgment."

Important Step

As soon as teachers become financially comfortable enough not to worry about new people entering the field without the same credentials, he said, the profession can be upgraded. By leaving schools free to hire people without being limited by current credentialing requirements Dr. Allen believes that an important step could be made in developing the kind of professionalism that is desired in American education.

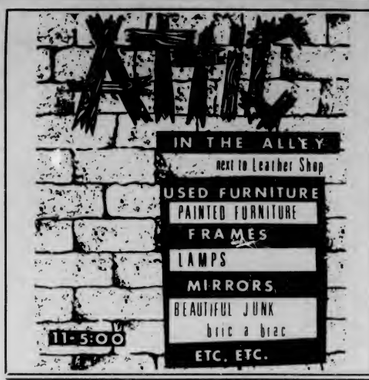
In a concluding talk Allen said —"Education has stood still for 200 years and we must get it moving again.'

"Most teachers are never ready for innovations," he added, "but this should not deter us. We must change the faculty, not stop innovation."

Amherst College Poet Appears in 'Seventeen'

Two poems by Amherst College sophomore Danny Kaufman appeared in this month's issue of Seventeen Magazine. They are: "Against Analysis" an example of Danny's "prose poetry" "atmospheric" poems.

Danny, 19, who formerly wrote only prose, now claims "poetry lends itself more effectively to the things I want to say." Furthermore, he admits, "Anytime I write prose it turns into prose poetry.



"I hate to write within boundaries. . .to be structured," Danny insists. In "against analysis which warns of "the danger of being too cerebal," Danny abandons meter for meaning. "Isn't there something ugly in the penetration of beauty for meaning, in the searching out of perfectly formed leaves for, the meaning of perfection?" asks the teen poet, who admits he used to worry "how far my intellect would carry me."

In "Remember" Danny concentrates on creating a mood. "Do you remember when we sat, together on the huge branch, of an oak, and, your hand in mine, we carved initials in the wrinkled bark, and wondered how long, they'd last?" introduces this reminiscent love poem to a fictional girl. "Most of my poetry is written to imaginary people," Danny remarks.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew M. Kaufman, Danny is a 1967 graduate of the Great Neck North Senior High School, where he served as editor-in chief of the yearbook literary editor of the newspaper and President of the Civil Rights Committee. At Amherst, Danny writes for the college literary magazine and is a member of the photography club. A music enthusiast, he is working toward a degree in Fine Arts with an emphasis on photography. After college he would like to work as both a photographer and writer "to achieve self-expression by combining the two art forms."

NOW!
#1 "SOUND OF MUSIC"
Nightly at 8
#2 "HANG 'EM HIGH"
Nightly at 7-9
Starts Wed.
#1 "PLANET OF THE APES"
& "FLIM FLAM MAN"
#2 "THE DETECTIVE"
Frank Sinatra
Soon — Cinema 3
256-6411
Campus Twin Cinemas
CAMPUS PLAZA SHOPPING CENTER

The today shoes are at

MATHEWS

the newest classics;
the best tradition-breakers positively iconoclastic shoes for men and women from

ACME BOOTS	VIVA-AMERICANA
FLORSHEIM	SEBAGO
BASS WEEJUNS	DUNHAM'S
AUDITIONS	MANLY
BATES	MISS AMERICA
HUSHPUPPIES	OLD MAINE
WALL STREETOR	TROTTERS

Esquire socks; Adler socks; Kayser pantyhose

Mathews SHOE STORE
39 South Pleasant St. 256-6374

Baucom's Textbook Stores

takes pride in announcing the opening of the BAUCOM'S ANNEX at 199 N. Pleasant St. between the Amherst Tower & The Post Office to better serve the University of Massachusetts

• NEW & USED TEXTBOOKS BOUGHT AND SOLD up to 50% and more off

• NOTEBOOKS AND SCHOOL SUPPLIES

Don't forget our other location in the Summerlin Building featuring a wide and unusual variety of prints and posters

WELCOME BACK

from the EDITORS of the

MDC

UMASS:

Unlimited Machine Access from Scattered Site

At the University of Massachusetts, faculty and students used to come to the computer; now the computer comes to them through a new system of Campus-wide Teletype access points.

Direct access for on-line use of the UMass Research Computing Center's CDC 3600 machine is now available at 24 Teletype locations — in science laboratories, in the computer science classroom, at the School of Business Administration, the School of Education and other points.

Plans call for increasing the number of remote sites to 64 in the near future. As many as 100 or more sites can be accommodated with present equipment, according to Dr. Conrad Wogrin, computer center director.

The key advantage of the new system is that it extends to any computer user on campus the opportunity to work interactively with the CDC 3600—to communicate directly with the machine via keyboard and to interact with it as it works, Dr. Wogrin said.

"The intended effect is to make each person think he is in sole command of a moderately powerful computer," associate computer center director Robert Hambleton said.

The remote system is the product of over a year of planning and development by Hambleton, computer center systems analyst David Stemple, and Dr. Caxton C. Foster, the center's associate director for research now on leave at the University of Edinburgh in Scotland. The system has been dubbed UMASS — Unlimited Machine Access from Scattered Sites.

Users of UMASS can describe their problem in any one of four computer languages: FORTRAN or BASIC, common computer languages; COGO, a civil engineering language; or SMALL, a language corresponding to the internal machine language used by computers. Programs can be fed in by typing directly on the Teletype keyboard or by feeding previously prepared paper tape into a tape reader attached to the Teletype machine.

Access to the system is gained by typing the user's code name on the Teletype. After the machine acknowledges him, the user feeds in his program and instructs the computer to run it. If the program has errors, the machine immediately types out diagnostic comments on them. If the program is "clean" the machine runs it and returns the results.

Each Teletype user is hooked into the main computer frame through a linkage that runs from the teletype console to a PDP 8 computer which is connected to the 3600. A magnetic drum unit with a storage capacity of 1 million words is used to hold lines read from Teletype.

The capacity of the CDC 3600 to run several hundred thousand operations a second keeps input and output signals from many Teletype locations moving without interruption. Teletype computer users wait at the most a fraction of a second for a computer response, according to Dr. Wogrin. The UMass computer center team figures it can run up to 100 remote access points on its present system without increasing the response delay time to an uncomfortable duration.

The new system is currently used only during certain hours of the day, the rest of the CDC 3600's time being allowed to batch runs, a term that refers to running programs with batches of punched data cards. Future plans call for simultaneous scheduling of Teletype and batch use.

Before the Teletype system, University computer users had access to the machine mainly through data card input, a method that involved putting a program on cards and often waiting through several trial runs while the errors or bugs were discovered and eliminated from the program.

With Teletype access, this program is not only speeded up but becomes an actual dialogue between operator and computer. "With an interactive system you put yourself in the processing environment," Hambleton said. "It expands the horizon of what you can do with a computer."

Ten of the Teletype keyboards are used in one classroom for instruction in a basic computer science course. Students learn computer programming by writing a sample program, going to the machines ranged along one wall of the classroom and trying the program and getting an answer back immediately on what's right and what's wrong. "A process that took three days under the data card system now can be done in a half hour," Hambleton noted.

Present locations of the UMass computer access machines include those in the chemistry, botany, physics buildings, two in the School of Business Administration and one each in two other classroom buildings, plus two for the teaching of computer science classes in the Orchard Hill Residential College.

Future locations will include many more on the Amherst campus, one or more in state colleges, community colleges and state-supported junior colleges, according to the computer center director.

My Jade Castle — boutique
HAND WOVEN ARTICLES From ECUADOR
— HAND MADE DRESSES —
Daily 12-6/Sat 10-6/Closed Mon
over MUTUAL HARDWARE amherst 253-5412

Service on Your Glasses Tout de Suite!

Break your glasses? Bend the frames?
Stop in as soon as it happens and in a matter of hours, we will have them fixed.

If you don't have the prescription, save the pieces of the lens and we can duplicate it.

When you're ready for a new style -- see Don Call

Flattering frames, in newest designs. Exact fitting assures comfort along with good looks.

When sun glare gets you -- stop in to see Don Call

Glare is tough on eyes. Get sunglasses from a professional. Have your prescription ground in, and lenses hardened. Many Ray Ban and Orma styles, as well as others.

Contact Lens Fluids & Supplies
All Types of Magnifiers & Optical Devices
Hearing Aids & Batteries

Donald S. Call
Optician - Hearing Aids
Member, Greater Amherst Chamber of Commerce
Open Daily 9 to 5:30
(Saturday to 5 P.M.)
56 Main St., Amherst AL 3-7002

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

Pizza ☆ are round cornbread is square Mama's Pizza.

HELP WANTED

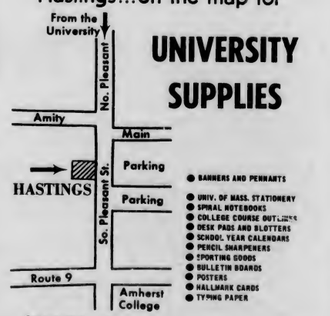
Student for half day a week light housework. Call 253-9432.

Part-time household help for elderly couple, with possible housing. Also practical nursing 8 to 5 Sat. & Sun. Call 256-8200.

OPPORTUNITY

TO EARN $10.00 FOR 1½-2 HOURS. WORK. YOU WORK AT YOUR OWN SCHEDULE. Contact: Allen Elias, 41 River Street, West Springfield, Mass. 01089 — 736-1642, 7:30-9 a.m. or 10-11 p.m. Call collect.

FOR SALE



Stereo components at discount prices. Sealed cartons, full factory warranty. Amherst Hi-Fi Club, Box 721, Amherst, Mass. Tel. 256-6485

Senate
ACADEMIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE MEETING
Tuesday 17, September 1968
7:30 p.m., Council Chamber "B"

All past and present members who wish to continue as members through this school year absolutely should attend this introductory and organizational meeting of the Committee. Those not present cannot really be considered as continuing members. Prospective new members should make a particular point of attending this meeting too, and the details of the year's work will be laid forth for the complete elucidation of all present.

Richard W. Story
Chairman
222 Brett House
546-6234

Hastings...on the map for UNIVERSITY SUPPLIES

- BANNERS AND PENNANTS
- SPIRAL NOTEBOOKS
- UNIV. OF MASS. STATIONERY
- COLLEGE COURSE OUTLINES
- DESK PADS AND BLOTTERS
- SCHOOL YEAR CALENDARS
- PENCIL SHARPENERS
- SPORTING GOODS
- BULLETIN BOARDS
- POSTERS
- HALLMARK CARDS
- TYPING PAPER

Conveniently located in the center of Amherst
A. J. HASTINGS INC.
Newsdealer and Stationer
45 South Pleasant St. Amherst AL 3-2840
OPEN WEEKDAYS — 8 A.M. TO 9 P.M. SUNDAYS — 8 A.M. TO 1 P.M.

Ted Kennedy To Appear Today In Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) —Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is scheduled to return to active partisan political campaigning today for the first time since the assassination of his brother, Robert.

The Massachusetts Senator will be in Springfield on behalf of Democratic Congressman Edward P. Boland, a close friend who is seeking reelection to the 2nd Congressional District.

Boland, who has held the 2nd Congressional District seat since 1952, is believed by Political observers to have a strong fight on his hands to win the Democratic nomination in the Sept. 17 primary.

His opponent is former Springfield Mayor Charles V. Ryan, 41, father of 10, who has shown ability to get votes in the Springfield area.

UMass Is #49 In Providing PC Volunteers

UMass is now the nation's 49th largest contributor of Peace Corps Volunteers, according to the Corps' Office of Public Affairs.

The latest statistical rundown shows that 106 Volunteers from UMass have been selected for Peace Corps assignments, including 56 now serving overseas.

They have served in sub-Saharan Africa (27) East Asia and the Pacific Islands (31), Latin America (31) and in the North Africa Near East South Asia region (17).

Of the nation's 2,800 colleges and universities, five other Massachusetts schools also fall into the top Peace Corps producers. They are: Harvard, ranking sixth; Boston University, 25th; Boston College, 61st; Tufts, 107th; and Northeastern, 110th.

The top five schools in the nation in order are: the University of California at Berkeley, University of Wisconsin, University of Washington, Stanford Uni- Michigan.

UMass ranked 100th last year for total volunteers produced since 1961 when the Peace Corps began in eight countries.

By next spring nearly 10,700 Volunteers will be overseas in 59 countries working primarily in education, community development, health and agriculture.

Dr. Govert C. van Drimmelen, left, agricultural counselor for the Embassy of South Africa in Washington, D.C., talks with Dr. Donald L. Black, right, research professor of veterinary and animal sciences at UMass. Dr. van Drimmelen, an internationally-known biologist, conferred with Dr. Black and others at the UMass College of Agriculture on a recent visit sponsored by the Center for International Agricultural Studies of the college.

Introducing — KEN COOK (owner - optician) of Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 NO. PLEASANT ST.

Kenneth Cook, Optician

- don't lose your glasses, come in and have your name engraved on them for a small charge
- over 25 years optical experience
- immediate attention to emergency repairs
- large selection of fashion-right frames
- excellent display of custom-fitted sunglasses

dreaming about your future?

then stop!

Here's a once in a lifetime opportunity for adventure and challenge.

A civilian career with the Army Recreation or Library Program in Europe or the Far East.

If you are single, a U.S. citizen and have a degree in Recreation

Social Science
Arts and Crafts
Music
Dramatics or Library Science

WRITE FOR A BROCHURE

SPECIAL SERVICES SECTION IRCB
DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
WASHINGTON, D. C. 20315

NEW! Ready for YOU...closest to U. of M.!

EXPERT SERVICE by experienced repairmen

R. W. GRAVES RADIO & TV
197 North Pleasant St. -- 256-6913

Sparkling AM Reception at a Budget Price!

The ARROW Model RJA11

featuring RCA VICTOR

Clock Radio Value!

The TIMESTER Model RJD10

EXPERT SERVICE

Parts on stock for KLH, FISHER, H. H. SCOTT, PIONEER, and other popular makes.

ON ALL RECORD PLAYERS, STEREOS, AND COMPONENTS.
ALL WORK GUARANTEED

FAST SERVICE

Here's what's new in the

MDC . . .

the Wizard of Id by parker and hart

B.C. BY JOHNNY HART

INSIDE REPORT:

By Washington columnists
Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

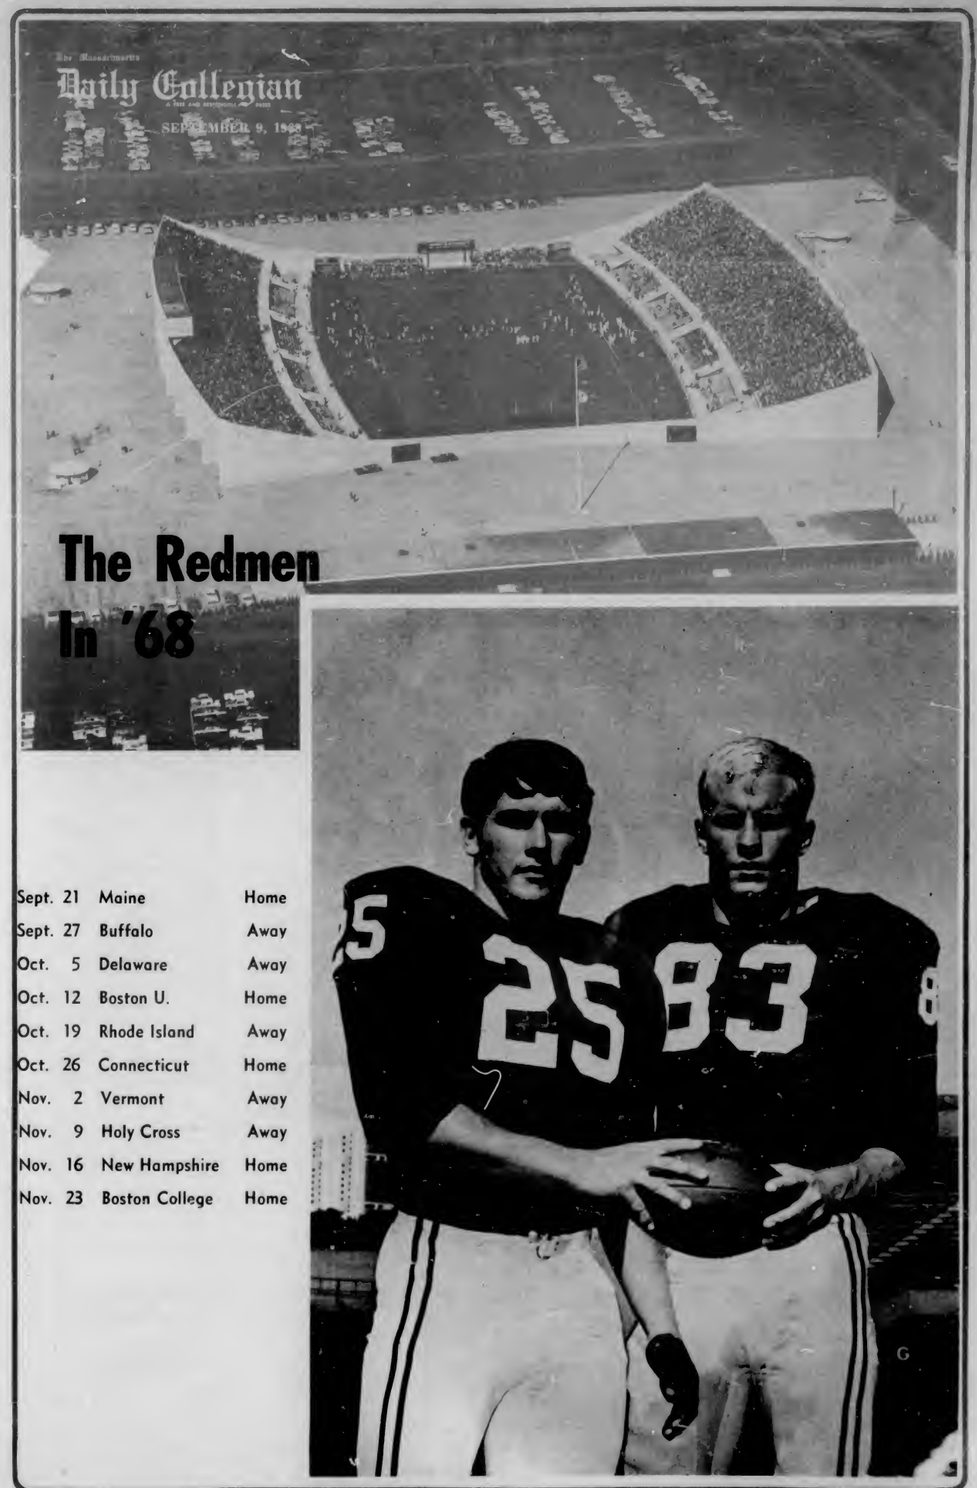
And starting soon . . . Herblock editorial cartoons.

And, as always. . . . . . .

Complete coverage of all campus sports by one of the nation's best college sports staffs . . .

Expanded state, national, and international news from the wires of the Associated Press . . .

On-the-spot coverage of all campus happenings . . .



Amherst area news . . .

. . . as well as a daily crossword puzzle . . . and PEANUTS.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

New England's Largest College Daily

The Redmen In '68

Sept.	21	Maine	Home
Sept.	27	Buffalo	Away
Oct.	5	Delaware	Away
Oct.	12	Boston U.	Home
Oct.	19	Rhode Island	Away
Oct.	26	Connecticut	Home
Nov.	2	Vermont	Away
Nov.	9	Holy Cross	Away
Nov.	16	New Hampshire	Home
Nov.	23	Boston College	Home

SEPT 9

McCormick, Whelchel, Landry, and now at QB--?

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

Vol. XCVII, No. 2 September 10, 1968

Sports staff:
Editor—Michael Curran
Contributors—Tom FitzGerald, Peter Pascarelli, Jan Curley, Glenn Briere

On the cover—Top, a jammed crowd watches the 1967 Redmen in action at Alumni Stadium; right, 1968 co-captains Mike McArdle (left) and Nick Warnock.

Yankee Come Home

As the sound of smacking shoulder pads fills the Stadium practice area and the Redman Marching Band bursts once again into melody, the heralding of the new football season on the UMass campus is accompanied by tidings of comfort and joy from an unexpected source—the Yankee Conference.

In 1964 the six Yankee Conference presidents voted to impose the league's first scholarship restriction on member schools. Thus was born the fabled 20 Formula, under which each school was allowed to grant no more than 20 full athletic scholarships a year, or the equivalent in partial grants, for football, basketball, baseball, track and soccer.

UMass administrators, coaches, alumni and fans were particularly incensed by the ruling since UMass is the largest of the six schools in enrollment and has played far stronger schedules in footbal than its Coference brethren.

This summer, the ruling was altered, that is, made palatable, by the Conference presidents. Now the 20 Formula applies only to football and basketball and permits each school to seek its own level in intercollegiate competition, but only to the extent that Conference solidarity will be secure. Or will it be secure? Already some observers are eyeing UMass and other Conference schools as hawkish-big-time-football-factories with designs on Syracuse, Penn State and the service academies.

Such ambitions, however, run against the grain of Yankee Conference conservatism. And, after all, most of the bigger time football schools offer at least 20 scholarships a year, for that sport alone. As for the rule change, it's about time.

—THE EDITORS

BRAIN TRUST RESTS — UMass football coaches look ahead to the 1968 campaign. From left, Dave Kelley, Milt Piepul, Dub Fesperman, Head Coach Vic Fusia, Jack Delaney, George Karras and Bob Graham.

Vic and Friends—with Variations

Vic Fusia, the 20th head football coach at UMass, brings into his eighth season a coaching record, unmatched in UMass or Yankee Conference history. Fusia's 47 wins, and 15 losses and one tie is the best, percentage-wise of all Massachusetts coaches.

Last year, the Redmen won their fourth Yankee Conference title in the last five years and compiled a seven win two loss record overall. Under Coach Fusia, UMass has lost but three conference games while winning 31, for a .912 percentage.

Ironically enough, the three losses were all by field goal margins and all cost the Redmen losses were all by field goal margins and all cost the Redmen conference crowns each year. Fusia was honored as New England Coach of the Year in 1964, while his squad was voted top major team in the area.

Coach Fusia, a Pittsburgh native, graduated from Manhattan College in 1938, where he was an outstanding tailback. He coached at Rankin (Pa.) High School and Indiana (Pa.) High School, before beginning a four-year stay at Brown University as backfield coach. Fusia later moved to first assistant at the University of Pittsburgh, where he helped the Panthers become a national power, beore coming to UMass.

Fusia had two temporary voids on his coaching staff this season. John Bamberry left his spot as defensive backfield coach to coach at Stoughton High School and former defensive line coach Burley Crowe became coach at Northampton High School.

Bamberry's spot has been filled by Milt Piepul, a 25-year veteran of the college coaching ranks. A Springfield native, Piepul graduated from Notre Dame in 1937 where he was a fullback and went on to play with the Detroit Lions. He has coached at Brown and Dartmouth before moving on to Holy Cross, where Piepul coached until this year.

William "Dub" Fesperman takes over as defensive line coach, Fesperman, who hails from Winston-Salem, N.C., was an outstanding football and baseball player at his alma mater, Duke, from which he graduated in 1956. Fesperman coached high school ball for four years before being an assistant at Wake Forest, Tulane and most recently at Georgia Tech.

Jack Delaney begins his eighth year as a UMass assistant coach. Delaney, a Columbus, Ohio, native was a backfield star at the University of Cincinnati under the coaching of Sid Gillman. He served for seven years as an assistant there before coming to UMass.

Bob Graham, in his eight year at UMass, serves as defensive line coach. Graham, a native of Lewiston, Pa., was voted the outstanding member of his Penn team in 1949. After spending a year in the Phillies' farm system Graham coached at St. Alban's school in Washington and at Pennsylvania before joining the Redman staff.

George Karras, in his third year at UMass, comes from Etna, Pa. Karras was a guard at Villanova and went on to coach two outstanding Pennsylvania high school teams. Karras was an assistant at Villanova for three years and head coach at Wichita for two years before his UMass appointment.

Dave Kelley begins his second year as UMass freshman coach. Kelley, whose father is head coach at Hobart College, is a Hamilton, N.Y. native. Kelley was one of UMass' outstanding defensive ball players in recent years. He was also one of New England's top collegiate wrestlers during his undergraduate days.

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following or exam period or when holiday falls within a week. Accepted under the authority of the act of — 3, 1879, as amended by the Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst, $5.50 per semester.

Quarterbacks

Good teams usually have good quarterbacks, and this has been no exception with UMass' Fusia-coached teams of the last eight seasons.

When Vic Fusia arrived on the scene he inherited a great passer in John McCormick. McCormick is presently plying his trade with the Denver Broncos of the NFL.

The next season Fusia installed a sensational sophomore Jerry Welchel at the helm. Under Welchel, UMass broke into the New England football spotlight.

As Welchel's sensational career came to a close, Fusia stomped all over the east in search of a successor. The man he came up with proved to be the greatest football player ever to attend UMass.

Greg Landry, presently of the Detroit Lions, in three seasons broke almost every UMass offensive record, many Yankee Conference marks and even a few New England standards.

The period of adjustment has come again for Coach Fusia.

Tim Adams is currently leading the pack, according to Fusia. Adams, a junior from Wellesley, saw spot action last year in the Maine, Connecticut, Rutgers and Boston College contests. He called the signals for the 1966 freshman squad, which ran up a 3-2 record.

Behind Adams thus far, are Mike Marchev, a sophomore who missed freshman ball with a broken leg, and Mark Devitt, a transfer from Rhode Island who directed the sensational 1965 freshmen ahead of eventual URI regulars Larry Caswell and Tom Fay.

Senior Ronn Coltin is one man Fusia may insert if the situation calls for an experienced cool head. Coltin was Landry's second in the early going last year.

Other prospects Fusia hasn't forgotten about are Ken Hughes, former New Jersey High school all-stater, and George Anderson.

11 MIKE MARCHEV—Sophomore—6'—180—Short Hills, N.J.—Did not play freshman football because of a boy injury, but showed in spring drills that he is a real contender for the quarterback slot. A fine passer with good speed. Won Sports Dad Scholar Athlete Award and also lettered with the frosh baseball team as a shortstop. MAJOR: English

14 TIM ADAMS—Junior—6'—175—Wellesley, Mass.—Short on experience but not poise this all around athlete demonstrated during Spring drills that he is capable of running the UMass offense. A very fine passer who is a nifty runner when the occasion arises. Also starred in hockey and baseball in high school. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

Offensive Backs

Graduation was kind to the Redman offensive backfield with the exception, of course, of Landry. UMass retained every one of its fine runners except Freddy Hairston, who chose not to play ball this year.

Presently Bruce Cochrane and Ed Sarno are battling it out for the fullback spot. Fusia asserts, "Both block very well, and it's quite a fight."

Tim Driscoll, last year's second leading runner, will swing between the fullback and tailback slots. Craig Lovell, third leading ground gainer a year ago, will probably open at tailback with John Decembrele backing him up. Pat Flaherty, former South Boston star, is also pencilled in at that position.

Jerry Grasso returns at the wingback slot. Grasso was the Redman's third leading receiver in his sophomore season. Pat Scavone, the best of the freshman backs a year ago, is right behind Grasso.

Other hopefuls at that position are speedsters Neil Hering, senior Frank Tudryn and sophomore Tom Semino.

20 PAT SCAVONE—Sophomore—5'10—150—Worcester, Mass.—One of the outstanding backs on the frosh squad a year ago who was very impressive in Spring drills. An All City back in high school for three years and an All American H.S. honorable mention as a junior. MAJOR: Business

22 JERRY GRASSO—Junior—6'—185—Everett, Mass.—Averaged 3.7 yds. per carry as a sophomore and was the team's third leading pass receiver. A very shifty runner who is a key man in the Redman offense. An All Scholastic at Everett H.S. and All Prep selection. MAJOR: Pre med

40 CRAIG LOVELL—Junior—6'—192—Wellesley, Mass. — The team's third leading ground gainer last year while averaging 4 yards a carry. Will play tailback this year after being a swing man last fall at wingback and tailback. MAJOR: Government

42 TIM DRISCOLL—Senior—6'—190 — Bridgewater, Mass. — Scored three touchdowns and was the team's second leading ground gainer a year ago. Hampered with injuries as a sophomore and junior but potentially a runner with great promise. MAJOR: Physical Education

30 BRUCE COCHRANE—Senior—6' — 205—Brookline, Mass.—As a soph he won the Maine exams with a last minute field goal and last year was the starting fullback. An All Scholastic choice in high school in football and also played hockey, baseball, and track. MAJOR: History

31 ED SARNO—Junior—6'—230 — Waltham, Mass.—A member of the 1966 Eastern Mass. Class A Champs who has played some fine football as a freshman and sophomore although hampered by injuries. Averaged 4 yds. a carry last year as a soph. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

Offensive Ends

UMass has been well off in offensive ends since the days of Milt Morin and Bob Meers, and this year's crop will be no exception.

Leading the way will be Co-captain Nick Warnock, one of the best split ends in New England. Warnock, who has played in every game for the past two years, has a fine pair of hands and is especially proficient in third and long yardage situations.

Backing up Warnock are juniors Don Young and Jim Long the younger brother of NFL player Bob Long.

The Redmen will be well-stacked at tight end. The probable starter will be senior Alan Becker. Becker, a high school teammate of center Noel Schablik at East Rutherford, N.J., was Bob Meers' backup in 1965, and returned last year after sitting out the 1966 season. A two-way player, Becker may also see action at defensive end.

One of the most promising sophomores on the team is tight end Nick McGarry from Arlington, Va. McGarry is big and strong, and has unlimited potential.

80 NICK McGARRY—Sophomore—6'5 — 210—Arlington, Va.—One of the standout performers on last year's freshman

(Continued on Page 3)

Giant Poster from any photo

2 ft. x 3 ft. only $1.95*

($4.95 value)

*Send any black & white or color photo (no negatives) and the name "Swingline" cut out from any Swingline package (or reasonable facsimile) to: POSTER-MART, P.O. Box 165, Woodside, N.Y. 11377. Enclose $1.95 cash, check, or money order (no C.O.D.'s). Add sales tax where applicable.

Poster rolled and mailed (postpaid) in sturdy tube. Original material returned undamaged. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Get a Swingline Tot Stapler

98c

(including 1000 staples) Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.69

Unconditionally guaranteed. At any stationery, variety, or book store.

Swingline INC.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y. 11101

- Eat in
- Take out
- Fast Service
- Ample Parking
- Pizza
- Submarine

Hours: 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun.
Open 11:00 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.

Depth Lacking at Guard, Tackle Positions

(Continued from Page 2)

squad who should see plenty of action as the season unfolds. A rugged performer who is an excellent target because of his size and maneuverability. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

81 ALAN BECKER—Senior—6'3—195 — Rutherford, N. J.—A two year letterman who will probably be the starting tight end this fall. Has good speed and fine hands and is also a fine defensive performer. Handicapped by injuries in the past, but appears fit for best season ever. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

83 NICK WARNOCK—Senior 6'2—206—Berwyn, Pa.—Co-captain of this year's squad and the team's leading punter and pass receiver for the past two years. An All Conference first team selection last fall who averaged 17 yards per reception. Excellent speed and great moves could make him a professional prospect. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

88 DON YOUNG—Junior—6'—200—Holyoke, Mass.—Saw limited action last year as a split end and has proven he is a very capable receiver. An Army veteran who was an All Western Mass. performer at Holyoke H.S. and an All New England Prep end at Cushing Academy. MAJOR: Marketing

Offensive Tackles

The offensive tackles, the keys to pass blocking start right ahead running, figure to be juniors Mike Cooney, a veteran of last year's campaign, and Jim Nagle, who sat out most of last season while moving to offense from defensive end.

Hugh Dick Donlin is pushing hard for a spot, and according to Fusia, he "should make Cooney a better ball player." The biggest player on the team, is down from his spring weight of 325 to just under a svelte 289. Fusia wouldn't mind seeing him shed another 30 or so.

70 DICK DONLIN—Junior—6'4—289 — New Britain, Conn.—Physically the largest man on the squad who has been switched to offense after playing mostly defense as a sophomore. A member of the Connecticut State Championship team in 1964 and an All League selection at tackle as a senior. MAJOR: Biology

71 MIKE COONEY—Junior—6'—225 — Havertown, Pa.—One of the most consistent interior line performers as a sophomore a year ago this agile and quick tackle is one of the key players on the offensive forward wall. Was an outstanding American Legion baseball player as a catcher and a member of Bordentown Academy's 1966 Eastern Prep Champs. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

78 JIM NANGLE—Junior—6'3 — 205 — Peabody, Mass.—Lettered last year as a sophomore at tackle. A quick starter and strong blocker who has run a 10.0 hundred. An All Scholastic choice who played in the Harry Agganis All Star game as a senior. MAJOR: Education

Chemical Engineering

65 GEORGE CRANE—Senior—6'—210—Belmont, Mass.—Used primarily as a linebacker previously, but injuries have hampered his effectiveness. Very impressive as an offensive guard in Spring drills and could be a starter. MAJOR: History

67 PIERRE MARCHANDO —Sophomore — 6'1—225—Boston, Mass. — Played fullback on the frosh team last year, but hampered with injuries. Shows promise of becoming a fine linemen. All Scholastic choice at Cambridge H. S. Also played basketball, baseball and hockey in high school. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

Centers

Noel Shablik, who was injured last season suffered a sprained ankle in practice but will be ready for the opener. The only other man in line for the position is Bob Sheehan, who has played throughout the line.

50 BOB SHEEHAN—Senior—6'6—250 — W. Roxbury, Mass.—Has played tackle, end and center but will probably see most of his action at the latter position this year. A very strong blocker who gets off the mark very quickly. An All Catholic and All Scholastic choice at Catholic Memorial. MAJOR: Business

51 NOEL SCHABLIK—Senior—6'2— 200 —Carlstadt, N.J.—The starting center a year ago who appears to have recovered from off season knee surgery. An All Bergen County H.S. selection as a tackle and also lettered in track and baseball. MAJOR: Government

Middle Guards

Bruce Gombar's departure from UMass last June left a gaping hole in the middle guard position, but Fusia had several prospects in mind.

John MacLean, shifted from offensive guard to middle guard, appears to be the starter. Andy Guarino was also set for that position, but he has since sprained his ankle. Roger Prefontaine, who had been Gombar's backup man for two years, has decided not to play football this year.

MacLean is backed by one of the few deaf mutes in college football history, Tom Callahan. Callahan, according to Coach Fusia, is both "quick and strong" in the position.

60 ANDY GUARINO—Junior—5'11—215 —Everett, Mass.—Switched from defensive tackle (where he lettered as a soph) to the nutcracker position and from Spring drills appears to be the leading candidate for the the starting berth. Quick and very aggressive. MAJOR: History

61 JOHN MacLEAN—Junior—5'10— 205 — Williamstown, Mass. — A veteran who was used at linebacker and middle guard last year, but has been shifted to offensive guard and could win a starting berth. A fine high school player at Williamstown H.S. A member of last year's varsity wrestling team. MAJOR: Zoology

Defensive Tackles

Lack of depth will pose some problems at defensive tackle. There is only one experienced player at the position, so this will be one of the early-season question marks.

The returnee is junior Marty Scheralis, who came into his own last year after nailing down a starting berth part-way into the season. Scheralis' size makes him a fine pass rusher.

After Scheralis, there are no experienced tackles. Sophomore Fred Hupprich will probably be the other starter, although Mark Toner, younger brother of former Redman great Ed Toner, could break into the lineup if he is fully recovered from the foot injury that kept him out most of last year.

These three will share most of the burden at defensive tackle. Because of this lack of depth, Coach Fusia says, "All three will have to learn to play both right and left tackle."

Another untested commodity who could see action is sophomore Charles Baranowsky.

72 MARTY SCHERALIS—Junior—6'4 — 250— South Boston, Mass.—Developed into one of the squad's outstanding performers last year and recovered two fumbles in addition to harrassing opposing passers. Team's long field goal and kickoff specialist. MAJOR: Physical Education

74 FRED HUPPRICH—Sophomore — 6'2 —235—Wakefield, Mass.—Returned to school last Spring after a four year hitch in the service and was one of the outstanding defensive linemen in the Spring intrasquad game. A standout lineman in high school who could ease the tackle crisis if he regains his old playing form. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

75 CHARLES BARANOWSKY — Sophomore—6'3—215—Hudson, Mass. — A regular on the defensive platoon for the frosh squad last year who could see plenty of action as the season progresses. Played tackle and middle guard in high school as well as center on the basketball team. MAJOR: Physical Education

77 MARK TONER—Junior—6'1—225 — Swampscott, Mass.—A foot injury sidelined him most of last year, but the former Lynn athlete should see regular duty this fall. Brother of former Redman standout, Ed (now playing with the Patriots) and also baseball and basketball standout at St. Mary's

Defensive Ends

Defensive end should prove to be one of the Redmen's strong er positions this season despite the loss of Paul Mlinar through graduation.

One of the most pleasing surprises of last year's team was Tom York. York started to play regularly after the first three games and went on to a fine season. The mobile New Jersey product is equally adept at pass rushing and short pass coverage.

Ii Randy Robinson can regain his form of two years ago, he and York will make a fearsome combination. Robinson suffered a neck injury in pre-season practice last year and missed a good portion of the season. His return will bolster the UMass pass rush considerably.

Besides Alan Becher, the reserves at defensive end will include a pair of sophomores, Russ Wood and Jim Lang.

84 TOM YORK—Junior—6'1—200 — Bedminster, N.J.—Recovered three fumbles and intercepted two passes and was an All Conference second team choice as a defensive end last season as a sophomore. An All Prep end at Bordentown Military where he also starred in basketball and baseball. MAJOR: Mathematics

85 RANDY ROBINSON—Senior—6' — 210—Belle Harbor, N.Y.—Missed the early part of last season because of a neck injury after an outstanding sophomore year. An All City selection while at Far Rockaway H.S. where he also won the Lou Gehrig Award. A great pass rusher. MAJOR: Physical Education

86 RUSS WOOD—Sophomore—6'1— 190 —Berkeley Heights, N.J.—A starter on the defensive platoon for the frosh last year and very impressive in the Spring intrasquad game. Led his high school team as a senior in tackles and interceptions as a linebacker. MAJOR: Physical Education

87 JOE LANG—Sophomore—6' — 185 — Norwood, Mass.—A fine all around athlete who saw most of his action as a freshman as a quarterback but appears to be making the transition to defensive end very naturally. A member of Eastern Mass. 1966 Class E Champions. MAJOR: Business Administration

Linebackers

The linebacking corps has been devastated by graduation and injuries among other things. Gone are Ernie Smith and Paul Campbell, two of the toughest football players ever to hit Amherst. Senior Paul Vaccaro was again felled by injuries which will keep him out all season. Don Porter and Mike Kostanski quit the team.

Dennis Gray, a junior with a year under his belt, is back at the weakside post. Don Dotson will take over at the chief or monster position while Larry Fortunoff, Bill Byron and Bill Sroka battle it out for the other linebacking spots.

(Continued on Page 7)

University of Massachusetts Theatre
OPEN TRYOUTS
for
AWAKE AND SING!
Clifford Odets' powerful drama of American life in the Depression-ridden 1930's
119 BARTLETT 7:30 P.M.
SEPTEMBER 11, 12, 13

- All graduates and under-graduates welcome
- No experience necessary
- Freshmen — an opportunity to get in early on University Theatre activity
- Everyone — gain some acting experience before the rush of academic work

Scripts available for loan at Speech Dept. Office, 352 Bartlett.

DAILY COLLEGIAN STAFF MEETING

TONIGHT • TONIGHT • TONIGHT • TONIGHT • TONIGHT

8:30 p.m. -- Council Chambers -- Student Union

All editors and old staffers should attend.

Reviewing Another Beanpot Year...

By Jan Curley
Staff Reporter

(Ed. Note—Last year the Redmen won their fourth conference title in five years with an unbeaten league record and a 7-2 overall mark. Here is the breakdown of the 1967 season and record that the 1968 season hopes to match or surpass, sans-Landry.)

STURDY DUO — Tim Driscoll (42) heads up field in last year's Dartmouth game behind a block throw by Bruce Cochrane (30). Both are back this year to add their outstanding blocking and strong running to the experienced Redman backfield.

UMass 30, Maine 9

Coach Walt Abbott of the Maine Black Bears will probably go down in the record books of the Yankee Conference as the most optimistic first year football coach of any team. "We can beat any team on our schedule," he said.

But then the Black Bears retreated into hibernation and went 0-8.

The Redmen kicked the 1967 season off with an impressive trouncing of Maine, the traditional first game foe, 30-9. Coach Fusia emptied the bench of the 51 players he had taken to Maine as the potent Redman defense controlled the game. The Redmen went into the game in much better physical shape than the previous year when Fusia had reportedly considered moving his office from Boyden to the Infirmary.

Greg Landry's stellar passing was well received by Jerry Grasso who gained 18 yards after taking his first varsity handoff. Tim Driscoll and Landry led the rushing, and it was Driscoll who first put the Redmen on the board.

With the score at 13-0, the Black Bears went all out on the kickoff. Charlie Harney took Ed Sherman's boot on the 11, handed it to Gene Benner who reversed his direction and raced up to the UMass 40-yard line. Dave Wing's passing hit pay dirt when he connected with George Platter standing in the end zone for the only Maine tally.

A poor punt by Maine set the Redmen up for their third TD of the game. With the score 20-7, Fusia began to experiment, trying a series of different offensive backfields and substituting a number of sophomores into the line. Craig Lovell dived into the end zone for the final touchdown of the game.

Fusia was puffing away on his first victory cigaret of the season, and spewing forth his usually restrained comments of a game. He refused characteristically to say that the Redmen are a "football team yet."

Dartmouth 28, UMass 10

Among the pickets, announcers, cameramen, crews and police the Dartmouth Indians moved in from New Hampshire in a battle that pitted the Yankee Conference winners against the Ivy League champions. And when the cameras stopped rolling in Alumni field, the Green Wave had trounced the Redmen in a victory almost as lopsided as the one UMass posted the week before.

Gene Ryzewicz, All-Ivy, All-East, and All America, was too much for the Redmen. UMass opened with a touchdown and a field goal and got off to an early 10-0 lead. The Redman surge waned after the second quarter and as the sun was sinking, so did the spirits of the UMass fans.

The game was regionally televised over ABC with Jim McKay at the microphone and Jackie Jensen, former Red Sox outfielder, as color man. The broadcast had been imperiled by the strike of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians.

Eight of Landry's 19 passes were caught, three of them by Dartmouth.

UMass 35, UConn 14

The next Saturday the Redmen moved into Storrs, Conn., whose football field is as jinxed for the Huskies against UMass as their gym was for the UMass basketball team. The Huskies haven't won a game on their home field in six years against UMass.

Early in the first quarter Landry broke Jerry Weichel's career yardage mark by scampering around left for a 34-yard touchdown after Marty Scheralis had recovered a Huskie fumble on the 39-yard line. UConn quarterback Pete Petrillo hit Bill DiYeso who ran from UConn 18 to the UMass 18. Seconds later DiYeso went into the end zone for six points.

UMass added to its 14-7 score after the halftime festivities, but the Huskies came back with one of their own to make it 21-14. That ended the scoring for Connecticut. The Redmen made their final tally in the last quarter on a sensational 73-yard run by Landry.

UMass 2[illegible], URI 24

The Rams' record for the last six seasons looked like the Boston Patriots' record in exhibition football. The Rams hadn't had a winning season for six years and had scrounged only three victories in their last two seasons. But the Rams took a 3-0-1 record into the UMass Homecoming Game.

A spectacular 80-yard touchdown play from Larry Caswell to Frank Geiselman gave URI a 7-0 lead on the first play from scrimmage. But Landry's 37-yard touchdown run gave the Redmen a 28-24 come-from-behind victory.

UMass was behind 24-10 going into the last quarter and in dire straits for two touchdowns to win. Landry's needle-threading and the fancy footwork of Grasso and John Tutino turned the tide.

Caswell, highly touted Ram quarterback, felt nothing but frustration in the final moments as Kent Stevens and Paul Mlinar dropped him for two consecutive 10-yard losses. Caswell had dominated the first period with passing blitzes.

UMASS 24, B.U. 0

The Redmen hit the road again and travelled to the Hub for a contest with the Boston University Terriers. The Terriers were nursing their badly damaged pride after losing four straight games, and people were wondering if this wasn't going to be the weekend when the Terriers vented their wrath on their opponents.

B.U. had been labelled by the Boston sportswriters as the best in New England, but B.U.'s opponents hadn't read the clippings.

The shutout was UMass' first since the 46-0 debacle against New Hampshire two years ago. The B.U. game was marked by red flags, symbolizing the bloody play as well as the infractions. The referees marked off 96 yards on B.U. and 87 on UMass.

Fusia frowned, "We came out to play football. They came out to fight. You can't be a football player and a boxer at the same time."

UMass 21, Vermont 0

The Redmen made it two shutouts in a row as they blanked Vermont in the mud at Alumni Stadium. The fans had nothing to cheer about in the first quarter and most of the fans were concentrating on their soggy clothes.

Landry finally made the fans forget the rain as he moved the Redmen down the field for a 67-yard touchdown tour capped by a five yard toss to Fred Hairston for the touchdown.

The Catamounts' much-heralded Bob Mitchell handled the ball nearly every Vermont play but Vermont never managed to get within the Redman 30.

UMass 30, Rutgers 7

College football got its start at Rutgers, but the Redmen showed the Scarlet Knights a few things about the game as they rolled to a 30-7 win. Landry earned his Ph.D. in the subject by setting two more rushing records. He broke the UMass season rushing record of 619, which he had set in his sophomore year, and the career record of 1572 held by Sam Lussier. Both records fell in the first half, and Landry finished the afternoon with a season total of 733 and a career total of 1637.

Rutgers actually helped put UMass on the scoreboard by moving them half the distance to the goal-line on an offside penalty. Hairston got the other half of the distance and made the score 7-0, after two minutes and 10 seconds. Landry's passing found its mark consecutively into the outstretched arms of Hairston.

UMass 14, UNH 13

The Redmen rose from the New Hampshire mud like Neptune rising from the sea and eked out a meager victory against the Wildcats.

The Wildcats never said "die" and gave the Redmen their worst scare of the season. New Hampshire was the only thing between UMass and another Yankee Conference Championship. The moment of truth came on the two-yard line as the Wildcats lined up for the two-point conversion after their second touchdown.

The mud helped the Redmen this time as quarterback Ed Walsh lost control of the snap and slipped in the mud. The Redmen sloshed off the field, still a little pale from a late field goal attempt by New Hampshire.

The field was in such tough shape at the half time the New Hampshire band was asked not to work it over any more in their halftime show. The field conditions could not be discounted; the Wildcats fumbled three times and UMass bobbled the ball nine times, losing possession on four occasions.

B.C. 25, UMass 0

The Redmen went into their final game of the season against the low flying Boston College Eagles. The Eagles were being plucked by every team they played, and the Redmen looked as if they would make it one more horrendous Saturday for B.C. coach Jim Miller.

Miller had to be the loneliest man on the Heights, much beleagured by the omnipotent B.C. alumni, who were eventually successful in seeking his scalp. The last thing anyone at UMass expected was an Eagle rout against the Yankee Conference champions.

Landry played a good part of the game from a seated position in the mud. The fog obscured the play for some of the fans, and it was too bad it didn't obscure the scoreboard. Some of the players were to be playing in another kind of fog.

Get Those Football Cards Ready

Although Metawampe's face was a little redder than usual at the end of last season after predicting a UMass victory over Boston College, he compiled one of his better seasons with a tremendous mark of 318-114-9, for a .736 average.

The Daily Collegian's stone-faced seer will be making his seasonal debut this Friday as he will once again take to writing verses from his lofty perch, at the moment obscured by the construction behind the Student Union. Metawampe vows sternly to hit 80 percent this year as he puts the evil eye on UMass foes.

1967 All-Yankee Conference Football Team

(Selected By Coaches)

OFFENSE		DEFENSE
Frank Geiselman (R.I.)	E	Paul Mlinar (Mass.)	E
Nick Warnock (Mass.)	E	Bill Vasilios (N.H.)	E
Steve Dixon (Conn.)	T	Kent Stevens (Mass.)	T
Jim Mitchell (Mass.)	T	Vince Martino (N.H.)	T
Roy Lawrence (Conn.)	G	Steve Smith (Conn.)	MG
Bob Santucci (Mass.)	G	Ernie Smith (Mass.)	LB
Howie Small (R.I.)	C	Ken Kuzman (R.I.)	LB
Greg Landry (Mass.)	QB	Pete Quackenbush (Maine)	LB
Bob Mitchell (Vt.)	HB	Henry Palasek (Conn.)	LB
Bill Phillips (N.H.)	HB	Mike McArdle (Mass.)	HB
Brent Kaufman (R.I.)	FB	Terry Hogg (R.I.)	HB
Bill Estey (N.H.)	Util.	Kurt Vollherbst (N.H.)	S

YANKEE CONFERENCE
1967 FOOTBALL STANDINGS

	Conference					All Games
	W	L	T	Pts	Opp.	W	L	T	Pts.	Opp.
Massachusetts	5	0	0	128	60	7	2	0	192	120
Connecticut	4	1	0	98	78	5	4	0	137	151
Rhode Island	2	2	1	89	72	6	2	1	163	110
New Hampshire	2	3	0	85	53	5	3	0	169	66
Vermont	1	3	1	30	75	3	5	1	96	145
Maine	0	5	0	28	120	0	8	0	42	142

*Total Conference Championships Won
1947 - 1968

	Baseball	Basketball	Cross Country	Football	Golf	Rifle	Soccer	Tennis	Track (Indoors)	Track (Outdoors)	Championships
Connecticut	13	17	2	7	11	0	1	3	0	1	55
Maine	4	0	6	5	1	6	0	1	1	5	29
Massachusetts	4	2	7	5	3	2	1	9	2	2	37
New Hampshire	2	0	1	6	2	0	0	1	0	1	13
Rhode Island	1	5	3	4	4	0	0	2	2	12	33
Vermont	2	0	2	0	0	1	3	4	0	0	12

*If tie for title, both teams credited

Punt Rule Changed

Clocks to Stop After First Downs

A new rule designed to make football more exciting, and the disposal of one which was intended to do the same, mark the major rule changes in college football this season.

The major change will be a crucial factor in the late stages of close games. Under the new rule, the clock will be stopped after every first down. Thus, a team that is behind by a close margin late in the game and has used up its quota of time-outs, will be able to stop the clock with every first down it makes.

This rule will make for exciting last-ditch drives and will make it possible for a team not to have to waste a down by passing the ball out of bounds.

The other change is the abolition of last year's controversial punt rule which required the interior linemen of the punting team to stay behind the line of scrimmage until the ball is kicked.

The rule was done away with because the intended effect, more exciting punt returns, never materialized.

...And Previewing Still Another

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

Game 1—MAINE

Date: September 21
Place: Alumni Stadium
Coach: Walt Abbott
Last year's record: 0-8
Returning lettermen: 26
Lettermen lost: 13
Capsule comment: Can't go anywhere but up. Could manage one or two wins from another tough schedule.

The usually perennial Yankee Conference contenders took it on the chin last year, dropping all eight contests. Black Bear hopes for a comeback center around the passing combination of quarterback Dave Wing to end Gene Benner, who set two Yankee Conference receiving marks last year.

Other bright hopes on the offensive side are veteran fullback Charlie Yanush and halfback Mike Barra. Sophomore hopefuls include Bob Iwaszko, Bob Hamilton and Dan Sullivan. The offensive line is entirely up for grabs.

Coach Walt Abbott has more depth and experience on the defensive alignment headed by all-Yankee Conference linebacker Pete Quackenbush. Co-captain Don Loranger will start at one defensive tackle spot while the other is being taken over by a 6'6, 260-pound transfer from Bowdoin, Charlie "Huge" Hews. Veteran Paul Dulac has been shifted to middle guard.

Schedule: Sept. 21, at UMass; 28, Boston U.; Oct. 5, Vermont; 12, at New Hampshire; 19, at Connecticut; 26, at Rhode Island; Nov. 2, at Bucknell; 9, Hofstra.

Game 2—BUFFALO

Date: September 27
Place: Buffalo, N.Y.
Coach: Richard Urich
Last year's record: 6-4
Returning lettermen: 25
Lettermen lost: 12
Capsule comment: Will at least match last year's mark. May explode for a really big year.

Mike Murtha, who may be the last's top quarterback, is a big reason for the Bulls' high hopes this year. His bombs carried Buffalo to wins over Boston College and Kent State last year.

Depth is not a problem for coach Doc Urich in the backfield. He has Pat Patterson and Ken Rutkowski at tailback, Joe Zelmanski, Nick Kish and possibly last year's split end, Chuck Drankowski at wingback, and Joe Hudson and John Zeek at fullback.

Scott Clark, Chris Wolf, John Wesolowski, Mike Maser and Tom Kowalewski are the interior linemen specializing in pass protection.

The defensive line is big and tough. Experience should make it a much more formidable force than last year when a number of Buffalo opponents ran over it. The probable foursome will include Tom Murphy, Chris Kovey, Joe Riccelli and Dan Walgate. All-east linebacker Mike Luzny will be right behind them along with Dan Sabo and Jim Mosher. Dave Richner and sophomore Ed Kershaw are also possible starters at that position. Halfbacks Gary Grubbs and Dan Martin along with safety Dick Horn are secondary veterans.

Punter Paul Jack and placekicker Bob Embow have the kicking game in good feet.

Schedule: Sept. 14, at Iowa State; 21, at Kent State; 27, UMass; Oct. 5, at Boston College; 12, Delaware; 19, Villanova; 26, Holy Cross; Nov. 2, at Temple; 9, at Northern Illinois; 23, at Boston U.

Game 3—DELAWARE

Date: October 5
Place: Newark, Delaware
Coach: Harold Raymond
Last year's record: 2-7
Returning lettermen: 20
Lettermen lost: 14
Capsule comment: Last year's team had six pro draft picks who are no longer around. Maybe one more win this time around.

A year ago B.U. was the major flop on the New England football scene. This year no one expects enough to be disenchanted with any of their performances.

Senior quarterback Danny Lucca will direct the Terrier attack along with youngster Peter Yetten. Bob Calascibetta, Jerry Smith, and fullback John Rafalko are the best of the ballcarriers. The starters up front will be Mark Tortora, Jack Cambest, Jim Aguiar, John Dorris, Bob Marcus, Steve Bogner and Jerry Huston.

The defensive front five is brand new. As of right now it will include ends Dick Devore and Sam Gravatt, tackles Bob Bossert and John DeLucca, and middle guard Arnie Scheller. Cornerback candidates are Fred McNellly, Fred Barry and sophomore star Gaywood South. Captain Jay Donabedian will be the Beantowners' last line of defense.

Schedule: Sept. 21, Colgate; 28, at Maine; Oct. 5, Temple; 12, at UMass; 19, Holy Cross; Nov. 2, at Connecticut; 9, at Rhode Island; 16, at Delaware; Nov. 23, Buffalo.

Game 5—RHODE ISLAND

Date: Oct. 19
Place: Kingston, R.I.
Coach: Jack Zilly
Last year's record: 6-2-1
Returning lettermen: 26
Lettermen lost: 6
Capsule comment: Has an excellent shot at their first Yankee Conference title in over 10 years.

This strong, veteran Ram team stands as the biggest obstacle to UMass' continued superiority in the race for the Beanpot. The key figure in Rhody hopes for a big year is sensational quarterback Larry Caswell. He broke an NCAA record for fewest interceptions, previously held by Tulsa's Jerry Rhome, when he had only two of his 266 aerials picked off last year.

It's not a one-man show by any means, however. Fullbacks Brent Kaufman, Bill Bjerke and Ron Madison are still around along with flankerback Henry Walker, end Dana Bent, tackles Ben Kelby and Dick Raggio, guards Walt Drapapa and Everett Keane.

All Yankee Conference linebacker Ken Kuzman and Terry Hogg are the defensive standouts while Leon Spinney, Greg Bogdanich, Mike Borassi, Warren Negri, and Dick Andrew also return. Orvil Engott has taken over at the safety position.

Spinney will again handle the punting. He was the leading Yan-Con booter last year. Steve Collis will be using a soccer style for field goals and extra points.

Schedule: Sept. 21, at Temple; 28, at Brown; Oct. 5, Southern Connecticut; 12, Vermont; 19, UMass; 26, at Maine; Nov. 2, at New Hampshire; 9, Boston U.; 16, at Connecticut.

Game 6—CONNECTICUT

Date: Oct. 26
Place: Alumni Stadium
Coach: John Toner
Last year's record: 5-4
Returning lettermen: 17
Lettermen lost: 12
Capsule comment: Outside shot at the title if thin front line goes without injuries.

Suspension of star flankerback John Crisp has dampened the Huskies' chances this season. Last year, sophomore Crisp, also a basketball starter, led UConn in receptions with 32 for 377 yards. This represented over half of their total passing yardage.

All is not lost, though. Scrambling Pete Petrillo returns to the helm along with backfield holdovers Billy DiYeso, Mike Boryczewski and Jim DeWitt. Rick Robustelli, son of ex-Giant great Andy Robustelli, is the backup quarterback. Transfer Paul Tortolani will try to fill Crisp's shoes while high school great Vinny Clements tries to break into a halfback slot.

The offensive line is still uncertain with only Stan Rajczewski sure of a spot. Defensively, veterans Ralph Tiner and Phil Dorn are back along with promising sophomores Ted Armour, John Passarini and a 6'7 giant, Tom Goode.

Speedster John Krot, Hank Palasek and Vic Canzani form the backbone of the linebacking and defensive backfield units. The Huskies will be hard put to find a kicker of the caliber of the departed Roy Lawrence.

Schedule: Sept. 21, Vermont; 28, at Yale; Oct. 5, at New Hampshire; 12, at Davidson; 19, Maine; 26, at UMass; Nov. 2, Boston U.; 9, at Rutgers; 16, Rhode Island; 23, at Holy Cross.

Game 7—VERMONT

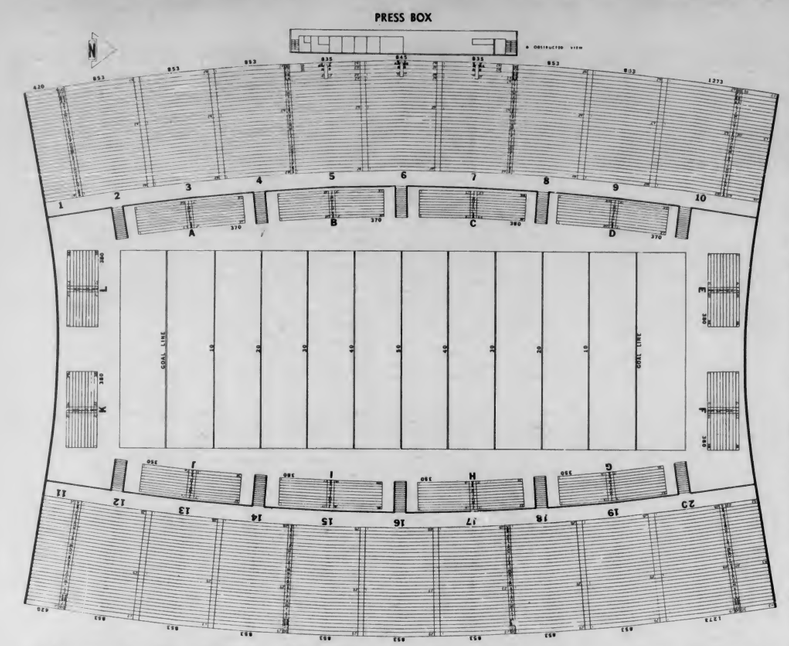
Date: Nov. 2
Place: Burlington, Vt.
Coach: Bob Clifford
Last year's record: 3-5-1
Returning lettermen: 23
Lettermen lost: 14
Capsule comment: Will go down hard and often, but always fighting.

Coach Bob Clifford goes without Bob Mitchell this year for better or, probably for worse. Newcomer Fran Peterson will battle veterans Paul Simpson and Jack Stroker for the quarterback post. The running backs are new faces Harold Canning and Bob Shookus.

The Catamounts have some fine linemen in end Dave Martin, tackles Lucaroni and Ralph Gargano, guard Larry Kelly, and center Ralph Alexander.

Defensive standouts figure to include tackles Pat O'Reilly and Steve Vukovich, and linebacker John Wojciechowski. A revamped defensive backfield features Bill Lawrence and Frank Mazenec along with one of the second-string quarterbacks.

(Continued on Page 7)



Brisk Ticket Sales Forecast Record Football Attendance

By Peter Pascarelli
Staff Reporter

In the harried confusion of yesterday known as registration, one of the many bits of material offered was a small item called Student Athletic Book. Any football fan wanting to see this year's edition of Redman football had better keep this book handy and read it thoroughly. So warns ticket manager Walter Novak.

The book contains all regulations regarding the exchange of coupons for tickets to home games. All seats are given on a first come, first serve basis. The best seats are given first. Unlike many bigtime football operations in which the students are denied seating to allow for paying customers, UMass offers over 50 percent of the stadium's 21,430 capacity to the students.

A student is allowed to exchange only two premiums and must have the student identification card for both.

Novak requests that freshmen go through a specially marked line when picking up their tickets. A central section has been reserved for the class of 1972 in line with a school custom to instill school spirit. Novak also requests that freshmen wear their beanies to the first game Sept. 21. The beanies are tossed into the air after the first UMass score.

Novak also reported that ticket orders are brisk and that season ticket sales are also going well. Last year there were 1936 season tickts sold, and Novak is hopeful of exceeding that number this year.

The ticket office will be open from early in the morning to 6 p.m. Novak reminds students to be mindful of the dates tickets go on sale and the cutoff date for sales that are all contained in the coupon book.

Alumni Stadium Built with the Fans In Mind

Alumni Stadium, built in 1965, offers a virtually unobstructed view for 21, 430 football fans. The stadium was built with the fan's interest in mind, and the seating bears this out.

Certain sections are reserved for different groups. The sections can be found on the stadium seating plan, illustrated above.

Sideline sections, eight, nine, ten, 17, 18, 19 and 20 are reserved for students, as are ground level sections C, D, G and H. Sideline sections one through six are reserved for the visiting team. All other seats save for a small section reserved for the President and legislators, are open for public sale.

Reserved ticket prices for home games are $3.50 for the Maine game, Sept. 21, Boston Univ. game Oct. 12 and the New Hampshire game, Nov. 16. The homecoming game against Connecticut Oct. 26, and the season's finale with Boston College are both $4.00.

Road games with Buffalo, a night game Sept. 27, and Holy Cross in Worcester Nov. 9, are both $4.00 while the Delaware game Oct. 5 will be $3.50. The Rhode Island and Vermont games are both $3.00. P.P.

'Help Wanted' Sign Still Out for Frosh

With an abundance of high school stars, the UMass freshman football team still has openings.

Frosh coach Dave Kelley tendered the invitation, saying, "We will have open tryouts and will not make any cuts. The hope is that all can be given a chance to play ball."

Practice begins Thursday at 4:30 and will continue every day until the team travels to West Point for an October 4 opener. Kelley will have the Little Redmen practicing three days a week thereafter. "We are hoping to lighten the load for the freshmen to help them scholastically," said Kelley.

The frosh roster includes many players who were highly sought after by numerous schools. In a stellar group from Massachusetts is Dick Cummings, a 6 foot, 200 pound fullback from Mt. Greylock High School in Williamstown, who was chosen Western Massachusetts High School Athlete of the Year. Cummings scored 78 points in his senior season. He will be competing with three or four others for the fullback berth.

Two highly regarded frosh from Eastern Mass. are center Ron Marino, 6 foot 4 inch, 220 pounds from Medford High School and Angelo Dinardo, a 180 pound speedster from Somerville. From Worcester is John Hulecki another highly rated runner.

Some of the more prominent out of state freshmen who chose U-Mass are two Pennsylvania boys, John Case and Bob Cabrelli, Art Harris from Passaic, N.J. and Pat Fitz and Dave Levine, both of Maryland, and other standout prospects.

Coach Kelley emphasized, however, that no position was clinched. Kelley said, "These are the known names. They have, however, no proven quality or ability for college football. Hopefully, they will have the ability to play at the Yankee Conference level."

Without the benefit of watching his team practice yet, Kelley is uncertain of the squad's potential ability.

FRESHMAN SCHEDULE

Oct. 4	Army	away	3:30
Oct. 11	Boston Univ.	home	2:30
Oct. 25	Rhode Island	away	2:00
Nov. 1	Boston Col.	away	2:00
Nov. 8	Connecticut	home	2:00
Nov. 15	New Hamp.	away	1:30

TOM TERRIFIC — Tom York (84) moves in on Bruce Van Ness (10) and almost put the lid on the play in the Rutgers game which UMass won. York and Randy Robinson loom as the best defensive end duo in New England this season.

HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-7 P.M.
SPECIAL PARTIES
"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY
SECOND FLOOR—CENTER
OPEN
4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays
12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.
1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun.
Tel 586-0114

Fusia and Staff To Hold Clinic For Intramurals

- Intrafraternity Council Athletic Chairmen meeting, tomorrow, 7:30 p.m., in Boyden.
- Residential Halls Athletic Chairmen meeting, Thursday, 7:30 p.m., in Boyden.
- Football Clinic, Varsity Football Coach Vic Fusia and staff on the intramural fields at 7:30 p.m., Thursday.

Skippers do it!

English Leather®
For men who want to be where the action is. Very intrepid. Very masculine. ALL-PURPOSE LOTION. $2.50, $4.00, $6.50. From the complete array of ENGLISH LEATHER men's toiletries.

UMass Preview..

(Continued from page 5)

Lack of depth at these positions may force some offensive linemen to learn defensive positions.

32 DON DOTSON—Junior—6' — 190 — Bedford, Mass.—Will probably be the starting 'Chief' or 'Rover' this fall. An outstanding two way halfback at Bedford H.S. who lettered last year at linebacker. Recipient of Sports Dads Scholar - Athlete Award as a freshman. MAJOR: Pre Vet

53 BILL BYRON—Sophomore—6'3 —215 —Franklin, Mass.—A fine All Around athlete at Franklin H.S. (basketball and track) who was probably the top linebacker on the frosh eleven a year ago. A quick and mobile performer who will probably specialize at the strong side linebacker slot. MAJOR: Business

55 LARRY FORTUNOFF—6'1 — 205 — Belle Harbor, N.Y.—Lettered a year ago as linebacker after being switched from an offensive fullback. An All New York City halfback at Far Rockaway H.S. where he won the Athlete and Scholar Award of the Year as a senior. MAJOR: Business

56 DENNIS GRAY—Junior—6'2—185 — Salem, Mass.—Switched to linebacker from a defensive halfback a year ago in preseason drills and was a starter at the weak linebacker spot for every game. Played with the Mass. Class C Champs at Bishop Fenwick H.S. in 1965. Also lettered in track in high school as a hurdler and high jumper. MAJOR: Land. Arch.

DONLIN GRAY

Defensive Backs

In this day when offenses are passing more and the ultimate weapon is the long bomb, it must give Coach Fusia a certain sense of security to look upon his defensive backfield. The coach indeed terms the position, "probably the finest and deepest spot on the team." All of last year's starters are returning and they are further bolstered by letterman substitutes.

Leading this strong secondary contingent is Co-captain Mike McArdle. Last year McArdle was a standout performer, leading the squad in interceptions with four and being chosen All-Yankee Conference. He seems fully recovered from the leg injury that sidelined him for the final two games last year.

Also starting at cornerback will be Bill Frye. Frye was All-Conference honorable mention last season. Although not a big size, Fry was consistently in on many tackles last season.

Also seeing some action at cornerback will be senior Joe Colosi. Last season he filled in adequately and offers experienced backup again this year.

Starting at safety position is Steve Rogers. Rogers intercepted three passes last season and was a dependable pass defender all year. Rogers also will direct the secondary's movements.

Versatile Steve Parnell will probably see some action in the secondary. Parnell can fill in at any of the defensive back positions and also will see some action on offense. He was last year's leading kick returner, breaking one for 57 yards against Connecticut.

17 JOE COLOSI—Senior— 5'9 — 179 — Niagara Falls, N. Y.—A hard hitter who lettered a year ago and was an All City and All County selection at Bishop DuFy H.S. Academically ranked second in his high school class of 120 students. MAJOR: Pre Med

24 BILL FRYE—Senior—5'9—185—Turtle Creek, Pa.—A junior college graduate who lettered at the left cornerback a year ago and was honorable mention on the All Conference defensive platoon. A consistent tackler and dependable pass defender. MAJOR: Physical Education

25 MIKE McARDLE—Senior—6'—190 — Millbury, Mass. — Co-captain of this year's squad and an All Conference first team selection last year. Sidelined the last two games with a broken leg but led the team in interceptions (4), and recovered one fumble. MAJOR: History

21 STEVE PARNELL—Junior—6' — 180 Newton, Mass.—A versatile performer who can play split end or wingback in addition to safety and is the team's top punt and kickoff returner. Ran 15 kickoffs back for 426 yds. and returned 23 punts for 325 yds. a year ago. MAJOR: Mod Tech

45 STEVE ROGERS—Junior—6'2—190— Springfield, Vt.—Lettered last year as a sophomore and ranked second in pass interceptions on the squad with 2. Hit .329 while playing centerfield for the baseball team last spring and is a fine all around athlete. MAJOR: Hotel and Restaurant Management

BC Under New Management (Uh-Oh!)

(Continued from page 5)

Sophomores Tom McLaughlin, Phil Crabbe, Ira Gordon, and James Cauder are all pressing for first-string positions.

Schedule: Sept. 21, at Connecticut; 28, Wilkes; Oct. 5, at Maine; 12, at Rhode Island; 19, New Hampshire; 26, at Norwich; Nov. 2, UMass; 9, Middlebury; 16, at C.W. Post.

Game 8—HOLY CROSS

Date: Nov. 9
Place: Worcester
Coach: Tom Bolsture
Last year's record: 5-5
Returning lettermen: 18
Lettermen lost: 13
Capsule comment: Rugged schedule will keep Crusaders around the .500 mark.

Recent loss of top rusher Tim Hawkes hurts the Crusader ground game seriously. Hawkes piled up over 600 yards and was a key man in some of the Crusader victories, otherwise the offensive backfield is set with quarterback Phil O'Nell and running backs Steve Jutras and Ed Murphy.

The offensive line features big Vic Lewandowski at center and two of the following: Jack Delaney, Doug Kane and Charlie Boytano. Bill Moncevicz and Dave Farinella return at the tackle spots while Co-captain Bob Neary will again operate as the split end. A number of sophs are challenging for the other opening.

Defensively, Coach Tom Bolsture has tackles Mike Crimmins and Ralph Williams, veteran end Pat Bourque and sophomore Ed McGilvery. The defensive secondary is good and experienced. Linebackers Dan Raymondi, Paul Scopetski and Jack Garvin work well together as do halfbacks Web Knight and Bob Kurez, who specialize at picking off stray enemy aerials.

Schedule: Sept. 28; at Harvard; Oct. 5, Dartmouth; 12, at Colgate; 19, at Boston U.; 26, at Buffalo; Nov. 2, Syracuse; 9, UMass; 16, at Rutgers; 23, Connecticut; 30, at Boston College.

Game 9— NEW HAMPSHIRE

Date: Nov. 16
Place: Alumni Stadium
Coach: Jim Root
Last year's record: 5-3
Returning lettermen: 27
Lettermen lost: 16
Capsule comment: The always scrappy Wildcats may have some surprises in store for doubting opponents.

Jim Root has to fill the big shoes of the departed, popular and successful Joe Yukica who got a lot out of his players. New Hampshire has been doing some good recruiting, however, and it may start to pay off sooner than expected.

Quarterback Ed Walsh is at the controls with Bill Phillips, an All-Yankee Conference runner, behind him. Mike Shaugnessey and Chip Breault, two precocious sophs, seem to have the other backfield spots locked up.

On the offensive line are Dan Drewniak, Tony Kochi, Charlie Lepisto, Cliff McDonald, Dan Chapman, Ed Robichaud and Cal Wallington.

Root expects his team to be particularly strong on defense. Captain Vince Martino, Ed Savage and Al Witteman are the nucleus of this unit.

Kurt Vollherbst, all-Conference defensive back, will guard against flying objects along with Bill Spinelli and Norn Powers. Vollherbst will also be doing the kicking with his capable toe.

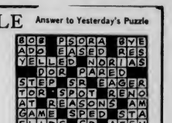
Schedule: Sept. 28, at Dartmouth; Oct. 5, Connecticut; 12, Maine; 19, at Vermont; 26, at Northeastern; 2, Rhode Island; Nov. 9, Springfield; 16, at UMass.

Game 10—BOSTON C.

Date: Nov. 23
Place: Alumni Stadium
Coach: Joe Yukica
Last year's record: 4-6
Returning lettermen: 31
Lettermen lost: 15
Capsule comment: If Yukica is as good a coach as everyone thinks, he should be able to feed above—.500 ball to the bloodthirsty Eagle alumni.

UMass' biggest opponent is again faced with a big-time schedule. How they'll fare is mainly up to a group of sophomores. Frank Harris, a quarterback, is the best of these. He'll have Fred Willis, a classmate, next to him at a halfback slot. Dave Bennett and Fred Comella are other possibilities while Mike Fallon is pushing Harris for the quarterback job.

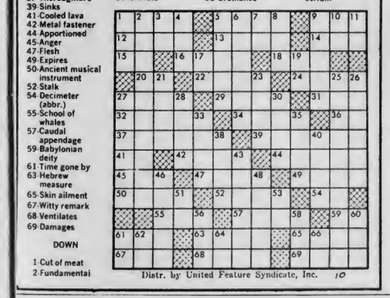
Big is the best word for the B.C. lines. Offensively, It will be Barry Gallup, Steve Kives, Bob Bouley, Jim O'Shea and a number of sophs.



Opponent runners will face the likes of huge tackles Jerry Ragosa and John Fitzgerald. If they find a hole, then they'll meet linebacker Dick Kroner, a top pro prospect.

John Salmon, Jim Grace, Dave Thomas and Dan Zailskas are the veterans of the defensive backfield.

Schedule: Sept. 28, at Navy; Oct. 5, Buffalo; 12, Villanova; 19, at Tulane; 26, Penn State; Nov. 9, at Army; 16, V.M.I.; 23, at UMass; 30, Holy Cross.



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1-Cure
5-Prepare for print
9-Hurried
12-In addition
13-Girl's name
14-Mature
15-Pronoun
16-Labor
18-Vat
20-Parent (colloq.)
22-Stupefy
24-Agreement
27-Danish island
29-Kind of cheese
31-Rocky hill
32-Breaks suddenly
34-Epic poetry
36-Greek letter
37-Thoroughfare
39-Sinks
41-Cooled lava
42-Metal fastener
44-Apportioned
45-Anger
47-Flesh
49-Expires
50-Ancient musical instrument
52-Stalk
54-Decimeter (abbr.)
55-School of whales
57-Caudal appendage
59-Babylonian deity
61-Time gone by
63-Hebrew measure
65-Skin ailment
67-Witty remark
68-Ventilates
69-Damages

DOWN
1-Cut of meat
2-Fundamental
3-Conjunction
4-Parcel of land
5-Choice part
6-Beguile
7-Preposition
8-Make lace
9-Clerical collar
10-Symbol for silver
11-Compass point
17-Bone
19-Above
21-Sandarac tree
23-Short sleep (pl.)
25-Complete set
26-Relies upon
27-Attack
28-Unlock
30-Form
33-Juncture
35-Petitioned
38-Cravats
40-Servant
43-Second of two
46-Fungus growth
48-Rips
51-Babylonian deity
53-Note of scale
56-Flightless bird
58-Ordinance
60-Roman bronze
61-Part of "to be"
62-Proceed
64-Note of scale
66-Symbol for cerium

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 10

B. C. by Johnny hart

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID

HELP WANTED
Apply in Person

10 SEPT 10

1968 Roster

No.	Name	Pos.	Age	Ht.	Wt.	Class	Major	School	Residence
5	[illegible]	QB	20	5'10	175	Jr.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
7	[illegible]	WB	19	5'8	165	So.	[illegible]	[illegible] Valley	[illegible]
8	[illegible]	WB	20	5'8	160	So.	[illegible]	Weston [illegible]	[illegible]
9	[illegible] Sestito	WB	20	5'10	170	So.	[illegible]	Worcester Acad.	[illegible]
10	Robert Cahill	QB	21	5'11	175	Sr.	[illegible]	Haverhill	[illegible]
11	[illegible]	[illegible]	19	6'0	180	So.	[illegible]	Millburn	[illegible], N.J.
12	Mark Dreyer	[illegible]	21	6'2	190	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	Dartmouth	[illegible]
14	Tim [illegible]	[illegible]	20	6'0	175	Jr.	Hotel Mgmt.	[illegible]	[illegible]
15	Ken [illegible]	[illegible]	20	6'0	170	Jr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Notre Dame	Danville, N.J.
16	Frank Cavalecci	[illegible]	21	5'8	160	Sr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Mt. St. Michael's	Yonkers, N.Y.
17	Jim Colasi	[illegible]	22	5'9	175	Sr.	Pre Med.	Bishop Duffy	Niagara Falls, N.Y.
18	Bill [illegible]	DB	20	5'9	175	So.	Phys. Ed.	Cheshire Acad.	Everett
20	Patrick Brown	WB	19	5'10	178	So.	Business	St. Peters UCHS	Worcester
21	Stephen Carroll	S	20	6'0	170	Jr.	Med. Tech.	Newton South	Newton
22	Jerry Grassi	WB	21	6'0	186	Jr.	Pre Med.	Everett High	Everett
23	Frank Tudryn	WB	21	5'9	175	Sr.	Phys. Ed.	Northampton	Northampton
24	William Frye	DB	21	5'9	185	Sr.	Phys. Ed.	Turtle Creek (Pa.)	Turtle Creek, Pa.
25	Michael McAuliffe	DB	21	6'0	190	Sr.	History	Millbury	Millbury
30	Bruce Cocker	FB	21	6'0	205	Sr.	History	Brookline	Brookline
31	Edward Berry	FB	20	6'0	230	Jr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Waltham	Waltham
32	Richard Mello	FB	19	6'0	188	So.	History	Brookline	Chestnut Hill
33	Don Dotsey	LB	20	6'0	190	Jr.	An. Sci.	Bedford	Bedford
40	Craig Lovell	TB	20	6'0	194	Jr.	Government	Wellesley	Wellesley
41	John Decelle	TB	20	6'1	205	Jr.	Government	Canton	Canton
42	Tim Driscoll	TB	21	6'0	185	Sr.	Phys. Ed.	Bridgewater	Bridgewater
43	Pat Flaherty	TB	20	5'10	185	So.	Hotel Mgmt.	South Boston	Boston
44	Charles Tamasitelli	S	20	5'10	155	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	Lodi	Lodi, N.J.
45	Steve Rose	S	21	6'2	190	Jr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Bethlehem Central	Springfield, Vt.
50	Robert Sheehan	C	21	6'6	250	Sr.	Business	Catholic Memorial	W. Roxbury
51	Noel Schaefer	C	20	6'2	200	Sr.	Government	East Rutherford	Rutherford, N.J.
53	John Dubuisson	C	20	6'1	190	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	Gardner	Gardner
53	Bill Byrne	C	19	6'3	218	So.	Business	Franklin	Franklin
54	John Fazio	LB	20	6'0	210	Jr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Mt. St. Michael	Bronx, N.Y.
55	Lenny Polcaroff	LB	20	6'1	205	Jr.	Business	Far Rockaway	Belle Harbor, N.Y.
56	Dennis Gallo	LB	21	6'2	185	Jr.	Land Arch.	Bishop Fenwick	Salem
58	Bill Sroka	LB	18	6'2	205	So.	History	Central	Auburn, N.Y.
60	Andrew Guarino	MG	20	5'11	215	Jr.	History	Everett	Everett
61	John McLean	OG	21	5'10	205	Jr.	Zoology	Williamstown	Williamstown
63	Bruce Tulton	OG	19	5'11	200	Jr.	Chem. Engr.	Canton	Canton
63	Thomas Callaghan	MG	22	6'3	215	So.	Engineering	Williston Academy	Florence
64	Eugene Cassi	MG	20	5'9	185	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	Dehan	Dedham
65	Robert Crane	OG	21	6'0	210	Sr.	History	Belmont	Belmont
66	Peter Flaim	CG	19	5'10	195	So.	Liberal Arts	Bergen Catholic	Fory Lee, N.J.
67	Pierre Marchando	OG	19	6'1	225	So.	Hotel Mgmt.	Cambridge Latin	Cambridge
70	Richard Devlin	OT	20	6'6	260	Jr.	Biology	New Britain	New Britain, Conn.
71	Jim Conway	OT	21	6'0	225	Jr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Msgr. Conner	Havertown, Pa.
72	Martin Sweeney	DT	20	6'4	225	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	[illegible]	South Boston
74	Frederick [illegible]rich	DT	24	6'2	235	So.	Hotel Mgmt.	[illegible]	Wakefield
75	Charles Barsamian	DT	19	6'3	210	So.	Phys. Ed.	[illegible]	Hudson
77	Mark Toner	DT	20	6'1	225	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	St. Mary's (Lynn)	Swampscott
78	Jim Nangle	OT	20	6'3	206	Jr.	Phys. Ed.	Peabody	Peabody
79	Glenn Cummins	DT	22	6'2	225	Sr.	Phys. Ed.	North Bergen	North Bergen, N.J.
80	Nick McGarry	TE	20	6'5	210	So.	Hotel Mgmt.	D. J. O'Connell	Arlington, Va.
81	Alan Becker	TE	22	6'4	200	Sr.	Hotel Mgmt.	E. Rutherford	E. Rutherford, N.J.
82	James Long	SE	20	6'0	180	Jr.	Botany	Washington Twp.	Apollo, Pa.
83	William Warnock	SE	23	6'2	200	Sr.	Hotel Mgmt.	Episcopal Acad.	Berwyn, Pa.
84	Thomas York	DE	22	6'1	200	Jr.	Psychology	Boardentown Mil. Inst.	Bedminster, N.J.
85	Randy Robinson	DE	20	6'0	200	Sr.	Phys. Ed.	Far Rockaway	Belle Harbor, N.Y.
86	Russ Wood	DE	19	6'2	195	So.	Phys. Ed.	Gov. Livingston Reg.	Berkeley Hgts, N.J.
87	Joseph Lang	DE	19	6'1	193	So.	Business	Xaverian Brothers	Norwood
88	Don Young	SE	25	6'0	200	Jr.	Marketing	Cushing Academy	Holyoke
89	James Kelliher	TE	20	6'1	190	Jr.	Business	Abington	Abington
90	Vincent Interlande	DE	19	6'2	205	So.	Phys. Ed.	Greenfield	Greenfield
91	David Walsh	DE	19	6'1	205	So.	Science	Fordham Prep.	Yonkers, N.Y.

MDC
WEATHER:
RAIN

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 3 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1968

LBJ Rejects Bombing Halt; Favors Increased Air Power

NEW ORLEANS (AP) President Johnson rejected calls for a complete halt to bombing in North Vietnam Tuesday and pledged there would be no surrender "on the installment plan, as some have suggested."

The President also lashed out at growing isolationism in his keynote address to the American Legion's national convention. His address drew frequent heavy applause and a standing ovation.

Johnson said U.S. troops were sent to Vietnam orginally to prevent aggression, protect our friends, remain true to our obligations and win a peace. "We believed that to be very much in America's national interest then, and we believe it to be in America's interest now," he declared.

The President pounded the podium for emphasis frequently, one time declaring the United States would not go along with those who suggest we could withdraw troops from below the Demilitarized Zone and turn that part of South Vietnam over to the North Vietnamese.

"This," Johnson declared, "I assure you we shall not do."

The President said none of his military commanders advised such a move. And he suggested that those who advocate stopping the bombing would not make such recommendations "if they were there on the DMZ and could see there what our men face every day and every night."

The chief executive discussed some of the hard facts he confronts and listed three choices on what could be done. He quickly discounted the first two choices—invading North Vietnam and retreating.

The third choice has been accepted, he said, and he described it this way:

"We can bring our air power to bear in the Panhandle against the artillery fired on our men, and against the enemy troops and supplies coming through."

He said that this policy is exacting a substantial price from the enemy and limiting his capacity to bring weight against U.S. and allied forces in the panhandle.

Our casualties would skyrocket if the bombing were stopped, the President said.

He brought the Legionnaires to their feet, when he declared, "So, I appeal to you to support peace by maintaining strength—by refusing to sacrifice principle by standing as firm at home as our men stand abroad."

Rebels Vow to Continue

Columbia Seeks Leniency For Student Trespassers

Columbia University announced Monday it's intention of asking New York City courts to drop criminal trespass charges against 400 students arrested during last spring's student rebellion at the school.

News of the University's request was released by acting President Andrew W. Cordier. According to Cordier the request to drop the charges had been by both him and faculty groups and approved by the school's board of trustees.

The purpose behind the move, stated William E. Petersen, chairman of the board of trustees, is to hopefully "alleviate university tensions arising out of the arrests and charges and pave the way for effective action by the acting president and other administrators as well as by the faculty and students to set the university again on course toward its goal of teaching, learning and serving the community."

The announcement brought prompt declaration from leaders of last spring's student movement that their "struggle against Columbia" would go on.

"There was no immediate word from Criminal Court Judge Edward R. Dudley, the Administrative Judge of the Criminal Court, to whom the university request for leniency was transmitted.

A spokesman for District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said that "the matter is entirely within the discretion of the court."

"It would be discourteous for us at this time to express any position before the matter reaches the court," the spokesman said.

Not included specifically in Columbia's plea for leniency by the courts are the 154 students arrested on more serious criminal charges such as resisting arrest, assault and inciting to riot. Among these students is Mark Rudd, a leader in the spring's rebellion and one of 70 students suspended from the university as a result of the protest movement.

Regarding the suspended students Dr. Cordier stated that he had no immediate word on the university's plan to handle the issue.

Student activists and campus moderates appeared to be in general agreement that the university's decision could split the leftist Students for a Democratic Society from the broad moderate support it gained during the campus uprising that crippled Columbia for seven weeks last spring.

Tomec Smith, the president of the Columbia Student Council, described the move as "a Machiavellian maneuver" that "tones down the anger without really changing things."

"It's an attempt," he said, "to split the moderates and the moderate left away from the radicals."

Lewis Cole, a leader of the Students for a Democratic So-

(Continued on Page 3)

If Columbia has its way, March student trespassers may not have to face the courts.

Johnson Warns Of Possible Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Johnson warned Russia Tuesday night that the United States never will tolerate the use of force or the threat of force in areas of common responsibility such as Berlin.

"It is never too late to choose the path of reason," the President said. "Every man of sanity will hope the Soviets act now before some new turn of events throws the world back to the grim confrontations of Stalin's time."

He said Russia still can return to the road leading to peace and security and still can change what it has done in Czechoslovakia by acting with the prudence and confidence characterizing the conduct of a great nation.

Johnson also said, in an address to the national B'nai B'rith convention, that the Middle East must begin talking the substance of peace through many channels which are open.

In Eastern Europe, the Middle East and in Southeast Asia, Johnson said, what America seeks is "a world where neighbors are at each other's side, and not at each other's throat."

Hundreds of people, including foreign diplomats, members of Congress and the cabinet, and members of an organization dedicated to service for Jews heard Johnson speak at the Shoreham Hotel.

Dr. Robert Stern of the Music Department, will begin the Concert Season with a performance at 8 p.m. tonight in Bowker Auditorium, featuring a collection of works by Schumann and Stern.

The program will feature Dorothy Ornest, soprano, Charles Fussell, piano, Joel Krosnick, cello and Robert Stern, piano.

The program will present Schumann's Frauenliebe und Leben (A woman's life and Lovestar soprano and piano) and his Five pieces in Folk Style, opus 102 for cello and piano. Highlight of the program will be Robert Stern's Terezin, a cycle for soprano, cello and piano.

MDC Makes Many Staff Changes To Be Effective Immediately

Several major personnel changes were announced last evening by editor Jack Dean at the Daily Collegian's first staff meeting of the year

Effective immediately, Sue Wallace was appointed Executive Editor in charge of the editorial page. She has been an editorial page assistant and a member of the news staff for the past year.

The resignation of Ron LaBrecque as News Editor was also announced. His duties will be assumed temporarily by Managing Editor Don Epstein.

Other appointments included: Jan Curley, Assistant Managing Editor; Richard Story, Education editor; Mike Alpert, Chief Photographer; and Pat Flanagan, Tuesday Issue Editor.

Returning as Issue Editors are: Jan Curley, Monday; John Michelson, Wednesday; Dick Bouchard, Thursday; and Mark Silverman, Friday.

Spirit of McCarthy Lives On

McCarthyites Meet to Plan Future

Forty representatives from all twelve Massachusetts congressional districts met in Worcester Sunday afternoon to plan the future of Citizens for Participation Politics (CPP).

CPP is the continuing outgrowth of the Massachusetts McCarthy campaign, which is creating a broadbased political organization in the spirit and format of the McCarthy movement.

The objectives outlined by the group included the support of "McCarthy candidates" for local and Congressional offices, continued effort to end the war, and the initiation and support of progressive, innovative legislation.

Also discussed was the desire to provide Massachusetts voters with an opportunity to express their dissatisfaction with the major presidential candidates. In view of the confusion regarding the feasibility of a presidential write-in, CPP voted to institute legal proceedings to ensure space on the November ballot as a first step. Attorney Alvin Levin, legal counsel for the organization, expressed optimism that such action would succeed.

Garbage Workers Ordered Back to Work

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Striking garbage workers were ordered back to work by a state court Tuesday after a dramatic move of support by civil rights leaders and a union official who were arrested for blocking a garbage truck.

"Restraining orders don't collect trash," said Morton Shapiro, negotiator for American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Union.

He commented at a news conference after Superior Court Judge Luther Alverson granted a city request for an order restraining workers "from failing to report for duty," or preventing other employees from doing so.

"I intend to be on the picket line Wednesday morning," said Shapiro, freed from jail on $100 bond after taking part in an early morning demonstration.

Shapiro went to jail briefly with the Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, president of Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). Abernathy is successor to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., who was assassinated last April 4 during a similar garbage strike he was supporting at Memphis, Tenn.

King's brother, the Rev. A. D. King, also was arrested.

Study Predicts Colleges To Be Centers of Racial Unrest

WASHINGTON — On the basis of information gathered about riots and other disturbances in America last spring, Brandeis University's Lemberg Center for the Study of Violence has predicted that schools everywhere "will become the sites of racial violence" when they open this fall.

A recently released issue of the Center's Riot Data Review, which compiled statistics on all recorded instances of disorder and violence during the first four months of 1968, classifies 44 per cent of all those disturbances as "school-involved."

A large number of the racial disturbances occurred in high schools as well as colleges, according to the study. By far the largest number occurred during the first week in April, in the days following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. (The total number of disorders in April exceeded that for all of 1967.)

Of the 91 school-involved disorders in April, 38 were confined to school buildings or campuses. In those instances, physical violence was limited and injuries were slight. A second group of 29 incidents began in school buildings and spread to other areas of the community. This kind of disorder was generally more serious, involved more people (including non-students), spread over a wider area and caused more arrests, injuries — even deaths. The other 24 incidents were limited to window-smashing and fire-bombing, with schools only one of a series of targets. This group included student walkouts from both high schools and colleges.

The Lemberg Center's data (gathered for the most part from newspaper accounts and in some cases witnesses) indicates that Dr. King's assassination heightened existing tensions and grievances of students, and was important in precipitating disorders in April.

It attributes only seven per cent of the instances directly to the assassination, however, and warns that there is danger in thinking that all incidents of violence would have been averted had the murder not taken place.

The number of school disorders was already escalating sharply in the early months of 1968, the report says; that trend was only accelerated by the assassination and the feelings it caused in young people. The capacity for violence was present and important anyway.

The largest proportion of "school disorders" were only indirectly related to Dr. King's death, the researchers say. More directly related was students' reaction to "insensitivity on the part of school officials." Such insensitivity was already resented by students in many schools. The proverbial "last straw" in this case was some administrators' reactions to the assassination: as, for example when the principal of Denver Annunciation High School refused to lower the school's flag in honor of Dr. King, and when many schools would not cancel classes the day of his funeral.

On the basis of this year's and earlier research, the Center denied that violence in the schools was only a temporary reaction to such violent and inflammatory events as Dr. King's assassination:

"Unrest in the schools appears to be a general and long-range phenomenon, the sources of which might be sought in any or all of the following areas: the search for excitement and action by youth, specific grievances directed at the quality of education and school facilities, and rising antagonism between white and black students."

The report urged officials of schools to study examples of the peaceful stemming of violence and solving of tense interracial situations. Only through the employment of such solutions, it said, not through "last-resort repression imposed by law-enforcement agencies," can solutions to problems be reached without violence.

Examples of such efforts at finding solutions cited by the Center are school superintendents and mayors who went out of their ways last spring to work out compromise solutions to interracial conflicts and demands by students that Dr. King's death be properly mourned. In Providence, Boston, New York City, Houston and other cities, entire school systems closed down and observed official periods of mourning in response to student feeling.

The magnitude of the April 1968 disorders — which ranged from silverware-dropping in a school cafeteria to the destruction and looting in Washington D.C.—demonstrates the impossibility of attributing such outbreaks to simple causes, the Center staff concludes. The random nature of forces that cause disturbances make predicting and controlling violence almost impossible.

Although it may be possible to prevent such tragedies as the King assassination, it is not possible to prevent all the random events that may trigger racial unrest and violence. Every American city, the report asserts, has a level of tension sufficiently high to make it "like dry timber" that only needs a spark to ignite it.

That tension level, say the Brandeis researchers, is kept high by the "intensity of hostility toward blacks in our country." Until this hatred can be defeated—by implementing the recommendations of the Kerner Commission report, among other things—the timber will remain dry.

The effect of this hostility on last spring's disorders is evident in the Data Review statistics and information. The responses to Dr. King's assassination varied in kind and in intensity from community to community. The differences can be accounted for

(Continued on Page 7)

- Eat in
- Take out
- Fast Service
- Ample Parking
- Pizza
- Submarine

Hours: 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun.
Open 11:00 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.

IMPORTANT

Executive Council Meeting

CLASS OF '71

Date: Thursday, Sept. 12, 1968
Time: 8:30
Place: Council Chambers

All Interested Class Members Welcome

Police Arrest 300 Negro Students In Wake of Illinois Housing Protest

URBANA, ILL. AP — Police arrested more than 300 Negro students at the University of Illinois Tuesday after the students smashed furniture in Illini Union lounges and refused to leave until officials discussed housing demands with them.

Those arrested were charged with criminal trespass for refusal to vacate the south addition of the student union after the midnight closing time.

University Chancellor J. W. Peltason said representatives of his office attempted in a meeting Monday night with the students to dissuade them.

When it became clear that the climate of the meeting was such that the demands could not be discussed in a reasonable manner, Peltason said in a statement early today he reluctantly agreed to order police to move in and 'with the minimum force necessary', arrest those refusing to leave.

An estimated 120 police from Urbana, Champaign, the university, Champaign County and the state combined to make the arrests, which totaled 321 by unofficial estimate.

No one was injured in the postmidnight disturbance and except for two minor altercations all the arrests were orderly, police spokesmen said.

All those arrested had come to the university last week as the first enrollees under the university's Project 500, a program set up last spring to provide scholarships to disadvantaged youths.

The students met in the union Monday night to protest what they claimed were irregularities in housing and in university policy on student loans.

A university spokesman said the project students became embittered this week when they were told they would have to vacate rooms given them only for last week because the rooms had been contracted for by other students some months ago. Most of the other students began arriving on campus Sunday and Monday.

Some of the project students refused to leave the rooms they occupied last week in the Illinois Street Residence Hall and some others who did leave charged the housing assigned to them was not suitable."

A lesser complaint was a charge that while the university said it would make student loans up to a maximum of $450 above an individual's scholarship, some were receiving loans of $800 to $1,000, a spokesman for the protesters said.

University officials declined immediately to estimate damage to the lounges in the newer addition to Illini Union. Police said nearly all furnishings in two large student lounges were smashed. Also destroyed in what is known as the Presidents Lounge were large portraits of all past presidents of the university.

MIT Professor Calls For Fourth Party Movement

Drifting to the Right

The United States is currently in the midst of "a very profound drift to the right," a Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor says.

"As property has become more and more generalized, as more and more people own things, then, to the extent that they want to defend their holdings, they move right," Dr. Jerome Lettvin, professor of communications physiology, said recently.

Lettvin said, in contrast, the "left is more concerned with somebody else dying a couple of blocks away."

He added, there is a need for a fourth party movement in the United States to act as a pivot point for critics of the government.

He said that such a party would "not be concerned with the persons that they meant to elect so much as the policies that they mean to see instituted."

GNOMON DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!

Fast Service on all orders!
Free Collating!
Special papers available! (legal, bond, colored)

STILL the lowest prices in town!

5c for the first copy of an original
3c for the 2-10th copies (of same original)
2c for the 11th and more copies (of same original)

(Open this week 9-6 daily)

OPEN: 9-9 Mon.-Thurs.
9-6 Fri. & Sat.
(beginning Mon., Sept. 16)

GNOMON COPY SERVICE
103 N. Pleasant St.
(under the Hungry U)
253-7393

Series Concerns Race Issue; Rev. Williams Speaks First

By Mark Silverman
Friday Issue Editor

Rev. Hosea Williams of the Southern Christian Leadership conference will speak in Mahar Auditorium Sunday, Sept 15, at 8:00, in the first of a series of guest speakers sponsored by the Martin Luther King Jr. Social Action Council this year. Dr. Williams will also lead a service in Mahar at 10:00 that morning.

Joining Rev. Williams in the Social Action Council's speaker program will be Frank Joyce, Rev. William Sloane Coffin, John Hersey, Gov. Otto Kerner, James Baldwin, Michael Harrington, and Marlin Brando.

In addition to this program of guest speakers, the Council is now involved in several programs which were begun this summer, the most important of which, according to Council spokesmen, centers around the Upward Bound program. This program brings ghetto high school students to the UMass campus during the summer for tutoring, and in this way helps prepare them for college when they graduate.

An Upward Bound student, Gregory Smith, was accused, tried, and convicted of assault during the summer. The court refused to appoint a public defender, reasoning that "the Upward Bound Program has plenty of money." Despite testimony of several witnesses who claimed that Gregory was on campus at the time of the alleged crime, he was found guilty.

The Social Action Council is sponsoring an appeal. Council advisor and UMass Assistant Professor Isadore Silver is taking the case, and the council is now engaged in raising funds to hire a private detective agency to investigate the alleged crime.

In other action this Summer, the council met with various representatives of area construction companies to discuss the issue of Black employment. Council spokesmen reported that most of the companies recognized that a problem did exist, but blamed union apprenticeship programs and the relatively small Negro labor force in the Amherst area for "defacto segregation in construction crews.

In a follow-up move, the council plans to conduct a poll to determine if the campus construction workers "are mostly local, or whether they come from areas like Springfield and Holyoke, areas which have large Negro populations.

A program begun this summer which the Council hopes to continue during the fall semester includes a non-credit discussion course on Racism in America. The Summer class size ranged from eight to 15 students, and discussions led by Council Executive Secretary Gil Salk.

Professor Surveys by Airplane Surface of the Bay State

To find out what is under the earth's surface, exploration geophysicists like Dr. R. W. Bromery of the University of Massachusetts take to the air.

The process is called an airborne geophysical survey, done by flying an aircraft crammed with electronic measuring equipment at low altitude over the area to be mapped. The result is information on the area's magnetic and radioactivity characteristics that not only helps locate economically-important mineral deposits but also serves as an important geologic mapping tool.

Dr. Bromery logged many thousands of flying hours in such survey work in his 19 years as an exploration geophysicist with the U.S. Geological Survey. Now an associate professor of geology and vice-chairman of the UMass geology department, he is still involved in airborne survey work as a consultant to the U.S. Geological Survey Branch of Regional Geophysics in its current project to make an aeromagnetic map of the entire state of Massachusetts.

University of Massachusetts exploration geophysicist R. W. Bromery, right, is taking part in the U.S. Geological Survey's project to complete an aeromagnetic map of the entire state of Massachusetts.

"This is a cooperative project between the Commonwealth and the U.S. Geological Survey with each party sharing the bill," he said. "Massachusetts is the third state in the U.S. to have a complete survey done, after Indiana and Connecticut."

The survey in this state began in 1960 and has been continued at intervals. The final flights were completed at the end of August in the southeastern part of the state with transcribing of data into map form and analysis expected to continue for the better part of a year.

The survey plane's magnetometer measures the variation in the earth's magnetic field produced by magnetic rocks; its airborne radioactivity system measures the variation in ground radioactivity levels as a function of radioactive rocks. This ground radioactivity is an extremely low-level natural emission and is not detrimental to living things, Dr. Bromery explained.

The magnetic and radioactivity data is recorded on magnetic tape, when put into an electronic computer with the magnetic tape data from the electronic navigator on course and position, a magnetic and radioactivity map printout can be obtained through use of an XY plotter. These maps are then used in current geologic mapping programs and mineral evaluation studies of the area surveyed.

"What you get is a map that indicates variations in magnetic and radiation levels and where these variations are located," Bromery said. "A geophysicist can then interpret these variation patterns and learn a great deal about what's under the earth —where mineral deposits are, how big they are and how deep, for example." Dr. Bromery plans to do some of the interpretation work at UMass this year with the help of geology graduate students and U.S. Geological Survey geologists working in the state.

First Graduates Of Upward Bound Entering College

The University of Massachusetts Upward Bound program is sending 86 percent of its first graduating class to college this fall.

The 23 students from eight western Massachusetts communities have either completed high school, the Upward Bound Bridge Program, or both. The Bridge Program is a summer pre-college study course for third-year Upward Bound students.

Upward Bound is supported by U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity funds at UMass and some 278 other U.S. educational institutions. Its aim is to boost the educational chances of high school students with potential who have been handicapped by educational, cultural or economic deprivation.

Eleven of the UMass graduating Upward Bound students have been admitted to the University. "The University is very interested in this group and plans a follow-up program of tutoring and counseling to aid their adjustment to college," said Anthony P. Buteau, assistant Upward Bound director.

Others in the graduating group are enrolling at such institutions as University of Bridgeport, Utica College, Our Lady of the Elms College, Nazareth College, Roger Williams College, Springfield College and Berkshire and Holyoke Community Colleges.

Upward Bound, since it began in 1966 at UMass, has enrolled an average of 100 10th, 11th and 12th grade students per year from secondary schools all over western Massachusetts. The program core is a six and a half week summer session on the UMass campus.

Czechoslovakia Will Receive Economic Benefits from Soviets, But No Loan

(AP) — Premier Oldrich Cernik flew to Moscow Tuesday, got a promise of Soviet gas deliveries and signed an economic protocol. But there was no sign he got the big loan his nation needs.

Cernik returned to Prague with his deputy premier, Frantisek Hamouz and his foreign trade minister, Vaclav Vales. CTK news agency announced the agreements were signed with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin but gave no details.

Communist sources in Moscow said the two documents were the main subject of the economic talks in the Kremlin. Thus it was not clear whether Cernik discussed with Kosygin the request for a large loan to revitalise the economy.

Before the invasion of 600,000 Soviet, Polish, East German, Hungarian and Bulgarian troops Aug. 20-21 curbed their growing independence, Prague leaders had looked to the West for a $400-million loan after failing to get one from Moscow.

A communique released by Tass news agency in Moscow said Cernik and Kosygin discussed delivery of Soviet gas, oil, iron and other goods and Czechoslovak delivery of steel pipe for gas pipe lines, large trucks, knit goods, shoes and other goods.

Later Cernik met with Leonid I. Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief, President Nikolai V. Podgorny and Kosygin for talks "in a friendly, comradely atmosphere."

Tass said the two sides "again confirmed readiness for the widest cooperation on the basis of Socialist solidarity, mutual respect and equality . . . in the interests of further strengthening of the Socialist community and enhancing the effectiveness of the Warsaw treaty."

The communique said both sides also agreed that the main thing now is to "bring consistently into life the practical steps" outlined at the Soviet-Czechoslovak leaders meeting in Moscow Aug. 23-26. This agreement said the Soviet bloc troops would withdraw when the situation "normalizes."

Before leaving for Moscow, Vales told the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo that economic cooperation with the Soviet Union is vital to Czechoslovakia. He added that this was "not dictated by sentiment only but by reason."

Vales said disrupted transport and production delays during the first phase of the occupation caused losses in Czechoslovak exports to the West that "can no longer be recovered."

Losses in Czechoslovak-Soviet trade could be offset during the next few months, he added, explaining that goods exchanged between the two countries flowed normally except for a few days.

The Soviet Union's chief diplomatic trouble shooter, Vasily Kuznetsov was believed to be still in Czechoslovakia. Unusual importance had been attached to his meeting Monday with Slovak Communist party chief Gustav Husak because the official news agency CTK described their talks as "Cordial and friendly."

But CTK later corrected its story to say the talks were "comradely and frank." This label, meaning they disagreed, has been used to describe meetings between Czechoslovak and Soviet officials since the Warsaw Pact troops marched in.

Husak's speeches have been reprinted in Soviet newspapers, leading to speculation that he has the Kremlin's approval.

Among other things, Husak has called for closing of the border to Czechoslovakia. He said freedom of travel should be preserved but that a temporary halt was necessary because of the extraordinary situation here.

The Czechoslovak government has been issuing exit permits and anyone possessing one as well as a visa to a Western country is still being permitted to leave.

But there were signs that this would soon change. Soviet troops near the border with Austria were said to be turning back foreigners who had been cleared by Czechoslovak border guards.

Diplomatic sources said they expected the National Assembly to enact a law closing the border to Czechoslovaks effective Sept. 15.

To Question Is Its Aim; 'Project 10' Is Its Name

By Jan Curley

Project 10 is the newest educational innovation at UMass.

His aim: Get the class of 1972 to take a more active role in shaping the structure of the University. They are being asked to question and seek answers to the academic requirements of the University, as well as to question the role of the University in the context of their surroundings

The participants in the program were chosen during the summer on a strictly volunteer basis. Each freshman entering in the fall was sent a pamphlet describing the program, its goals, plans and what they would be required to do. From those who indicated an interest in the program, 260 were chosen. The idea for the program itself came from a small group of students in Southwest.

Part of the program is aimed at breaking down some of the alienation experienced by freshmen upon entering such a large University. A major concern of Pierpont and Moore, which houses the participants in the program, is to make the students feel as if they are a community with some control over the direction which their education will take and not just an IBM computer number.

The freshman have already decided on a few changes of their own. They first attempted to change the names of the dorms to Simon and Garfunkel, a move which met with some resistance from the Amherst Post Office. They also decided to turn in their beanies for a $1 refund from the Maroon Keys and the Scrolls and to send the refund money to Biafra to aid the millions starving in that country.

The upperclassmen living on the corridors will not be called counselors, but undergraduate resident teachers. They will be auditing the classes in the dorms with the freshmen. Out of this it is hoped that discussions will be stimulated and that the freshmen will have someone readily available for help and consultation should the need arise.

Most of the traditional freshman courses, such as math, English, history, sociology, philosophy and psychology, will be taught in the lounges in the residence halls. The faculty who have agreed to teach the course run the gambit of Ph.D's to those who have never taught before. Many of the professors will have offices in the dorms. Proar to the opening of classes today, the faculty met with the students to discuss the courses they would be taking and the content.

Project 10 is not without its problems. There is a communication problem for one. All of the meetings are open to any of the students on campus. The chaos and insecurity of the program is another. Although a few things have been outlined for the direction of the program, there are no precedents and most things are being determined by a trial and error method.

COLUMBIA . . . (Continued from Page 1)

ciety at Columbia, charge that the university's leniency move "discriminated against the community people in the area by not also dropping charges against them." Several non-students were arrested during demonstrations on and off the Morningside Heights campus, which is adjacent to Harlem.

"Further," Mr. Cole said, "there was nothing said about discipline within the university nor an attempt to set up a meaningful structure to change the power relationships that now exist."

At his news conference Dr. Cordier emphsized clearly that "there can be no impairment" of the institution's activities during the coming school year, which begins of Sept. 26.

The acting University leader also said that he "has always been on the side of maximum student consultation" in Columbia's affairs. In addition he favors closer relations between the school and its neighboring community.

As an example of such increased student participation, Dr. Cordier noted that the trustees were attempting to work out methods of consulting students, faculty members and alumni on candidates for the presidency of the university a post he is filling on an interim basis only.

The Daily Collegian will hold its fall recruiting drive next Thursday evening. Look tomorrow for the time and the place.

Men Will Be Boys

The old wise tale of the boy who cries wolf came to life last week when Boston Garden Board Chairman Weston Adams cried "The University of Massachusetts."

The incident began when Adams called a news conference to announce that the University plans to build its Boston campus at North Station and that as a result the Boston Bruins and the Boston Celtics would be forced to leave the city.

The announcement seemed more immature than premature.

Last spring the Boston site selection committee had rejected the North Station site. In recent weeks the committee has once again re-examined the location, along with several other possibilities—and then only after Mayor Kevin White had urged the university to take another look after he vetoed the proposed Copley Square site. The University is no closer acquiring a Boston campus now than it was two years ago thanks to Boston politicians.

The pressure is now being put on the administration to locate the Boston campus at the present Columbia Point Dump. Rep. Robert H. Quinn, D-Boston, speaker of the Massachusetts House said recently, "With all my power I urge that you (UMass) choose the Columbia Point location as the best option—no arena, no highway overpasss, no air pollution from trains, no maze of girders, only a tremendous future for our young people and their education."

We agree with the last part of that statement. However there is one important fact that Speaker Quinn overlooked: There are no public transportation facilities to Columbia Point. And the entire purpose of UMass-Boston is to serve students who for financial reasons are forced to live at home and commute to school. There are no plans at all for UMass-Boston to ever become a residential school.

So what if the school were built in North Station? The area has become decayed and decrepit in recent years. Vacant buildings are evidence. The North Station area is clearly heading for its death.

University administrators have stated publicly that they have no desire to take over the Boston Garden. If they did decide to build in North Station it would be a catalyst to help build up the area. New businesses would be attracted and financiers would be encouraged to invest. The area would attract persons from every walk of life. People who once went to North Station for either shopping or entertainment purposes and who now go to the Prudential Center, may once again return to spend their money in the North Station area.

Mr. Adams did not look at the several alternatives of what might happen to North Station if UMass-Boston moved in. His attempt to scare the residents of Boston with the threat of that heavy-handed villian in Amherst evicting the Bruins and Celtics shows his lack of responsibility.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Michael T. Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... John Mickelson '71
Copy editing and make-up ..... Sue Wallace, Janet Howes, Sue Gerson

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

"It Would Help If You Could Come Down A Little"

Inside Report

LBJ Film Blackout

By Roland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—A plush, $125,000 film on President Johnson, made by David Wolper Productions as a sentimental highlight for the Chicago convention, was cancelled at the last minute because convention managers feared it might set off hostile demonstrations, particularly in the New York and California delegations.

The film, tentatively entitled "Promises Made — Promises Kept," was financed by the Democratic National Committee, unlike the memorial tribute to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (for which the Kennedy family and friends paid an estimated $/0 000).

The LBJ film was to have been shown with the President himself present at the International Amphitheater in Chicago. When Mr. Johnson at the last moment decided not to attend the volatile, incendiary convention, the film was discretely cancelled, without any announcements. It will now be sent to the LBJ library as a permanent exhibit.

A footnote: Most pictures of the President disappeared from the walls of the Democratic National Committee, on orders of John Criswell, the outgoing National Committee treasurer and boss of the Chicago convention, this past week. No one knows why, but the assumption is Criswell wanted to keep them as mementos of his autocratic reign over the National Committee.

Political Bugging

The superheated California contest for the U.S. Senate between Democrat Alan Cranston and Republican Max Rafferty has begun with the discovery by Cranston that his Los Angeles headquarters was bugged.

The Democrats are making no accusations and, indeed, have made no public disclosure of the electronic eavesdropping. But security measures have been tightened for what figures to be a long mean campaign.

The Cranston camp became suspicious several weeks ago when inside strategy was apparently becoming known to Rafferty forces even before it was put into effect. Cranston's proposals were being replied to by Rafferty at the very moment they were issued.

Suspicious, Cranston's managers called the telephone company to check its equipment. It found nothing amiss. Still alarmed, Cranston hired a private detective who discovered an electronic eavesdropping device in the power company line to the Los Angeles headquarters.

Police have informed Cranston there are no grounds for prosecution. Similarly, the power company said there was no further action it can take.

Adlai and Daley

On top of his other troubles during the Democratic National Convention, Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago was infuriated by the independent stance taken by State Treasurer Adlai Stevenson III.

Daley and Stevenson, increasingly bitter foes inside the Illinois Democratic party, did agree on Hubert Humphrey for the nomination (though Stevenson endorsed him weeks earlier than Daley wanted). But on just about every issue that went to the convention floor—credentials fights over the seating of Southern delegations, the Vietnam plank — Stevenson took the liberal positions and opposed Daley.

On each of these questions, Adlai took 12 to 18 delegates with him out of the 118-vote Illinois delegation. Thus Daley's hopes for delivering his full delegation were confounded.

A footnote: State Atty. Gen. William Clark, who needs all the help he can get in his uphill race for the Senate against Sen. Everett Dirksen, was treated like a pariah by the rest of the Illinois delegation. His crimes were backing the dovish plank on Vietnam and supporting Sen. George McGovern for President.

The Old Nixon?

The otherwise triumphant Chicago opening of Richard M. Nixon's 1968 general election campaign was marred by staff confusion and a certain insensitivity of the candidate reminiscent of his 1960 campaign.

Nixon's advance men had told Illinois Republicans that, if there was a good crowd, Nixon would say a few words in front of the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel following his mid-day procession from the airport. The Republican workers drummed up a good crowd, indeed — around 2,000 persons— by promising Nixon would be there.

But his advance men hadn't checked with Nixon. In keeping with his determination to limit campaign appearances and avoid fatigue, he refused to say a word to the disappointed crowd. Nor would he say anything to massed radio and television microphones, though his next engagement was seven hours away.

A footnote: It would take scores of such incidents to hurt Nixon in Illinois. Politicians agreed that Nixon is far ahead there.

Humphrey Attacks Nixon's Integrity In Bid for Support of Sen. McCarthy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey made his sharpest assault on Richard M. Nixon, the man, Tuesday and his strongest appeal for the support of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

The vice president acknowledged that McCarthy "has serious problems about the support of my candidacy."

But Humphrey insisted that McCarthy as well as other dissident Democrats have to choose among Nixon, Gov. George Wallace and himself.

And Humphrey said he couldn't believe "my friend" McCarthy would want Wallace to decide the election or to have Nixon as president.

Humphrey told a breakfast meeting of Businessmen for Humphrey that a central issue of the campaign was which of the two major party candidates "can you trust?"

Humphrey said that the decisions of the next president would affect "the lives of children yet unborn."

Thus, he said, the voters should carefully study the record of both men—himself and Nixon — as an indication "of what you can expect, particularly under times of stress. . .and whoever is president will live under continuous stress."

Humphrey, obviously referring to Nixon but without naming him, asked, "How will he react under strain?

"Will the new coating wear off and the old substance come through? or will that thin veneer of the most recent political cosmetic treatment remain?"

Humphrey told the businessmen they would have to ask themselves that question, but he added:

"I don't come to you as the new Humphrey, I am just Hubert Humphrey, the one you have known for a long time."

Humphrey, in an interview on television station KNBC, again proposed that the candidates make a joint statement to make clear to Hanoi that it would gain no more with a new president than in negotiations now.

Humphrey also expressed belief that if it can be shown that a bombing halt produces more substantive talks in the Paris negotiations, the U. S. bombing would be stopped.

Humphrey also acknowledged some risks in what he called "the politics of confrontation" — question and answer sessions with audiences.

It was during such a session in Denver on Monday that Humphrey said he would have been able to run on a Vietnam plank proposed by doves at the Democratic National Convention, but which was voted down after one of the convention's key battles.

Humphrey explained that he had announced earlier that he would support whomever the Democratic party nominated — including war critic McCarthy.

(Continued on Page 6)

Director of SU Board Hopes For More Student Involvement

Jim Riley is a man with a long title, who describes himself as having "some background in this kind of work, and a lot of enthusiasms." Riley is the new Program Advisor in the Student Activities Office in the Student union.

The main area of the program advisor's work is with the Program Council of the Student Union, and with its committees, in sponsoring programs in the Union that are open to the entire University community.

Riley is a native of Glastonbury, Conn., and has a B. A. from Central Connecticut State College, where he did his internship in Student Union work. The internship involved training in all phases of Student Union work, including working the physical plant, as well as in assisting the program council. He hasn't begun graduate work yet, but hopes to start at UMass.

Riley's conception of his job is that he is an advisor to the students who do the actual planning. He says "I'm the type of guy who'd like to have as many students working in the office as possible. I'd like to see the freshmen, especially, and any others who are so disposed, come in and plan dances, art exhibits, movie series, etc., and therefore have something to say about what goes on in their Student Union.

"After all, when a student pays his Student Union fee, he is contributing to the Student Union. I'd think he'd like to have something to say about what goes on there."

His answer for the non-identity feeling experienced by many students is involvement. "If I were a freshman, I'd try to select a major I could do well in, and courses I'd do well in. I'd want to establish some kind of identity, besides just being a student at the University of Massachusetts. Further, if I had time, I'd want to participate in a little of the social life, and planning social activities. So, I'd get into student union work, because I'm helping to support it, so why not give them some of my ideas? It's a kind of self-fulfillment in some regard."

Membership applications for the Student Union Program Council are available in Riley's office on the second floor of the Union.

Riley has been here since last Tuesday, and he finds the area and the people "fantastic." He credits Lois Frey and Sheila McRevey, Student Union Program Directors, with doing a great deal to make his adjustments to his new job easier.

NOTICES

GREEK WEEK PUBLICITY COMM. Very important meeting. All interested must attend. Tau Epsilon Phi, 8:00, Sept. 11.

ATTENTION VETERAN STUDENTS AND CHILDREN OF VETERANS It is essential that, if you expect to continue receiving educational benefits from Veterans Admin. you re-enroll at once for the new academic year with the Veterans' Coordinator in Whitmore Admni. Building.

JUDO CLUB First semester workout. Wednesday night at 6:30 — Boyden 237 (wrestling room). New students welcome.

FOLK DANCING Folk Dancing Friday night, Sept. 13, 8-11 p.m., patio south of dining Commons No. 7. Kolos, horas, csardas, line dances from Yugoslavia, Russia, Greece, Hungary, Israel, etc. Dances taught, beginners welcome.

MEN'S VARSITY GYMNASTIC TEAM The first meeting will be held Thursday at 7:00 in Boyden, Room 251.

LOST Will the boy who borrowed my green Parker fountain pen at Registration on Monday in Boyden please contact Bob—6-7110?

HONORS COLLOQUIUM The university's Honor Program has been expanded this fall by the creation of special honors sections of some multi-section freshman courses. These sections include Introduction to Philosophy (two sections), Elements of Economics, Introduction to Government, Elementary and Intermediate German, Intermediate French, Intermediate Spanish, and Oral Communication: they are specially numbered in the schedule of classes. Special Freshman Composition continues to be offered. Qualified freshmen who elected to do so have enrolled in these sections.

The Honors Program, under the direction of Professor Everett H. Emerson, has new headquarters in Machmer Hall, E-23. An adjoining room is now an honors students' center, an inviting place for coffee and conversation. It is open from nine to four.

The Honors Colloquium program and the Senior Honors Thesis program, both under Professor Emerson's direction, are continuing. Students interested in the Colloquia are invited to register at the Honors Office next week, September 16 through 19.

The College of Arts and Sciences has pending a new and extensive Honors Program, scheduled for faculty consideration this fall. If adopted, it will provide for the first time a full Honors Program for Arts and Sciences students.

Rapp's Delicatessen

AND RESTAURANT

79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan

OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES

Delicious Salads -- Desserts

HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE

HOURS FREE DELIVERY Every night 6-11 p.m.

Phone 256-6759 FREE DELIVERY CALL EARLY

Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.

BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

UMass Professor Discusses Censorship on 'Today'

American authors may be facing an era of repressive censorship, a University of Massachusetts historian has told a national television audience.

"The potential for censorship is always present," said Dr. Paul Boyer, UMass assistant professor of history. "In times of turmoil, when people fear change, they desire to enforce conformity by law."

Dr. Boyer, whose book "Purity in Print: Book Censorship in America," was published by Charles Scribner's Sons on August 29, appeared recently on the NBC Today Show.

Clamor for censorship is on the rise in politics, the author pointed out. Max Rafferty, senatorial nominee of California Republicans, has laid campaign stress on his censorship accomplishments while state superintendent of schools. South Carolina Senator Strom Thurmond has charged that society is "soft on pornography" and is determined to do something about the problem.

Dr. Boyer also referred to the acceptance speech of Richard M. Nixon, in which the Republican nominee was wildly applauded after a promise to do something about the sale of filthy literature.

"I think something should be done about pornography," said interviewer Joe Garagiola. "Some of it cannot be defended in any way."

Dr. Boyer agreed, but pointed out that history contains no examples of censorship laws that are wise and fair. "How do you make such a law?" he asked.

The historian also discussed those sections of his book dealing with Anthony Comstock, New York's energetic censor of Post-Civil War days, and with the furore created by belly-dancers at the Chicago World's Fair of 1893. Victorian euphemisms such as "painted lady" also were mentioned.

In 1933 the Supreme Court upheld the distribution of James Joyce's novel Ulysses. This broke the back of American censorship, Mr. Boyer said. The decision came at a time when reports of Nazi book-burning in Germany were beginning to appear in the papers. "Censorship suddenly seemed repugnant, a feeling which helped defeat the practice in the United States."

Faculty Member Exhibits Lunar Paintings in NYC

University of Massachusetts painter James Hendricks' moonscapes and lunar orbiter paintings will be exhibited at the Ruth White Gallery, 42 E. 57th St., New York City, Sept. 10 through 28 in a one-man show.

Hendricks is an instructor of art and director of undergraduate instruction for the UMass art department. Recently he has concentrated on the moon as a subject and has produced a variety of works derived from the lunar landscape. He works from official N A S A moon probe photos.

He has exhibited in regional and national shows and taught at Mount Holyoke College and the State University of Iowa before joining the UMass faculty three years ago.

Collegian Sportsline--545-0344

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian (fondly called the MDC by its editors) is looking for people.

If you think you would like to work for New England's largest, fastest-growing college daily, then make plans to come to our first recruiting meeting next Thursday evening, September 19. The time and place will be announced later this week.

And don't be afraid to come in if you don't have any previous experience. We'll teach you all you need to know. (Copy editors are pretty high on our list of needs, in case you have any talent along this line.)

WMUA Music Power Survey

1. Time Has Come Today — Chambers Brothers
2. Harper Valley PTA — Jeannie C. Riley
3. I Gotta Get A Message To You— BeeGees
4. Give A Damn — Spanky & Our Gang
5. Born To Be Wild—Steppenwolf
6. Hush — Deep Purple
7. Special Occasion — Smokey Robinson
8. The House That Jack Built & I Say A Little Prayer — Aretha Franklin
9. Magic Bus — Who
10. Revolution & Hey Jude — Beatles
11. Pictures Of Matchstick Men —Status Quo
12. Light My Fire — Jose Feliciano
13. I Can't Stop Dancing — Archie Bell
14. Barefoot In Baltimore — Strawberry Alarm Clock
15. Mr. Bojangles—Jerry J. Walker
16. Help Yourself — Tom Jones
17. STEPPENWOLF — ALBUM
18. Street Fighting Man — Rolling Stones
19. EVERYBODY'S TALKING — Nilsson — ALBUM
20. If Love Is In Your Heart — Friend & Lover
21. L. A. Breakdown — Larry Marks
22. On The Road Again — Canned Heat
23. Don't Give Up — Pet Clark
24. Can't You Find Another Way of Doing It? — Sam & Dave
25. Hello I Love You — Doors
26. Love Heals — Colours
27. Do It Again — Beach Boys
28. Alice Long — Boyce & Hart
29. Six Man Band — Association
30. Naturally Stoned — Avante Garde
31. Hip City — Jr. Walker & The All-Stars
32. My Special Angel — Vogues
33. Fool On The Hill — Brasil '66
34. Little Green Apples — O. C. Smith
35. Breaking Up Is Hard To Do — Happenings
36. To Wait For Love — Herb Alpert
37. Midnight Confessions — Grassroots
38. You Met Your Match — Stevie Wonder
39. For The Love Of Ivy — Mamas & Papas
40. Poor Baby — Cowsills
41. The Snake — Al Wilson
42. THE CLOWN DIED IN MARVIN GARDENS — Beacon Street Union — ALBUM
43. All Along The Watch Tower — Jimi Hendrix
44. TRUTH — Jeff Beck — ALBUM
45. Hang 'Em High — Hugo Montenegro
46. This Is All I Ask — Tiny Tim
47. Grazing In The Grass — Hugh Masekela
48. Sealed With A Kiss — Gary Lewis & Playboys
49. You Gotta Have A Thing — Sonny & Cher
50. War Is Over — Phil Ochs

HUMPHREY . . .

(Continued from page 5)

He noted that the minority plank called for an unconditional cessation of the bombing, but at the same time spoke of protecting the American troops.

Thus, Humphrey went on, "it sort of painted over some of the real problems we have."

"I thought the majority plank was the better of the two." And, he added, it would have been more difficult for him to run on the minority plank and had he been forced to he would have had to make elaborations of his own.

As for McCarthy's support, Humphrey said, "I will just rely on what I consider his basic decency and good will."

Hoover, Hershey Warn of Widespread Campus Attack

The two government officials probably most venerated by students, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, recently issued their "back-to-school" welcoming broadsides to students and universities.

The messages are in the form of letters warning the public, the police and college administrations of the dangers posed to them by students and professors.

In the September issue of Law Enforcement Bulletin, a magazine sent by the FBI to police departments and other law enforcement agencies, Hoover wrote that "revolutionary terrorists"—in the form of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and other New Left groups—will endanger "not only the academic community but our peaceful and orderly society" this fall.

Militant radical leaders, Hoover warns, "plan to launch a wide-spread attack on educational institutions," and are relying on campus activists to help them "smash first the educational principle by standing as firm at tem, and finally our Government itself."

He called the New Left a "growing band of self-styled revolutionaries" who have a "pathological hatred for our way of life and a determination to destroy it," and said they will be using college campuses as a base for activities designed to promote Communist concepts in this country.

Hershey, in only slightly milder words, addressed himself to college and university administrators in the August edition of the Selective Service house organ, warning them of the "perils of permissiveness" toward students and faculty members who dissent and "create chaos" on campuses.

Hershey said "complete loss of control" by administrators over their institutions (referring to such incidents as that at Columbia) is inevitable when faculty members are allowed to complain about reclassification of students who engage in "disruptive protests," or to give all their students "A" grades "in an effort to evade their plain duty to determine the satisfactory scholarship of a student."

He blamed much of the campus unrest on faculty members who "prey on students" and encourage them to attack the actions of government officials or help them evade the draft, and said he thought those administrators who had "learned something last year" would suppress such professorial activity.

"I believe the silent citizens of the United States and the Congress are nearing the end of their patience with such activities," Hershey said. "I do not think Congress will for long provide funds to educational institutions to pay faculty members who incite students to disobey the Selective Service Law, or tolerate as satisfactory those who do."

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

Pizza 'π' are round cornbread is square Mama's Pizza.

HELP WANTED

Student for half day a week light housework. Call 253-9432.

Part-time household help for elderly couple, with possible housing. Also practical nursing 8 to 5 Sat. & Sun. Call 256-8200.

OPPORTUNITY

TO EARN $10.00

FOR 1½-2 HOURS WORK. YOU WORK at YOUR OWN SCHEDULE. Contact: Allen Elias, 41 River Street, West Springfield, Mass. 01089 — 736-1642, 7-30-9 a.m. or 10-11 p.m. Call collect.

FOR SALE

Stereo components at discount prices. Sealed cartons, full factory warranties. Amherst Hi-Fi Club, Box 721, Amherst, Mass. Tel. 256-6485

HAPPY HOUR Friday 4-7 P.M. SPECIAL PARTIES

"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"

Howard Johnson Motor Lodge

ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY

SECOND FLOOR—CENTER

OPEN

4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays

12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.

1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun. Tel 586-0114

STUDENTS

A Great Pizza, a Delicious Hot Oven Grinder, and a Pressure Fried Chicken are waiting to welcome you back to Amherst at

BELL'S PIZZA HOUSE

65 University Drive

Open 11 to 12

Fri. & Sat. 'til 2 a.m.

Free Delivery for $3 or more

HAND WOVEN ARTICLES From ECUADOR

My Jade Castle — boutique

— HAND MADE DRESSES —

Daily 12-6/Sat 10-6 253-5412

over MUTUAL HARDWARE -amherst

IF YOU DON'T KNOW A TRAVEL AGENT

Edward Demora, Margaret Guyett, Nicholas Phelps, Margaret E. Maxson, mgr., Diane Adamski, Linda Secco, James Harris

YOU DO NOW !

PETER PAN TRAVEL SERVICE, INC.

256-6704

79 South Pleasant Street Amherst

Delta Chi Fraternity

cordially welcomes all freshmen and transfer students to the University

MAMA'S PIZZA

FREE DELIVERY !

253-9858

Extended Summer Vacation for NYC Students May End

NEW YORK (AP) — A tentative settlement was announced Tuesday in a teachers' strike that delayed the opening of New York City public schools for two days for nearly 1.1 million pupils.

Officials were hopeful the fall term could get under way Wednesday.

Key issue in the school tieup was the job security demand of UFT President Albert Shanker and his 55,000-member AFL—CIO union.

Terms of the settlement of the racial-tinged dispute were to be submitted to a rank and file union vote within hours.

During the day, only 228 of the city's 900 public schools were open, with about 41,500 pupils in attendance.

Students, Faculty Protest Abuse by Chicago Police

Twenty-two faculty members and twenty-eight graduate students from the Department of Physics and Astronomy at the University have signed a letter addressed to the Executive Secretary of the American Physical Society condemning the abuse of police force at the Chicago Democratic Convention and requesting that the Society cancel its planned meetings in that City.

A spokesman for the group circulating the petition stated that the signers felt some action by the academic community was necessary and that the means chosen could be effective. A number of organizations have already announced the cancellation of future Chicago meetings.

To further emphasize the point, a copy of the letter is being sent to the Convention Bureau of the City of Chicago.

RACIAL UNREST . . .

(Continued from Page 2)

in the interaction between blacks and whites in the community—the way whites responded to the murder and the way blacks perceived those responses. Of paramount importance, as in the schools, was the appropriateness or inappropriateness of the responses of white authorities.

If that sequence of reactions is indeed accurate, the burden for keeping peace between the races lies with the white community—especially with officials and school administrators—in the coming months.

QUOTE OF WEEK

Finally someone has come up with an answer to all the men who think women have nothing to lose in protests because they can't be drafted.

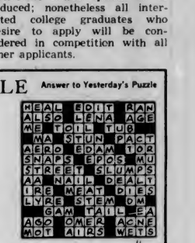
Speaking to a meeting of the National Student Association Congress two weeks ago in Manhattan, Kansas, West Coast draft resister and activist Dave Harris was asked by a young lady in the audience what women could do to effectively protest the draft.

"Well," Harris answered, "you can refuse to sleep with anyone who carries a draft card."

Changes in Navy OCS Will Affect Sept.-Nov. Classes

Due to a reduction in Federal expenditures in the Fiscal Year 1969, the U.S. Navy will reduce classes at its Officer Candidate School located in Newport, R.I. The reduction will affect some persons already assigned to September, October and November classes.

Chief Gerald Paulin, RINC of the Navy Recruiting Station stressed, "I want to emphasize that this does not mean any candidate already selected will be dropped, but may delay the reporting date of some of these candidates".



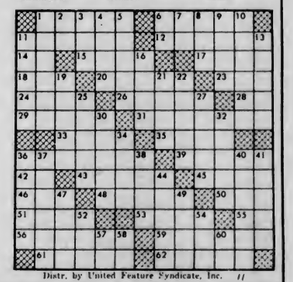
All selectees are being contacted and asked to voluntarily request reassignment to a later class.

"We hope", Chief Paulin added, "this procedure will take care of the greater percentage of the reductions, and keep involuntary assignments to later classes to a minimum". Those candidates reassigned to later classes will be notified as soon as possible.

The large number of applicants and reassignments of candidates has caused some delays in application processing. "Faced with these cricumstances", Chief Paulin said, "we expect Officer Candidate School quotas to be reduced; nonetheless all interested college graduates who desire to apply will be considered in competition with all other applicants.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



ACROSS

1-Part of flower
6-Metal
11-Chastise
12-Christian festival
14-Paid notice
15-Invigorates (colloq.)
17-Rail bird
18-Hurried
20-Sows
23-Moccasin
24-Pertaining to the ear
26-More unusual
28-Hebrew letter
29-African
31-Went by car
32-Lampreys
35-Head of Catholic Church
36-Processions
39-Birds' home
42-Conjunction
43-Earn
45-Food program
46-Decay
48-Renovate
50-Born
51-Twist
53-Break suddenly
55-Symbol for tantalum
56-Scoffs
59-Crown
61-Charge the account of 62-Craftier

4-The sweetsop
5-Sufferer from Hansen's disease
6-Exist
7-Sun god
8-Beast of burden
9-Cease
10-Mexican shawl
11-Nobleman
13-Hurried
16-Juncture
19-River in Africa
21-Let fall
22-Surgical thread
25-Choice part
27-Lassoed
30-More ancient
32-Varnish ingredient
34-Withered
36-Harbors
37-About
38-Transgresses
40-Seesaw
41-Vapor
44-Cares for 47-Woody plant
49-Moan
52-Bird's beak
54-Remuneration
57-A state (abbr.)
58-Saint (abbr.)
60-Prefix: down

DOWN

1-Staid
2-Teutonic deity
3-Soft food

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 11

University of Massachusetts Theatre

OPEN TRYOUTS for

AWAKE AND SING!

Clifford Odets' powerful drama of American life in the Depression-ridden 1930's

119 BARTLETT 7:30 P.M.

SEPTEMBER 11, 12, 13

- All graduates and under-graduates welcome
- No experience necessary
- Freshmen — an opportunity to get in early on University Theatre activity
- Everyone — gain some acting experience before the rush of academic work

Scripts available for loan at Speech Dept. Office, 352 Bartlett.

LIBRARY HOURS

Regular Hours
Monday-Friday 8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Saturday 8:30 a.m.- 5:00 p.m.
Sunday 2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Additional Reserve Desk Service and Study Hall Hours
Sunday-Thursday 10:00 p.m.-12 midnight
Note: Study Hall hours begin Sunday, September 15. There will be no Study Hall hours on Sunday, November 10.
Vacation and Intersession Hours
Monday-Friday 9:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday, Sunday Closed

LIBRARY CALENDAR,
September 11, 1968-January 29, 1969
Wednesday, September 11 — Sunday, November 10—Regular hours (but no Study Hall and Reserve Desk Service)
Monday, November 11 (Veterans Day)—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (and Study Hall, Reserve Desk hours)
Tuesday, November 12-Tuesday, November 26 — Regular hours
Wednesday, November 27-Sunday, December 1 — Vacation hours
Monday, December 2 - Saturday, December 21 — Regular hours
Sunday, December 22 - Tuesday, December 24 — vacation hours
Wednesday, December 25 (Christmas Day) — Closed
Thursday, December 26 - Tuesday, December 31 — Vacation hours
Wednesday, January 1 (New Year's Day) — Closed
Thursday, January 2 — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Friday, January 3—Tuesday, January 14 — Regular hours
Wednesday, January 15 - Wednesday, January 29 — Vacation hours

NOW SHOWING Daily—6:30-8:55 Sat. & Sun. 1:30-3:55-6:25-8:55

AMHERST Cinema

Ample Free Parking

Next "PRUDENCE & PILL"

Soon "When Lights Went Out"

NOW CINEMA 2 Frank Sinatra "THE DETECTIVE" at 7-9 Ex. Fri.-Sat. 6-8-10

CINEMA 1 Double Feature "Planet of the Apes" at 8 & "Flim Flam Man" at 6:15-9:45

Campus Plaza Shopping Center

Campus Twin Cinemas

256-6411

B. C. by Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1968
Page 8 Vol. XCVII, No. 3

Jimmy Taylor Hangs Up His Spikes

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Jimmy Taylor, whose brute strength as a ball carrier made him a living legend of pro football, turned in his uniform yesterday for a front office job with the New Orleans Saints.

"It'll take a while to get used to not playing," Taylor said at a news conference called to announce his retirement after 10 seasons in the National Football League.

Taylor's contributions to the first-year Saints will never be forgotten," said team owner John W. Mecom, Jr., who signed the Green Bay great to a rich contract in 1967 after he had played out his option with the Packers.

His magnificent efforts with a young, untested team of veterans and rookies were matched only by the leadership and balance he gave the Saints when it was needed the most."

A smiling Taylor, accompanied by his wife, Dixie, easily fielded questions posed by newsmen at the news conference. He said he'd had retirement under consideration for several weeks.

Mrs. Taylor, however, had to fight back the tears several times. Asked if she wasn't relieved that she wouldn't have to worry each Sunday in the fall about injuries to her husband, she replied, "I'd rather not say."

Taylor will be 33 Sept. 20, six days after the Saints open their regular season against the Cleveland Browns. Although he had only 390 yards rushing last year, he was the leading rusher for the first-year Saints.

It was at Green Bay, under Vince Lombardi, that Taylor wrote his name in the record books. In 1962, he was The Associated Press' Player of the Year and won the Jim Thorpe Trophy.

He scored 19 touchdowns in 1962. No other NFL back has ever scored that many times from scrimmage in a single season. No other man put together five straight 1,000-yards plus years rushing as Taylor did from 1960-1964, in title games, no man has gained as many yards rushing, or as much rushing-pass catching yardage combined as Taylor.

Mecom said Taylor will function in the area of public relations in the Saints' front office.

Recruits Wanted — Apply Rugby Club

An organizational meeting will be held by the Rugby Club in the Council Chambers of the Student Union at 7 p.m. tomorrow. The meeting is open to old and new players. No experience is necessary.

Ashe Cops U. S. Open Singles Championship

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — They finally got a weary and bedraggled Arthur Ashe, Jr., off the center court at West Side Tennis Club at 2:33 p.m. EDT yesterday.

In the last 24 hours—just 27 minutes under—the skinny Negro star had played a total of 162 games, winning the U.S. Open singles championship, fighting his way into the doubles final in a three-day match and then, his pipe-stem legs like rubber, losing in the last round of the men's doubles.

The men's doubles crown went to America's two young Davis Cup specialists, Stan Smith and Bobby Lutz of Pasadena, Calif., who whipped Ashe and his partner, pro Andres Gimeno of Spain, 11-9, 6-1, 7-5.

Smith and Lutz thus added the U.S. Open to their U.S. Amateur conquest at Brookline, Mass., two weeks before and further buoyed American hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup from Australia in December.

It seems almost certain that the two University of Southern California students — they both are 21—will play the doubles role against the Aussies at Adelaide, starting the day after Christmas.

"We certainly have a lot going for us," commented the U.S. captain, Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md.

The American college boys, in winning the Open waded through a field that included the best doubles teams in the world, among them Roy Laver and Roy Emerson, Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle, Tony Roche and John Newcombe.

Ashe, the top singles ace of the American team, started his tennis marathon at 3 p.m. Monday, beating Holland's Tom Okker in the men's singles final 14-12, 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3—a total of 65 games.

Then, after a brief rest, he took the court again to try to complete a semifinal doubles match that had been halted Sunday by darkness with the score tied 4-4 in the fourth set.

Sixteen games were played and still there was no decision. Again darkness intervened with the score 12-12 in the fourth with Clark Graebner of New York and Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, the other U.S. Davis Cup pair, leading Ashe and Gimeno, two sets to one, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Starting at 10:30 a.m. EDT yesterday, Ashe and Gimeno rallied to pull out the match 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 20-18, 15-13. The match had lasted three days and there were 42 more games added to Ashe's phenomenal string.

Bruins to Open Camp

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Bruins said yesterday a squad of 64 players, including 19 who graduated from the junior amateur ranks last spring, will report to their training camp at London, Ont., Friday.

The camp will be a combined training ground for the Bruins, under coach Harry Sinden, and their top farm club, the Oklahoma City Blazers, under player-coach Murray Davison.

Only one member of the Bruins' squad which finished third in the National Hockey League's East Division last season is missing. That is Skip Krake, who was sold to the Los Angeles Kings before the draft meetings in Montreal.

Sinden expects a three-way battle for Krake's job as utility man and penalty killer among Jim Lorentz, Bob Leiter and Jim Harrison, all of whom played in the minor league system last year.

Collegian Photo by John Kelly

The Redmen In '68

The 1968 Redman football team will kickoff their season with the traditional Maine game at home Sept. 21 at 1:30 p.m.

There have been many changes in the lineup from last fall. If you didn't get a copy of yesterday's MDC, 'The Redmen in '68' plus a preview of the opposition and a review of last season, with the rundown on the new faces and old, pick one up in the Collegian office in the Student Union.

Last-Place Dodgers Foil League Leading Cardinals

Compiled from the Associated Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers, with Bill Singer scattering nine hits, stalled the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant march for the second straight night with a 3-0 victory last night.

The Cardinals, who have lost six of their last seven games, had their first place margin in the National League trimmed to 10½ games over San Francisco, which beat Atlanta 4-2.

St. Louis' magic number remained at six—any combination of Cardinals' victories and San Francisco defeats totaling six would give St. Louis the pennant.

Singer's single ignited a two-run rally in the third inning against loser Steve Carlton, 12-11, as the Dodgers won for the seventh time in eight starts. Carlton's wild pickoff throw to first, an infield out and Willie Davis' single scored Singer, and Davis eventually scored on Ken Boyer's sacrifice fly.

A walk, a wild pitch, an infield out and Jim Lefebvre's sacrifice fly scored another run in the fifth.

Cubs 8, Mets 1

Billy Williams walloped three homers and drove in six runs in leading the Chicago Cubs to an 8-1 victory over the New York Mets yesterday.

Williams connected with one runner on base in the first, sixth and seventh innings. The slugging outfielder, with 29 homers, tied the major league record of five home runs in two consecutive games.

Williams' runs batted in output also enabled him to take over the National League lead with 94.

Ernie Banks also homered for the Cubs in the seventh, his 31st.

The Mets scored their only run in the opening inning on a walk, a single by Larry Stahl and a wild pitch by winning pitcher Bill Hands, 16-9.

Yankees Twice

Charlie Smith's homer in the opener and Joe Verbanic's five-hitter in the nightcap swept the red-hot New York Yankees by the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and 5-0 in a twinight doubleheader.

The two victories gave the fifth place Yankees five in a row and 24 in their last 34 games, a streak which brought them from seventh place to challenge for third.

Smith, a midgame replacement for injured Bobby Cox, won the first game with his first homer of the season, a blast into left field seats off Wilbur Wood with two out in the last of the ninth.

Browns Waive Groza in Roster Cut

Lou Groza, the king of conventional kickers whose talented toe made him the all-time scoring leader in the National Football League, was waived yesterday by the Cleveland Browns in what may signal his farewell to professional football after a 21-year career.

In announcing their decision to ask for waivers on Groza as NFL teams cut down to the mandatory 40-player limit, the Browns said they planned to use the 44-year-old as a kicking coach. He could, however, be restored to the roster at some future time.

Groza, who began his career in the old All-American Conference in 1946, came into the NFL along with the Browns in 1950. He has scored 1,608 points in his career, including a record 1,349 in the NFL on one touchdown, 641 extra points and 234 field goals.

In 1967, Groza made good on all 43 of his conversion attempts and 11 of 23 field goals for 76 points.

Also waived was the No. 5 pass receiver in NFL history, Tommy McDonald of the Atlanta Falcons. McDonald, a 34-year-old, 175-pound flanker who also played with Philadelphia, Dallas and Los Angeles, has caught 488 passes for 8,297 yards in his 11-year career.

Groza and McDonald join several other name players trimmed from NFL rosters Monday, including receiver Paul Flatley and quarterback Bob Berry of Minnesota and defensive back Ross Fichtner of New Orleans.

Among other moves Tuesday: Baltimore-Cut defensive tackle Andy Stynchula.

Harvard Coach Shakes Up Line

BOSTON AP — Harvard football coach John Yovicsin announced three major player switches yesterday including two affecting 1967 lettermen.

Bill Kelley, 6-foot-2, 190-pound sophomore from Reading, was moved from fourth-string offensive quarterback to first team defensive left safety.

Tom Wynne, a 5-foot-10, 170-pound senior from Fordyce, Ark., was switched from safety to left cornerback.

Fritz Reed, a 6-foot-3, 225-pound Columbus, Ohio, junior, moved from offensive right end on the first team to offensive left tackle.

METAWAMPE'S GRID PICKS

Collegian Photo by Richard S. Kline

RETURNING FRIDAY

Sweaters Are In

Varsity sweaters earned last spring in baseball, golf, lacrosse, rifle, tennis and track can be picked up any time at the Athletic Issue Window in Boyden.

11 SEPT 11

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1968
Page 8 Vol. XCVII, No. 3

Jimmy Taylor Hangs Up His Spikes

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Jimmy Taylor, whose brute strength as a ball carrier made him a living legend of pro football, turned in his uniform yesterday for a front office job with the New Orleans Saints.

"It'll take a while to get used to not playing," Taylor said at a news conference called to announce his retirement after 10 seasons in the National Football League.

Taylor's contributions to the first-year Saints will never be forgotten," said team owner John W. Mecom, Jr., who signed the Green Bay great to a rich contract in 1967 after he had played out his option with the Packers.

His magnificent efforts with a young, untested team of veterans and rookies were matched only by the leadership and balance he gave the Saints when it was needed the most."

A smiling Taylor, accompanied by his wife, Dixie, easily fielded questions posed by newsmen at the news conference. He said he'd had retirement under consideration for several weeks.

Mrs. Taylor, however, had to fight back the tears several times. Asked if she wasn't relieved that she wouldn't have to worry each Sunday in the fall about injuries to her husband, she replied, "I'd rather not say."

Taylor will be 33 Sept. 20, six days after the Saints open their regular season against the Cleveland Browns. Although he had only 390 yards rushing last year, he was the leading rusher for the first-year Saints.

It was at Green Bay, under Vince Lombardi, that Taylor wrote his name in the record books. In 1962, he was The Associated Press' Player of the Year and won the Jim Thorpe Trophy.

He scored 19 touchdowns in 1962. No other NFL back has ever scored that many times from scrimmage in a single season. No other man put together five straight 1,000-yards plus years rushing as Taylor did from 1960-1964, in title games, no man has gained as many yards rushing, or as much rushing-pass catching yardage combined as Taylor.

Mecom said Taylor will function in the area of public relations in the Saints' front office.

Recruits Wanted — Apply Rugby Club

An organizational meeting will be held by the Rugby Club in the Council Chambers of the Student Union at 7 p.m. tomorrow. The meeting is open to old and new players. No experience is necessary.

Ashe Cops U. S. Open Singles Championship

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — They finally got a weary and bedraggled Arthur Ashe, Jr., off the center court at West Side Tennis Club at 2:33 p.m. EDT yesterday.

In the last 24 hours—just 27 minutes under—the skinny Negro star had played a total of 162 games, winning the U.S. Open singles championship, fighting his way into the doubles final in a three-day match and then, his pipe-stem legs like rubber, losing in the last round of the men's doubles.

The men's doubles crown went to America's two young Davis Cup specialists, Stan Smith and Bobby Lutz of Pasadena, Calif., who whipped Ashe and his partner, pro Andres Gimeno of Spain, 11-9, 6-1, 7-5.

Smith and Lutz thus added the U.S. Open to their U.S. Amateur conquest at Brookline, Mass., two weeks before and further buoyed American hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup from Australia in December.

It seems almost certain that the two University of Southern California students — they both are 21—will play the doubles role against the Aussies at Adelaide, starting the day after Christmas.

"We certainly have a lot going for us," commented the U.S. captain, Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md.

The American college boys, in winning the Open waded through a field that included the best doubles teams in the world, among them Roy Laver and Roy Emerson, Ken Rosewall and Fred Stolle, Tony Roche and John Newcombe.

Ashe, the top singles ace of the American team, started his tennis marathon at 3 p.m. Monday, beating Holland's Tom Okker in the men's singles final 14-12, 5-7, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3—a total of 65 games.

Then, after a brief rest, he took the court again to try to complete a semifinal doubles match that had been halted Sunday by darkness with the score tied 4-4 in the fourth set.

Sixteen games were played and still there was no decision. Again darkness intervened with the score 12-12 in the fourth with Clark Graebner of New York and Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, the other U.S. Davis Cup pair, leading Ashe and Gimeno, two sets to one, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Starting at 10:30 a.m. EDT yesterday, Ashe and Gimeno rallied to pull out the match 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 20-18, 15-13. The match had lasted three days and there were 42 more games added to Ashe's phenomenal string.

Bruins to Open Camp

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Bruins said yesterday a squad of 64 players, including 19 who graduated from the junior amateur ranks last spring, will report to their training camp at London, Ont., Friday.

The camp will be a combined training ground for the Bruins, under coach Harry Sinden, and their top farm club, the Oklahoma City Blazers, under player-coach Murray Davison.

Only one member of the Bruins' squad which finished third in the National Hockey League's East Division last season is missing. That is Skip Krake, who was sold to the Los Angeles Kings before the draft meetings in Montreal.

Sinden expects a three-way battle for Krake's job as utility man and penalty killer among Jim Lorentz, Bob Leiter and Jim Harrison, all of whom played in the minor league system last year.

Collegian Photo by John Kelly

The Redmen In '68

The 1968 Redman football team will kickoff their season with the traditional Maine game at home Sept. 21 at 1:30 p.m.

There have been many changes in the lineup from last fall. If you didn't get a copy of yesterday's MDC, 'The Redmen in '68' plus a preview of the opposition and a review of last season, with the rundown on the new faces and old, pick one up in the Collegian office in the Student Union.

Browns Waive Groza in Roster Cut

Lou Groza, the king of conventional kickers whose talented toe made him the all-time scoring leader in the National Football League, was waived yesterday by the Cleveland Browns in what may signal his farewell to professional football after a 21-year career.

In announcing their decision to ask for waivers on Groza as NFL teams cut down to the mandatory 40-player limit, the Browns said they planned to use the 44-year-old as a kicking coach. He could, however, be restored to the roster at some future time.

Groza, who began his career in the old All-American Conference in 1946, came into the NFL along with the Browns in 1950. He has scored 1,608 points in his career, including a record 1,349 in the NFL on one touchdown, 641 extra points and 234 field goals.

In 1967, Groza made good on all 43 of his conversion attempts and 11 of 23 field goals for 76 points.

Also waived was the No. 5 pass receiver in NFL history, Tommy McDonald of the Atlanta Falcons. McDonald, a 34-year-old, 175-pound flanker who also played with Philadelphia, Dallas and Los Angeles, has caught 488 passes for 8,297 yards in his 11-year career.

Groza and McDonald join several other name players trimmed from NFL rosters Monday, including receiver Paul Flatley and quarterback Bob Berry of Minnesota and defensive back Ross Fichtner of New Orleans.

Among other moves Tuesday: Baltimore Cut defensive tackle Andy Stynchula.

Harvard Coach Shakes Up Line

BOSTON AP — Harvard football coach John Yovicsin announced three major player switches yesterday including two affecting 1967 lettermen.

Bill Kelley, 6-foot-2, 190-pound sophomore from Reading, was moved from fourth-string offensive quarterback to first team defensive left safety.

Tom Wynne, a 5-foot-10, 170-pound senior from Fordyce, Ark., was switched from safety to left cornerback.

Fritz Reed, a 6-foot-3, 225-pound Columbus, Ohio, junior, moved from offensive right end to the first team to offensive left tackle.

Last-Place Dodgers Foil League Leading Cardinals

Compiled from the Associated Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers, with Bill Singer scattering nine hits, stalled the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant march for the second straight night with a 3-0 victory last night.

The Cardinals, who have lost six of their last seven games, had their first place margin in the National League trimmed to 10½ games over San Francisco, which beat Atlanta 4-2.

St. Louis' magic number remained at six—any combination of Cardinals' victories and San Francisco defeats totaling six would give St. Louis the pennant.

Singer's single ignited a two-run rally in the third inning against loser Steve Carlton, 12-11, as the Dodgers won for the seventh time in eight starts. Carlton's wild pickoff throw to first, an infield out and Willie Davis' single scored Singer, and Davis eventually scored on Ken Boyer's sacrifice fly.

A walk, a wild pitch, an infield out and Jim Lefebvre's sacrifice fly scored another run in the fifth.

Cubs 8, Mets 1

Billy Williams walloped three homers and drove in six runs in leading the Chicago Cubs to an 8-1 victory over the New York Mets yesterday.

Williams connected with one runner on base in the first, sixth and seventh innings. The slugging outfielder, with 29 homers, tied the major league record of five home runs in two consecutive games.

Williams' runs batted in output also enabled him to take over the National League lead with 94.

Ernie Banks also homered for the Cubs in the seventh, his 31st.

The Mets scored their only run in the opening inning on a walk, a single by Larry Stahl and a wild pitch by winning pitcher Bill Hands, 16-9.

Yankees Twice

Charlie Smith's homer in the opener and Joe Verbanic's five-hitter in the nightcap swept the red-hot New York Yankees by the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and 5-0 in a twinight doubleheader.

The two victories gave the fifth place Yankees five in a row and 24 in their last 34 games, a streak which brought them from seventh place to challenge for third.

Smith, a midgame replacement for injured Bobby Cox, won the first game with his first homer of the season, a blast into left field seats off Wilbur Wood with two out in the last of the ninth.

Sweaters Are In

Varsity sweaters earned last spring in baseball, golf, lacrosse, rifle, tennis and track can be picked up any time at the Athletic Issue Window in Boyden.

METAWAMPE'S GRID PICKS

Collegian Photo by Richard S. Kline

RETURNING FRIDAY

Photo by Mike Alpert

Because of excessive weight over the Hatch in the Student Union the bookstore was moved to the Physical Plant warehouse resulting in endless queues outside.

Weight Problem Causes Waiting Problem

Photo by Mike Alpert

Inside the new bookshop a deficiency in the number of cash registers caused lines to queue up back into the aisles between book tables.

ADD — DROP DEADLINES ANNOUNCED

The last day to add or drop a course without any record is Sept. 20. The last day to drop a course without penalty is Oct. 11. (courses dropped between Sept. 20 and Oct. 11 will be noted by "W")

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
VOL. XCVII, NO. 4 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1968

Dean Dwight Allen Urges Changes In Teacher Education Process

By Susan Hamilton
Staff Reporter

Dean Dwight Allen of the School of Education said changes are necessary in the process of teacher education to generate excitement in education and to confront the 20th Century before an audience of 550 faculty and students at the School of Education convocation Wednesday afternoon.

In his address Dean Allen called attention to innovations needed in the process of education.

Provost Tippo made introductory remarks to the convocation, welcoming the new dean and faculty of the school and giving his support to the new program to be instituted.

Dean Allen began by saying that all programs, requirements and degrees of the School of Education have been discontinued effective September 9, 1968. This step, he said, is to prevent tradition from standing in the way of the changes which are needed in education.

"Education," Allen said, "has become something which is to be tolerated. We all recognize it as something which is necessary but which no one expects to enjoy." Allen questioned if education could be enhanced by not enjoying it.

Colleges, he said, are medieval institutions which have never been thoroughly analyzed as to what they do. The curriculum, he said, is in need of re-examination.

Teachers and students are not really sure what education should be necessary, said Allen. Often subjects are required for no other apparent reason than as requirements for college admission or to receive a degree, he said, with no one really understanding why they should be required.

Allen proposed a new set of core components of curriculum to replace the standard four of English, social studies, math and science. Much more important in a modern system, he said, are communications, human relations, esthetics, and technology.

Communications must be brought up to date to meet the requirements of the television and radio media, he said. The written word now reaches fewer persons than other media, he explained, yet in education written communication still preempts all other forms.

Man's relation to man has become increasingly important, he said, "leisure time is not a benefit to society if people don't know what to do with it."

"We cannot have contempt for technology," he added, "because it makes it possible for us to be more human. Any person," he said, "who can be replaced by a machine should be."

"Society is deprived in esthetics," he said, "students are generally illiterate esthetically speaking." Teachers should help

(Continued on Page 6)

DEAN DWIGHT ALLEN

House Speaker Quinn Warns, Choose Campus Site or We Will

A mandate has been put forth by the state legislature to the UMass trustees calling for a decision on the proposed sites for the Boston campus. Unless action is taken soon (by the end of this year), warns House Speaker Robert H. Quinn, the Legislature will do the site selection themselves.

Placement for the new campus has been narrowed down to two areas: Columbia Point and North Station (Boston Garden). House Speaker Quinn's emphatic statement to Gov. Volpe demanding actiın has led some trustees to fear for the continued existence of the University's board of trustees.

The scale seems to be swaying in favor of Columbia Point, the location having been considered the best site by House Speaker Quinn, Mayor White and the Boston Redevelopment Authority. Gov. Volpe's office, though, remains undecided.

The arguments in favor of a permanent campus at Columbia Point are strong: 1) greater acreage, 2) consequent expulsion of the Boston Celtics and Boston Bruins if the Garden is chosen as the site, 3) and the resulting waste of $2 million presently being used to renovate the Garden. The underlying reasoning seems to be that it would be much easier and more logical to build on land which is unsettled and undeveloped such as the Columbia Point area.

Dr. John W. Haigis, Jr., chairman of the site selection committee, is hopeful that the trustees will come to a decision when they meet today.

Nineteen-Year-Old Leverett Girl Arrested on Paint-Splattering Charge

Suzanne Williams, a 19-year-old pacifist from Leverett, was arrested Wednesday on a federal warrant charging she splattered paint on Selective Service files at the Customs House in Boston June 4.

Police said Miss Williams was arrested at the Northampton office of the Registry of Motor Vehicles, when she came in to apply for a driver's license.

She was recognized by a clerk who notified authorities.

Police detained her until F.B.I. agents from Springfield took her into Boston.

TO BE INDICTED TODAY

Miss Williams will face Judge W. Arthur Garrity Jr. on the indictment.

Miss Williams, active in non-violent protests against the Vietnam war and the draft since graduating from Amherst Regional High School in 1966, said recently she and Francis T. Femia, of Voluntown, Conn., were the "unidentified" couple that went to the 11th floor offices of Selective Service Board 30 in Boston June 4 and, without speaking, poured two cans of black paint on draft files.

CLARIFY FACTS

Upset at news stories following the event that "distorted" the act, Miss Williams mailed a clarifying statement to news media to "communicate the straight facts to the public."

"We did not rush from the building after pouring the paint," Miss Williams said. "We spent approximately 10 minutes in the draft

(Continued on Page 6)

Senator Proposes Barring Press From Convention Floor Coverage

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., stirred Senate criticism of television coverage of national party conventions today with a proposal to abandon public galleries and bar news representatives from the convention floor.

McGee told the Senate that the presence of "news types" intermingling with the delegates at the Chicago Democratic convention contributed to "confusion and near bedlam. . ."

To solve this, he said the public galleries ought to be closed and reporters and cameramen assigned to operate only in this space. He said that if newsmen want to interview a delegate, they should call him off the floor.

The Wyoming Senator said he had received many letters with the "Frightening" suggestion that the government take over the telecasting of conventions. He said he doesn't want anything like that to happen and thinks the news media should act to improve coverage before the government or somebody else does.

"The media should take the lead before the politicians or some government agency feel impelled to act without the rightful and proper consultation and cooperation with the media," he said.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., broke in to say that the political parties themselves should assume direction and control of the televising of their conventions.

He said there was too much camera switching away from the platform speaker to "put on some little peanut quarrel on the floor" of the conventions.

Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., who has programmed four Republican conventions, suggested that a bi-partisan committee be set up to confer with network officials to see what could be done to eliminate confusion on the floor.

But Murphy said the political parties can't presume to dictate what goes on the air. He said he explained this to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956 when Eisenhower insisted that what was disseminated at a Republican convention was a matter for the GOP control.

More Troops Withdraw From Prague

by HANNS NEUERBOURG

PRAGUE (R — More columns of Soviet troops, tanks and artillery withdrew from Prague Wednesday, apparently as a result of a visit to Moscow by Premier Oldrich Cernik.

The only officially announced result of Cernik's trip Tuesday was an economic agreement. Informed sources said, however, that Soviet leaders had shown themselves willing to withdraw the bulk of their troops from Czechoslovak cities.

Tanks and soldiers have been camped in parks and other public sites since the occupation of Czechoslovakia by the armies of the Soviet Union, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Bulgaria on August 20-21.

Troops still in the city appeared to be preparing to leave. The bulk of the tanks guarding the Soviet Embassy also left, but some could still be seen inside the embassy garden.

Among the sites freed during the day were the editorial offices of the weekly Reporter, put out by the Czechoslovak Journalists' Association and a frequent [illegible] of the Moscow press. T[illegible] zine's editors announce[illegible] issue will appear [illegible] week.

Party [illegible] Alexander Dubcek met with Soviet Deputy Foreign

(Continued on Page 6)

Amherst-Smith Theatre Opening Begins Tonight at 8:30 p. m.

Scene from "A Flea In Her Ear"

Scene from "The Balcony"

The Amherst - Smith Theatre will open its first joint season here tomorrow night at Kirby Theater.

The season of world-famous French plays will include Feydeau's "A Flea in Her Ear"; Moliere's "Tartuffe"; and Genet's "The Balcony," all done in English.

George Feydeau's bedroom farce, "A Flea in Her Ear," is one of the most famous of the famous French school of Boulevard Theatre. Done in an exciting new translation, which received rave reviews at the National Theatre in England, the play includes all the hilarious farce trademarks: mistaken identities, mistaken couples, mistaken bedrooms, in the midst of whirlwind activity of traditional 19th century comedy.

Moliere's "Tartuffe" is being done in the brilliant Richard Wilbur translation which many critics feel is the first translation to capture the wit and wisdom of Moliere. The world-famous story of hypocrisy and its victims is being produced in a contemporary scene to emphasize the modernity of the theme.

Jean Genet's "The Balcony" is one of the really important plays of the modern theatre. The story of impersonation, perversity, and reality is told in startling theatrical terms that are guaranteed to be exciting and thrilling.

"A Flea in Her Ear" performs September 13, 14, 15; "Tartuffe," September 20, 21, 22; "The Balcony," September 27, 28, 29, 30, all at Kirby Theater in Amherst.

Ticket information is available at the box office or call 542-2278. The box office will be open every day from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Politics '68

Humphrey

Hubert H. Humphrey pictured Richard M. Nixon Wednesday as "a wiggler and a wobbler" on the political issues of the day and he sought to work himself out of a tangle on Vietnam.

And Humphrey, taking his campaign along the Gulf from Houston to New Orleans, said he would be willing to debate George Wallace, the segregationist, third party candidate.

Meanwhile, Humphrey was caught in a campaign flap over troop withdrawal from Vietnam.

This morning Humphrey's press secretary, Norman Sherman, issued a statement of explanation, saying: "On Monday in Philadelphia the vice president expressed the hope that in early 1969—and possibly as soon as late 1968 — American troop units might begin to be withdrawn from Vietnam, as South Vietnamese forces were better able to carry a larger share of the burden there.

McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., asked state officials Wednesday not to put his name on the ballot as a presidential candidate in Minnesota and New York. McCarthy wrote the secretary of state of Minnesota, home grounds for him and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, saying "I do not wish to have my name on the ballot" and officially asking that it be removed.

Petitions had been filed to enter McCarthy as a presidential candidate with New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay as a vice presidential candidate.

Aides said McCarthy is expected to take similar action in New Hampshire, where petitions also have been filed for him.

McCarthy

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said today he will delay for at least three weeks any statement on whom he will support for president in the November election.

Asked in an interview today if he possibly could back Nixon when he makes up his mind, the Minnesota Senator replied: "I dont' think so."

McCarthy conceded in an informal news conference, after he had presided over a closed meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on African affairs, that he is under "some pressure" to endorse Humphrey despite their disagreement over Vietnam policy.

McCarthy disagreed with Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, the Republican vice presidential nominee, that Humphrey is turning "squishy soft" on Vietnam in an effort to recapture support from Democratic dissidents who, Agnew said, wanted to end the Vietnam war with a U.S. pullout.

"I don't think his Humphrey's position has changed, McCarthy said. "He took a pretty hard line at the convention and I don't think there is much of a change in his position."

Agnew

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man with the political hatchet in hand in the Republican presidential campaign camp seems to be Spiro T. Agnew.

As the No. 2 man on the GOP ticket, Maryland Gov. Agnew chopped away at Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, with the kind of spirited abandon enemies of Richard M. Nixon have attributed him in the past.

What stirred Agnew to political anger was Humphrey's observation that the Nixon Agnew team seemed to be going for a military, rather than a diplomatic, settlement of the Vietnam war.

Indirectly, he hung an appeaser label on the vice president for a suggestion that some withdrawals of U.S. troops could begin late this year or early in 1969.

He said Humphrey was "attempting to lift the American people up to the prospect of peace when there is no evidence that peace is in sight."

Nixon

Richard M. Nixon staged a party unity display in New York Wednesday, then turned his Republican presidential campaign to the South.

All of us together are team players," Nixon said. "And a party that can unite itself can unite this nation."

At the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill Nixon found a large and friendly crowd of students and their elders. Nixon went there to view a computer center designed to match people and jobs. He said, "We should investigate the possibilities of implementing such a plan on a nationwide basis." A nationwide computer bank, he said, could bring jobs to the unemployed throughout the nation.

Wallace

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — American Legionnaires embraced George C. Wallace with applause like rolling thunder here Wednesday and held their noses in disgust for a scanty turnout of young anti-Wallace protesters.

Wallace wooed the Legion's national convention by denouncing rioters and looters as "trash" and calling for a military victory with conventional weapons in Vietnam should peace talks fail.

During his speech to the American Legionnaires, police stood ready outside the Municipal Auditorium where some 35 demonstrators marched.

Wallace said he hopes that an honorable peace can be negotiated, but if talks in Paris break down, "We have only one recourse: That is to rely on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and if they believe we can win the war militarily, then I'd like to see us win it with conventional weapons and bring our boys home."

Hijacker of Canadian Plane Surrenders After Demanding to Be Flown to Cuba

MONTREAL (AP) — A hijacker from Texas surrendered to Canadian police Wednesday after holding two crewmen of an Air Canada Viscount plane at gunpoint for more than three hours and demanding that he be flown to Cuba.

The gunman, who staged the first hijack in Air Canada's 31-year history was identified by Royal Canadian Mounted Police as Charles Lavern Bearley, 22, of Dallas. Police said he is a Negro, six feet tall, weighing about 195 pounds.

Authorities said Beasley boarded the plane in Saint John, N.B., and drew a revolver soon after the four-engined turboprop took off for Toronto.

An airline spokesman said the gunman told the crew that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was after him. He demanded to be flown to Havana, but the pilot Capt. Ronald Hollett, convinced him that they would have to land in Montreal to refuel.

The 17 passengers and two stewardesses were allowed to leave the plane at Montreal. But Beasley remained aboard with his gun trained on the pilot, and First Officer Robert Bromley. The gunman finally walked off the plane after holding the two airmen at gunpoint for more than three hours.

Assistant police commissioner Raoul Carriere told newsmen, at the airport he could not say whether any charges will be filed. The case is in the hands of immigration authorities.

Carriere said he had spent 15 or 20 minutes talking with Beasley on the plane's radio, trying to persuade the hijacker to surrender.

He had promised the man asylum after getting approval from the justice department in Ottawa.

Asked about Beasley's claim that he is wanted by the CIA, the assistant commissioner said his department is not aware of it.

Computer to Program Final Exam Schedules

With clases commencing, students must already be wondering about their final exam schedules. The curiosity will have to continue until some time in October, according to Mr. Herbert Skillings of the Scheduling Office.

For the past two or three years final exam schedules have been published along with the course schedules in time for pre-registration. This system based its planning on the previous year's experience, resulting in numerous conflicts.

Students no longer have to worry about scheduling courses around exam conflicts; the computer will do it for them. After class schedules are settled and course combinations and clusters are known, a practically conflict free schedule will be programmed.

With more than 65,000 setups to [illegible] new system is e[illegible]ssen the conflic[illegible] to about 50. [illegible]blem is still a[illegible]ams within one day. Three exams in a day will continue to constitute a conflict, although no consideration has been given to three exams within the 24 hour period.

"Things are moving too fast to base the scheduling on current enrollment", explained Skillings. He continued by saying that we have no way of knowing if this new system is going to work any better, but that we must try.

STUDENT UNION MOVIE

JAMES BOND FLICK

"From Russia, With Love"

THURSDAY AT 6 & 8

Admission 25¢

Q-CLUB

FRIDAY HAPPY HOURS

On the Bandstand

The Fabulous Singers—JACK and GILL

Tel. 253-9214

DANCE—TUES., THURS.

HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-7 P.M.

SPECIAL PARTIES

"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"

Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY
SECOND FLOOR—CENTER

OPEN
4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays
12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.
1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun.

Tel 586-0114

UMass Graduate Named Peace Corps Volunteer; Assigned to Jamaica

Richard B. Eber, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Eber of Hyde Park, Mass. and a UMass graduate has been named a Peace Corps Volunteer assigned to Jamaica. A Spanish major, he was a member and performer in the UMass Operetta Guild, Roister Doisters, Chorale, Chamber Singers and University Theatre.

Approximately 80 new Volunteers will help Jamaican Government ministries to carry educational programs into communities throughout the island. Most of the Volunteers will be teacher trainers, providing in-service instruction through demonstration classes, seminars and summer courses to pre-primary and primary teachers and teacher interns. Some will work in child guidance programs or deaf education. Approximately 20 Volunteers will teach vocational education and home economics in secondary schools, Job Corps-type Youth Camps and Trade Training Centers. Other Volunteers will help develop fishing cooperatives, inner city youth clubs and literacy programs.

During their nine weeks of training at San Diego State College, the Volunteers learned teaching and community involvement techniques. Special emphasis was placed on the study of social and economic conditions in Jamaica. As trainees the Volunteers lived with inner city families and did practice teaching in local schools.

Their early September assignment brings the total of Peace Corps Volunteers in Jamaica to approximately 140.

RICHARD EBER

The Daily Collegian will be looking for YOU next Thursday at 8:30 pm in the Council Chambers, Student Union

Mass. Bar Exam Review Offered By The University

The University of Massachusetts will offer its first Massachusetts Bar Examination review course beginning Saturday, Sept. 14, and meeting each Saturday through Dec. 21 from 9:15 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. in Room 103, Administration Building, Worcester State College.

The instructor will be Joseph R. Nolan, Boston attorney, assistant district attorney and instructor for the state Department of Education. All subjects required for the December Massachusetts Bar Examination will be covered. A systematic review of subject matter and an analysis of bar exam questions will be included.

Advance registration may be made at the Office of the Provost, Whitmore Administration Building. Registrations will also be accepted at the Sept. 14 class opening. The full fee of $85 must be paid at registration. The class will be limited to approximately 40.

RSO Announces Changes in Policy

By Patt Francis
Staff Reporter

The Student Activities Office in the Student Union is the headquarters for Recognized Student Organizations (R.S.O. and the Program Office). It provides a banking, bookkeeping, and auditing service for student organizations, as well as resources and counsel on program planning, budgeting, purchasing, contracting, and most other aspects of the affairs of student organizations. Advisers are available to work closely with students and faculty advisers of student organizations to help them attain their goals and best serve the University. Detailed information may be obtained by contacting the Student Activities Office.

Several changes in RSO procedures and policy have been instituted this year.

The Student Activities work area will be open every night from 6-10 and Saturdays from 9-12 a.m. The area is located at the south end of the activities office on the second floor of the Student Union. Supervisors, including George Plantiga and Roma Collins, will be available for advice and consultation.

Students may place orders for mimeograph, ditto and printing work through the Student Activities Office.

All financial transactions of R.S.O. groups must be enacted only by persons authorized by the entire organization. Students with questions on financial procedures should see Armand Demers, supervisor of R. S. O. accounts.

Scheduling of activities in the Student Union can be done through Kathleen Parenteau, whose office is located next to the lobby counter. Reservations for other campus facilities, except the residence hall facilities (including dining commons), are to be made through Mrs. Anne Scudder in the Scheduling Office in Whitmore Hall. Residential area functions are to be scheduled through the Area Coordinators.

The Student Activities Office will also arrange for the sale of tickets through the ticket office for any organization's event.

Students who are planning a program can receive advice on publicity, program content, technical services (lights, sound, etc.), and facilities available from either Shelia McRevey, Lois Frey or Jim Riley in the Student Activities Office.

North Vietnamese Delegation 'Interested' By Sen. Kennedy's Proposal To End War

The North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris Peace Talks has told a group of American acamedicians they were interested by Sen. Edward M. Kennedys proposal last month to end the war, one of the professors said Wednesday.

Jonathan Mirsky, director of the East Asian Center at Dartmouth College, said the North Vietnamese were "scornful" of the American delegates in Paris because they "speak to us in the words of President Johnson."

The Kennedy proposal, Mirsky said, attracted the North Vietnamese because it imposed no conditions for a bombing halt. The Communists, Mirsky said, viewed the Kennedy plan "as insight into the situation."

Kennedy, in a speech at Worcester, suggested an unconditional bombing halt and the withdrawal of all foreign troops from South Vietnam as steps toward ending the war.

Mirsky said the North Vietnamese disputed any interpretation that their troops would be foreigners.

Mirsky was one of five professors who met with the North Vietnamese for 13 hours last Thursday and Friday at the invitation of Dave Dellinger, editor of Liberator magazine. Dellinger has been to Hanoi and met with North Vietnamese officials.

Mirsky said the North Vietnamese reiterated several times that the United States should "stop the bombing and we will end the war very quickly."

New Offices Are Now In Use In Thompson Tower

The newly constructed, but not yet completed, structures just west of Machmer Hall have been named Thompson Hall. The tower is an office building and the low unit contains three lecture rooms.

The occupants of Thompson Tower are the Economics (9th and 10th floors), History (6th, 7th and 8th), and Government (2nd and 3rd) departments. The Sociology part of the department of Sociology and Anthropology is on the 4th and 5th floors of the tower and the Anthropology section is on the basement floor of Machmer Hall in the east and central sections of the building.

New occupants of Machmer Hall include Statistics on the third floor center section, Rooms 309-317, overflow of Speech and English from Bartlett Hall, and the Director of Honors office, Room E23.

This is your life line. If you're not doing something with your life, it doesn't matter how long it is.
The Peace Corps.

advertising contributed for the public good

- Eat in
- Take out
- Fast Service
- Ample Parking
- Pizza
- Submarine

Hours: 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun.
Open 11:00 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.

Awaiting The Funeral

Each time we look, Spain has raised its price for renewing the lease on the U.S. military bases which expires on September 26. The deal now, according to discreet murmurs from Spanish diplomatic sources, is to include an increase in the already very high level of our direct military aid, a full-fledged defense treaty (Spain is not in NATO, and England and the Scandinavian countries will not let it in), exemption from President Johnson's restrictions on capital investments abroad, and the right to try American personnel who commit crimes off the designated bases.

Franco argues that his "services" have become more valuable to the United States, what with the Russian navy cruising about in the Mediterranean, de Gaulle's withdrawal from NATO and his ban on military overflights, and the transfer of a large French naval base in Algeria to the leftist government of that country. He also urges, indirectly, that he no longer needs the prestige of American bases to lend "respectability" to his regime; Hitler and Mussolini are long dead and the "jackal" epithet has lost its sting.

Perhaps so. Nevertheless Franco is not in a position to bargain with bared teeth: His economy is in fearful shape, his students are openly rebellious, his workers are finding ways to organize outside his notorious National Syndicate—and he is 75 years old.

This last fact is the one that the State Department negotiators should keep in mind. A bargain can undoubtedly be struck somewhere between the present agreement and the hungry goals of the Spaniards. But granted that we want to keep our Polaris base at Rota (the air bases become less significant every year), are we willing to rent it at the price of hostility from Franco's successors?

American spokesmen talk of humanizing the regime from within—which is what people always claim they are doing when they cannot otherwise justify a distasteful alliance, and which in this case does not seem to have been a conspicuously successful instance of benign infiltration.

Meanwhile, month by month, the voice of freedom in Spain grow bolder. Franco can doubtless continue to shout it down, partly because it is not worth spilling blood to destroy a 75-year-old enemy with no apparent heirs. A great many Spaniards, a constantly growing number, are awaiting the old man's funeral. The question, as one Spanish official said to Richard Blumenthal of The Washington Post, is whether they will decide to bury the United States in Franco's coffin.

A "Waity" Problem

The University Store hoped to solve several problems this year by moving the location of book sales from the Commonwealth Room in the Student Union to the maintenance building. It would appear at first glance, honwever, the students may again be the losers.

True, the Hatch ceiling is now in no danger from an overload of books and people. But last night's lines indicate that perhaps it may be necessary to go back to the drawing board and think some more about what is obviously still a very "waity" problem.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.
BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Dick Boucher '69.
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
Copy, editing and make-up ..... Louisa Varnum, Neal Norack, Pat Flanagan, Sandra Czaporowski

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

"All Right Now, Team — Heads Up — We Can Win This Old Ball Game"

INSIDE REPORT:

The Real Danger From Moscow

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—The deeper reason for the acute and still-rising alarm in the West over the crisis in Eastern Europe is not so much the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia as the fear that the Kremlin has now allowed itself to be caught in a trap from which there is no exit.

There is deep concern among highly-placed officials, both in the Western and anti-Soviet Communist camps, that the swift movement of several hundred thousand Soviet soldiers into Czechoslovakia was marked by highly erratic if not irrational conduct within the Kremlin.

For example, some expert analysts now believe that the prime consideration behind the August 20 occupation was a virtual ultimatum by the Soviet joint staff with a very interesting and uncomfortable motive in mind: to block the projected summit meeting between Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Johnson.

The first word that these two world leaders had agreed to meet in Geneva to start talks on control of anti-ballistic missile systems reached top-level Soviet officials about August 18. Within two days Soviet troops, with token help from loyal Warsaw Pact allies, had invested Czechoslovakia. Thus the announcement of the Big Two meeting, scheduled for the following day simultaneously in Washington and Moscow, was nipped in the bud.

Evidence that this military takeover was not preceded by elementary precautions on the political front is too blatant to be ignored.

The Soviet ambassador's glib assurance to the Kremlin that a Quisling government could quickly be installed in Prague turned out to be wholly false. Moreover the apparent assumption in Moscow that the Czechs would follow the course of least resistance, as they had in 1938 under Hitler's coup and Stalin's own takeover in 1948, ignored the most fundamental fact of political life in the torn and shredded Soviet empire today.

This fact is that the Czech movement toward a free press, economic decentralization, and a Communist party with power coming from the rank and file, not rigidly controlled from the top, is a true reflection of the inexorable direction of Communist satellite politics today, heavily larded with nationalism.

Thus the Czechs correctly see themselves as the wave of the future. In 1938, to the contrary, the obvious wave of the future was Hitler and in 1948 it was Stalin.

But even more to the point is the apparent lack of consensus within the Kremlin over the hard-line policy toward Czechoslovakia and its courageous party chief, Alexander Dubcek. Michael Suslov, a longtome member of the Presidium, is known to have made one of the strongest arguments within the Kremlin preceding the invasion in favor of an easy policy toward Czechoslovakia, and yet Suslov is generally regarded as an ideological hardliner and theoretician of party orthodoxy.

On the other side, Wladyslaw Gomulka of Poland and Walter Ulbricht of East Germany are warning Moscow that if there is a Soviet retreat from Czechoslovakia they may not be able to hold their own positions.

Suslov has been trying to put back together the old Moscow-world. The Czech occupation has made that impossible, destroying Moscow's credentials in Italy, France, and other countries with minority Communist parties.

Accordingly, the Kremlin is caught in a trap, which is why some well-informed Soviet experts in both the Western and the Communist camps now fear that the Czech affair may be leading straight to the most dangerous East-West confrontation since the Cuban missile crisis or the 1961 Berlin crisis. But in both those situations, one man heald the reins of power in Moscow.

Today there is no Nikita Khruschev. Power is split among half a dozen men, with the military apparently in a new ascendancy, determined to employ mailed - fist solutions for the most subtle, complex political problem — the disintegration of the Soviet empire. Not only is there no single leader to make decisions, there's no apparent way out of the Czrch crisis at all. That's why, behind the official facade here, the mood is blacker than at any time in the past six years.

Who: YOU

What: MDC recruiting meeting

Where: Council Chambers, SU

Why: To join the staff

When: Next Thursday, Sep. 19, 8:30 pm

NSA:

The Sins of the Fathers

By Susie Schmidt
College Press Service

WASHINGTON--To judge from their behavior at the 21st Annual Congress of the National Student Association, the students who are called the "leaders" of their colleges and university student bodies are feeling guilty: guilty about their middle-class origins and the values they inherited from their parents; guilty about the contempt and hostility their society and their schools have shown blacks and other minority groups in the past,and those institutions' remaining complicity in racism today; guilty about their avoidance of a direct confrontation with the hated draft by the acceptance of student deferments; and mostly guilty about their own years of passing resolutions against what they were ashamed of, instead of working against it in an active and committed way.

The 900 students from 250 schools who gathered at the University of Kansas two weeks ago for their annual meeting cathartic-ed their guilt in many ways: they participated in "sensitivity training" and role-playing sessions, they inhaled great quantities of marijuana, they burned a handful of draft cards, they took a collection and gave the money away to local citizens driving past the campus one night; two of them even had nervous breakdowns.

"WHITE RACISM"

Probably their deepest guilt feelings were aroused by what has come to be called "white-racism" the roots of hatred and discrimination in the heart of social institutions as well as in overt actions. When a black student from the University of Alabama challenged his school's delegation to the Congress on the grounds that it was all-white and had not sought black students to come to the conference and be active in student government, the Congress voted to place him on the Alabama delegation and throw one of the regular delegates off, even though the black had not applied for the position or shown interest in the student government at school. The students seemed to think that the student government should have recruited black delegates actively, and should be penalized for not having done so.

In that spirit, other delegations began challenging their own right to represent because they had no blacks in their ranks. One group, from Maryland, issued a statement giving up their voting rights because "we realize that the University of Maryland is inherently a racist institution in its admission policies,student attitudes, and administrative and faculty personnel."

The Congress passed a resolution calling "institutional racism" --the subconscious perpetuation of discrimination by most social institutions and the complicity of most universities in this process-- "the most critical problem facing our society." It said that in order to be seated at next year's Congress, each delegation will have to show that they have "done something towards ending racism on their campus"--and, presumably, will have to contain black representatives.

The delegates also directed the NSA national office to plan programs during the year aimed at attacking institutional racism and at determining its sources and cures.

"Left Out of Politics"

The students who attended the Congress, a majority of them connected in some way with "student government", have also felt "left out" of the political action in this year when students are more interested in politics--both electoral and issue-oriented-than ever before. NSA itself (which in many important ways is an entity quite separate from its constituents, although it is theoretically owned and controlled by them) is staffed by intelligent liberal-to-radical former students who this year have found themselves frustrated by their non-participatory political position.

That non-participation has been forced on NSA by its tax-exempt status. As a non-profit organization which accepts government and foundation grants it is prohibited by law from legislative lobbying and other political activities.

The August Congress decided to do something about the frustration of non-participation by dividing NSA into two corporations. The first, which will retain the name National Student Association, will be tax-exempt but will not accept grants. It will therefore be allowed to engage in all forms of political activity on a national, local or state level except the endorsing of specific candidates for public office.

NSA will be supported financially by membership dues (ranging from $21 to $250 depending on school size) and NSA's extensive services division,which offers such things as a student record club, discounts on travel and lodging in Europe, student insurance, and booking of speakers and big-name entertainment.

The second corporation, to be called the National Student Institute, will in effect be the old NSA. It will operate all programs funded by foundation and government grants. NSI will not have members as such, but will offer services only to NSA members.

Perhaps the most significant of NSI's programs will be a new Center for Educational Reform which will pull together and extend NSA's past activities in the academic area. Educational reform--student participation in determination of curriculum, teacher evaluation by students, independent study programs, experimental courses, free universities--has always been NSA's strong area of activity. Its tutorial projects in the South, though often unpublicized, have been operating for years, and it has been doing research on experimental education almost since the organization was founded. Its work is now being expanded into the Center through a three-year $315,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

New Political Activism

More exciting to most of its members, however, will be the activity of the new NSA—the "political activist" half of the organization. Its first project, according to Congress coordinator Al Milano, will be raising money to campaign in as many states as possible this fall for specific issues.

"We want to get students working on state and local levels for issues like the 18-year-old vote and stopping the war," Milano said. The first targets for such activity will probably be New York, Oregon and California (where another issue will be Governor Reagan's attempts to raise tuition and clamp down politically on the state university and colleges).

The local political activity may serve another purpose for NSA—making it an organization that gets action instead of talk, that has some effect in activating students.

The feeling many NSA staffers and even more members convey is that they would like to be another SDS in some sense—with the same success in giving a sense of purpose and demanding the same loyalty. Many of them don't like the SDS rhetoric and haven't yet accepted violence as an operating tactic, but they agree with the radical group's conclusions about the evils of institutions and the goal of participatory democracy.

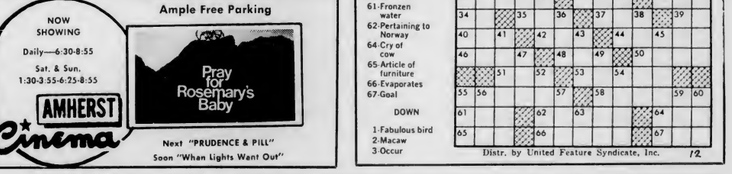
"The difference," Milano says, "is one of style. We've been saying the same things about Columbia that SDS has, but we couldn't get the organized effect that caught national attention and got results. And a national organization shouldn't have the power to do things on that level. The reason SDS can do them is that it works through local groups

(Continued on Page 6)

NOW SHOWING
Daily—6:30-8:55
Sat. & Sun.
1:30-3:55-6:25-8:55
AMHERST Cinema
Ample Free Parking
Pray for Rosemary's Baby
Next "PRUDENCE & PILL"
Soon "When Lights Want Out"

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



SEPAL GRASS
PERATE EASTER
AD EPS SORA
RAN SEEDS PAC
OTIC RARER PE
NEGRO MOTORED
EELS DOPE
PARADES NESTS
OR MERIT DIET
GOT RENEW PEE
TURN SNAP TA
SNEERS DIADEM
DEBIT SLYER

ACROSS

1-Cheer
4-Tally
9-Bishopric
12-Anglo-Saxon money
13-Seeped
14-Number
15-One who catches
17-Dangers
19-Longed for 21-Short sleep
22-Unlock
24-Drunkard
26-Invigorates (colloq.)
29-Renovate
31-Conjunction
33-Stitch
34-Latin conjunction 35-Place
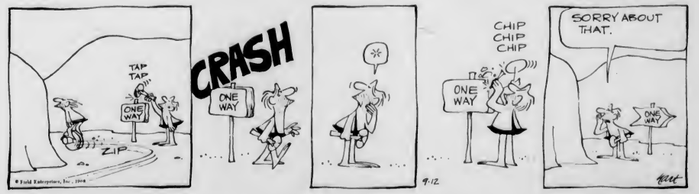
37-Deface
39-Three-toed sloth
40-Roman bronze
42-Plunge
44-Pulls suddenly
46-Trace
48-Stroke
50-Luck
51-Female (colloq.)
53-Expression of displeasure
55-Tattered
58-Weirder
61-Fronzen water
62-Pertaining to Norway
64-Cry of cow
65-Article of furniture
66-Evaporates
67-Goal

DOWN

1-Fabulous bird
2-Macaw
3-Occur
4-Anon
5-Centers
6-Unit of weight (abbr.)
7-Corded cloth
8-Paradise
9-Stalks
10-Lamprey
11-Abstract being
16-Fork prongs
18-Knock
20-Man's nickname
22-Mountain nymph
23-Man's name
25-Man's nickname
27-Highest points
28-Pertaining to Switzerland
30-Marry
32-In India, sovereignty
36-Gratuity
38-Happen again
41-Sank in middle
43-Dance step
45-Mode of rule
47-Move from side to side
49-The ones here
52-Grant use of
54-Female ruffs
55-Bone of body
56-High card
57-Click beetle
59-Vast age
60-Staff
63-A state (abbr.)



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 12

DEERFIELD
DRIVE-IN THEATRE
ROUTE 5 & 10
SOUTH DEERFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS
TEL. 665-8746
FRI.-SAT-SUN.
20th Century-Fox presents
DEBORAH KERR DAVID NIVEN
in FIELDER COOK'S
Prudence and the Pill
SMA
A KAHN-HARPER PRODUCTION - Color by De Luxe
also
TONY MUSANTE in
The Incident
Feature First Sun. only
Showtime 7:45

THE WIZARD OF ID — by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. — by Johnny hart

Conn. River Valley Recommended To Become Scenic Showpiece

WASHINGTON (AP)—An Interior Department study recommends turning major portions of the 400-mile Connecticut River Valley into a scenic and recreational showpiece stretching from southern New England to the Canadian border.

The department's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation proposes a federally-owned Connecticut River national recreation area—composed of three parks in Connecticut, Massachusetts and straddling the Vermont-New Hampshire border-supplemented by new or enlarged state parks in the four states.

All segments would be knitted together by a Connecticut River tourway—a network of existing roads criss-crossing the river and connecting points of major scenic, historic and cultural interest.

The three proposed federal links would be:

—A gateway unit in Connecticut extending 11 miles along the river between Haddam and the Connecticut Turnpike.

—A Mt. Holyoke unit in Massachusetts near the Springfield-Chicopee-Holyoke metropolitan area with 4½ miles of river front and including the Mt. Holyoke Range.

—A Coos scenic river unit along 82 miles of river in New Hampshire and Vermont between Moore Reservoir and Lake Francis.

The bureau, which conducted the 22-month study under legislation introduced by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., estimated federal land acquisition costs at $45 million and development costs at $12 million. The federal areas would total 56,700 acres.

The study also recommends a 300-mile hiker's trail.

Students Entitled to Tax Refunds

Students who were employed part-time during the year or worked full time during the summer may be entitled to a refund on their 1968 Federal income tax return, the Internal Revenue Service advised.

The IRS also stated that students are required to file an income tax return if they earned $600 or more during 1968. If they earned less than $600 and taxes were withheld from their wages by the employer, they must file a return to obtain a refund of the tax withheld from their wages.

Unmarried students who earn less than $900 will not owe any Federal income tax. They are entitled to claim the usual $600 personal exemption plus a $300 minimum standard deduction, but they will still have to file a tax return to obtain a refund of any tax refund of any tax on their wages.

Additional information for working students is available from the office of the District Dir. of Internal Revenue Service, John F. Kennedy Building, Government Center, Boston, Massachusetts 02203 or by calling your local Internal Revenue Service office.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

Pizza ⌐ are round cornbread is square Mama's Pizza.

HELP WANTED

Part-time household help for elderly couple, with possible housing. Also practical nursing 8 to 5 Sat. & Sun. Call 256-8200.

Alert girl, living on campus, to work part-time for local dating match service. Call 546-6492 any time after 3 p.m. 5t-12

Girls earn extra money by handling subscriptions to the Boston Globe in your dormitory. No limit to the amount you can make! For further information call 546-8473. 5t-12

Laboratory help needed in Physics Dept. 20 hrs. a week, $1.50/hr. No experience necessary. Dr. Meisner T. Mann, S. Chan. Rm. 320, 318, 316, 304. 3t-12

OPPORTUNITY

TO EARN $10.00

FOR 1½-2 HOURS WORK. YOU WORK at YOUR OWN SCHEDULE. Contact: Allen Elias, 41 River Street, West Springfield, Mass. 01089 — 736-1642, 7-39-9 a.m. or 10-11 p.m. Call collect.

HOUSING WANTED

Senior girl looking for place off-campus. If you have an apartment and would like a room-mate please contact Elaine at 546-7392. Willing to pay up to $80 month. Would prefer own room. 5t-12

ROOMMATES NEEDED

Need Female roommates to live in huge, new, furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at the Hutch Inn (Hadley—Ph. 584-3561) or Phone Amherst 256-6907 and leave name and phone number. 5t-12

Mature room mate wanted to share modern furn. apt. in Northampton. Call 586-1436 eve. 5t-12

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1960 Plymouth Good Running condition. New Radiator. Snow Tires. Evenings 256-6962. 5t-12

FOR SALE

Stereo components at discount prices. Sealed cartons, full factory warranties. Amherst Hi-Fi Club, Box 721, Amherst, Mass. Tel. 256-6485

Meal ticket for sale Southwest, call 6-8277. 5t-12

IMPORTANT

Executive Council Meeting

CLASS OF '71

Date: Thursday, Sept. 12, 1968
Time: 8:30
Place: Council Chambers

All Interested Class Members Welcome

University Professor Promotes Research in Management Philosophy

As elected Chairman of the College of Management Philosophy, a research and operational unit of The Institute of Management Sciences, Professor Walter G. O'Donnell of the Department of Management has exerted a leading influence both nationally and internationally in promoting systematic study of the philosophical elements and aspects of modern corporate management.

The Institute of Management Sciences, with a membership of nearly 5000 in 50 nations, is a scientific society established to identify, extend, and unify scientific knowledge that contributes to the understanding and practice of management. The professional research group known as the College of Management Philosophy was founded within The Institute of Management Sciences by Professor O'Donnell in 1960, after he had presented a paper on "Values and Value Judgments in Managerial Decisions" at an international meeting of TIMS and found a positive response that favored the organization of a professional research group concerned with this scientific and philosophical area of investigaton. This was the first professional research group ever organized for this purpose.

Since 1960, Dr. O'Donnell has presented numerous papers in this field of inquiry at international management conferences under auspices of TIMS and the Comite International pour l'Organisation Scientifique (CIOS) in this country as well as in Belgium, Austria, Peru, and Mexico.

With his persistent planning and organizing of the activities of the College of Management Philosophy, its membership has risen to over 500 — the second largest membership among the various chapters and colleges of TIMS.

He achieved another novel advance in this area of study when he secured inclusion of a required Seminar on the Philosophical Foundations of Business Administration in the new Doctoral Program in the School of Business Administration. Response and interested participation of doctoral students in this novel seminar were encouraging.

At the XV International Meeting of The Institute of Management Sciences in Cleveland this week, Sept. 11-13, Prof. O'Donnell will again serve as Chairman of meetings of the College of Management Philosophy and present a paper concerned with Scientific Axiology.

Drivers Have Until Oct. 15 For Vehicle Inspections

"Fall inspection period begins September 1," says Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin, "but it is not too soon to make a preliminary check and make necessary repairs before presenting board offices, and when we were asked to leave, we did so without haste."

LEVERETT GIRL . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

Father—UMass Prof

The slight pretty teenager, whose father, UMass. Prof. Schafer Williams is in Italy studying ancient manuscripts in his role as a medieval historian, said she is against all forms of violence and believes that war is wrong.

Defining violence as "any action that is harmful to human beings," Miss Williams said she fully expects to be arrested for her actions.

This summer Miss Williams said she was "tear gassed and bruised" by Boston police during a melee at the Arlington Street Church when police removed a draft resister who had sought sanctuary there. Miss Williams said she was detained by police for one hour after she "got in the way" during the arrest.

A veteran of antiwar and anti-draft stands during the past two years, Miss Williams said she had been arrested so often that she cannot recall the exact number. She served two months in jail in Washington after being arrested outside the Pentagon last fall, when she said, she attempted to "cool down the hot heads" in the antiwar demonstrations there.

motor vehicles at official stations."

Nearly 2½ million vehicles must be inspected during the six-week period which ends on October 15. (Approximately 69,500 vehicles per day if started on September 1.) Registry officers have approved 3500 official inspection stations throughout the state, but drivers would be wise to present their motor vehicles early in the period and to allow considerable time for the checkup so that adjusters can do their work in accordance with instructions.

"Motor vehicles successfully passing the Fall inspection will have a red sticker printed in black placed on their windshields; those not passing will have a round rejection sticker — white with a red band—placed on their windshields. The rejection sticker cannot be removed until the necessary repairs have been made, and after October 15, they will not be allowed on the highways," the Registrar said.

McLaughlin reminds drivers that the compulsory law also includes trucks, trailers, motorcycles, motorscooters, motorbikes, school buses, and vehicles with farm, dealer, repair, and owner-repair plates.

Items to be checked include: brakes, headlamps, tail lamps (and rear plate light), stop lights, number plates (no plastic or other coverings allowed), horn, tires, rear windows (no clouding on convertibles), steering gear and ball joints, marker lights on commercial vehicles, muffler and exhaust system, bumpers, fenders, and external sheet metal, windshield and windshield wipers, safety chains on trailers, and front and rear floor boards.

PRAGUE . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

Minister Vasily Kutznetsov after a briefing from Cernik, who talked with Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

A small crowd waited as Dubcek arrived at Communist party headquarters in a black limousine. Some embraced him. Others presented him with flowers or gifts. He accepted them with a broad smile.

The arrival of Kutznetsov, who was accompanied by Soviet Ambassador V. S. Chervonenko, was ignored by the crowd.

On his return from Moscow, Cernik told reporters he informed the Soviet leaders that "certain effective measures will be realized in our country which will have a favorable influence on further developments."

Presumably he referred to domestic press censorship and the barring of political groups other than the Communist party.

These actions were demanded by the Russians as one condition for the withdrawal of the 600,000 Soviet bloc troops now occupying Czechoslovakia.

However, the Czechoslovak leaders have promised that these laws are temporary and have reassured the population that there will be no departure from what one newspaper termed "Dubcek socialism with a human face."

ALLEN . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

to create an esthetic environment for learning he said.

A revolution is needed in education, Allen said, and teachers should be the leaders in this revolution. "Teachers must be willing to make mistakes, and to try new, different and insecure things," he said.

Dean Allen said that he and the faculty will try to provide two or three alternatives at every level of education to the students. "Any course requested by five or more students in the School of Education will be provided in the spring semester," he said.

Following his address to the convocation, Dean Allen introduced the faculty of the School of Education. A question and answer period followed.

SINS . . .

(Continued from page 5)

who respond to local situations, not through the national office."

Now NSA would like the same kind of political leverage for students on a local level. It hopes its new "activist" Corporation can accomplish that by establishing a "meaningful student political arm" on many local fronts, or (even more important) working to encourage and help those that already exist.

In fact, of course, NSA remains identified in students' minds as a "straight, moderate" student group—legacy of its involvement with CIA money and its legal identification with stolid student government organizations. An example of the difference is the organization's willingness to take and work with the "chickenshit liberal money" of foundations and such government agencies as the Office of Economic Opportunity that is offered so freely to it (not to SDS) in the wake of such things as the Columbia upheaval. NSA believes it should take the money and use it to further its goals, rather than reject it on principle as would SDS.

That willingness may symbolize the future of NSA—it will indeed enable it to work for student power and educational reform, but it will probably keep it out of the political activist mainstream where it so longs to be.

A staff position on the Daily Collegian requires enthusiasm and a desire to learn. It will take only as much time as you wish to devote to it. If you are enthusiastic, energetic, and have some spare time, come to our fall recruiting meeting next Thursday, Sep. 19, 8:30 pm, Student Union.

WORDS OF WISDOM — While most of the UMass students were still packing to return to campus after Labor Day, the football team was hard at work holding drills in preparation for the first kickoff Sept. 21 against Maine. Varsity head coach Vic Fusia shows two of the Redmen how he wants the ball held.

SHOULDER TO SHOULDER — Co-captain Nick Warnock (left) at split end scrimmages with Jim Long, also a split end, who is his back-up man.

FISTS UP, CHIN OUT — Coach George Karras demonstrates to Pierre Marchando how to brace himself for the oncoming surge of the defensive line. Marchando was switched to a lineman from fullback this season in an attempt to plug up some of the holes in the offensive line.

—Daily Collegian Photos by John Kelly

University of Massachusetts Theatre

OPEN TRYOUTS

for

AWAKE AND SING!

Clifford Odets' powerful drama of American life in the Depression-ridden 1930's

119 BARTLETT - 7:30 P.M.

SEPTEMBER 11, 12, 13

- All graduates and under-graduates welcome
- No experience necessary
- Freshmen — an opportunity to get in early on University Theatre activity
- Everyone — gain some acting experience before the rush of academic work

Scripts available for loan at Speech Dept. Office, 352 Bartlett.

Athletic Facilities Available For Student and Faculty Use

The following areas will be available for free play at the indicated times on days during which the University is in session.

Faculty

Area
Boyden Pool—12:10-12:50, Mon.-Fri.
‡Main Gymnasium—12:10-12:50, Mon.-Fri.
*Squash and Handball Courts—12:10-12:50, Mon.-Fri.
Bowling Alleys — 12:10-12:50, Tues. and Thurs.
WOPE Pool — 7-9 p.m. Friday Only (Faculty a nd Staff family swim)

Students and Faculty

WOPE Pool—4:15-5:15, Tues. and Thurs. (Women Only)
Hicks Pool—4:15-5:15, Mon.-Fri. (Men Only)
Bowling Alleys — 4:15-6 p.m., Mon.-Thurs.
Bowling Alleys — 4:15-10 p.m., Friday Only ‡Main Gym—4:15-6 p.m., Mon.-Fri.
‡Main Gym—1 p.m.-5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday
*Squash and handball courts — 3:30-9 p.m., Tues. and Thurs.; 1-5 p.m., Sat. and Sun.
Weight Training Room—5-6 p.m., Mon.-Fri.; 1-5 p.m., Sat. and Sun.
*Squash and handball Courts—4:15-9 p.m., Mon., Wed. and Fri.

* Sign up at Equipment Issue Window for court reservations or call after 8 a.m., ext. 5-2829
 At a charge of .35 per line
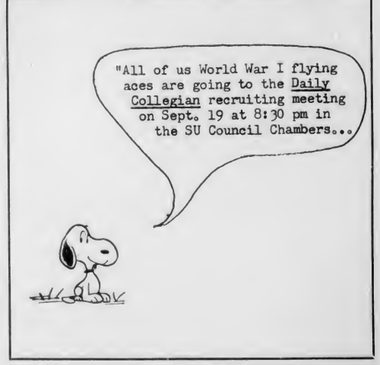
‡ Proper attire must be worn in gym at all times.
The above schedule is subject to change.

Pick Up Your Varsity Sweater



Varsity sweaters earned last spring in baseball, golf, lacrosse, rifle, tennis and track can be picked up any time at the Athletic Issue Window in Boyden.

Rugby, Anyone?

An organizational meeting will be held by the Rugby Club in the Council Chambers of the Student Union at 7 p.m. tonight. The meeting is open to old and new players. No experience is necessary.

Fusia and Staff To Hold Clinic For Intramurals

- Residential Halls Athletic Chairman meeting tonight, 7:30 p.m., in Boyden.
- Football Clinic, Varsity Football Coach Vic Fusia and staff on the intramural fields at 7:30 p.m., tonight.
- Mon., Sept. 16, IFC football rosters due.
- Tues., Sept. 17, Residential and Independent football rosters due.
- Wed., Sept. 18, Tennis and Tug of war rosters due.
- Thurs., Sept. 19, Intramural official meeting, 7:30 Boyden.

This Week at HILLEL

1) Friday Services, 7 p.m., Council Chambers
ONEG SHABBAT FOLLOWING

2) Saturday Services, 9:45 a.m., Worcester Rm

3) Sunday Brunch Program, 11:00 a.m.
COMMONWEALTH ROOM
50¢ PAID MEMBERS $1.00 OTHERS

4) Open Hillel Student Gov't meeting follows Sunday Brunch Program.

5) Tentative Hillel Class Schedule
SATURDAY—WEEKLY BIBLE READING, 11:30 A.M.
WORCESTER RM
SATURDAY—TALROD IN ENGLISH, 12:15 P.M.
WORCESTER RM
MONDAY—PROBLEMS IN BELIEF, 6:30 P.M.
(RM TO E ANNOUNCED)

WEDNESDAY YIDDISH, 6.30 P.M.
(RM TO BE ANNOUNCED)

HEBREW CLASSES TO BE ANNOUNCED
ISRAEL DANCING TO BE ANNOUNCED

12 SEPT 211

Redeem Coupons for the Maine Game

Tickets went on sale yesterday for the opening game of the 1968 football season, the Redmen versus Maine at 1:30 p.m., Sept. 21.

Coupons from the Student Athletic Book can be redeemed at the ticket office in Boyden Building. After Sept. 18, next Wednesday, coupons will be void.

The ticket office is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

All seats are given on a first come, first served basis. UMass offers the seats in the stadium on a 50-50 plan. The students have an equal opportunity with the paying customers at a chance for a good seat.

A student is allowed to exchange only two premiums, and he must present identication cards with both premiums.

Ticket Manager Walter Novak has requested that freshmen go through a specially marked line when picking up their tickets. In line with an old school tradition, the freshmen will be seated together in a special section. After the first touchdown is scored, the freshmen are supposed to toss their beanies into the air.

An Introduction to the Land of Oz

UMass' athletic department envisions a sportsmen paradise for an intercollegiate program that is already the most varied in New England.

Ed. Note: This is the first in a series of reprints originally run as "On the Off-Season" by Tom FitzGerald, who served as sports editor of the Summer Statesman.

This week and next, the MDC will be re-running a few of his columns, including stories on UMass sports and related subjects ranging from former basketball coach Matt Zunic to Sunrise magazine.

"Coming from Boston, I've always wanted to work on Commonwealth Avenue," said Warren McGuirk, the UMass athletic director, as he gazed out his office window at the road in front of the Boyden Building.

Next year that's what the road will be called. But perhaps in five years the "Yellow Brick Road" would be more appropriate. It will pass through a kind of Olympic Oz, a sprawling realm with dozens of baseball, soccer lacrosse and football fields, the largest outdoor track in America, about 40 tennis courts, a hockey arena and Boyden, with its swimming pool, gymnasia and bowling alleys. Add another few years and a basketball-hockey facility to the horizon. Drive onto University Drive and behold Alumni Stadium, perhaps by that time expanded to 40,000 seats.

Epicurean Delight

McGuirk is the figurehead of this budding paradise. His stoical, slow-paced manner befits a powerful official who approaches mandatory retirement. It sometimes conflicts with the fervor of the coaches under his charge. And yet he relishes with almost epicurean delight in surveying the past successes of his athletic department and envisioning future ones.

The most interesting aspect of the UMass sports scene, I think, is the development of the wide-ranging intercollegiate competition. As for intramurals, suffice it to say that thousands take part eagerly with questionable officiating but concerned and capable administrating. A full-time assistant has been added to the intramurals office; hopefully, he will be aware of modern medical advances to employ during touch football games.

As for general physical education, while other schools marvel at UMass' fully equipped lacrosse classes, some students here lead tortured existences because they must become acquainted with four different sports before graduating.

As for the much-maligned physical education curriculum, one distinguished journalism professor insists the only reason colleges offer the major is to facilitate academic matters for athletes, thereby strengthening recruiting and thereby acknowledging the administration's reverence for the "athletic mystique." The professor of course finds the phrase "athletic scholarship" a curious juxtaposition of words.

Rock 'n' Roll Scholarships

I hasten to add at this point that it is silly to consider the subject matter of physical educaion, including zoology and psychology, less noble or trying than say the UMass journalism curriculum. Of course, arguments against university policies of hiring athletes for almost professional franchises are fetching.

The point is that the rationale behind the whole idea of the passing of recommendations from coaches to the scholarship committee could easily be applied to a more openly ludicrous situation. Instead of coaches, why not hire talent scouts to search the nation for talented high school rock'n'roll musicians. Pay their room and board, supply their amplifiers, call them the UMass Redmen and book them in shows at the Stadium or the Cage.

Some observers say the broad UMass sports program, the most varied in New England, exceeds the needs of the University. Others complain that it is not strong enough, especially in support of track and crew, perhaps basketball and even football. Bear in mind the tremendous following on this campus for professional sports. During the past year, by far the largest and most spontaneous demonstration by the student body was not over the war, or Dow, or the Dining Commons, or increases in room and board. It was the jubilant celebration after the Red Sox won the pennant, a fact that says something about the radical element on campus.

Seeking Radio Outlet

Despite adequate student support, however, attendance at home football games last fall was disappointing, partly because of the lack of a major publicity outlet nearby. After all, the Amherst Record is only a small-town weekly, and the Hampshire Gazette must qualify as one of the worst city dailies in the country. More important, the Boston sports press seems to forget that the name Massachusetts State College was dropped twenty years ago. One autumn weekend, the Globe sent four writers and two photographers to the Harvard game and nobody to years, McGuirk has been seeking unsuccessfully a radio outlet in the Boston area for UMass football.

"Lets face it," McGuirk says, "football is the core of our program." And, let's face it, gate receipts at the Stadium provide scholarships for other paying for football's own UMass sports besides heavy expenses. In the Yankee Conference, that ingenious alliance of six state universities who can't decide what level of sports they should achieve, UMass football teams have won 31 games and lost three, since 1961. That was the year, Vic Fusia, coach, statesman and guru, arrived. Those three losses, all decided by field goals, cost three Conference titles.

When one of UMass' prize prodigies, Milt Morin of the Cleveland Browns, returned from the 1965 Senior Bowl, in which he missed kicking two conversions, he mused, "I can't kick." Fusia can't either. Famed for uttering incisive quotes like "football is a war with rules" and ordering third-down punts, he nevertheless holds a 47-15-1 record at UMass.

While UMass football has continually dominated a conference that has frustrated, through a recently eased scholarship limit, UMass' ambitions of conquering bigger game, other sports enjoy more modest success in more amateurish surroundings. When young basketball coach Jack Leaman leads a prospective recruit on a tour of the campus, he sooner or later ends up at the 37-year-old Curry Hicks Cage, the glass-roofed managerie that UMass considers its home court. Water sometimes seeps through the roof. When the heat is turned on, some of the upstairs seats vibrate. When it's off, you can see your breath. Visibility is otherwise limited by the dim lighting. And a new facility is probably a decade away.

First Since FDR

Home attendance last year was only fair, and UMass support at away games was negligible. When the Redmen beat UConn at Storrs last season for the first time since Franklin Roosevelt's first term, the UMass contingent was nowhere to be seen.

Baseball fans here enjoy a good brand of ball, often played in a numbing wind. Directions to the varsity field are simple. follow your nose to the animal farm in the northwest area and you can't miss it.

Trying to find the track presents a more difficult problem. There isn't one. To the consternation of a small but persevering group of athletes, its completion has been delayed another year. Dirt needed for present construction of other fields in the Boyden area was taken from the site of the proposed track, causing more months of delay. Then officials decided to let the base, set during the winter before applying the $100,000 surface.

All this, of course, comes after several years of delay in planning. McGuirk still promises that the track will be one lane larger than the 10-lane track at the University of Pennsylvania, which is generally considered the largest track in the country.

An unfortunate sidelight to the track procrastination was the retirement of long-time coach Bill Footrick. He charged McGuirk with neglecting his athletes and added that while less experienced coaches were receiving normal raises, his salary was as undernourished as the track program.

One sport that may lose playing space before long is tennis, coached by another redoubtable veteran Steve Kosakowski. The Tobin addition to Bartlett Hall is slated to wipe out most of the present tennis courts, and the 40 new courts across the street will not be ready for two or three years. So UMass tennis buffs may lose, temporarily, their place in the sun.

The team that no one ever sees is the golf team. But if it takes inspiration from Dick Page, the UMass sports information director who scored the first hole-in-one of his life soon after becoming golf coach, invisibility will be irrelevant.

INSIDE UMASS SPORTS

by Tom FitzGerald

Gymnastics is the only sport at UMass that competes on the topmost national level. Under the gifted and idealistic Eric Kjeldsen, the team has attracted swarms of spectators although the sport is one of the least publicized at UMass.

Recruiting in the Badlands

Hockey and wrestling have both gained young, ambitious coaches recently and show early signs of prosperous futures. Hockey's John Canniff has already scoured the badlands of the midwest and Canada for talent that established hockey schools leave aside. Maybe he'll have to learn the French expression for "UMass will have its own rink some day." Until that day UMass will have to line the coffers of Amherst College with thousands of dollars each year for playing in Orr Rink. Wrestling's Homer Barr has centered his recruiting in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. This year he may have a New Egland title team to show for his efforts.

Lacrosse coach Dick Garber, perhaps the most popular coach at UMass, has gathered several New England powerhouses in recent years but is reconciled to the fact UMass may never rate on a par with teams from the Maryland hotbed. And New England lacrosse suffers markedly from a scarcity of newspaper coverage.

Another likeable but more outspoken coach, swimming's Joe Rogers, dropped a bombshell on the athletic department last winter when he publicly blasted the athletic scholarship system for bringing "idiots" to campus. His sport does not offer any grants, and Rogers says he doesn't want any. The journalism professor is still applauding.

PRESIDENT LEDERLE

WARREN P. McGUIRK

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 5 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1968

Spiro Agnew and Richard Nixon

Nixon Demands No Trading With Supporters Of North

New Orleans (AP)- Richard M. Nixon said yesterday he opposes trade that builds up the military capability of Communist nations and aids the enenmy in North Vietnam.

In a speech to the American Legion's national convention, the Republican presidential candidate also said the United States must have military superiority over the Soviet Union while continuing to negotiate with the Russians.

In a clam and quiet manner - like a college professor lecturing on foreign affairs - Nixon spelled out his views on the world situation.

Nixon told the Legionnairs that that changes have occurred on the leadership of the Soviet Union. But the change has been one of the head, not of the heart.

"Their goal is to expand power," Nixon said. "Our goal is peace. When a negotion take splace and negotiators on the other side want expansion, let us always make sure that the one that wants peace has superiority over the one that wants expansion."

Nixon said he favors "peaceful trade" but added, "My friends, we've been somewhat naive in our trade policies" toward eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

"My friends, I say, there should be no increase in trade as far as strategic matters are concerned that might increase the war-making capacity of the Soviet Union or other Communist countries.

"And there should be no trade or no credits of any kind with any country . including the Soviet Union, that aids the enemy in North Vietnam."

Nixon again declined to spell out his precise views on the Vietnam war, saying he didn't want to hamper negotiations in Paris.

Nixon also told the Legionnaires that the United States has allowed the Western Alliance to gradually disolve. He called upon this nation to take advantage of West European concern over the Soviet led invasion of Czechoslovakia to strengthen ties with old allies and to rebuild the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

North Station Still In Running As Trustees Narrow Boston Choices

Boston-UMass trustees yesterday narrowed the choice of cites for an in-town campus to Columbia Point and the North Station.

John W. Haigis Jr., chairman of the selection committee, said no other sites will be considered. He said a special meeting will be called within the next two or three weeks to make the final choice.

Earlier on the day, Robert H. Quinn, D-Boston, Massachusetts House Speaker, sent an open letter to the Board in which he somewhat softened his call for locating the permanent Boston UMass branch site at Columbia Point in South Boston on the edge of Boston Harbor.

Quinn pledge support to whatever decisions the trustees may make. He repeated, however, his call for a decision now and end to the "inaction and indecision."

Decision for a site in the cultural heart of Boston would have unstinting support, Quinn wrote,and even a choice of the North Station as a site would see him taking every step to "try to agree with your thinking."

PRESIDENT LEDERLE

Quinn made no reference to his statement of a day earlier to the effect that should the decision continued to be withheld, legislation for the Columbia Point site would be filed to put the matter in the hands of the Legislature.

In other action Thursday the trustees announced their approval of the 1970 budget request of $59.5 million, an $18 million increase over the 1968 appropriation.

The proposed budget will be submitted to Gov. Volpe Monday.

The budget breakdown is as follows: $49 million for the Amherst campus, .5 million for the Boston campus, and 1.9 million for the Worcester Medical School.

The Trustees also announced the appointment of Dr. Jeremiah M. Allen to the new position of Associate Provost. He will be responsible for curriculum development and new areas of educational innovation. He was a professor of English and coordinator of programs of educational opportunity at the University of Colorado.

Also at the meeting, Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of the medical school, said that he expects the University to be able to start construction of the medical school before the necessary federal funds are approved due to the opportunity to receive the funds at a latter date on a retroactive basis.

Douglas Grants Reprieve To Viet-Bound Reservists

Washington (AP)- Justice William O. Douglas granted a last minute reprieve from Vietnam to 113 soldiers yesterday so the Supreme Court can rule on their court challenge to President Johnson's callup of reservists.

The 113 men, all from the Cleveland area, were ticketed for shipment to Vietnam Friday.

Their request for a delay until their challenge is decided was turned down last week by Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Hugo L. Black.

Douglas, vacationing in Goose Prairie, Wash., in a house without a telephone, decided the soldiers had posed substantial questions about the law and found a telephone in a nearby town to call the court and order the Army not to send them to Vietnam.

The reprieve is temporary until the court begins its new term Oct. 7 and all nine justices can consider this initial attack on the 1966 Act of Congress that gave Johnson the authority to call up reservists without a declaration of war or national emergency.

Should the court decide in the week of Oct. 7 to examine the case further, the stay would be extended for an indefinite period

(Continued on Page 2)

Amherst, Mass. — Students and faculty gather before Goodell Library Tuesday (9/26) to hear University of Massachusetts President John W. Lederle deliver his annual University Convocation address. (See story Pg. 7)

Lederle Relates Campus Unrest To UM Students

John W. Lederle, UMass. president , said Tuesday night that he would probably remain as president of UMass for another four years. He added that he constantly receives job offers but wouldn't want to take another presidency.

Lederle made the remark while addressing a meeting of the Berkshire Management Club in Pittsfield Tuesday night.

He also told the gathering that these are dangerous times for college presidents , referring to the student unrest on the campuses. He also expresses a belief that UMass is doing everything that it can to avert the kind of chaos that gripped Columbia University last spring.

Lederle was not predicting that the University would be spared from student revolt but he said the Administration is trying to foster a "tripartite community between the students, faculty and administration to aver such a crisis.

Lederle cited as two of Columbia's problems the lack of respect for the student government, and the unavailability of administrators to hear student problems. UMass has avoided the situation by allowing the students to air their problems, in meetings with the Board of Trustees, as well as with administration officials, notably Lederle himself and Provost Oswald Tippo.

Students at UMass are also attending faculty senate meetings, all of this in an effort to show that the administration is not the "enemy."

Lederle did, however, say that student extremists should be dealt with firmly. He expressed the belief that students should have the right to protest, but should not be allowed to prevent others from participating in free and orderly speech.

He also stated that the $8 million federal budget cut is seriously shortchanging the University. UMass was in line for a $4 million grant, from the National Science Foundation, but will receive only $980,000. Lederle was informed Tuesday. He said the University was already committed tpo spend the $4 million, and would now have to find some way to cut the least essential projects using federal funds. However, he also said he plans to use all the resources at his command to get part reinstated. This will include calling Sens. Edward Kennedy and Edward Brooke.

131 SEPT

Changes vs Experience Key

Boland-Ryan Congressional Fight Close

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)-After eight straight terms in the Congress with little re-election opposition, Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass.,is having to fight hard in his bid to win renomination in the Sept. 17 primary.

The opponent, Charles W. Ryan, who stepped down last year after three terms as mayor of Springfield and took aim at the 2nd District seat, saying, "new ideas and leadership" are needed.

Both men have been campaigning hard in the district and some of the statements of each have become bitter and personal.

Boland, 56, is a bachelor whose political career goes back to 1934 when he was elected to the House at age 23. He moved up to Hampden County register of deeds in 1940 and was re-elected in 1946 after four years of World War LL army service.

Ryan,41, an attorney, is the father of 10 children and won election as the city's first Plan A mayor after heading a campaign to change the city charter He comes form a politically minded family - his brother Donald is a first term state senator and his father is former chairman of the Democratic City Committee.

Campaign bitterness started after Ryan made some statements on a television appearance about lobbyist pressure on Boland. He said later he was questioning Boland's "judgement'. on voting matters.

Boland denied any pressures on his votes in Congress and called Ryan's statements "vicious and insidious implications" that he has violated his oath of office.

Boland demanded an apology. Ryan said an apology is not warranted.

The squabble also helped snarl the possibilty of a televised debate asked by Ryan.

Boland said there would be no debate until Ryan apoligized for the lobbyist statements. Ryan said later the debates would be impossible because the only television station with the equipment needed had endorsed Boland.

Ryan has contended that Boland has not done enough for the district, and many communities have never been told about federal grants available.

The former mayor has charged that Boland has been part of a "do nothing Congress" that has wasted billions of dollars in foreign aid.

Boland, who has much seniority on the powerful House Appropriations Committee and heads it transportation subcommitte, has run on his record.

He has contended that the record includes 60 flood control and hurricane barrier facilities in New England since 1955, and sizable urban renewal grants for the cities of Springfield and Chicopee.

Warstand

On the Vietnam War, Ryan has taken a similar position to that of Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and criticized Boland for not speaking out on the war and allied matters.

The congressman more recently called for an end to the bombing of North Vietnam and formation of a coalition government including the National Liberation Front in South Vietnam. He also supported McCarthy at the Democratic National Convention.

Ryan has criticized the seniority system in Congress and said he would seek to change it "to allow younger men with new ideas to take greater leadreship."

Boland commented that a Congressman needs understanding of foreign and domestic problems and of the power that seniority brings. "More that in any position, experience counts in Congress," he said.

NEWS BRIEFS

WARRINGTON,England (AP)-Fire Chief Harry Beckenham, 43, slid down the station's new 16-foot pole to show how it should be done. He'll be off duty a month with a broken leg.

WASHINGTON (AP)-Hearings on Abe Fortas' nomination to be chief justice will be reopened Friday with testimony about striptease films involved in an obscenity conviction reversed by the Supreme Court.

The Senate Judiciary Committee announced Thursday that its first witness will be Sgt. Donald Shaidell of the Los Angelos Police Department's vice squad. A committee spokesman said Shaidell had been subpoenaed at the request of Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., an opponent of Fortas' confirmation by the Senate.

The committee said it had received no word from Fortas as to whether he will accept its inviattion to come back for more questioning in the fight over his nomination by President Johnson to succeed retiring Chief Justice Earl Warren.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)- Bent to their task by a refusal to let them go to church, the jurors in Black Panther Huey Newton's Newton's murder trial deliberated Sunday for their fourth straight day.

MEXICO CITY (AP)- Fifteen silver mines sealed off with dynamite blasts by revolutionary leader Pancho Villa in 1914 to keep them from government hands are to be reopened next month by a Canadian-Mexican company, a spokeman reported. The Zacatecas State government has built roads to facilitate the exploitation by the Hudson Bay Mountain Silver Company of Vancouver and LaBonanza Co. of Zucatecas, he said.

North Korea Claims Story

TOKYO (AP)- North Korea quoted the skipper of the USS Pueblo as saying Thursday his mission before the ship's seizure last January was to spy on the North Korean navvy and to "determine the electromagnetic activities of the Korean People's Army including all radar signals intercepted."

A broadcast dispatch of the Official Korean Central News Agency said Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher told foreign newsmen at a news conference in North Korea that his job was also to test the reaction of North Korea "to the presence of an intelligence collection ship such as ours, which was operating within their coastal waters."

The U.S. government has insisted that the Pueblo was outside North Korean territorial waters when she was seized by Communist naval vessels Jan. 23 and her 23-man crew taken prisoner.

Douglas

(Continued from Page 1)

pending a final decision. If it decides against further examination, the stay would expire immediately after such a ruling.

The 113 soldiers were called up from the reserve last May as part of the 1002nd Supply and Services Co. AT Fort Meade, Md. More than 38,000 reservists were put on active duty in Vietnam buildups.

The high court has beaten back efforts to challenge the legality of U.S. participation in the war. Douglas and Justice Potter Stewart have stood apart calling on their colleagues to come to grips with the questions.

Federal courts in Baltimore and Richmond, Va., ruled against the soldiers earlier this summer. They turned to Warren because he has jurisdiction over federal courts in Maryland and Virginia.

Possibility James Earl Ray Not Able To Face Trial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)-The chief attorney for the man charged with murder in the death of Dr. MArtin Luther King, Jr., says his client may be unable to face a Nov. 12 trial because of the mental upset of intense security over a prolonged period.

In a Wednesday interview in Birmingham, Arthur Hanes Sr. said James Earl Ray has undergone "enough to bug anyone ' during his confinement in jails in London and Memphis.

You have to remember ever since June 8 he has had two people breathing down his neck 24 hours around the clock," said Hanes.

Ray was returned to the United States on July 19 from England and has been confined in the county jail in Memphis since.

"He's in that nice jail in Shelby County and they have bright lights shining on him night and day," said Hanes, " and he's got the TV big brother with its eye on him all the time."

Hanes asked in court here Friday that the indictment against Ray be dropped because in Hanes view, widespread publicity had made it impossible for Ray to get a fair trail anywhere in the country. The motion was denied.

Hanes the, and since, has charged that the cruelty surrounding Ray "constitutes cruel and unusual punishment."

He said the present conditions threaten Ray's health, and he is preparing a motion for presentation Wednesday asking that the situation be changed before the trial.

Amherst Theatre Begins Tonight

The Amherst-Smith Theatre will open its first joint season here tonigh at Kirby Theatre.

George Feydeau's bedroom farce, "A Flea in Her Ear," is one of the most famous of the famous French school of Boule evard Theatre. Done in an exciting new translation which received rave reviews at the National Theatre in England, the play includes all the hilarious trademarks: mistaken identities, mistaken couples, mistaken bedrooms, in the midst of whirlwind activity of traditional 19th century comedy.

Ticket information is available at the Box Office or from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

TODAY'S DAILY COLLEGIAN was printed in Boston as an experiment. The editors have been dissatisfied with the service provided by our printer in the first four issues, and consequently are exploring all possible alternatives in order to provide the fastest, most efficient means of disseminating news to the campus. — JHD

HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-7 P.M.
SPECIAL PARTIES
"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY
SECOND FLOOR—CENTER
OPEN
4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays
12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.
1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun.
Tel 586-0114

MAMA'S PIZZA
103 No. Pleasant St.

	Reg. (10 in.)	Lg. (15 in.)
Tomato Cheese	.95	1.50
Pepper	1.50	2.00
Onion	1.50	2.00
Mushroom	1.50	2.00
Anchovie	1.50	2.00
Hamburg	1.50	2.00
Sausage	1.50	2.00
Pepperoni	1.50	2.00

Slices 25¢
Combinations — each added ingredient
.15 Reg. .25 Lg.
OPEN TIL 2 A.M.
FREE DELIVERY
CALL 253-9858

Wallace Candidacy May Benefit Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) - No matter how he fares in November, George Wallace may go down in history as the man who finally caused the American electoral system to be changed.

For 180 years the nation has been struggling with the method laid down in the Constitution for picking a President. Generally it has worked, through luck and a genius for improvisation.

As a result, attempts over the years to rewrite the Founding Fathers' formula in terms of modern political realities have failed to stir up much interest or support.

Now Wallace's third-party candidacy has raised the distinct possibility that the fine print in the Constitution will have to be followed again, and the prospect is appalling to many political leaders and thinkers.

Twice-Used Rule

What the Constitution says is that the President and vice-president shall be chosen by electors appointed by each state, the number of electors being equal to the number of representatives in Congress. It furthers states that where no candidate gets a majority of the electors' votes, the House shall select the President.

That has happened twice and not everybody was happy about the outcome either time.

After long jockeying Thomas Jefferson won out in 1800 and wound up with political enemy Aaron Burr, his chief rival for the top post, as his vice-president.

Adams' Upset

Under rules amended enough to bar that particular outcome, John Quincy Adams beat out Andrew Jackson in 1824 and became one of the few Presidents to win from a competitor who had beaten him in the popular vote.

Among improvisations worked out over the years are the choosing of electors in each state by popular election in November, and the awarding of state's entire electoral vote to the candidate who wins that state's popular vote.

Wallace's whole campaign is based on the electoral vote system. He could, conceivably, win the presidency by getting 34 per cent of the popular vote in a sufficient number of states where Hubert H. Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon divided the rest evenly. More likely, he could get enough electoral votes to keep either Nixon or Humphrey from getting a majority.

Suspense Period

In the latter case, from Nov. 4, when the voters choose the electors, until Dec. 16, when the electors cast their ballots, the nation would not know who its next President was going to be. And if electors followed the Nov. 4 returns-although there is no Constitutional requirement that they do so-the decision would be open until the House settles it in January.

There is even a thin possibility nobody would get the required actual majority in the House and the vice-president, to be elected by the Senate, would take over.

It is this prospect of a sorely divided nation, caught up in war and domestic turmoil, drifting two months without an elected leader to succed President Johnson - and then possibly coming up with a man chosen as a result of political trading in Congress - that is giving many people the shakes.

House and Senate leaders of both parties are among those calling for change and promising to push for a constitutional amendment in the next Congress. The American Bar Association is conducting a persistent campaign for referm. Newspapers and magazines are giving the message wide circulation.

'Anti-Sit-In' Power Given To President By Trinity College Faculty Senate

HARTFORD, Conn. AP - The Trinity College faculty has unanimously endorsed its college president's being given power to take immediate action in case of a student sit-in similar to the one last April.

Dr. Theodore Lockwood, the new Trinity president, told the faculty Wednesday he would protect students' right to dissent.

But, he added, "if the operation of the college is threatened or seriously impaired by the exercise of coertion or constraint, by prevention to access to or egress from buildings or by physical occupancy of buildings with the intent to disrupt normal operations," then the president must take action.

During the sit-in last April 22 and 23, students locked trustees in an administration building for four hours, then occupied the building for 36 hours in a demonstration for more scholarship aid for disadvantaged students. The civil authorities were not called in.

The students left the building after being promised increased aid.

Lockwood told the faculty that in case of future demonstrations, he or his designated officer would warn the offenders and give them time to disperse.

Who: YOU
What: MDC recruiting meeting
Where: Council Chambers, SU
Why: To join the staff
When: Next Thursday, Sep. 19, 8:30 pm

OF CABBAGES AND KINGS !
Like Taking a Trip...
Touching a Star...
Losing Your Mind...
Saturday - 11 PM — WFCR — 88.5 FM
LIVE - AND IN STEREO

UPPERCLASSMEN,
Freshmen, and Transfer Students FRATERNITY
Round Robins

MAHAR AUD.
1..00 P.M. ..... Sunday
Sept. 15th

Editorial

Chicago...That Wonderful Town

While it could conceivably be granted to the Chicago police force that there might be some difficulty in recognizing a person wearing a photographer's armband, a steel helment with his newspaper's identification and several hundred dollars of cameras as a real photographer, it still seems that a squirt of mace is a bit heavy for an attack by a roll of film. And though it is understandable why a policeman would not particularly care for a picture of himself beating people over the head with a club. It does appear a little heavy-handed to resort to clubbing the photographer. But according to Editor & Publisher magazine, these were some of the problems repeatedly faced by law enforcement officers forced to deal with those ruffians affectionately known as the fourth estate.

In the weeks following the fiasco in Chicago, reports have continued to come of police brutality to newsmen assigned to the Democratic Convention. News executives have complained that police were improperly identified and that they violated their own police manual by striking people about the head–hitting arms, legs being fair. A telegram composed by television and newspaper executives protested the "special consideration" shown press members and their equipment and stated that "The obvious purpose was to discourage or prevent reporting of an important confrontation between police and demonstrators which the American public has the right to know about." Photo Director of the Topeka Capitol Journal complained that one of that paper's photographers was himself clubbed when he attempted to take photos of the police striking demonstrators.

Both Chicago and out-of-town papers have charged that some policemen even removed badges and identification before moving in to settle disturbances caused by agitators.

This does not mean that the police did not make any attempt to help the press. After a request for protection Police Superintendent James B. Conlisk, Jr. assigned policemen to some members of the press. However, in the pushing and shoving that followed, they became separated and newsmen found themselves being attacked by yippies and the police.

The entire situation of that week was very difficult for both the city police and the Mayor. They did have to deal with threats against the candidates, rumors and masses of people stepping over the line of order. But, the police should have been prepared with riot control tactics that worked–not haphazard striking at the press and demonstrators. Police should have had a clear conception of their duties and responsibilities, instead of being forced to make individual decisions. If the "agitators" intended to put the police in the role of a brute force, they succeeded magnificently.

There are several ways of alleviating these problems.

Perhaps the Chicago police manual could be revised to make clubbing on the head legal within twenty yards of the Hilton but a penalty on the sidewalk. Police claimed that some newsmen were traveling incognito as yippies which led to some of the unwarrented attacks—— which brings to mind the question of uniforms. In future confrontations, it might be wise to issue participants uniforms in the following colors–white for the police, red, white and blue for Mayor Daly, Red for all agitators and yellow for the press thus eliminating the problem of having to club first and identify later. Or we can learn successful, intelligent and humane ways to control large groups of protestors.

The city of Chicago has added beautifully to the selffulfilling prophecy. After all, there isn't too much hope for a quiet weekend of politicing when the city is surrounded by barbed wire, police heavy security, and the added charms of Federal Troops.

Evidently, if Billy Sunday couldn't tame Chicago, it was a mistake for yippies, hippies, conventioneers and the press to even try.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Mark Silverman '71
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
Copy editing and make-up ..... Ruth Lovelace, Margie Flanders, Pat Francis, Neil Shainwald

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"I Think You'll Find That Camera Giving A Distorted Picture Of Events"

Campus Comment

This Beanie Business

To the Editor:

I recently wrote with the help of some of my fellow freshmen, a leaflet entitled "Freshmen: Your Concern", which we memographe and distributed on Sunday, concerning the attitudes and trends being set in these first days at UMass, and suggested a plan to demonstrate our serious concern for humantarian issues. Unfortunately, in the process of generating greater feeling and making the issue known to more freshmen, a number of misconceptions on our part and of the part of others grew to the point where they obscured the orginal issues, as outlined above in the leaflet, and I would take this opportunity to correct some of these.

First of all, since I mistakenly left the letter unsigned, and because of the fact that I, as well as many others involved, am in Project 10, it was assumed that this was an activity of the project. This is not true, and many in fact,almost all project students were unware of the plans for any such campaign, until they recieved the same leaflet as the rest of the campus. Project 10 is individuals each acting as he sees fit, with people, usually far fewer that a majority, who believe as he does.

Secondly, the central issue shifted, without our direction, away from a simple call for freshmen to symbolically give up their beanies and make some kind of donation to the international red cross to help them aid the starving people of Biafra; most students apparantly were more concerned with the question of the tridition of beanies and the position of forced inferiority they felt this to be a part of. This, in turn, was focused into a direct of indirect attack on the Keys and Scrools and similar student organizations. This was manifested in one on two ways: false accusations and rumors concerning the use of funds, of the accusation that these were really status societies, whoses sole function is to preserve their own status on top. Others, seeing the important task these organizations have taken of orienting freshmen to their real role of a part of UMass., seemed to question whether that job couldn't be done in some msore serious or intelligent way than selling beanies.

In the face of these growing accusations, the top officers of the Maroon Key, along with representatives of the Scrolls and the Revelers, met with concerned freshmen in a lounge in S., W., and reasonably and rationally described to us the financial position they were in which made it impossible to refund any of the money money paid by those students who turned in their beanies to be bartered for money for Bi afra.

In addition we were given a clear explaination of the reason for beanies ("Until you can take that beanie off and not look like a freshman you deserve it") and the promise from Joe Magovern, president, in the name of the leadership of the Keys, to help in a fund-raising project for Biafra. It was pointed out that points were raised and accusations, sometimes false, made which will harm the Key, so I, taking responsibility for the leaflet I wrote, promised that I would write a letter fo apology.

I now apologize for raising the issue of beanies - that was not my true intent and I am truely sorry about the damage, unfair charges that were made. I further apologize for opening the pandoras box of the relevenance of "campus life" to the world outside of Amherst, and for those who critized who critized the Key as a part, though very efficient of that irrelevancy.

For those interested in contributing to I.R.C. Biafra Fund and possibly showing their concern by donating a freshmen beanie, there will be tables at Commons' 5, 7 and North until Wed. I hereby take responsibility for this letter and the lealet of last Sunday.

David Beckwith
267 Moore

The Daily Collegian welcomes letters on all subjects. Letters to the editor must be typewritten at 60 spaces and double-spaced. All letters must be signed by hand. Letters not signed in this manner and not typewritten will not be printed. Letters are subject to editing and condensing. Names will not be withheld and pseudonyms will not be used.

A staff position on the Daily Collegian requires enthusiasm and a desire to learn. It will take only as much time as you wish to devote to it.

The Movement After Chicago On Its Own

CHICAGO–Late in the afternoon the day of the Battle of Michigan Avenue, Dave Dellinger of the National Mobilization Committee huddled with two representatives of the Chicago Police Department. He was explaining to them what tactics the "Mobe" was planning to use next and why, while the officers kept repeating, "This is no time for philosophizing." In the crush of people surrounding the summit conference, poet Allen Ginsberg, his voice hoarse from chanting and speaking, waved some flowers directly in the face of one officer, saying with an intense look on his face, "You must take these flowers, it's most important that you take these flowers. You don't understand how important it is that you take these flowers." The officer silently refused.

Somehow that Dellinger-police meeting symbolized the whole week. There was the refusal of the police to recognize individuals, even in their most absurd conditions, the intense offer of reconciliation on the part of the Movement, a total lack of understanding of what the protest was or why it existed. And from that week, the Movement will go off on its own.

The radical political and cultural groups–best known being Students for a Democratic society and various guerrilla theatre troupes–which solidified and grew from last October's Pentagon march to Lyndon Johnson's withdrawal–now have their best recruitment opportunities. In the last 18 months, Movement groups have been forced to parallel practical established politics. Alternatives to McCarthy and Kennedy work had to compete with the game of "system politics." Radical groups planned their activities as responses to calculated moves by Johnson, Humphrey, Daley, while carefully avoiding mention of Kennedy or McCarthy.

Now, through the death of volunteer activity on behalf of Presidential candidates, radical organizations no longer need to calculate moves by regular politics, and can now veer off on its own course. In the aftermath of the Battle of Michigan Avenue, it has gained momentum and numbers. It has even gained legitimacy.

When the turf in Grant Park facing the Conrad Hilton was won Wednesday and Thursday evenings, thousands of people gathered to hear the speeches and music throughout the night. The audience participated in any way they saw fit; extending the Digger concept of "Free City," this was a Free Convention–anyone could take the microphone and say what he pleased.

More significant than the speeches was the mood of the crowd. This was not a radical anti-administration harangue. What evolved was a feeling much like that of the civil rights movement in the South in the early Sixties–one of solidarity, camaraderie and a strange kind of patriotism. The religious fervor of the righteous civil rights movement had taken hold of this odd assortment of students, clergy, professors, suburbanites and blacks. Once the Free Convention was under way, it gained stature. Not only regular radical political spokesmen and their cultural counterparts speak, the delegates also come over to speak. From the South came a delegate from South Carolina, who told the crowd that while he was a "law and order" man and voted for Humphrey, he had never seen such action on the part of police, had never known what the peace people were really like, and had now come away with new thoughts on "law and order" and sympathetic feelings for the anti-war movement."

The obvious fact is that McCarthy workers had nowhere to go at that time. For some the defeat of their man was instant radicalization, for others only a temporary flirtation with the radical movement. For those there will be Congressional candidates to work for. The campaigns of Lowenstein on Long Island, Meer in suburban Maryland near Washington, Gilligan in Ohio, and Swan in Kansas will be staffed by McCarthy volunteers. Yet for one week the Movement swelled, the underground showed its face to the country, and the country for once did not disapprove.

All at once the reams of radical literature distributed during those four days made sense. Even the biggest put-on of all–the Yippies–fit in. (The Yippie cult is itself one of the year's stranger phenomena. While most cults, personality or ideological, grow from reality to myth (Che Guevara or the Kennedy brothers) the Yippie movement has come from myth to reality.) Material on SDS, Socialist Workers Party, Progressive Labor and Trotskyites was accepted with the same tolerance as the free daily newspapers put out during the week. People would turn to the Ramparts Wall Poster for their news instead of the Chicago Tribune. (And well they might have– Ramparts, despite its editorial squabbles, scooped the commercial dailies on President Johnson's staff quartered on the 21st floor of the Hilton, Texas refusing riot control duty, and the black GI's at Fort Hood.)

Now, even temporarily radicalized, the liberal students who came to Chicago will have a considerably greater sympathy with campus leftists in their demands this fall. Each student's activity will be more radical because of Chicago. Those who before wouldn't even do political work will work for radical candidates within the system. And those who had been doing that will engage in more of the radical politics of the streets and the campus. The intense emotional appeal of the Free Convention delegates to the National Guard to "Join us! Join us!" also brought a number of "straight" onlookers into the crowd.

Able now to chart their own course exclusive of the byplay of normal electoral politics, and armed with many new troops, radical groups find themselves protagonists and antagonists as the situation demands.

What everyone saw was the occupation of Chicago. With enemies like its mayor, the Movement needs no friends.

The Press Of Freedom

Thoughts From The Second City

BY PETER BURROWS

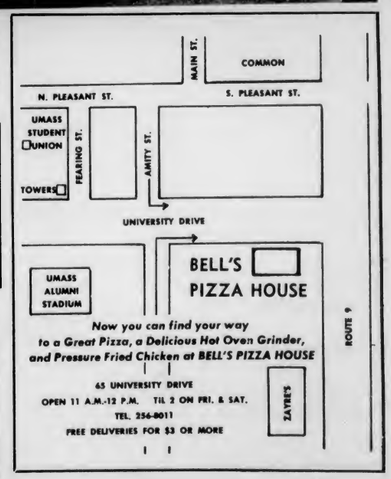
The tear gas has lifted now and the blood is gone from the streets. Chicago has returned to normal and there is little evidence that disorder recked the city only a few days ago. People still argue occasionally about the disturbances, but the arguments are becoming more infrequent and less violent. Tempers have cooled and now is the time to write about what happened that Wednesday night.

The main concern of most people is whether or not the police overreacted. ("Overreaction" is double talk for brutality.) Having witnessed much of the disturbance myself and having talked to people who were there for the duration, I must conclude that the term "pig" was very applicable to many Chicago police. I saw them arrest a youth and throw him on a bus loaded with police going off duty. One officer dragged the youth to the back of the bus while the others beat him with their nightsticks as he was dragged past. They beat a doctor and broke his nose as he was walking toward the scene of the disorders to see if he could aid the injured; they beat a cripple on State Street because he wasn't moving fast enough–he wasn't even part of the demonstration. They beat the members of the press, and, as nearly everyone saw on television, they beat the demonstrators, even after they had submitted to arrest. The police responsible for these actions are pigs if not worse.

I know what some will say when they read this "The police were overtired. They'd been on twelve-hour shifts since the start of the convention. Besides, they were provoked in many instances." All this is true, but is no reason to condone or forgive the actions of the police. The Negroes who rioted in Watts and Detroit might have been provoked too. And they were tired–tired of living in filth and poverty. Yet we hold them legally responsible for what they did. Similarly, those police responsible for the acts described are guilty of assault and should be punished. A badge does not protect its wearer from laws that apply to everyone. The duty of the the police is to apprehend lawbreakers and to punish them. Yet some members of the Chicago Police Department took it upon themselves to punish as well as arrest.

Most of the people who witnessed the disorders were sickened by the brutality. Even those who disagreed with the causes of the demonstrators couldn't believe that this was happening in America. There were of course a few rednecks whose typical comment was: "They should shoot the bastards." That's what they do in Russia.

These are the same people who tell you to go to Russia if you protest the war in Viet Nam. Perhaps they are the ones who would be happier there.



Barton Silverman, New York Times, took this shot of a Chicago police sergeant lunging at a cameraman who was not identified. Some newsmen reported seeing "hippies" with cameras in the confrontation with police.

In Memoriam
Peter B. Interland '69
died Saturday at his parents' home after a long illness.
Burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Roslindale.

HORSES

Boarding & Trail Riding
We have 22 (12 + 12) Box Stall for Rent
Running water - lighted riding ring
50 acres of pasture & miles of riding trails we also offer trail rides & hay rides
K.T. Stables
East Leverett Rd.
Amherst, Mass.
256-8105 253-5114

Nixon Charged By Wallace With "Empty Promises"

George C. Wallace, the third-party presidential candidate, says Richard M. NIxon made an empty promise when he told Southerners he would not try to jam anything down their throats.

Wallace, challenging an appeal to conservative voters by Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee, said, "the national Republicans and the national Democrats have already jammed everything down our throats there is to jam."

"There isn't anything left," he told a cheering crowd, "but there's going to be a good throat clearing on election day, Nov. 5."

Wallace, speaking Wednesday night at an outdoor rally and a $25 a plate fund-raising dinner which netted about $14,000, was reffering to Nixon's promise at the Republican National Convention that he would not try to jam anything down the throats of the South or any other section of the nation.

"When the national Republicans come down here and ask you to support them, you ask them if they're going to give your schools back to you.

"And even if they say they're going to, they were the ones that took them away from you and they shouldn't be rewarded for giving them back," Wallace said.

At Wallace's side was the former Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who earlier denied that he would formally endorse the third-party candidate. Also on the platform was former Gov. Jimmie Davis, who had greeted the candidate at the American Legion's national convention earlier Wednesday at New Orleans.

Wallace's attack on Nixon was the sharpest of his campaign.

He said the Republican nominee was vice-president when the Supreme Court "took control of our schools away from us" with its 1954 decision outlawing segregation.

Humphrey Aides Assess Progress

SEA GIRT, N.J. (AP)- After just four days on the road, Hubert H. Humphrey's basic campaign strategy is coming into focus: Concentrate on the big states, set what aides term "an unapologetic liberal line" and try to draw Richard M. Nixon into debate.

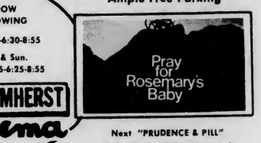
Humphrey's aides, examining his first cross--country swing, profess to be unconcerned about such things as lackluster crowds, the ever-present anti-war demonstrators, and an inability to round up some key Democratic leaders in many places.

They even admit he is behind now and may be for another month.

The important thing, they told a reporter, is that Humphrey has set his basic line and issued "a series of sharp challenges to Nixon," particularly on the nuclear nonproliferation treaty and the nomination of Abe Fortas as chief justice.

Humphrey is trying to line up the traditionally Democratic supporters in labor and minority groups, plus the suburban vote which he feels will be decisive in the election. He is counting on antagonism to Nixon to bring most antiwar dissidents back into the fold.

He is hoping in this connection that Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, the chief symbol of antiwar sentiment, will throw his support eventually to Humphrey. McCarthy has said he could not support Nixon, but will not take a definite stand for another two or three weeks.



"The important thing is the difference between Humphrey and Nixon," one top Humphrey aide said, adding that "we are going to fight it out on the basic issues."

"If you read the polls," the aide said, "Nixon's got it. When you're behind, you have to take risks. If we lose, we'll go Humphrey's efforts to tag Nixon as a "wiggler and a wobbler" on the nuclear treaty and Fortas are keys to the campaign. "We hope to be able to draw Nixon out," especially if there are debates between the candidates, the aide added.

Ample Free Parking

NOW SHOWING
Daily—6:30-8:55
Sat. & Sun.
1:30-3:55-6:25-8:55

AMHERST Cinema

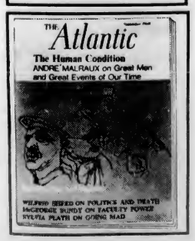
Next "PRUDENCE & PILL"
Soon "When Lights Went Out"

ATTENTION ALL WOMEN
Sunday Sept. 15
12:15 S.U.
ROUND ROBINS
Panhel invites all women-Freshmen
Transfers
Upperclassmen
To see the sorority way of life!

GREEK WEEK
Sept. 16 - 23
Don't Forget!

Rapp's Delicatessen
AND RESTAURANT
79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
Delicious Salads -- Desserts
FREE DELIVERY
Fri & Sat Delivery Special
call by 3:00 - receive by 5:00
call by 4:30 - receive by 6:00
call by 5:30 - receive by 7:00
Rapp's wants to ehlp all UMass coed's be ready for their dates on time!!!!
Store hours - Sun - Thurs - 11:00 am - 1:00am
Fri - Sat - 11:00 am - 2:00 am
PHONE 256-6759
BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

Who: YOU
What: MDC recruiting meeting
Where: Council Chambers, SU
Why: To join the staff
When: Next Thursday, Sep. 19, 8:30 pm



- Eat in
- Take out
- Fast Service
- Ample Parking
- Pizza
- Submarine

Hours: 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun.
Open 11:00 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.

GNOMON DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!
Fast Service On All Orders!
Free Collating!
Special Papers Available! Elegant Bond Colored
Still The Lowest Prices In Town!
5 ¢ for the first copy of an original
3 ¢ for the 2-10th copies (of the same original)
2 ¢ for the 11th or more copies of the same original
OPEN THIS WEEK 9-6 DAILY
Open: 9-9 Mon-Thurs
9-6 Fri-Sat
Beginning Mon Sept. 16.
GNOMON COPY SERVICE
103 N. PLEASANT ST.
(Under The Hungry U)
253-7393

The Daily Collegian will be looking for YOU next Thursday at 8:30 pm in the Council Chambers, Student Union

As was the case in 1967, the Distinguished Teacher Award will be presented at the event.

Convocation To Officially Open Year

Amherst, Mass.--An impressive academic processional of robed faculty and administration will open the annual University of Massachusetts Convocation Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 10:00 a.m. on the Goodell Library Lawn.

Students, faculty, administration and friends of the University are invited to the open air convocation which traditionally begins the academic year. In case of rain, the ceremony will be held in the Student Union ballroom.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor David J. Power, UMass chaplain to Catholic students, will deliver the invocation, and greetings to the student body will be given by UMass Student Senate President Paul Silverman.

President John W. Lederle will deliver a major address entitled "...Like It Is." The annual Distinguished Teacher Awards will also be presented at the ceremony. Given for "manifest excellence in the art of teaching and outstanding devotion to the cause of education," the award includes a $1,000 stipend.

Mace bearer William H. Ross will lead the processional. Traditionally, the mace bearer is the teacher who has held the Distinguished Teacher Award for the longest time. Dr. Ross, a professor of physics, has held the honor since 1962.

Classes scheduled for the time of the convocation have been cancelled so that students and faculty may attend the event.

Johnson-Humphrey Rift Denied

WASHINGTON AP - The White House denied today that President Johnson's statement about troop withdrawals from Vietnam had anything to do with campaign comments of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Press secretary George Christian said one sentence was pulled out of the lengthy text of a presidential speech, "and I think this was unfortunate."

Addressing the American Legion Convention in New Orleans Tuesday, Johnson said no man can predict when American troops can be brought home from Vietnam.

Only the day before, Humphrey had suggested that some troops might be brought home later this year or early in 1969. Some persons interpreted Johnson's remarks as a direct contradiction of Humphrey.

Christian told newsmen, however, he thought it would be difficult to construe Johnson's statement as anything but "a statement the President has made many, many times."

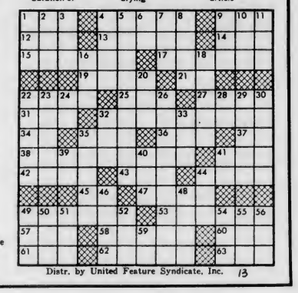
New England's Largest College Daily

HATCH SPECIALS:
Freshman With Beanie
Saturday and Sunday
Sept 14 & 15
15¢ Ice Cream Cones 10¢
25¢ " " 20¢
Hot Fudge Sundae 25¢
MEET YOUR FRIENDS AT THE HATCH

Senate
ACADEMIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE MEETING
Tuesday 17, September 1968
7:30 p.m., Council Chamber "B"

All past and present members who wish to continue as members through this school year absolutely should attend this introductory and organizational meeting of the Committee. Those not present cannot really be considered as continuing members. Prospective new members should make a particular point of attending this meeting too, and the details of the year's work will be laid forth for the complete elucidation of all present.

Richard W. Story
Chairman
222 Brett House
546-6234



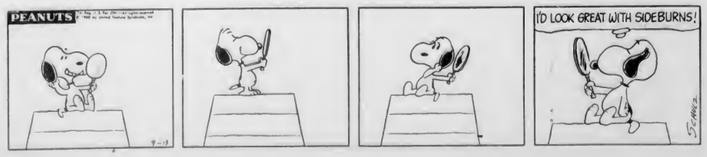
CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

RAH SCORE SEE
ORE OOZED TEN
CAPTOR PERILS
PINER NAP
OPEN SOT PEPS
RENEW NOR SEW
ET SET MAR ATI
AES DIP JERKS
DRAW PAT CESS
GAL SHRUG
RAGGED EEGER
ICE NORSE MOO
BED DRIES END

ACROSS
1-Fruit seed
4-Freshet
9-Female sheep
12-Anglo-Saxon money
13-Slang
14-Mild expletive
15-Oar
17-Repeat performance
19-Bacteriologist's wire
21-Cooled lava
22-Coagulate
25-Guido's high note
27-Citrus fruit
31-Limb
32-Fretted
34-Prefix: not
35-Make lace
36-Period of time
37-Roman gods
38-British soldiers
41-Crony (colloq.)
42-Preposition
43-Underworld god
44-Heap
45-Printer's measure
47-Hoarfrost
49-Gaudy
53-Exit
57-Before
58-Inclines
60-Be mistaken
61-Condensed moisture
62-Thick
63-One, no matter which

DOWN
1-Explosive noise
2-Man's name
3-Youngster
4-Transaction
5-Gave
6-Symbol for silver
7-Pedal digit
8-Sicilian volcano
9-The self
10-Armed conflict
11-Dutch town
16-Speck
18-Kind of lily
20-Man's name
22-Steep face of rock
23-Nocturnal mammal
24-King of Bashan
26-Antipathy (pl.)
28-Prefix: not
29-Commemorative disk
30-Roman magistrate
32-Sodium chloride
33-Better vetch
35-Measures duration of
39-Conjunction
40-Goddess of healing
41-Greek letter
44-Fondle
46-Pinochle term
48-Ponder
49-Spread for drying
50-Anger
51-Recent
52-Confederate general
54-Meadow
55-Sea eagle
56-Attempt
59-Indefinite article



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 13

THE WIZARD OF ID — by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. — by Johnny hart

13 SEPT

Sports

Intramural Notes

Mon., Sept. 16, IFC football rosters due.
Tues., Sept. 17, Residential and Independent football rosters due.
Wed., Sept. 18, Tennis and Tug of war rosters due.
Thurs., Sept. 19, Intramural official meeting, 7:30 Boyden.

Varsity sweaters earned last spring in baseball, golf, lacrosse, rifle, tennis and track can be picked up any time at the Athletic Issue Window in Boyden.

Booters Battle For Team Positions

BY WALT STACHURA
Staff Reporter

"Enthusiastic but inexperienced," is UMass soccer coach Peter Broaca's outlook on the future of his team after the first week of practice.

Broaca faces a rebuilding year at almost every position after losing 15 lettermen from last years 5-5 squad. Sophmores and enexperienced players from last years bench are slated to fill the vacant positions. The Redmen lost much of their offensive punch with the graduation of Marty Smith, Gerry Cellilli and Gary Gibbons. Co-Capt. Tom Ward and Sam Melnyk return as the two high scorers with a total of five goals between them.

Ward has the nod for one of the wings while soph Mark Cantor has looked good at wing in practice. A three way battle between sophmores Larry DeFelice, Duane Brown and Melnyk exists for the two inside posts with all three slated to see plenty of action.

DeFelice and Brown were two of the leading scorers from the frosh squad with DeFelice tallying 13 goals and Brown 7.

Other candidates for positions in the front wall are Junior Dick Meyer, soph Rich Matuzsczak and Junior Marty Mugh.

SOCCER CO-CAPTAINS
Bob Dubiel — Tom Ward

Broaca's plan features a 3M line among the halfbacks junior Dick Meyer, soph Rich Matuzsczak and junior Mart Mughogho are the members of this line.

Meyers is returning after playing for the Frosh two years ago while Mughogho is trying to bounce back from a injury which sidelined him for the second half of the season. Matuzszcak was one of the high scorers form the Frosh team with 8 goals.

Other prospects for halfback spots are senior Peter Harvey, junior Paul Bregoli and sophmores Dave Piccus and Dave Dec.

Co-Capt. Bob Dubiel will anchor the fullbacks along with returnee Ed Schmitter. The other spot on the fullback line is a wide open contest with Bil Sanborn, John Mercury Mike Korpita, Dick Cook and Ralph Etna all in conternion.

Goaltending could be one of the strongpoints of the Redmen booters with returning regular Steve Kramer getting strong competition from Tom Malone. Broaca moves up after competing in a very successful season with the Freshmen soccer team.

First game for the Redmen will be Sept. 28 against Maine at home giving Broaca more than two weeks to find the combination to produce a winning season.

Side Line Slant On Sporting Settlement

BY TOM FITZGERALD
Staff Reporter

the furor over the Yankee Conference 20 Formula has subsided, momentarily, at any rate; there are still a number of questions to be answered on the future of this cozy little league.

On the surgace, it would appear that the recent redefinition of the Formula by the Yankee Conference presidents would bring a detente in intra-Conference relations. The 20 Formula, passed in 1964 with at least one dissenting vote, that of UMass, restricted the number of full athletic scholarships a member would award to 20, or the equivalent in partial grants in footbal, basketball, baseball, track and soccer.

It went into effect when the class of '70 arrived in 1966. Thus, as UMass now awaits its football opener with Maine, it also must await the results of the Conference's 1964 handiwork. For this was supposed to be, and may still be, despite the Formula's revision, the year of the Great Compromise, the year when all the Conference teams would strike some semblance of uniformity in the "major" sports. The freshmen of 1966 are the juniors of 1968, and the freshmen of last year, when the old Formula was still in effect, are now sophomores, so theoretically, and probably actuall, the race for the football Beanpot will be tougher than ever for UMass.

Fusia

This summer the six presidents headed the discontented factions at most of the schools, namely athletic directors, coaches and alumni, and reduced the breadth of the Fprmula to football and basketball, meaning financial aid in all other sports will be unlimited by anything other than how much money happens to be available at the moment. Meaning you'll see athletes on scholarships for other sports donning football gear in the fall. In fact, you may see a player on a baseball scholarship who may pass a football but never lift a bat. Since an athletic scholarship is. after all, supposed to be based on financial need, the recipient is not contractually required to attend a single practice. That would be professionalism, wouldn't it?

The whole idea of sport-switching that will, most assuredly, result from the revision of the rule certainly cannot be any more devious than previous methods of recruiting and financing athletic talent. Football coaches have always been able to find other financial sources, e.g. agricultural scholarships, to tap.

One Boston paper this week said the Conference, by liberalizing the scholarship lin it, has "opened the door for member schools to build powerhouse teams. The presidents don't want things to get out of hand, but they certainly set the stage for sports dynasties." Let us see how UMass fares against Boston College and UCon against Yale in the next few years before any Conference school becomes a "powerhouse",say, in the Northeast.

Questions still to be unanswered about the Conference include the following:

1) Will UMass be content with the "20 Formula–'1968 Style"? There was much support at UMass for telling the Conference where to deposit its Beanpot and for setting out for bigger game. Will the revision quiet all the dissident mouths?

2) Will the Conference expand, as is the wish of UMass Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk and at least a few other officials? B'U' applied for membership last year, but was rejected by the presidents, who evidently held their land-grant status in higher esteem than the publicity boon that a Boston school would provide. Northeastern has indicated interest, but as one insider in the UMass athletic department says, "If I had known the Conference was going to be considering schools as small as Northeastern, I wouldn't be here today." In other words, we're too big for 'em. 3) Will Vermont and Maine remain in the Conference fold while they shed tears because of their impoverished programs? A sad fact about the 20 Formula is that a full scholarship at one school is not remotely close, in dollars and cents, to that at another. Vermont's tuition costs, in particular, are several times those of UMass, and Vermont contemplated cutting uts football program to the bone.

Maine is a story in itself. Its acting president was quoted yesterday in the Boston press as saying, "We will continue to stay pure and not give athletic scholarships. We can't afford them. Maine is a poor state. We've done a good deal of soul searching in this area and will retain our current policy." This would be a highly commendable posture (no scholarships) but for the remarkable fact that the Bears just don't look like an intramural team when they play UMass. But then, life in the Orono woods must build character.

SIDELINE SLANTS--Coach Fusia was disappointed with last Saturday's scrimmage. The Redmen will have a chance to regain his affection when they scrimmage again tomorrow, probably in the Stadium....Of 80 players invited to fall practice, there are now 66 on the roster, including 23 lettermen....Holdovers from last year's team who have already quit include defensive back Dave Driscoll, middle guard Roger Prefontaine, guard Bob Goc, linebacker Don Porter, wingback Fred Hairston and tackle Glenn Cummins...Academic casualties, an unusually slim group this year, included highly touted full back Bob Toole and reserves Paul Toner and Paul Robichaud....

Light injury total, so far, with linebacker Paul Vaccaro out and minor injuries to center Noel Schablik, middle guard Andy Guarino, tackle Marty Scheralis and several others....But Fusia is back up to two and a half packs of cigarets a day, after "I had it down to one and a half or so." He said the team's progress was hurt by a new NCAA rule that pads could not be worn during the first three days of fall practice....

This will be the first 10-game schedule in UMass's 85-year football history. No scrimmage with Harvard this year because NCAA allows only 10 games, including exhibitions....Game with Buffalo Sept. 27 moved from Saturday afternoon to Friday night when Buffalo Bills offered U.B. use of War Memorial Stadium (capacity 48,000). It will be UMass' first night game since the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla., in 1964. Redmen drilled twice under the lights on the practice fields in preparation for the event. (Fusia warns that the Redmen are not looking past Maine, however.) It will also be the first UMass game in four years to be played in a state where the drinking age is 18....

ROMPING REDMEN — Quarterback Mike Marchev (far left) hands off to Craig Lovell (40), Ed Sarno (31) and Jerry Grasso (22) as the Football team drills for the opener next Saturday.
Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

METAWAMPE'S GRID PICKS

After a restful summer enjoying the good moments in life, Metawampe has returned to take up the quill. His scintilating verse will be gracing the pages of the MDC during the football season.

The Old Injun posted a .736 average last season, and this one he is shooting for the "Impossible Dream" of .800. He may be grasping at straws in the wind, but regardless of the results of the first week, he'll be with us for the duration. For better or worse.

NEBRASKA 20, WYOMING 14
This year Cowboys won't make bowl; Patrick shines as Huskers roll.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE 21, WAKE FOREST 17
Dennis Byrd to Pats has gone, Although his spirit lingers on.

TENNESSEE 15, GEORGA 12
Georgia's strong on Mother Earth, But Bols are tops on Tartan Turf.

TOLEDO 13, RICHMOND 9
Gillette hopes to make Spiders behave, But Rockets stop him in close shave.

HOUSTON 27, TULANE 10
Cougars' nightmare may remain, But no Alcindor has Tulane.

BUFFALO 24, IOWA STATE 14
Hurricanes are hard to fight, But Bulls will have a Murtha-ful night.

TEXAS-EL PASO 35, SANTA BARBARA 14
Quite a problem Miners pose, Half the team are future pros.

DAYTON 19, KENT STATE 14
To Billy Graham, it's repent - But to the Flyers, it's Kent.

UTAH STATE 33, NEW MEXICO ST., 22
Utah has a new place to play, In aggie battle they'll make hay.

COLORADO STATE 21, NEW MEXICO 6
Rams are going far this year, While Lobo fans cry in their beer.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 16 6 — UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS — MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1968

Poor People's Campaign Continues Dr. King's Work, Says Williams

By Susan Hamilton
Staff Reporter

Rev. Hosea Williams of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference said that the poor of America have been robbed of their monetary, human and dignity rights before an audience of 250 last night in Mahar Auditorium.

Sponsored by the Martin Luther King Social Action Council, Rev. Williams, director of Resurrection City, addressed the audience on the Poor People's Campaign.

The Poor People's Campaign, Williams said, is a program to force America to deal with the causes of its illness instead of soothing the pain of its cancer. "The looting, crime rate, and rioting will not stop until something is done for the oppressed," he said. It is not a campaign of black people, he added, but a campaign of poor people.

"Martin Luther King was a dreamer, and they killed him," he said. "He died working for garbage workers," said Williams, "and the Poor People's Campaign must show America what shall become of his dream."

"After the death of Dr. King, I asked myself these two questions," continued Rev. Williams, "Can America be saved, and if so is it worth saving."

"America is an affluent society surrounding an invisible lonely island of poverty," stated Williams. "I accuse this country of being hypocritical; it is a lying, cheating country," he said.

Women take to the streets and men to a life of crime, not because they are innately bad, he speculated, but because their fathers didn't earn enough to provide them with the bare necessities of life. Children starve in the ghettoes, he said, while food is being thrown away to maintain price stability.

"The war in Vietnam is an unjust war," he said. Black boys and poor boys are fighting this war Williams continued. The rich kids manage to stay in school and out of the war. "They are taking money that should be building men, and using it to kill men," he added.

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert
Reverend Hosea Williams of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference addressed an audience last night on the Poor People's Campaign and the Negro in society today.

In Vietnam, he said, we are trying to sell a product we have not yet bought ourselves - democracy. "The Poor People's Campaign is striving to make democracy a living reality," he told the audience," we are not trying to crush the power structure but to change it."

No one at either the Democratic or Republican conventions represented the poor people of America, Williams went on to say. The Poor People's Coalition, created after the closing of Ressurrection City, represents the forgotten elements in American society, he said.

Rev. Williams urged black people to unite into a solid, neutral voting block that they might play an important part in deciding the 1968 presidential election. The candidates, he said, should be made to seek the black vote.

Every man in America is entitled to a job, he said. America can afford to give her poor people well paying jobs and to provide people too old or unable to work with a guaranteed income, Williams stated.

(Continued on Page 2)

Colorado Professor Appointed Associate Provost at UMass

Dr. Jeremiah M. Allen, professor of English and Coordinator of Programs for Educational Opportunity at the University of Colorado, has been named Associate Provost and Professor of English at UMass.

In addition to serving as professor of English in the College of Engineering, Dr. Allen has also directed the superior student program in engineering at Colorado.

At UMass, Dr. Allen will be responsible for curriculum development and new areas of educational innovation. He will take up his new post Oct. 1. In making the announcement, Provost Tippo said, "Dr. Allen is an experienced teacher and administrator. His responsibilities at Colorado in the areas of special educational opportunities and honors programs make him especially suited for his role at UMass, where he will initiate new programs and coordinate curriculum revisions. We are fortunate to have him join our staff."

DR. JEREMIAH M. ALLEN

A native of Boston and a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Duke University, Dr. Allen received his M.A. from Tufts University and Ph.D. in English literature from the University of Colorado. He joined the Colorado faculty in 1948 as an instructor of English in the College of Engineering.

He has been the director of both the superior student program and the summer session in the College of Engineering for the past four years. He served as President of his local chapter of the American Association of University Professors in 1966-67.

The new associate provost is the co-author of three books on the subjects of clinical report writing, curricula in solid mechanics and engineering honors programs. A fourth book, which he is writing with Siegfried Mandel, is entitled, "Technical Writing and Editing." It will be published this year by Dell Book Co.

Late Delivery and Production Problems Prompt Meeting With Daily Collegian Editors, Consultant and Printer

Late delivery of the Daily Collegian and other production snafus which have appeared during the first week of publication were discussed last night at a meeting between Hamilton I. Newell, the paper's current printer and a group of editors and other interested parties.

A decision was finally made to send out requests for formal bids and to award a contract for the printing of the Daily Collegian. For the past two years there has been no formal agreement with Newell for printing the paper.

Photo by Mike Alpert
ISSUES AND ANSWERS — Editor-in-Chief, Jack Dean, of the MDC (left) and Don Epstein, Managing Editor (right) answer questions at last night's meeting held to discuss printing problems.

During the past week, the Daily Collegian has been delivered between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. each day which is considerably later than the editors feel is satisfactory to serve the campus adequately, explained Editor-in-Chief Jack Dean as he opened the meeting. Other members of the editorial staff brought up complaints about what they considered to be general inefficiency on the part of the printer.

Attending the meeting were: Jack Dean, editor-in-chief; Don Epstein, managing editor; Charles Smith, business manager; Sue Wallace, executive editor; Jan Curley, assistant managing editor; Mark Silverman, and Richard Boucher, issue editors; Alvin Oickle and Dario Politella, faculty consultant; Frank Wandry, advertising manager; Robert Brooks, assistant dean of students; Gerald Scanlon, coordinator of student activities; Armand Demers, supervisor of RSO accounts; and Fred Hartwell, Vice-President of the Student Senate.

The main problem centers around the delivery time of the paper. For the first week it was agreed that the paper would arrive at the Student Union at 2 p.m. However, it has been delivered as late as 6 p.m.

This has been because the paper has been sent to the Ware River Press to be printed every day by Newell because he has not yet installed a new printing unit to handle the increased publication volume.

According to Editor-in-Chief Dean, last January Newell agreed to have the new unit ready for the first issue of this semester. But it has not yet been ready to go into operation.

Dean also said that even with the new unit, Newell will not be able to deal with the increased needs of the Daily Collegian as it and the campus expand.

He stated that as the paper is meant to be a morning paper and to serve the campus and its advertisers, including many national accounts, it should be delivered by 8:30 a.m. "The student body is obviously not being served by coming out after supper," Dean added.

He said that as an experiment the paper was printed in Boston last Friday and even then it was not delivered until 8 p.m. The editors of the paper have a responsibility to the staff and the student to provide the fastest, most efficient means of disseminating news. Neither the staff nor the student body is happy with a paper that is not coming out in time to be read. The student body is uninformed and the staff is frustrated."

Newell countered by saying that he is trying to serve the paper and meet his commitments.

He said that he would have to add a night crew to make an 8:30 a.m. delivery and that would add to the printing costs.

At the suggestion of Robert Brooks of the dean of students office, it was decided that requests for formal bids would be

(Continued on Page 2)

CONVOCATION 1966—In 1966 Dr. Hans C. Duus center received the Distinguished Teacher Award presented to him by President John W. Lederle (left) and Provost Oswald Tippo (right). To find out who wins the award this year, come to convocation, Wed., Sept. 18, at 10 a.m.

OAU Asks Biatra To Restore Peace

ALGIERS (AP) — The summit meeting of the Organization of African Unity — OAU — appealed to secessionist Biafra yesterday to abandon its struggle for independence and help "restore the peace and unity of Nigeria"

A resolution adopted by the chiefs of state after a long debate behind closed doors called for a cessation of hostilities and a general amnesty for all who took up arms in the Biafran cause.

16 SEPT 68

Stricter Gun Control Called For By New England Governors

WEST SPRINGFIELD, MASS. (AP)—A resolution for stricter gun control laws has been approved by all the New England governors.

The proposal would require firearms owners to have identification cards. Local authorities would have the power of granting ID cards.

The cards would not be issued to felons, people with a history of mental disorders, or narcotic offenders.

The plan is similar to a law passed by the Massachusetts legislature and calls for licensing of gun dealers and reporting of all sales of weapons by serial number.

Govs. Philip Hoff of Vermont, John H. King of New Hampshire and Kenneth Curtis of Maine said they did not think their state legislatures would pass such legislation. The other governors said they believed it would be approved in their states.

The action came at a meeting of the New England governors Conference at the Eastern States Exhibition.

Humphrey Calls For Military Aid to Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey called last night for continuation of U.S. military aid to Israel, including Phantom Jets, in order to prevent the Mideast arms balance from being tilted in favor of the Arabs.

Speaking to the 71st National Convention of the Zionist Organization of America, Humphrey said he was aware of the Soviet arms buildup of Arab nations.

"There has been a very definite balance in the Middle East, and that balance today is getting out of balance," he said.

"Until permanent peace in the Middle East is achieved and the arms race ended, then continued United States military assistance to Israel, including what has become such a symbol and I think such a necessity — supersonic planes such as Phantom Jets is justified."

Library Hours

Regular Hours
Monday-Friday
8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Saturday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Additional Reserve Desk Service and Study Hall Hours
Sunday-Thursday
10:00 p.m.-12 midnight
Note: Study Hall hours begin Sunday, September 15. There will be no Study Hall hours on Sunday, November 10.
Vacation and Intersession Hours
Monday-Friday
8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday, Sunday—Closed

Library Calendar

Wednesday, September 11 — Saturday, November—Regular hours
Sunday, November 10—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (but no study hall and Reserve Desk service)
Monday, November 11 (Veterans Day)—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (and Study Hall, Reserve Desk hours)
Tuesday, November 12-Tuesday, November 26—Regular hours
Wednesday, November 27 — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Thursday, November 28 (Thanksgiving Day)—Closed
Friday, November 29-Sunday, December 1—Vacation hours
Monday, December 2-Saturday, December 21—Regular hours
Sunday, December 22-Tuesday, December 24—Vacation hours
Wednesday, December 25 (Christmas Day)—Closed
Thursday, December 26-Tuesday, December 31—Vacation hours
Wednesday, January 1 (New Year's Day)—Closed
Thursday, January 2 — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Friday, January 3-Tuesday, January 14—Regular hours
Wednesday, January 15-Wednesday, January 29—Vacation hours

WANTED
Top Rock Band to form an exciting new group with an excellent female lead singer
WRITE OR VISIT:
Bob Wilson
Camouflage House
Leverett Center, Mass.

N.Y. Teacher Strike Continues

NEW YORK (AP)—Albert Shanker, president of the striking teachers' union, said yesterday that the city's public schools will n ot be open today, and predicted that the current walk-out over teachers' job security under decentralization will be "the longest in national history."

While not rejecting a peace plan put forth by State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr., Shanker called it "fuzzy" and said most union officers "have a tendency toward rejection."

He said the executive board of the 55,000-member AFL—CIO United Federation of Teachers will vote today on the Allen plan.

It called, in effect, for a temporary suspension of an experiment in neighborhood control of schools in the mostly Negro Ocean-Hill-Brownsville district of Brooklyn, center of the dispute involving the dismissal of 10 teachers.

Shanker said the union was going ahead with plans for a mass parent, teacher and citizen rally at City Hall today. The Ocean Hill — Brownsville board mayor had asked Shanker to cancel the rally, calling it "potentially dangerous."

He ordered the citywide board to dissolve the Brooklyn governing board temporarily and to transfer the 10 white teachers the Brooklyn board had "dismissed." The teachers' union struck last week in a demand for their reinstatement.

The strike practically kept the schools closed for the first two days of the term. They reopened Wednesday under an agreement worked out with Mayor John V. Lindsay, in which it was agreed that the Brooklyn board would not prevent the 10 teachers from returning to their jobs.

That agreement fell apart, and the strike was resumed Friday, after parents and demonstrators at Ocean Hill-Brownsville prevented the 10 teachers and about 100 of their white colleagues from resuming full teaching duties. The local board had hired replacements for the white teachers during the summer, and kept school operating.

The Rev. C. Herbert Oliver, chairman of the Ocean Hill-Brownsville board, rejected Allen's peace plan and said he'd have "to be taken to Siberia and brainwashed before I could accept it."

"We see this as an act on the part of the establishment to disrupt our board and our community," Oliver said.

Allied Troops Battle Enemy Near DaNang

SAIGON (AP) — Thousands of Allied troops battled enemy soldiers in savage fighting south of Da Nang yesterday. They also hit paydirt with the seizure of 38 tons of military booty in other scattered areas, a military spokesman reported today.

The engagement left 184 enemy dead, they said.

The seizure of the equipment meant that the allies have now uncovered in recent months enough arms and ammunition to equip more than 50 enemy battalions of 400 men each, said the spokesman.

Backed by an armored column, more than 500 South Vietnamese Rangers sweeping the approaches to Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, smashed into a sizeable enemy force yesterday 10 miles south of the city.

Jet fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships firing rockets raked the enemy positions while the Rangers pressed in on the ground.

A South Vietnamese military spokesman said 114 enemy soldiers were killed, about one-third of them by the supporting air and artillery strikes.

First reports said the South Vietnamese forces suffered 17 lost men and 41 wounded.

In a second major fight yesterday, South Vietnamese infantrymen locked with North Vietnamese troops near the once-besieged Duc Lap Special Forces camp along the Cambodian border 125 miles north of Saigon. Heavy fighting has flared on and off in the area during the past several weeks.

The fighting yesterday raged throughout the day and the government soldiers claimed they killed 70 enemy troops. South Vietnamese losses were reported as 12 men killed, 11 missing and 24 wounded.

One stockpile of big Russian-made 122mm rockets and 82mm mortars, possibly set aside for an attack on Saigon, was unearthed a bare 10 miles northwest of the capital.

More than 25 tons of booty were found along the jungled invasion routes north of Saigon in one of the biggest finds of the war, and it took at least eight giant Chinook helicopters to haul the ammunition away.

Hundreds of other rockets and mortars were uncovered just south of the central portion of the demilitarized zone.

Infantrymen from the U.S. 25th Division, responsible for the security of Saigon's western edge, pushed out at first light yesterday from their base camp through rice paddies and scrub brush, and about 10 miles out discovered a stockpile of munitions.

U.S. headquarters, in an updated revision of the inventory, said the stockpile yielded 18 complete rounds of 122mm rockets. The 100-pound missiles, which have a range of about eight miles, have been used often in the past to shell Saigon.

The 25th Division troops also seized 254 rounds of mortars, smaller bazooka-type rockets and recoilless rifle shells, and 8,800 rounds of small arms amunition.

Rhodesian P.M. Faces Leadership Challenge This Week

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Ian Smith, plagued by rightwingers seeking permanent white control of Rhodesia, faces two challenges to his leadership this week.

One challenge comes from right-wing elements who want to overturn approval of Smith's proposed new constitution by the congress of the ruling Rhodesian Front party. The other is sparked by an impending by-election in the key Gatooma district.

Smith, who rose to power on a right-wing wave 4½ years ago, has been under mounting attack from elements more rightist than he is.

Poor People's Campaign...

(Continued from Page 1)

"I want to build a society free from welfare, where men can be men and everyone is given an opportunity," he said.

Give black men the chance to be black men, said Rev. Williams. "Black is beautiful and it's beautiful to be black," he said, "Even though I am black, I am somebody."

Informed by a member of the audience that UMass had accepted 120 underprivileged black students to the Freshman class, Williams replied that this was "too little too late." Every man is entitled to an education, he said, and universities should stop using the quota system and open their doors to everyone. UMass is not to blame, he continued. The whole country is to blame; but UMass could do much more.

Rev. Williams congratulated the youth who lead the rebellions on college and university campuses. They want to be educated, he said, not trained for the establishment.

Late Delivery...

(Continued from Page 1)

sent out this week to various printers including Newell. Then the most attractive bid based on cost, service and reliability would be accepted and a formal contract entered into.

Following the meeting with Newell, a presentation was made by Wesley Pippin of STI Publishing of Boston, the company which printed the Daily Collegian experimentally last Friday.

Pippin appeared to explain the problems that had occurred and how his company would solve them if it received the contract.

His company proposes to install a facsimile transmitter and receiver in the paper's offices to send copy and layout sheets to his printing setup in Boston.

He promised that STI could meet the Daily Collegian's deadline and service needs. He added that the same method is used by the Wall Street Journal and other large papers.

A cost estimate from the Daily Hampshire Gazette was also reviewed at the meeting.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Who: YOU
What: MDC recruiting meeting
Where: Council Chambers, SU
Why: To join the staff
When: Next Thursday, Sep. 19, 8:30pm

MAMA'S PIZZA
FREE DELIVERY!
253-9858

THE THREE C's
CARDS
GIFTS
BARRICINI CANDY
featuring
The PEANUT'S SHOWCASE
by Ambassador
191 No. Pleasant St.

Dean Allen Announces New Center To Study 'Time-bound' Education

School of Education Dean Dwight W. Allen has announced the establishment of a Center for the Study of Educational Innovation.

According to Dean Allen, the major role of the center will be to evaluate innovations in curriculum, school organization and staff use.

He explained, "The current educational structure in America is time-bound, unit-bound and course-bound. The only criteria which seem to have meaning in the present day educational world are time spent in class and unit taken."

"It is becoming increasingly clear that such time criteria are totally inadequate." He went on to say, "What educators require are criteria of performance in order to make reasonable judgments about the abilities of students and the effects of teaching situations."

Listed as priority objectives by Dean Allen were: Developing models for educational innovation in which the processes of research and development support each other and which make change a part of the institutional framework.

Devising training methods that recognize the wide diversity and individual differences among teachers and provide tasks and roles according to the teachers' abilities and interests.

Constructing curriculum materials that make full use of a differentiated staff structure and such modern technological facilities as computer assisted instruction.

Reformulating teacher training so individual teachers are able to take the training most relevant to their interests and abilities.

Studying the complex interactions involved in institutionalizing change in the three broad areas of school structure, curriculum and teacher training.

DEAN DWIGHT ALLEN

Dr. Allen said the center will operate with a small university funded staff. A wide range of support from federal, foundation and other sources will be sought.

No classes will be held in the School of Education this week. Instead there will be a series of films offered in the program "Education Innovation". The films will be shown in the School of Education Auditorium.

Today's schedule is:
8:30 - 12 noon
I - Performance Curriculum I
II - Performance Curriculum II
III - Differentiated teaching staff
IV - The Resource Center
V - The Open Laboratory
Tonight these films will be repeated:
7-10 p.m.
I Performance Curriculum I
III - Differentiated Teaching Staff
IV - The Resource Center

Trustees Accept Land Gift

The U Mass. Board of Trustees has accepted a three-acre parcel of land given by the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers Association to aid the growth and development of the U Mass Cranberry Experiment Station in East Wareham.

Addition of the parcel brings the total acreage at the U Mass facility to nearly 30. Included is a 10-acre cranberry bog. An 11,000 square foot laboratory building has just been completed and is being used for the first time this fall. The facility has two other buildings and a green house.

This fall, a staff of 23 faculty, students, technicians and others will be at work at East Wareham. The station has expanded its traditional role as a cranberry research facility in recent years to related areas such as pesticide breakdown.

The gift parcel was specially purchased by the cranberry association and formally presented to the University at the group's recent annual meeting in Wareham. U Mass Provost Oswald Tippo accepted the gift on behalf of the University.

NOTICES

COLONEL'S CADRE — Meeting tonight in Herkimer Hall, 7 p.m., not tomorrow night. Please wear uniforms.

ENGINEERING AND SCIENCE JOURNAL—Staff and all others wishing to join staff invited to attend, 7 p.m., Room 104, Eng. East.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSN. WIPUO—Organizational meeting tomorrow night at 7 p.m. in the radio room on the lower level of the computer center. All are invited.

VETERAN STUDENTS AND CHILDREN OF VETERANS—It is essential that if you plan to continue to expect educational benefits from Veterans Administration you re-enroll at once for the new academic year with the Veterans Coordinator in Whitmore Administration Building.

HILLEL — Refunds for last Passover meals will be distributed tonight and tomorrow night from 4:30-5 p.m. in the Hillel office at the Student Union.

OUTING CLUB—Organizational meeting tonight at 6:30 p.m. for the 1968-1969 school year. Old members only. Check the bulletin board for the room.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB—Meeting Wed., 7 p.m., Worcester Room. Skydiving movie to be shown. Anyone interested in jumping and old members please attend.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA—The meeting of GSS will be tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Union. The Executive Board committee will meet at 8 p.m.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE—Everyone is welcome to the first weekly testimony meeting, tomorrow, 6:45 p.m., Worcester Room, Student Union.

HONORS PROGRAM—Students in the Honors Program may sign up for the Colloquia, today through Thursday in the Honors Program Office, Machmer Hall, E-23.

EDUCATION CLUB — Membership drive meeting. Meetings with the dean and faculty to be planned, plus other activities. Registration in the Student Union lobby, today through Wednesday, 9-4:30 p.m.

HEYMAKERS—Western dancing Wednite, 7 p.m., in the Student Union.

LOST AND FOUND
Beagle six months old lost Sept. 12 in the vicinity of South Prospect Street, Amherst. Black-brown spot around eye. Black collar. Call Mr. Denkler, 253-3000, Generous reward.

Set of keys in black case lost between N-lot and the Union. Call Justus, 5-2180.

Seven month old tiger kitten lost in the vicinity of Nutting Avenue. Named "Standley". Please return to 18 Nutting Avenue or call 256-7643.

Susan Ann Young, 1970, 1496 John Quincy Adams, to J. Harris Dean, 1949, Kendrick Place, Amherst.

Prof Attends Food Science Meeting Abroad

Prof. Irving S. Fagerson of the U. Mass. department of food science and technology was one of a group of 65 scientists from many parts of the world who attended a symposium in the sensory evaluation of food last week in Goteborg, Sweden.

The meeting included representatives from East and West Europe, New Zealand and Japan. It was sponsored by the Swedish government and the Swedish Institute for Food Preservation Research. Dr. Fagerson contributed a report on his research specialty, the chemistry of food aromas.

Who: YOU
What: MDC recruiting meeting
Where: Council Chambers, SU
Why: To join the staff
When: Next Thursday, Sep. 19, 8:30pm

See U.Mass from the air?
Learn to fly
COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
CALL: JOE DALTON 253-9321
FRAN BALBONI (Pilgrim Airport) 1-665-8785
YOU FLY IT! — ½ hr. Introductory ride — $5

Horses
Boarding & Trail Riding
We have 22 (12x12) box stall for rent—running water—lighted riding ring 50 acres of pasture & miles of riding trails — we also offer trail rides & hay rides.
K T STABLES
EAST LEVERETT RD.
AMHERST, MASS.
256-8105
253-5114

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Dubcek Says Czechs Bound By Agreement with Moscow

PRAGUE AP - Czechoslovaks spent a subdued Sunday, their fourth under occupation, after a week of hearing from their leaders that some of the country's new-won freedoms will have to be curbed to meet Moscow's demands.

In a television speech, Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek told the nation Saturday night there is no way out of the country's present situation but to carry out the agreement he and other leaders signed with the Kremlin after the country was occupied Aug. 21.

The agreement calls for a halt in such things as press freedom and the right of assembly, which had been part of the Czechoslovak party's eight-month-old liberalization drive.

But Dubcek emphasized that there will be no return to the Stalinist terror of the 1950's. The Russians have given assurances that they will not interfere in such Czechoslovak institutions as the police and the courts.

Dubcek's speech had been scheduled for Thursday night but was cancelled on short notice. As delivered, it had only minor omissions from a text distributed Thursday. There was no explanation of the delay.

In a passage addressed to the conservative followers of former President Antonia Novotny, who was ousted in January, Dubcek said: "If some individuals who are responsible for the damage caused to socialism and the party by the previous discredited pre-January leadership. . . try to make use of the situation and turn back the clock of history ... we must clearly state ... that the party and the people will not tolerate any return to preJanuary conditions in any variation."

Dubcek also appealed to Czechoslovaks to stay in the country and to those who are abroad to return.

Similar speeches were given earlier in the week by Premier Oldrich Cernik and party secretary Zdenek Mlynar.

TODAY'S STAFF
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
SPORTS DAY EDITOR ..... Peter Pascarelli '71
Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.
Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.
Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

NOW ENDS. TUES. ON SCREEN 6:30 - 8:55
AMHERST Cinema
MIA FARROW
JOHN CASSAVETES
in
"Rosemary's Baby"
in color
WED. David Niven
"Prudence & Pill"

MUSIGALS
TRYOUTS
Tuesday Sept. 17 6 p.m.
STUDENT UNION
ALTO ONLY

Come to the AMHERST TOWER

For Fine Italian Pizza, Subs, and Dinners
Open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun. open 11 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.
Call 253-7100
256-6667

16 SEPT

Amendments or Loopholes

Indians don't surround forts filled with settlers, nor do wagon trains cross the American prairies, nor do gunfighters drift into town. Our way of life and means of self-protection have changed greatly since our frontier days but our laws concerning the right to purchase and possess firearms have remained in the violent past. In 1967 alone guns were used in 7,600 murders, 52,000 aggrevated assaults and in 73,000 robberies. With very little effort, a person may purchase a gun in almost any state. Even if his own state should have gun control laws, he merely has to cross the state line or find a mail-order catalogue.

Just in the last few months, we have seen two national leaders—Martin Luther King and Robert Francis Kennedy—murdered. President Kennedy was assassinated with a mail-order rifle. And after each of these incidents, citizens clamor for forceful gun control laws. Unfortunately, the Rifle Association and a general gun lobby have either a louder or bigger voice than the average citizen for each time this legislation fails to be effective.

Congress is trying once more to gain competent legislation that will at least strengthen our ability to control the use of guns. The original administration bill would prevent mail-order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition and prohibit over-the-counter sales to out-of-state residents.

The bill has been so weakend by amendments and pressure from Sen. Strom Thurmond that it will be practically ineffective. Thurmond supposedly has warned that if some changes are not made he will block action on the bill. The fact that Congress has such difficulty in passing a strong bill is amazing after all the shouts for law and order heard at the conventions.

If this legislation is to be effective some of the weakening loopholes, commonly called amendments, must be removed. Heavy restoration must be placed on the interstate sale of firearms. There is one amendment which allows almost anyone to pay $10 and avoid some of the provisions on the grounds that he is a "dealer" or "collector". And there must be a proposal, such as the one made by Sen. Joseph Tydings, for registration of firearms and the registration of owners.

There are those who say that registration of guns will not elminate the murders and that is true. However, it would lessen the availability of guns to irresponsible persons.

The gun lobbey has controlled the type and strength of legislation despite the fact that 3 out of 4 Americans want effective firearms legislation. They cannot win this time. If the deaths of Martin Luther King, Robert Francis Kennedy and Pres. John Fitzgerald Kennedy cannot awaken us to action then there is very little to say other than these words by Att. Gen. Ramsey Clark, "Those who quibble about the inconvenience of registration and licensing, knowing that lives are at stake, cannot be much concerned about life or crime either."

Tricky Agnew?

Poor Spiro . . . it wasn't enough that no one had heard of him at the convention (remember the comments—Spiro Who?) but now he seems to be falling error to Nixon's old image. The problem last week seemed to be whether the term squishy soft on Communism accurately described HHH. Fortunately, the question has been solved by Mr. Agnew himself in an apology for his unforunate remarks. The Republicans had been falling into all different camps last week including Gov. Volpe, Sen. Dirksen and Rep. Ford.

Mr. Nixon has worked very hard these past years attempting to eliminate his image as a labeler and clever politician. This year, his campaign has been run in such a manner as to avoid even the appearance of old shadows.

Either Spiro will have to avoid all impressions of MacCarthyism or develop an accurate scale ranging from "squishy soft" to "real red commie" to clear up his terminology.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.
BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

The Apt Pupil

INSIDE REPORT:

Wallace vs. Thurmond in South Carolina

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

COLUMBIA, S. C. — Although stopping short of anything so blatant as a formal announcement of support, the Democratic Presidential strategy here is to give quiet aid and comfort to the third party ticket headed by segregationist George Wallace and hence keep South Carolina's eight electoral votes out of the grasp of Richard M. Nixon.

Two weeks after the turbulent Democratic convention, which left loyalist party leaders here climbing the wall, Hubert Humphrey's national organization has yet to make contact either with the Democratic establishment or the burgeoning black vote.

The facade of a Humphrey "organization" will be set up soon, headed by Thomas Chadwick, longtime aide of the late Sen. Olin Johnston. A few well-heeled party figures—excluding Democrats in elective politics—will put their names on a Humphrey-for-President state committee. It will issue handouts, print literature, and do little else.

The reason for this tells much about the bankrupt condition of the national Democratic party in this and other states in the Deep South. Vice President Humphrey lost badly here in the bloody battle of Chicago. Even before the convention, a private poll showed Humphrey had only 11 percent of the white vote.

Consequently, the Humphrey mathematics is bleak indeed. Even if the Negroes, with almost 200,000 registered voters, turn out 140,000 for Humphrey, a highly optimistic estimate, 11 percent of an estimated 450,000 white votes would still leave him with less than one-third of the total—a sure loser.

And this realistic assessment ignores the depths and passion of the Wallace love affair, sweeping the South.

Ten days ago Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, who is running for re-election without ever saying anything good about Humphrey, instructed his top campaign aide to scout out the Wallace "organization" and appraise its political value. The answer: there is no Wallace organization in the conventional sense. Wallace is riding not an organization but a spontaneous outpouring of support that now takes in elements from every level of society-lower-income workers worried about Negro job competition to country club bluebloods.

Four years ago, to cite one of many examples, the Teamsters' Union stuck with Lyndon Johnson against Barry Goldwater. Today the Teamsters are with Wallace.

To abet this Wallace tide, and prevent the Nixon vote from helping GOP Congressional candidates, Democratic leaders are quietly pointing out that reconstructing the party from the expected shambles of November 5 will be easier against what they hope is the temporary phenomenon of Wallaceism than against the tough, pragmatic Republican politicians who have already built a substantial base in this state. Thus, when Wallace was invited at the last moment to appear at the Darlington race track and address 70,00 people, old-line loyalist Democrats had a hand in the invitation. Nixon aides were furious.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, Nixon's leader here who held the Southern flank against Ronald Reagan at Miami Beach, is staking his whole prestige on winning South Carolina for Nixon. In sharp contrast to Democratic passivity, Thurmond's astute political agent, State Chairman Harry Dent, has blocked out the most extensive GOP Presidential operation ever staged here.

Dent met with Nixon aides in Manhattan on Tuesday to put finishing touches on what may become $100,000-plus campaign. A blue-ribbon Nixon committee, to be headed by retired Gen. Mark Clark, is in the works. James F. Byrnes, the most glamorous name in the state, will come aboard later.

But Turmond is now feeling a certain muted hostility from his own traditional hard-core supporters whose natural haven in this election is Wallace, not Nixon. His own reputation, as much as Wallace's, is squarely on the line.

"I hate to say it about Strom," a Wallace businessman in Orangeburg told us more in sorrow than anger, "but I'm bound to say he's let us down."

Thus, the Presidential race here is a classic contest between the South's two notorious former Democrats — Wallace and Thurmond—with Humphrey and Nixon playing secondary roles. And even if the result does not affect the national election, it will have massive implications for the Republican party's future in South Carolina—and for Wallace and Thurmond.

Letters to the editor must be typewritten at 6 0 spaces and double-spaced. All letters must be signed by hand. Letters not signed in this mann er and not typewritten will not be printed. Letters must not exceed 40 lines and are subject to edit ing and condensing. Names will not be withheld and pseudonyms will not be used.

EDITORIAL COMMENT:

Saigon, Prague . . . and Chicago?

(Editor's Note: This column is the first in a weekly series Tran Van Dinh will write for CPS this academic year. He is a Vietnamese author, journalist and lecturer whose articles on Vietnam and international politics have appeared in many U.S. mayazines, including The New Republic and The Washingtonian.)

By Tran Van Dinh
College Press Service

WASHINGTON (CPS) — When the Soviet tanks rolled into the streets of Prague, Secretary of State Dean Rusk was at a meeting of the Democratic Party's platform committee defending U.S. policy in Vietnam. His and the Soviets' arguments are strikingly parallel:

1. The USSR told the world that Soviet troops were sent to Czechoslovakia "at the request" of elements loyal to "socialism" who are being threatened by counter-revolutionaries (read: liberal communists). The U.S. has committed over half a million soldiers in South Vietnam "at the request" of elements loyal to "democracy" threatened by the "communists."

2. The USSR invaded Czechoslovakia to fulfill a "treaty obligation"—the Warsaw pact. The U.S. intervened in Vietnam to meet the "obligations of the SEATO pact."

3. The USSR claims that if Czechoslovakia fell to the liberals, the rest of Eastern Europe would suffer the same fate. The U.S. says if Vietnam fell the rest of Southeast Asia would fall. Both nations cite the "domino theory" to rationalize their actions.

4. The USSR promised that Soviet tanks will roll back to Moscow to keep watch on the Kremlin as soon as the threat to "the security of Czechoslovakia" is removed. The U.S. says once the threat of "communism" is eliminated from South Vietnam she will immediately withdraw back to the U.S.—to keep law and order in Chicago.

5. The USSR's Tass agency reported that "many Czechoslovak citizens expressed their gratitude to the soldiers of the allied armies" for their timely arrival. Similarly, the U.S. administration has told the public that millions of Vietnamese appreciated the U.S. destruction of Hue and other cities in South Vietnam. The famed slogan, "A city has to be destroyed in order to save it," will long be remembered by Vietnamese (and Prague citizens.

6. The U.S. demands an "honorable settlement" of a dishonorable war—that is, a settlement which maintains Thieu, Ky, and the pro-U.S. elements in power in South Vietnam. The USSR asked for the same thing, but has had, at least for the time being, to settle for less because of the popular passive resistance of the Czechoslovak people. The rebels—Alexander Dubcek, Oldrich Cernik, Ludvik Svoboda—are still in power in Prague; the pro-Soviets—Antonin Novotny, Alois Indra, Drahomir Koldder—are still in the background.

But all these arguments are simply irrelevant and irreverent to the citizens. The use of force against small nations by superpowers of all political ideologies of all times is based not on reason and logic, and certainly not on humanism, but on what these powers think their "vital interests." And the vital interests of the superpowers and the highly organized states are synonymous with the interests of the political foci controlling these states. The masses are aroused or tranquilized, depending on the circumstances. Power is manipulated in the inner circles of very few. Slogans (usually centered around "law and order") are prepared to suit the occasion and the police, the army and the security forces stand ready.

The domestic behavior of a superpower which attempts to dominate and conquer small countries outside its borders usually takes a leaf from what that power is doing abroad and vice versa. Even the most cynical elements in this country did not think before August that Mayor Richard Daley, the U.S. pro-consul in Chicago, could be so unnecessarily tyrannical and brutal. But to think in these terms is to forget the nature of power without justice and without participation.

To Mayor Daley as to General Abrams now and General Westmoreland not long ago in South Vietnam, Chicago is a "strategic hamlet." The "outsiders" have to be destroyed by all means and at all costs and the insiders must be kept in power by all schemes and all devices. When democracy has to be protected by barbed wires, bayonets, gas and bullets, it is obscene to talk about democracy. But the task of the Chicago convention, as decided by the Democratic Party bosses, and organizers, was not the exercise of the democratic process. Its task was to keep the insiders to the existing power structure in position, to repel the outsiders and at all costs to defend its most vulnerable positions— the war in Vietnam and black power in the ghettos.

To accomplish this, not only raw violence has to be used but humanistic reasons have to be invoked in the name of God and the Constitution. The Convention keynote speaker, Sen. Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, sorrowfully complained that trees have been cut by the students in Paris to build barricades. He recalled his Japanese ancestors, but not Japanese history and of course not Hiroshima. He showed his love for nature and his contempt for human beings—especially for students and revolutionaries.

Those who still have faith in the U.S. pacification program, in the nation-building, in the distribution of soap and candies to Vietnamese peasants, should meditate on the pacification of Chicago. They will find out soon that superpowers, especially in the 20th century, need an image of saints and saviors. But the real problem is not men or executioners but the power structure itself; no real change is possible without the restructuring of the society itself. In several ways, Mayor Daley has helped accelerate that process. Ironically but logically, he also may have helped elect in November Richard Nixon or even George Wallace. He is destroying democracy in order to save it, perhaps. The Russian tanks accelerated the liberalization of Eastern Europe, no matter what happens in the next few months to the people of Czechoslovakia. The U.S. napalm and bombs have helped unify the Vietnamese people, both North and South, and have strengthened the Vietnamese Revolution.

The historians of the future will surely recognize that in the late 20th century three cities — Saigon, Prague and Chicago — have been instrumental in the ultimate decision of the fate of 21st century mankind. The Vietnamese people have contributed their part of blood, the Czechoslovak people have shed their tears, and the American people are now awakened. The torch has been passed to the young Americans; the world, and especially the Vietnamese and Czechoslovak people, are watching them.

MDC

There are only six college dailies in New England, and we are the largest (and in our opinion, the best).

If you would like to work for New England's largest and best college daily, stop by the Council Chambers on the second floor of the Student Union this Thursday evening at 8:30 p.m. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

The procedure for becoming a staffer is not at all complicated. The full story will be in tomorrow's paper.

So make plans for Thursday night. We'd hate to have all those doughnuts (donuts?) go to waste.

-JHD

P.S. - Freshmen are welcome too.

Chicago Airs Official Film Of Violence at Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — A documentary film expressing Chicago's official version of the street violence during the Democratic National Convention was aired last night by more than 140 television stations across the nation.

The one-hour program, titled "What Trees Do They Plant?" and subtitled, "Strategy of a Confrontation," showed little of the club-swinging violence that took place Aug. 28 in front of the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

Much of the show was made up of interviews with leaders of both sides. Most of the peace demonstrators' comments were of those made before the violence. Police and city officials' comments were apparently made for the documentary.

Mayor Richard J. Daley, who ordered the program produced because he said the telecasts during convention week presented a biased version of the police-demonstrators conflict, appeared only twice in the show. Both Daley interviews had been seen before.

Thomas W. Lyons of the Chicago Police Department's intelligence division said the underground press had reported the demonstrators threatened, "mass sit-ins, public fornication, putting LSD in the city's water — . . . Intelligence reports said they also planned to put ground glass in the delegates' food."

Robert Pierson, a patrolman who worked undercover with the Yippies, was shown briefly. "They want to take over the government," he said.

Lyons said the four demonstration leaders seen in the film "all have a history . . . in major disruptions."

Frank Babcock, the film's narrator, said the visiting youths were "hard-core radicals with three objectives: To disrupt the convention, paralyze the city and discredit government by discrediting the police."

There were a few brief shots of police using tear gas in Lincoln Park but there were no references to the club-swinging events that took place Monday in which several newsmen were swatted.

Cmdr. R.M. Rock of the Los Angeles Police Department, who was sent to Chicago to observe the events, said that when the marchers attempted to leave Grant Park, "they were stopped, but no aggressive action was used by police."

"Police acts of restraint," Rock said, "were beyond reason. The organization restraint was excellent and the individual restraint was fantastic."

As the film clips showed the 18-minute conflict, the narrator intoned, "Not a shot was fired, no one was killed and few spent even a night in a hospital."

Another police officer displayed weapons allegedly taken from demonstrators.

"Here is a baseball bat," he said, "with 'Cops are pigs!' on one side, and 'Love' on the other."

The only reference to the newsmen was near the end of the program.

Robert Hunter, a reporter for the Chicago Daily Defender, said one reason for newsmen being struck was "that many had their credentials in their pockets and police didn't see them. I think the city has been unfairly criticized."

The final film strip showed a crowd of youths. Superimposed on the screen was a quote: "We're going back to create 200-300 Chicago's in our own communities."

News Analysis

Peace Before November?

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Some diplomats here think the recent upsurge of fighting in Vietnam may signal new Communist moves at the Paris peace talks. But they profess no sure knowledge whether any meaningful development can be expected before November's U.S. election.

Hanoi's poet - diplomat Xuan Thuy has indicated that he believes the situation in Vietnam will show Ambassador Averill Harriman that the time has come for an unconditional cutoff of U.S. attacks against the North.

President Johnson served notice Sept. 11 he contemplates no surrender "on the instalment plan." He insists on some tangible display of North Vietnamese restraint to match an American bombing halt.

Thus the four-month-old Paris exchanges between Xuan Thuy and Harriman are at a standstill.

The North Vietnamese and their friends say in a variety of ways to a variety of people, that Americans spurned or ignored two specific displays of what they say was restraint.

Americans contest these assertions.

This is how one Communist source, close to Hanoi's men, put it:

"The North Vietnamese for political reasons have not, and cannot, acknowledge they exercise control over the liberation movement' in the South.

"But it is a matter of record that within two months or so after President Johnson's call on March 31 for some gesture that the long siege of Khe Sanh was lifted.

"It also is a matter of record that during the summer a widespread lull in the southern fighting occurred.

"Neither development was accidental."

"The Americans do not see things that way." One commented:

"Signs that the 77-day siege of Khe Sanh was being lifted became evident first during March, before the President's key speech.

"The base was finally evacuated early in July but there's a whole body of evidence suggesting that the other side withdrew essentially because it had failed to take Khe Sanh as planned. It was a failure that matched their lack of lasting military success in their Tet offensive."

The Americans also reject the idea that the summertime lull represented real restraint. The Communist command abandoned for a time the rocketing and shelling of Saigon, and the French government was told this had political significance.

But, the Americans say, other reasons could have impelled this layoff. World opinion may have been a factor. Hanoi also had been put on notice by Harriman that if the attacks continued the Paris parley stood to be wrecked. Johnson at the time was, by many accounts, under pressure to retaliate against Hanoi.

The Americans have some precise ideas of what actually could be considered restraint. A communist pullback from the demilitarized zone is one. Abandonment of Cambodian sanctuaries might be another.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

'London Times' Publishes Secret Vatican Birth Control Document

LONDON (AP)—The London Times published today extracts from what it said was a secret document which the Vatican would have issued had Pope Paul VI approved birth control.

It said the document, entitled Pastorales Indications — Pastoral Approaches — was prepared by the papal commission on birth control as the basis of an intended encyclical.

Extracts printed by the Times said the Church, having already recognized the legitimacy and even the duty of regulating births, should no longer condemn artificial birth control methods employed "in a spirit of true, reasonable and generous charity."

As quoted by the Times, the document said the means of birth control should be chosen by husband and wife with the aim of exercising "a healthy and responsible parenthood," ensuring health of parents and children and upholding personal dignity.

The extracts suggested that the majority of the papal commission on birth control was not merely ready to accept artificial contraception but was strongly in its favor.

The Times said the full text of the document will be published next month in a book on the controversy to be entitled On Human Life. This was the title of the Pope's encyclical reaffirming the traditional Roman Catholic ban on artificial contraception.

Hillel Receives Grant to Teach Yiddish Classes

The National B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation has received a grant from the Forbund Labor Zionists to establish non-credit Yiddish language and literature courses at twenty schools across the country. UMass Hillel is one of the twenty chosen.

The courses will be taught by Prof. Jules Piccus, of the UMass Dept. of Romance Languages. The first meeting of this semester's class will be Wed., Sept. 18, at 6:30 p.m. in Room W-16, Machmer Hall.

Muskie Accuses Nixon Of Down-Playing Role Of Poverty in Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, said yesterday that the nation "cannot put a wall around black people and buy safety and security for the society."

The 54-year-old candidate said he thinks the American people are drifting toward a view that immediate crime control is more important than eradicating poverty and its causes. He said the desire for instant action is largely responsible for the support of George Wallace of Alabama.

Muskie accused Nixon of intentionally down-playing the role of poverty in causing crime because he thinks the tough, police-oriented stand is the popular one to take.

Muskie declined to issue a blanket endorsement of President Johnson's Vietnam policy, which is to continue the limited bombing of the southern panhandle of North Vietnam in the absence of some specific military de-escalation by the North Vietnamese.

Campaign 68

Polls Show Nixon Leading

Three nationwide surveys and one state poll show Republican Richard M. Nixon with a decided lead yesterday over Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey.

Newsweek Magazine said Nixon would easily win the presidency if the election were held today. The magazine's survey also said Humphrey would run behind third-party candidate George C. Wallace in the electoral vote, although the vice president would get a bigger popular vote than Wallace.

Newsweek had Nixon leading in 31 states with 329 electoral votes, Wallace ahead in nine states with 89 electoral votes and Humphrey ahead in seven states with 54 electoral votes.

The Gallup Poll reported yesterday that Humphrey had gained slightly since August but still trailed Nixon by 12 percentage points.

A New York Times survey showed that if the election were today, Nixon would win 30 states with 346 electoral votes; Humphrey, six states with 42 votes, and independent candidate George C. Wallace, eight states with 77 votes. Six states were too close to call, the Times said.

A California state poll published in the Los Angeles Times gave Nixon 43 percent of the vote and Humphrey 34 percent. Wallace received support from seven per cent, and Eldridge Cleaver, Peace and Freedom party nominee, one per cent.

The latest Gallup Poll, based on interviews conducted between Sept. 3 and Sept. 7, gave Nixon 43 per cent, Humphrey 31, and Wallace, 19.

The earlier survey, conducted after the Republican convention in August, gave Nixon 45 per cent, Humphrey, 29 and Wallace 18.

Gallup said that Humphrey's biggest problem appears to be keeping Democrats from defecting. In the latest Gallup Poll, 27 per cent of the Democrats said they would vote for Nixon or Wallace, but only 10 per cent of the Republicans said they would not vote for Nixon.

In addition, Gallup said, only one independent in five supported the Democratic ticket.

Gallup said Wallace continued to hold his lead in the South with 38 per cent of the vote, to 31 for Nixon and 25 for Humphrey.

Outside the South, the former Alabama governor's greatest strength was in the Midwest, where he gets 15 per cent.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

Pizza ▽ are round cornbread is square Mama's Pizza.

HELP WANTED

Part-time household help for elderly couple, with possible housing. Also practical nursing 8 to 5 Sat. & Sun. Call 256-8200.

Alert girl, living on campus, to work part-time for local dating match service. Call 546-6492 any time after 3 p.m. 5t-12

Girls earn extra money by handling subscriptions to the Boston Globe in your dormitory. No limit to the amount you can make! For further information call 546-8473. 5t-12

Laboratory help needed in Physics Dept. 20 hrs. a week, $1.50/hr. No experience necessary. Dr. Meisner T. Mann, S. Chan. Rm. 320, 318, 316, 304. 3t-12

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1960 Plymouth Good Running condition, New Radiator. Snow Tires. Evenings 256-6962. 5t-12

OPPORTUNITY

TO EARN $10.00

FOR 1½-2 HOURS WORK. YOU WORK at YOUR OWN SCHEDULE. Contact: Allen Elias, 41 River Street, West Springfield, Mass. 01089 — 736-1647, 7-30-9 a.m. or 10-11 p.m. Call collect.

FOR RENT

Single room rent with sink, share a bath, continental breakfast included parking—4½ miles from campus (Hadley) 253-3091 or 586-0922. 3t-16

3 room apt with large fireplace parking for 1 car in garage peaceful country setting 4½ miles from campus Call 253-3091 or 586-0922. 3t-16

HOUSING WANTED

Senior girl looking for place off-campus. If you have an apartment and would like a room-mate please contact Elaine at 546-7392. Willing to pay up to $80 month. Would prefer own room. 5t-12

ROOMMATES NEEDED

Need Female roommates to live in huge, new, furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at 467-7918.

Mature room mate wanted to share modern furn. apt. in Northampton. Call 586-1436 eve. 5t-12

FOR SALE

Stereo components at discount prices. Sealed cartons, full factory warranties. Amherst Hi-Fi Club, Box 721, Amherst, Mass. Tel. 256-6485

Meal ticket for sale Southwest, call 6-8277. 5t-12

Why would Bic torment this dazzling beauty?

Only Bic would dare to torment a beauty like this. Not the girl... the pen she's holding. It's the new luxury model Bic Clic...designed for scholarship athletes, lucky card players and other rich campus socialites who can afford the expensive 49-cent price.

But don't let those delicate good looks fool you. Despite horrible punishment by mad scientists, the elegant Bic Clic still wrote first time, every time.

Everything you want in a fine pen, you'll find in the new Bic Clic. It's retractable. Refillable. Comes in 8 barrel colors. And like all Bic pens, writes first time, every time...no matter what devilish obuse sodistic students devise for it.

Waterman-Bic Pen Corporation, Milford, Connecticut 06460

Senate

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE MEETING

Tuesday 17, September 1968
7:30 p.m., Council Chamber "B"

All past and present members who wish to continue as members through this school year absolutely should attend this introductory and organizational meeting of the Committee. Those not present cannot really be considered as continuing members. Prospective new members should make a particular point of attending this meeting too, and the details of the year's work will be laid forth for the complete elucidation of all present.

Richard W. Story
Chairman
222 Brett House
546-6234

Rapp's Delicatessen

AND RESTAURANT

79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan

OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES

Delicious Salads -- Desserts

HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI, SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE

FREE DELIVERY

Every night 6-11 p.m.

Phone 256-6759

Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.

BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

Houston Doctors Transplant Heart, Lungs To Infant

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Doctors transplanted the heart and lungs of one infant to another last night and the recipient's condition was described as encouraging, immediately after surgery.

A Texas Medical Center spokesman identified the recipient as two-month-old Debra Lynn Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee of Hufsmith, Tex., near Houston.

The girl received the organs of an unidentified one-day old infant with congenital brain defects.

The MDC Wants You!

Amherst Tower

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Professor Zunic Revisited

(Continued from page 8)

erally all over but the shouting. between Zunic and an official. To be sure, the officiating in that game, played in Buffalo in 1963, was said by less prejudiced observers to have contributed substantially to a 54-52 UMass loss. In such cases, however, it was the University's reputation at stake.

2) The Zunic theory—Zunic was fired because the athletic department harbored a grudge against him for unearthing (so the story goes) two rule violations by the football staff. First, in 1959 the son of a UMass official was allowed to participate, in violation, he says, of NCAA rules on transfer students. The boy had attended Tufts (and a junior college) the year before he donned Redman garb, Zunic insists. Second, UMass jumped the gun, he says, in pre-season practice in 1960. Zunic maintains that he brought the light of truth to the athletic council on the early practice, but had not done so, out of sheer ignorance, on the football-playing son. At any rate, he says, his heretofore respected name was thereafter taken in vain.

3) The revisionist theory—Zunic was dismissed because his conduct was unbecoming a coach and a full professor and his language was unfit for anything but barroom consumption, but, most important, several schools had dropped UMass from their basketball schedules strictly because of Zunic's courtside manner. The theory thus overlaps the traditional theory. Although some stock may be taken in the Zunic theory, it is after all based only on Zunic's assumptions. And, really now, if the grudge was so deep as to cause his dismissal in 1963, why not in 1960, or 1961, when there would have been no arguments about his three-year tenure? True, the '62-63 team had fallen to a 12-12 record, but UMass could hardly have called the dismissal a move for better future performances. Zunic had coached winning teams.

What put the administration in a difficult position was that Zunic was known as an excellent coach, a master game strategist who had recruited some of the greatest names in UMass basketball — Rodger Twitchell, Pete Bernard, Charlie O'Rourke, Tim Edwards, Clarence Hill.

The revisionist theory, then, is the most plausible of the three, particularly in light of the fact that Zunic became most offensive during his fourth year. Insiders say Warren McGuirk had hoped Zunic would master his emotions through the years but the reverse happened and the school was being disgraced. The Canisius game really did it. McGuirk, with a notably sensitive ear for bad publicity, has not himself revealed that UMass was being shunned by other schools; his reluctance, and that of other officials, to speak out, however, has protected Zunic from extra embarrassment and inadvertently has kept the controversy raging.

Zunic charges that his dismissal violated the Veteran's Tenure Act, the Bill of Rights, a Supreme Court ruling that a teacher may not be dismissed for criticizing his school system, and University policy. The charge loses impact in light of the fact that Zunic, in the company of his lawyer, President Lederle, the trustees and the athletic council said he would be satisfied to remain in a teaching capacity.

He insists that his presence at UMass is to vindicate his name (by which statement I gather that he would like Dean McGuirk to proclaim his vindication and the apologies of UMass in a public gathering on the Amherst town green). At the same time, however, he begins and ends all his pleas to state and school officials by saying he deserves at least another $4,000 a year. Whether or not he actually should be receiving the average full professor's pay, which Zunic says is $17,500, he is trying to make the most of a technicality (being hired as a professor) that cannot occur again because the fiscally autonomous University no longer has to resort to passing out academic badges to recruit coaches.

"During the past five years—during which I earned my master's degree—I've fallen to the bottom of the grade," Zunic says. That is, his salary has grown several thousand dollars but the professor's pay range has jumped in greater proportion. He actually makes $300 over the minimum. "They threw me that bone when I got my master's degree," he says.

While this weighty philosophical discussion has been going on, he has seen fit to appoint himself Marshal Matt (Dillon) Zunic, champion of oppressed teachers. "Someone has to speak out for people in education who are being discriminated against," he told the Globe. "I hope my case will help others."

He has evidently left a few Dale Carnegie books unfinished by searching for every rules violation committed by his colleagues in the Boyden Building. One administrator likens Zunic, in this regard, to a man who would cry foul every time a co-worker drives his car into the wrong space in a parking lot. An athletic department spokesman takes another step, saying Zunic was no Gil Thorp himself where eligibility rules were concerned. It's as if Nancy Sinatra told Herb Alpert he had a lousy voice. Zunic admits he stretched the rules on one occasion when he took two players on a trip just before they registered at UMass, but otherwise, he says, his record was immaculate.

He alludes suspiciously to the amount of unrecorded, outside money used to subsidize UMass athletes, but the fact is that, with the Yankee Conference scholarship limit, UMass has enough laundry money without having to enlist New England Cosa Nostra. The Globe said, "To implement his battle, Matt has become the conscience of the UMass athletic department." But, much to the dismay of greedy reporters, Zunic has picked from all the hundreds of UMass athletes in the last five years, only a handful who competed illegally—a few football and hockey players who played while on academic probation, three football players who were given dining commons jobs while on full scholarships and an athlete who competed in different sports for five years. But such situations have been rectified, some before Zunic's inquest, and the NCAA recently issued UMass a clean bill of health.

Two points that Zunic brought up about athletic policy bear notice here.

First, the NCAA doctrine that a student must progress at a normal pace toward a degree in order to compete is left to the whims of the university, and here, as at other schools, the intent of the ruling is loosely applied. Since a student is normally allowed only ten semesters to fulfill his academic requirements at UMass, it would seem that one must earn at least twelve credits a semester, twenty-four a year, to be making normal progress. Zunic cited to the athletic council this year the case of a football player who has been allowed to compete despite the fact he received only nineteen credits in his first year and fifteen in his second. According to the minutes of the meeting, "Chairman (George) Richardson stated that he had carefully checked the case of (the player) with Dean of Admissions William Tunis and that this student was not in violation of eligibility rules." That's right, he wasn't.

Second, a double standard exists in determining eligibility for athletic and academic scholarships that are provided by the University, both of which are presumed to be based on manifest financial need and scholastic potential. As long as an athlete surpasses the cumulative point average required of his class by one-tenth of a point, he is able to compete, and able to compete for money. The non-athlete, however, must have a cumulative average of at least 2.5, or at least a 3.0 in his most recent semester, to apply for aid. And the latter student does not benefit from the tutoring offered to athletes.

All very interesting. But Zunic has questioned far more than University policy while pleading his "case" in letters to the governor and attorney general. In one 3,000-word letter, he charged that the University, after receiving fiscal autonomy, violated in many cases (e.g. his) a federal law passed in 1886. "Principles of Teachers Tenure Law was to protect them from the Spoils System and to give it Economic Security and Academic Freedom," he wrote. "We are employees of the State and loyal workers of the state and our rights should have been protected. . . By your passing Fiscal Autonomy, you have infringed the old doctrine that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth." In passing the autonomy measure, he said, the state "hurt the employees here at the University and installed more powers into the hands of the Bureaucratic Administrators and power brings on arrogance."

Curiously, he does not suggest an alternative to this horrible state of affairs, except, of course, for him to receive a larger share of the spoils. Meanwhile, he has maintained the flow of literature to the trustees, and in two different letters this year wrote that "acts of Genocide (?) have been used to hurt me financially."

Perhaps some members of the administration and athletic department have been too harsh in their unavoidably biased judgments of the affair. Although Zunic has never been listed as above average on the annual faculty evaluations, according to one spokesman, perhaps a full professor should indeed receive at least the average pay after nine years of service, regardless of how or what he teaches.

Zunic, though, still sings his own version of the Folsom Prison Blues as he tries to bend the iron bars, tunnel through the dirt, everything except walk through the open door.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

PORT ARA SLAB
OGEE REI HOBO
ORCA ANSWERED
LEER NO ADDLE
DYE WIN
ALI DENS ERAS
MONGED MANIDA
LOGE DLSC STY
GAM TWO AROMA DRAMA
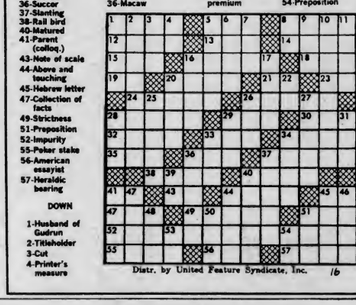
CARAVAN ONE
PLAN USE GATS
GENT KEA SCAT



ACROSS

1-Pain
5-Plunge
8-Weakens
12-Pronoun
13-Girl's name
14-Verve
15-Ordinance
16-Sting
18-Period of time
19-Prefix: not
20-Twirl
21-Chaldean city
23-Symbol for silver
24-Fold
26-Entangle
28-Laughing
29-Possesses
30-A state (abbr.)
32-Sharpen
33-Staff
34-Barracuda
35-Number
36-Succor
37-Slanting
38-Rail bird
40-Matured
41-Parent (colloq.)
43-Note of scale
44-Above and touching
45-Hebrew letter
47-Collection of facts
49-Strictness
51-Preposition
52-Impurity
55-Poker stake
56-American essayist
57-Heraldic bearing

5-Resign
6-Man's name
7-Equality
8-Compass point
9-Beverage
10-Counterpart
11-Projecting tooth
16-Part of fireplace
17-Vats
20-Rational
22-Son god
25-Paths
26-Mournful
27-Swift
28-Greek letter
29-Brick-carrying device
31-Unit of Siamese currency
33-Inlet
34-Walk
36-Macaw
37-Greek marketplace
39-Preposition
40-Make amends
41-South American rodent
42-Later
44-Exchange premium
45-Body of water
46-Sea eagle
48-Emmet
50-Demon
51-Evergreen tree
53-Symbol for tellurium
54-Preposition

DOWN

1-Husband of Gudrun
2-Titleholder
3-Cut
4-Printer's measure

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 16

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

PEANUTS

B. C.

by Johnny hart

16 SEPT 68

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1968
Page 8 Vol. XCVII, No. 16

Defense Stars In Squad Game

With only five days until the season opener, UMass football coach Vic Fusia said, following an intra-squad scrimmage held Saturday, "We still have a long way to go before we are a football team." Fusia, however, amended this by saying he is still pleased with the team's progress.

Again it was the defense that brought Fusia's rare smiles to his face. The coach singled as usual his defensive ends, Randy Robinson and Tom York, and his deep backs, Mike McArdle, Steve Rogers and Bill Frye as being bright lights in the long afternoon.

Actually Fusia termed the scrimmage, "no true picture" of his team's strength. Although the team was divided first team against second team, several players had to go both ways.

Fusia also had praise for the running of junior Craig Lovell and the blocking of his backfield companion, fullback Ed Sarno. Allen Becker also blocked well from his tight end spot, while Dennis Gray's play at linebacker was also outstanding.

Zunic Appointed Coach of New Spfld. Pro Team

Matt Zunic, former UMass basketball coach and a professor of physical education at the university, was named Saturday to coach the new Springfield Hall of Famers of the Eastern Professional Basketball League. The announcement was made by Attorney Harvey B. Gruskin, general manager of the Springfield team.

Although Zunic will coach the new pro team this season starting with the opener on November 16, no announcement of the former New England "coach of the year"'s resignation from the UM faculty was received by the athletic department or by Athletic Director Warren McGuirk. Zunic, therefore, will continue his present duties of instructing at UM.

Zunic expressed enthusiasm at his new post. "It's nice to get back into basketball," he said. "I've always thought about coaching in the pros and I'm really looking forward to the challenge."

"Basketball originated here in Springfield," Zunic went on, "and I think it will be accepted, provided we give them a winner. That's what we'll be striving for."

The new coach plans to hold open tryouts in a few weeks and will start regular practices around October 1. Home games will be played at Butova Gymnasium on the campus of American International College, with the home opener set for Nov. 16.

That appointment ends a four year absence from the coaching ranks for Zunic, an absence caused by circumstances outlined elsewhere on this page.

(Reprinted from Springfield Republican)

A LEGAL DUNK—Neil Feldman, president of the Springfield Hall of Famers is helped up to the rim by seven-foot Walter Dukes in a celebration Saturday at the Eastern States Exposition, following the appointment of Matt Zunic as coach. Looking on are Zunic (left) and Lawrence Foggle, business manager of the team.

Meetings and Intramurals

An open meeting of all prospective crew team members, will be held Wed. Sept. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the Boyden building, room 249. All candidates must be at least 6', 170 pounds. Also being sought are men under 125 pounds to be coxswains.

There will be a meeting of the varsity golf squad, tonight at 7 p.m. in the Boyden building room 251.

There will be an organizational meeting of the varsity wrestling squad Tuesday, Sept 18, at 8 p.m. in the Boyden, room 222.

Metawampe

Off to Good Start

8 Wins - 1 Loss - 1 Tie

Booters Scrimmage

UM Edges Amherst, 1-0

UMass soccer practice only started a week ago, but the Redman booters looked in near mid-season form Saturday as they edged the Amherst College team, 1-0, in a scrimmage held behind the Boyden building.

The UMass squad is loaded with sophomores and one of them got the only goal, Duane Brown, a leading scorer on last year's freshman team, got the only score. Outside of Brown's marker the scrimmage was a defensive dual.

UMass coach Pete Broaca split his goaltending chores between Steve Kramer and Tom Malone. Both performed, in Broaca's words, "excellently." On the fullback wall, John Mercury was singled out for his fine play. Mercury is in competition with several others for a starting fullback berth.

At halfback, three players won the praise of Broaca for their play in the scrimmage. Juniors Dick Myer and Mart Mughogho and sophomore Rich Matuszezak all played well against the Lord Jeffs. Co-captain Tom Ward, along with Brown played well at wing.

The fact that Amherst has practiced for more than two weeks, while this was only UMass' 11th session, was a pleasing aspect of the scrimmage to Broaca. The coach said, "The way in which we played them even despite their week head-start on us was encouraging. Physically, the team is in good strength, but numbers-wise we are thin".

UMass will participate in a four college soccer jamboree being held Saturday, at A.I.C. Park in Springfield.

Professor Zunic Revisited

INSIDE UMASS SPORTS

by Tom FitzGerald

Ed. note: This is another in a series of articles on UMass sports originally published in the Summer Statesman. The articles are written by Tom Fitzgerald, Sports Editor of the Summer Statesman.

There must have been tears in the eyes of the Boston Globe reporter this summer who wrote, "Matt Zunic has been the loneliest man on the UMass campus for five years. The big guy who once made basketball a major sport at Boston University and at UMass today walks the Amherst streets alone.

"He tries to plead his case with the University trustees or the faculty senate but he is tilting at windmills. Zunic, the lowest paid full professor at UMass, is hidden in a closet like a naughty child."

The continuation of the Zunic affair, now five years after the fact, represents an old wound to the justly sensitive athletic department, and the bandages have recently been ripped. For Zunic has not been content to send verbose appeals for aid to the governor, attorney general, legislators and seemingly everybody else except Ann Landers, or appear before the trustees, faculty-senate and athletic council.

He has recently solicited the powerful support of his old chums in the sports press. Although apparently unsuccessful with some of the big city papers in the state, he won ample space in the Globe, which depicted him as the martyr of university bureaucracy. The reader was led to believe that Zunic is the reincarnation of the western hero who moaned, "What do you do when you're branded?" He is the new Odysseus, seeking to regain his rightful throne despite the fickle gods.

The nervy implication of the Globe article that Zunic singlehandedly made basketball a major sport at UMass is akin to a declaration by John Lennon that he made the Beatles great, without the help of Brian Epstein, the manager who lit the fire. What was Warren McGuirk, the redoubtable UMass athletic director, doing after he hired Zunic? Sitting in the Cage and rapping a line-up card on his knuckles? The point is that, particularly in the major collegiate sports, there is more to a sport than drills, games and recruiting and politicking within leagues, for another. Dividing up scholarships, for another.

Treating the circumstances surrounding the rise and demise of Matt Zunic as UMass basketball coach is complicated by the harshly one-sided arguments given on either side of his battle to "vindicate my name." Some background is urgently needed at this point, however, in the wake of articles in the Globe and other papers, since few of the present students were around in Zunic's heyday and few of the administrators, for that matter.

An outstanding football-basketball man at George Washington University in the '40's, he played and coached basketball in the old National League with the Dow Chemical Company team, a fact that should endear him to the UMass radical element. After a Navy hitch, he joined the Washington Caps of the NBA and in a championship series against the old Minneapolis Lakers, he had to battle George Mikan in the pivot.

He was assistant football and basketball coach at George Washington for two years, then began in 1952 his seven profitable years as head hoop coach at Boston University. In 1959, his last year, he brought B.U. to the NCAA eastern finals against Jerry West and West Virginia. His captain that year was one Jackie Leuman.

The Terriers lost the finals by four points, but Zunic was scooped up by McGuirk, eager to find a winning formula within the unsavory architecture of Curry Hicks Cage. Zunic was called a full professor of physical education (with only his bachelor's degree, mind you) because until the University was granted fiscal autonomy by the state in 1962, such was the only method of attracting top flight talent—you know, with money. His hiring, he says, was accompanied by a gentlemen's agreement, whatever that is in college sports, that he would have tenure as basketball coach after three years.

Four years later, those years steeped in Yankee Conference prestige and highlighted by the Redmen's first trip to the NCAA regional, Zunic was reassigned (i.e. fired) within the athletic department. Johnny Orr was hired from scores of applicants for the head position, while Zunic's assistant, Leaman, was kept, obviously being groomed for greater things. After the decision to change coaches had been reached, Zunic and his attorney confronted President Lederle, the trustees and the athletic council in an apparently germ-free atmosphere. According to records, Zunic said he "would be satisfied to remain at the University . . . knowing that he could remain and could teach and would not be assigned to such work which would not be familiar to him." That was March, 1963.

But Zunic has not been satisfied, and today he hovers through the corridors of the Boyden Building like the ghost of Hamlet's father. If he is the lowest paid full professor at UMass, it should be pointed out, he is one of the highest paid non-coaching teachers in Boyden. He receives $13,300 for ten months of teaching first-aid and safety courses and guiding general physical education classes in basketball, badminton and volleyball, plus $1,220 for similar work in the summer. Mad magazine might ask here, "How much does your dad make?"

I find Zunic's insistence that his reason for remaining at UM these many years has been to purify his reputation, interesting. There are three main points of view on his dismissal and consequent fall from grace, or vice versa:

MATT ZUNIC

1) The traditional theory—Zunic was reassigned because of his violent remonstrances against officials during games. His rantings and ravings were frequently spiced with language unfit for the President's Council on Youth Fitness. In this respect, he outshone even Mother of Voices. There was the legendary Canisius affair, a game that was lit-

(Continued on Page 7)

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
VOL. XCVII, NO. 17 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1968

Provost Tippo to Preside Over 1968 Convocation

". . . Like It Is" will be the topic of the main convocation speech to be delivered by President John W. Lederle tomorrow at 10:10 a.m. Classes at that hour have been canceled. Pictured above, listening to President Lederle deliver his 1967 convocation speech are James Collins, former Senate President; University Provost Oswald Tippo and Rabbi Martin Kowal, chaplain to Jewish students.

UMass President John W. Lederle will relate the current world turmoil to problems of the campus in a major address, ". . . Like It Is," to be delivered tomorrow at 10:10 a.m.

The speech will be the highlight of opening convocation ceremonies to be held on the lawn in front of Goodell Library. In case of rain the event will be held in the Student Union ballroom.

Three Distinguished Teacher Awards will be made at the Convocation. Recipients are selected by an all-university faculty committee. In addition, Terence Burke, assistant professor of geography and a winner of one of last year's teaching awards, will be present to receive his award. Last year, when he was announced as an award recipient, he was on sabbatical leave in Ireland.

Also, Dr. Robert Gage, chairman of the department of public health and director of University health services, will be presented the Metawampe Award. Presented by the students to a faculty member for outstanding teaching in and out of the classroom, the Metawampe Award is voted on by a student committee. Dr. Gage was out of town when the Metawampe award was announced last spring at Student Leaders Night.

Announcing the awards for Distinguished Teacher of the Year will be Provost Oswald Tippo, who will preside over the convocation. The awards carry a $1000 stipend.

Student Senate President Paul Silverman will present greetings of the student body, and Rt. Rev. Monsignor David J. Power, UMass Chaplain to Catholic students, will deliver the invocation.

Students, faculty, administration and friends of the University are invited to attend the convocation. Classes scheduled for the time of convocation have been cancelled so that students and faculty may attend.

Southwest Custodians Walk Out Over Wages, Working Conditions

About 50 UMass janitors assigned to the Southwest Complex reported sick yesterday. University officials termed the absences a walkout over wages and working conditions.

Gerald Grady, university business manager, said that unless the absences can be substantiated as illness, the men would not be paid for the day's work and would face disciplinary action.

Some concern was expressed that the walkout might spread to all 300 custodians on the campus but this was allayed in the afternoon when all but two janitors scheduled to work in academic departments reported on time.

UMass janitors now start at $80.45 per week.

BLAMES THE STATE

Grady said that while the administration was sympathetic to the janitors' demands for higher wages, the remedy lies with the state, which sets the salaries. Other points, such as the janitors' unhappiness over having to walk long distances from their parked cars to their jobs, can be dealt with by the adminstration, he said.

The custodial action follows a summer-long labor dispute involving wages, job classifications and parking privileges.

Grady told the Collegian that "We are not saying anybody was sick or not sick." A statement from his office however stated that "Under University and state procedures, employees must provide their supervisors with justification for an absence."

Covering the area of the custodial labor dispute and its possible relationship to the recent absenteeism by the janitors, the Business and Personnel Office statement added that, "the University assures all employees that full consideration will be given to those who bring complaints to the attention of supervisors in the proper way."

Organization Confused

The labor dispute follows a June bargaining election which was conducted under the auspices of the State Labor Relations Commission. This election has yet to result in a clear cut determination as to what organization, if any, shall represent the University's 300 janitors.

Because of this fact, the statement from Grady's office goes on to state that ". . . the University has indicated to employee groups on campus and the Labor Relations Commission that it will not interfere with the determination of bargaining agents, but recognizes its duties to operate the University during the time that the election dispute is being settled by the State Labor Relations Commission."

Regarding the parking situation, the custodians are upset by requirements that they leave their autos a considerable distance from the High Rise Complex. They are demanding to use the K area. Grady said that this was an internal administrative problem which could be solved easily.

"We don't believe," Grady said, "that we ask them (the custodians) to do anything that is not in the specifications for state custodians." Such specifications, he said covers all custodians in state service and, admittedly custodial duties at dormitories of a college are different than those of a custodian employed at a State Police Barracks or State Hospital.

'Universities Must Avoid Capture By Any Element'--Yale President

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Yale President Kingman Brewster Jr. said yesterday that universities "must avoid capture" by any element, whether it is radical, reactionary, conservative or liberal."

"Even the most noble purpose cannot justify destroying the university as a safe haven for the ruthless examination of realities," he said.

Brewster, at the same time, said a university "must protect and encourage the skeptic while it exposes and discourages the cynic."

He made the remarks in a prepared address to Yale's 1,025 new freshmen.

Among those on the platform with faculty members during Brewster's welcoming remarks to the Freshman Assembly was Yale's chaplain, the Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr., convicted with Dr. Benjamin Spock and two others on charges of conspiring to counsel young men to resist the draft.

In his talk, Brewster said it was "absolutely crucial to remind ourselves and our country that the presumption of innocence is not just a legal concept which protects chaplains and others against assuming that a district court verdict is necessarily the final word.

"The presumption of innocence is what allows men to disagree without disapproval, or even to disapprove of one another without distrust."

Coffin and the others were found guilty last July 10 in Boston on the draft conspiracy charge. All were sentenced to two years in federal prison, and Coffin and Spock were fined $500 each. Coffin is appealing the conviction.

Brewster, turning to what he called the mood of the contemporary college student, said the "important new element is not your awareness of and disgust with the horrors of the world; it is rather your deepening sense of the difficulty of doing anything about it. . .

"By all odds the most disturbing sense is the fear that the channels for peaceful change have become clogged.

The blockage is not crude and visible, like Russian armor in Wenceslaus Square. It is rather the concentration of established power which weighs so heavily against any effort to challenge things as they are."

Army Won't Ship Out Reservists 'Til Court Rules

HONOLULU (AP)—The Army agreed yesterday not to ship out 257 mainland reservists until a federal court rules on their claim they were called to duty illegally last May and are being kept at Scofield Barracks against their will.

No date has been set for a decision on the reservists, each of whom seeks $10,000 damages. They are from all parts of the United States.

Last Thursday U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas temporarily halted, in a similar suit, the pending transfer to Vietnam of 113 Cleveland area reservists until the high court ruled.

Premier Salazar of Portugal Near Death After Head Surgery

LISBON (AP) Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar, Portugal's strong man for 5 years, was reported near death Tuesday after a stroke stopped his recovery from head surgery.

The condition of Salazar, 79, was described as desperate by hospital sources more than eight hours after the thrombosis struck him in Red Cross Hospital.

Unconfirmed reports said the Council of State, Portugal's supreme consultative body, met at a secret place under the leadership of President Americo Thomaz.

A medical bulletin issued after midnight said Salazar had suffered a "sudden and serious vascular incident in the right brain hemisphere."

Sources at the hospital said Salazar's left side was paralyzed.

The communique did not speak of a second operation, but it was believed this might have taken place. The bulletin was signed by the same doctors who operated on Salazar Sept. 7 for removal of a blood clot said to have been caused by an accidental fall.

Daily Collegian Photo By Mike Alpert

WINTER CARNI — 1969

was the main topic at the junior class executive meeting Sunday night. The class will try to get either Bob Hope or Simon and Garfunkle for the Friday night concert; Richie Havens for the Saturday concert; and Smokie Robinson and the Miracles for the Sunday concert. Shown above presiding over the meeting are Ina Goldstein, secretary, and Steve Weisman, president of the class of 1970.

Inside Report

Woe on Virginia Avenue

By Rowland Evers and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON—At precisely the moment when Vice President Hubert Humphrey's campaign is desperately short of money, master fund-raiser Richard Maguire has been quietly eased out.

Maguire's departure is a symptom of deep trouble backstage at the Democratic National Committee's magnificent quarters on Virginia Avenue here, now occupied by Humphrey forces. With only seven weeks until Election Day and Humphrey running far behind Richard M. Nixon, his campaign is afflicted by personality disputes, disorganization, and confusion.

Much of this stems from President Johnson's unwelcome political legacy to his Vice President. Because the National Committee has been a caretaker operation these past four years in accordance with Mr. Johnson's wishes, Humphrey men found the filing cabinets bare when they arrived on Virginia Avenue. Moreover, Mr. Johnson's command to hold the national convention the last week in August so it would coincide with his birthday left little time for postconvention planning.

But Humphrey and his staff cannot fully escape blame for the organizational fiasco. Although his nomination had been locked up for months, almost no planning had been done for the campaign against Nixon. The highly competent Lawrence F. O'Brien, handpicked by Humphrey as the new National Chairman, had to start from scratch.

(Continued on Page 4)

17 SEPT 17

Columbia President Tells Rudd He Can Still Appeal Suspension

New York—Acting president of Columbia University, Dr. Andrew W. Cordier, said yesterday "the door is still open" for Mark Rudd and 30 other students who were suspended for their part in the demonstrations last spring to appeal for reinstatement.

Rudd, leader of the university chapter of Students for a Democratic Society, and the 30 others were excluded last Wednesday when Dr. Cordier, exercising what he called "executive clemency," reinstated 42 students who had been suspended for taking part in the second occupation of Hamilton Hall May 21 and 22.

Dr. Cordier said that all of the 42 reinstated students had appealed their suspensions, but that Rudd and the 30 others had not.

"It is natural for us to assume that if they should want to improve their own position they should exercise the use and take advantage of the use of the normal machinery of discipline on the campus," Dr. Cordier said.

He refused to predict what action the university would take if such appeals were made, but he said "the door is still open and it will remain open," and he promised all who might appeal a fair hearing.

Earlier in the year, when leaders of the campus revolt were summoned to disciplinary hearings before deans, many of them refused to appear or to recognize the authority of the university to discipline them. Many campus leaders and some faculty members have recommended amnesty for all involved in the disorders.

The 42 who were reinstated last week were instead "censured," which means that they may be expelled if they now violate university rules. Lifting the suspensions permits the students to register for courses for the fall term, which begins Sept. 26. The registration period opens today.

Besides reinstating the suspended students, the university last week also asked the Criminal Court to drop criminal trespass charges against 400 students who had been arrested in police raids on campus buildings that had been occupied during the demonstrations.

But the university made no appeal to the court for 154 other students who had been arrested for more serious charges such as resisting arrest, assault and inciting to riot.

Mark Rudd, one of the leaders of last spring's demonstrations at Columbia University, has been given the right to appeal his suspension from the university.

N. Y. Teachers Remain On Strike, Call for More Order in Schools

NEW YORK (AP) — A peace formula aimed at reopening classrooms for 1.1 million New York public school children was turned down Monday by a striking teachers' union.

Albert Shaker, president of the AFL—CIO United Federation of Teachers, who kept his 55,000 members out unree days last week and again Monday, at first offered what appeared to be a ray of hope for settlement of the strike.

Shanker had termed acceptable a peace proposal by State Education Commissioner James E. Allen Jr. if several points concerning teachers' rights were clarified.

Shanker abandoned a demand for removal of the local school board and Rhody McCoy, administrator of the Ocean Hill-Brownsville district in Brooklyn, where the ouster of 10 UFT members led to the strike.

The UFT leader laid down a four-point series of conditions which he wanted incorporated into any settlement terms. The Board of Education agreed partially, but insufficient by Shanker, deemed insufficient by Shanker.

Meanwhile, a throng of teachers, parents and strike supporters massed in early evening outside City Hall, where they demonstrated in orderly fashion with signs reading "Return our Schools to All the People," and "Restore Order in our Schools." Estimates of the crowd ranged up to 15,000.

About 150 opponents of the UFT strike conducted a counter-demonstration. But police kept the two groups at a distance and there were no incidents.

Children in public school during the day totaled 24,456 out of the system's 1,129,000 registration, the Board of Education announced. It said 3,841 of 57,000 teachers reported for work. Included in the figures were the children and staff of the eight schools in the Ocean Hill-Brownsville district, which have been operating since the beginning of the fall term.

At bottom, the dispute involves job security for teachers in a system that would be decentralized into 30 local boards, having substantial power, including the right to hire and fire teachers.

The decentralization plan, already tentatively approved by the Board of Education, must be given final approval by the state's Board of Regents and the legislature.

King Council Offers Course Entitled "Racism in America"

The Martin Luther King, Jr., Social Action Council will be offering a course entitled "Racism in America" this semester. Enrollment is open to anybody in the University community.

The format will be free university-style discussion, with occasional guest lectures. The reading list will be broken down into units, such as Racism in Education, Racism in the Legal System, Racism in Social Work, etc. Each unit will have several books listed, and each participant will be requested to read at least one title in each unit. In addition, he will be urged to do independent research in the library. It is hoped that the following discussions will bring out the major aspects of all these readings and make them part of the total experience of each member of the class.

The course will have two sections. The first section will begin Thursday, September 19, from 1 til 3 P.M. The second section will start Tuesday, September 24, from 3:30 til 5:30 P.M. Classes will meet once a week in John Q. Adams (T-4) Middle Lounge (12th floor).

Discussions will be led by Gil Salk, Executive Secretary of the King Council.

Each person should read a copy of a paper by Frank Joyce, National Executive Director of People Against Racism, before the first class. The paper is entitled "Racism: Introduction, Definition, and Analysis." Copies are available in the King Council office in Hampshire House.

For more information, call 545-2661.

Activities Night To Be Held Wed.

The registered organizations on campus range from volunteer fire department to Precisionettes to Arcon. In order to acquaint students with the purposes of their activities, and to meet prospective members, the annual Student Activities Night will be held again this year on Wednesday, at 7 p.m. Displays will be set up in the Student Union Ballroom, and representatives from each organization will be on hand to answer questions. The program should be especially beneficial to freshmen and transfer students.

One of the major advantages offered by a large campus is the wide diversity of attitudes and interests. Individuality is openly expressed, encouraged, and used in the student's search for a more meaningful social and academic atmosphere. Here at the University, there is some aspect of college life to appeal to each individual, if he will only make the effort to find it. The Revelers and Program Council have sponsored the evening so that interested students can obtain the information about all campus organizations.

Greek Premier To Release Prisoners

ATHENS (AP)—Premier George Papadopoulos said Monday his military regime would free next Monday all ex-politicians under house arrest or held in custody on islands and isolated villages so that they can vote in the Sept. 29 referendum on a new constitution.

The regime announced at the same time that it would extend the state of siege that has been in effect since the army's takeover 17 months ago. It claimed that dangers still exist to threaten the security of the state.

The amnesty, the premier said, will not apply to imprisoned or exiled ex-army officers or to the almost 2,000 leftist political prisoners on the islands of Yairos and Leres.

The new constitution keeps powers of the king diminished and would authorize the regime to carry out elections for a new parliament and give a constitutional court the right to decide who could run for office.

The release of prisoners will free two former premiers, George Papandreou and Panayiotis Canellopoulos, who were restricted to their homes by the regime last April.

Commission To Study Negro History

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Monday to create an 11-member commission to make a one-year study of Negro history and culture.

It sent to the Senate by roll-call vote of 261 to 45 a bill to authorize the President to appoint the commission "from persons who are authorities on Negro history and culture."

The commission would study proposals "to create a better understanding and knowledge of Negro history and culture."

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

Pizza ☐ are round cornbread is square Mama's Pizza.

HELP WANTED

Part-time household help for elderly couple, with possible housing. Also practical nursing 8 to 5 Sat. & Sun. Call 256-8200.

Alert girl, living on campus, to work part-time for local dating match service. Call 546-6492 any time after 3 p.m. 5t-12

Girls earn extra money by handling subscriptions to the Boston Globe in your dormitory. No limit to the amount you can make! For further information call 546-8473. 5t-12

Laboratory help needed in Physics Dept. 20 hrs. a week, $1.50/hr. No experience necessary. Dr. Meisner T. Mann, S. Chan. Rm. 320, 318, 316, 304. 3t-12

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1960 Plymouth Good Running condition. New Radiator. Snow Tires. Evenings 256-6962. 5t-12

OPPORTUNITY

TO EARN $10.00

FOR 1½-2 HOURS WORK. YOU WORK at YOUR OWN SCHEDULE. Contact: Allen Elias, 41 River Street, West 7:30-9 a.m. or 10-11 p.m. Call collect. Springfield, Mass. 01089 — 736-1647,

HOUSING WANTED

Senior girl looking for place off-campus. If you have an apartment and would like a room-mate please contact Elaine at 546-7392. Willing to pay up to $80 month. Would prefer own room. 5t-12

FOR RENT

Single room rent with sink, share a bath, continental breakfast included parking—4½ miles from campus (Hadley) 253-3091 or 586-0922. 3t-16

3 room apt with large fireplace parking for 1 car in garage peaceful country setting 4½ miles from campus Call 253-3091 or 586-0922. 3t-16

Modern, 2 bedroom, wall to wall carpet, all utilities inc. air cond, 10 minute walk to Education Bldg. $130/month. Call 549-1381

ROOMMATES NEEDED

Need Female roommates to live in huge, new, furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at 467-7918.

Mature room mate wanted to share modern furn. apt. in Northampton. Call 586-1436 eve. 5t-12

Female roommate wanted for private furnished room. $50 per month. Apt. #1, 797 Main St., Amherst. Come after 5 p.m.

FOR SALE

Stereo components at discount prices. Sealed cartons, full factory warranties. Amherst Hi-Fi Club, Box 721, Amherst, Mass. Tel. 256-6485

Honda CB 160 (cheap). Excellent condition throughout, fine for commuting. See for yourself and make your own deal. No obligation. Contact Dev Cochrane, 5-2832 or 6-9306, day or night.

High quality fall, 6 speakers with 2 3 way crossovers in walnut cabinets 304 Apt. #3, N. Pleasant St.

Meal ticket for sale Southwest, call 6-8277. 5t-12

Fly a plane over the campus?

Learn to Fly

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB

Call: JOE DALTON 253-9321

FRAN BALBONI (Pilgrim Airport) 1-665-8785

You fly it! — ½ hr. introductory ride $5

WANTED

Top Rock Band to form an exciting new group with an excellent female lead singer

WRITE OR VISIT:

Bob Wilson
Camouflage House
Leverett Center, Mass.

WANTED

Top Rock Band to form an exciting new group with an excellent female lead singer

WRITE OR VISIT:

Bob Wilson
Camouflage House
Leverett Center, Mass.

The Christian Science Organization warmly invites you to its first weekly testimony meeting.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th — 6:45 P.M.
WORCESTER ROOM — STUDENT UNION

Everyone is welcome

Its not too late to sign up for

EVOLUTION

Entomology 290 — MWF 11:15 — Fern G Dr. John Hanson

Columbia's Radical Student Group To Plan Demonstrations and Events

NEW YORK (AP)—A campaign by student revolutionaries and activists to cripple Columbia University again begins today with two planned demonstrations at the 214-year-old Ivy League school.

A "victory rally," according to plans obtained from SDS sources, will be held at noon today in front of the school cafeteria, to celebrate cafeteria workers winning a weekly minimum wage of $100.

Then, at 6:30 p.m., on the steps of Low Memorial Library, and just before a convocation for freshmen, a torchlight service is planned to honor slain Congo leader Patrice Lumumba.

This reference is part of an attack on Acting President Andrew J. Cordier, career diplomat who served with the United Nations at the time of the Congo crisis.

The radical Students for a Democratic Society has planned its first major actions to coincide with the arrival of freshmen on the Morningside Heights campus. Many classes start Sept. 26.

So two contending forces, those in the university hoping to avoid further disruption on campus and the band of student radicals, begin acting out a drama to see whether Columbia can reopen in peace this term.

During the summer, the university administration and trustees, agreed to a series of liberalizing moves at the university.

Kirk, a symbol of intransigence to militant students and many others, retired, raising hopes among some in the school that major changes in university policy would follow.

The student critics, however, say the changes so far do not go far enough. "The university as it exists now really shouldn't be allowed to function," says SDS.

The central question remains: Will the relatively small band of activists win enough support in the general student body and the faculty, as they did during the spring disorders, to paralyze the university anew?

The first planned action took place last Thursday, a demonstration at a meeting of some 750 senior faculty members. There was some shoving and pushing as about 200 activists, led by SDS, tried to push into the meeting.

Senate

ACADEMIC AFFAIRS COMMITTEE MEETING

Tuesday 17, September 1968
7:30 p.m., Council Chamber "B"

All past and present members who wish to continue as members through this school year absolutely should attend this introductory and organizational meeting of the Committee. Those not present cannot really be considered as continuing members. Prospective new members should make a particular point of attending this meeting too, and the details of the year's work will be laid forth for the complete elucidation of all present.

Richard W. Story
Chairman
222 Brett House
546-6234

Politics '68

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts primary election Tuesday may set bench marks for voter apathy and disinterest because for the first time in modern times no statewide offices are involved.

The chief focus will be on the aspirants for Congress, with four longtime representatives facing stiff primary fights complicated by new district boundaries.

In the 2nd District, incumbent Rep. Edward P. Boland, 56, D-Springfield, is being pressed by former 3-term Mayor Charles V. Ryan, Jr. of Springfield. Boland got some campaign help last week from U.S. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., an old friend, and Kennedy's wife, Joan.

Humphrey

WASHINGTON (AP)—Vice Pres. Hubert H. Humphrey promised Monday, if elected president, to halt riots and to forge "a new federal state and local partnership to deal with crime and disorder."

The Democratic nominee, calling for an end to "fear that paralyzes action" against crime, endorses 84 specific recommendations drawn up by his special task force on order and justice.

"We need not follow the path of blind repression and counter-violence which only tends to increase loss of property, loss of life, and loss of control," Humphrey said. "But let me make it perfectly clear; the riots will be stopped."

Nixon

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—Richard M. Nixon, prompted by a teen-aged narcotics user's appeal for help, proposed Monday a program to eliminate the drug use he said is "decimating a generation of young Americans."

He announced the five-point program of stricter enforcement and improved rehabilitation in a speech prepared for a rally in Anaheim.

In calling for a new narcotics program, Nixon again jabbed at his Democratic opponent, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, declaring, "He has said we should have a moratorium on rhetoric about law and order." Nixon answered, "We don't need an attitude of complacency and self-congratulation on the issue of crime at the national level."

S.E. England Hit By New Floods

LONDON (AP) — Helicopters troops and police Monday rescued scores of Britons marooned by the nation's worst floods in 15 years. Two persons perished and a third was feared dead in the giant lake created by the floods across southeast England.

More than 1,000 square miles of crops and property were under water after almost a normal month's rainfall cascaded in 48 hours. The waters funneled into the narrow and normally sleepy riverbeds in the hilly county of Kent, and in Surrey and Sussex south of London.

Trains and telephones were disrupted. Thirty-nine main roads in the southeast were blocked by floodwaters or washed-out bridges, and thousands of cars were stalled.

Czechoslovakia to Keep Western-Style Reforms

PRAGUE (AP) — Despite revived censorship, Czechoslovakia made plain in two statements published Monday that it intends to maintain Western-style economic reforms which have come in for criticism from the Soviet Union.

The Communist newspaper Rude Pravo printed both. Thirteen prominent Czechoslovak economists took issue in one statement with a charge by the Soviet news agency Tass that Prof. Ota Sik, who resigned as deputy premier last week under Soviet pressure, planned the new system for "a switch back to capitalism."

The other was a government statement upholding the new system, quoted in a three-column box at the top of Rude Pravo's front page.

Prague's stand was thus shown to be official policy, though the government is operating under a Soviet-dictated policy of censorship against news unfavorable to the Soviet Union and four other Warsaw Pact powers that sent occupation troops into Czechoslovakia Aug. 20.

Food Service Course To Start Next Week

The University of Massachusetts restaurant and hotel management program will present a course in "Merchandising in Food Service Operations" for people in the food service industry in southeastern Massachusetts at the Plymouth-Carver High School in Plymouth, starting Thursday evening, September 26.

The 22-week course carries three credits toward the associate degree and is one of a number being offered at off-campus points for food service personnel. Students may enroll on a non-credit basis.

The course will consider the field of merchandising as it relates to the hospitality industry with special emphasis on food service operations. Material from the marketing and communication areas as well as on product, competitor, and market analysis will be included. There will be consideration of various merchandising tools available to those in restaurant, hotel, motel, club, school lunch or other hospitality operations.

Sessions will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. each Thursday for 22 weeks. The course will be presented by Associate Professor Charles E. Eshbach of the restaurant and hotel management program.

Tuition is $30, with an additional charge for the textbook. Food service people interested in attending should contact the Restaurant and Hotel Management Program, Room 213, Chenoweth Laboratory, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass. 01002 (Telephone 413-545-2071).

Come to Bolles for THE Desert Boot by

Clarks OF ENGLAND.

Imitated by many matched by none Don't settle for imitations!

BOLLES

FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES

Amherst Tower

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

GREEK CONCERT FEATURING

ANTHONY and the IMPERIALS

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

7:30

CURRY HICKS CAGE

$1.50

Tickets sold at the Student Union Ticket Office

University Convocation

A second all-University Convocation will be held tomorrow at 10:10 on the lawn of Goodell Library. The President of the University, John W. Lederle will deliver the major address.

While most UMass students have passed through a receiving line and grasped the hand of the president, it has been only a smaller number of students who have heard Lederle speak.

At the risk of being banal, we urge all students and staff to attend the Convocation . . .

He may very well not say anything profound or make any major policy announcement. But Lederle is your president. This is the man that all the Boston newspapers quote.

He has invited you to come. Go, it may be worth your while.

The Right to Protest

Today, candidates face the voters. And as the voters deserve the opportunity to select these candidates with caution, so also do the candidates deserve the consideration of maximum participation by the Massachusetts voters. Inherently, freedom to vote involves a responsibility, and this responsibility, by its very nature, is a burden. Yet, this burden must be carried by each individual as a natural consequence of citizenship in a free nation. Each voter must make the time and the effort to vote.

Those who would ignore this responsibility, which is in essence a privilege to select their leaders, must in consequence forfeit the subsequent privilege of legitimate protest. To later plead concern and to desire involvement is hypocritical—useless, for involvement consists first in the interest to choose the candidates and later in the privilege to evaluate and to review these leaders. If one is to assume the right to actively criticize and to protest, one must initially prove a certain qualification and sophistication by participating in this fundamental process of democracy — to vote.

If the citizen were to neglect this September 17 primary vote, he would give up one half of his franchise. It is the primary voter alone, who necessarily selects for the non-voter his own personal choice for public office. It is the primary voter who can legitimately claim the right to protest, ultimately the right of recall if occasion demands so.

Democracy cannot by its very essense control the citizen. Certain norms are established on the assumption that the majority of citizens will obey or will participate, whichever may be the case. To reduce democracy to a smaller scale—i.e. that of an organized business concern—would indeed magnify the seriousness of aparthy. It is evident that business cannot tolerate the abuse or neglect of the individual employee's rights and benefits. A business concern demands interest and cooperation; democracy must expect the same.

When you are wrong, change. When you are right, try to be easy to live with.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Pat Flanagan
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
Staff—Sharon Samuels, Rose Miller, Editorial: Editor, Karen Aude; Keith Bromery

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

Much Ado About Fortas

The Senate Judiciary Committee will today cast their vote on what will be done with Justice Abe Fortas, the man Johnson has nominated to fill the shoes of Earl Warren. And with this decision the matter will be turned over to the Senate either with or without the committee's recommendation that it be approved.

So, here again we are seeing our political lead actors winding up their year's performance in a mockery of Shakespeare's play, Much Ado About Nothing. The Senate, playing a major role in the performance, is casting for a more conservative part in next year's show. While Johnson is attemping to counter this by casting a liberal, Warren prototype for the Chief Justice's post. And with this Johnson is finding out what it is like to be on the other end of the stick as it were - - an ironic turn of fate or rather reversal of roles for our chief executive who used to like playing antagonist roles.

With this debate about to preoccupy our chief lawmaking body, it is obvious that such things as bills and amendments will be forgotten and left for next year's cast. And we witness the same election year theatrics taking place again. Our law makers are quick to tire and are all too soon ready to go into off season. While our soon to retire Executive Leader is busy trying to push through some final pieces of legislation in an attempt to go out with some simile of having done something. With the nomination of Fortas, Johnson has in effect sacrificed one for the other unless Senate leader Mike Mansfield stalls the debate until other legislation is acted on. But such, according to informed sources, is not likely to be Mansfield's decision. So the Fortas debate will probably preempt action on such legislation as the proposed nonproliferation treaty and the congressional reform bill, two sound pieces of legislation, the former of which proposed by Johnson, are before the Senate now.

So what it comes down to is, which is the more important - - the passage of what some believe to be crucial legislation or the naming of a Warren successor. Fortunately, our Senate Repertory Company's lead actor will decide the outcome, and if he's anything like Jane, how can we lose! ?

Inside Report...

(Continued from Page 1)

This late start means the struggles for personal power inside the Humphrey camp, generally fought out in the Nixon camp a month ago, are now in progress on Virginia Avenue. Almost every middle and upper echelon job in the Humphrey operation has been subject to conflict these past two weeks and nowhere has this been more telling than in fund-raising.

Maguire, National Committee treasurer under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, was chief fund-raiser and an important strategist in Humphrey's nomination campaign. By convention time, however, Maguire was being shunted aside in favor of Minneapolis business tycoon Robert Short, a Humphrey intimate (who is now acting treasurer at the National Committee).

As campaign time neared, Maguire and Short were thrashing out their differences. Maguire, a secretive man who likes to work in the shadows, wanted to concentrate on clandestine collections from fat cats; Short, far more open, preferred broader-based appeals. Short won the argument, and Maguire left the campaign taking with him incomparable fund-rasing contacts.

This leaves Short with a million-dollar deficit left over from Humphrey's preconvention campaign, an empty treasury inherited from the do-nothing National Committee, and the task of financing what looks like a losing campaign.

Apart from fund-raising, there has been confusion over who's making the decisions. Prior to the convention, Humphrey personally asked both O'Brien and Orville Freeman, Sec. of Agriculture, to run his campaign. When he finally talked O'Brien into taking on the chore, Freeman was left in an ambiguous position. His role remains undefined.

Similarly, the two young Senators who were co-chairmen of the nomination campaign — Walter (Fritz) Mondale of Minnesota and Fred Harris of Oklahoma — have been downgraded and are not happy about it. Significantly, Mondale was on a hunting trip last week as campaign planning was under way.

At lower echelons, turbulence has been the rule. Marty McNamara, chief advance man for Humphrey's campaign, has quit after first being demoted. Jim O'Brien (no relation to Larry), the suave AFL-CIO functionary who ran Humphrey's labor division all year, has been exiled to senior citizens' affairs.

In the midst of this chaos mistakes and omissions are inevitable. Humphrey's first-week schedule was incessantly revised, angering local politicians. His over-long first day, scheduled by Freeman, contributed to his inconsistent, self-damaging statements on Vietnam. Worst of all, there is no plan for cutting Nixon down to size; indeed, there is not even a usable Nixon file at Virginia Avenue.

Thus, Larry O'Brien's problem at the National Committee is to resolve organizational hassles, devise a strategy, and give the campaign some momentum in time to overhaul front-running Nixon. "Larry's the greatest," says one subordinate on Virginia Avenue, "but he can't walk on water." He may have to if Humphrey is to have any chance.

MDC

stands for Massachusetts Daily Collegian.

If you would like to work for the MDC, stop by the Student Union this Thursday evening at 8:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers. Tell us your name and what you'd like to do and we'll do our darndest to find a place for you.

No previous experience is necessary, and you don't have to be an outstanding journalist. Freshmen are also encouraged to apply.

If you want to join the most interesting and exciting organization on campus, then drop in and see us Thursday night. Coffee and doughnuts will be on the house.

"The Year of Curriculum Change" — Predicts MDC Education Editor

By Richard W. Story
Education Editor

If past years had borne labels—The Year of Curfew Change, The Year of Open House Change—the coming year would certainly have to be The Year of Curriculum Change. The heart of what it is that makes this a university and not a Grossinger's resort is in the air this season; and, most excitingly, it's spread beyond the traditionally small circle of "activists" griping about everything in general.

The Senate Academic Affairs Committee is presently organizing itself to begin what promises to be the first fundamental and full-scale student investigation and study of the state of the undergraduate curriculum in arts and sciences. At least one other group — an ad-hoc committee—is also hoping to develop an evaluation and some recommendations regarding this particular curriculum. At a higher level, the Provost's Office is becoming more visibly concerned about the matter; and we find that the Trustees have just announced the appointment of an Associate Provost, a Dr. Jeremiah M. Allen, to be particularly responsible for curriculum development and new areas of educational innovation University-wide.

All of these recent developments are heartening, and speak well of the future of high-level and college-wide study of the curriculum. But what of the more immediate problems within the particular departments—the level at which the majority of students meet whatever difficulties the present structure may give? With something that is as personal, and requires as large a portion of the total curriculum as does the individual department, it is vitally important that the situation be as favorable as possible on this immediate home-front.

Student Faculty Committees

More than a year ago the Faculty Senate went on record as favoring the idea of joint student-faculty curriculum committees at the departmental level, and recommended the idea to the departments for implementation. The action carried no force of requirement; and departments were left to themselves to act as they saw fit. Several departments in different divisions of the University had, or have since formed, such committees; but at present the general tide of response to this idea has been less than completely favorable, and the majority of departments throughout the University still lack viable, or even established, student-faculty committees. The time for this to change has come, as has been all too evident to many students for quite some time, but as is now also becoming evident to the highest levels of the administration besides.

Provost Tippo, in action before his Deans' Council this summer, re-introduced the idea of joint departmental committees, speaking quite clearly to the Deans of the desirability of establishing such groups in the many areas where they are still lacking. Although his action stopped short of ordering their formation, the verbal delivery of the occasion made his feelings on the matter clear—he stands squarely behind the idea; and has given the Deans a mid-Fall date to report back to him on actions and progress on the establishment of such joint committees.

The implications of this for student action seem clear: the time has never been more auspicious for concerned students in all departments of the University to approach their department head to determine what action is to be taken there for joint committees. For those departments which have established committees, it seems appropriate to determine that they are staffed with concerned students, and that they are given a genuine voice in plans for new courses or course and curriculum revision. For those departments still lacking committees, undergraduates must take the initiative in working for a departmental "majors" meeting to form such groups.

Student Support Needed

The Academic Affairs Committee has a role to play in University-wide curriculum reform, but its role is by no means the only role necessary or available. As a larger body it could exert some unifying and coordinating influence, but it needs help from other groups which can make themselves intimately aware of problems and needs on the level of the single department. In the past such particular student expertise has been lacking. Now, however, that the need for such small departmental committees is greater than ever before; and the climate from the top down has been made so open and aware of the need, and has been charged with action, there can be no excuse for further student delay in getting participation off the ground.

We of the Academic Affairs Committee welcome this development as a real and potentially most constructive step in improving the academic climate of this perhaps too-rapidly-expanding institution. The formation and activation of the standing student-faculty committees discussed here would be an ideal development, it seems, for providing the particular help which the Senate Committee will require in its undertaking of College-wide ,and ultimately University-wide) curriculum revision and reform in the coming year or so. Departmental student-faculty liaison committees can be a very real and very important first step in any important and meaningful curriculum revision. If the problem is as acute as it seems to be, the ideal occasion is now at hand for the first step in its improvement. Let us not fail to move forward now, as the need and occasion are so very ripe for great things academically.

Only one day left to save money on your books

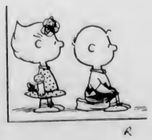
at the APO-GSS

BOOK EXCHANGE.

Plymouth Room, Student Union 10 a.m.-4 p.m.

COLLEGE DRUG – where you can find among many other famous brands

Imprevu - Cologne



by Coty Perfume

Body Lotion

Here's a perfect chance to get acquainted with this scent — spray cologne for only $2.50

DON'T JUST SIT THERE!

Take a walk to the

THREE C's

featuring:

THE PEANUTS SHOWCASE by Ambassador cards

Also Barricini candy, gifts, Hummel figures and much more

Looking for an unusual gift?
Something for the man who has everything? or Something that will add real class to your bartending?
Look no further, here is the item that will fill the bill—

a jigger in either plain or polished pewter found at

BAKER-WINN JEWELERS

31 So. Pleasant St.

Amherst Tower

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Ed School Classes Suspended This Week for Series of Films

No classes will be held in the School of Education this week. Instead, a series of films will be offered in the program, "Education Innovation." The films will be offered and shown in the School of Education Auditorium.

Today's schedule is:

8:30 - 11:30 A. M.
VII Large Group Instruction
VIII Technology in Education
IX Finding Direction for Developing Technology
1 - 3 P. M.
V The Open Laboratory
VII Large Group Instruction
VIII Technology in Education
7 - 10 P. M.
IX Finding Direction for Developing Technology
XIII Achievement Monitoring
XIV New Dimensions in School Building Flexibility
XV Conversations on Learning No. I

UMass Professor to Chair College Of Management Philosophy Meeting

UMass Professor Walter G. O'Donnell, will chair the meetings of the College of Management Philosophy and present a paper in Cleveland this week.

The conference is part of the fifteenth international meeting of The Institute of Management Sciences (TIMS). The Institute, with a membership of about 5000 people in 50 nations, is a scientific society established to identify, extend and unify scientific knowledge that contributes to the understanding and practice of management.

The College of Management Philosophy is a professional research group founded with the Institute by Dr. O'Donnell in 1960. It was the first professional research group organized for the purpose of investigating the scientific and philosophical aspects of managerial decisions.

The MDC

Wants You!

Biafrans Use Earthmovers Against Enemy

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Roadcutting bulldozers are helping Biafra's fighting men slow federal Nigerian brigades pressing in upon the secessionist republic.

Government soldiers said yesterday the Biafrans use earthmovers to chew craters in invasion routes and stall federal military columns for sniper fire or direct assault. The pits average about 40 feet wide and 15 feet deep.

The large-scale guerrilla warfare sworn by the Biafran leader, Col. Oumegwu Ojukwu, so far has not materialized. Some here doubt it ever will.

Nigerian military men insist the Biafrans cannot launch a major guerrilla war once the federals have taken the major towns in the east. They say that, unlike the Viet Cong, the Biafrans have no major outside source of supply. The core of territory left to the Biafrans is landlocked and ringed by the federal forces.

The Nigerians are bearing down now on two airstrips, Anabelle and Carolina, in Uilhiala, in western Biafra, and on Lago airstrip in the north-central area. These are the last known fields at which the Biafrans are receiving food and arms.

NOTICES

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Gamma Sigma Sigma will meet today in the Norfolk Room of the Student Union at 6:30 p.m. The Executive Board will meet at 6:00 p.m.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION
The Christian Science Organization will meet at 6:45 p.m. tonight in the Worcester Room of the Student Union. Everyone is welcome to the first weekly testimony meeting.

HEYMAKERS
Are you interested in an unusual activity with unusual people? Try Western Dancing, tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Student Union.

EDUCATION CLUB
Be a member of the best club on campus. Meetings with the new dean, faculty, etc. to be planned, plus many new and exciting things to come. Become someone special, join the Education Club. Registration in S.U. Lobby today and tomorrow, 9-4:30 p.m.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
First meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Worcester Room, SU. Skydiving movie to be shown. New members welcome.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSN.
Organizational meeting, elections, plan activities tonight, 7 p.m., radio room on lower level of computer center. All are invited.

ATTENTION VETERANS AND CHILDREN OF VETERANS
It is essential that if you expect to continue receiving educational benefits from Veterans Administration, you re-enroll at once for the new academic year with the Veterans' coordinator in Whitmore Administration Building.

HONORS COLLOQUIA
Students in the Honors Program may sign up for the Colloquia, today through Thursday in the Honors Program Office, Machmer Hall, E-22.

DANCE GROUP
The UMass Dance Group will meet tomorrow, Sept. 18 and each Wed. thereafter at 7 p.m. in the Dance Studio of the WoPE building. All students interested in improving their ability in modern dance are invited to attend. The beginning Dance Group will meet Tuesdays at 4:00 p.m. (for students with little or no experience.)

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
Meeting of the Collegiate Flying Club at 7:30 P.M. tomorrow in the Hampshire Room of the Student Union. All members and interested parties please attend; slides will be shown.

OPERETTA GUILD
The Operetta Guild will hold auditions for Annie Get Your Gun from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. September 25 and 26 in the Bristol and Essex Rooms of Student Union. Actors, singers, dancers, and technical people are needed. No experience is necessary.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
The International Club will hold a coffee hour tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. in the Middlesex Lounge of the Student Union. American and Foreign students are welcome.

YOUNG REPUBLICANS
A meeting of the Young Republicans will be held tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. in the Worcester Room of the Student Union.

PINNINGS
Betsy Mitchell, 1970, John Quincy Adams Lower, to Ralph Larouanz, 1970, Theta Xi, California State Teacher's College in California, Pennsylvania.

Lorraine Balch, 1969, 1714 John Quincy Adams to Thomas Limero, 1969, 904 George Washington.

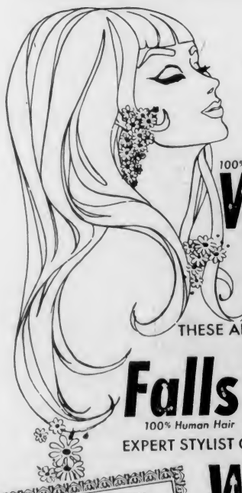
ENGAGEMENTS
Brigita Bertz, 1970, 301 Brooks to Richard B. Pickett, 1970, Alpha Sigma Phi.

Jane L. Shields, 1969, Iota Gamma Upsilon to Cadet David Hill, 1969, United States Military Academy at West Point.

Susan Ann Young, 1970, 1106 John Quincy Adams, to J. Harris Dean, 1969, Kendrick Place, Amherst.

Margaret Leonard, 1969, 207 Emily Dickinson to Bill Burke, 1969, 426 Grayson.

Brenda Granstrom, 1968, Dickinson, to Lt. Leonard Schmidt, Chanute, A.F.B. Illinois.



Nancy R. Fogg, 1969, Johnson to John W. Parsons, 1969, Clark Univ., Worcester.

LOST AND FOUND
Beagle six months old lost Sept. 12 in the vicinity of South Prospect Street, Amherst. Black-brown spot around one eye. Black collar. Call Dr. Denkler, 253-3000. Generous reward.

Tiger kitten seven months old named "Scandle" lost in the vicinity of Nutting Avenue. Please return to 15 Nutting Avenue, or call 256-7342.

On either Sept. 10 or 11, I picked up two brown bags containing a laundry bag, picture frame, and some picture hangers from two boys in a white Volkswagen on my way back from Zayres. Please contact Mimi Kuryla in 199 Patterson or call 6-8304.

GRAND OPENING
"OVERSEAS WIG WAREHOUSE"
YOU CAN'T BUY A BETTER QUALITY AT ANY PRICE!
Luxurious! Fashionable WIGS . WIGLETS . FALLS in 60 J.L. colors on full display right on the walls . . . That's why you have never seen such drastic price slashing.

FREE Head with any hair purchase and this ad

100% Human Hair
Wiglets 7.90
THESE ARE EVERYDAY LOW PRICES.
Falls 29.60
100% Human Hair
EXPERT STYLIST ON DUTY AT EACH OUTLET.
Wigs 19.75
100% Human Hair
CHOOSE FROM THOUSANDS

OVERSEAS WIG WAREHOUSE TWO YEAR GUARANTEE
You get a written guarantee that assures you your investment will pay beauty dividends for a long time. Overseas Wigs have a full two-year guarantee.

146 MAIN STREET
NORTHAMPTON, MASS.
HOURS: MON THROUGH SAT. 10 - 6 P.M.
THURS. 10 - 9
next to Dickinson Drug

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

MDC
HOT NEWS
LINE 5-2550

STUDENT ACTIVITIES NIGHT
Wednesday, September 18
7 p.m., Ballroom, S.U.

Don't be left out in the warm . . .
Come on in where the cleaning is breezy!
at
HERCULES CLEANERS
187 North Pleasant St.
Amherst

QUONSET CLUB GOLF DRIVING RANGE
Route 9 - Hadley, Mass.
(½-MILE FROM THE UNIV. OF MASSACHUSETTS)
Free Golf Instruction Every Day from 7 to 8 p.m.
(EXCEPT MON.)
By Bob Caprera, P.G.A. Professional
ALSO GOLF LESSONS BY APPOINTMENT
OPEN DAY - NITE TEL. 253-9214

'We'll Take Our Drubbings Once in a While'--Lederle

(Continued from Page 8)

letic endeavors have restraining factors other than simple ethics and regulations of the NCAA, ECAC and the Yankee Conference. "When we went to the Tangerine Bowl in '64, some faculty members were upset. What they didn't know was that we were invited to the Bowl the year before and we refused. We were later invited and again refused."

I might add parenthetically that suspicions were reportedly growing at UMass that a sizable share of the Tangerine gate was not being contributed, as was publicized, to charity. More important for UMass, the Tangerine Bowl is only as "important" as a game can be that matches two small college powers on a high school field.

Regarding the Yankee Conference, Lederle appreciates its coziness and the simplicity of scheduling. But he says (hawks take heart), "There are some other pulls going on. We are a dynamically growing institution. You've also got to think of natural rivalries (a statement that excludes Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont)."

He nevertheless, sympathizes with the other Conference schools, especially Vermont, which is weighing de-emphasis of football because of economic troubles. "Maybe that's not a bad idea for them," he says.

While he opposed the original Twenty Formula, he notes that

DR. JOHN W. LEDERLE
"Other pulls going on . . ."

some of the "aberrations" of Conference policy have been deleted, including a rule that if an athlete leaves school before completing his athletic eligibility, his scholarship cannot be transferred to another athlete.

As for predicting further changes in Conference rules, however, he laughed, "I don't want to be like our friend at Maine." He was referring to Maine football coach Walt Abbott, who last fall said his team could go unbeaten. The Black Bears didn't win a game.

In defense of the athletic scholarship, he says, "I don't think it is a contaminating thing." Arguing against abandonment of U Mass' relatively limited approach, he says, "Athletes should not be discriminated against." Financial needs constitute the prime factor in the grants, he says.

"I came from UMich and I personally knew many lettermen and All-Americans. Many became leaders but for the fact they got their foot in the door through the athletic program. He said that when a writer in the Atlantic Monthly many years ago called for an end to the term "amateur" in collegiate athletics, a well-known athletic director replied, "Not everyone can write for the Atlantic Monthly."

If the point there is, as I think, that success depends upon opportunity as well as educational achievement, why don't schools employ the same principle in other areas and subsidize talent in, for example, art or music on a large scale? The answer of course lies in the money gained from sporting events, the school-spirit factor of watching them as a "team" of rooters, the ubiquitous love of sports, the threat of devastating losses and the fact that if a university suddenly dropped all athletic scholarships, other sources would supply funds covered. These are undeniable reasons, but there are other considerations.

Talented athletes are not the only ones who need a door to put their foot in nor have they cornered the market on poverty. While the athletic scholarship is not "contaminating" at UMass, there are cases, documented and undocumented, of such a state elsewhere.

The University of Illinois "slush fund" affair a few years ago, which resulted in walking papers for three coaches was unfortunate in that every major school is known to dispense substantial laundry money. Illinois apparently just had the most invegtigative administration. Niagara's basketball sensation, Calvin Murphy is reported to earn more than just his college expenses merely by twirling a baton during Buffalo Bills games.

What all this means in UMass' future is not clear. As long as the Twenty Formula, although now revised, continues, tension will grow at UMass over membership in the Yankee Conference.

Perhaps UMass could now make an honorable withdrawal and at the same time escalate its competitive policies. On the other hand, let us suppose the UMass admissions and scholarship boards were to stop accepting recommendations from coaches. The "smalltime" Yankee Conference, which has presented difficulties for UMass, might also present an ideal situation to withdraw from scholarship wars.

As President Lederly says, athletes who spend long hours on the practice field are entitled to special benefits. Certainly, if the university halted its athletic scholarships, the alumni would partially fill the financial void even though they of course lack the wealth of Ivy League groups.

Sadly, some coaches would undoubtedly pack their bags in disgust and schedules would have to be revamped. A vitally concerned president and splendid athletic facilities could not stem the muscle drain.

The idea, then, would be too drastic for UMass or any school with a similar sports program. So the only other path, it appears, as UMass ponders its position in the Conference, is out and up.

Sports Briefs

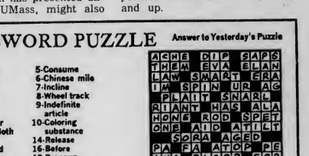
STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP) The New York Mets cut five players Monday, trimming their American Basketball Association roster to 13.

Coach Max Zaslofsky said he had released Don Carlos, formerly with Hartford of the Eastern Basketball League; Art Stephenson, from Rhode Island; Kenny McIntyre and Hank Cluss, both of St. John's University, New York, and Jay Warhaftig.

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — The Patriot-Ledger said yesterday that Arnold Palmer, the first million dollar winner on the pro golf tour, will be named interim commissioner of the new American Professional Golfers, Inc.

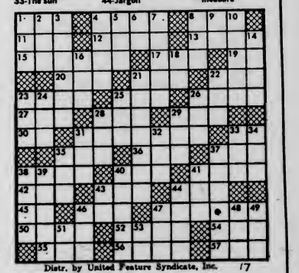
In a story by golf writer Roger Barry, the newspaper reported that Palmer has agreed to accept the position until a permanent commissioner is chosen.

Palmer, who won the 150,000 Kemper Open at Sutton, Mass., Sunday, announced his support of the APG in its bitter dispute with the PGA over control of the tournament tour.



Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

MUSIGALS
TRYOUTS
Tuesday Sept. 17 6 p.m.
STUDENT UNION
ALTO ONLY



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1-Concealed
4-Lampreys
8-Knock
11-Poem
12-Go by water
13-Two-toed sloth
15-Chaste
17-River island
19-Preposition
20-Native metal
21-Emmet
22-Conjunction
23-Manufactured
25-Likely
26-Singing voice
27-Mature
28-Part of face
29-Employ
30-Note of scale
31-Bothers
33-A continent (abbr.)
35-Speck
36-Born
37-Mountain pass
38-Article of clothing
40-Fruit drink
41-Barrier
42-Snake
43-Possessive pronoun
44-Vehicle
45-Greek letter
46-In favor of
47-Glued
50-Comfort
52-Gaseous element
54-Eggs
55-Permit
56-Send forth
57-Man's nickname

DOWN
1-Brick-carrying device
2-Cyprinoid fish
3-Decipher
4-Slave
5-Consume
6-Chinese mile
7-Incline
8-Wheel track
9-Indefinite article
10-Coloring substance
14-Release
16-Before
18-Pronoun
21-Attaches to
22-Beverage
23-Insane
24-Time gone by
25-Be ill
26-Beast of burden
28-Parcel of land
29-Southwestern Indian
31-Witty remark
32-Bishopric
33-The sun
34-Everyone
35-Plunge
37-Grate
38-Identical
39-Commonplace
40-Make amends
41-Existed
43-Prefix: not
44-Jargon
46-Fondle
47-Edible rootstock
48-Girl's name
49-Parent (colloq.)
51-Compass point
53-Printer's measure

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 17

THE WIZARD OF ID — by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. — by Johnny hart

PEANUTS

17 SEPT

Line-Up Plagues Coaches

McGuirk Still Unhappy with 20 Formula

An injury to sophomore guard Pierre Marchando in the intra-squad scrimmage this weekend has accentuated the Redmen's lack of depth in the offensive line, and the coaching staff still meditating on the line-up for the Maine opener.

Marchando suffered a head injury and will probably not be present when the Redmen kick-off the new season at the Stadium Saturday at 1:30.

UMass will use Bruce Fulton at one guard post, but may have to shift Mike Cooney from tackle to fill the other slot. Starting tackles will then likely be Jim Nangle and huge Dick Donlin.

The guard situation has been a sore point since Bob Goe quit football this year and junior John MacLean was moved to middle guard on defense, in place of the injured Andy Guarino. Another possibility at guard is senior George Crane, but an injury to soph Ed Flaim left the Redmen without any other depth at the position.

About 20 players have suffered minor injuries (muscle pulls, etc.) since pre-season practice began two weeks ago. The sidelined group is still a far cry from the casualty total in the great injury jinx of two years ago. "Let's not go through that again," Head Coach Vic Fusia moaned.

The coaches are not expecting yeoman deeds from the sophomore contingent in the early going. "We don't expect too much from the sopha until the third or fourth game," said Fusia.

UMass' conference foes, hoping to rob the Redmen of their fifth Yankee title in six years, may already be licking their chops while surveying the fact that several Redmen may be playing on both offense and defense this year.

REDMEN ROUNDUP — A weekly color film of highlights of UMass football games will begin Sunday at 1 p.m. on Channels 22 in Springfield, 14 in Worcester and 32 in Keene, N. H. The Maine game highlights, of course, will comprise the first of the half-hour shows . . . The Maine film will also be shown when the UMass Varsity "M" Club kicks off its weekly football luncheons at the Newman Center Tuesday at noon. One of the UMass coaches will narrate the film, and awards will be presented to the best offensive and defensive performers for the Redmen in the Maine game. The coaches make the selections for the weekly awards.

Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk is still unsatisfied with the 20 Formula, even though the scholarship limit was altered in June by the Conference presidents to cover just football and basketball. Previously, it limited financial aid to athletes in baseball, soccer and track too. He wants a 25 Formula, for football and basketball, although it is no secret that he and President Lederle would prefer unlimited scholarship help, as a conference policy. If such were the case, he says, all scholarship records would still be detailed for Conference officials. A memorandum sent in the spring by President Lederle to his colleagues at the other five Conference schools, outlined the following alternatives to the 20 Formula: 1) unlimited aid, 2) a 20 Formula for football alone and 3) a 25 Formula for football and basketball . . .

A testimonial for Larry Briggs, the popular UMass soccer coach who resigned in June because of ill health, will be held Sunday, Oct. 13, at 6 p.m. in the Student Union. Tickets may be obtained from the athletic department's brand-new business manager, Al Rufe . . .

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

GRAHAM'S GEMS — The Redmen open their 1968 football schedule against Maine at Alumni Stadium Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Line coach Bob Graham gives his linemen a lesson at a pre-season drill.

UMass' Greg Landry, UPI said, had a miserable day in his starting role Sunday for the Detroit Lions, tossing four intercepted passes in the 59-13 massacre by the Dallas Cowboys. But a 15-for-31 performance is not all that bad. Landry had three TD passes of 45 yards to Mel Farr and 80 yards to Earl McCullough. The Lions play the Chicago Bears this Sunday . . .

Two surprise scrimmage showings by UMass opponents: B.U. edged highly touted Yale and Brian Dowling, 17-14; and New Hampshire beat Harvard, 18-10 . . . Coach Homer Barr's wrestling varsity will hold an organizational meeting tonight at 8 in Boyden, Room 222 . . .

J.G.

If you see news in the making, call 5-2550 Hotline

Crew Team Seeks Recruits—Large and Small

Daily Collegian Photo by Bob Mangiaratti

If you are 6' and weigh at least 170 pounds and are interested in joining the crew team, there will be an organizational meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in Room 249 Boyden.

Then again, if you're not that large, Coach Mike Faherty is also looking for smaller men who are under 125 pounds to be coxswains.

One Redman Rooter Who Does More Than Cheer

Lederle (right) with Coach Vic Fusia after the '64 Tangerine Bowl loss in Orlando, Fla.

(Ed. note: This is another in a series of articles on UMass sports originally published in the Summer Statesman. The articles are written by Tom FitzGerald, Sports Editor of the Summer Statesman.)

INSIDE UMASS SPORTS

by Tom FitzGerald

Students have called him President Leaderless, ostensibly because UMass doesn't offer a course on the New Left, and the Phantom, perhaps because he doesn't appear at dorm picnics.

When he arrived in 1960 and saw UMass beat Harvard, 27-12, he was labeled the good luck charm of the football team. "The next week Connecticut took us, 31-0," he remembers. "But they haven't beaten us since."

A former Detroit attorney who once argued before the U.S. Supreme Court, Dr. John Lederle staunchly defends the role of athletics in campus life and the role of a restrained athletic scholarship policy in athletics.

One of the functions of the university, he says, is to establish "habit patterns" in sports as well as in education. "It's obvious academics come first and athletics second," he answered. "You can do things dually as long as you maintain the primacy of academics."

Dr. Lederle's concern for the athletic department includes root-root-rooting for the home team. He attends all the away football game too. He says of all the times he has seen Greg Landry play, he was most impressed by the star quarterback for his perseverance during the loss to B.C. last fall, when the only support Landry had was strictly grass roots.

"The thing going for us is a fine physical plant," he says in comparing UMass athletically to other schools. "Our little stadium is a gem."

But he is apparently training a watchful eye on the other sports. "We've got to get ourselves a rink in the near future," he says. "I think the whole student body would benefit from a skating rink, open from early in the morning to late at night, as on other campuses." He adds that the project would probably have to be self-liquidating because of a shortness of funds.

On the need for a new basketball field house, he understates, "The Cage is not a very attractive facility." A product of the University of Michigan, where he received his B.R., A.M., LL.B., and Ph.D. he alludes to the new fieldhouse at UMich, which he says is considered "the House that Cazzie (Russell) Built."

Lederle agrees with McGuirk on the value of wide-ranging athletic opportunities for collegiates. "I don't know of a broader spectrum of intercollegiate or intramural sports," he says. With the addition of junior varsity teams, he points out, "There's an opportunity for the mediocre athlete to participate."

He feels, however, that breadth must encompass strength. "We've got a good young wrestling coach (Homer Barr)," he says with a smile. "We'll be up there with Oklahoma some day."

And he feels the spectrum may have its limits. On the possibility of whole-hearted support for the Crew Club, he cautions, "That's about a $60,000 proposition. But you talk about dedication. Those guys really put out."

Reverting to more touchy matters, he expresses distaste for high-pressure recruiting of high school athletes (let's call it Bear-bryantism). He recalls a Carnegie Foundation report back in the '30's revealing rampant professionalism in colleges across the country. "I don't see any danger of that in New England. I just don't see it as a major problem."

As to UMass' position in this conservative recruiting picture, he says, "I'd like to have us become the first choice athletically in New England." While the Redfans cheer in unison to that statement, he adds, "But I don't think we ever will. I think we should play good ball, taking our drubbings once in a while, but at least so that we are representative of the best in the Commonwealth."

The players are not the only ones to benefit from intercollegiate athletics, he says. A home football game, for instance, represents "the one time when the whole academic community gathers in one place. There is virtue in the symbolic act." The hawks can't have everything: "We have no intention of playing big-time like Penn State and Syracuse," he says.

Dr. Lederle points out that ath-

(Continued on Page 7)

17

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 18 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1968

Boland, McDonald Win; Kennedy Power Decisive

BOSTON (AP)—Two Massachusetts Congressmen, running with the Kennedy Prestige behind them, won renomination easily in last night's Massachusetts State Primary.

Rep. Edward P. Boland of the 2nd District in Western Massachusetts and Rep. T.H. Macdonald of the 7th district outside of Boston were easy victors. Boland gathered 26,318 votes to his opponent, former Springfield Mayor Charles V. Ryan's 13,667. Macdonald swamped his opponent John Elder, Assistant Dean of the Harvard Divinity School.

Boland, long a political associate of the Kennedys, had the campaign support of both Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his wife Joan in his nomination fight in his tight district which centers around Springfield in western Massachusetts.

It was Kennedy's first political appearance since the death of his brother Robert in June. With 95 of the 2nd District's 151 precincts tallied, Boland had 23,723 votes to 12,212 for Ryan.

In campaigning for Boland, Kennedy was returning a favor. Four years ago Boland toured the state in behalf of Kennedy's campaign for reelection to the Senate. Kennedy was confined to a hospital at the time with a broken back suffered in a plane crash.

Another of the old Kennedy campaign team, Rep. Tobert H. Macdonald, got off to a fast start in his renomination fight. The first 31 of 172 precincts in Macdonald's 7th district gave him 6,703 votes to 2,443 for his opponent for the Democratic nomination, the Rev. John D. Elder, assistant dean of the Harvard Divinity School.

Macdonald was a Harvard classmate of the late President John F. Kennedy, and worked in his campaigns for the House, the Senate and the Presidency. In turn, Kennedy, when a Senator, helped Macdonald in his early campaigns for a House seat.

Custodians Strike Continues; Wages, Working Conditions Key

By Pat Frances
Staff Reporter

Seventy-two UMass custodians, the majority of whom work in Southwest, reported sick Tuesday, in their continuing dispute with the University over wages and working conditions.

To ease the workload of the janitors who remained in Southwest, the University assigned about 20 men from other areas to Southwest to fill in. About seven refused to go.

The University Business Office tried to contact the janitors through their supervisors, in order to tell them that the University wants to talk with them over grievances.

According to University spokesmen, the Administration does not know the specifics of the custodians' grievances, and wishes to talk to the men directly.

A Custodian's Wife's Story

"If we could find another job that would pay half way decent, I'd have him quit." This is the feeling of a UMass janitor's wife who contacted the Collegian office yesterday in the wake of the dispute between the janitors and administration that has become a full-blown controversy complete with walk-out.

The woman, wishing to remain anonymous, accused the University of trying to pass the buck to the state in the matter of wages and working conditions. She said that the janitors have taken their grievances to the University previously, but have not been satisfied.

The current starting salary for janitors is $80.45 per week. After seven years, this is raised to $101. The janitors would like to see an across-the-board pay hike granted, instead of a percentage raise. This, they argue, would not benefit the upper-level administrators with "high" wages, instead of the janitors. They are trying to have the pay level raised to a Grade 7, at which starting pay is approximately $90 per week.

The janitor's wife alleged that the University is short so many men in the Southwest area that janitors are covering 5-6 floors for the same pay as the three floors for which they are contracted.

At Amherst College, the woman said, the College pays for all Blue Cross-Blue Shield costs, including the family. A check with Amherst revealed that coverage is only for the individual worker. The custodian must then pay the difference if he wants his family covered. According to the woman, the University pays half of the Blue Cross - Blue Shield coverage, but in January this will be raised to three - quarters of the cost for the family plan.

She complained that the lump sum for these payments comes out of one check, instead of being spaced over the period of a month. (This is standard University policy.)

The woman accused Gerald Grady, university business manager, of not doing anything about wages. "Why hasn't he gone to bat before, when these grievances were known? It seems that the University could do something, without trying to pass the buck."

Lederle Tells It "Like It Is" in Major Convocation Address

By Bill Dickinson
Senior Reporter

President John W. Lederle told it "like it is" at the Opening Convocation this morning, and impressed many observers with his forthrightness and candor.

The president, borrowing a phrase from former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John Gardner, called on students, faculty members and administrators to join in an "army without banners" which "will act with wisdom and reject foolishness, which believes in our experiment here and is not incredulous, which seeks the Light of intellect and avoids the Darkness of emotionalism, which knows that if we can pass through this winter of despair, we will emerge into a spring of hope."

Lederle rejected the idea of the University being an "ivory tower." He said, "I don't think that the role of the University is to provide a haven from life. I believe that we are here to confront, to challenge, to find a better way." To find a better way, he urged members of the University community to realize that it is a "microcosm of a larger society" with all the attendant problems, such as drug abuse, sexual promiscuity, senseless destruction, pollution, and people "ready to capitalize on the problems and frustrations of others."

SEE TEXT PAGE 10

But he said that there is one difference. The University is a "laboratory of the science, and the art, of life. And it is our role here to do something about 'like it is.' with the purpose of making life 'like it ought to be'."

As in the rest of society, "We have our political activists, those who choose to work through established campus governmental organizations . . . and those who prefer to parade and picket with large signs proclaiming choice Elizabethan expressions of disagreement, dismay, and dissillusionment."

PRESIDENT LEDERLE

Lederle also criticized the uninvolved "who pass their years among us wrapped within an invisible envelope of indifference and isolation." He accused them of using their diploma as a "lifelong meal ticket to material affluence, physical comfort and the preservation of the status quo."

Praising the tri-partite governmental approach at the University, the president vowed to continue to work within the system, unswayed by either "the impa-

(Continued on Page 8)

Silverman Sees Academic Growth Crucial to UMass Development

Following President Lederle's address, Student Senate President Paul Silverman called for academic and intellectual growth to match the University's physical growth.

"The University administration seems to be reaching out to effect change where it is needed and where change enhances the University and the society beyond it," he said.

Silverman commented, "The channels of communication which spur on changes in the academic community must always be open at the lowest echelons. Change must never be a sole goal for a university or in fact for any society. Change must be the vehicle for reaching our goals."

"We must set goals which will permit us to rise above the demagoguery which is an inherent part of the 'political world' . . . We must provide the leadership and determination necessary to recondition an ailing society."

Five Teachers Cited Today At Convocation Ceremonies

The 1968 Distinguished Teacher Awards were presented today to an engineer, a chemist and a sociologist.

Honored at the annual University Convocation this morning were William W. Boyer, professor of civil engineering; Dr. Earl J. McWhorter, assistant professor of chemistry; and Dr. Thomas O. Wilkinson, professor of sociology.

Presentations were made by U Mass Provost Oswald Tippo, who also presented awards to Terence Burke, associate professor of geography, and Dr. Robert W. Gage, director of University Health Services and head of the Department of Public Health.

Mr. Burke was presented a 1967 Distinguished Teacher Award that he was unable to accept last year while on leave to study abroad. He shared the 1967 award with Dr. Richard C. Foley, professor of veterinary and animal sciences.

Dr. Gage was presented the 1967 Metawampe Award, an honor voted by the UMass student body each year for "outstanding dedication both in and outside the classroom." He was away and unable to accept the award when it was announced last spring.

The Distinguished Teacher Award is given each year for "manifest excellence in the art of teaching and outstanding devotion to the cause of education." Selection is by an all-University faculty committee.

Mr. Boyer teaches surveying, transportation engineering and transportation planning and analysis. He is advisor to the UM student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He holds B.S. and M.S. degrees in civil engineering from North Carolina State College and was a faculty member at that institution before joining the UMass staff in 1954.

Dr. McWhorter, before joining the UMass faculty in 1954, was a teaching assistant and Shell Fellow in Chemistry at Cornell University. He holds a B.S. degree in chemistry from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and a Ph.D. in chemistry from Cornell. He is regarded as one of the most respected and most effective teachers of undergraduates in the chemistry department.

Dr. Wilkinson has served as associate head of the department of sociology, acting chairman of the UMass Asian Studies Program, UMass campus representative to the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Foundation and advisor to the UMass Class of 1965. A specialist in population problems, he is joint author of the book "World's Metropolitan Areas" and author of "The Urbanization of Japanese Labor: 1868 - 1955." A UMass faculty member since 1953, he holds degrees from the University of North Carolina, Duke University and Columbia University.

The awards each carry a $1000 stipend.

Czech Crisis Over . . .

Committee Frees Nuclear Treaty For Senate Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nuclear nonproliferation treaty, mired for weeks in concern over the Czechoslovakia crisis, finally was freed by the Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday for full Senate consideration.

The vote for the pact to halt the spread of nuclear weapons was 13 to 3, with three abstentions.

No date was set for Senate debate. But Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., acting committee chairman, said he hopes action will come during the current session.

Nearly 80 nations—including the United States and Russia—have signed the treaty, but the U.S. Constitution requires a two-thirds majority vote of the Senate for ratification.

There have been insistent demands that action be held up because of the Czech crisis and concern over other Soviet intentions. Among those who called for delay outside Congress was Richard M. Nixon, the Republi can presidential nominee.

President Johnson signed the treaty July 1 and hearings were held in July with Secretary of State Dean Rusk saying speedy action is needed to deal with the perils of proliferation. But then came the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia last month.

Opposition grew rapidly, with critics arguing that approval now would amount to an offer of cooperation with Russia at the same time the United States is condemning the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

But treaty backers said the pact should be considered apart from Soviet moves in Europe in the interest of curbing the spread of nuclear weapons.

The treaty would pledge nuclear nations signing it not to provide nuclear weapons—or the knowhow to make them—to countries that do not now have them. Provision is made for sharing information on peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Traditional Soph-Frosh Picnic to Differ From Past Years; Will Have Bolder Look

The traditional opening of the academic year's social events takes place this Saturday with some tradition breaking. The spon soring classes' president, the class of 1971's Joe Tobacco, views his presentation of the S oph-Frosh Picnic as "A traditional picnic with a bold, new outlook."

"We've moved the picnic from the Student Union to the Southwest area adjacent to the football stadium because, it was just too inconvenient for everyone at the Union," he says reflectively.

"It might have been fine at the Student Union ten years ago when the football field was near there, but we have to keep up with the times. This is the way that we plan to run things all year."

The picnic is open to the entire campus. "We want to get away from the illusion that it's just for sophs and frosh," Tobacco emphatically claims. It will begin immediately after the UMass vs. Maine football game on Saturday.

Featured entertainment will be The Critters, whose recording of "Younger Girl" rocketed them to stardom in the entertainment circuit. Supporting them will be the Fifth Amendment.

Heading up the committee organizing the event itself are Betty Solovei and John Watson, who promise "A few surprises at the football game," as well.

"We're planning a number of other things for the future, as well," emphasizes Tobacco. Right now we're working on obtaining top-notch entertainment for December 6 and 7 evening concerts."

JOE TOBACCO

Campus Ad-Hoc Committee Proposes Dick Gregory - Coretta King Ticket

An ad hoc committee was formed here on campus to promote the candidacy of Dick Gregory for President and Coretta King for Vice President. They plan to kick off the campaign with a Day of Awareness at UMass on Thursday, Sept. 26.

According to the organizers, Gil Saik and Art Cunneen, they will begin with rallies in Southwest, Orchard Hill, and Northeast residence areas. Each rally will end in a parade moving across campus to the South Terrace of the Student Union.

The program will include jug bands, guerilla theater, speakers, and soap-box discussions.

According to talk; the write-in campaign is being launched in order to give a voice to American citizens whose views are at all "left" of center. He claims that "not only the radicals, but liberals and moderates as well, have been disenfranchised by the Democratic and Republican parties."

Claiming that the professional politicians have proven themselves either incapable or unwilling to deal with the major problems facing the nation today, he went on to say, "Dick Gregory's campaign can offer an opportunity for a mass protest vote against present policies, such as the de-emphasis of the poverty program, conduct of the war against Vietnam, and the viewing of urban unrest as a disease rather than a symption of disease."

Cunneen added that "the national parties have declared themselves irrelevant by ignoring grass roots feeling in America. The only major relevant political candidate on the scene now is George Wallace, and he is unacceptable. An acceptable and relevant candidate is needed, and we feel that Dick Gregory is the man."

All those interested in helping to organize the campaign and the Day of Awareness should attend a meeting to be held Thursday, Sept. 19 at 7 p.m. in T-4, 12th floor conference room.

Wallace Gets Running Mate

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — S. Marvin Griffin will be paired with George Wallace on the Connecticut presidential ballot in November, whether or not Wallace taps another man as his vice presidential choice, according to state officials.

Asked whether another name could be substituted for Griffin's on the Wallace ticket, Deputy Secretary of State James Daly said: "There is no provision in Connecticut law for such a substitution."

While there has been speculation that a substitution might be possible under court order, Daly said, "It is our belief that no such substitution could be made."

Daly noted that the petitions circulated by Wallace campaign workers to get the former Alabama governor's name on the Connecticut ballot had Griffin's name down as Wallace's running mate.

Risk of Life Imprisonment In Use of Guns In Fed. Crimes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Tuesday to make punishable by life imprisonment the use of firearms in numerous federal crimes.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., proposed this as an amendment to a bill prohibiting interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns.

The amendment was adopted by voice vote.

Dominick told the Senate it would serve notice on anyone armed with a gun while committing a federal crime of violence that he was running the risk of life imprisonment.

Crimes of violence are defined to include rape, kidnaping, robbery, burglary, theft, racketeering, extortion, arson and murder. The assassination of a president is also specified.

The Senate also adopted by voice vote an amendment to prohibit the confiscation by a government agency of any legally held and used firearm.

Numerous amendments remain to be acted on, including proposed registration of firearms and licensing of owners, but leaders are hopeful of passing the bill before the end of the week.

Dr. Ryan W. Drum, associate professor of the U Mass Botany department, has notified Dr. Seymour Shapiro, head of the Botany department, of his resignation. The resignation becomes effective August 31, 1969. Drum is presently involved in the Project 10 program.

ADD — DROP DEADLINES ANNOUNCED

The last day to add or drop a course without any record is Sept. 20. The last day to drop a course without penalty is Oct. 11. (courses dropped between Sept. 20 and Oct. 11 will be noted by "W")

Giant Poster from any photo

2 ft. x 3 ft. only $1.95* (64.95 value)

*Send any black & white or color photo (no negatives) and the name "Swingline" cut out from any Swingline package (or reasonable facsimile) to: POSTER-MART, P.O. Box 165, Woodside, N.Y. 11377. Enclose $1.95 cash, check, or money order (no C.O.D.'s). Add sales tax where applicable.

Poster rolled and mailed (postpaid) in sturdy tube. Original material returned undamaged. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Get a Swingline Tot Stapler

98¢ (including 1000 staples) Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.49

Unconditionally guaranteed. At any stationery, variety, or book store.

Swingline INC. LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y. 11101

YOUR NAME
COMPLETE ADDRESS
CITY, STATE. ZIP

→ 1000 ← Address Labels Save Time & Effort 75¢

COLLEGE STICKERS
P.O. BOX #829
AMHERST, MA. 01002

HAPPY HOUR Friday 4-7 P.M.

SPECIAL PARTIES TEL. 586-0114

"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY
SECOND FLOOR—CENTER
OPEN
4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays
12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.
1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun.
FACULTY & STAFF WELCOME

MDC recruiting meeting
8:30 – Thursday Night
Council Chambers

IT'S GREEK WEEK!!
SO DON'T FORGET THE CONCERT!

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Senate Committee Approves Fortas Nomination, But Filibuster Is Expected

WASHINGTON AP - By an 11-6 vote, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved Tuesday President Johnson's hotly contested nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice of the United States. Senate debate on the nomination is expected to start the first of next week, with opponents vowing to wage a filibuster if necessary to block confirmation.

Leaders of both parties have expressed doubt that a filibuster can be broken. A two-thirds majority of senators voting is required to invoke the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule.

The committee vote, after precedent-setting hearings at which Fortas was the first nominee for chief justice ever questioned by a congressional committee, turned out as expected.

Johnson, who submitted Fortas' nomination to the Senate on June 26, had no comment.

An associate justice of the Supreme Court since 1965, Fortas was nominated to suceed Chief Justice Earl Warren, who is retiring.

Johnson nominated another old friend and advisor, Circuit Court Judge Homer Thornberry of Texas, to replace Fortas as an associate justice.

The President has accepted Warren's proferred retirement effective upon Senate confirmation of a successor.

Thornberry's nomination has been set aside by the Judiciary Committee pending the outcome of Senate action on Fortas' appointment.

Leaders reportedly have made tentative plans to force a vote Sept. 27 on cutting off the expected filibuster. If this fails, a second attempt may be made in the middle of the following week, provided the first vote comes close to the required two-thirds majority.

Should two attempts to invoke the cloture rule fail, the fight to win Fortas's confirmation presumably would be abandoned.

An amendment to the gun control bill now before the Senate may be seized on by opponents to get in some licks at Fortas before the debate on his nomination starts.

The amendment, offered Monday by Republican leader Dirksen, would bar the Supreme Court from overturning obscenity rulings of federal juries and state courts.

Dirksen, who is supporting Fortas's nomination, said that the way to combat the circulation of obscene materials is through legislation, not by opposing the appointment of a chief justice.

But senators who have made an issue of Fortas's support of Supreme Court decisions reversing obscenity convictions reportedly plan to emphasize this in debate on the gun bill in an effort to gain votes against his confirmation.

Some opponents are passing the word that they think it may be possible to defeat Fortas's confirmation on a straight up-and-down vote, without resorting to a filibuster.

WMUA Begins New Programs

Two new and interesting features may be heard this fall on WMUA (91.1 FM). "Subway," a progressive rock program done by Dick Summer, formerly of WBZ and now with WNEW-FM in New York, is broadcast Sunday through Thursdays from 12 midnight to 2 a.m. WMUA has exclusive Western Massachusetts rights to "Subway."

Listeners may also return to the "good old days" of radio every Friday night at 7:30 with "The Shadow." WMUA has obtained the tapes of the old radio series and airs them every week.

NOTICES

SCUBA CLUB
The Scuba Club will meet tonight at 7:00 p.m. in Curry Hicks to organize. Next Wed. is a meeting for all who want to learn to dive.

ACTIVITIES NIGHT
Tonight at 8:00 p.m. in the S.U. Ballroom representatives from all R.S.O. groups on campus will meet with interested students.

CORRECTION
The Collegiate Flying Club will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge. Open to members and all interested parties. Slides will be shown.

FOUND
One pair of men's glasses in vicinity of WoPe tennis courts. Contact Kathy Richards, 313 Lewis.

PINNINGS
Marilyn Rial, Dwight, '69 to Glenn Walker, John Adams, '70.

ENGAGEMENTS
Martha W. Perkins, Dickinson, '70 to James Newslow, S.M.I.T., '67.
Nancy P. Lequin, J.Q.A., '71 to William A. Barker, U.S. Navy.
Norie Greenberg, Boston Univ., '69 to Dick Geifman, Sigma Alpha Mu, '69.
Ann Maloney, Univ. of Maryland, '69 to Tom McPhee, John Adams, '69.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

Pizza ☆ are round cornbread is square Mama's Pizza.

STEADY PASSENGERS WANTED

Ride to Worcester Saturday morning after 11:00 a.m. Return Monday morning. Call Zelda Bilsey (791-7251) in Worcester or leave a note in 1805 Calvin Coolidge Tower.

FOR SALE

Stereo components at discount prices. Sealed cartons, full factory warranties. Amherst Hi-Fi Club, Box 721, Amherst, Mass. Tel. 256-6485

Honda CB 160 (cheap). Excellent condition throughout, fine for commuting. See for yourself and make your own deal. No obligation. Contact Dev Cochrane, 5-2832 or 6-9306, day or night.

High quality fall, 6 speakers with 2 3 way crossovers in walnut cabinets 304 Apt. #3, N. Pleasant St.

Meal ticket for sale Southwest, call 6-8277. 5t-12

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1960 Plymouth Good Running condition. New Radiator. Snow Tires. Evenings 256-6962. 5t-12

1960 Volkswagen—engine two years old, excellent condition—$450

1965 Bultaco 175 cc $250. See at 17 Sports Haven Trailer Park, Belchertown.

1956 Plymouth
256-6796

ROOMMATES NEEDED

Need Female roommates to live in huge, new, furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at 467-7918.

Mature room mate wanted to share modern furn. apt. in Northampton. Call 586-1436 eve. 5t-12

Female roommate wanted for private furnished room. $50 per month. Apt. #1, 797 Main St., Amherst. Come after 5 p.m.

FOR RENT

Single room rent with sink, share a bath, continental breakfast included parking—4½ miles from campus (Hadley) 253-3091 or 586-0922. 3t-16

3 room apt with large fireplace parking for 1 car in garage peaceful country setting 4½ miles from campus Call 253-3091 or 586-0922. 3t-16

Modern, 1 bedroom, wall to wall carpet, all utilities inc. air cond, 10 minute walk to Education Bldg. $130/month. Call 549-1381

HELP WANTED

Part-time household help for elderly couple, with possible housing. Also practical nursing 8 to 5 Sat. & Sun. Call 256-8200.

Alert girl, living on campus, to work part-time for local dating match service. Call 546-6492 any time after 3 p.m. 5t-12

Girls earn extra money by handling subscriptions to the Boston Globe in your dormitory. No limit to the amount you can make! For further information call 546-8473. 5t-12

Laboratory help needed in Physics Dept. 20 hrs. a week, $1.50/hr. No experience necessary. Dr. Meisner T. Mann, S. Chan. Rm. 320, 318, 316, 304. 3t-12

Hampshire Inter-Library Center wishes to employ two undergraduate student assistants (at least one man) part-time. Apply in person. Director's Office, level TWO, Goodell Library.

HOUSING WANTED

Senior girl looking for place off-campus. If you have an apartment and would like a room-mate please contact Elaine at 546-7392. Willing to pay up to $80 month. Would prefer own room. 5t-12

OPPORTUNITY

TO EARN $10.00
FOR 1½-2 HOURS WORK. YOU WORK at YOUR OWN SCHEDULE. Contact: Allen Elias, 41 River Street, West 7-30-9 a.m. or 10-11 p.m. Call collect. Springfield, Mass. 01089 — 736-1647.

LIVE!!

ANTHONY and the IMPERIALS

—and—

THE STONE SOUL

In Concert Saturday, Sept. 21

7:30 p.m.

Curry Hicks Cage

Tickets on Sale at S.U. Ticket Office

$1.50

A Household Word

'Herblock': Tops Among American Editorial Cartoonists

Back in 1929, Herbert L. Block left college, took a set of neatly pointed brushes and went to work for the Chicago Daily News as editorial cartoonist.

Three and a half decades — and three jobs — later his brushes are even sharper and his humor neater; he has been frequently labeled tops in his field—as, for instance, when Newsweek called him "about the hottest editorial page cartoonist since the rise of Daniel R. Fitzpatrick." No cartoonist of the age can list so impressive a series of awards. His trademark signature "Herblock," has become a household word in almost every country of the world outside the Iron Curtain — and his cartoons have circulated behind the Curtain through the U.S. Information Service.

Herblock's achievements include two Pulitzer Prizes (1942 and 1954), the National cartoonists Society's Reuben as "the outstanding cartoonist of 1956," a Heywood Broun Award (1950), National Headliners Award (1940) American Newspaper Guild Awards (1947 and 1948), four Sigma Delta Chi Awards (1949, 1950, 1952 and 1956), and a special Sigma Delta Chi award in 1951. Also the Lauterbach Award for service to education (1958), a University of Missouri Distinguished Service to Journalism Award (1961), a Sidney Hillman Award (1953), a Phi Beta Kappa (1962) and others. In those blank dates, 1943-45, insert a ruptured duck and citations for cartoons aiding the war effort. — Herblock was drawing for Uncle Sam.

In addition, Herblock won a unique honor — he is the first living American cartoonist to have his work represented in the National Gallery of Art.

In those same years of achievements he also achieved upwards of 7,000 cartoons with an amazingly consistent record of simplicity, pointedness and humor.

So it's hardly surprising that writers and such, have battered their way into his air-conditioned newspaper-piled office in the Washington Post building to ask:

"Where do you get the inspiration for all those wonderful cartoons!"

This floors Herblock, who has never yet found an inspiration floating through the air — but who would like credit for all the time he has to spend gazing into space and doodling while constructing a cartoon idea.

"I can't recall," he wrote in "The Herblock Book," "ever suddenly jotting down a cartoon hunch on the back of a score card at the sixteenth tee — or leaping out of bed in the middle of the night to put on paper a

(Continued on Page 9)

Campus Comment

SUG Board Elections

To The Editors:

The following letter has been sent to Miss Susan Brady, Chairman of the Student Union Governing Board. Because of the importance of having a Board election this fall, I urge students to discuss this issue with their class representatives, and to attend the next Student Union Governing Board meeting, Thursday, September 19, 1968, at 7:30 in the Berkshire Room of the Student Union.

David Aronow

Dear Miss Brady;

I have read in the Constitution of the Student Union Governing Board that the next general election of Board members will be in May of 1969. I ask that the Board reconsider this schedule. I believe that the University would profit if a Student Union Governing Board election were to be held this autumn, as an office of as great importance as Board membership should carry with it frequent opportunity for vote of support and vote of recall.

It appears that a large and growing segment of University students feel that they are not represented on, and are ignored by, the Student Union Governing Board. You may respond by saying that these students should have been less apathetic last May. You may tell them to wait until next May to campaign for their leaders. In a normal year I might accept this, but this is a very extraordinary year.

The people I speak of had pinned their life hopes on Kennedy and McCarthy. You saw these hopes trampled in Chicago. Returning now to school, they are anxious to try to continue the movement they joined during the spring and summer. But, in the normal channels of student leadership, they see only a Student Senate and Student Union Governing Board that do not offer ample opportunity for their participation. Past experience is leading these students to ignore these official bodies, and to adopt extra-legal channels to bring about campus and world change.

This year is not only crucial to Columbia and Berkeley, and the American University Institution, but also to the University of Massachusetts. The Student Union Governing Board has a responsibility in this time of potential crisis, not to further frustrate students. The Student Union Governing Board should recognize its duty to hold general elections this fall.

David Aronow
Class of 1970

IF YOU SMOKE CIGARETTES YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO TRY TIPALETS. NEW FROM MURIEL CIGARS

HAVE A FREE EXPERIENCE

Send us your empty cigarette or cigar pack and we will send you a free 5-Pack of New Tipalet by Muriel. Why not? We're betting you'll make it your regular smoke!

Mail To: Tipalet Experience
P.O. Box 1080
Westbury, New York 11590

Name _____
Address _____ School _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

Offer expires Nov. 15, 1968. Good only in Continental U.S., void where prohibited. Offer good one per student.

STUDENT SENATE

NOMINATION PAPERS

now available in R.S.O. office papers due back: Friday, September 27

at 5:30 p.m.

Elections: Thursday, October 3

All seats open for: Residence Halls,

Fraternities, Sororities, Commuters

STUDENT ACTIVITIES NIGHT

Wednesday, Sept. 18

7 p.m., Ballroom, S.U.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Amherst Optical Shoppe

195 No. Pleasant St.

featuring

- immediate attention to emergency repairs
- large selection of fashion—right frames
- excellent display of custom-fitted sunglasses

Ken Cook - owner-optician over 25 years of optical experience

*don't chance losing your glasses, come in and have your name engraved on your frames for a small charge.

It's not too late to sign up for
EVOLUTION
Entomology 290 MWF 11:15 Fern G Dr. John Hanson

Thames Overflows, London Suburbs Heavily Damaged

New downpours set off alarm signals throughout the Thames River Valley Tuesday. Some West London suburbs are among the areas hardest hit by flooding in southeast England.

British army troops were out in force for the third day with helicopters and amphibious vehicles.

The casualty list so far: Two women swept away by floodwaters and a man who died of a heart attack, all in the early hours of the disaster

With six major rivers at their danger levels, more than 1,000 troops were sandbagging their banks at low spots. Army amphibious vehicles evacuated hundreds of persons from flooded homes.

Insurance companies said they have already received claims totalling more than $2.4 million and the floodwaters have only begun to subside in a few localities.

Swollen tributaries poured millions of gallons of water into the Thames which overflowed its banks into a number of west suburban London communities.

Operetta Guild Announces Tryouts

The Operetta Guild has announced that auditions for their fall production ANNIE GET YOUR GUN will take place in the Bristol and Essex rooms in the Student Union on September 25 and 26 from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. Actors, actresses, singers, and dancers are needed for leads and chorus parts.

All those interested are encouraged to come and meet our director, Frank Cullinan, and our musical director William Neighbor.

Anyone interested in assisting on any phase of the production such as makeup, costumes, sets, lighting, publicity are urged to come and talk to a staff member or drop by the O. G. offices in the basement of South College during the day.

This production of ANNIE will mark the Guild's 25th anniversary and will be presented in Bowker Auditorium on November 8, 9, 10, 14, 15, 16, 1968.

WANTED

Top Rock Band to form an exciting new group with an excellent female lead singer

WRITE OR VISIT:
Bob Wilson
Camouflage House
Leverett Center, Mass.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

MAMA'S PIZZA
FREE DELIVERY!
253-9858

SUPPORT THE GREEKS

BUY A BUTTON

On sale in S.U. in front of the Hatch 25 cents

LOOKING FOR EXCITEMENT?

Then join the staff of

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Thursday Night—September 19—8:30 p.m.

Student Union Council Chambers

Coffee and doughnuts will be served

See tomorrow's paper for final details.

18 SEPT 1968

WALLACE

A Man Who Doesn't Need To Say What He Means

HILLBILLY MUSICIANS are wailing and strumming their guitars. The hall is packed and the sweaty bodies squirm uncomfortably in wooden chairs. Pretty girls with sugar-coated Southern drawls hand out literature. Then the music stops and a big burly man who introduces himself as "Big George" comes out onto the stage. He starts pitching for donations. Next comes the main speaker—the star.

From outward appearances it could be a traveling medicine show pushing snake oil and other panaceas. In reality it is a rally for a serious candidate for the office of President of the United States, George C. Wallace.

But perhaps the first description is accurate, for after listening to the former Alabama governor's speech, you realize that Wallace is trying to sell political snake oil, a panacea for the nation's ills.

Traditionally, third party candidacies like that of Wallace and his American Independent Party have been doomed to failure, and there is no reason to believe that this one will be any different. He still disturbs a great many people, however, and not just overwrought social reformers, but the leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties and other people who should be expected to view a third party with the same amusement as a Don Quixote tilting at windmills.

What these people fear most is fear—the fear of middle class America. What has come to be called "backlash." Wallace plays on this fear as deftly as his musicians play their guitars.

His audience has been seeing over and over on their televisions the faces of Stokely Carmichael and Rap Brown calling on black people to burn down their ghettos. And they see Detroit and Cincinnati burning in vivid color if they can afford a color set. If not they must settle for the same black and white to which Wallace reduces the problem.

DESPITE HIS protestations to the contrary, what Wallace is preaching is racism, and the audience knows it.

One Alabama politician commented in a national magazine: "He can use all the other issues—law and order, running your own schools, protecting property rights—and never mention race. But people will know what he's telling them, 'A nigger's trying to get your job, trying to move into your neighborhood.' What Wallace is doing is talking to them in a kind of shorthand, a kind of code."

And that's exactly what he's doing.

In the speech, which rarely varies so much as a comma, he tells them, "You can bus your children from here to Canada and back if you want to," but "them pointy-headed guideline writers who can't park their bicycles straight" will have no say in the matter. The audience cheers and you know that they're on the same wavelength.

Then he tells them about how they should be able to sell their houses to whomever they want and how he'll make the streets safe at night. In Washington, in which a majority of citizens are black, he promises to station troops with bayonets every few yards if necessary.

They know what he means—All those respectable people who own a one or two family home, a car that isn't quite the latest style, whose jobs can be taken over by a black man. All the people who try so hard to be respectable know what George Wallace means.

As one newsman said, "He puts everything very nicely so that all these nice respectable people don't feel like they're at a Klan rally."

—Bill Dickinson

Editor's Note: Senior Reporter Bill Dickinson took these photos while keeping tabs on Wallace in such cities as Boston, Springfield, and Lynn. Bill is a journalism-government major in the Class of '70.

1 18 SEPT 1 8

Lederle Highlights Convocation

(Continued from Page 1)

tience of the far-Left" or "the backlash of the far-Right."

He promised to continue "our collective concern toward a society at large" and cited the creation of the Martin Luther King scholarships, the admission of 125 black students in special programs and other projects as manifestations of this concern.

Lederle also noted that the administration has "solicited" and "obtained student participation in campus planning and decision-making all the way up to the level of the Board of Trustees . . . And we have not needed the inspiration of hurled paving stones in the dead of night to come to this method of operation."

"Nor have we had to resort to the use of outside forces of 'law and order' to help settle student - faculty-administration conflicts of power," he added. "There has been no bloodied ivy on the campus of the University of Massachusetts."

On the University's image to outsiders, Lederle said, "like the prophet in his own country, we are of less honor oftentimes in our own Commonwealth than we are around the nation.

"While the eyes of Beacon Hill are ever on us to watch for potential mistakes we may make, the eyes of the nation are focused on the increasingly distinguished faculty which is gathering on our campuses in Amherst, Boston and Worcester."

Looking to the future Lederle saw increased opportunities for UMass to play a "quiet pioneering role" in higher education.

He pointed to the increased cooperation in the Four College Program with neighboring private institutions when "the growing competition between the private and public sectors of America has not yet fully surfaced." Specifically he mentioned the founding of Hampshire College, "truly a child of the four older institutions."

But he continued, "In all these attempts at educational, social and administrative progress, there have been strong elements of risk . . . we have attracted a small but highly vocal coterie of critics . . . people who feel that their own best interests are served if they play the role of watchdog over this sprawling institution."

However, he did not totally dismiss these critics. "Because we are big, we run the risk of power. And like every other aspect of national life, power should have built-in safeguards. The critic performs this function, even though in a negative way."

Lederle went on to warn, "Each act of irresponsible behavior by any of us, student, administrator or faculty member, is seized upon by our harsher critics as evidence against the experiment in three-way cooperative self-government which we are trying to work out here."

"The concept and exercise of individual responsibility has never been more important than it is today," he stressed.

The president said that this individual responsibility is "our best hope for the ultimate solution of the international, national and local crises . . . We can neither loose our 'cool' in the frustration of anarchism and radicalism, nor can we 'drop out' into a state of nihilism and despair. We must face our challenges, summon our courage, and fight our way through this unsettled time in history."

"And we must do it here on this campus. We must fight this personal battle every day. We must involve ourselves. We must commit ourselves. We must face up to 'like it is' but work for 'like it ought to be.'"

Prague Lifts Tourist Ban

PRAGUE AP - Czechoslovakia lifted its ban on tourists Tuesday, in force since the invasion by troops of the Soviet Union and its allies August 21.

Since the invasion, only businessmen and diplomats have been allowed to enter the country.

The ban on tourists caused heavy foreign currency losses to the Czechoslovak economy.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Marjie Flanders
News Staff—Sue Gerson, Janet Howles, Martha Lapow, Mauren Kilroy, Mark Silverman.
SPORTS DAY EDITOR ..... Steve Shamban

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

HILLEL SERVICE SCHEDULE

in the Student Union

Fri., Sept. 20	7:30 p.m. — Bristol Rm
Sat., Sept. 21	9:45 a.m. — Worcester Rm
ROSH HASHANAH
Sun., Sept. 22	7:30 p.m. — Ballroom
Mon., Sept. 23	9:00 a.m. — Ballroom
	6:30 p.m. — Ballroom
Tues., Sept. 24	9:00 a.m. — Ballroom
SHABBAT SHUVAH
Fri., Sept. 27	7:30 p.m. — Council Chambers
Sat., Sept. 28	9:45 a.m. — Worcester Rm
KOL NIDRE
Tues., Oct. 1	6:15 p.m. — Ballroom
YOM KIPPUR DAY
Wed., Oct. 2	9:30 a.m. — Ballroom

Yizkor will be after 11:00 a.m.)

YOUNG REPUBLICANS WANT YOU

AT OUR FIRST MEETING
SEPTEMBER 18TH
8:30 P.M.
WORCESTER ROOM, S.U.

The real beauty of Bass Weejuns®

Loafers for MEN and WOMEN is their ability to resist

MUD

Like on the long walk from Coolidge to the School of Education, or from Van Meter to the Union . . . or anywhere else on campus

Or, if loafers are too mundane, see the other mud — resistant shoes and boots at

Mathews SHOE STORE

39 South Pleasant St. 256-6374

The English Pub

Presents:

Charlie Bradshaw –
3 continuous hours
at the piano
Thursday night

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Purchase your school year calendars from

A. J. Hastings

Newsdealer & Stationer
45 So. Pleasant St.

Open Weekdays
5 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Sundays
5 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The Interfraternity Council
and the
Pan Hellenic Council
Invite the Classes of 1972, 1971, 1970, and 1969
to a

GREEK OPEN HOUSE

to be held
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19
7:00 - 9:00 P.M.

Herblock...

(Continued from Page 4)

picture that had come as is in a vision. It would probably save a lot of time if things worked out that way, although a fellow on a daily job might get a little fidgety wondering when the muse was going to visit him."

Cartoon ideas, he insists, "come on office time and as part of the daily routine in which you think about what you're trying to say and draw a number of sketches in an effort to find the best way of saying it in a picture."

Herblocks's deadline at the Washington Post is 2:30 p.m., 5 days a week, and shortly thereafter his cartoons are mailed out to upwards of 300 newspapers in this country and Canada, including the COLLEGIAN. Since he hates trite, canned or stale ideas with a passion, it follows that he is a deadline-crowder of the most invincible type—a perfectionist.

He usually gets to the office reasonably early in the morning. As a likeable bachelor he is much in demand at parties. He also enjoys the theater and frequently "ends up the day by reading the early edition of the morning paper in bed" — which leaves him little time for sleep and breakfast. (Just to be on the safe side of that daily deadline, he ducks luncheon appointments whenever possible.)

At the office he eases his way among the stacks of old newspapers and sits down to reading the mail and the latest newspaper arrivals, jotting down possible subjects for cartoons and adding the papers to the stacks for "future clipping."

"There comes then the time to decipher these notes and settle back to give those subjects a good think,' the cartoonist explains.

This thinking period has cost Herblock quite a few of his top front hairs and has worn a pacing area off his office flooring, but alas the hairs just fade away instead of falling visibly like snow, so—

"It is at this point," bemoans Herblock, "that the door opens slightly and a visitor asks if you are busy. Ycu say, Yes, you are, and he says, 'Ha! It looks like it!' and sits down for a long chat. He is followed by three others who open with the same conversational gambit.

"As the visitors leave, the phone rings and a voice asks if you ever use suggestions for cartooning. You say, No, you are sorry, but you don't And the voice says, 'Okay, here it is: You draw a picture of a rat, see? And label it Khrushchev. Get it? A rat, see? — ' When you have thanked him and hung up, you find that a small delegation of ladies have come in to ask if you can't do something about our feathered friends who, it seems, are multiplying faster than the number of statues on which they can perch. . . ."

By now it is time to try to disguise that normally cheerful and friendly fellow Herblock behind a "man-working" scowl. He claims that doesn't succeed too well, but by noon he has three or four rough sketches and gallops through the building showing them to everyone who gets between him and his editor. Of copyboys, reporters, printers, even sports writers, he demands: "What does it mean to you?"

"I do this," Herblock explains, "to make sure that the idea is understood. An idea may be quite clear to its originator, but not to others." This "gallop poll," as Post employes call it, weeds out the overly complex ideas and misleading words — and is an important reason why his cartoons are consistently so clearcut and forceful.

With his best sketch — usually the one he like best and casually placed on top — approved, the Pulitzer Prize cartoonist settles down with brush, ink, and graphite stick to make his finished cartoon. He draws these about 12 inches wide, and he is so much a perfectionist that he is usually still touching up the drawing at one minute to his 2:30 p.m. deadline.

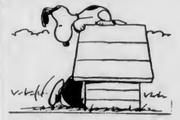
"One picture seems to be a day's work for me," he declares — which is why he doesn't warm up to the many orgaizations who present such casual requests as, "Could you draw us a half dozen cartoons celebrating National Zebra Week?"

"This year," he annually promises himself, "I'm really going to get in some golf — and I'm going to clean the old newspapers and magazines and stuff out of my office and apartment.

"But," he sighs, "for some perverse reason, on the days when I want to get through early to catch a train I always seem to think of ideas for drawing that involve intricate mechanical devices — or 60 people riding horses in different direction."

Born in Chicago October 13, 1909, the son of a chemist with brief newspaper experience, young Herb got plenty of encouragement and drawing equipment at home. He attended Chicago public schools and while in high school drew for the school paper and won a scholarship at the Chicago Art Institute. Later he freelanced cartoons for local magazines, and the then feature editor of the Chicago Daily News recalled that even then he was "pretty darn good." (Later he labeled him "just about tops among American cartoonists.")

Herblock (he had adopted that pen name in high school) attended Lake Forest College, specializing in political science and English, drawing in his spare time. After two years he quit school to become the Chicago Daily News' editorial cartoonist (but in 1957 the college caught up with him long enough to award an honorary LL.D). Four years later in 1933 he moved to NEA Service in Cleveland, where he remained until he joined the Army early in 1943. For close to three years he drilled and drew for the Army — and hit his targets with both rifle and brush. By the end of 1945, the discharged sergeant was ready for a change and welcomed an offer from Eugene Meyer to join the Washington Post as editorial cartoonist.



He was not long unsyndicated. Believing Herblock was the leading editoral cartoonist, The Hall Syndicate arranged to handle his cartoons — and has since sold the service to upwards of 500 newspapers. (Not speaking of reprints, which frequently carry his cartoons around the Globe!)

Among Herblock's most famous reprints are a series which the State Department titled "Herblock Looks at Communism" and bundled into a brochure which it nas used as a potent weapon against Communism in the Cold War, and of which it has so far distributed more than a million copies, with captions translated into everything from French to Vietnamese. From time to time he is persuaded also to select from several years of cartoons for a book which he also writes, and which promptly becomes a best-seller, to date: "The Herblock Book" (1952), "Herblock's Here And Now" (1955), "Herblock's Special For Today" (1958), "Straight Herblock" (1964).

Art galleries have made exhibits of Herblock's work, but he quirks a skeptical eyebrow at those who class his drawings as Art.

"Under pressure I might concede that my stuff is some form of art," he admits.

But Cartoonist Milt Caniff, who should know, will hve none of this. "Herblock?" he exclaims, "why he's the Rembrandt of cartoonists!"

Have you seen the PEANUTS SHOWCASE?

by Ambassador Cards at

CARDS
CANDY
GIFTS

THE THREE C's

191 No. Pleasant St.

Rapp's Delicatessen

AND RESTAURANT

79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan

OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES

Delicious Salads -- Desserts

HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE

FREE DELIVERY

Every night 6-11 p.m.

Phone 256-6759

Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.

BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

MANGLE MAINE

RALLY -- 7:00

DANCE -- 8:00, STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, FEATURING

THE FIFTH AMENDMENT

SPONSORED BY ADELPHIA ADMISSION 75 CENTS

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Did YOU buy a GREEK WEEK BUTTON?

Text of President Lederle's Speech...

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair."

With these sixty words, Charles Dickens, in 1859, summarized one of history's most turbulent periods, the French Revolution. He could scarcely have imagined, then, that he was also uttering a prophecy for the year 1968. Indeed, he was not only "telling it like it was," but "like it is."

". . . the best of times . . ." The three-car garage, the winter vacation in Nassau, the chicken in every pot, and the filet mignon on every backyard barbecue.

". . . the worst of times . . ." Martin Luther King, Robert F. Kennedy, Prague in August, and Chicago in August, and life everyday in East Harlem.

". . . the age of wisdom . . ." Human heart transplants, computerized kitchens, supersonic jets, the knowledge explosion.

". . . the age of foolishness . . ." Litter, air pollution, programs on television, trying to get in, or out of, any major city during rush hour.

". . . the epoch of belief . . ." The Peace Corps, VISTA, the New Hampshire primary, we shall overcome.

". . . the epoch of incredulity . . ." The galleries on the last night in Chicago, the plastic flags, Russian tanks around the statue of St. Wenceslaus, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah."

". . . the season of Light . . ." Civil rights enforcement, a try for tighter gun controls, the start of the Paris Peace Talks.

". . . the season of Darkness . . ." A motel balcony in Memphis, a railroad platform in Baltimore, the fifteenth floor of the Conrad Hilton in Chicago.

"It was the spring of hope . . ." Ecumenism, the new politics, Czechoslovakia before the invasion, the United States before the political conventions.

"It was the winter of despair . . ." The population explosion, the Marxist left, and the Red-neck Right, Biafra, the politics of confrontation, Vietnam.

What does it all mean? And does it all really affect us, living here in this peaceful valley away from the smog, away from the burning tenements, away from the crush and pressure of over-urbanized daily living? Is this University, this community of almost twenty thousand human beings, really an "ivory tower"? As students, are we here for a four, or six, or eight year escape from reality? And as faculty members and administrators, are we here for that same escape? To wait until things "cool off" on the "outside"?

I don't think that we are here for these reasons. I don't think that the role of a University is to provide a haven from life. I believe that we are here to confront, to challenge, to find a better way.

But how do we do it? How do we confront, challenge, find a better way? First, we recognize ourselves for what we really are, a microcosm of a larger society, with all of the problems of that larger society. We have users of "acid" and "grass" and "speed," and other ineffective escape mechanisms. And we probably have some sexual promiscuity, destructive not only of individual self-respect, but ultimately of society itself. We have pollution and litter and outright senseless destruction. We have people who care for no one but themselves, inconsiderate, selfish, ready to capitalize on the problems and frustrations of others. And in a physical sense, we even have modern "cave-dwellers" in the high-rise dormitories. We have a degree of the congestion that comes with urbanization. And certainly we have the dust and the mud and the debris which is a concomitant of physical growth.

So here in this beautiful setting—ageless, peaceful, verdant — we find ourselves face-to-face with the temporary, the turbulent and the traumatic. And we realize that there is something different between our University Society and the larger one which seethes beyond these encircling hills. Its a basic difference and a unique one. For we really are a laboratory of the science, and the art, of life. And it is our role here to do something about "like it is," with the purpose of making life "like it ought to be."

All of the elements for this experiment in living are at hand. We have an administrative structure which must answer to the citizenry of the Commonwealth, primarily through the medium of democratically-elected legislators. In our faculty, we have a community of scholars who are dedicating their careers and their lives to the advancement of human knowledge . . . and this is another way of saying "to the solution of the problems which face us." We have a large and diverse student body representing a spectrum of interests, talents and opinions. And we even have a University president, described as a phantom-like creature who, unlike some of the more resourceful chief executives of our larger cities, is still unable to pack convocations such as this with enthusiastic, flag-waving supporters.

We have our political activists . . . those who choose to work through established campus governmental organizations . . . and those who prefer to parade and picket with large signs proclaiming choice Elizabethan expressions of disagreement dismay and disillusionment.

And we have the uninvolved, too. Like society at large, we have citizens of this university community who pass their years among us wrapped within an invisible envelope of indifference and isolation. To many of them, education is apparently the downpayment on a lifelong meal ticket to material affluence, physical comfort and the preservation of the status quo. The real tragedy for such people is that, in life today, affluence is fleeting . . . comfort often comes at too high a cost . . . and there is no status quo.

Combining these diverse and conflicting elements, we have an interesting and exciting living laboratory. And because of our tri-partite approach to the complicated and vexing problem of democratic self-government, we also have a climate in which significant experiments can be conducted.

All three segments of this University have contributed to the creation of this climate. The administrators have attempted to create an atmosphere in which the various interests on the campus can work together. We have tried to foster mutual confidence through two-way communication . . . and we shall continue in this effort. Neither the impatience of the far-Left nor the backlash of the far-Right will alter the course upon which we have set.

This sharing of responsibility for self-government could never have become a reality on this campus without the whole-hearted support and cooperation of the faculty and student body. Indeed, it has in many cases originated . . . and in all cases evolved . . . from these two groups fully participating in the self-governing process.

As a result of our joint efforts, therefore, we approach this potential "winter of despair" with some good accomplishments that may help us to emerge into a "spring of hope."

In terms of social action, we have shown our collective concern towards society at large through the creation of the Martin Luther King scholarships . . . the admission of one hundred and twenty-five black students in special programs . . . our A.I.D. activities in Malawi and Uganda . . . and our steadily growing commitment to the solution of urban and ghetto problems through our plans and programs at our Boston campus.

In an era marked by bitter, frustrating student-administration confrontations and power struggles, the University of Massachusetts has shown a quiet leadership in its concern for the individual student. Again, the responsible cooperation of students, faculty and administration has resulted in the concept and implementation of residential colleges . . . the counselling services . . . a viable Student Government . . . the exciting and student-faculty-initiated "Project 10" endeavor. All of these exciting and innovative actions speak louder than any words of mine as to the steadily evolving cooperative system of mutual progress being realized on this campus by all of us working together.

We have solicited and we have obtained student participation in campus planning and decision-making all the way up to the level of the Board of Trustees. Issues such as Open House privileges . . . high rise housing in the Women's Quad . . . the establishment of a campus humor magazine . . . on all of these important and highly charged issues, student opinion has been expressed by student leaders before the Board of Trustees. And we have not needed the inspiration of hurled paving stones in the dead of night to express this method of operation. Nor have we had to resort to the use of outside forces of "law and order" to help settle student-faculty-administration conflicts of power. There has been no bloodied ivy on the campus of the University of Massachusetts. We have learned, I trust, that the tripartite community, given goodwill and willingness to bring our problems out in the open, works.

In the area of finances we have also been able to work together in a creative, innovative way. We have tried, and we will continue to try to keep costs to parents and students as low as possible consistent with the quality housing and boarding services which we offer.

Much of the success which we have achieved in this area of cost-control is due to the thoughtfulness, responsibility and cooperation of thousands of individual students. Unheralded and noted, they are nevertheless rewarded by their own sense of maturity and by their consideration of others. At a time in history which may someday be symbolized by the carelessly discarded beer can, we have managed to keep the pollution of our environment to a reasonably controlled level. It is true that we have a representative contingent of litterers . . . you don't have to look far for the evidence of their presence. And we've had wanton and senseless destruction in some of our residence halls . . . I suppose that if we ever manage to enter the pearly gates we'll find carelessly discarded harp-strings scattered about . . . But the boors and the slobs and the destroyers in the university are a minority. And I hope that they constitute a minority which can be even further reduced by our collective concern for maintaining an environment of beauty in which to pursue our academic work.

We are continuing in our efforts to recruit and to retain the best faculty possible. We must do this if we are to provide the quality of educational opportunity which our students need and deserve. It is again interesting to note in passing that, like the prophet in his own country, we are of less honor oftentimes in our own Commonwealth than we are around the nation. While the eyes of Beacon Hill are ever on us to watch for potential mistakes we may make, the eyes of the nation are focused on the increasingly distinguished faculty which is gathering on our campuses in Amherst, Boston, and Worcester.

But neither our burgeoning student population nor the quality of our faculty have blinded us to the vital need for continuing review of the total educational process here. This is why the subject of curriculum reform is of such basic importance as we embark upon the 1968-69 academic year. There is controversy dissension and honest disagreement in this key area. But we are confronting the problem openly and we are trying to solve it. And we are going to solve it. We won't satisfy everyone . . . How could we? But we will work out a solution in a fair, democratic and enlightened manner, with the reasoned opinions of all interested parties having been seriously and objectively considered and weighed.

In the frame-work of the national educational structure, there is another area where the University of Massachusetts is playing a quiet pioneering role. The growing competition between the private and public sectors of American higher education has not yet fully surfaced. It is still in the submerged state of polite discussion and generic declamation. But while others discuss and declaim, we have blazed new trails of cooperation with our three private educational neighbors. Our involvement in the Four College cooperative program with Amherst, Mount Holyoke and Smith has not only enriched our academic life and embraced our educational horizons . . . it has also increased the effectiveness of each participating institution. And this working together has resulted in a promising educational innovation: the creation of a fifth institution, Hampshire College, a private facility which is truly the child of the four older institutions. As the largest and only public institution involved in this cooperative experimentation, the University of Massachusetts has been an exemplary model of how this growing problem of public versus private higher education can be alleviated to mutual advantage and in the public interest. We believe that there is a separate need for both public and private institutions of higher learning . . . and we believe that because of this nation's youth will best be served, in terms of educational excellence, by the adoption of our example of cooperative action by other contiguous institutions—public and private —across the country.

In all of these attempts at edunstional, social and administrative progress, there have been strong elements of fun. Because our University is such a large and dynamic presence in the Commonwealth, it is also a highly visible and vulnerable presence. Each innovation, each experiment, is standing out for progress puts the University in a position of potential criticism. So once again, let's "tell it like it is", like it is for me, and for the other administrators who have to fight the almost daily battle for the survival, growth and integrity of this magnificent and vitally important institution.

Make no mistake about the fact that we have attracted a small but highly vocal coterie of critics. These critics are not necessarily machievellian monsters of hatred and evil. They are not even necessarily anti-intellectual. They are simply people who feel that their own best interests are served if they play the role of watchdog over this sprawling institution. They feel that it is their peculiar mission in life to be sure we "park our bicycles straight."

There is no way of avoiding such critics. An institution as large as the University of Massachusetts should probably welcome them. Because we are big, we run the risk of power. And like every other aspect of national life, power should have built-in safeguards. The critic performs this function, even though in a negative way. So let us look at our critics as valued assets to our continued growth and maturity and responsibility.

But let us also recognize that what we, as individuals, do on this campus is not restricted, in terms of impact, to the campus. Each act of irresponsible behavior by any of us, student, administrator or faculty member, is seized upon by our harshest critics as evidence against the experiment in three-way cooperative self-government which we are trying to work out here. Each act of carelessness, each act of vandalism, each "bust" by campus, local, or state police, each one of these things is a vote against our experiment in mature self-government, against "like it ought to be."

So what I am saying is that the concept and exercise of individual responsibility has never been more important than it is today. It is important to each one of us as individuals. It is important to all of us as a community of human beings; and it is important to this institution as an experiment in self-governing social entity.

The concept and exercise of individual responsibility is also our best hope for the ultimate solution of the international, national and local crises which challenge us. We live in an era of bigness, of institutionalism, of confusion, of impersonality. It seems to be an age with Orwellian portent.

But we human beings are highly resilient creatures. Our survival has been based upon our ability to adapt. Perhaps our powers of adaptation have never before been challenged as critically as they are today. But, be that as it may, we must respond to the challenge. We can neither lose our "cool" in the frustration of anarchism and radicalism, nor can we "drop out" into a state of nihilism and despair. We must face our challenges, summon our courage, and fight our way through this unsettled time in history.

And we must do it here on this campus. We must fight this personal battle every day. We must involve ourselves. We must commit ourselves. We must face up to "like it is" but work for "like it ought to be."

My message to all of you today, students, faculty and administration, at the beginning of this academic year, is this. I want to enlist as many of you as possible in the small band on this campus who are quietly but steadily seeking answers to the problems we face. As John Gardner said last June Commencement, "We have a plentiful supply of Americans who are applicable or angry over our problems; plenty who shout about them or weave ideological spells over them, plenty who make political capital out of them. But we need more recruits for the 'army without banners,' those who are quietly seeking solutions.

We need this "army without banners" at the University of Massachusetts. An army which will act with wisdom and reject foolishness, which believes in our experiment here and is not incredulous, which seeks the Light of intellect and avoids the Darkness of emotionalism, which knows that we can pass through this winter of despair, we will emerge into a spring of hope.

Presidential Race Tidbits

Humphrey

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP) — Hubert H. Humphrey accused his Republican opponent, Richard M. Nixon, of "playing politics with the lives of humanity."

Humphrey, in a speech Tuesday to a Democratic luncheon in Buffalo, attacked Nixon's stand on the nuclear nonproliferation treaty now awaiting approval by the Senate.

If the United States misses the opportunity to ratify the treaty, Humphrey declared, it may have "missed the opportunity to save the world from nuclear confrontation."

Although Nixon has endorsed the treaty he has recommended that the Senate withhold approval due to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

"Mr. Nixon, I ask you to be a statesman and to stop playing politics with the lives of humanity," Humphrey said.

Earlier, Humphrey told students and hecklers that as president he would do everything necessary to end the Vietnam war, but he reminded them that it is Lyndon Johnson — not himself — who is controlling events.

"You have one president at a time," Humphrey said. "That's all you need."

But Humphrey acknowledged that a major controversy of his young campaign was due to his failure to read the minority plank on Vietnam offered by doves at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

Nixon

ANAHEIM Calif. (AP) — A nagging concern about the election day impact of George C. Wallace is surfacing in the campaign organization of Republican Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon himself talked of it Tuesday, telling a news conference he has heard reports of collusion between southern Democrats and Wallace supporters, designed to deny him the electoral votes of states in the South.

As Nixon described it, the attempt would be to deny him a majority vote in the electoral college, and thus send the White House choice to the House of Representatives.

The Republican nominee called upon his Democratic rival, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, to repudiate any such move by southern Democrats.

Nixon already has shunned any direct campaign confrontation with Wallace, the third party contender. Nixon flatly ruled out an televised campaign debate with Humphrey if it also would include Wallace.

Nixon said that would not be in the public interest because it would build up the third party candidate by giving him equal time with those of the two major parties.

Wallace

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — George C. Wallace, the American Independent party's presidential hopeful, left Dallas Tuesday with his campaign coffers swelled and the cheers of thousands ringing in his ears.

Wallace, in accepting the state nomination, told a handclapping, foot-stomping AIP state convention crowd that Texas "will be one of our good states—and it is very necessary that we carry the state."

At a series of Monday functions, including a two-hour public rally in Dallas' Municipal Auditorium, usually cautious observers estimated Wallace collected or had pledged to his cause about $2 million.

"This is not a sectional movement," Wallace told his cheering audiences everywhere he appeared in Dallas.

He belittled Republican and Democratic charges that he knew nothing of foreign policy. "What have they proved that they know about it in 100 years?" he asked. "What is so shining about a record of four wars in my and your lifetime?"

Former Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia was named as a stand-in vice presidential candidate by the convention.

The MDC Wants You!

GREEK
OPEN HOUSE
THURSDAY, SEPT. 19
7:00 P.M. - 9:00 P.M.

Engineering's New Industrial Design Course; From Idea To Working Finished Product

A portable sailboat, outdoor cooker, crutches, food grater and knife might sound like basic equipment for a camping trip in the White Mountains, but are actually products of a UMass engineering class.

In the new industrial design course in the School of Engineering, students start with an original idea and end with a complete working model of a new product.

Each of the students of engineer-designer Frank Umholtz has up to a school year to carry his idea from design conception, through drawings and specifications, and finally to a finished working model good enough to serve as a manufacturer's prototype.

The first group of products includes a rig that converts a standard air mattress into a one-man sailboat, an entirely new outdoor cooker that uses electricity, a crutch of a completely new design, a food grater, a knife and other items.

"Little Flipper" tacks on Campus Pond, designer Eric May of Lexington at the helm. May, senior in mechanical engineering, created the craft as a project in the School of Engineering's new industrial design course. It uses an aluminum frame sailing rig to convert a standard air mattress to a one-man sailboat.

"The idea of the course is to introduce design to engineering students," Prof. Umholtz said. "We concentrate on product design and try to teach a concept of total design that involves the appearance as well as the engineering of a product."

Eric May of Lexington got the idea that an aluminum-frame sailing rig could be fitted to a standard air mattress. The result is "Little Flipper," a one-man sailboat with 28 square feet of sail, total weight of about 45 pounds and total cost of $70. It can be carried by one person and assembled ready to sail in four minutes.

Donald Poole of South Deerfield took a new look at the common crutch and came up with an entirely new design that Dr. Robert Gage, director of UMass Health Services, has called a "significant improvement." Poole designed a molded fiberglass upper half for his crutches that conforms to the user's body and bears much of its weight.

His crutch distributes the body's weight over a larger area eliminating the strain that conventional crutches impose on the brachial artery and brachial muscles under the arm.

William Lyman of South Hadley designed an ultra-modern electric "Charmaster" that he calls a "new concept in outdoor cooking." It has spaceage styling outside and all-electric cooking units inside, including a grille, rotisserie, and electric starter.

Students are expected to do all the work they can on their projects. This can include making molds for casting, laminating fiberglass, making wood patterns and a variety of finishing operations. The basic course lasts one semester, with a second semester available for those doing larger projects.

IF THE SHOE FITS ... REPAIR IT!
Come in for EXPERT attention
PAUL'S SHOE SERVICE
IN 103 BUILDING

CINEMA 1&2 • ACRES FREE PARKING • ART GALLERIES • ROCKING CHAIR LOUNGES Minutes from you via Rt. 5
733-5131 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPRINGFIELD RT. 5
1 "Brilliant Achievement" CINERAMA EVERY EYE IS ON THE SCREEN 2001 a space odyssey Wed. Sat. Sun. Mat. 2:15
2 OSKAR WERNER • BARBARA FERRIS Fahrenheit 451 1:30-3:30-5:45-7:50-10 POPULAR PRICES
3 "Where Were YOU When The Lights Went Out?" DORIS DAY 1:30-3:30-5:30-7:30-9:30
Rodgers Hammerstein Cinemas 3 LUXURY THEATRES IN 1

Navy to Release Reservists Called For Pueblo Crisis

The Navy plans to release by November about 600 reservists who were called back to duty after North Korea seized the intelligence ship Pueblo, the Pentagon announced Monday.

A Defense Department statement said the administrative work required in switching the squadrons to a ready reserve status began Monday.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

25 cents S.U. Movie 25 cents
ALFRED HITCHCOCK THRILLER
North by Northwest
S.U. Ballroom
Thursday, Sept. 19
6:00 & 8:30 p.m.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

HUD BEG RAP
ODE ORE ONAN DECENT ALT IN ORE ANT AND MADE APT ELI
AGE LIE LAS DO MOLESTS SA
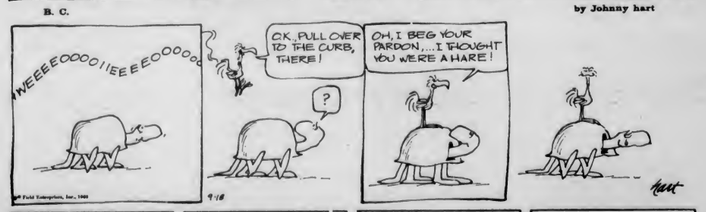
DOT NEE GOT
SUIT AND MALE
ASP ITS CAR
MU PAD PASTER
EASE NEON OVA
LEV EMU NERO

ACROSS
1-Old French coin
4-Pronoun
6-Iron
11-Expel from country
13-Stew
15-Printer's measure
16-Term of endearment
18-A continent (abbr.)
19-Printer's measure
21-Dining hall
22-Foam
24-Oz of Celebes
26-Agreement
28-Rodent
29-Retail establishment
31-Act
33-Old pronoun
34-Ship bottom
36-Go by water
38-Note of scale
40-Plumlike fruit
42-Harvests
45-Skirt
47-Male deer
49-Graceful fowl
50-Pedal digits
52-Woody plant
54-Spanish for "yes"
55-Indefinite article
56-Gift
59-A continent (abbr.)
61-Mend
63-Moved sidewise
65-Kind of hat
66-Man's nickname
67-Unusual



DOWN
1-Dutch town
2-Mortar
3-Above
4-Mountains of Europe
5-Sharpen
6-Noblemen
7-Hurried
8-Urges on
9-Conjunction
10-Day of week
12-Hypothetical force
14-Experience
17-Burden
20-Cozy corner
23-Chaldean city
24-Conjunction
25-War god
27-Rip
30-Lampreys
32-Expires
35-Raffle
37-Ordinances
38-Turkic tribesman
39-Pressed
41-Organs of hearing
43-Ached
44-Symbol for tin
46-Symbol for tellurium
48-Web-footed fowl
51-Mast
53-Wife of Geraint
57-Bone of body
58-Tidewater (abbr.)
60-Total
62-Hebrew letter
64-Behold!

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. by Johnny hart

Cinema I
JOANNE WOODWARD in
"RACHEL, RACHEL"
Sun.-Mon.-Tues.-Wed.-Thurs. at 7-9 — Fri.-Sat. 6-8-10
Cinema II
SANDY DENNIS in
"THE FOX"
Nightly at 7-9
Next to Zayre's
Campus Theatre
256-6411

18 SEPT

Redmen Prep for Maine Opener

Black Bears Seek Revenge For Last Redman Romp

By late Saturday afternoon a few things should be determined for Coach Vic Fusia. He should have some idea of how the Yankee Conference competition shapes up and the chances for the Redmen to make it five titles in six years. He'll also get a chance to see his sophomores in action other than an intra-squad scrimmage.

UMass faces its traditional season opener, the Maine Black Bears, at 1:30 p.m. in Alumni Stadium. Connecticut will be playing Vermont in the only other Yankee Conference action, but Rhode Island will be playing Temple, and UNH will take on the Dartmouth contingent.

The fans are still remembering last year when the Redmen trounced Maine, 30-9, at Maine. Black Bear Coach Walt Abbott, in his rookie year of coaching, had predicted that Maine would win all of the games. But disaster struck and Maine went 0-8.

The football capsule from Maine states, somewhat more optimistically, that, "Maine has to be better than it was in 1967 when the Bears lost all eight games." The Maine game is usually one of the more frantic and exciting of the year, with nothing settled until the gun goes off at the end of the game.

Boosting the Maine prognostication is the fact that 27 lettermen will be returning, including nine defensive starters. The Black Bears also have a new face in a transfer from Bowdoin.

The Redmen have not been devastated by injuries as they were last year, but an injury to Pierre Marchando at guard last weekend and one to Andy Guarino during practice, have put the offense in an even more precarious position. John MacLean was moved to middle guard to plug up the hole left by Guarino. Veteran Bob Goc also quit football earlier this year.

REDMAN ROUNDUP—Tom Callaghan is one of the few deaf and mute college football players. The middle guard can read lips at 30 feet away and communicates through sign language moving his lips and writing. On the field, the other players help him through signs. But if a switch is pulled, they have difficulty reaching him. Some extra sense tells him when the team has switched plays at the last minute, and he is usually in tune with the rest of the team. Coach Fusia said, "He's definitely an asset to our team." In the huddle Callaghan has to look below the face masks of the other players to learn the play.

Ticket sales are going well for the opener, according to Ticket Manager Wally Novak. He strongly "urges" all freshmen to redeem their coupons at the ticket office. A large turnout by them, he says, would be a manifestation of school spirit. For those few freshmen who have been wearing their beanies faithfully, they can throw them into the air after the first Redman touchdown.

Today is the last to redeem your coupons. The ticket office is open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

J. G.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT — Redmen perfect timing in pre-season drill. How will Tim Adams' timing be on Saturday at Alumni Stadium,?

WMUA Broadcast From Stadium

WMUA (91.1 FM) will broadcast Redman football beginning Saturday when Maine visits UM. Glenn Briere and Hal Dash will again provide the play-by-play action and color commentary as WMUA airs all UMass games, home and away. Air time Saturday is 1:15 p.m., preceded by Peter Pascarelli's pre-game show at 1 p.m.

Hal Dash of WMUA will interview head football coach Vic Fusia in the first of a two-part series beginning tomorrow during the WMUA 6 p.m. report. Part two will be aired during the same time period Friday. Fusia will discuss this year's prospects for the squad as well as evaluating this season's opponents.

Anyone interested in becoming a varsity or frosh soccer manager, please contact Coach Broaca at the Boyden building as soon as possible.

Little Redmen Coming to Life

It is not an easy task facing UMass frosh football coach Dave Kelley these days. Ask anyone who is knowledgeable in the subject, and he'll tell you that putting a new football squad together is one of the most difficult jobs a coach can face. The capabilities of the prospective players must first be ascertained and then molded into the dynamic unit known as a team.

By Steve Shamban
Staff Reporter

This task at the freshman level is doubly difficult because the coach must coax the development of varsity hopefuls at the same time he must satisfy his own and his players' competitive urges to win. Coach Kelley is philosophical about this, and being an ex-Redman who once played frosh ball himself, he understands the importance of freshman football as security for future varsity teams.

There are 74 freshmen out for this year's team, and Kelley intends to give everyone as good a look as possible in an effort to discover new talent. He expects a lot from the several boys who have been recruited but is keeping a sharp eye out in hopes of discovering more talent from that large number.

The Little Redmen had five practices last week and Saturday they participated in their first intra-squad scrimmage. As initial scrimmages go, this one was typical as the technique and execution of the team was substandard and the defense tended to dominate.

Coach Kelley pointed out that the offense performed better than he expected, and he was impressed by the overall football instinct and intelligence displayed by his squad. Because of the controversial Yankee Conference '20' scholarship rule, he faces a lack of depth and intends to switch players from offense to defense and vice-versa for the next scrimmage in an attempt to get a better look at his material.

In discussing his players, Kelley pointed out that his observations were limited due to the short practice time thus far. No starting jobs have been won yet, and a lot can happen between now and the first game October 4.

The battle for the quarterback slot is a three way fight between Bob Casey, Mike Evans and Bill Bush. Bush has shown the most ability to date but Casey has been impressive and Evans attended Bordentown Prep, a good football school which lists among its alumni former Syracuse great, Floyd Little.

The running backs look something like the college equivalent of the New York Giants baby bull backfield of a few years ago. The leading halfbacks right now are Art Harris and Mike Sawyer. Both are 200 pounders, and both can move. At fullback Dick Cummings 225, and Len Fitz, 210, are the top candidates. Cummings is a good blocker while Fitz has good speed for his size.

In the offensive line, Kelley ticked off the names of Bobby Donlin, John Hulecki and Ron Marino. Donlin, whose brother has a good shot at a varsity spot is a 6'3", 220 pound husky. Hulecki, 6'4", 215, is a tight end who Kelley says possesses a "lot of the same abilities as Milt Morin", including a good pair of hands. Marino, 6'2", 212, has shown to be a promising center. Kelley has been impressed by the strength in the interior line and the speed in the backfield, as well as the overall natural ability of the offense.

On defense, Kelley noted the names of Jim Keating at safety and Jim Kiley at halfback. Both are 6'3" and solidly built. John Bordereud is promising at linebacker as is Dave Levine at middle guard. John Case at tackle is 6'5", 250 and is highly regarded. Curt Bristol and Joe Sabulis are listed at defensive end and have done well.

Kelley expects his team to compete at about the same level as last year's squad. For the first game, October 4, the Little Redmen travel to Army, and Kelley has high hopes of avenging last year's 22-21 loss.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

PITCH PLAY — Coach Kelley's frosh charges practice for Army game Oct. 4. Prospects are lon!

Crew Team Seeks Rowers And Coxswains

There will be an organizational meeting for anyone interested in joining the crew team tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Boyden Room 249.

Coach Mike Faherty is looking for men who are at least 6' and weigh 170 pounds. Also being sought are men who are under 125 pounds to be coxswains.

Watch For Metawampe

Baseballers Drill for Spring; Strong Contingent Turns Out

In an effort to make for an easier, breezier spring, UMass baseball Coach Dick Berquist has 47 players out for fall practice hoping to discover who will help and who won't help when April finally rolls around. Trying to find baseball talent in the cozy confines of Curry Hicks Cage in March is not the simplest of things to do and presumably fall practice will give him a headstart.

The Redmen will play an informal 14 game schedule extending to Oct. 11, which includes doubleheaders against Springfield College, Mass. Bay and Vermont. The remainder consists of single games with Siena and New Haven and several intrasquad and freshmen games.

Of the 47 players, 17 are pitchers. Back from last year are right handers Rich Rappoli, who is now rated number one, Norm Elliott and John Kitchen. To back this threesome, are some promising pitchers from last year's frosh including Lou Collabello, Don Anderson and Jack Bernardo in addition to several other prospects. Coach Berquist is especially anxious to assess his pitching staff so he'll know with whom he can work in the spring.

If number alone means anything, there is more depth at catcher than at any other position. Returning veterans are co-captain Tony Chinappi, Chuck Newell and Ed Lagoy. Varsity hopefuls are Bob Wilman, a promising hitter, Paul Sulzicki and Dan Roberts. Roberts, a junior, had a good freshman year but did not play last spring.

First basemen include Ray Ellerbrook, who is now prepping for the hoop season, slugger Bob Hansen and soph Stan Winston. Second base appears to be a wide open battle while shortstop is set with co-captain Joe DiSarcina, who is also playing basketball. At third base are junior Steve Stanford, who played ball in the Cape Cod League this summer, and Chuck Espanet. Others who could help in the infield are Mike Marchev, Tom Semino both playing on the football team, and Jack Mederious.

With the exception of Hansen, who will start in left considering the probability of Ellerbrook playing first, the outfield is up for grabs. Leading candidates are Dick Pepin, soph Mitch Salnick and Steve Vergenis.

The freshmen, under coach Arlan Barber are also having fall practice for the first time. There are 60 hopefuls out, and they will play four games against the varsity.

DIAMOND DUST—Former Redman pitching greats Carl Boteze and John Canty signed pro contracts this summer. Canty signed with the Houston Astors. Canty's contract includes a good bonus if the torn muscles in his arm heal. Houston doctors reported that his arm was sound but ordered him to rest it until spring training . . .

Boteze signed with the Red Sox and pitched at Jamestown this past summer compiling a 3-1 record. Scouts reported that he showed a lot of savvy and was impressive . . .

S.S.

1969 BASEBALL CO-CAPTAINS
TONY CHINAPPI JOE DISARCINA

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 19 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1968

700 Attend Annual Convocation Exercises

By Jan Curley
Asst. Managing Editor

Photo by Tom Benedek

Some 700 students and guests attended the 1968-69 Convocation exercises in which President John W. Lederle delivered his "Like it is" address.

Telling "It like it is", President John W. Lederle officially opened the 1968-69 academic year yesterday with a convocation address before some 700 people gathered on the lawn of Goodell Library.

Distinguished Teacher Awards were presented to William W. Boyer, Professor of Civil Engineering; Dr. Earl J. McWhorter, Assistant Professor of Chemistry and Dr. Thomas O. Wilkinson, Professor of Sociology.

President Lederle began his address with a quotation from Charles Dickens, "It was the worst of times; it was the best of times. . .", and made the analogy that 1968 was not unlike social conditions in the era of the French Revolution.

During the address, members of a group promoted Dick Gregory for president and Mrs. Coretta King, widow of Martin Luther King, as his running mate.

The group has proclaimed next Thursday as a Day of Awareness, and the flyers urged all students to participate in the rallies and the parades to be held across the campus.

Prior to the start of convocation, flyers were passed out by SMILE, the newest anti-establishment group on campus. The flyer stated that "Convocation, like the university in general, is irrelevant."

SMILE is urging the university stop playing games with their education and to teach them "to learn to live."

President Lederle, quoting from former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare John W. Gardner's commencement address last June, challenged the students, faculty and administrators to join in an "army without banners" and to act wisely in discerning the ideas around them.

Rejecting the idea that UMass was an "ivory tower", he lauded the steps being taken in education today. Carrying out the analogy with the French Revolution, President Lederle stated that UMass had not had to resort to calling in outside forces to help maintain "law and order" but that the faculty and administrators were able to work out differences with the students.

He went on to say, "There has been no bloody ivy" at UMass.

(Continued on Page 8)

Senate Kills Bill to Penalize Dropping of Objects from Towers

The Student Senate began another year of deliberations last evening in a short meeting with 36 Senators out of 50 in attendance.

President Paul Silverman announced the appointment of Senator Paul Anderson to succeed Senator Elinor Needle as Chairman of Student Matters Committee. In further remarks, he noted that the Provost has established two new committees.

One, called the University Committee on the Undergraduate, would be a "research rather than an action committee." Its purpose is, in Silverman's words, "to hope to effect change by deciding 'where we're at.'"

The second, called the University Committee on Teaching, was set up to evaluate faculty members on their teaching ability and to work for faculty advancement on the basis of teaching as opposed to research ability.

Silverman reported that the Provost has set a mid-fall deadline for the establishment of departmental student-faculty evaluation committees. Associate Dean Wagner of the College of Arts and Sciences has announced his intention to start a permanent Committee on Academic Honesty. There will be two juniors and two seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences on the committee to be appointed by Silverman. Five undergraduates will also be appointed by the President of the Senate to explore the feasibility of constructing a combined hockey rink / basketball court.

In legislative action the Senate committed indefinitely (killed) a bill establishing penalties for "anyone who drops or throws any potentially dangerous object" from a dormitory window. Vice President Hartwell charged that the bill was "unenforceable and vague," noting that judicial precedent already existed for the punishment of such offenders.

A bill calling for the abolishment of ex officio members of the Faculty Senate was passed over the protestations of Senator Larry Marcus, who claimed: "The Faculty Senate should make the rules for the Faculty Senate. This isn't in our sphere of influence." In a lengthy defense of his bill Vice President Hartwell called for the establishment of a "true university senate" or a complete separation of the administration from the Faculty Senate. Hartwell claimed there was much faculty sentiment behind the measure.

A special business motion placing the Senate in philosophical

(Continued on Page 2)

Arab Nations See New War To Regain Lost Territory

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Arab nations seem to have abandoned hope of regaining their lost lands from Israel by political means, and war talk once more pervades the Middle East.

A rash of gunfights, ambushes and artillery duels marks the 15-month-old cease-fire lines.

Jordanian and Israeli troops exchange fire almost daily across the Jordan River, one of the main points of tension.

Efforts of U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring to obtain a peaceful settlement are now virtually ignored by the Arab press. Arab governments apparently have dismissed his mission as a failure.

Aggressive speeches from Egyptian leaders are ominously reminiscent of those which preceded the six-day war of June 5-10, 1967.

Israeli authorities, too, speak of a new round of hostilities.

If war comes "the Arabs will learn once more that we are as powerful as ever before," Prime Minister Levi Eshkol declared this week. His defense minister, Moshe Dayan, warned Israel to be prepared and called for a very heavy investment in arms.

On the other side, President Gamal Abdel Nasser indicated last weekend that Egypt was entering the phase of "retaliation" against Israel. He addressed the 1,700 members of the national congress of his ruling Arab Socialist Union — a meeting which seemed aimed at putting the country on a war footing.

There was speculation in Western capitals that the 50-year-old Egyptian leader was seeking a mandate for a military thrust into Israeli-held Sinai.

Egypt's armed forces, he said, are the "only means of liberating occupied territory."

Lt. Gen. Mohammed Fawzi, Egypt's war minister and armed forces commander, assured the congress it "has now become absolutely impossible" for Israel to cross the Suez Canal.

He reported on military preparations and spoke glowingly of his troops' combat ability and morale. He emphasized Arab-Soviet cooperation in armaments.

The Egyptians are known to have concentrated 100,000 to 150,000 troops behind the canal's west bank. They have received short-range ground to ground missiles from the Soviet Union.

About 3,000 Soviet advisers are believed to be serving with Egyptian Forces. The Egyptian air force, destroyed on the ground in June 1967, has been rebuilt with MIG21 fighters and Sukhoi SU7

(Continued on Page 2)

Clark, Hoover Disagree Over Causes of Chicago Violence

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, in apparent criticism of the bloody battles between police and antiwar protesters at the Democratic National Convention, condemned police brutality Wednesday as the most dangerous type of violence.

Clark and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover differed dramatically on police handling of such disorders as they testified at the start of hearings before the President's special commission on violence.

Hoover praised Chicago police for preventing disruption of the convention and said "vicious attacking mobs" left police no choice other than the use of force.

Clark, without naming Chicago, said police should be told to use only minimum force necessary to curb disturbances.

"Of all violence, police violence in excess of authority is the most dangerous," Clark said.

"For who will protect the public when the police violate the law?

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, chairman of the violence commission, said, "It is perfectly apparent there was uncalled for action on both sides."

But the retired educator added, "If a bag of urine were thrown in my face, I think I would react."

Hoover said antiwar demonstrators deliberately provoked police by hurling abuse and human refuse at them. He said it was a tribute to the police that paralysis of the city was prevented without loss of life.

(Continued on Page 9)

Efforts to Settle Janitors' Walkout Still Unsuccessful

By Neal Novack
Staff Reporter

The crux of the custodian controversy is the lack of it.

It is not known exactly who initiated the apparent strike on Monday morning (Sept. 16), but the University Business Office spokesman, Mr. Gerald Grady, is still trying to contact janitorial supervisors or anyone who might be connected with the strike for discussion as to wage and working grievances.

Those janitors who have been calling in "sick" have been mainly those who work in the Southwest Residential Complex. Yesterday, thirty-eight workers on the day shift and some forty-six workers on the night shift failed to come to work, although the number calling in sick Wednesday was less than Tuesday.

Filling in for some of the cus-

(Continued on page 11)

In the Amherst-Smith production Orgon (Chris Jones AC '71 emerges from under the table where he has been monitoring a pungent conversation between his wife Elmire (Cappy Ribnick Sm '68) and Tartuffe (Barry Keating AC '69). The updated version of Moliere's play uses Richard Wilbur's translation and presents the title character as a Guru. Performances are this weekend at Kirby Theater on the Amherst College campus.

300 Persons Force Entry at Columbia, In Scene Reminiscent of Last Spring

NEW YORK (AP)—About 300 persons, including militant Columbia Universtiy students and their supporters, forced their way into one of the campus buildings last night after the university had withdrawn permission for a scheduled meeting sponsored by the Students for a Democratic Society.

The demonstrators marched into Schermerhorn Hall, which houses the social sciences department, ignoring the objections of a campus security guard, and entered a large classroom. The scene was reminiscent of the student takeover of several campus buildings last spring.

The university withdrew permission for SDS to use a campus auditorium for its "International Assembly of Revolutionary Students" about half an hour before the meeting was scheduled to start.

The school said it took the action because of a demonstration earlier in the day when about 30 students—suspended for their role in the disorders last spring—clashed with about a dozen campus policemen who barred them from registering.

Irving de Koff, director of student interests, told the SDS steering committee that because of the afternoon incident "space will not be granted to the SDS tonight or in the future pending a hearing by the students and faculty..."

The clash between the students and the campus guards lasted about 15 minutes. Observers said several plain-clothesmen from the New York City police department also were on hand.

SENATE . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

support of UMass' wildcat striking janitors was passed on a roll call by a vote of 30 to 6. Senator Joe Kilmartin, co-sponsor of the bill with Senator Rick Looney, noted that at their present salary, UMass janitors exist just above the poverty level as set by the Council of Economic Advisors.

In the most lengthy debate of the session, both sides of the issue were discussed, with a vocal minority claiming the issue was none of the Senate's business. Senator Jane MacAuley debated that the University should fire the absent janitors and hire students to take their place.

CONVOCATION . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

Striking an optimistic note, he said, "I trust that the tripartite community, given goodwill and willingness to bring our problems out in the open, works."

Lederle urged students to become involved during their four, six or eight years at UMass. He challenged them not to use their diploma "as a lifelong meal ticket to material affluence, physical comfort and the preservation of the status quo."

In addition to the presentation of the Distinguished Teachers Awards, Mike Gargian presented Dr. Robert W. Gage, Director of University Health Services and Head of the Department of Public Health with the Metawampe Award which he was not able to accept at Student Leaders Night last spring.

Provost Oswald Tippo also presented last year's Distinguished Teacher Award to Terrence Burke, Associate Professor of Geography, who was unable to accept the award last fall because he was on sabbatical and not in the country.

ARAB . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

fighter-bombers.

Mohammed Heikal, editor of Al Ahram and regarded as a close confidant of Nasser, has predicted: "The battle is coming." His newspaper reported Egyptian army authorities "expect a violent explosion" on the canal at any moment.

Despite their new Soviet equipment, the Arab states are judged by some military observers still to be in no state to take on the Israelis. Another defeat could well bring down Nasser and all his allies. But considerations such as these have rarely dictated events in the turbulent Middle East.

Politics '68

Humphrey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey's efforts to attract dissident Democrats will take him across half the continent Thursday to accept public embraces from Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and George S. McGovern.

The vice-president and his partisans hope the visits to Massachusetts and South Dakota will mark an auspicious start for a campaign tour that will span the next three weeks and take the candidate to such states as Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio, California, Washington and Oregon.

Barring unexpected developments requiring his presence for official business, Humphrey does not plan to return to Washington until early October. His campaigning will be interrupted only for occasional and brief rest stops at his home in Waverly, Minn.

BOSTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey brings his Democratic presidential campaign to Boston Thursday for a downtown rally at which both he and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., are to speak.

The appearance will be Kennedy's first on the presidential campaign front since the assassination in June of his brother Robert. He has spent most of his time since then in seclusion at the Kennedy family compound on Cape Cod.

Humphrey's schedule calls for him to arrive at Logan International Airport in late morning, then leave almost immediately for downtown, where Kennedy is to meet him.

Kennedy announced his support for the Democratic national ticket last week while campaigning in western Masachusetts for Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Springfield.

He said he believed that Humphrey and his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, "are best equipped to provide the kinds of programs and plans we need to move this country ahead."

Humphrey plans to leave Boston for Sioux Falls, S.D., shortly after the rally.

Nixon

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon stepped into California's heated farm labor controversy Wednesday, saying workers shouldn't cripple "an industry already in trouble." He was loudly heckled as he began to speak.

About 50 of a crowd of 5,500 at a rally, demonstrating in support of an AFL-CIO drive to organize farm workers, chanted "we want justice" and clapped in unison. Nixon ignored them.

The majority applauded and cheered at intervals during the Republican presidential candidate's talk in this California agricultural heartland. Nixon made it clear he supports the growers.

"It is unfair to damn a whole great industry and to boycott a whole grape industry because of the excesses of a few," Nixon said. "I'm against the grape boycott."

The former vice president pledged to "improve the life of the migratory worker in America today and to offer new hope to him and his family tomorrow."

AFL-CIO

NEW YORK (AP) — The general board of the AFL-CIO endorsed Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey for president Wednesday, rejecting Republican Richard M. Nixon and proclaiming "open contempt" for third party candidate George C. Wallace.

The board dismissed Nixon on the basis of his record in Congress and as vice president, and said he had actively opposed the programs which led to "the unprecedented domestic progress of the last eight years."

Its strongest criticism went to Wallace.

"Mr. Wallace has no platform, no policies and no program for America—save racism and hatred

"His pretense to be a friend of the worker is especially galling to the American labor movement. The record of low wages, poor working conditions, high crime rates, high illiteracy rates, antiunionism, segregation and prejudice in Alabama testifies to the falsity of that claim. Mr. Wallace warants the open contempt with which we view his candidacy."

Tigress
Woodhue
Aphrodisia
Flambeau
Straw Hat
Kiku

all at

COLLEGE DRUG STORE

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

The Interfraternity Council
and the
Pan Hellenic Council
Invite the Classes of 1972, 1971, 1970, and 1969
to a
GREEK OPEN HOUSE
ALL FRATERNITIES AND SORORITIES
to be held
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19
7:00 - 9:00 P.M.

EXEC COUNCIL APPLICATIONS FOR CLASS OF 1970
AVAILABLE NOW IN R.S.O.
TO BE RETURNED BY FRI., SEPT. 27

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Q.T.V.
invites all upperclassmen
to a
FORMAL OPEN SMOKER
SUNDAY — SEPT. 22
6:30 - 8:30

Students at Mount Holyoke College Return to Numerous Improvements

For many of the residents of this small New England town, nestled in the foothills of the Berkshires, it is a time of expectancy and excitement as final preparations are underway for the arrival this week of the 1800 students enrolled at Mount Holyoke College.

The 460 members of the Class of 1972 arrived Sunday for freshman orientation, followed later in the week by the 1300 upperclassmen and 50 graduate students. Convocation, which marked the official opening of the academic year, was held Wednesday evening in the amphitheater and classes will begin Thursday morning.

Numerous changes have been made in the College physical plant during the past three months. Upperclassmen will hardly recognize the interior of Williston Memorial Library, which is now in its final stages of renovation and will be dedicated in November.

A Philips 300 electron microscope, a Dutch instrument, has been installed in Clapp Laboratory for the department of biological sciences, purchased in large part by a $50,000 grant from the Brown-Hazen Fund of Research Corporation, New York City.

An indoor riding ring and stables for 25 horses is under construction and will be ready for use when the students return.

An exciting new interdepartmental course on "The Urbanization of the American Negro: Problems and Prospect" will be taught jointly by members of the sociology and economics, political science and religion departments. It will be a study of the social, political, demographic and religious aspects of the changing status of Negroes.

A Presidential Scholar, eight National Merit Scholars, four National Achievement Scholars and two King's Scholars from Thailand will be among the members of the freshman class.

One-fourth of the class was chosen under the Early Decision Plan, now in its 10th year, and 22 members of the Class will enter in February. Twenty-eight members of the class are alumnae daughters and 21 have Mount Holyoke sisters, 13 of whom are undergraduates.

Mount Holyoke College is the oldest continuing institution of higher education for women in the United States. It was founded in 1837 by Mary Lyon and chartered as a college in 1888.

Another member of the ever growing group of campus protest organizations made its first "showing" at Convocation Tuesday morning. Members of SMILE passed out fliers at the beginning and end of the convocation ceremonies, and declared their opposition to the "game" played by the University, as it attemps to "hide from reality."

SMILE is an RSO organization, with its function defined as "an organization designed to promote cultural phenomona." It has no officers because, in the words of one member wishing to remain anonymous, "we don't want to be a structured organization as such, we want to work on a basis of graded anarchy."

The members of SMILE hope to "tie in politics with life, to put political integrity on a plane with personal honesty." The group was formed because "a lot of people think a lot of things should be done." All of the group's work will be aimed at "revolutionary cultural change."

SMILE, New RSO Group, Works for Cultural Change

Communication Spacecraft to Relay 1968 Olympics to Europe Telecasts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) The most powerful commercial communications spacecraft ever built rockets into orbit Wednesday night to more than double trans-atlantic satellite telephone and television links and to relay to Europe telecasts of the 1968 Olympics.

The 632-pound craft, Atlantic 3, is a forerunner of a series expected to form the first global communications satellite system for public use. It is to ride a three-stage Delta rocket into space during a favorable launching period between 8:09 p.m. and 8:32 p.m., EDT.

After circling earth for two to three days in a long elliptical orbit reaching out to nearly 23,000 miles, Atlantic 3 was to fire a spacecraft motor kicking the switchboard satellite into a permanent station 22,300 miles over the equator, just east of Brazil.

In that position, the $6 million satellite would be able to relay telecasts of the Olympic games from Mexico City to Europe next month under an agreement with the European Broadcasting Union.

The American Broadcasting Co., which has Olympic television rights for U.S. domestic usage, plans to relay the signal overland by microwave rather than via satellite. Japanese commercial television networks have arranged to use another satellite already on station over the Pacific Ocean.

Atlantic 3, like earlier commercial communications satellites, is owned by the 63-nation International Satellite Concortium Intelsat. The consortium now has two less-powerful spacecraft operating over the Atlantic and two over the Pacific.

N. Vietnamese Set for Fall Offensive

SAIGON (AP) — Three North Vietnamese divisions with about 30,000 troops are massed along the demilitarized zone for the enemy's annual fall offensive in the northern provinces, U. S. military sources said Wednesday.

If the enemy command follows its practice of the past two years, the once-neutral buffer zone between North and South Vietnam will see heavy fighting later this month and in October as the enemy tries to get the upper hand before the monsoon season reaches its peak in November.

Waves of U.S. B-52 bombers have been trying to blunt this expected thrust by blanketing the DMZ with tons of explosives, and periodically venturing into North Vietnam above the six-mile-wide zone.

This is a drop from the previous month's estimate of 30,000 infiltrators, but much higher than the monthly average of 7,000 a year ago.

British Scientists Insist Latest Soviet Space Probe Passed Near the Moon

LONDON (AP) — Mystery developed over the Soviet Union's latest space probe Wednesday, with British scientists insisting it passed near the moon and the Russians denying it.

Although a spokesman in Moscow dubbed the British report "a canard," Sir Bernard Lovell, director of Britain's Jodrell Bank space station, stuck to his guns.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that a Russian probe was close to the moon at 6 a.m. today," he said. "That is beyond contention and that is absolutely a hard fact. We have looked up the records.

"I don't think the Russians can conceivably deny that," Lovell added. "They may presumably be denying the statement that the probe was returning to earth. I think we shall have to delay further comment on that."

Moscow announced Sunday the launching of a Zond V probe for space research but has since made no statements about its progress.

But Sir Bernard said: "The whole exercise, the time of the launching and the content of the signals, and the test of the voice transmitter, leaves no doubt whatsoever that this was a probe which was intended to come back."

Lovell first announced that a Soviet spacecraft was close to the moon. He said the lunar probe skimmed within a 1,000 miles of the moon at 5:55 a.m., Greenwich Mean Time — 1:55 a.m., EDT. It was transmitting a large amount of data to earth, he said.

As it moved closer, the Russians stabilized the rocket, which had been tumbling, he reported.

Lovell said there was a change in the nature of transmissions and an enormous increase in power.

One theory in London was that the Zond V was a moon shot, which did not quite come off, so the Russians were playing it down.

Attention Bridge Players
are you interested in the formation of an ACTIVE
BRIDGE CLUB
Intercollegiate Bridge Tournaments
Leave name, address, and phone #
in RSO office by Monday, Sept. 23.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

CHESS CLUB
FORMATION
All Interested Please Leave Name, Address, and Phone # in RSO Office by Sept. 23

Donald S. Call
carrying all the supplies that contact wearers require!
"FINE EYEWEAR DOESN'T COST - IT PAYS!"
56 MAIN STREET AMHERST, MASS. 01002

STUDENT SENATE GENERAL ELECTIONS
IN RESIDENCE HALLS
9-5:30 IN STUDENT UNION
LOBBY FOR COMMUTERS
FRATERNITIES
SORORITIES
Nomination papers available in R.S.O. office now
Completed papers are due by Friday, Sept. 27
at 5:30 p.m. in R.S.O.
OCTOBER 3 6-9 P.M.
(upstairs of Student Union across from check-cashing window).

Pay a visit to the THREE C's to browse among the wide variety of cards, candy, gifts, and school supplies --
don't forget THE PEANUTS SHOWCASE
by Ambassador Cards

U.S. Senate Rejects Firearms Registration and Licensing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rejected a series of moves Wednesday to write into the gun control bill some form of licensing and registration of firearms.

First it defeated 55 to 31 an amendment by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D—Md., to require the registration of all guns and licensing of their owners.

Another approach by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D. Wash., failed by a 48—35 vote. His amendment would have required that after Dec. 31, 1970, no federal licenses for firedealers and manufacturers would be issued in states that failed to establish a registration system meeting federal standards.

Then the Senate beat back, 53 to 51, a proposal by Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R—Mass., to establish a national firearms inventory in the Treasury Department. In this would be kept information with respect to the sale, transfer and ownership of firearms.

Also rejected, 49 to 35, was a proposal to require a license for carrying a concealed firearm.

The bill as it stands would impose a ban on interstate mail order sales of rifles and shotguns. Penalites were written in Tuesday for possessing a gun while committing any one of a list of federal crimes.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., came into the Senate to vote for Tydings' amendment, his first appearance there since his brother was slain last June. He took no part in the debate.

With a long series of other amendments waiting to be acted on, Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen made a move to head off an avalanche of amendments aimed at curbing the Supreme Court's powers.

The Illinois senator withdrew an amendment he introduced two days ago to strip the court of power to overturn jury findings on obscenity. He had forecast its approval "by a whacking vote."

Study Links Heroin Addiction To Persons Using Marijuana

A follow-up study of 168 young New York offenders who used marijuana has found that at least 40 per cent later began using heroin.

The study also found that 50 per cent of the young offenders using heroin in 1957 and 1962 were not oficially recorded as having used it during the four-year period from 1963 to 1967.

Because official narcotics records are known to be incomplete the authors of the study cautioned against drawing broad conclusions from their findings.

The study was prepared by the New York State Narcotics Addiction Control Commission with the assistance of the New York City Youth Counsel Bureau and the Narcotics Register of the city's Department of Health.

To conduct their study, the researchers selected all the males referred to the Youth Counsel Bureau in 1957 and 1962 who were using marijuana or heroin.

The researchers said that most researchers agreed there was no evidence that "marijuana is a stepping stone to the use of opiates" despite their own findings that 40 per cent of the group of 168 people went on to heroin.

Old Stalinist Purge Victims Rehabilitated in Romania

BUCHAREST (AP)—Fourteen Romanian victims of Stalinist trials, some long dead, were rehabilitated Wednesday by a ruling of Romania's Supreme Court.

The names of four former Communist party leaders and 10 prominent non - Communists, mostly engineers and administrators, were officially cleared in a move with anti-Soviet overtones.

The party leaders, purged in 1954, included Vasile Luca, a Moscow-trained trade union chief who died in prison in 1960. The others, all former party secretaries, were Dumitriu Cernicia, Alexandru Iacob and Ivan Solymos.

Men of the non-Communist group were sentenced to death or long prison terms in the Danube Canal trial of 1952. This was a hearing reported staged on orders from the Kremlin after collapse of Soviet-sponsored Danube Canal project on the Black Sea coast.

Among the defendants was a chief engineer, Nicolae Vasilescu.

The Supreme Court ruling, published in the Communist party newspaper Scinteia, said the innicence of the men of both groups was established clearly. The action against them was described as "illegal and without justification."

It was not specified how many are still alive.

The Romanian Communist party's Central Committee had denounced the verdicts last April. Both trials occurred in the regime of Gheorghe Gheoghiu-Dej, the president and party chief who died in 1965, and the Central Committee attributed to him a large part of the blame for the purges.

This approach toward rehabilitations coincided with similar operations in Czechoslovakia, whose reform program — since curbed by Soviet-led occupation forces—won sympathetic support from the Romanians.

President Nicholae Ceausescu, who is also chief of Romania's Communist party, indicated at the time that his regime would take a more liberal course in domestic affairs, though under close party control.

YOUR NAME
COMPLETE ADDRESS
CITY, STATE. ZIP
→ 1000 ←
Address Labels
Save Time & Effort
75¢
COLLEGE STICKERS
P.O. BOX #829
AMHERST, MA. 01002

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

You'll find the Snake in blue patent & brown patent at
BOLLES
FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES
The Snake by Nina

MANGLE MAINE
RALLY -- 7:00
DANCE -- 8:00, STUDENT UNION BALLROOM
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, FEATURING
THE FIFTH AMENDMENT
SPONSORED BY ADELPHIA
ADMISSION 75 CENTS

Little Desegragation Seen Unless Courts Act On It

WASHINGTON (AP)—The woman directing the government's new search for racial discrimination in Northern school systems says the effort will produce little desegregation unless the courts are asked to require it.

"There's going to have to be a lot of litigation fast, or nothing much is going to happen," said Mrs. Ruby Martin, chief of the Office for Civil Rights of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

She said in an interview that the department's first probes into the North indicate that much of the segregation has been perpetuated, if not caused, by decisions of school officials over the years.

But she said proving that school boards are to blame requires long and painstaking digging through school records. With its small staff of investigators—30 at present—the department can have no early, broad impact on the large-scale segregation in the North, Mrs. Martin contrasted the situation with the South where, she said, "the evidence is right there sitting up for you" because most Southern school systems traditionally had operated legally seperate schools for whites and Negroes.

In the North, school segregation has grown up with segregated housing. And no court yet has ruled that such school segregation itself is unconstitutional, regardless of the circumstantial cause. But Mrs. Martin said she has hope that such decisions will come.

The Justice Department has just begun its attack on Northern discrimination. Its first suit won a federal judge's order for desegregation of schools in South Holland, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. Another department action has led to plans for desegregating teachers in Indianapolis.

Symphony Orchestra Auditions

The University of Massachusetts Mt. Holyoke Symphony Orchestra will hold its first rehearsal and auditions for students and other interested musicians in the Amherst area tonight, at 7:30 p.m. in the Old Chapel, conductor Ronald Steele announced.

Formerly called the UMass Symphony Orchestra, the new name symbolizes an initial merger with qualified musicians from Mt. Holyoke College. Interested musicians from Amherst and Smith Colleges as well as residents of the surrounding communities are still invited to audition.

Begun in 1963 as a 27-piece string ensemble, the orchestra grew rapidly under conductor Steele's guidance. This year he hopes to increase its size again to number between 90 and a 100 musicians from the area.

The orchestra performs standard symphonic repertory in a series of concerts at the University during the academic year. There will be two regularly scheduled performances at the University this year, on Dec. 18, 1968 and on May 6, 1969. Julian Olevsky, violinist and artist in residence at the University, will be soloist for the first concert in December.

Those interested in auditioning may obtain more information by telephoning Prof. Steele at 545-2081 or by calling the department of music office at 545-2227.

Rich Educational Opportunities Seen in the Five College Area

Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges and the University of Massachusetts, by working together "can become one of the greatest centers of learning the world has ever known," North Burn, Five College Coordinator, told the Mount Holyoke College community Wednesday.

Mr. Burn, whose function is to further cooperation among the five colleges to provide the students of all with the richest possible educational opportunities, was the keynote speaker at evening Convocation ceremonies marking the start of the College's 132d year.

Although it is customary for the incumbent president to deliver the Convocation address, Mount Holyoke President Richard Glenn Gettell chose to relinquish the podium to Mr. Burn who "will play a significant part in shaping both the immediate and the further future of Mount Holyoke."

"Many people these days predict the demise of the small liberal arts college. I am sure it is no surprise to you that an even larger number believe that institutions of higher education segregated by sex, either male or female, have very little future," Mr. Burn said.

"They recognize the value to our society of the liberal arts college—they simply do not see how the resources needed to keep small private colleges going are to be found."

"There are three major reasons people of good will give for their prediction that liberal arts colleges have an uncertain future." Some say that the liberal arts college is irrelevant (without making clear to what), a second reason given is that it cannot cope with the tremendous expansion of knowledge and all this entails, and the third point, implicit in the other two, is the problem of money, Mr. Burn said.

"Cooperation among institutions seems to me to offer great promise" as a possible solution to these problems, Mr. Burn said.

Praising the extensive cooperation already in existence in the Pioneer Valley, Mr. Burn said, "We now have a network of arrangements ranging from routine student interchange among our institutions, to joint support of a first-class educational radio station and a literary review."

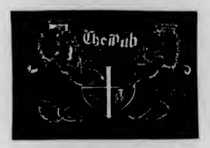
"There are many cooperative activities and many people involved in them, but the important underlying fact. . .is that our institutions now have a tradition of cooperation, and experience in it, which may provide the base for a takeoff not yet explored."

"I believe that our institutions can find answers to those prophets who predict the demise of the liberal arts college. . .But we are at the point, I think, at which all of us—trustees, staff, students, faculty, and alumni — must grapple with them (problems) if we are to see our way into the future."

"We have here in our Valley three long established private colleges of first rank—Mount Holyoke, Smith and Amherst. We have a large and growing public university which is well on the way to being one of the greatest in our nation. We have Hampshire College which probably has the most promise of any new college begun in a generation. Each of the five is or soon will be an institution of great distinction in its own right. Together, think what we can do. We can attract to our Valley some of the greatest scholars in the world. We can create departments without peer. We can offer our students unequalled educational resources. We may find ways of solving some of the fundamental problems of higher education and help not only ourselves, but the rest of our country as well."

International Club Invites New Members

Our campus this year abounds with students from abroad. They come from 56 countries and embrace a vast spectrum of experiences, ideological beliefs, and religions. Most of them are anxious to learn about the American way of life and glad to share information on their own lands.



The student body thus has a tremendous potential for cultural exchange and meaningful dialogue. Students the world over are in a state of ferment, searching for an approach to understanding between age groups, cultures and nationalities. Many attempts have been made to bridge these gaps and set up a "dialogue for growth of understanding." The International Club is such an idea and has in no way been fully exploited on this campus. It is a student organization to which all students are welcome, both American and from abroad. Without representation of all nationalities, it cannot achieve its goal of open dialogue.

Meetings are on Wednesdays, 6:30 P.M., in Middlesex Lounge.

GREEK OPEN HOUSE
THURSDAY, SEPT. 19
7:00 P.M. - 9:00 P.M.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

America's changing.
Change with it. Hustle posters in your spare time for fun and profit. GNP is a new, improved concept in new, improved concepts. Send your name, weight, shoe size, loyality number and address and we'll rush a complete, free poster profit kit to you, full of surge.
GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT
BOX 1427, WAYZATA, MN 55391
GROSS NATIONAL PRODUCT

The English Pub
REMEMBER

Coats and Ties are required
wear after 6 p.m. Fri. & Sat.

Have A GRINDER & PEPSI from the CARRIAGE LIGHT
at SOUTHWEST by Hampshire House
and CENTRAL by Gorman House
WEEKDAYS — 7 P.M. - 12:30 A.M.
FRIDAYS — 7 P.M. - 1:30 A.M.
SATURDAYS — 12 NOON - 1:30 A.M.
SUNDAYS — 12 NOON - 12:30 A.M.
THANKS

HILLEL SERVICE SCHEDULE

in the Student Union

Fri., Sept. 20	7:30 p.m. — Bristol Rm
Sat., Sept. 21	9:45 a.m. — Worcester Rm
	ROSH HASHANAH
Sun., Sept. 22	7:30 p.m. — Ballroom
Mon., Sept. 23	9:00 a.m. — Ballroom
	6:30 p.m. — Ballroom
Tues., Sept. 24	9:00 a.m. — Ballroom
	SHABBAT SHUVAH
Fri., Sept. 27	7:30 p.m. — Council Chambers
Sat, Sept. 28	9:45 a.m. — Worcester Rm
	KOL NIDRE
Tues., Oct. 1	6:15 p.m. — Ballroom
	YOM KIPPUR DAY
Wed., Oct. 2	9:30 a.m. — Ballroom

(Yizkor will be after 11:00 a.m.)

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA
Cordially
Invites All
Upperclassmen
to a
Formal Open Smoker
Monday, Sept. 23, 1968
8:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.
ΛXA

Obscenity and Fear

Obscenity is a major roadblock to the promotion of Abe Fortas to Chief Justice. Moreover, Sen. Dirksen has just proposed legislation which would prevent the Supreme Court from overturning local juries' obscenity findings.

These are two examples of America's fear of it's own body. Politicians, especially conservatives like Nixon and Thurmond, rant about obscenity and want to suppress it, but never realize that they are in fact denying the individual the right to choose his own literature, through censorship.

Sen. Dirksen's proposal would allow a "righteous" majority of locals to deny a minority, which desires pornography, the right to read or view as it pleases. Such a law tramples on minority rights, freedom of the press, and the right to privacy.

Moreover, in view of Denmark's recent successes in reducing both sexual assaults and pornographic sales by removing all censorship, Dirksen's proposal ignores relevant facts. Surely the real problem is not obscenity but what it leads to. It is more desirable for a potential rapist to buy a book and peacefully masturbate than to be driven by repression to commit a rape. Nevertheless the would-be censors appear more concerned with obscene works than with the truly dangerous consequences of repression.

The whole problem of American fear of sex is very deep, rooted in our religious and cultural heritage. This fear often causes amazement in more sophisticated countries. It is partly responsible for our high rate of homosexuality. It has made sex a "dirty little secret" in the U.S.

That this fear may be allowed to trample on Constitutional rights, and to castrate the Supreme Court is outrageous.

Sen. Dirksen's proposal, Sen. Thurmond's objection to Mr. Fortas, and Nixon's desire to suppress certain literature indicates that they are not concerned with true obscenities or dangers, and that they have never heard Woodrow Wilson's dictum "Free men need no guardians."

by Dave Baskin
Editorial Staff

Picket for Your Janitor

If you tried to get down the hall of your dorm in Southwest this morning, you might have had some difficulty wading through the mess. If you tried to study in the lounge on your floor and succeeded, congratulations.

The Southwest janitors staged a walkout Monday to protest the working conditions and the long hike from 'F' lot to the dorms. Janitors begin at a weekly salary of $80.45 and may work up to $101 after seven years.

The janitors can't park their cars in the K lots adjacent to the dorms because they are filled with staff members' cars and illegally parked cars. The working conditions speak for themselves.

It's fall, and the students are just settling down to classes. The janitors' strike could become the first "cause" of the semester. Support your janitor and show your appreciation for the work he does every day for you. He's your "mother-figure" on campus as he walks around with his bottle of Mr. Clean and vacuum cleaner. Motherhood is sacred, picket for your janitor.

". . . the epoch of belief . . ." The Peace Corps, VISTA, the New Hampshire primary, "We shall overcome".

". . . the epoch of incredulity . . ." The galleries on the last night in Chicago, the plastic flags, Russian tanks around the statue of St. Wenceslaus, "Glory, Glory, Hallelujah".

". . . the season of Light . . ." Civil rights enforcement, a try for tighter gun controls, the start of the Paris Peace Talks.

". . . the season of Darkness . . ." A motel balcony in Memphis, a railroad platform in Baltimore, the fifteenth floor of the Conrad Hilton.

President Lederle
Convocation, 1968

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR, Dick Boucher; Louise Varnum, Sandra Czaporowski, Neal Novack, Editorial Day Editor, Dave Baskin.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

"Psst—Want To See Some Dirty Pictures?"

INSIDE REPORT

Nixon and The Negro

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

SAN FRANCISCO — The most surprising and significant aspect of Richard M. Nixon's fall campaign opening was neither the massive crowds nor the majestic pace but his choice of Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts to be at his side, coast-to-coast.

Brooke, the nation's highest-ranking Negro politician, was not relegated to the back of the Nixon bus. Although Illinois and California are the most conservative of the big industrial states, Brooke was prominently displayed in both Chicago and San Francisco. In a statewide televised program from Chicago, Nixon introduced Brooke as "one of my top advisers" (though they had scarcely known each other three weeks ago).

Richard Nixon seldom does anything without intense calculation and bringing Brooke along was no impetuous fling. Rather, it was a subtle signal that Nixon is not competing with George Wallace for the extremist law-and-order vote and wants to develop Negro contacts.

Actually, Nixon and his aides privately dismiss much chance of cutting into the Negro vote (though they hope younger, militant blacks will not vote for Vice President Humphrey, either). What concerns them is establishing enough rapport with Negroes so that Nixon, as President, would be able to govern.

This concern, in turn, reflects the supreme confidence in the Nixon camp. Confident that he can win comfortably in November without biting into the Wallace vote, Nixon is worried that constant evocation of the law-and order issue in the fall campaign could fan revolt in the ghetto during the Nixon Presidency.

Thus, Nixon is making several private contacts with the Negro community—including one effort by Dr. Glean Olds, who left the State University of New York to join Nixon's staff. Last Friday night, for instance, Olds met privately with two prominent Negroes: New York lawyer James Pierce and Samuel Jackson, former member of President Johnson's Equal Opportunity Commission.

But more important than backstage contacts is the front stage appearance of Brooke in the Nixon campaign. Its origin stems from their conversation in Manhattan three weeks ago when Nixon invited Brooke to lunch as part of his wooing of disappointed supporters of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Neither man had known the other well before that luncheon, and both were impressed. Nixon told Brooke that he was not turning his back on the Negro but would campaign in the ghetto. Brooke left convinced that Nixon was not cultivating the backlash. The invitation for Brooke to accompany Nixon's tour came soon after.

All this does not suggest full agreement on issues. Brooke was disappointed that Nixon, while in Chicago, did not indict police brutality at the Democratic National Convention. (Instead, he straddled the issue). Nor did Brooke agree with Nixon's attack on Supreme Court criminal case decisions and refusal to support Abe Fortas for Chief Justice during last Wednesday's Illinois telecast.

But these disagreements are overshadowed by Brooke's satisfaction with Nixon's responsible position on law and order. Although the backlash is intense in Illinois, Nixon declared in his Chicago telecast that "law and order. . . is a code word for, basically, racism" and that "law and order must be combined with justice."

The next night at nearby Santa Clara University, a big, noisy rally would have cheered any exhortation for law and order. Nixon denied the disappointed crowd their raw meat. In fact, in neither Illinois nor California did Nixon mention Attorney General Ramsey Clark, favorite whipping boy of law-and-order orators (including Nixon up to now).

Apart from Southerners besieged by Wallaceites, Republican Politicians like Nixon's approach. Two conservative candidates for office in Illinois—Richard Ogilvie for Governor and William Scott for state treasurer—made clear to Nixon in Chicago that they seek a respectable share of the black vote and want Nixon to campaign in the ghetto.

Whether such campaigning picks up Nixon any votes or not, it may help cool Negro passions. That opportunity is a luxury of his commanding lead. If Humphrey starts closing the gap, Nixon always has the option of returning to law-and-order oratory and baiting Ramsey Clark.

Letters to the editor must be typewritten at 60 spaces and double-spaced. All letters must be signed by hand. Letters not signed in this manner and not typewritten will not be printed. Letters must not exceed 40 lines and are subject to editing and condensing. Names will not be withheld and pseudonyms will not be used.

An Invitation

from New England's Largest College Daily

The annual fall recruiting drive of the Massachusetts Daily Collegian will get underway tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the Student Union.

Openings are available in the fields of newswriting, photography, page makeup, copy editing, sports, editorial writing, business, advertising, fine arts, movie critics, book reviewers, etc. All classes are eligible, though freshmen will undergo a slightly longer internship.

Requirements for membership are simple: A brief training period, passage of a written examination, and a trial staff membership period (or internship) during which time the candidate must demonstrate a desire to serve the newspaper and a willingness to devote a minimum of two hours per week to the paper. (While most regular staffers average one night per week, no staffer is allowed to devote more than six hours per week at any time.)

We feel that if you are willing and think you are able to meet these requirements, the Daily Collegian will provide you with one of the most rewarding experiences of your education. The people, things, and events which will enter your lives every day as an MDC staffer will make the effort miniscule when compared with the returns.

(We might note here that the average cume for our five Issue Editors is 3.0)

Remember . . . That's tonight at 8:30 in the Student Union Council Chambers.

See you there.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

Free Church Transportation Now Available to Students

A free door to door church transportation service is now available to UMass students. Transportation to the First Congregational Church, the Grace Episcopal Church, and the Wesley Methodist Church can be obtained by calling 253-3442. Services and programs at the churches are scheduled as follows:

First Congregational Church
9:15 a.m.—Contemporary Service
10:30 a.m.—Coffee Hour
11:00 a.m.—Traditional Service

Grace Episcopal Church
8:00 and 9:00 a.m.—Communion
9:45 - 10:45 a.m.—Adult Education
11:00 a.m.—Morning Prayer: second and fourth Sundays.
Communion: first and third Sundays.

Wesley Methodist Church
9:30 a.m.—Church School
10:30 a.m.—Coffee Hour
10:45 a.m.—Worship

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783
10t-19

STEADY PASSENGERS WANTED

Ride to Worcester Saturday morning after 11:00 a.m. Return Monday morning. Call Zelda Bilsey (791-7251) in Worcester or leave a note in 1805 Calvin Coolidge Tower.

FOR SALE

Honda CB 160 (cheap). Excellent condition throughout, fine for commuting. See for yourself and make your own deal. No obligation. Contact Dev Cochrane, 5-2832 or 6-9306, day or night.

High quality fall, 6 speakers with 2 3 way crossovers in walnut cabinets 304 Apt. #3, N. Pleasant St.

FOR RENT

Modern, 1 bedroom, wall to wall carpet, all utilities inc. air cond, 10 minute walk to Education Bldg. $130/month. Call 549-1381

HELP WANTED

Employment Female — Student wife, full time work available 8:30-5:30. Must be well groomed and able to meet the public. Apply in person, House of Walsh.
3t-19

Large sitting room and adjoining twin bedroom overlooking campus available to student desiring minimal babysitting for two children 8 and 10 years old. Telephone 549-1269.
3t-19

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1960 Volkswagen—engine two years old. excellent condition—$450

1965 Bultaco 175 cc $250. See at 17 Sports Haven Trailer Park, Belchertown.

1956 Plymouth, 256-6976
1t-19

1951 Indian Chief 1350 cc. only $500. Come to 85 Hill Crest Pl., So. Amherst. Ask for Roger.
3t-19

1968 Honda 150, in perfect condition. Brand new engine, clutch, pipes, brakes, carrier rack and rebuilt trans. Bills to show for all work and parts. Dark blue. Cheap. Call 253-9326.

ROOMMATES NEEDED

Female roommate wanted for private furnished room. $50 per month. Apt. #1, 797 Main St., Amherst. Come after 5 p.m.

Incumbents Win Renomination In Light Voter Turnout

BOSTON (AP)—Massachusetts voters showed a preference for incumbents in Tuesday's primaries, renominating all 12 members of the U.S. House, and most of the present members of the state legislature.

But with no statewide contests on the ballot the voter turnout was light. Barely a quarter of the state's more than 2.6 million voters bothered to go to the polls.

The heaviest turnouts came in the four congressional districts in which incumbent Democrats were challenged, and in some of the legislative districts where there were hot contests.

All of the four challenged Democratic members of the U.S. House won renomination by wide margins.

In two of the contests it was an indication that the Kennedy prestige still is at a peak in Massachusetts.

Rep Edward P. Boland won renomination in the 2nd District by a 3-2 margin over Charles V. Ryan Jr., a former mayor of Springfield. Boland had the help of both Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and his wife Joan, who made campaign appearances with him.

For Kennedy it was his first political campaign activity since the death of his brother Robert in June.

In the 7th District, attention was focussed on the renomination campaign of Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, who was a roommate of the late President John F. Kennedy at Harvard, and a campaigner for him for the House, Senate and the presidency.

Macdonald swamped the Rev. John R. Elder, assistant Dean of the Harvard Divinity School, by almost a 4-1 margin.

The other two Democratic House members, both veterans of long service, also were renominated.

At the local level, the voters turned out 17 of the incumbent state legislators who sought renomination. The House has 240 seats and the Senate 40.

Karate Club To Be Formed

A karate club will be formed at UMass for the study of Tae Kwon Do, the style practiced in Korea. The instructor will be Myoung Bin Yim, who holds the fourth degree of black belt from The Korean Tae Kwon Do Association. Mr. Yim was a karate instructor in the Korean Army and has experience as a private instructor.

Anyone interested in joining the club should send his (her) name, campus address, and telephone number to M. B. Yim, 404 Prince House by Monday, September 23. Arrangements will be made for an organizational meeting, and those indicating interest will be contacted. Both beginners and advanced students are welcome.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Judo Practice Begins Tonight

Judo practice will begin in earnest tonight at 7:00 p.m. in Boyden Gym.

Strengthen and discipline your mind and body through "the gentle way." Become involved in this intriguing sport. You will find competent male and female instructors in our COED program.

Jazz Workshop To Give Program

The new University of Massachusetts Jazz Workshop will present its first program Friday, Sept. 27, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

The group includes musicians from the University student body, supplemented by distinguished guests from the professional jazz world.

"With our currently rock-oriented popular music culture in mind, the Jazz Workshop is designed to provide an important and meaningful musical balance," said Andrew D. Haigh, the workshop's faculty advisor.

The Jazz Workshop cordially invites all members of the Five-College community and all those elsewhere interested in jazz to attend. Tickets will be sold at the door or in advance at a reduced rate at the Student Union Ticket Office.

Proceeds will be used to pay guest performers and finance future programs. Another Jazz Workshop performance is scheduled for Dec. 3, in the Student Union Ballroom.

LIVE!!

ANTHONY and the IMPERIALS

—and—

THE STONE SOUL

In Concert Saturday, Sept. 21

7:30 p.m.

Curry Hicks Cage

Tickets on Sale at S.U. Ticket Office

$1.50

Wildlife Film Lecture Program To Be Held at Smith College

Mount Rainier and its wildlife will be explored in a film and lecture program to be held at Smith College Monday, Sept. 30, at 7:30 p.m. in Sage Hall.

The event is being sponsored by Smith College and the Arcadia Audubon Society as the first in a series of four joint programs featuring Audubon wildlife films.

Mount Rainier is the highest peak of the Cascades Range. The lecturer and producer of the first film to be shown is Charles T. Hitchkiss, who made the 14,410 ft. climb to the mountain's summit. His film includes sequences of the climb, and scenes of blacktailed deer, ptarmigan, hoary marmot, blue grouse and other wildlife.

Tickets for each program, or for all four as a series, can be obtained on the Smith College campus at the Biological Sciences Club, in Burton Hall, (Rm. 115, tel. 584-2700, ext. 325) and at the Calendar Office in College Hall (tel. 584-2700, ext. 325.) Tickets can also be bought at Arcadia Wildlife Sanctuary, Easthampton, Mass., 01027 (tel. 584-3009.) Full series tickets are $2.50. Single admission tickets are 75 cents.

The three other programs in the film series are "Four Seasons," a portrait of a year in British Columbia, with Wilfred E. Gray narrating, on Jan. 30; C. P. Lyons presenting a "field trip" in Mexico with a film, "Mexican Adventure," on Nov. 20, and a film of a cruise aboard a windjammer through the Bahamas, with Robert C. Hermes lecturing on April 14. The film title is "South on the Wind."

CLARK, HOOVER . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

The FBI chief said the Democratic convention was the target of deliberately disruptive tactics by demonstrators and told the panel:

"If it is true that some innocent people were the victims of unnecessary roughness on the part of the police, it is also true that the Chicago police and the National Guard were faced with vicious attacking mobs who gave them no alternative but to use force . . ."

Clark told the blue - ribbon group that police have the duty "to control violence, not cause it; to seek ways of relieving tension, not to look for a fight."

Women's Athletic Association Begins with Several Activities

With the return of students to the University, the Women's Athletic Association has again gotten into full swing. Already there are several activities going on. WAA Field Hockey and Tennis have just begun and are still looking for people who will just come out and play, not necessarily on a varsity team, but at least intramurally.

The Dance Club has begun to work already for their annual concerts and you can easily become a part of this group — simply go to the dance studio at WoPe on Wednesday evenings at 6:30.

The gymnastic team has also begun their workouts at Boyden gym and is still looking for people.

Every woman at this University is a member of the WAA, so take advantage of that membership, watch for the WAA activity notices that will be posted all over campus and come out for any activity that interests you.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

FLOOR SAMPLE
CLEARANCE

	REG.	SALE
STEREO COMPONENTS
• Fisher 500t.	339.58	259.88
95 Watt FM Receiver
• Fisher 700t.	349.95	299.88
120 Watt FM Receiver
• Pioneer 5X1000t.	299.95	219.88
120 Watt AM-FM Receiver
• KLH 11fm	229.95	199.88
Portable with FM Tuner
• Garrard SL 95	129.95	89.88
With Base & Shure Cart
• Miracord 620	89.50	59.88
With ELAC Cart.
• Miracord 50H	149.50	99.88
With Base & Cart.
• EICD 3200	139.95	89.88
FM-MPX Tuner
• EICO 3570	259.95	159.88
70 Watt FM Receiver
• Pioneer CS 24	27.50	19.88
Wide Range Speakers

SALE STARTS FRIDAY, SEPT. 20
ALL ITEMS SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE

MELODY CORNER INC.
EVERYTHING AUDIO
79 South Pleasant St. • Amherst, Mass. 01002

The MDC Wants You!

Five-College Coordinator Delivers Mount Holyoke Convocation Address

North Burn, Five-College Coordinator, delivered the Mount Holyoke Convocation address, Wednesday evening in the Mount Holyoke College amphitheater. The Convocation marked the official opening of Mount Holyoke's 132nd academic year.

It is an unusual departure from tradition when the President chooses not to be Convocation speaker. Explaining this almost unprecedented action, President Richard Glenn Gettell said, "I have chosen to vary the usual pattern to nominate as the keynoter an individual who, as Five-College Coordinator, will play a significant part in shaping both the immediate and the further future of Mount Holyoke."

Mr. Gettell, who introduced Mr. Burn, made his last appearance at a Mount Holyoke Convocation as president of the institution. It was at Convocation one year ago that Mr. Gettell announced his intention to resign as president.

Mr. Burn, who spoke on the importance of finding effective ways of cooperation among liberal arts colleges, came to the Pioneer Valley in September 1967 by appointment of the Presidents of Amherst, Hampshire, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges and the University of Massachusetts.

Working out of an office on the Hampshire College campus, his function is to further cooperation among the five colleges to provide the students of all with the richest possible educational opportunities.

A graduate of University of Washington, he received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy (now affiliated with Tufts University). He was an Air Force Officer during World War II and was subsequently assigned as Military Government Officer in Korea and Japan.

He taught government and international relations at various times at the University of Washington, Tufts, and Washington and Jefferson College, and from 1951-62 he was a foreign service officer of the Department of State, serving in Sydney, Australia, Washington and Paris.

Prior to coming to this area he was vice-president and secretary of Mills College, California.

FRESHMAN ! ! !
Cast your vote in the Miss Freshman Contest sponsored by the Maroon Keys. Balloting today and Friday in the Student Union.

GRAND OPENING!
Thursday, Friday open 'til 9
Saturday open 'til 5:30

Fun On-The-Move With RCA Portables.

Great Stereo Buy from RCA
The BACHELOR Model YLP60

Duralife* Diamond Stylus
*Trademark of RCA

The REFRAIN Model YLP60
"See-through" Portable Stereo from RCA
Exciting stereo featuring record-protecting Feather Action Tone Arm.

Protects Your Records!
RCA's Feather Action Tone Arm

Come in and register for the FREE TV

R. W. Graves Radio & TV
197 No. Pleasant St. 256-6913

PAT SCAVONE

TIM DRISCOLL

BRUCE COCHRANE

ED SARNO

JERRY GRASSO

CRAIG LOVELL

JOHN DECEMBRELE

The deepest and fastest backfield Coach Fusia has had in his seven years at UMass . . .

Are Negro Athletes Exploited?

(Ed. Note — Robert Maynard Hutchins, formerly chancellor at the University of Chicago, spearheaded a successful drive to discontinue football and other intercollegiate sports at the school. The interview at the right was originally run in the Springfield Daily News last summer.)

Robert Maynard Hutchins thinks that most paid athletes—black and white—should stop trying to go to college.

"It probably would be better to play professional football right after high school or go into some other work . . . honest work like running a laundry route or mowing lawns for a living," Hutchins said in an exclusive interview.

Hutchins, of course, is the former chancellor of the University of Chicago and the man who booted intercollege football off the campus a generation ago. He looks at sports with something other than the eyes of a superfan.

In this era of turmoil in professional athletics, this age of wide concern for the black athlete, his view from on high includes such thoughts as:

—There is no significant difference in the treatment of athletes, whether they're Negro or white.

—The question of what to do about the Negro athlete on campus is really a question of what to do about all collegiate athletes who are paid to play games—and end up without an education.

—A kind of revolution is at hand among college students who are going to refuse to support hired football teams.

"Boy Wonder"

If you're looking for Hutchins these days, you find him by driving to a mansion in a secluded, woody section of Santa Barbara. This is for the Study of Democratic Institutions. Hutchins is president of the center.

The man who once was called the "boy wonder" of higher education, now is 69 and gray. But he sat erect at his desk and fielded the questions about athletics niftily. Here are excerpts from this conversation with Hutchins:

Q. Dr. Hutchins, what is your concept of the role of athletics in college today, if there is a place for it? The question is, I suppose, how do you get amateur athletes into college life?

A. The industrialization of athletics at a university is almost identical with the industrialization of any other process that goes on in the commercial world. Not interested in educating these young people, not interested in what happens to them after they graduate, all you want to do is make as much money, get as much publicity as possible.

The only possible conceivable, justifiable reason for having athletics in the university is that it contributes something to the recreation and pleasure of the young people while they are there studying.

Unbiased Arrangements

Q. The Negro athletes, or at least some of them, are saying they're merely used by "Whitey."

A. This would be almost as true if they were white. There are alumni groups around this country who go about buying up players — everybody knows this. There are special arrangements for athletes, both financial and academic.

The reason the black students, the black athletes, feel more resentful than the white ones is they have less chance academically, greater burdens academically. Their preparation is uniformly worse than the preparation of the white students. Therefore they have greater obstacles to contend with. They are simply an extra—hardship case of the ordinary case of the athlete in an institution of higher learning.

Q. What about the argument that without athletic scholarships some of these boys might not be able to go to college at all?

A. In most cases I think it would be just as well. They probably would be better off if they didn't go. There's no magic about going to college. The question is what you do when you get there. If you spend your time getting beaten up on the football field every afternoon and then go to classes without intellectual stimulation it probably would be better to play professional football right after high school or go into some other line of work... honest work like running a laundry route or mowing lawns for a living. There's nothing in going to college unless you are able to take advantage of the opportunities, the educational opportunities.

Yes, Deprived

Q. One of the Negro athletes' chief complaints is that they have been barred from the general campus life. Do you feel that general socializing and mixing is a necessary useful part of the college education?

A. Certainly. The only reason in the world for the existence of a college is this interaction among people. The object of bringing these young people together is to provide for the interaction among them. Dialog, conversation — this is the way to learn. If they are not given an opportunity to participate in the whole campus activity, they are deprived.

Q. Do I get the impression that you believe there is no significant difference in the treatment of athletes, white or black, at universities?

A. I don't see any. One thing that's related to it, however, in a way is that white students are losing interest in intercollegiate athletes, big-time athletics. I was told this morning—I don't know whether it's true or not — that the students at San Francisco State have voted not to support a football team in the autumn. This is going to spread, I think, because there is great dissatisfaction among students of all colors with the kind of universities of which they are now members. This is going to have an effect, I think, on the development of athletics and the position of athletics in the American college.

Changing the Picture

Q. What would be the result of the abolition of "professional sports" from the universities?

A. The abolition of intercollegiate football at the University of Chicago was the greatest single thing the University of Chicago ever did. The best students from all over the world flocked into the university as a result. One of the things that has to be done about the colleges and universities is to change the picture that the public entertains of what they are all about.

Odds-Makers Say It's Oklahoma Over the Fighting Irish, 20-13

NEW YORK (AP)—Two of college football's giants, Notre Dame and Oklahoma, crash into each other going around the first corner Saturday, and the question is which one will fall.

The odds-makers say it has to be Oklahoma, smaller, with less depth yet more speed. Notre Dame is ranked third nationally, Oklahoma fifth. But chances are the Fighting Irish will be looking over the head of the Sooners to the following week's game with Purdue.

So it's Oklahoma in our first upset—special of the season:

Oklahoma 20, Notre Dame 13: The Sooners had a 9-1 season and beat Tennessee in the Orange Bowl. Look for them to intercept Terry Hanratty.

Louisiana State 14, Texas A&M 10: The Aggies will test Texas for the Southwest title.

Penn State 22, Navy 14: The Nittany Lions are big, strong and plentiful, should repeat as Lambert Trophy champs.

Southern California 17, Minnesota 14: This one could have been played in the Rose Bowl last January.

Michigan State 19, Syracuse 7: The Spartans are bounding back after a frustrating year; Syracuse will miss Larry Csonka.

Clemson 28, Wake Forest 13: The Tigers have most of their defensive bullies back in uniform.

UCLA 23, Pittsburgh 7: The rebuilding program at Pitt is nearing fruition, but this is too big an opening bite.

California 20, Michigan 14. The Golden Bears pick up momentum from their good 1967 finish.

Florida 17, Air Force 7: The Gators are agog over a 220-pound line whacker named Larry Smith.

Some others:

Tomorrow Night

Miami, Fla. 28, Northwestern 14.

Saturday

MIDWEST — Nebraska 28, Utah 7; Purdue 35, Virginia 0; Indiana 25, Baylor 6; Kansas 21, Illinois 14; Oregon State 25, Iowa 14; Kansas State 23, Colorado State 13.

SOUTH — Alabama 33, Virginia Tech 0; North Carolina State 15, North Carolina 13; Auburn 14, Southern Methodist 7; South Carolina 19, Duke 15; Florida State 17, Maryland 13; Missouri 20, Kentucky 7; Mississippi 18, Memphis State 8; West Virginia 19, Richmond 7.

SOUTHWEST — Texas 18, Houston 15; Arkansas 10, Oklahoma State 7.

FAR WEST—Stanford 27, San Jose State 7; Wyoming 21, Utah State 10; Colorado 19, Oregon 15; Washington State 28.

Second No-Hitter Pitched in As Many Days

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ray Washburn of the St. Louis Cardinals pitched a no-hitter yesterday, stifling the San Francisco Giants 2-0 and helped write major league history with the second masterpiece in as many days at Candlestick Park.

Gaylord Perry of the Giants had no-hit the Cardinals less than 24 hours earlier at Candlestick and it was the first time two no-hitters were pitched in succesive games in one ballpark.

Washburn, a sturdily-built 30-year-old right-hander, struck out eight and allowed five runners, all of them on walks.

He was in complete control and pitched his way out of his only jam in the seventh inning by getting Jim Hart on a bouncer and striking out Dick Dietz.

Washburn, whose recorded 13-7, had the Giants beating the ball into the ground. Only Hal Lanier, who flied to Lou Block opening the sixth inning, got the ball into the outfield until the ninth.

He walked Willie Mays in the first with two out but retired Willie McCovey on a grounder.

In the second Dietz walked and was erased on an inning ending double play.

The Washburn sailed through the Giants' batting order, retiring 12 straight batters until Ron Hunt walk to open the Giants' seventh.

Mays struck out but McCovey walked. Both runners advanced on Hart's ground ball and then Dietz struck out, ending the threat.

In the eighth, Dave Marshall, pinch hitting with two out, drew a walk but Bobby Bonds fouled out.

In the ninth, Washburn got Ron Hunt on a bouncer to second baseman Phil Gagliano, Mays on a grounder to third baseman Mike Shannon, and McCovery on a soft liner to Curt Flood—only the second ball hit to the outfield.

Washburn was locked in a scoreless duel with Bob Bolin until the seventh when the Cards got him the only run he needed.

Orlando Cepeda singled with one out, went to second on Edwards' ground ball and scored on Shannon's double.

In the eighth, St. Louis scored again. Dick Schofield opened with a double, went to third on Washburn's sacrifice and scored when Curt Flood beat out an infield single.

25 cents S.U. Movie 25 cents
ALFRED HITCHCOCK THRILLER
North by Northwest
S.U. Ballroom
Thursday, Sept. 19
6:00 & 8:30 p.m.

Tigers, Cards To Start World Series Oct. 2

NEW YORK (AP) — The schedule for the 1968 World Series between the Detroit Tigers of the American League and the St. Louis Cardinals of the National League (Time is Eastern Daylight.):

Wednesday, Oct. 2, first game at St. Louis, 2 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 3, second game at St. Louis, 2 p.m.

Friday, Oct. 4, open date for travel.

Saturday, Oct. 5, third game at Detroit, 1 p.m.

Sunday, Oct. 6, fourth game at Detroit, 1 p.m.

Monday, Oct. 7, fifth game if necessary at Detroit, 1 p.m.

Tuesday, Oct. 8, open date for travel.

Wednesday, Oct. 9, sixth game if necessary at St. Louis, 2 p.m.

Thursday, Oct. 10, seventh game if necessary at St. Louis, 2 p.m.

In case of rain, the entire schedule will be moved back one day.

JANITORS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

todians Wednesday were about twenty men from the grounds crew department.

Since no bargaining agents have been elected to deal with the situation, the University Business Office can only deal directly with the janitors individually or as a group, and so far the effort has been unsuccessful.

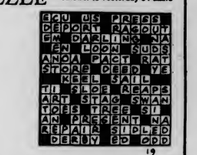
Mr. Grady has emphatically stated that "the state pay scale is too low for custodians and all other non-professional positions on campus."

Harriers to Open Fall Season With Dual Meet In Boston

Six lettermen and some promising sophomores make up the UMass varsity cross country team that faces a challenging 10-meet schedule.

Coach Ken O'Brien, starting his initial season as Redman cross country mentor, feels U-Mass should be in the thick of the Yankee Conference race. Massachusetts was second to Connecticut in last season's Conference Championship meet.

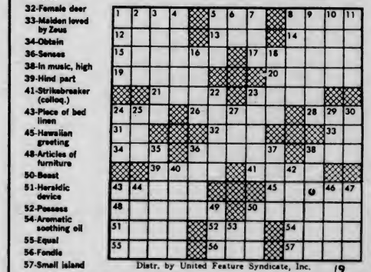
Senior co-Capts. Paul Hoss, Rockland, and Charles Lang, Middleboro head the lettermen list that also includes seniors Marc Gelinas, Wilbraham, and Diego Gonzalez, Belmont, and juniors Bill Donaldsen, Lunenburg, and Dave Evans, Longmeadow. Senior Ron Ryan, Clifton, N. J., was lost for the season due to illness.



Promising newcomers are sophomores Tom Derderian, Milford, Ronald Wayne, Brockton, Leo Duart, Vineyard Haven, and Larry Paulsen, Topsfield. Eleven of the 17-man squad are sophomores.

The season opens Sept. 28 with a dual meet against Harvard and Providence in Boston.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667



CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1-Youngsters
5-Headgear
8-Heavenly body
12-Turkish regiment
13-Wine cup
14-Pitch
15-Separated
17-Fairy
19-Put up stake
20-Lubricated
21-Slave
23-Pontiff
24-Food fish
26-Change
28-Parent (colloq.)
31-Hypothetical force
32-Female deer
33-Maiden loved by Zeus
34-Obtain
36-Senses
38-In music, high
39-Wind part
41-Strikebreaker (colloq.)
43-Piece of bed linen
45-Hawaiian greeting
48-Articles of furniture
50-Beast
51-Heraldic device
52-Possess
54-Aromatic soothing oil
55-Equal
56-Fondle
57-Small island

DOWN
1-Bark cloth
2-Wolfhound
3-Spurted forth
4-Locations
5-Uncouth person
6-Part of "to be"
7-Dance step
8-Denude
9-Labored
10-Poker stake
11-Musical instrument
16-Girl's name
18-Indigent
22-Church official
23-Removes skin
24-Wheel tooth
25-Poem
27-Pedal digit
29-Be ill
30-Spack
35-Threefold
36-Doom
37-Peruse
38-South American serpents
40-Eel fisherman
42-Excuse
43-Cease
44-Rabbit
46-Meeting room
47-Egyptian singing girl
49-Soak up
50-Emmet
53-Pronoun

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 19

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

1961 SEPT

Redmen Seek 15th Straight Conference Win

Adams Tabbed at QB; Rally On Tap Tomorrow

By Tom FitzGerald
Staff Reporter

Tim Adams will be the man of the hour when UMass opens the new season Saturday against revenge-minded Maine in the Redmen's first game without Greg Landry since the Tangerine Bowl game on Dec. 12, 1964.

Adams, an untested 5'11 junior from Wellesley, will call the signals as UMass seeks its 15th straight Yankee Conference victory. The Redmen have won the Conference title in four of the last five years.

A 10-8 victory by Maine in 1965, the Redmen's last Conference loss, gave the Black Bears the title that year. In 1966, however, a 25-yard field goal by Bruce Cochrane with 21 seconds left gave UMass a 10-7 win over Maine at Alumni Stadium.

Last year's 30-9 rout by the Redmen in Orono gave UMass a 9-4-1 bulge in the series with Maine, dating back to 1909.

Joining Adams in the starting backfield will be three more juniors, tailback Craig Lovell, fullback Ed Sarno and wingback Jerry Grasso, Head Coach Vic Fusia has announced. Cochrane, who apparently lost a tough fight with Sarno for the starting nod, will also see action.

Added depth in the rushing department, perhaps the fastest group in Fusia's eight-year tenure, is provided by senior Tim Driscoll and junior John Decembrele at tailback, and soph wingbacks Pat Scavone and Neil Hering.

Kick-off time at Alumni Stadium is 1:30 p.m. A weekend of festivities will begin tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. with parades, produced by the campus service organizations, from the Orchard Hill and Southwest areas to the south terrace of the Student Union.

UMass coaches and Co-captains Nick Warnock and Mike McArdle are scheduled to appear at the season's first rally at 7 in front of the Maroon Key bonfire, moved to the south lawn this year because of the Campus Center construction in the rear of the Union.

The annual Frosh-Soph picnic, featuring the Critters, will take place after the game near the Stadium, rather than at the Stadium as in past years.

Redman spectators will be shifting their gaze to the five candidates for the title of Miss Freshman, to be named at the picnic — Geraldine Curtis of White Plains, N. Y., Paula Rotondi of Melrose, Claudette Fong of Honolulu, Maryann Gelderman of Bethesda, Md., and Chris Whalen of Dorchester. Miss Fong is a cousin of Sen. Hiram Fong of Hawaii.

TIM ADAMS
New Face at QB

STEVE ROGERS
Junior Safety

BOB SHEEHAN
Senior Center

FRED HUPPRICH
Soph Tackle

BRUCE FULTON
Junior Guard

UMass, 7-2 overall last year, will field 23 lettermen, and Maine, winless in eight games in Coach Walt Abbott's first season, boasts 26 lettermen.

Two pint-sized juniors, 5'7 quarterback Dave Wing and 5'11 split end Gene Benner, pose the top offensive threats on the Maine squad. Ten Bear lettermen head a defense that is sparked by All-Yankee Conference linebacker Pete Quackenbush and highly-rated end Don Loranger.

Freak accidents during the summer robbed Maine of two outstanding tackles. Soph Charlie Wingate suffered a fractured cheek bone and concussion when he fell from a moving truck, and senior Bruce Morse suffered a back injury when a 275-pound steer forequarter fell on him while he was hoisting beef onto a truck.

In the offensive line, UMass will start Co-captain Warnock and senior Alan Becker, ends; juniors Dick Donlin and Jim Nangle, tackles; juniors Mike Cooney and Bruce Fulton, guards; and senior Bob Sheehan, center.

Warnock, the Redmen's leading pass receiver with 29 catches for 424 yards last year, is ranked among the best in the East this year and considered a sure repeater on the All-Conference team.

Donlin, biggest UMass player at 6'6, 290 pounds, was inserted in the line-up when soph Pierre Marchando suffered a pinched nerve in his neck in last week's intra-squad scrimmage, forcing Fusia to move Cooney, a starting tackle last year, to guard.

The defense, which lost three All-Conference players to graduation, end Paul Milnar, tackle Kent Stevens and linebacker Ernie Smith, features a top-notch backfield in Co-captain McArdle and senior Bill Frye at cornerback, junior Steve Rogers at safety and junior Don Dotson at the "rover" position.

McArdle, another All-Conference pick, has recovered from the broken leg that sidelined him last year.

Juniors Dennis Gray and Larry Fortunoff will be the linebackers, and the line will be made up of junior Tom York and senior Randy Robinson, ends; junior Marty Scheralis and soph Fred Hupprich, tackles, and junior John MacLean, middle guard. Robinson spent the entire 1967 season side-lined with an injury. Hupprich returned from a hitch in the service.

Warnock, whose punts averaged 35.6 yards last year, will again handle the fourth-down chores, backed up by Rogers. Scheralis will again be kicking off, and may split place-kicking duties with junior George Anderson.

Junior Steve Parnell, one of the nation's top kick-off-and-punt-return men last year, will play in either single safety or double safety with Grasso or Frye, Fusia said. Parnell, an electrifying runner who averaged 29.1 yards on kick-off returns and 10.5 on punt returns a year ago, will probably be flanked by Grasso and Lovell on the kick-off team.

"We expect a very difficult game," Fusia said. "Maine has always been tough for us." Before last year's trouncing, Fusia's teams had won by scores of 10-0, 14-7, 6-0, and 10-7, and lost by scores of 10-7 and 10-8.

"We're the champs, and we must play like champs," he said. "We've got a string of victories going for us. This will be one of the bigger Maine teams we've faced." The biggest man is offensive tackle Charlie Hews, a 6'6, 270-pound junior transfer from Bowdoin College.

Fusia expressed satisfaction with the deletion of the one-year-old NCAA rule preventing interior linemen from advancing to cover punts until the ball is kicked.

"I thought they were wrong in making the rule. It's just as thrilling to see good coverage and a runner stopped in his tracks, as to see a good break. The rule didn't open up the game."

A new rule that the clock will stop after each first down may lengthen the game considerably, he said.

Wing-Benner Combo Lightens Task of 0-8 Coach

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

For the first time in almost a decade, the University of Maine football team is being relegated to the Yankee Conference cellar in the pre-season football talk.

The Black Bears, as UMass seniors may well remember, beat the Redmen, 10-8, in the 1965 opener and went all the way to the Beanpot that season. Last year UMass ran over Maine, 30-9, and the Black Bears never recovered, finishing up the season with an 0-8 chart.

Sophomore Coach Walt Abbott has a sobering task in front of him. He must depend mainly on an experienced defensive unit to pull the Downeasters out of the depths.

Abbott liked the way the Bear offensive unit moved the ball against a good-sized Amherst eleven in a pre-season scrimmage at Orono last Saturday. Junior quarterback Dave Wing, a scrambling 5'7 flinger, nailed down the starting quarterback job with his performance.

The marked man, however, will be junior end Gene Benner, an outstanding pass receiver who picked off seven passes for 148 yards against the Redmen last year.

"Our best offensive boy," is the phrase Coach Abbott uses to describe him. The 5'11 split end will probably set double coverage from the UMass defenders Saturday, but alert football fans should keep their eyes on him (number 80), nevertheless.

Other probable Black Bear starters are Co-captain Don Lorranger and Mike O'Leary at end, along with sophomore Ernie Gilbert and Paul Dulac at defensive tackle and Jon Piper at middle guard.

All-Yankee Conference selection Pete Quackenbush will be backing up the line along with sophomore Dave Coitin. The defensive secondary features cornerbacks Tom Jordan and Ken Zuck and Co-captain Frank Griffin and John Collins at the double safeties.

The Black Bears will leave their Orono den at 8 a.m. tomorrow. hold a fullscale workout at a stop enroute and arrive in Amherst early tomorrow evening.

Coach Abbott is uncertain as to the role his charges will play in the conference, but he feels the Redmen's depth and experience makes them the pre-season favorite.

MIKE O'LEARY
Maine Defensive End

Humphrey, Kennedy Booed in Boston Rally

"Shame on Teddy" Cried After Endorsement

BOSTON (AP)—Hundreds of anti-war demonstrators booed Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy as the Vice President received an enthusiastic endorsement from the Massachusetts Senator.

UPI

Ted Kennedy became the first Kennedy to be booed in his home state when he endorsed the Vice President. It was his second major political appearance since his brother's assassination.

The rally, held in the downtown shopping district, provided the Vice President with his largest crowd of the campaign, but also with his most hostile.

Both Humphrey and Kennedy barely were able to speak over the noise and chanting of demonstrators.

Humphrey said the demonstration was neither disturbing nor convincing and "frankly it's ridiculous."

Kennedy, standing on the bunting-draped platform beside the vice president, said the 1968 campaign—which took the life of his brother, Robert—"proved there was no room for anarchy."

In introducing the vice president, and giving him an "unhesitating" endorsement, Kennedy said one of the year's lessons is that difficult and compelling problems won't be solved by "shouting and screaming." The protestors shouted back at the Massachusetts senator, "Shame on Teddy."

A.P. Photo
Humphrey Booed in Boston

Kennedy, his blonde wife Joan sitting nearby, told Humphrey that he was "among friends" in Boston and Massachusetts who would "work for your election."

This drew a chorus of boos from demonstrators, who raised their hands in the two-fingered "peace sign."

Humphrey, shown in the polls to be trailing his Republican opponent, Richard M. Nixon, predicted he will win.

Keunedy recalled that his late brother, John had also trailed in the polls in his crucial 1960 West Virginia primary battle with Humphrey, but had gone on to win.

Humphrey "will do the same," Kennedy predicted.

The vice president landed in Boston a half-hour behind schedule and was greeted at the airport by Kennedy. Original plans had called for Kennedy to meet Humphrey at the Rally site.

Humphrey rode into Boston in a motorcade that wound for about two miles through the city. There were two or three large gatherings along the way, but much of the route had few spectators.

Humphrey's day was made a bit brighter later in the day when he received the endorsement of Sen. George McGovern.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 30 10 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1968

Senate Supports Janitors; "Sick Leave" Continues in SW

By Richard Lane
Staff Reporter

Two new developments were added yesterday to the continuing labor controversy involving janitors of the University of Massachusetts Southwest Complex. The Student Senate passed a resolution supporting the striking custodians while members of the University Administration met with the janitors for the first time since the strike began Monday.

Approximately 40 janitors stayed off their jobs Thursday for the fourth consecutive day in a protest over wages, working conditions, and parking privileges. The strike began Monday as 75 custodians were absent from work, reportedly calling in sick.

The Senate action was taken not only to show student support of the custodians but also to show its opposition to any possible intention of the Administration to hire students as strike breakers.

The Senate's resolution, sponsored by Joe Kilmartin and Martin Looney, stated in part that ". . . the Student Senate philosophically supports the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees in their efforts to obtain a living wage and better working conditions."

The resolution continued that the University Administration itself "actively support the requests of the janitors," and that ". . . the Student Senate opposes the hiring by the Administration of students to take the place of the striking janitors (i.e. strike breakers) and encourages students to refuse to accept such jobs if offered."

The Senate also resolved that a statement of its position be communicated to the Massachusetts General Court.

Before any further action to be taken by the Senate, "We will wait for the Administration to move," according to Senate Vice Pres. Frederic Hartwell.

Regarding the meeting between the Administration and the janitors, University business manager Gerald Grady told the MDC that "all issues" were discussed.

Grady stated that yesterday's meeting was not a form of negotiations and that there is "little that can be done" by the Administration itself.

The janitors are state employees and their remedies lie with the government. The University has warned, however, all employees that they face loss of pay and disciplinary action if absences are not verified.

Concerning the Senate's opposition to hiring students as strike breakers, Grady said that, "There has been no hiring of students to the best of my knowledge." Neither has there been any firing of students during the strike.

He added, however, that many students have applied for pre-existing custodial positions and that as soon as the strike is resolved "students may work as janitors if they want too."

Grady stated that at present he "doesn't know" how the whole situation will be resolved or when. Grady said that while "we have got to get help," he noted that all reports he has received from the Southwest residents affected show that they are having no major difficulties. University groundskeepers are doing the custodial work at present.

Student Senator Joe Kilmartin of Kennedy in Southwest told the Collegian that "Everything looks as clean as before. There is no inconvenience. There is no health problem." The residents are picking up for themselves according to Kilmartin.

MDC Welcomes 100 Staffers

Approximately 100 applicants attended the Daily Collegian recruiting meeting last night.

Brief talks were given by Collegian Editor-in-Chief Jack Dean, Managing Editor Donald Epstein, William Field, Dean of Students, and Alvin F. Oickle, Technical Advisor to the Collegian.

The internship program will begin next week. Notices of meetings will appear in the Collegian next week.

Rock-Roll Debate Highlights First S.U.G. Board Meeting

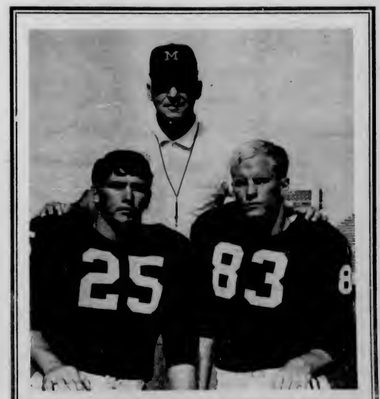
By Pat Francis
Staff Reporter

"I don't particularly like rock and roll, but for so long this campus had been dead, and has lacked spirit, that now that we've got some spirit, it seems a shame to squelch it." This opened the discussion on the use of the Student Union South Terrace at the Student Union Governing Board meeting last night, but no action was taken.

The topic came up in response to complaints of noise, disturbance to the library, and crowds on the South Terrace.

In other action, the S. U. G. Board:

Voted to send out bids for a copy service, such as Gnonom, to be located in the Student Union Building.



Decided that openings on the Board would be filled by an election in November. Members now serving would remain on the board until May, when general elections would be held, in accordance with their new constitution.

Discussed plans for the official use of the Murray D. Lincoln Campus center, and referred the subject to the building committee.

Decided to post minutes of the meetings on the bulletin board in the Union lobby. It was voted to continue Thursday meetings, which will be open to the entire campus.

Granted the Student Fire Dept. permission to sell fire extinguishers in the lobby during Fire Prevention Week.

The Board also voted to allow the League of Women Voters to put up a table in the lobby to disseminate non-partisan voting information to undergraduates of age.

Head football coach Vic Fusia and captains Mike McArdle and Nick Warnock await the start of the 1968 Redman football season this Saturday against the University of Maine. See page 12 for details.

OCT 2 0 SEPT

An Angry Answer

HHH Slams Protestors

"They'll never live long enough to run me off the platform because they're basically cowards."

That was Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's reaction to demonstrators such as those who tried to shout him and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy down at a Boston street corner rally Thursday.

"They've met a tough guy," said Humphrey.

"These people are intentionally mean, anarchistic, rude," the Democratic presidential candidate said about the Boston demonstrators.

"They do not believe in anything—this is the hard core. Take a look at them, filled with hate and bitterness. Look at their faces filled with violence."

"These aren't McCarthy people," Humphrey added. "This is the hard core. They spent days bringing these people in."

Humphrey was asked about a political backlash from such demonstrations and whether he would rather have the demonstrators or not.

"I'd rather not, but they are there," said Humphrey. "What they're really after is to try to stop us from going out."

Humphrey was asked why they heckled him and not his Republican opponent, Richard M. Nixon.

"Because a liberal has always been the focal point of the anarchists, Fascists and Communists," he replied. "That always has been the tradition in Europe and several places."

But Hurnphrey said again: "They'll never run us off the platform. They'll never stop us from speaking."

Nixon's Chances

"Better Than Ever"

RICHARD NIXON

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, raising funds for his Republican presidential campaign, said Thursday night his election day chances are "better than even" in the seven biggest states of the nation.

Nixon, in a speech to a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner, said contributors there and at 10 other such affairs across the nation are supplying the money the political task will require.

He ticked off his seven standard target states: New York, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio Michigan, Illinois and Texas.

"We think we have a better than even chance in every one of them," Nixon said. "and believe me, if we can do that, we're in."

Nixon arrived in New York just hours earlier after completing a Midwestern campaign swing during which he promised that policy councils of a Republican White House would make room for American's dissenters.

Earlier, in Springfield, Mo., the candidate declared, "I don't want a government of yes men."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

Rapp's Delicatessen

AND RESTAURANT

79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan

OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES

Delicious Salads -- Desserts

HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE

FREE DELIVERY

Every night 6-11 p.m.

Phone 256-6759

Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.

BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

National Youth Lobby Proposed In Effort to End Alienations

(CPS)—A young man in Florida has decided that the answer to youth's problems may lie in a National Lobby to campaign solely for the views of the young in the political arena.

Kenneth Rothschild of Deerfield, Fla., contends that the generation of under - 26 citizens in this country are being exploited by a political system run almost exclusively by those over 26, and that it is time for young people to do something about it.

The fault, Rothschild maintains, lies in the decision-making process in the U.S. government, which decides among alternative cources of action on the basis of weighing the vested interests in each possibility.

Rothschild hopes the Youth Lobby can be a way for youth to fight back against such decision-making. The Lobby is to be an "inter-racial, non-partisan power center" designed to set up an organization "which will be influential in directing current legislation, and so provide a "clearing house for youth's opinions."

The organization is clearly not aimed at those who would, SDS-style, tear the system down and start over, or who think the established political process is incurably ill. The Lobby's objectives include "providing a constructive outlet for young activists who may move in time of frustration to rebellion and lawlessness" and "Providing some rapport between youth and the Establishment."

The main evil Rothschild wants to change is the draft, which he sees as the most blatant exploitation of youth by adults.

While he does not advocate making the old fight or even turning the decision-making over entirely to the young, he proposes a way to "make the old agonize too." He, like Senator McGovern, calls for the establishment of a volunteer army, both because it, "unlike the present Selective Service System, is not involuntary servitude," and because it would make the cost of war greater than the cost of peace. If the military were run on a free-enterprise basis, the government would have to bid for soldiers' services; and those services would command a much higher price in wartime.

Waiting for the months it takes a revolutionary idea to become accepted, and the additional months it takes Congress' slow legislative processes to work, however, is not acceptable

"We must be able to pressure decision - makers to act now," Rothschild says, "no matter which party is administrating. Do you think the young care whether they die under a Democrat or a Republican administration?"

The only alternatives now available to the system for young people are desertion and anarchy, the Lobby maintains. It hopes to give another possibility.

Judicial Council Rules in Favor Of Limiting Lawyers' Statements

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Judicial Conference of the U.S. called Thursday on all federal trial courts to adopt rules limiting what lawyers may say publicly about criminal cases.

The 25-judge conference headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren recommended also that these courts forbid marshals, clerks and bailiffs from releasing information about closed hearings.

These and other proposals to control what it described as "inflammatory publicity" about criminal trials were adopted by the conference after their endorsement by 164 judges across the country.

The recommendations were accompanied by suggestions that the district courts use their disciplinary powers to make certain that lawyers and courthouse personnel comply.

In the case of a lawyer, this could mean contempt action or prohibiting him from practicing before the court. In the case of marshals, clerks and bailiffs it could mean firing.

The conference comprises the chief judges of the 11 federal circuit courts of appeals, a district judge from each of these circuits and the chief judge of the courts of claims, customs appeals and patents. Warren presides as chief justice of the U.S.

In the main, they parallel recommendations adopted last February by the American Bar Association. One major difference is that the judges decided not to recommend that newsmen be excluded from hearings held outside the presence of the jury.

Additionally, the two groups put different emphasis on contempt. The ABA advised judges to use their contempt powers against anyone, including reporters and editors who willfully try to affect a verdict by disseminating statements about the defendant or the issues.

The conference said it would not call for "any direct curb or restraint on publication by the press of potentially prejudicial material. It explained that such a curb "is both unwise as a matter of policy and poses serious constitutional problems."

Chicago Convention Cite Shunned; By Fourth Group in Two Weeks

SAN FRANCISCO (CPS) — The American Humanist Association has become the fourth major organization in two weeks to announce that it is moving future conventions planned for Chicago away from that city to somewhere else.

Executive Director Tolbert McCarroll announced last week that the Association has sent letters urging similar action to hundreds of other organizations.

The action came in protesting the treatment of thousands of demonstrators at the hands of the Chicago police department during the recent Democratic National Convention.

The Humanist Association said it had placed itself under a five-year ban on all national and regional meetings in Chicago.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Cordially

Invites All

Upperclassmen

to a

Formal Open Smoker

Monday, Sept. 23, 1968

8:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

ΛΧΑ

SDS at Columbia May Lose Charter

NEW YORK (AP)—A Columbia University official asked a university committee Thursday to consider whether to revoke the campus charter of the radical Students for a Democratic Society.

The committee is composed of two administrators, two faculty members and two students.

Revocation of the charter would mean the loss of all rights to use university property, a spokesman said, and also that the university would not recognize student membership in SDS.

SDS members have led the efforts to cripple the 25,000-student university as the opening of the fall term approaches. Classes begin Sept. 26. The militant group touched off the demonstrations last spring that paralyzed The Ivy League school.

The university's director of student interests, Irving de Koff, referred the charter issue to the committee, a university spokesman said.

DeKoff acted after about 150 militant students halted registration at the Morningside Heights campus Wednesday by blocking a doorway. The demonstrators clashed briefly with about a dozen campus police although there were no injuries or arrests.

Registration resumed Thursday without incident.

The Wednesday demonstration led De Koff to suspend previously granted permission for a meeting of international student revolutionaries on campus. The gathering is being sponsored by SDS.

Several hundred young men and women, however, pushed into a Columbia building Wednesday night for an unauthorized meeting of the International Assembly of Revolutionary Student Movements.

Amherst Tower

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Politics '68

Second Men on the Stump

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew said Thursday that AFL-CIO President George Meany might be violating the intentions of federal prohibitions with his union education drive for Democrats.

"The use of union dues for political purposes without the members' consent is a very serious thing," the Republican vice presidential candidate told a news conference.

"If he uses full-time staff people paid with union dues for political purposes I think he is probably violating at least the spirit and intent of federal prohibitions."

Meany told a news conference Wednesday that unions would begin an intensive education and voter registration drive among members on behalf of the Democratic ticket.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, Democratic vice presidential candidate, addressed the California Assembly Thursday on problems and challenges of government.

Although Muskie said earlier in the day in San Francisco that his Republican rivals had indulged in "the height of irresponsibility" for saying Democrats were soft on crime, his speech here was nonpartisan.

Speaking to a standing-room-only chamber of the state's lower house, Muskie said that in an era when mass communications are an "intimate part of our daily lives, we have great difficulty in communicating with each other.

"As a result, faith in our Democratic system has been shaken. If that system is to survive, we will need to restore that faith."

Muskie was introduced by Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, who supported Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy for the presidential nomination at Chicago over Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Unruh noted that California was prepared to cast all its 174 votes for Muskie, but was caucusing off the floor when the vice presidential roll was called.

"I'd like to do that today," Unruh quipped.

Unruh is "honorary" co-chairman of the Humphrey-Muskie campaign in California, but has not indicated yet just how actively he will campaign for Humphrey.

Unruh also invited Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, the Republican vice presidential nominee, to address the Assembly, but Agnew said his schedule didn't permit his appearance.

APG Begins Recruiting

Delta Gamma Chapter, Alpha Phi Gamma, will open its year with a membership drive and initiation banquet in October.

Acting Pres. Marjie Flanders today announced the banquet will be Oct 24. A speaker with a national reputation in communications will be presented after the meal.

Miss Flanders is heading the recruitment. Membership is open to full-time student with a 2.0 scholastic average and a semester's experience as an editor or principal staff member or, two semesters' experience in a lesser position. Only the three upper classes are eligible.

Planned for the academic year are informal monthly "coffee seminars" with speakers from newspapers, broadcast media, magazines, advertising and public relations. Highlighting the year will be a communications banquet in the spring at which awards will be given student editors, reporters and broadcasters.

Miss Flanders, a senior who lives at 410 Thoreau, will welcome inquiries and applications from any students interested in membership in the honorary journalism fraternity.

Library Hours

Regular Hours
Monday-Friday
8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Saturday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.

Additional Reserve Desk Service and Study Hall Hours
Sunday-Thursday
10:00 p.m.-12 midnight

Note: Study Hall hours begin Sunday, September 15. There will be no Study Hall hours on Sunday, November 10.

Vacation and Intersession Hours
Monday-Friday
8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday, Sunday—Closed

Amherst Tower

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Czech Prime Minister Resigns; More Soviet Demands Met

PRAGUE (AP)—Foreign Minster Jiri Hajek resigned Thursday and Premier Oldrich Cernik has been appointed acting foreign minister, the official Prague Radio reported.

Hajek's removal had been demanded by the Soviet Union during Kremlin talks four weeks ago

He is one of three officials of the liberal Communist regime, headed by party chief Alexander Dubcek, whose removal the Russians demanded.

The other two were Deputy Premier Ota Sik and Interior Minister Josef Pavel.

Sik is reported to have been appointed commercial counselor of the Czechoslovak Embassy in Belgrade and Pavel is on pension. Hajek is expected to seek a professorship at Prague Univ.

Hajek demanded the withdrawal of Soviet and other occupation forces from Czechoslovakia in a speech before the U.N. Security Council in New York the weekend of Aug. 24-25. Later he requested that the Czechoslovak issue be dropped from the proceedings.

He was abroad when Soviet and other Warsaw Pact troops occupied this country Aug. 21.

Soviet and other occupation forces have taken a direct hand in controlling at least three Czechoslovak newspapers that offended them, the official Communist press reported.

Pravda, organ of the Slovak Communist party published in Bratislava, reported the seizure Tuesday of the editorial offices and printing plant of the newspaper Vpred—Forward—in the town of Zvolen in northern Slovakia. The official radio said that in Banska Bystrica, the Russians insisted on firing the editor of another paper. In Ostrava, a northern industrial town, they closed still another paper for two days.

The Soviet interference with the press came just before an expected trip to Moscow by Dubcek. Last time he went to the Soviet Union, four weeks ago, he was under guard of Soviet forces which had invaded his country.

He is expected to be accompanied this time by Gustav Husak, the new head of the Slovak Communist party. Husak, a rising figure on the national scene, said earlier this week that the Soviet troops would not leave until "anti-Socialist and anti-Soviet forces" are prevented from arising.

Prague radio also announced Thursday that Pres. Ludvik Svoboda had relieved Karel Hoffmann from his post as chief of telecommunications at the request of the government. This was apparently because of reported attempts by Hoffmann to block telephone communications after the Soviet Invasions.

Allies Back West Germany As Soviet Threat Rumored

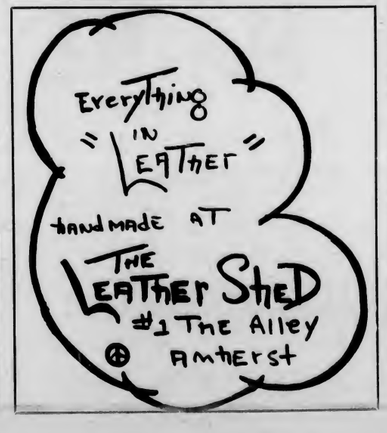
BONN, Germany (AP)—The Bonn government hit back Thursday night at Moscow's renewed threats of force against West Germany, warning that the whole Western alliance stands ready to defend this country.

A Bonn government statement, issued in reply to an article in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia, said: "To preclude any miscalculation on the Soviet side, it must be stated that intervention against any one member of the Atlantic alliance would mean the unleashing of an allied response. This allied reaction is clearly defined in Articles 5 and 6 of the Atlantic pact."

The statement said: "The article in today's Izvestia makes clear that the Soviet Union regards, in all openness, the use of force as an instrument of its policies."

Izvestia, evidently citing the controversial "enemy states" articles of the U.N. charter, threatened force to back its view that West Germany has no claim on West Berlin, which Bonn regards as part of the federal republic.

The article said Russia is entitled to employ force in event of "encroachments" by Bonn on West Berlin.



Other Support

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau assured the House of Commons Thursday that Canada will discharge its obligations under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The prime minister was questioned about a statement he made Wednesday that the United States spoke for itself when it said Soviet intervention in West Germany would draw an immediate response from NATO.

J. Angus MacLean, a Conservative, asked specifically whether Canada was prepared to back the U.S. warning. Trudeau replied that Canada is bound by the terms of the NATO treaty and would act by NATO's decisions.

Prof. Irving S. Fagerson of the University of Massachusetts department of food science and technology is one of a group of 65 scientists from many parts of the world at a symposium in the sensory evaluation of food Sept. 8-13 in Goteborg, Sweden. The meeting includes representatives from East and West Europe, New Zealand and Japan.

MAMA'S PIZZA

103 No. Pleasant St.

	Reg. (10 in.)	Lg. (15 in.)
Tomato Cheese	.95	1.50
Pepper	1.50	2.00
Onion	1.50	2.00
Mushroom	1.50	2.00
Anchovie	1.50	2.00
Hamburg	1.50	2.00
Sausage	1.50	2.00
Pepperoni	1.50	2.00

Slices 25¢

Combinations — each added ingredient

.15 Reg. .25 Lg.

OPEN TIL 2 A.M.

FREE DELIVERY

CALL 253-9858

Kindahl Named Economics Head

Dr. James K. Kindahl has been named a full professor and head of the department of economics at the University of Massachusetts, it was announced today by Dean I. Moyer Hunsberger of the UMass College of Arts and Sciences.

Dr. Kindahl, who joined the UMass faculty in 1967 as an associate professor of economics, relieves Dr. Bruce R. Morris, acting head.

Dr. Kindahl was graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Chicago where he also earned M.B.A. and Ph.D. degrees.

Before joining the staff at the University, he was a visiting associate professor of economics at the University of Chicago for the academic year 1966-67. The previous year he was a Lilly Faculty Fellow in the department of economics and Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago.

He was chairman of the economics department at Amherst College in 1964-65 and also served on the faculty of John Hopkins University. Dr. Kindahl has been a statistical analyst for the Chicago market research firm of Market Facts, Inc., and has served as a consultant for the Savings Bank of Baltimore, the Equitable Trust Co. of that city and Baltimore Contractors, Inc.

Dr. Kindahl has written articles or reviews for such publications as the National Tax Journal, the Southern Economic Journal, the Journal of Political Economy, the Journal of Market Research and others.

His recent research on industrial prices has resulted in two major works: collaboration with George J. Stigler on a study for the National Bureau of Economic Research on the behavior of industrial prices in the U.S. and a paper for the American Economic Review on "The Construction of Industrial Price Indices."

Foreign Aid Bill Clears House; Smallest In Twenty Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House passed and sent to the Senate Thursday a $1.62 billion foreign aid appropriation bill, smallest in the 20-year history of the program.

The roll-call vote was 173 to 139.

The House upheld after several hours of listless debate, a 45 per cent cut of $1.3 billion recommended by its Appropriations Committee in the $2.9 billion of new financing requested by President Johnson.

Only two attempts were made to increase the committee-approved funds. One, to add $50 million for Alliance For Progress loans and grants to South American nations lost by voice vote. The other, to add $45 million for supporting assistance, was ruled out of order on a technicality.

Not since it began in 1948 as the Marshall Plan has the aid program been given such meager financing. Last year Congress appropriated $2.39 billion.

As the House voted on the money bill, the Senate completed action on a separate authorization measure putting a $1.97 billion ceiling on the amount of money that could be provided for for the present fiscal year ending next June 30. The House passed the authorization bill earlier in the day.

The aid bill was the last of more than a dozen regular money measures. All have cleared the House, but several are awaiting Senate action or adjustment of differences with the House.

One final measure, an added catch-all supplemental bill, has not started through Congress. The House Appropriations Committee predicted that when all of the money bills have finally been enacted, Congress will have cut about $12 billion from administration requests and will have effected about $4 billion in actual spending reductions.

Congress previously had passed a bill calling for it and the administration to cut spending not less than $6 billion. If the committee estimates are accurate, President Johnson will have to initiate about $2 billion in spending cuts.

Wallace Backers Attend Banquet As Candidate Begins Southern Tour

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Wealthy backers of George Wallace joined the former governor and Gov. Albert Brewer at a fund raising luncheon Thursday as supporters sought to raise $1 million in one day for Wallace's presidential campaign.

A newsman estimated that about 200 persons attended the luncheon where some of Wallace's more affluent backers were reportedly paying $500 per plate. A Wallace aide said the attendance was 311 but his count apparently included tickets sold and not used.

Brewer is one of 10 regular Democratic candidates for presidential elector who are pledged to support Wallace. He joined the former governor as part of Thursday's George Wallace Day events.

At night the program included a $25-a-plate dinner and then a rally at the state-owned Garrett Coliseum expected to attract upwards of 10,000 persons. Tickets for the rally cost $10 each.

Besides the $10 admission charge, Wallace supporters attending the rally were counted on also to circulate fund-raising petitions to get others to contribute to the campaign. That approach has been used throughout the nation and, campaign leaders say, has been effective.

The former Alabama governor, who returned home early Thursday after a three-day trip through the southwest and midwest, flies to Florida for three speeches Friday-at Tallahassee, Daytona Beach and Orlando.

Mothers Picket Gibson School; Police Action Threatened

BOSTON (AP) A group of some 20 mothers and six Catholic priests from the Association of Boston Urban Priests, picketed the boycotted Gibson School Thursday.

This was the first picketing in the two-week boycott. The picket line, led by Mrs. Bernice Miller, assistant dean of Jackson College, sang "We Shall Overcome" and carried placards reading: "Parents Have Rights," "School Committee Wake Up," "Community Control," and "No Compulsory Miseducation."

A spokesman for the priests said his colleagues were in "complete support" of the parents.

"The parents have the first and last responsibility for their children's education," he said. "The huge size of the Boston school system precludes effective administration by the school committee."

Benjamin Scott "liberation" school principal, arrived at the Gibson School at 9:25 a.m. but made no attempt to enter, as he had on Wednesday.

"It is clear that if we attempt to enter the school police will be called," he told the pickets. "Our confrontation is with the school committee, not with the police."

The demonstration was orderly and the pickets walked on the sidewalk, outside the school grounds.

School Committeman John Kerrigan said Wednesday he would call police if the group tresspassed on the premises.

Library Calendar

Wednesday, September 11 — Saturday, November—Regular hours

Sunday, November 10—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (but no study hall and Reserve Desk service)

Monday, November 11 (Veterans Day)—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m. (and Study Hall, Reserve Desk hours)

Tuesday, November 12-Tuesday, November 26—Regular hours

Wednesday, November 27 — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Thursday, November 28 (Thanksgiving Day)—Closed

Friday, November 29-Sunday, December 1—Vacation hours

Monday, December 2-Saturday, December 21—Regular hours

Sunday, December 22-Tuesday, December 24—Vacation hours

Wednesday, December 25 (Christmas Day)—Closed

Thursday, December 26-Tuesday, December 31—Vacation hours

Wednesday, January 1 (New Year's Day)—Closed

Thursday, January 2 — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Friday, January 3-Tuesday, January 14—Regular hours

Wednesday, January 15-Wednesday, January 29—Vacation hours

Marine Asks for Discharge Claims 'Illegal' Induction

BOSTON (AP) — A Massachusetts Marine has asked U.S. District Court to order his discharge from the corps on the grounds that he was forced to enlist to avoid prosecution on an assault charge.

In a suit against the commandant of the 1st Naval District, John Zurawski of Dracut contends that his father, a Marine Corps recruiter and a Lowell probation officer "overwhelmed" him to the point that he was deprived of freedom of choice. He claims enlistment was not voluntary.

Zurawski said that at the time he enlisted in July, 1967 an assault charge was pending against him in Lowell District Court.

Zurawski now is in custody at 1st Naval District headquarters for failing to report to Camp Pendleton, Calif., in early August. He surrendered as AWOL Monday at the same time a lawyer filed court action to gain his discharge.

Federal Judge Frank J. Murray ordered the U.S. Attorney's office to file an answering brief this week.

KARATE CLUB
to be organized at UMass

Anyone interest in joining and studying
Send a note with name, address and phone no. to
M.B.Yic., 404 PRINCE
BY MONDAY, SEPT. 23, 1968

MANGLE MAINE

RALLY -- 7:00

DANCE -- 8:00, STUDENT UNION BALLROOM

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, FEATURING

THE FIFTH AMENDMENT

SPONSORED BY ADELPHIA ADMISSION 75 CENTS

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

SOMETHING OLD
SPECTRUM, spring 1968
SOMETHING NEW
SPECTRUM, fall 1968

SPECTRUM is looking for material for the Novemher issue . . . deadline October 14th at the latest . . . in
- Fiction
- Drama
- Book, music and play reviews
- Satire
- Scientific, political and philosophic essays
- Art
- Photography
- Poetry

Material may be brought into the Franklin Room or left in our mailbox, #102, R.S.O. office.

Tartuffe is a Guru? That's the way they're playing the Moliere classic this weekend at Kirby Theater on the Amherst College campus where the Smith-Amherst Summer Theater is now repeating its productions of three great French plays. Performances of Tartuffe are this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8:30 P.M.

'Tartuffe' In Modern Style Begins Run At Amherst

By Don Epstein
Managing Editor

Orgon wearing a turtleneck, Damis a tennis sweater and shorts, Dorine a mini-dress, and all of them around a swimming pool. It all adds up to "Tartuffe"—1968 style, presented this weekend by the Amherst-Smith Summer Theater.

Wilbur Translation

The classic play, written by Moliere in 1669, has been updated by the theatrical company to 1968, using the new English translation of the play by Richard Wilbur, a graduate of Amherst College.

According to Jack Fisher of Smith College, director of the play, it was decided to produce the contemporary version of the play after realizing that staging the traditional classical version would be very expensive. In an interview, Fisher said he treated the script as if it was just written and never staged before. He said the comedy could be staged using a completely contemporary setting without losing a bit of relevance. The goal was to have the audience identify with the actors and the set.

When asked why the need of a swimming pool in the set, Fisher said, "We wanted this production to be funny, not another museum piece on stage, so we set it in modern times. Since the play is about the very rich, we felt in a French equivalent of Westport or Westchester, the idea of a pool just grew. Rich suburbanites have swimming pools. We wanted the house to be a place the audience would like to live in, so that they would worry about Tartuffe stealing it."

Force Elements

The story concerns, the uproar created when Orgon, a rich man, brings the con man Tartuffe into his home to live. The play has many farce elements, but also a deeper comment on human behavior.

Most productions of the play center around Tartuffe. However, this production firmly focuses on Orgon, the victim. "We've made him the center of the play," Fisher said, "we took him seriously, made his arguments clear, and hoped to make him an interesting character. Orgon is lost, his victimization is clear." The play brings out the serious problems of Orgon, but he still remains a funny man.

While using a plush Parisian cabana as the set, the basic elements of the typical Moliere set of 1669 are present with the central door with four more doors off to the side. The applicability of Moliere's timeless theme are ever present.

Continues Tonight, Sunday

The contemporary set was designed by John Ezell, visiting designer from the University of Wisconsin. Orgon is played by Chris Jones, an Amherst junior; Tartuffe by Barry Keating, a senior; Dorine the saucy French maid, by Sarah Harris, a Smith senior, and Elmire, Orgon's wife, by Catherine Ribnick, who graduated from Smith this June.

The play runs through Sunday night at 8:30 P.M., Kirby Memorial Theater on the Amherst College campus.

Troops Guard Mexico University; Olympic Sabotage Threats Grow

By Paul Firch
Associate Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Student threats to sabotage next month's Olympic Games brought full military occupation of the University of Mexico Thursday by battle-ready troops with assault cars and field kitchens. There were no classes because of a strike which has been going on for two months.

Students striking against government repression of student outbursts in July have voiced threats to upset the 1968 international games which are due to open Oct .12 in a stadium across the street from the 80,000-student campus in Mexico City's outskirts.

Olympic Village, where more than 7,000 athletes from 119 countries will stay, is just two miles from the campus area.

Undetermined numbers of students and professors were arrested after several thousand army troops began moving into the campus Wednesday night in the boldest step so far by President Gustavo Diz Ordaz' government in its efforts to end the two-month-old strike and reopen the university. The campus was free of students Thursday.

It was the first time in 40 years that armed troops had set foot on the campus which, like other Latin-American universities, is autonomous, meaning free of intervention.

University Objects

Javiet Barros Sierra, the university rector, called the occupation "an excessive act of force which our house of study did not deserve." But he added: "Likewise, it did not deserve the use made by some university student and outside groups of our institution. We have to repeat that the student conflict was not engendered by the university."

The occupation followed a meeting between Interior Minister Luis Echevaria and student strike leaders. The conference broke up in disagreement.

The Interior Ministry said afterward the students disregarded calls from the university rector and other school officials to return to their classes.

The ministry added that the university buildings are national property which had been seized late in July by students and non-students for illegal use. This, it said, violated the university's autonomy.

The ministry also accused the student leadership of planning and carrying out antisocial and possibly criminal activities. This apparently was a reference to the threats to sabotage the Olympics.

Humphrey's Son Stumps In N.H.

CONCORD, N.H. AP — Hubert H. Humphrey III, the Democratic presidential nominee's son, says he thinks Democratics opposed to his father's Vietnam stand ought to at least support his positions on other issues.

Humphrey commented at a news conference held here Thursday on a combination vacation and campaign trip for his father.

Young Humphrey spoke at one point of a young woman he had met in New Hampshire. He said the woman told him she wanted to vote for the elder Humphrey but that she couldn't back his posture on Vietnam.

Humphrey said he tells such persons "to take a different approach.

"We don't want Richard Nixon. We don't want the Republicans to win," Humphreys ald.

Humphrey said Democrats who are opposed to his father's Vietnam statements should follow the same course.

ADD — DROP DEADLINES ANNOUNCED

Today is the last day to add or drop a course without any record. The last day to drop a course without penalty is Oct. 11. (courses dropped between Sept. 20 and Oct. 11 will be noted by "W")

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Q.T.V.
invites
all upperclassmen
to a
FORMAL OPEN SMOKER
SUNDAY — SEPT. 22
6:30 - 8:30

STUDENT SENATE
GENERAL ELECTIONS
IN RESIDENCE HALLS
9-5:30 IN STUDENT UNION
LOBBY FOR COMMUTERS
FRATERNITIES
SORORITIES
Nomination papers available in
R.S.O. office now
Completed papers are due by Friday, Sept. 27
at 5:30 p.m. in R.S.O.
OCTOBER 3 6-9 P.M.
(upstairs at Student Union across from check-cashing window).

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

CHESS CLUB
FORMATION
All Interested Please Leave
Name, Address, and
Phone # in RSO Office
by Sept. 23

Come to the AMHERST TOWER

For Fine Italian Pizza,
Subs, and Dinners
Open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun. open 11 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.
Call 253-7100
256-6667

New Politicking in Chicago

The democratic convention held in Chicago, otherwise known as Mayor Daley's left pocket, was a scene of battle, between not only the usual liberals and moderates, but more significantly, between the traditional politics of the past and the so-called "new politics" of today. This quickly burgeoning trend toward change, initiated by one of the most unexpected political surprises of the year, Eugene J. McCarthy, has left a rather noticeable mark on American politics.

Suddenly the people are beginning to question the selection of delegates to this august gathering: Who are they? Whom do they represent? Who represents me? The idea of appointment by party power structure is being questioned even by party loyalists—Gov. Maddox was not allowed to seat his racistly-chosen delegation.

The platform discussion about "the war," unresolved in committee and defeated in a bitter floor fight, signalled an important change: no longer will even the members of his party allow the previous administration a blanket acceptance of policy merely because he was nominated by them. Our "man in the White House" is no longer an infallible god, even to his own party.

The area of state primaries, integral to Gene McCarthy's campaign, begins also to cause concern: What is their purpose? What do they mean? — Or should they mean? Why are they all held at different times?

The point is, McCarthy forced the democratic party, and this country, to look—hard—at its political institutions, to scratch through years of blind acceptance, to find out just what is there. However, as with all changes, the initiator can only unlock the door; the strength to open it must come later, after the change has been made. But the unpolitical politician, Gene McCarthy, has managed to find this key—to the New Politics of truth, thought, and youth—to replace the hackneyed placebos of the traditional, now outdated, politicking.

INSIDE REPORT:

The Agony of Hubert Humphrey

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

PITTSBURG — Nearing the end of perhaps the most calamitous opening week ever experienced by a Presidential nominee, Hubert H. Humphrey dropped his masklike grin of optimism in the wee hours last Saturday morning.

He was conferring in his William Penn Hotel suite with an old ally: Meyer Berger, a leading Pittsburgh Democrat and national treasurer of the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA). In a talk to party workers downstairs, Berger complained, Humphrey had completely ignored Vietnam. If the Vice President were to have any chance in Pennsylvania, Berger added, he must split with President Johnson on the war.

Humphrey glumly replied he simply could not in good conscience break with the Administration. But the full extent to which defeatism had impregnated him during five ghastly days on the road did not become apparent until a few moments later when a local party leader ushered some young liberals who had backed Sen. Eugene McCarthy into the Humphrey suite. Strangers though the McCarthyites were, Humphrey unburdened himself.

Revealing that in Administration councils he had opposed every Vietnamese troop buildup, Humphrey complained he could not now move a step leftward without being stymied by the President. "You know," he confessed, "I have about as much power as you in the White House."

He next exhibited an uncharacteristic fatalism, musing that perhaps the American electorate "has to learn a lesson" every so often. He wordered, however, why anti-war protesters ignored Richard M. Nixon while they hounded him by chanting—and Humphrey here imitated that chant — "Dump the Hump, Dump the Hump, Dump the Hump." And there was, he added, non-support from the ranks of organized labor who were forsaking the Democratic party now that their "bellies were full."

Contrasting with Humphrey's public exuberance, it was a fair summary of his first week on the road. Having wobbled on Vietnam in response to White House pressure, he ended the week here Saturday morning by saying publicly that the LBJ-dictated Vietnam plank in the Democratic platform corstituted the HHH position. Although some labor leaders wanted a blank-check endorsement of Mayor Daley's police to stem the blue-collar drift to George Wallace, Humphrey ignored the subject.

Attempting to downplay both the war and law-and-order, Humphrey ended the week appealing to Democratic party loyalty, ridiculing Nixon as "Fearless Fosdick" and warning of a Republican recession. Democratic doves and backlashers were not buying it.

Whatever slim chance Humphrey's strategy might have had was further narrowed by the impossible itinerary devised for him by his schedulers (headed by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman).

Humphrey's 20-hour visit to Pittsburgh was typical. His schedulers decided on the visit a week ago and insisted on it despite protests from party leaders here that there was nothing to do in Pittsburgh on a Saturday.

The Vice President has begun his campaign not only far behind but with two crushing liabilities: no strategy for regaining dissidents and an irrational schedule which wears him out without accomplishing anything. Understandably, even Humphrey the congenital optimist must confess a note of cold depression, as in those mournful early morning hours in Pittsburgh.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Mark Silverman '71
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
Copy editing and make-up ..... Pat Francis, Sharon Samuels
EDITORIAL DAY EDITOR ..... Nancy Bourgoin

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Come Out, Come Out, Whoever You Are!"

Segregation in Tennessee's Universities

By Walter Grant
College Press Service

The University of Tennessee and five other state universities were founded by the Tennessee state legislature to educate white persons, and black students were not enrolled in any of them until 1952.

Last year, as usual, less than two per cent of the 17,000-strong student body at the University of Tennessee's Knoxville campus were Negroes. The other five state institutions founded for white students also consistently enroll an extremely low percentage of blacks, despite court decisions which overturned Tennessee's segregation - in - education laws.

By the same token, Tennessee A & I State University here in Nashville, the state - institution founded for Negroes, remains segregated for all practical purposes. Only 47 of A & I I's nearly 5,000 students were white last year, according to a survey compiled for the U.S. Office for Civil Rights.

Tennessee state officials apparently have not been too concerned that their state universities, in effect, have remained segregated. In fact, a proposed $4.2 million expansion of the University of Tennessee's Nashville extension center indicates there is an effort to keep blacks and whites "seperate but unequal." But a group of private citizens and the federal government have decided to interfere.

The citizens, joined by the Department of Justice, filed a suit last week against the State of Tennessee demanding that the state university system be desegregated. The suit marks the first time the federal government, backed by the Civil Rights Law of 1964, has been involved in a desegregation suit against an institution of higher learning.

The suit charges that the proposed addition to the major state university's extension center here is designed to perpetuate the existing system by primarily serving white students and duplicating the facilities at A & I. Presently only about 300 students attend the extension center.

Declaring that Tennessee operates a racially-biased dual system of higher education, the suit says the educational opportunities and facilities are "inferior" at A & I, as well as at the other institutions attended mostly by Negroes.

A motion filed by the Department of Justice asks that the State of Tennessee be ordered by the courts to take all reasonable steps to desegregate its institutions of higher education. The motion requests that the state submit to the court within a reasonable period of time a plan to end the dual system.

If the Justice Department is successful in the suit, the state university system in many Southern states will be affected. Throughout the South, state legislatures have managed to maintain systems of higher education whereby most black students end up attending traditionally black schools. And most state-supported black colleges and universities in the South receive less money per student from state legislatures than do the predominantly white schools, resulting in "inferior" facilities and opportunities for black students.

An official of the Justice Department in Washington, D.C. predicted the Tennessee suit will be the first of many civil rights cases involving colleges and universities. Since the 1964 Civil Rights Law was passed by Congress, most of Justice's efforts have been aimed at desegregating elementary and secondary schools.

Although the Justice Department's suit is aimed at the white power structure which is responsible for the dual system of higher education. Many black people are likely to be alarmed by it. The black power movement has emphasized the necessity of retaining all - black schools and making them the centers of the Negro culture. Black militants, therefore, do not want their traditionally all-black schools invaded by whites.

But the suit filed here this week seemingly makes an effort to get around this sticky question. The Justice Department does not try to completely do away with the Nashville extension center, but only to forbid construction on it until the court has approved a plan that would require the State to make the opportunities and facilities at Tennesee A & I equal to those at the white institutions.

The Justice Department is not only federal agency which is now becoming involved in securing equal opportunity for Negroes in higher education. The Office for Civil Rights is conducting a series of investigations of white colleges to insure that black students are not discriminated against in such areas as housing, recruitment policies, financial aid policies, and athletic programs.

Joshua B. Zatman, a spokesman for the civil rights office, says his agency has nothing to do with the Tennessee suit. Zatman said his office is conducting "compliance reviews" to insure that colleges and universities are not violating Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. If an institution is violating the civil rights law, an administrative hearing will be held, and the school could lose its federal financial assistance.

Zatman said civil rights officials have visited about 20 campuses so far, and will have visited 100 by the end of the year. "So far, we have not found the need to hold a hearing," he said.

Court Case Looms Key to Reinterpretation of Draft Law

by Susie Schmidt

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Next month the Supreme Court will hear a draft case that may affect hundreds of young men around the country, whose verdict will almost surely deal a blow to the Selective Service System and the procedures it has followed during recent months in reclassifying protesters.

In an unusual development for such a case, the defendant, a 24-year-old divinity student, and the prosecution, attorneys for the Justice Department, have both recommended the same holding: that the decision of a lower court to uphold his reclassification to 1-A and his subsequent induction because of his protest activity—be reversed.

The Justice Department, in recommending reversal, has collided with the Selective Service and its director, Lewis B. Hershey, who maintain that local boards have right to reclassify "those who engage in illegal activity" as delinquents — an action that puts them at the head of the list of priority for induction.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which represents Oesterelch, is fighting the reclassification on several grounds and on several levels. It argues that:

1. The declaration of delinquency and reclassification is invalid because it is punitive and therefore cannot be undertaken without the due process safeguards to the registrant required by the Constitution (counsel, confrontation and cross-examination, and impartial tribunal and so on).
2. That the act of returning a draft card is speech protected by the First Amendment. Evidence here, among other things, is the fact that in the original Selective Service Act after World War I "failure to possess (have on one's person, as it is now interpreted) a Registration Certificate (draft card)" was not on its face illegal, but was merely evidence (to be investigated) of failure to register, which was illegal.

The Justice Department brief, filed last week, admits that inconsistencies existed between the provision for exemption (which, Erwin Griswold, is guaranteed by Congress and not subject to local board interference) and the provision for reclassification.

It suggests, however, that in such cases as this one, where individuals have permanent exemptions, those exemptions must take precedence over the board's right to reclassify. Thus, the case would not apply to students who have only deferments until they are out of school, not exemptions.

The Justice Department says, however, that serious question may be cast on the constitutionality of delinquency reclassification as a general procedure by such a finding in this particular cas.

Such unconstitutionality is the ACLU's major contention, because of a third provision in the Selective Service Act which prohibits court review of draft disputes before induction. The lawyers say delinquency reclassification fits the definition of punishment set down in previous court cases (retribution and deterrence, among other things) and therefore is illegal since punishment cannot be meted out in this country without a trial and due process of law.

The prosecution never really deals with this question, but recommends that the Court avoid having to decide that difficult legal question by merely saying the exemption of divinity students takes precedence in this case over a board's reclassification.

That "easy way out" of a thorny case is probably exactly what the court will do when it hears the arguments and rules in October, since the practice of the court is to decide the case by the least controversial and upsetting route. But if the justices do it that way, the question will doubtless come up again—next time the defendant will be someone who doesn't have the exemption and can fight on the issue.

The Justice brief also puts much of the blame for the tricky legal situation on General Hershey. The Department has previously argued that his October 24 letter to local boards, recommending that they reclassify and induct protesters posthaste, was "a statement of personal opinion only" and not mandatory or binding. In cases brought against Hershey last spring by the National Student Association, the courts ruled that local boards were not legally affected by that directive.

Now, however, the Justice Department, in a deviation from its spring position, agrees with the opposition that Hershey's memorandum, for all its "informal" status, was indeed in effect "inviting local boards to use their reclassification powers in a punitive way"—using them to "get the bad guys." It urges the court to take into account when it considers the case the fact that (as the ACLU counts) at least 76 of of 650 men who turned in draft cards in October are now involved in legal proceedings because they have been reclassified, and many others probably just went into the Army because they couldn't afford court costs—all of which goes to show that the letter had some effect on the boards, and they weren't "just acting randomly and individually" as was claimed last spring.

The Oestereich case is the first of all these, perhaps the only one, to reach the "court of last resort," the Supreme Court. Its decision will affect hundreds of other cases now in court. If it decides on the narrow point of law recommended by the Justice Department, that will still affect perhaps 1000 cases, according to officials. If it should decide to tackle the whole problem of inconsistencies and illegalities in the Selective Service law in general terms, as advocated by the ACLU, its ruling will affect every reclassification instance now in process.

Either way, General Hershey has lost his battle this time. Although the Justice Department gave him eight pages in its brief, explaining his side of the story and stating the Selective Service case for upholding the reclassification, it would not let him enter his own brief to the Court.

Both sides seem to concur that his memo last October was a blunder, both tactically and legally. And both concur that local boards have acted illegally in many cases.

The differences come in basic support for the draft as it now exists. Most telling, perhaps, is the ACLU's continual references to reclassification as "punitive", and the Justice lawyers' contention that "induction isn't punishment"—inferring that young people should be happy to serve in the armed forces, not try to avoid it by any means possible.

The really broad issues — whether delinquency reclassification should be considered illegal not even as punishment for past deeds be because it forces compliance with the procedures of the draft system, whether it denies the right of free speech to registrants who must be afraid to dissent for fear of being reclassified——are only touched on in this case, but they, too, are still hovering beneath the surface, ready to come up next time.

Minh Still Loved by Vietnamese; Exile Lifted, Will Return To Saigon

SAIGON AP — The dizzying ups and downs of South Vietnamese politics have produced no more strange personality than the general known as Big Minh-an orchid lover and tennis player beloved by his countrymen.

Why they love Duong Van Minh is something of a mystery, particularly to Americans. But love him they do.

His record has question marks still being debated.

He presided over the coup that ousted autocratic President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963 and for the next three exhilarating months was South Vietnam's nominal chief of state.

His role in the coup, while decisive, was largely one of a well-liked major general who acted as chairman of the Military Council and went along with the boys.

In the next three months the jovial six-foot general placidly did practically nothing. These were days which Americans here recall as "the big disillusion." But the Vietnamese recall the days with emotional fervor.

Minh was looked upon as the father of a new revolution and hope was high among South Vietnamese, rich and poor alike.

But some Americans, while sharing in the hope, wanted Big Minh to take some concrete steps to make it real. By most evidence, he did little save play tennis and enjoy himself.

After three months his fellow officers ousted him in the first of a dismal series of coups. He shortly wound up in exile in Bangkok, Thailand, where he set about raising more orchids and sometimes receiving disgruntled friends from Saigon.

Minh now has been invited to come back to Saigon, his exile lifted by President Nguyen Van Thieu while the political temperature of the capital is noticeably on the rise.

Just when he might arrive, however, is still in question. So is the political position he is to be given by Thieu. The role being mentioned is one of almost unbelievable irony.

He is to be made, according to palace gossip, the president's senior adviser on political and military affairs.

HEW Announces Medicare Costs

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The secretary of Health, Education and Welfare announced Thursday a 10 per cent increase in the amount patients will pay for hospitalization under Medicare.

HEW Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen said that patients, effective Jan. 1, would pay the first $44 of their hospital bill instead of the present $40.

Cohen told the national convention of the American Hospital Association here that the increase is necessary because of rising hospital costs.

Cohen proposed that the Medicare as well as hospital costs be taken from Social Security funds. He said Vice President Hubert Humphrey has indicated he favors the plan.

GIANT FOOTBALL
in color (25" TV)
EVERY SUNDAY AFTERNOON 1-4:30
The CORK and BOTTLE ROOM
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9 — AMHERST-HADLEY
2ND FLOOR—CENTER
Happy Hours 1-4:30

ALPHA SIGMA PHI
Invites all upperclass men
to a
Formal OPEN SMOKER
Sunday, Sept. 22 at 8:00 p.m.

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR XEROX COPIES
We certainly hope you aren't paying 10 cents a copy. More likely you're paying 5 cents. That's still too high! GNOMON COPY SERVICE cuts this price in half and more! Our rates are 5 cents for the first copy of an original, and for multiple copies of the same original, even lower: 3 cents each for the second thru tenth copies and 2 cents each from the eleventh on.
Service while you wait, or overnight. Forty copies a minute.
gnomon copy service
FREE Collating
103 North Pleasant St.
Store No. 9
Amherst, Massachusetts
Phone 253-7393
FAST Service
XEROX COPIES AT:
5¢ — 3¢ — 2¢

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Plan now for your Thanksgiving Christmas New Year's HOLIDAY TRAVEL
Avoid Disappointment Reserve Now
Some flights are already sold out, but reservations are still available to most destinations.
Reservations can be made by stopping by PETER PAN TRAVEL SERVICE Monday thru Friday between 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. A $2.00 deposit is required when placing your reservations.
This season PETER PAN TRAVEL SERVICE will assist students under 22 to obtain stand-by tickets, if advance arrangements are made with our office at least one week prior to departure. No stand-by tickets will be handled on Fridays, Saturdays, or any day before a holiday. All student stand-by tickets require a $2.00 deposit and a student airline card when placing your airline ticket request.
PETER PAN TRAVEL SERVICE hours are Monday thru Friday 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
PETER PAN BUS LINE hours are Monday thru Friday 7:45 a.m.-7:45 p.m.
Saturday 7:45 a.m.-1:00 p.m.
Sunday 12:45 p.m.-7:45 p.m.
Remember for all your travel needs — Call 256-6704

Rocky Hits W. German Threats Calls For United Nations Action

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Thursday statements by the Russians that they have the right to take military action against West Germany "now poses one of the most serious dangers to World peace since World War II."

He said the matter should be brought before the United Nations immediately.

In remarks prepared for a speech at a Republican fund-raising dinner in San Francisco, the New York governor said:

"On the heels of the Soviet military invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia, in ruthless violation of the U.N. charter and the Warsaw Pact itself, the Soviet Union in its threat against West Germany now poses one of the most serious dangers to world peace since World War II.

"Yesterday, for the second time in a month, the Soviet Union threatened West Germany with military invasion unless West Germany bows to Soviet dictates. If we don't act now, it might well be that we could be witnessing a repetition of Hitler's unopposed actions in the late 1939's that led to World War II."

Rockefeller's appearance at the $1,000-a-plate Nixon-Agnew dinner was the first of a number of speaking engagements he has scheduled around the country.

NOTICES

Ski Club—Meeting Sept. 23 in Mahar. New members welcome. Movie and slides to be shown.

International Fold Dancing — Every Friday, 8-12 P.M., Davis Center, Smith College.

Inter-Christian Fellowship—Memorial Hall will be open for prayer meetings at 10 P.M.

Spectrum — Staff meeting Sunday in Norfolk room at 1:00.

Scrolls—Meeting time changed to 6:00 in Worcester room.

Lost and Found

Lost—Man's watch, black band. Call Pat Rose, 6-9-63.

Found—Lost tiger cat listed in MDC. Call 8-4185.

Pinnings and Engagements

Pinning—Ruth Brown '71, Crabtree to John D. Tucker, UM '68, Cleveland, Ohio.

Pinning—Judith Lentzer '69, Emerson, to James Bryant '69, Delta Chi.

Engagement—Roberta Shear '69, Coolidge, to James Saart '69.

Engagement — Eileen D. White '69, Dwight to Stanley W. Edwards, Tufts University.

Engagement — Ellen Souza '69, Phi Beta Phi, to Gene Faltrineri '69, Phi Mu Delta.

Engagement—Diane Subocyewski '69, Westfield State College to Robert F. Novack '69, J.F.K.

Engagement—Mahorie Rashdorf '69 to Greg Scieszka '69.

Marriage—Lynne Smith '70 to Bruce Eirkson '70.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

STEADY PASSENGERS WANTED

Ride to Worcester Saturday morning after 11:00 a.m. Return Monday morning. Call Zelda Bilsey (791-7251) in Worcester or leave a note in 1805 Calvin Coolidge Tower. 9/24

FOR SALE

Honda CB 160 (cheap). Excellent condition throughout, fine for commuting. See for yourself and make your own deal. No obligation. Contact Dav Cochrane, 5-2832 or 6-9306, day or night. 9/23

Vespa 125 cc. motor scooter for sale. Excellent running condition. Two helmets included. Must sell — going in service. Only $99. Contact Bill, 549-0169, 33 Phillips St. 9/26

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware, Tu-Fri 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412. 9/26

ROOMMATES NEEDED

Female roommate wanted for private furnished room. $50 per month. Apt. #1, 797 Main St., Amherst. Come after 5 p.m. 9/23

HELP WANTED

Employment Female — Student wife, full time work available 8:30-5:30. Must be well groomed and able to meet the public. Apply in person, House of Walsh. 9/23

Large sitting room and adjoining twin bedroom overlooking campus available to student desiring minimal babysitting for two children 8 and 10 years old. Telephone 549-1269. 9/23

Hampshire Inter-Library Center wishes to employ two undergraduate student assistants (at least one man) part-time. Apply in person. Director's Office, level TWO, Goodell Library. 9/20

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1960 Volkswagen—engine two years old, excellent condition—$450

1965 Bultaco 175 cc $250. See at 17 Sports Haven Trailer Park, Belchertown. 9/20

1951 Indian Chief 1350 cc. only $500. Come to 85 Hill Crest Pl., So. Amherst. Ask for Roger. 9/23

1956 Plymouth. Call 256-6976 9/24

FOR RENT

Modern, 1 bedroom, wall to wall carpet, all utilities inc. air cond, 10 minute walk to Education Bldg. $130/month. Call 549-1381 9/23

Federal Funding Gives Med School Go Ahead For Worcester Construction

Federal funding of a construction grant of more than $13.8 million for the University of Massachusetts Medical School has been termed "a go-ahead for the entire project" by Medical School Dean Dr. Lamar Soutter.

"This means that we can move ahead, assured of having federal funds," he said.

"This latest funding by the federal government gives us the tremendous advantage of having money in hand and ready to use," UMass President John W. Lederle said. "Before, all we had were promises for funding." He added: "A great deal of credit for this gain and for the progress of the Medical School project must be given to the Massachusetts Congressional delegation, the Governor and legislative leadership for their continued efforts in Washington."

The construction grant of $13-832,588 from the U. S. Public Health Service will be used to build the medical sciences portion of the school. Included in this $45 million first phase of the project are the library, basic and clinical sciences facilities, student facilities and administrative offices.

Approved but not yet funded is a $4.93 million grant from the National Health Research Facilities Division of the National Institute of Health. This approval came as the result of an authorized exception to Section 57.8(C) of the Public Health Service regulations. This exception enables an applicant for an award to proceed with construction without jeopardizing his eligibility for later receiving the award.

With the $13.8 million just funded this brings total federal funds for the medical science building to more than $18.7 million.

Dean Soutter stated that the Medical School will now definitely open in the fall of 1970 in its present building on Belmont Ave. in Worcester for its first class of 16 students.

He estimated that bidding and construction for the medical sciences building can now be expected early in 1970. Construction is expected to be completed early in the fall of 1972, he added.

The U Mass Medical School dean estimated that the 400 beds Medical School Hospital would also be completed by the fall of 1972. "The hospital plans are in the schematic phase now and have been submitted for approval to federal authorities. We expect a decision on these plans in November of this year," he stated.

Dr. Soutter added that within a year the entire staff of the Medical School will be moved to Worcester. The school now has some staff members in Worcester, some in Amherst and some at UMass - Boston.

Kennedy Coban Story Sold to McCalls

NEW YORK (AP)—A manuscript by the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy about the Cuban missile crisis has been sold for $1 million to the McCall Corp., it was announced Thursday.

The manuscript contains 25,000 words, making the price $40 a word, the highest price ever paid for such material, said Norman Cousins, editor in chief of McCall's.

Cousins said the article will appear in the McCall's issue which appears on newsstands Oct. 22, sixth anniversary of the U.S.-Soviet confrontation over Cuba.

He said the work was "one of the most important books to be written in our time."

Theodore C. Sorensen, an aide to both the late senator and the late President Kennedy, said the manuscript was dictated by Robert Kennedy approximately a year ago.

Sorensen said Kennedy decided after completing the work that the time was not appropriate for publication.

Sorensen said the decision to publish the work was made by the executors of Kennedy's estate. He refused to answer questions about the manuscript's contents.

The English Pub

REMEMBER

Coats and Ties are required

wear after 6 p.m. Fri. & Sat.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Attention Bridge Players are you interested in the formation of an ACTIVE
BRIDGE CLUB
Intercollegiate Bridge Tournaments
Leave name, address, and phone #
in RSO office by Monday, Sept. 23.

THE NO-CALORIE DIET

No fats, no carbohydrates, no proteins, no nothing. That's the kind of diet 10,000 men, women and children in underdeveloped countries are dying on every day.

Simply because there's not enough food to go around. And not enough know-how to grow more.

What you know about farming (or what we can teach you) can mean the beginning of the end of starvation to people in the 50 nations where the Peace Corps works. What you know about planting, for instance. Or irrigating or fertilizing or crop rotation or growing livestock. Or anything else you can help them help themselves with.

What will you get out of it? Two years of being completely on your own in a completely strange environment. Hard work and challenge and frustration. But maybe for a lot of people you'll have changed a diet of ignorance into one of knowledge. Sickness into health. Despair into hope. And can you think of a better diet?

Write: The Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525

advertising contributed for the public good

Join The Greeks
At The Rally Tonight!
Help Cheer The Redmen To Victory!

BROTHER To Send Volunteers To Biafra

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (CPS) — Impatient with the failure of governments to come to the aid of the starving Biafra, a group of students, churchmen and New England citizens have banded with European groups to send a ship filled with food and supplies to the tiny African state this month.

The project, begun about a month ago, is under the direction of Phil Whitten, a soft-spoken married graduate student at Harvard University, who runs BROTHER, a loose alignment of several dozen Biafra aid groups which sprang up around New England after reports of starving children caught world-wide attention.

BROTHER is working with Catholic and other benevolent groups in Western Europe to fill and staff a ship and send it to Biafra, distribute the food and supplies, and bring back 1000 orphan children.

The ship, a Danish liner named King Olaf V, is due to depart from Copenhagen September 30 with 1500 pounds of food and 300 volunteers from the U.S. and Europe aboard.

It will land at Calabar, on the African coast, a port city now under Nigerian control since Nigeria has been working to crush the revolt of Biafrans who seceded from Nigerian control. According to Whitten, Calabar is the only place they can land since Biafra has no ports; but he said the group has received assurances that they will be able to unload since their mission is nonpolitical: "We'll feed anyone who is starving, no matter which side he's on."

The ship's stock will be unloaded by helicopter and truck. The 300 volunteers (who will be half Americans, half Europeans) will be in charge of distributing the food in villages and towns. Most of them, Whitten said, will stay in Africa for several weeks; a few, more highly skilled in first aid and other social work, may stay as long as a year.

The volunteers may help solve the problems the International Red Cross and other donors of food have had. Reports in London have indicated that as much as 30 per cent of relief supplies rot on the docks while the governments bicker about the best way to distribute them.

The King Olaf will have its own forces fir distribution.

The voyage is being jointly financed. The European groups are chartering the ship (a $120,000 investment), supplying the food and supplies, and paying to bring the children back. (Where the orphans will go has not yet been settled, Whitten said.) The U.S. groups have been asked to raise about $28,000 to pay for the volunteer worker's passage.

So far, Whitten says, the group, which includes students from Harvard, Boston University, Wellesley, Brandeis, Smith College and Tufts University, and a West Coast contingent from UCLA, Santa Fe, and San Francisco State College, has raised about $3,000 in six days' work.

"It's interesting," he said, "that the one day we stood in the Commons area at Boston, we collected $1100 in an afternoon. When we stationed someone downtown in the financial district, we got almost no contributions."

Whitten would like to be contacted by students interested in working on the campaign on college campuses, and those interested in serving as volunteers on the voyage. His address is 13 Sacramento Street, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02138. Phone (617) 868-7875.

Hearings On Student Involvement In Chicago Disorders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of the House Committee on Un-American Activities will open hearings Oct. 1 on the role of student organizations in the Chicago disorders during the Democratic National Convention.

Rep. Richard H. Ichord, D — Mo., head of the ad hoc committee, said today Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley would be among those testifying at the hearings, expected to last a week.

Ichord also said the panel would expose the part played in the violence by the Students for a Democratic Society.

Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D — La., chairman of the parent committee, said Sept. 12 when he announced the special panel it would also investigate the role of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam and the Youth International Party, or Yippies.

"These were certainly not naive students or flower children," Ichord said. "We're going to show the Congress and the American people just how well organized the Chicago demonstrators were."

Ichord said he, on the basis of investigations already completed, does not "think that the police overracted. And I don't think many of the American people feel they overacted."

He said the demonstration leaders "were hardcore agitators and leftists who would like to over-throw our government." They did not intend merely to voice dissent on Vietnam or the draft, but "wanted only to disrupt the convention," he contended.

Other members are Willis, William M. Tuck, D-Va., John M. Ashbrook, R—Ohio, and Albert W. Watson, R—S.C.

We are quite sure that you are plagued with prejudice, misinformation, revulsion, misconceptions, fear or doubt about mental retardation.

Learn the truth. Write for a free booklet.

The President's Committee on Mental Retardation
Washington, D.C. 20201

Name
Address
City
State Zip Code

Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council.

Injunction For Teachers

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — Superior Court Judge Frank W. Tomasello continued in effect Thursday a court order forbidding New Bedford Teachers Association members to remain away from their classrooms.

Judge Tomasello said he didn't want to become a moderator in the case, but said he would "represent the children and continue the restraining order."

The injunction was granted Monday when about 450 teachers held a one-day "professional day" demonstration over a salary dispute with the school committee.

Nixon Promises Room For Dissenters

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon promised Thursday that the policy councils of a Republican White House would make room for America's dissenters, declaring "I don't want a government of yes men."

As he campaigned in the Midwest, Nixon discussed his concept of the office he seeks in a recorded, nationally broadcast radio address.

He pledged an activist presidency and an administration that would include Democrats and independents, as well as Republicans.

"We should bring dissenters into policy discussions, not freeze them out," he said. "We should invite constructive criticism, not only because the critics have a right to be heard, but also because they often have something worth hearing."

A spokesman said Nixon's reference was not only to those who disagree with U.S policy in the Vietnam war but also to people of dissenting viewpoints on other issues, foreign and domestic.

"The days of a passive presidency belong to a simpler past. The next president must take an activist view of his office," he said. "Under a Nixon administration, the presidency will be deeply involved in the entire sweep of America's public concerns."

"In a Nixon administration, America's citizens will not have to break the law to be heard; they will not have to shout or resort to violence.

Nixon-Agnew Student Group

"I am today establishing within the Youth Division of United Citizens for Nixon - Agnew, a "Student Coalition" to utilize the talents and energies of the academic community to analyze and resolve the problem and to involve students directly in their solution."

This proposal, made by Republican Candidate Richard M. Nixon, is an attempt by the Nixon headquarters to involve the youth of our educational institutions in a program to help solve crises that engross the cities of America.

Former Vice-President Nixon has asked Samuel A. Williams, 23, of Obion, Tennessee to head the student coalition. Mr. Williams was the national director of Gov. Rockefeller's "New Majority" political action group.

Assisting Williams will be John Campbell, 24, a graduate of Duke University ('66) and Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvannia ('68).

Brown Militants Change Policies

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — An officer of the Campus Action Committee at Brown University told about 200 students Wednesday night that campus militants do not want to "close down" the University, but will continue to challenge policies they think must be changed.

Brett Gorkin, secretary-treasurer of the group, charged that Dr. Ray L. Heffner, university president in a convocation speech Monday, had conveyed a "stereotype" image of CAC members as being dogmatic and bent on destruction.

Dr Heffner warned against students attempts to take over university buildings or commit acts of violence, but did not direct his remarks specifically at any campus groups.

Gorkin said that CAC members share Heffner's professed belief in personal and academic freedom and will continue to challenge the existence of a Reserve Officers Training Corps on campus and university connections with the military and other government departments such as the Central Intelligence Agency.

MDC
HOT NEWS
LINE 5-2550

Have a Grinder and a Pepsi
Before or after the game
from THE CARRIAGE LIGHT
SOUTHWEST BY HAMPSHIRE HOUSE
CENTRAL BY GORMAN
FRIDAY 7-1:30 a.m.
SATURDAY Noon-1:30 a.m.
SUNDAY Noon-12:30 a.m.

Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

The English Pub
Announces
Special HAPPY HOUR
after the football game this Saturday
with
Charlie Bradshaw
at the Piano
15 E. PLEASANT ST.
AMHERST

dangling conversation
where it is
India clothes
African prints
records
penny candy
handmade jewelry
op-art posters
art blocks
art reproductions candles
imported gifts
imported toys
103 north pleasant st. amherst

GREEK WEEK CONCERT

— FEATURING —

ANTHONY

AND THE IMPERIALS

— PLUS —

THE STONE SOUL

7:30 P.M.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1968

CURRY HICKS CAGE

$1.50

PRESENTED BY THE INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL AND

THE PANHELLENIC COUNCIL

OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT S.U. TICKET OFFICE

UVM Tackles UConn As Yankee Conference Opens Play

By Jan Curley
Assistant Managing Editor

College football swings into its first big weekend of action tomorrow. Featured, from the UMass standpoint, will be a game between Vermont and Connecticut in the Yankee Conference, while Rhode Island and New Hampshire seek opponents outside the conference for their first games of the season.

Buffalo, the Redmen's competition next Saturday, will be playing Kent State. The Bulls attack will be led by quarterback Mick Murtha, a two-year starter who holds the school record for yards gained in passing in a season with 1,241.

Coach Dave Puddington inherited 25 lettermen for this year's Kent State team, but his quarterback a junior, Steve Trustoff, may not be able to match Murtha's experience. Puddington's team is lacking depth and replacements are hard to find for Don Fitzgerald, a rational rushing leader for two years, and Ron Swartz, who set school records for passing.

In addition to Murtha, Buffalo also has Chuck Drankoski at end and all East Line backer Mike Luzny. The Bulls have two speedy running backs, Ken Rutkowski and Pat Patterson. The defensive line is also tough with ends Bob Kovey, Tom Murphy and John Przybcien.

Vermont travels to Storrs, Conn., and the Huskies offensive backfield which returned intact this year should be able to handle the UVM defense, although it is experienced and deep.

UConn will be run by quarterback Pete Petrillo, who smashed the school total offense record last year with 1,271 yards. He will be backed up by Rick Robustelli, son of Andy Robustelli former New York Giant great.

The Huskies finished in second place last year but will probably not make as good a showing this year.

New Hampshire will be going with a new coach this year, Jim Root, former assistant coach at Yale. Joe Yukica left last spring for the Boston Heights, home of the Boston College Eagles.

Root spent most of his summer pluggi g up the holes left by graduation on a defensive team that led the Conference. Kurt Volherbst and Captain Vince Martino who were All-Conference in halfback and tackle respectively.

The game between Rhode Island and Temple shapes up as a real tough contest. Rhody has been rated as a possible contender for the Yankee Conference after six losing seasons and a .500 mark in the Yankee Conference last year. Temple has a Mid-Atlantic dynasty established.

Quarterback Larry Caswell will be leading the Rams again backed up with 26 returning lettermen and an up-and-coming sophomore contingent. Caswell set a record nationally last season when he had only two passes intercepted.

The Owls have halfback Mike Busch and end Jim Callahan, plus numerous sophomores who show some promise.

Boston University will open at home against Colgate. BU turned in a disappointing season last year (3-6) and the loss of 13 starters through graduation gives them slim hope of posting more than a .500 season.

Colgate coach Neil Wright has been appointed head coach and his first problem was rebuilding the pass defense. Veteran quarterback Ron Burton, fullback Captain Gene Detwiler and Al Klumpp at halfback are leading the Colgate attack.

Delaware still hasn't jelled but has some good men in Tom Dimuzio, linebacker John Favors and end Ron Withhelder. Delaware will be playing against Hofstra which is strong on defense. Last year they blanked seven of 10 opponents en route to an 8-2 record. The offense might be a little spotty due to graduations.

'The Mick' Is No. 3

DETROIT @ — "I got a feeling he wanted me to hit it," said New York Yankee slugger Mickey Mantle in the dressing room Thursday after hitting his 535th career home run in a 6-2 loss to Detroit.

The heme run off 31-game winner Denny McLain put him in sole possession of third place on the all-time Major League home run list, surpassing Jimmy Foxx of the old Philadelphia Athletics and the Boston Red Sox.

Detroit was leadirg 6-1 in the eighth inning when, with an 0-2 count Mantle signaled with a hand motion for McLain to give him a letter-high pitch. Mantle then blasted the next pitch into the upper deck in rightfield as the crowd roared.

As Mantle rounded the bases, McLain saluted Mickey as if to say "Congratulations."

"I think it was just a straight fast ball," Mantle said after the game.

WMUA TO BROADCAST FOOTBALL GAME

Starting tomorrow WMUA (91.1) will broadcast the U-Mass-Maine football game. Peter Pascarelli will have a pre-game show starting at 1 p.m. followed by Glenn Briere ard Hal Dash who will provide the play-by-play account of the game. Airtime is 1:15 p.m.

Varsity M Club Luncheon

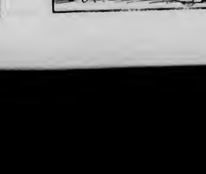
The Varsity M Club will again sponsor weekly football luncheons each Tuesday at noontime at the Newman Center. Color highlight films of the Redmen in action will be shown and certificates will be presented to the outstanding offensive and defensive performer of each game. An analysis of the game and a scouting report of the coming opponent will be given by Head Coach Vic Fusia and his staff.

Tickets can be purchased at the door or can be reserved by calling the Alumni Office, 545-2319, or the Sports Information Office, 545-2439.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

TAPS CAP STAR
ALAI AMA TONE
PARTED SPRITE
ANTED DILSP
ESNE POPS
GOD ATER DAD
OD DOE IO
GET FEELS ALT
REAR SCAB
SHEET ALOHA
TADPOLES ANIMAL
ORLE OWN FALM
PEER PET ISLE



20

ACROSS

1-Time gone by
5-Fruit drink
9-Vehicle
12-Wingline
13-Mongrel
14-Arrow poison
15-Gazelle
16-Formal essay
18-Spreads for drying
19-Compass point
20-Wales
21-Unit of electrical measurement
23-Pronoun
25-Cooling device
27-Bacteriologist's wire
29-Part of church
33-Wing-footed
35-Sell to consumer
37-Gaming cubes
38-Roman date
40-Lowest common multiple (abbr.)
41-Music: as written
42-Ocean
44-Wipe out.
48-Pronoun
50-The sweetsop
53-Compare
55-River in Arizona
56-Detest
57-Number
58-Reclined
59-Leave out
60-Guido's high note
61-Otherwise

DOWN

1-Agreement
2-Century plant
3-Heartless
4-Rubbish
5-Performs
6-Imprisonment
7-Before
8-Quote
9-Dye plant
10-Remainder
11-Golf mounds
17-Reverence
22-Man's nickname
24-At this place
25-Novelty
26-Mohammedan name
28-Prepare for print
29-Near
30-Magnificent
31-Thus
32-Shade tree
34-Hebrew letter
36-Worm
39-Maiden
41-Weight of India
43-King of birds
44-Reverberation
45-Wander
46-One opposed
47-Let it stand
49-Sicilian volcano
51-Ancient district in Greece
52-Rational
54-Devoured

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 20

AMPLE PARKING AREA

AMHERST Cinema NOW SHOWING on screen
Daily—7:00 and 9:00
Sat.—1:30-3:30-5:15
Sun.—7:15 and 9:15
PLUS SHORTS

DEBORAH KERR DAVID NIVEN in FIELDER COOK'S Prudence and the Pill SMA

WED. "When Lights Went Out" Doris Day

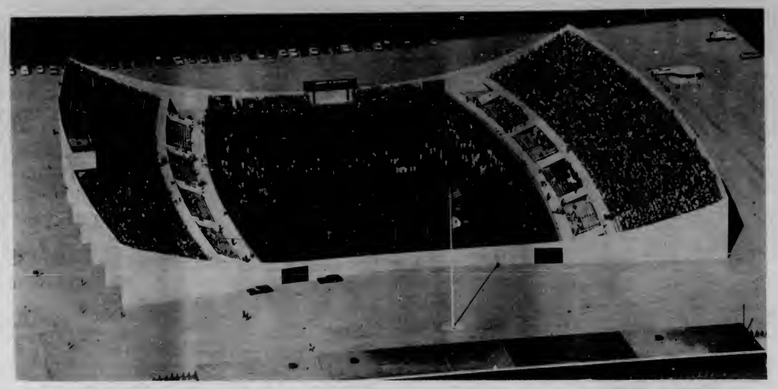
CINEMA 1&2&3
•ROCKING CHAIR LOUNGES
•ACRES FREE PARKING
•ART GALLERIES
Minutes from you via Rt. 5
RT. 5 733-5131 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPRINGFIELD

1 "Brilliant Achievement" CINERAMA 2001 a space odyssey
EVERY EVE. 8:15 Wed. Sat. Sun. Mat. 2:15

2 OSKAR WERNER • BARBARA FERRIS Fahrenheit 451
1:30-3:30-5:45-7:50-10
POPULAR PRICES

3 "Where Were YOU When The Lights Went Out?" DORIS DAY
1:30-3:30-5:30-7:30-9:30

Rodgers Theatres Cinemas 3 LUXURY THEATRES IN 1



Amherst Tower
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Cinema I
JOANNE WOODWARD in
"RACHEL, RACHEL"
Sun.-Mon.-Tues.-Wed.-Thurs. at 7-9 — Fri.-Sat. 6-8-10
Cinema II
SANDY DENNIS in
"THE FOX"
Nightly at 7-9
Next to Zayre's
Campus Twin Cinema
256-6411

20 SEPT 02

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 20, 1968
Page 12 Vol. XCVII, No. 20

Redmen On the Warpath

FOOTBALL — vs. Maine, at home, 1:30 p.m., tomorrow, Radio: WMUA—91.1 FM).
SOCCER — at Springfield, Soccer Jamboree, tomorrow.

Adams to Call Redman Signals vs. Maine

"I'm looking forward to the game tomorrow," Redman quarterback Tim Adams said, and added, "Yes, I'm nervous." A 6', 175 lb. junior from Wellesley where he spent the summer as a playground supervisor, Adams will be calling the signals in the huddle tomorrow in the first-of-the-season game against Maine, 1:30 p.m., at Alumni Stadium.

BILL FRYE

Adams, not a running quarterback as his predecessor, Greg Landry was, will be handing off and throwing the ball. He and teammate Craig Lovell, also from Wellesley, worked out together this summer. Another Wellesleyite, Chuck Gubellini, will be at Alumni Stadium on the opposing side as a quarterback for the Black Bears.

LARRY FORTUNOFF

DENNIS GRAY

Coach Vic Fusia, who is "pleased with Tim Adams' progress," is also happy "with our deep backs defensively, with all areas of the kicking game and with the speed of the offensive backs. For the rest, we're playing musical chairs — constantly moving people around.

Busy with the football squad since their arrival on campus Aug. 28, Fusia stated he, "saw the first signs of emotional pickup and unit cohesion Wednesday." and said, "I hope the spirit is a sign of things to come."

When UMass and Maine meet at Alumni Stadium tomorrow, it will be the fourteenth game in a series which started in 1909. UMass has won nine, and Maine has won four; only one game has ended in a tie.

In the past five years, UMass beat Maine, 14-7, at Orono in 1963. Sophomore Dick De Varney completed 16 of 28 passes and gave UMass fits all afternoon. This was the only touchdown scored against UMass in nine games. Quarterback Jerry Welchel scored the winning touchdown for the Redmen and kicked two extra points. Maine was held to minus 46 yards rushing.

In 1964 it was UMass 6, Maine 0, in a game played in Amherst. Welchel hit end Bob Meers on a 38-yard touchdown pass at 14:10 of the second period for the only score. Maine was held to minus 13 yards rushing but four fumble recoveries kept the Black Bears in contention throughout the game.

Maine squeaked by UMass, 10-8, at Orono in 1965 and the Black Bears went on to take the Yankee Conference. Lovejoy's 32 yard field goal at 13:26 of the second period put Maine out ahead, 3-0. At the end of halftime, UMass was camped on the Maine three yard line. Ten seconds into the fourth period DeVarney, on a third down play at the Redman 5, rolled to right and flipped a swing pass to the halfback Keany. The ball deflected off his hands toward the goal line, bounced off cornerback Leo Biron's hands into the end zone and the waiting arms of end John White for the touchdown.

Lovejoy added the extra point for Maine to give them a 10-0 lead. UMass scored at 14:53 of the fourth period on a plunge by UMass quarterback Greg Landry. Meers scored the extra points on a pass from Landry.

The series moved back to Amherst the next year, and UMass came back to win against the Black Bears, 10-7. Sophomre fullback Bruce Cochrane kicked a 25-yard field goal with 21 seconds left for the UMass victory.

Last year UMass posted an unbeaten league record and the first victims in the Yankee Conference were the Maine Black Bears, 30-9. Landry, whose passing was well received by Jerry Grasso, completed eight of 14 passes for 119 yards and netted 98 more rushing as the Redmen piled up 423 yards.

DON DOTSON

JOHN MacLEAN

RANDY ROBINSON

Probable Starting Lineups

UNIV. OF MASS.				UNIVERSITY OF MAINE
OFFENSE				OFFENSE
83 Nick Warnock, SE	Sr.	6'2	200	86 Gene Benner, SE	Jr.	6'	177
70 Dick Donlin, LT	Jr.	6'6	275	73 Charles Hews, LT	Jr.	6'4	270
71 Mike Cooney, LG	Jr.	6'	235	75 John Dugas, LG	Jr.	6'1	235
50 Bob Sheehan, C	Sr.	6'6	250	56 John Wolfgram, C	Jr.	5'11	190
62 Bruce Fulton, RG	Jr.	5'11	200	67 Jay Vance, RG	Jr.	5'9	185
78 Jim Nangle, RT	Jr.	6'3	205	63 Dennis Walch, RT	Jr.	6'1	190
81 Alan Becker, TE	Sr.	6'4	200	82 Mike Landry, RT	So.	6'	196
11 Tim Adams, QB	Jr.	6'	175	10 Dave Wing, QB	Jr.	5'8	165
22 Jerry Grasso, WB	Jr.	6'	185	33 Bob Hamilton, WB	So.	6'	175
40 Craig Lovell, TB	Jr.	6'	194	42 D. B. Sullivan, TB	So.	5'10	174
31 Ed Sarno, FB	Jr.	6'	230	31 Bob Parrell, FB	Sr.	5'9	185
DEFENSE				DEFENSE
84 Tom York, LE	Jr.	6'1	200	86 Don Loranger, LE	Sr.	6'2	248
72 Marty Sheralis, LT	Jr.	6'4	230	77 Ernie Gilbert, LT	Jr.	6'1	345
61 John MacLean, MG	Jr.	5'10	205	69 Jon Piper, MG	Jr.	5'8	178
74 Fred Hupprich, RT	So.	6'2	235	55 Paul Dulac, RT	Jr.	5'11	206
45 Randy Robinson, RE	Sr.	6'	200	89 Mike O'Leary, RE	Jr.	6'1	205
33 Don Dotson, Chief	Jr.	6'	190	62 David Coltin, LB	Jr.	5'10	185
55 Larry Fortunoff, LLB	Jr.	6'1	205	88 E. Quackenbush, LLB	Sr.	6'1	200
56 Dennis Gray, RLB	Jr.	6'2	185	20 Tom Jordan, RLB	Jr.	5'11	167
24 Billy Frye, LCB	Sr.	5'9	185	37 Ken Zuch, LCB	Sr.	5'9	180
25 Mike McArdle, RCB	Sr.	6'	190	41 John Collins, RCB	Jr.	5'9	165
45 Steve Rogers, S	Jr.	6'2	190	11 Fran Griffin, S	Sr.	5'11	173

DON LORANGER
Maine defens[illegible]

METAWAMPE'S GRID PICKS

Last week's showing by Metawampe, the venerable bard of UMass, was such a brilliant start, 8-1-1, that he has decided to go out a limb and pick two big upsets.

The soothsayer has picked Minnesota over Southern California, 22-15, and Houston over Texas by two touchdowns, 21-7. Let's hope it's a strong limb.

According to Metawampe, UMass should shellack Maine again this year down at the battlegrounds, also known as Alumni Stadium. By Sunday night, he could be having his own 'Day of Awareness' if he's too far off base with his predictions.

Maybe he could become a janitor if he fails at his verse-writing.

Massachusetts 20, Maine 7
Bears improved, there's little doubt. But Adams' passing makes for rout.

Connecticut 14, Vermont 10
With Mitchell, Cats were not so hot; Without him, man, they really rot.

Minnesota 22, Southern California 15
Trojans have the great O.J., But Gophers' line digs in today.

Oregon State 34, Iowa 14
Giant-killers of last year, Beavers now have naught to fear.

Michigan State 24, Syracuse 9
Who says Eastern teams are worse? "We," says State, while Orangemen curse.

North Carolina State 13, North Carolina 7
Wolfpack's temperament grows mean When rival Tarheels make the scene.

Notre Dame 28, Oklahoma 13
Warmack's passes bring Sooner joy, But Irish have the real McCoy.

Houston 21, Texas 7
Gilbert's running pleases Royal, But Houston strikes the letter oil.

Mississippi 10, Memphis State 7
Memphis hopes of playing well Crumble under Rebel yell.

Louisiana State 14, Texas A&M 12
Tigers back to form of old, And so are Aggies, we are told.

Miami 27, Northwestern 6
Bucknell 14, Davidson 12
Hofstra 30, Delaware 19
Rutgers 21, Lafayette 14
Rhoda Island 28, Temple 24
Boston U. 20, Colgate 13
Dartmouth 34, New Hampshire 14
Army 30, Citadel 7
Arkansas 27, Oklahoma State 16
Auburn 23, Southern Methodist 10
Bowling Green 31, Ball State 7
Buffalo 24, Kent State 20
Colorado 23, Oregon 17
Florida 21, Air Force 3
Georgia Tech 16, Texas Christian 9
Indiana 22, Baylor 13
Kansas 20, Illinois 17
Iowa State 31, Arizona 16
Kansas State 24, Colorado State 20
Kentucky 15, Missouri 14
Florida State 17, Maryland 0
Michigan 16, California 12
Mississippi St. 16, Louisiana Tech 6
Nebraska 28, Utah 21
Ohio U. 31, Marshall 7
Purdue 34, Virginia 10
Louisville 22, Southern Illinois 14
Stanford 35, San Jose State 14
Rice 14, Washington 7
Washington State 24, Idaho 6
Brigham Young 38, Western Michigan 20
Wyoming 28, Utah State 27
Alabama 17, Virginia Tech 3
Arizona State 33, Wisconsin 14
East Carolina 20, William & Mary 13
North Texas State 32, New Mexico State 21
Miami (O.) 7, Pacific 6
Vanderbilt 28, V.M.I. 14
South Carolina 10, Duke 0
Texas Tech 22, Cincinnati 8
UCLA 21, Pittsburgh 16
Texas, El Paso 44, New Mexico 21
Toledo 20, Villanova 7
Wake Forest 17, Clemson 16
West Texas State 31, Wichita State 13

Redmen Roll Over Maine, 21-3 (See page 12)

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 23 // UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1968

Daily Collegian Photo by Bill Dickinson

BY THE LIGHT OF THE FIRE—The rally and bonfire by the Student Union south terrace kicked off UMass's first football weekend. The Revelers led the cheers, and Coach Vic Fusia exhorted the fans to come to the stadium to see the bigger and better Redmen in action.

Budget Submitted To State House For Fiscal 1970

By Don LeBlanc
Staff Reporter

The UMass budget request for the fiscal 1970 year, "A Plan to Start the Seventies", has been submitted to the State House for the Amherst, Worcester and Boston campuses. The budget highlights the fiscal needs for 1970 and makes recommendations for the improved revenue sources and budgeting processes.

The budget statement points out that, "although proud of the record being achieved in the 1960's, the University, as well as everyone interested in public higher education in the Commonwealth, must be cognizant of the challenges and needs for the 1970's . . ." The budget statement points out in detail some of the problems which will arise such as:

1. Unprecedented enrollment pressures. In 1970, Massachusetts will have 352,000 residents between the ages of 18 and 21. Also beginning in 1971, public institutions of higher learning will have greater enrollment than private institutions, and the percentage will steadily increase.

2. Unprecedented revenue needs. The budget will have to meet enrollment increases, inflation, teacher shortages and new buildings needs.

3. Unprecedented educational program changes. The report reads, "Without any doubt, the current trend toward increased demand for graduate and professional education, for continuing education programs, and for research support will become stronger and stronger . . . Without support for such educational programs public higher education programs will not only be incomplete but the people it serves will suffer irreparable deficiencies."

The budgement statement makes strong recommendations in answer to the problems it foresees. It states that "Some of the actions which should be high on any priority list are the following:

1. "The Commonwealth must have higher taxes to bring in more revenue. These are blunt words, but they represent fiscal truth. We can no longer tailor programs to fit the limited increases in revenue allocated to higher education. The need must be measured and a revenue program devised to meet those needs . . . A meaningful report and solution cannot come too soon."

2. "The process of budgeting and appropriating for public higher education must be improved . . . In many ways the present situation is no one's fault; extremely rapid growth can often cause these conditions. However, continued lack of attention to the problem is a responsibility which cannot be evaded. The University, therefore, pleads for a greater emphasis upon improved budgeting procedures.

3. "Academic support funds must be increased in the 1970's. This was a key issue in the University's budget for fiscal 1969. It must be of top concern throughout the 1970's."

The statement offers specific explanations of what has hap-

(Continued on page 2)

Russians Recover Unmanned Space Ship After Circling the Moon

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union took a big step yesterday toward landing a man on the moon by recovering safely an unmanned space ship which had circled the moon.

An official announcement said the spacecraft, Zond 5, was taken aboard a Soviet rescue ship in the Indian Ocean yesterday after splashing down Saturday night.

Its successful return to earth at a point about 2,000 miles east of southern Africa came after it curved around the moon Wednesday, then sped back to earth at 25,000 miles an hour. Such a maneuver is considered essential for putting a man on the moon.

The announcement, made by Tass, said scientific instruments aboard Zond 5 were recovered, "bringing a vast body of scientific information."

It did not elaborate, but Western scientists assumed part of this could come from film believed to be aboard the craft. Pictures of the moon made from the film could be of far higher quality than previous pictures transmitted from space by U.S. or Soviet mooncraft.

Other valuable information from the flight, launched Sept. 15, included its test of flight control equipment and temperature and air-pressure controls which would be needed in later, manned flights. An earlier announcement, Friday, said that during the flight information on the working of this equipment was frequently radioed back to earth.

"They are now in a position to send a man around the moon and back to earth, without landing him on the moon," said a Western diplomat here is an expert on the Soviet space program.

"They might try one more unmanned shot, just to be sure, and then they could send up a man." The diplomat added that, because of seasonal factors, the best time to launch another such mission would be no later than early November. After that a favorable time would be next

(Continued on page 2)

Students, Staff Quell Fist Fight Near Mills

By Bill Dickinson
Senior Reporter

Due to quickly-spreading and erroneous rumors, what started out as simple weekend fist-fight nearly turned into a racial clash. However, quick action by students and staff members cooled the potentially dangerous situation.

It all began when three black students left a party at Mills House, sponsored by the Student Afro-American Organization to get something to eat at the grinder truck parked in front of Gorman House.

According to bystanders, one of the party-goers was using obscene language at the truck. Two white students who were there with their dates asked him to stop.

An argument developed and someone threw a punch.

Another black student tried to break the fight up, but one of the white students slugged and injuried him.

Word got back to the Afro-American party that white students were attacking a black student and a large group from that party left to help him.

As the black students were going to Gorman, one of them attacked and bloodied a white student from Gorman who was not involved at all.

At this point a large group of black and white students had gathered. The campus police had also arrived.

Both groups were yelling for police attention. The white stu-

(Continued on page 8)

Daily Collegian Photo by Bob Goscminski

FAST-EDDIE—Redman fullback Ed Serno breaks away for a good gain during Saturday's game at Alumni Stadium. UMass beat Maine, 21-3. For stories and more photos of the clash, see page 10-12.

232 SEPT 332

• Fist Fight

(Continued from Page 1)

dent who had been attacked and was now lying on the ground was taken to the Infirmary, and he was closely followed by the two injured black students. All three were released after treatment.

Police also dispersed the group in front of Gorman, the black students returned to Mills.

In the meantime rumors had spread quickly across campus reporting falsely that there had been several knifings and that firebombs had been thrown.

Also, a security guard who was asking questions about what had happened, triggered rumors among the black students that police were "fact-finding" by just questioning white students. They became upset and asked to meet with administrators.

A large group from Wheeler House arrived at the Infirmary to "do something," but were turned back by Associate Dean of Students Mark Nolfsinger and Sgt. Phil Kavanaugh of the campus police who had been called to the scene.

Into the middle of this already tense situation came a large contingent of panty-raiders going toward Orchard Hill who were oblivious to what was happening. Their arrival sparked renewed rumors at Mills House that a group of white students had arrived to "avenge" one of the original participants.

Dean Noffsinger also managed to get this group to move on before there was another incident.

Noffsinger then went to Mills where he met with the black students to try to straighten out the misunderstanding. He stayed until 4.

Sunday afternoon two meetings were held at Mills to discuss the incident. One involved the people involved directly and indirectly in the incident. The other was between Noffsinger, Dean of Students William Field and black students. This meeting was to discuss "the larger issues" of relations between black students and the rest of the University community.

• Space Ship

(Continued from Page 1)

spring, he added.

While praising the achievement, the diplomat said many problems still had to be solved before putting a man on the moon. For this reason, he added, it would be premature to say the Russians now are ahead of the United States in the moon race.

The diplomat said the recovery of Zond 5 in the Indian Ocean indicated the Russians are switching to sea recovery methods for their moon program. All previous recoveries have been on land, inside the Soviet Union.

The advantages of ocean recovery are that it would be less hindered by bad weather than on land and returning craft could land "harder" without damage.

Marines Uncover Enemy Supplies

SAIGON (AP) — U. S. Marines on a massive sweep in the central demilitarized zone have uncovered a secret enemy supply complex with enough war material to supply a full North Vietnamese division, the U. S. Command reported yesterday.

Spokesmen said the hidden supplies included 800,000 rounds of rifle and machine gun ammunition; 16,000 rockets and mortar shells; more than six tons of explosives; 10,000 mines and grenades, 35 tons of rice; 23 rocket launchers; 700 rifles; 19 machine guns, and 412 helmets.

The DMZ sweep by 2,000 Leathernecks began last Tuesday. Marine spokesmen said it is the final phase of Operation Lancaster II, a search and destroy sweep in Quang Tri Province that began two weeks ago.

In the two weeks Marines have killed 415 enemy at a cost of 55 Americans killed and 300 wounded, spokesman said. In addition they have found mass graves containing 170 enemy bodies, believed to be victims of B52 saturation bombing raids supporting the ground probe.

Marine commanders speculated the enemy felt reasonably secure in planting the large supply caches because allied forces have never before penetrated the central DMZ. The six-mile wide buffer zone which separates North and South Vietnam was once considered neutral.

U.S. intelligence reports indicate the enemy will follow his practice of the past two years and launch a big push into South Vietnam's northern provinces before the monsoon season reaches its peak in November. Three North Vietnamese divisions with 31,000 men are said to be poised along the DMZ for this offensive.

In other action yesterday enemy gunners laid rocket and mortar barrages on 16 military posts in the northernmost 1st Corps area. Under cover of one such shelling, a Viet Cong unit overran a South Vietnamese prisoner of war camp and killed 20 inmates.

The intensified enemy shellings in the northern provinces came on the eve of the Viet Cong's "Resistance Day," the anniversary of the Communist Viet Minh uprising against French colonial rule 24 years ago.

According to Radio Hanoi broadcasts the Viet Cong have promised to try and kill as many Americans as possible to celebrate the event.

The U. S. Command announced enemy gunners shot down three American helicopters flying combat missions in South Vietnam Saturday.

Nine American soldiers were wounded when two Army choppers were hit as they approached a landing zone in the central highlands, 265 miles northeast of Saigon.

A Marine helicopter was downed just below the DMZ on a resupply mission to the Leatherneck battalion conducting the massive sweep. Six Marines on board were listed as missing.

South Vietnam's monsoon season, which will build up to a peak next month, has cut down on the air war over North Vietnam. Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers flew only 72 missions Saturday, about half the normal number.

American B52 bombers continued pounding enemy infiltration routes along the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon and in the DMZ, flying 12 raids in the past 24 hours.

Agnew Attacks Opposition Stand on the Vietnam War

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Republican vice presidential candidate Spiro T. Agnew attacked yesterday what he called the "super-simplistic" attitude of George C. Wallace and the "vacillations" of the Johnson-Humphrey administration on the Vietnam war.

The Maryland governor also denied that he and running mate Richard M. Nixon are holding back their plans on Vietnam until mid-October.

"I didn't mean to imply that we have plans to solve the war," he said. "I don't think it's realistic to expect Mr. Nixon or I, without having resources to the informational services that the vice president has, to provide definite moves that are going to end the war when he isn't giving any of that information out —meaning the vice president."

During a question-and-answer session Friday, when asked if announcement of GOP plans was being withheld to "maintain suspense" in the campaign, Agnew replied: "Isn't that the way campaigns are run?"

The GOP candidate said he had a "wonderful" three-hour briefing on foreign policy several weeks ago, but added: "That briefing is just as obsolete now as a 1918 automobile."

Agnew made his remarks on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program taped here Saturday before he flew to Hawaii for a three-day campaign tour of the islands.

Agnew said third party candidate Wallace's statement that all it takes is an order to the joint chiefs to go out and win the war, is the worst kind of irresponsibility." He termed this a "super-simplistic" approach and "a very dangerous one."

Agnew said it would alarm him to see Humphrey in the White House. He said the Vice president currently "is at such a low ebb he must move up."

But he added: "As long as Mr. Humphrey continues on this course of vacillation and provocation . . . I am not sure he can move up now."

News Briefs

NASHUA, N. H. (UP) — The Taylor Falls Bridge spanning the Merrimack River was closed Sunday night and resulted in a massive auto traffic jam along Routes 111 and 3A.

The bridge was ordered closed at 5:20 p.m. by the New Hampshire State Construction Engineers for safety reasons. Police said settling of one of the bridge piers necessitated the closing for an indefinite period.

The bridge, the only one across the Merrimack in Nashua, links that city and neighboring Hudson. Heavy trucks recently had been banned from using the span.

NEW YORK (UP) — Air traffic operations at Kennedy Airport were normal yesterday following a 12-hour snarl Saturday by a radar blackout.

The blackout — which began Saturday morning — was caused by a burned-out motor in a radar antenna. There were delays on outbound flights of up to 2½ hours.

The area involved included everything within a 200-mile radius of New York City, but other radar sites—one in Williamsport, Pa., and one south of Atlantic City, N. J.—kept coverage at a level about 80 per cent of normal.

ATLANTA, Ga. (UP) George C. Wallace clarified Sunday an informal prediction he had made that there likely would be a popular uprising to demand local control of public schools, partly as a result of his campaign.

"I do not mean a revolution by violent means," Wallace said. "I mean a revolution at the ballot box."

Troops Patrol in Mexico City After Riots

MEXICO CITY (UP) — Troops and police rode patrol yesterday in Mexico City's famed Plaza of the Three Cultures where a policeman was shot dead and dozens of persons were injured in a night of clashes between rioters and authorities.

Another contingent of soldiers kept control of the University of Mexico across Insurgentes Boulevard from the stadium where the 1968 Olympic Games open Oct. 12.

In the riot area, troops made no attempt to force their way into a preparatory school where student snipers provoked police Saturday night into opening fire for the first time.

Police had also fired tear gas into a government building project across the street from the Foreign Ministry building where a group of students had taken refuge.

Residents in a government employes housing complex became involved in the skirmish when the police tried to rout out the fleeing rioters.

Authorities said the policeman who died was shot by an army officer residing in one of the apartments after riot police fired tear gas into the building and tried to arrest the army man's mother.

Many of those treated by the Red Cross were government employees overcome by tear gas. Some residents of the building complex pelted police with bottles and boiling water.

It was impossible to determine how many persons were arrested in the latest clash.

Students have been on strike since July and have refused to take exams until the government gives in to their demands, including the firing of three police officials and disbanding of the riot police corps.

• Budget

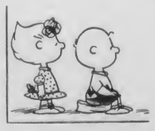
(Continued from page 1)

pened in the past to funds, mentioning that salaries have had to be raised, that there has been "too little recognition of the fact that the University is much more than an undergraduate, liberal arts college" and that "the University has not received adequate credit and funds for its summer school programs."

"I have a dream..."

You can help make the dream come true.

Students - Faculty - Administrators - Work with us.



Martin Luther King, Jr. Social Action Council
204 Hampshire 545-2661

--Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr.

(A Public Service of the MDC)

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

DON'T JUST SIT THERE!
Take a walk to the THREE C's
featuring:
THE PEANUTS SHOWCASE by Ambassador cards
Also Barricini candy, gifts,
Hummel figures, stationery, etc.

Spend Monday Night, at the Movies — at the
The English Pub
featuring LAUREL & HARDY in Big Business Tonight!

MAMA'S PIZZA
for the most delicious 15" or 10" Neapolitan Pizza in Amherst
FREE DELIVERY
OPEN 4 P.M.-2 A.M.
253-3434
103 No. Pleasant

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert

RALLY FOR THE TEAM—Head coach Vic Fusia spoke at the rally Friday night to draw up support and enthusiasm for the 1968 Redmen. Also speaking were Co-captains Nick McArdle and Nick Warnock shown at the right.

CO-CAPTAIN MIKE McARDLE

CO-CAPTAIN NICK WARNOCK

"Action '68" Starts Tonight on WMUA

"Action '68", the WMUA (91.1 FM) news commentary and campus features program, will begin its fall season at 9:30 tonight. A preview of events planned for the coming academic year by several major campus organizations will be presented.

Appearing with host Ron LaBrecque, former News Editor of the Daily Collegian and now a senior reporter on the campus newspaper will be Paul Silverman, President of the Student Senate, Gil Salk, Chairman of the Martin Luther King Social Action Council, Jack Dean, Editor-in Chief of the Daily Collegian, Joe Tabacco, Steve Weisman, and Wayne Thomas, Presidents of the classes of '71, '70, and '69 respectively.

"We hope that the first show will be an informative one and will perhaps arouse some interest in the organizations represented, especially on the part of freshmen" LaBrecque said.

"The Collegian is currently running a recruitment drive, the Senate will be holding elections for several open seats soon, and the King Council has events planned for the near future. All three organizations are serving vital functions for the campus and merit the interest and support of the student body," he said.

"Although the primary function of the classes is social, I don't mean to count them out. UMass has a reputation for presenting top notch entertainment. A lot of work goes into a successful S.E.N.D.O.F.F. weekend or a Winter Carnival and along with announcing plans for this year I hope that the three presidents appearing on the show can give us an idea of the work behind a major social event," LaBrecque said.

The "Action '68" host described tonight's program as a "what, who, and why" show with several organization executives "describing what they are doing and why."

"I would especially urge Freshmen to listen to the show and perhaps think about choosing one of the organizations represented when they look for extra-curricular activities," LaBrecque stated.

LaBrecque said that plans for future shows include interviews with regional, state, and "a conversation with a nationally known personality that my director, Dave Ahearn, and I are working on. I also hope to present a one hour special, pending permission from Playboy Magazine for certain portions of the show, on the comedy of the late Lenny Bruce."

The show will be aired every Monday evening from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m. on the campus radio station, WMUA, 91.1 FM.

Nixon Convinced He Has Winning Formula in '68

An AP News Analysis

NEW YORK (UP) — Richard M. Nixon and his Republican strategists are convinced they have a winning campaign formula: Take it easy, talk with caution and treat the rival candidates like "forgotten Americans."

The latter phrase is one Nixon uses in every speech to describe the crowds he sees. "You are the people who have been forgotten because you have been quiet," he tells them.

While he gives the crowds that treatment, Nixon gives his White House opponents what amounts to a forgotten candidate treatment.

There are a few gibes at Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, but George C. Wallace, the third party candidate, doesn't even get a nod from Nixon. The Republican nominee publicly ignores Wallace, arguing that even to recognize him with a word from the campaign stature would enhance his standing.

Privately, the Nixon camp is concerned about Wallace and the possibility that he may succeed in denying a majority electoral vote to either of the major party candidates.

Robert Ellsworth, Nixon's national political director, contends that the Democrats—lagging far behind in the opinion polls—actually are trying to build up Wallace in hopes that the House of Representatives will make the presidential choice after an electoral college stalemate.

Confidence characterizes the Nixon entourage as the GOP nominee roams the nation at a generally leisurely pace, with one or two speeches a day and a heavy stress on television.

Nixon has cautioned his troops against overconfidence. No matter what the polls show, he said, he is going to campaign as if he trailed, is not going to make the mistakes that doomed the White House bid of Thomas E. Dewey 20 years ago.

Nixon is breaking little new ground on campaign issues, is sticking with a set speech, reciting it at every stop. He seems to be operating on the theory that guided his campaign for the GOP nomination: that only a major mistake during the campaign could cost him victory.

Hecklers Chant 'Dump the Hump'; Man Knifed Near Humphrey Rally

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey urged a crowd of thousands yesterday to give the horse laugh to persistent hecklers in the background. He also promised to speak out even if he finds himself in a conflict with President Johnson.

Humphrey campaigned in Columbus and Cleveland with the main event the traditional Democratic steer roast.

Shortly before Humphrey was scheduled to speak here, a Cleveland man was knifed in the park near the speaker's platform and a policeman was reported to have been hit in what was portrayed as a Negro-white clash.

William McWilliam, 41, an attorney for the federal aviation administration was reported in serious condition at Euclid-Glenville hospital with a stab wound in the back received in the fight at a Democratic picnic.

McWilliams, who is white, reportedly went to the aid of a policeman who was in a fight with two Negroes. A Negro was taken into custody after the knifing.

Humphrey was reported at the time to be in a trailer waiting his turn to speak.

In his speech to a crowd of several thousand, Humphrey described the Republican Eisenhower-Nixon administration as "eight years of fitful sleep—the great GOP slumber."

Humphrey did not refer to Eisenhower directly but told the crowd, "You can tell your grandchildren that you were there when America awoke from eight years of fitful sleep."

As Humphrey spoke a crowd of demonstrators began to chant, "Dump the Hump" and "Peace, Now."

Humphrey declared, "Did you ever hear such nonsense?" Then said to the crowd, "Let's laugh at them."

At that, he and some members of the crowd gave the hecklers the horse laugh.

Humphrey then said everyone has a way of having fun, "But some people just make damn fools of themselves."

After his speech Humphrey moved through the big steer roast crowd, obviously ignoring the earlier incident.

The security guard included mounted police.

The vice president flew into Cleveland earlier in the day.

Humphrey, admittedly in an uphill fight with opponent Richard M. Nixon for Ohio's presidential favors, drew a big, enthusiastic crowd estimated at 4,000 at the Cleveland airport, a crowd of chanting anti-Humphrey demonstrators outside the hotel—in a stretch of mainly empty sidewalks in between.

After the welcome at the Cleveland airport, Humphrey decided to arrive in an open car with Cleveland Mayor Carl Stokes at his side. However, the Democratic senatorial candidate, John J. Gilligan, was left out and had to arrive in a followup sedan.

British Say Russia Leads U.S. in Space

JODRELL BANK, England (UP) —Britain's top space expert said Sunday the Russians have taken the lead over the Americans in the race to get a man to the moon by sending a spaceship there and back.

"It makes it highly probable that a Russian will get a closeup look at the moon quite a long time before an American does," said Sir Bernard Lovell.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Come to the AMHERST TOWER

For Fine Italian Pizza, Subs, and Dinners
Open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun. open 11 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.
Call 253-7100
256-6667

You have the power to turn this university upside down--peacefully
SENATE ELECTIONS OCTOBER 3
6-9 P.M. IN RESIDENCE HALLS
Commuters, Fraternities, Sororities — 9-5:30 p.m. in Student Union Lobby
Correction: Pick up nomination papers in Student Union Lobby! (Not R.S.O.)
Completed papers are due
Friday, September 27 by 5:30 p.m.
at the Senate table
in the S.U. Lobby
STUDENT POWER
RUN! VOTE!

23 SEPT 32

Israelis Announce Capture of Arab Saboteur

(AP) — Keeping up a running battle with Arab neighbors as it prepared to usher in the Jewish New Year, Israel announced yesterday it has captured the long sought leader of a sabotage team that bombed Tel Aviv and Jerusalem.

An army announcement said the leader, identified as Abed el Rahim Jaber, was wounded in a fight with Israeli troops about 15 miles south of the Dead Sea near Neot Hakikar.

Jaber and his brother, Munir, both from the occupied West Bank town of Hebron, had led a strike force of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

The group carried out a series of bomb assaults in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, including the bombing of a bus station here Sept. 4, which killed one person and wounded 59.

Border clashes continued to flare along the Jordan River frontier as Jews assembled for the celebration of Rosh Hashana, start of year 5729 on the Jewish calendar, commencing at sundown.

The latest shooting exchange was reported near the settlement of Gesher, south of the Sea of Galilee. The small arms duel lasted only a few minutes, however, and there were no Israeli casualties, an army announcement said.

To mark the holy event, soldiers guarding Israel's borders, from Mount Hebron to the Red Sea, blew the traditional shofar or ram's horn.

Israeli President Zalman Shazar and Prime Minister Levi Eshkol issued messages expressing hope for peace, but warning Israelis to remain vigilant.

Representative Levels Charges At Douglas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the House Armed Services Committee has accused Justice William O. Douglas of acting capriciously in blocking the assignment of an Army Reserve unit to duty in Vietnam.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., said in a letter to Chief Justice Earl Warren that Douglas issued a stay order "under somewhat bizarre circumstances" after a petition seeking the order had already been denied by Warren and Justice Hugo Black.

Members of the 1002nd Combat Support Company, stationed at Ft. Meade, Md., won a stay from Douglas after losing a suit to nullify their Vietnam orders on the ground that the unit was activated illegally.

Hebert said in the letter, which he made public Sunday, that Douglas dictated the stay order to a Supreme Court clerk over the telephone on Sept. 12, and as yet neither his committee nor the Justice Department nor Army has been able to get a certified copy of it.

"The mischief resulting from this arbitrary and capricious action by Justice Douglas is both incalculable and irreparable," Hebert wrote, saying it cast a legal cloud over other reserve activations and led to similar suits by other reservists.

Under the law, supreme court justices have individual authority to issue such stays. Hebert said he hoped the court would act itself to prevent capricious use of the authority, otherwise Congress may have to legislate on the subject.

EXEC COUNCIL APPLICATIONS
FOR CLASS OF 1970
AVAILABLE IN R.S.O.
TO BE RETURNED FRI., SEPT. 27

THE BROTHERS OF
Phi Mu Delta
Welcome all Upperclassmen to Rush
SMOKER DATES
MONDAY, SEPT. 23; 8:00—FORMAL
TUESDAY, SEPT. 24; 8:30—FORMAL
THURSDAY, SEPT. 26; 8:00—INFORMAL
ΦΜΔ
75 Sunset Ave.

OPEN SMOKER
Theta Chi
UPPERCLASSMAN
Formal; 7:30-9:30 Monday, Sept. 23
Tuesday, Sept. 24
Thursday, Sept. 26

OPEN SMOKER
Phi Sigma Delta
WINNER OF THE PRESIDENT'S CUP,
PHI SIG'S SECOND HIGHEST NATIONAL AWARD
Come See Why We Got It!
Mon., Sept. 23 at 8:00
at our chapter house
367 North Pleasant St.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

ATTENTION NEW STAFFERS
of the
DAILY COLLEGIAN
INSTRUCTIONAL DISCUSSION SESSIONS WILL BE HELD
-- Tuesday, Sept. 24, 6:30-7:30 p.m., Ballroom, S.U.
-- Wednesday, Sept. 25, 6:30-7:30 p.m., Norfolk Room, S.U.
-- Thursday, Sept. 26, 8:30-9:30, Norfolk Room, S.U.
All New Staffers Must Attend at Least One of These Sessions.

Daily Collegian Photo by Ara Dedekian

Daily Collegian Photo by Ara Dedekian

Little Anthony and the Imperials in concert at the Cage Saturday night for Greek weekend.

UMass Professor Named Editor Of 'Educational Researcher'

Dr. William C. Wolf, Jr., coordinator of educational research at UMass and professor of education, has been named editor of the Educational Researcher, official monthly publication of the American Educational Research Association (AERA).

Dr. Wolf has experience in university, federal and foundation research administration. He succeeds Dr. Jason Millman of Cornell University as editor. The Educational Researcher reports affairs of AERA and its members and provides important perspectives on educational research in general and on the Washington scene in particular.

Placement Meetings Rescheduled For Seniors Thursday in Whitmore

The Placement and Financial Aid office, because of the last minute lack of an auditorium, had to cancel the first placement meeting last Thursday, Sept. 19.

Those students who have not picked up their placement credentials may pick them up at Room 239, Whitmore Administration Building. The placement meetings scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 26 at 11:15 a.m. will be held as previously announced. They will be held as follows:

1. All students interested in Teaching — Education Auditorium
   Conducted by Mr. Charles F. Smith
2. All Engineering majors — Goessman Auditorium
   Conducted by Mr. Robert J. Morrissey
3. All Women who are not planning a teaching career — Student Union Ballroom
   Conducted by Mrs. Dorothy B. Hardesty
4. All College of Agriculture men — Bowker Auditorium
   Conducted by Mr. George E. Emery
5. All Business, liberal Arts, and Physical Science men — Mahar Auditorium
   Conducted by Mr. Clarkson S. Edwards

Japanese Students Protest U.S. Bases

TOKYO (AP)—Radical students, armed with wooden staves and throwing rocks, clashed with riot police Sunday as the students tried to break into a U.S. Air Force base near here during an anti-U.S. demonstration.

About 1,200 leftist students tried to force their way into the Tachikawa base on the northern outskirts of Tokyo after a rally to protest U.S. military bases in Japan and transport of U.S. Army ammunition by Japan's National Railway, the police said. The students were pushed back by about 1,000 riot police guarding the base and the clashes ensued.

Nigerians Move to Split Biafra

OWERRI, Nigeria (AP)—The Nigerian army pushed toward Biafran headquarters in Umuahia yesterday as federal troops fanned out in four directions from this newly occupied town to fragment the remanining territory held by the secessionists.

The Biafrans, crammed into a shrinking 3,000-square mile triangle, show no signs of quitting despite the tremendous losses suffered in eastern Nigeria's 14-month-old civil war.

"No prisoners surrender. We have only those we capture," said a Nigerian captain.

Other officers reported the Biafrans have renewed mortar attacks, indicating they have a fresh supply of 81mm mortar shells.

Nigerian spokesmen reported that units of the 16th Brigade, 3rd Division, are advancing northwest toward Oguta, in the heart of Ibo country, and eastward toward Umahia, 32 miles Owerri. These units are awaiting a linkup with the 14th Brigade, which is fighting northwest of Aba.

The 1st Division is pushing toward the Biafran headquarters from the north. It is believed to have reached Bende, 10 miles northeast of Umuahia. The 2nd Division is operating south of Onitsha and also is awaiting a linkup with the 16th and 14th Brigades.

Nigerian spokesmen said Sunday federal troops have seized Obilago airstrip 25 miles north of Umuahia. It once was offered by the Biafrans to the Red Cross for emergency airlift of supplies to starving war refugees.

The spokesman said that when the 2nd Division joins the 3rd Division brigades above Oguta and Orlu, they would be in a position to capture Biafra's last remaining airstrips at Uli and Ihiala.

Nigerian officers quoted Biafran prisoners as saying that 600 secessionist troops were massed on the northern road to Orlu for a last desperate defense of these airstrips, their sole means of getting supplies and ammunition.

MDC photo Staff meeting tomorrow night in the Student Union Ballroom 7:30 p.m.

Capitol Quote

The journey of Zond 5, the Russian spacecraft which orbited the moon and returned to earth, is "the most important demonstration of total space capability up to now by any nation," said James C. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which directs America's space program.

Join the K.J.R. FAN CLUB
now ! ! !
FIRST MEETING
IN NEWMAN SNACK BAR
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24
at 6:00 P.M.
Free Sundaes to first ten members. Bring your JIMMIES and join the fun!!

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Rapp's Delicatessen
AND RESTAURANT
79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
Delicious Salads -- Desserts
HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE
FREE DELIVERY
Every night 6-11 p.m.
Phone 256-6759
Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.
BIGGEST and BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

GAMMA
SIGMA SIGMA
COFFEE HOURS
Tuesday, Sept. 24 8-9 p.m.
Thurs., Sept. 26 7-8:30 p.m.
Berkshire-Bristol Room
Student Union

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Q. T. V.
invites
all upperclassmen
to a
FORMAL SMOKER
Monday, Sept. 23
7:00 - 9:00

Powers of Rumor

Before half the campus was even aware of the incident that occurred in the Central area Saturday night, students, faculty and administrators were trying to handle the aftermath of a possibly tense situation. It was fortunate for the University that everyone involved worked quickly and realistically to avoid letting the powers of rumor blow a confrontation between students—only by chance was one black and the other white—into a racial incident.

The two meetings held at Mills House on Sunday afternoon helped to satisfy the need for information and discussion. A definite effort was made to present the actual facts and to emphasize that we all have too much at stake to let this get out of hand.

Both black and white students acted a great deal of the time on the basis of speculation—what could have happened or on that familiar expression "Well . . . I heard . . ." Some failed to follow the simple rule that if you don't know the facts (and you probably don't) keep quiet.

It is an unfortunate example of our problems that people jumped to the conclusion that race was the issue and even sadder the realization that we have on campus a "black" community and a "white" community. To succeed in our new programs and to provide unity for the University, we must become a campus community without the overtones of color dividing us into camps.

The Editors

Too Many Islands

CCENS, the Committee for the Collegiate Education of Negro Students, is an organization set up by members of the black faculty of the University, whose purpose is to give financially and educationally deprived students the opportunity to receive a college education. These are students who, without the help of CCENS, would have terminated their education with the completion of high school. The students enrolled in this program are given financial aid where needed and are given special instruction in the form of a required tutorial program meeting four nights a week. Housing for the CCENS students is in Orchard Hill for the convenience of the tutorial program.

With the establishment of the CCENS program, I am sure that many of the faculty and administrators were relieved that something was at last being done for deprived students at the University, and that the students had all they needed to go through and make it. But, in the cold face of reality, these people soon realized that they were mistaken.

The University is a community and all of the students are members of this community, or at least all students should be. Several of the CCENS students have voiced their feelings of alienation from the University community. It would appear that some of our white students have been unwilling to accept black students into the community as equals.

To have an active, functional community it is necessary that all be dedicated and united in this effort. Part of the college education is learning how to cooperate and live within the framework of a community. To deprive a person of this part of his education is to deprive that person of a major part of his education. Our university was not intended to turn out educated aliens. The job of the University is to turn out liberally educated people capable of interacting intelligently in their communities. If, in this, the university fails, then it fails completely.

The world today is filled with far too many "islands." This failure of individuals to become involved in their own communities, their own nation and their own lives for whatever reason, is why our nation is in the state that it is in today. Total personal involvement should be the order of the day, everyday, for everybody, and it is a shame that it is not. There are far too many people, who of their own accord, resign from personal involvement, without people actively seeking to deprive other people who want to get personally involved. We should all consider this issue seriously and not be so damn self assured in calling ourselves liberals. Liberals modify! Radicals change! So, those who wish to remain uninvolved liberals should be liberal enough to stand aside and let those who wish to get involved do so. At least these people should cast no barriers in the path of those who do wish to get involved. The very future of our nation rests on these liberally educated radical citizens involved up to their necks.

Keith Bromery
Editorial Staff

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
Sports Editor ..... Mike Curran

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Mark Silverman '71
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69

Issue Editor: Jan Curley; Sports Editor: Pete Pascarelli, Editorial Editor; Kathy Biggane.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

"I Have A W eapon Too"

INSIDE REPORT:

The Agnew Problem

WASHINGTON — Evidence that Richard M. Nixon is more disturbed by his running-mate's open-mouthed campaign than he lets on is found in his discreet assignment of Stephen Hess, his longtime liberal advisor, to oversee Gov. Spiro T. Agnew.

Hess, an author-intellectual blooded in the many Nixon campaigns, originally was assigned to studying transition problems for the Nixon administration. But the potential for disaster displayed by Agnew in just two weeks on the campaign trail has convinced Nixon he needs a trusted and cool head like Steve Hess's to represent his interests.

Indeed, Nixon's concern reflects unease over Agnew inside the Republican party that is deeper than generally realized. Agnew's bizarre campaign record so far not only casts one small cloud on the otherwise bright Republican horizon but reinforces the consensus at Miami Beach in August: the Vice Presidential selection has been Nixon's only blunder of 1968.

Far from representing obedience to Nixon's commands as claimed by Democrats, Agnew's Red-baiting and onslaughts on Vice President Humphrey have been his own idea. Given the general assignment of countering Democratic attacks (a common role for the Vice Presidential candidate, Agnew has run wild.

Indeed, Nixon's sin regarding Agnew has not been fashioning him into a hatchet-man but in giving him, until now, too free a hand. John Sears, the bright young Nixon aide and law partner assigned to travel with Agnew, had no major say in Agnew's strategy the first two weeks.

Nor was Agnew fully briefed on policy. In that now famous Sept. 10 meeting with Washington correspondents when he suggested Humphrey was "soft on communism," Agnew also delivered less publicized but equally injudicious pronouncements on Vietnam—flatly ruling out a coalition government in Saigon. That's not Nixon's position. Rep. Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, a member of Nixon's informal strategy board, has emphatically advised against such a restrictive stance.

Although Agnew's hard line was applauded by Republican regulars, party liberals exploded in private. Former Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania, an Establishment pillar fully committed to Nixon, demanded that something be done about Agnew. Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, who has risked his standing among Negroes by all-out support of Nixon, vainly tried to reason with Agnew; Brooke reported to friends he found Agnew "very inflexible" on the law-and-order issue.

What finally convinced Agnew that he ought to retract his ludicrous charges against Humphrey was a suggestion, passed indirectly to Agnew, from Nixon headquarters.

Even that retraction, however, did not fully extinguish the sense of outrage on the Republican left. It was brought home to Agnew in Rochester, N.Y., on Sept. 12 when he heard Dutch-uncle lectures in private from New York's two Republican Senators—Jacob Javits, seeking re-election this year, and the newly appointed Charles Goodell, who may have to run next year.

Javits was characteristically vehement. He informed Agnew that he had been making strong endorsements of the Nixon-Agnew ticket and that Agnew's wild statements were acutely embarrassing to him. Should they continue, Javits suggested, he might have to dilute his support. A stony-faced Agnew listened without comment.

It is partly to save Republican liberals from more embarrassment that Nixon now is taking a discreet but firm interest in Agnew's performance. In addition to Hess's being attached to Agnew's party, another astute Nixon lieutenant — New York publicist William Safire — has been coordinating problems with Agnew. Rep. John Rhodes, the levelheaded conservative from Arizona who ably represented Nixon's interests on the Platform Committee in Miami Beach, also is now riding with Agnew.

Whether all this is effective is a matter of some doubt for seasoned Agnew-watchers in Maryland. Ever since Agnew won popular acclaim with his condemnation of Negro leaders last spring, he has been unalterably convinced that he instinctively holds the certain pulse of public sentiment.

This frame of mind concerns thoughtful Republicans less by its impact on Nov. 5 than on the future. An inept Vice Presidential candidate seldom loses an election where his running-mate is so far in front as Nixon. Rather, Agnew's performance is disturbing because it casts doubts on his fitness as heir apparent to national power. With the help of Nixon's lieutenants, it will be up to Agnew to erase those doubts by his record the next six weeks.

(c) 1968 Publishers-Hall Syndicate

Daily Collegian Photo by Don LeBlanc

BREAKING AND ENTERING—In this case the young men are not after cash, furs or jewels, but something more valuable from the college man's point of view—panties. The most recent panty raid was staged at Brooks House Saturday night.

Air Traffic Hints Soviets May Be Withdrawing Troops From Prague

PRAGUE (UPI) — Heavy military air traffic over Prague yesterday suggested that the Soviet Union may be starting a partial pull-out of occupation troops, but the Russian presence, including window shopping Red Army soldiers, was still conspicuous in the capital.

Premier Oldrich Cernik had promised in a speech Saturday that the withdrawal of some troops was forthcoming.

The military air traffic could have been the usual supply flights, but there were also reports that Antonov transports had taken off with some Russian airborne units and their artillery.

Military experts regarded a thinning out of occupation forces here and there as insignificant since it did not necessarily mean that troops had left the country. In any case, they said, the estimated 500,000 to 650,000 Russian, Polish, East German, Bulgarian and Hungarian troops who invaded Czechoslovakia Aug. 20-21 were far more than enough to keep the little country under control.

Cernik's speech at Ostrava Saturday about a partial troop pull out attracted new attention yesterday because everything he said about troops and their forthcoming withdrawal was omitted from Rude Pravo, organ of the Czechoslovak communist party and the Czechoslovak newspaper most closely studied in Moscow.

Prague radio and all other newspapers quoted the premier as saying, "A phased withdrawal of foreign troops from Czechoslovakia will begin in the next few days. Certain contingents of foreign troops will remain with us-the public will learn in due time how many and for how long."

CTK, the official Czechoslovak news agency, reported the speech Sunday with one additional sentence saying, "Most of the troops will leave and the withdrawal will not take long."

Although Cernik has said there would be new Czechoslovak-Soviet talks in the near future, no confirmed date has been set.

Parade, Rally Planned For Day Of Awareness

Plans for a "Day of Awareness" were discussed Thursday night at a meeting of an Ad-Hoc Committee. The main point of the Day of Awareness, said Gil Salk, organizer of the proposal is to "make the student body more aware of the major issue in this campaign. The candidates seem to have adopted a law and order platform rather than a platform whose major concern is the war. 'Oh by the way, there is a war going on,' seems to be their only commitment to this issue," states Salk.

Another theme of the 'Day of Awareness' states Art Cunneen, another organizer, is to "make it known to students who do sympathize against the war and who are concerned with such issues as civil rights, that they are not alone in their feelings. Many people have just given up on the issues because progress is being being made so slowly in these areas. The 'Day of Awareness' is getting us away from just sitting in our rooms protesting silently. It is providing an opportunity to let these people on campus know that they are not alone."

'Day of Awareness' will begin Thursday, at 1 p.m. It will be headed by a three-pronged march originating from the Northeast, Southwest, and Orchard Hill areas, and proceeding to the campus pond area where there will be speakers and group discussion. There will also be a jug band and other groups.

To Consider R.O.T.C. Abolition

The Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate voted unanimously last spring to abolish credit for upper level ROTC courses.

According to Senator Joe Kilmartin, the Committee felt that the credit should not be given because ROTC is not "worthy of academic credit" and the people enrolled in the courses are also paid $50 for taking the course by the government.

The bill will come before the Senate Wednesday night for action. The Senate will also consider a second bill to abolish all phases of ROTC on campus.

Restaurant, Hotel Management to Offer Course in Food Service Management

The UMass restaurant and hotel management program will present a course in Food Service Management for people in the food service business in western Massachusetts at Pittsfield starting tonight. Location of the classes will be announced later.

The course carries three credits toward the associate degree, and is one of a number being offered this year at off-campus points for food service personnel. Students may also enroll on a noncredit basis.

The course will consider the management of the food service operation, including purchasing, storage, and issuing of food, beverages and supplies, and the necessary records and controls. It will involve all aspects of food service operations from purchasing to production, and include methodology, controls, and record-keeping. It is designed to be of special value to restaurant, school lunch, institutional, and other food service personnel.

Sessions will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. each Monday evening for 22 weeks. The course will be presented by Robert F. Lukowski of the restaurant and hotel management program.

Tuition fee is $30 with an additional charge for textbook. Advance registration is necessary and may be done through the Restaurant and Hotel Management Program, Room 213, Chenoweth Laboratory, UMass, Amherst, Mass. 01002, Telephone 545-2071.

PRE-LAW MEETING
For anyone interested in going to law school, there will be a meeting tonight in SBA 120 at 8 p.m.

Americans Prefer National Primary To Conventions

PRINCETON, N.J. (UPI) — A vast majority of the American public would like to see presidential candidates chosen in a nationwide primary instead of at conventions, the Gallup Poll reported yesterday.

In a nationwide sampling taken the first week of September, Gallup found that 76 per cent of those polled favored the primary method. Only 13 per cent favored keeping the present convention system and 11 per cent had no opinion.

The same poll also showed that 66 per cent of those questioned favored doing away with the electoral college and selecting the president by popular vote. Only 19 per cent disapproved of that idea.

Who's Who On Campus

Nominations are now being accepted to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. The selections are being based on four major criteria: student scholarship; participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities; citizenship; and service to the University. Nominations will be accepted from any individual or group and should include a description of the nominee's qualifications. Nominations must be received no later than Monday, Sept. 30.

Please send all nominations to Chairman, 'Who's Who Committee,' R.S.O. #801, Student Union.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

THE BROTHERS OF Pi Lamba Phi
cordially invite all
Upperclassmen
to OPEN SMOKERS FORMAL
Sept. 24
7:30
Commonwealth Room
Student Union
INFORMAL
Sept. 26
7:30
Colonial Lounge
Student Union

The Brothers of
Sigma Phi Epsilon
Cordially Invite All
Upperclassmen To An Open,
Formal, Smoker
Monday, Sept. 23 at 9:00 p.m.

You can always find the newest in cosmetics at
College Drug

Catholics Walk Out of Mass in Birth Control Protest

By John M. Peace
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two hundred Roman Catholics walked out of St. Matthew's Cathedral here Sunday as their archbishop, Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle, began delivering a sermon urging obedience to Pope Paul VI's restrictions on birth control.

The walkout, which Catholic clergymen said was unprecedented in the Archdiocese of Washington and perhaps in the world, dramatized the chasm that has developed between Cardinal O'Boyle's interpretation of the Pope's encyclical, Humanae Vitae of human life, and priests who interpret it differently.

Cardinal O'Boyle was only one of several Catholic clergymen who had to face walkouts. The pastoral letter that he read was read also in the 129 other churches of his archdiocese, which encompasses Washington and five southern Maryland counties.

Laymen and some priests walked out at several other churches, returning after the pastoral letter had been read.

Unofficial checks showed that at least 235 people at four other churches walked out during morning services.

Cardinal O'Boyle read the pastoral letter at the 10 and 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. masses at St. Matthew's.

At the first two, priests said, only 10 to 20 laymen walked out. His plan to appear at 12:30 had been given advance publicity, however, and the protesters had seated themselves in pews near the front. The huge and ornate cathedral, which can seat a maximum of 1,200 people, was full and standees were in the aisles.

Most of those who walked out returned after he finished the letter. The cardinal, television lights reflecting from his rimless glasses, did not falter as the dissenting Catholics began leaving. When he finished, the remaining congregation stood and applauded.

In an interview after the 12:30 mass, Cardinal O'Boyle said it was the first time in his 20 years as archbishop of Washington that anything like the walkout had happened.

The Pope's encyclical, issued in Rome July 29 forbade all forms of artificial birth control for Catholics except periodic abstinence from sexual relations, known as the rhythm method.

The encyclical, and Cardinal O'Boyle's interpretation of it, sparked an intrachurch dispute that has culminated with the cardinal's taking disciplinary action against 13 priests. Action against 31 others is pending.

The Sisters of
Gamma Sigma Sigma
Cordially invite you to attend one of our
Coffee Hours
Tues., Sept. 24 8-9 p.m.
Thurs., Sept. 26 7-8:30 p.m.
Berkshire Rm., S.U.

Colombian Airliners Hijacked; Third Cuban Piracy in Three Days

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Two Colombian airliners, owned by the same company and taking off from the same field, were seized Sunday and flown to Communist Cuba in a spectacular double hijacking.

The piracy involving 135 persons occurred on flights only two hours and 11 minutes apart, air officials said.

Avianca Colombia Airlines, owners of the two hijacked planes, said one carrying 78 persons landed at Camaguey, about 75 miles southeast of Havana. The other, with 57 aboard, landed in Santiago on Cuba's eastern tip, said an airline spokesman.

The bizarre twin air piracy began when the first airliner, a Boeing 727, left Soledad airport at Barranquilla, Colombia's main port on the Caribbean.

The Boeing jet which took off at 10:30 a.m. was heading for Cartagena and was to have continued on to Medellin and Cali. The big plane landed at Camaguey at 12:25 p.m. said a pilot for the Dutch KLM airlines who was in contact with the plane when it was diverted.

The second plane, a DC4, left Soledad at 12:41 p.m. for Maicao, a town on Guajira peninsula near the Venezuelan frontier. Its pilot, Alfredo Crisman radioed that it was heading for Santiago de Cuba.

The government demanded through the Swiss Embassy in Havana that the planes be returned at once. Colombia does not have diplomatic relations with Cuba.

It was not known how the hijackings were brought off, but the air pirates somehow got around strict precautions by the government which had ordered that everyone boarding planes be searched for arms.

The two acts of air piracy brought to five the number of Colombian planes hijacked to Cuba since 1967.

Venice Flooded

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Piazza San Marco Square and other low-lying regions of this historic cultural city were flooded Sunday by the first high tide of the fall. The city was hit by floods in November 1966 and many art treasures were damaged.

For the Liberal Arts Major, PQT can open a whole new world of opportunity . . .

Each year, NSA offers challenging career opportunities to Liberal Arts majors through participation in the Professional Qualification Test. This year, NSA has scheduled the PQT for Saturday, October 19, 1968. Completion of this Test by the Liberal Arts major is a prerequisite to consideration for NSA employment.

The Career Scene at NSA:

The National Security Agency is the U.S. Government agency responsible for developing invulnerable communications systems to transmit and receive vital information. As an NSA professional, you will be trained to work on programs of national importance in such areas as:

- Cryptography—developing & logical proving of new cryptologic concepts
- Research—the gathering, analysis, and reporting of substantive data
- Language—used as a basic tool of research into a number of analytical fields
- Programming—includes data systems program writing, and development of mechanical and administrative procedures
- Documentation—technical writing in its broadest sense, including research, writing, editing, illustrating, layout and reproduction

Your specific academic major is of secondary importance. Of far greater importance are your ingenuity, intellectual curiosity and perseverance —plus a desire to apply them in assignments where "imagination is the essential qualification."

SALARIES start at $6981.00 and are supplemented by the benefits of career federal employment.

ADVANCEMENT AND CAREER DEVELOPMENT—NSA promotes from within, and awards salary increases as you assume greater responsibility. NSA also is anxious to stimulate your professional and intellectual growth in many ways, including intensive formal as well as on-the-job training. Advanced study at any of seven area universities can be partially or wholly reimbursed through NSA Fellowships and other assistance programs.

The deadline for PQT applications is October 9, 1968.
Pick up a PQT Bulletin at your Placement Office. It contains full details and the necessary test registration form. College Relations Branch, National Security Agency, Ft. George G. Meade, Maryland 20755. Att: M321. An equal opportunity employer, M&F.

national security agency

. . . where imagination is the essential qualification

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Work in Europe

American Student Information Service has arranged jobs, tours & studying in Europe for over a decade. Choose from thousands of good paying jobs in 15 countries, study at a famous university, take a Grand Tour, transatlantic transportation, travel independently. All permits, etc. arranged thru this low cost & recommended program. On the spot help from ASIS offices while in Europe. For educational fun-filled & profitable experience of a lifetime send $ 2 for handbook (overseas handling, airmail reply & applications included) listing jobs, tours, study & crammed with other valuable info, to: Dept. M, ASIS, 22 ave. de la Liberte, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Lux.

The newest dining commons to open on UMass campus is Berkshire Commons, which serves 2,000 students 4,000 meals a day. Berkshire is one of three that provide meals for the 5,500 students in the Southwest Resident Area. The first students in line at the first meal served by the new facility are Susan Parkhurst, a Cambridge sophomore, and Robert Knowles, a Springfield junior.

Egyptian Remains Saved; Dignitaries Attend Rites

ABU SIMBEL, Egypt (AP) — Dignitaries representing up to 40 countries from East and West greeted in this remote Egyptian town yesterday the towering twin temples of King Ramses and his queen at their new safe home above Lake Nasser.

Culture Minister Sarwat Okasha of Egypt headed the list of Cabinet ministers, diplomats and archaeologists attending the colorful ceremony, marking completion of salvage of the massive, rockhewn monuments at a cost of $36 million.

Speakers hailed the salvage of Abu Simbel as "a living symbol of international cooperation in the quest to preserve human history and glorious legacies."

The temples had stood in their original location for 32 centuries until threatened by waters of the Nile rising behind the Aswan High Dam.

Guests included Luclus D. Battle, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Middle Eastern affairs; Yves Bourges, French state secretary for foreign affairs; Hans-Juergen Wischnewski, West Germany's minister of economic cooperation, and Rene Mahue, director-general of the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization -UNESCO.

When Egypt announced in 1958 that it was going ahead with work on the Aswan dam because of its massive power and irrigation needs, UNESCO launched a campaign for money to save the twin temples.

On the Democratic Trail

Humphrey Searching for Happiness

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AP) — It may take a political miracle—rather than a political campaign—for Hubert Humphrey to catch up with Richard M. Nixon.

But this has been a year for political miracles.

And Hubert Humphrey, the unbowed practitioner of the politics of hope, still manages to sound almost cocky when he talks of his chances:

"Things will be popping . . . . just give me two more weeks. Give me a little time."

But time's short and less than heart-warming reports are coming in from such key states as California, Texas, Illinois and New York.

Yet Humphrey expresses confidence in public, as well as in off-the-record talks, that he will be able to come even with Nixon by the middle of next month. His lag in the polls, Humphrey feels, is due to a reaction to the violence and other troubles in Chicago during the Democratic convention.

A Recent Brightening?

He sees encouraging signs in reports from private polls and in the response of former supporters of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Humphrey has suddenly wrapped himself in the past and present names and glories of the Democratic party.

In quick succession last week, he was endorsed by President Johnson, won public embraces from two of the better known critics of Johnson's Vietnam policy -- Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and George McGovern — and met with former President Harry S. Truman and Adlai Stevenson, II, son of the late Democratic presidential candidate and a rising political star in Illinois.

Opening Problems

In the first week of campaigning, Humphrey sprinted from coast to coast with a jet trail of disappointing crowds, persistent hecklers; snubs from such party leaders as Texas Gov. John Connally and California's Jesse Unruh, and oratorical miscues over the party's Vietnam plank and the withdrawal of troops from Vietnam.

Humphrey seemed tired, was trying to cover too much ground too fast, talking too long and not guarding his tongue closely enough in the question and answer sessions with audiences in the "politics of confrontation."

But that first week, said aides, was a shakedown cruise.

Technical help came from former Kennedy aide Jerry Bruno. Bruno carefully inspected the nuts and bolts of the campaign machinery, reported the flaws to Humphrey and Lawrence O'Brien his campaign manager.

Too many police and barricades were blamed for a disappointing crowd turnout in Philadelphia, for instance.

On this second week Humphrey seemed more relaxed and the crowds were bigger.

NEWS BRIEFS

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Eight persons, including a priest, were taken into custody after the rector of St. John's Roman Catholic Cathedral was pushed to a sanctuary floor during an antiwar demonstration by about 40 persons.

The demonstration halted a Mass. Msgr. James E. Kelly, about 73, the church rector, fell to the floor during the commotion. Kelly, who was uninjured, said he had been pushed by a bearded youth.

The protestors approached the pulpit asking permission to read a statement urging the church to "actively resist war and racism."

Among those arrested was the Rev. Nicholas Riddell, an assistant priest at another church.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve plans to install a $2.8-million electronic grid at Culpepper, Vt., to transmit cash balances to its banks and branches 40 times faster than the existing teletype network.

A computer grid at Culpepper will send balances and other data between the headquarters of the Federal Reserve System in Washington and branches in 12 districts throughout the country.

MANILLA (AP) — An earthquake jarred Manila and surrounding provinces Sunday. The Weather Bureau placed the epicenter 112 miles northeast of Manila. No serious damage or casualties were reported.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

STEADY PASSENGERS WANTED

Ride to Worcester Saturday morning after 11:00 a.m. Return Monday morning. Call Zelda Bilsey (791-7251) in Worcester or leave a note in 1805 Calvin Coolidge Tower. 9/24

FOR SALE

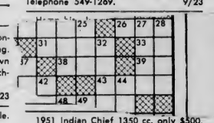
Honda CB 160 (cheap). Excellent condition throughout, fine for commuting. See for yourself and make your own deal. Ask collector. Contact Dev Cochrane, 5-2832 or 6-9306, day or night. 9/23

Vespa 125 cc. motor scooter for sale. Excellent running condition. Two helmets included. Must sell — going in service. Only $99. Contact Bill, 549-0169, 33 Phillips St. 9/26

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware, Tu-Fri 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412. 9/26

1965 Honda 150 in perfect cond. brand new engine, clutch, pipes, brakes carrier rack & rebuilt trans. Bills to show for all work & parts, dark blue, cheap. 253-9326. 9/24



ROOMMATES NEEDED

Female roommate wanted for private furnished room. $50 per month. Apt. #1, 797 Main St., Amherst. Come after 5 p.m. 9/23

HELP WANTED

Employment Female — Student wife, full time work available 8:30-5:30. Must be well groomed and able to meet the public. Apply in person, House of Walsh. 9/23

Large sitting room and adjoining twin bedroom overlooking campus available to student desiring minimal babysitting for two children 8 and 10 years old. Telephone 549-1269. 9/23

1951 Indian Chief 1350 cc. only $500. Come to 85 Hill Crest Pl., So. Amherst. Ask for Roger. 9/23

1956 Plymouth. Call 256-6976 9/24

1962 Chev wagon; 6 cyl. standard, new tires, new brakes, very clean $475. Call 1-532-1396 between 8 and 9 p.m. Located at 48 Amherst Rd., So. Hadley. 9/27

FOR RENT

Modern, 1 bedroom, wall to wall carpet, all utilities inc. air cond, 10 minute walk to Education Bldg. $130/month. Call 549-1381 9/23

LOST

Lost or stolen in vicinity of 296 N. Pleasant St. Sept. 17, one black and white male kitten. Call 546-8193 or 253-5637. $5.00 reward. 9/25

Southwest Assembly

Nomination Papers

May Be Picked up in Coolidge Lobby

Due Saturday, September 28

Elections October 3

For further information, call 5-1551

Plus Factors Arrive on Schedule as UM Again Dumps Maine

By Tom FitzGerald
Senior Reporter

Even though the thermometer was zeroing in on 90 and the janitors were still calling in "sick," leaving the dorm rats mired in their squalor, it was a typical Yankee Conference weekend for UMass.

Maine, a school that has less than half as many students as UMass and in a few years may have less than a third, came 300 miles for the usual treatment bestowed on Conference rivals. The Black Bears amassed a grisly total of 124 yards in total offense. An average fan at Alumni Stadium has to walk much farther than that to get to the john.

You'll remember that Maine is the outfit that professes not to offer athletic scholarships. It may toy with semantics in recruiting talent, but let us once and for all face it: as far as football goes, Maine may never have what UMass has.

Coach Walt Abbott still looking for his first victory or tie in his second year at Maine, kept the doors of the visitors' quarters at the Stadium closed to all but Maine personnel after the game. A half-hour after the game ended, he came out alone, lugging equipment with a clipboard under one arm.

A small crowd of Maine sympathizers stood nearby, some of them the parents of the 15 Bears players from Massachusetts. No one approached him, but then

Each year, NSA chooses career opportunities to Lib majors through participat
Professional Qualificatic
This year, NSA has schr
for Saturday, October 19t
Completion of this Test fo
Arts major is a prere
considerati

UMass 30-9 UMass rout at Orono last fall. "Adams is a fine passer. We knew they were going to be good. We just weren't hitting. No. We had been using Benner at running back all through practice." How about your own boys, coach? Farrell, Benner, Quackenbush, Wing? He just said, "No." He had on a gray Maine athletic department shirt.

ONE THAT GOT AWAY—Nick Warnock (83), UMass end, dives for pass quarterback Tim Adams that was too high on sideline. Closing in on the second-quarter play is Maine cornerback Tom Jordan (20).

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

Vic Fusia wore a light suit, tie and, of course, the hat, which he cherishes as much as Y.A. Tittle used to cherish his helmet. Once during the game, with 13:31 left in the third quarter, Fusia actually whipped off the hat for a moment when Warnock just missed a pass in the middle of two defenders.

"Maine has excellent personnel," he said, fondling a can of soda and finishing another cigaret. "They're gonna beat a lot of people. They're always tough." He said the same thing last year.

"It was a sloppy game," he continued. "We made more errors than we should have. That's expected for the first game. But the only way we could lose was to beat ourselves." UMass should have scored four more touchdowns, he said.

He ticked off the Redmen's plus factors, the same ones he said last week would be rallying points for UMass all season.

First, the running backs — Jerry Grasso, Ed Sarno, Craig Lovell, John Decembrele, Bruce Cochrane. Veteran tailback Tim Drisscoll and soph wingback Pat Scavone were interested observers for the most part. Fusia was not satisfied with the group's showing Saturday but he knows this may be the best stable of horses he has had in eight years at UMass.

Second, the deep backs on defense — Co-captain Mike McArdle, Steve Rogers, Bill Frye and Chief Don Dotson. "They were always in the right position," he said.

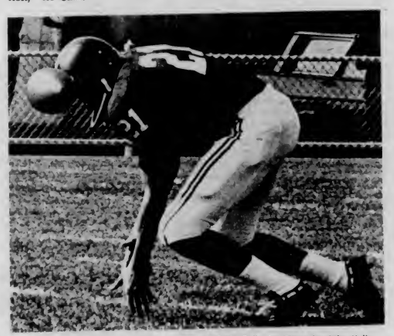
Third, kicking and punting—Marty Scheralis handled kick-off and place-kick chores adequately, continuing the streak of conversion kicks maintained by Ed Sherman, an academic casualty, after the first touchdown of the 1967 Maine game. Co-captain Nick Warnock is again punting into the coffin corners, and the return man, Steve Parnell, gave notice of things to come with a 40-yard burst on a punt halfway through the first period.

Fourth, the ends — Warnock, Al Becker and soph Nick McGarry on offense and Tom York and Randy Robinson on defense. Warnock was under double coverage and didn't catch a pass all afternoon, but Becker hauled down the two TD passes, Grasso grabbed five passes in the second quarter and McGarry caught three in the last touchdown drive, one from Grasso on a fake field goal play. Fusia laughed that he hadn't tried that play since he was coaching high school ball in Indiana.

A fifth plus, Saturday at least, appeared in the slender form of quarterback Tim Adams, who had eight minutes of experience behind Greg Landry last year but who can now boast a win in the first game he started. Landry lost his, 10-8, to Maine in '65.

Fusia said Adams made only two bad passes all day, one overthrown and one underthrown, in completing 15 of 32 for 164 yards. "I thought he passed his first test successfully," said Fusia. Backfield coach Jack Delaney held up the play book, listing all the formations and patterns the new quarterback had to memorize, and said, "That's an awful load. I take off my hat to him."

Not everything went according to plan. Sophomore tackle Fred Hupprich, who returned this year from three years in the service, may be wondering why he did. He suffered a broken collarbone in the first quarter and is probably on a medical discharge for the season. Linebacker Dennis Gray was sidelined with torn cartilage in his knee.



The halftime show had as many uncertain moments as the Redmen's 15th straight Yankee Conference win. Before Cochrane mutted a touchdown pass late in the game, the drum major of the UMass marching band had dropped his plumed hat, which was stepped on by the rear guard, a twirler had dropped her baton and one of the Flying Redmen had dropped his rifle, bayonet and all.

UMass coaches, however, had everything planned but the heat. "When we came in at halftime, there were some white faces," said Delaney. Maine's defense deployments, which held the Redmen without a first down until four minutes had gone by in the second quarter, simply meant a shift to "the second part of our game plan," Fusia said, and opened up the UMass offense.

Less expected were two consecutive plays in the fourth quarter. McArdle intercepted a pass by Dave Wing, fell to the ground and started walking to the sideline when he was nailed from the rear by a Maine player. Then soph guard Pierre Marchando, a converted fullback, picked up a fumble on the snap, and tried to skirt end with it. The refs marked it a one-yard gain for UMass. "I was supposed to pull out on the play, and suddenly there was the ball," Pierre laughed.

An even more humorous moment was provided by WMUA's pre-game guest, Len Harlow, the Maine publicist, who said the school's policy against athletic scholarships gives Maine "an added incentive against teams that give athletic scholarships (namely, all Maine's foes). We go into all our games as underdogs, so we have a psychological advantage."

All was well at game's end for most of the 14,000 fans, who included some 8,000 students. And for the local package store owners. "A fall weekend is our best season," said one. But there were surprises. Fusia, had to solicit a ride home from a Daily Collegian reporter.

BAD HOP—Steve Parnell, the Redmen's elusive punt return threat, finds the ball can be difficult to tackle too as it hits his helmet after bouncing on the Stadium during Saturday's action against Maine.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

SENIORS!

Class of 1969

Executive Council

Applications Available

In R.S.O. Office

DUE SEPT. 30

The Brothers of

Lambda Chi Alpha

cordially invite all upperclassmen to a

FORMAL SMOKER

Monday, Sept. 23rd, 1968

8:00-10:00 p.m.

374 N. Pleasant St.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Booters Shut Out AIC, WNEC, Tie Westfield in Exhibitions

By Walt Stachura
Staff Reporter

Sophomore Steve Blanchette paced the UMass soccer team to a 2-0-1 record during the college soccer jamboree at AIC park in Springfield Saturday.

Blanchette topped the list of scorers Saturday with two goals and three assists. UMass soccer conch Peter Broaca called Blanchette's performance "a pleasant surprise."

UMass, AIC, Western New England and Westfield State were the teams that played in the jamboree, each team playing against each other in 30 minute skirmishes.

The Redmen started the day's events by playing Westfield State to a scoreless tie. This performance against the Owls was an improvement from earlier in the week, when the Redmen bowed to Westfield, 2-0, in a scrimmage.

Following the tie with Westfield, the booters squared off against the Golden Bears of Western New England college.

Duane Brown started the Redmen scoring against WNE with Blanchette picking up an assist on the play. Ed Schmitter tallied the second UMass goal of the scrimmage with Wingman, Larry DeFelice assisting on the goal.

Broaca was well pleased with the Redmen's performance in this game because it came right after the Westfield State contest forcing the Redmen to play the equivalent of almost a full game without a break.

UMass came back strong after a rest period while two other teams were playing and overwhelmed AIC, 4-0, in the final contest of the jamboree.

Blanchette opened the scoring with his first of two goals early in the contest. Co-captain Tom Ward gave the Redmen a two goal advantage a little later during the scrimmage with Blanchette assisting.

Bruce Allen tallied the third UMass goal against the Yellow Jackets and Blanchette completed the UMass scoring for the day with his second goal of the game.

Overall, Broaca was very satisfied with his team's performance in the jamboree. He commented that the jamboree gave the Redmen booters some valuable experience, especially for the many sophomores on the squad.

Besides Blanchette, Broaca had special praise for halfbacks Marty Mughogho and Rick Matuszezak. Also, the defense would have to be commended as they did not allow a goal in any of the three scrimmages.

UMass will have one more scrimmage before their opening game against Maine at home on Saturday. This Tuesday, the Redmen take on AIC in a final tuneup before the regular season opener.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

NICK OF TIME — Nick McGarry leaps to grab pass with some interested observers on the Maine sideline. McGarry, soph end from Arlington, Va., grabbed three passes in a reserve role.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

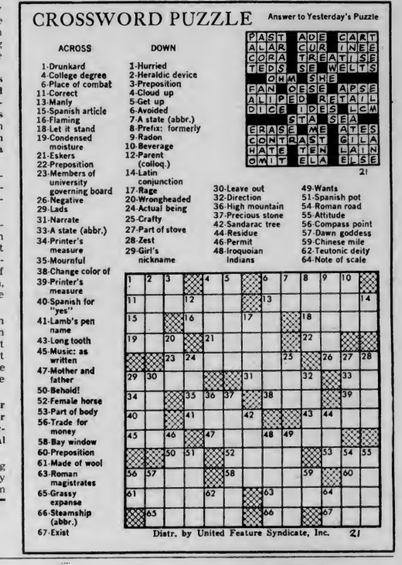
PUTTING THE MOVES — on Maine's Ernie Quackenbush (88) is Craig Lovell (40). Looking on is Tom Jordan (20).

COLLEGIAN SPORTLINE
545-0344

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

PAST ADE CART
ALAR GUR INEE
CORA TREATISE
TEDS SE WELTS
OMM SHE
FAN OESE APSE
ALIPED RETAIL
DIGS EDES LCM
STA SEA
ERASE ME ATES
CONTRAST GILA
HATE TEN LAIN
OMIT ELA ELSE



21

ACROSS

1-Drunkard
4-College degree
6-Place of combat
11-Correct
13-Manly
15-Spanish article
16-Flaming
18-Let it stand
19-Condensed moisture
21-Eskers
22-Preposition
23-Members of university governing board
26-Negative
29-Lads
31-Narrate
33-A state (abbr.)
34-Printer's measure
35-Mournful
38-Change color of
39-Printer's measure
40-Spanish for "yes"
41-Lamb's pen name
43-Long tooth
45-Music: as written
47-Mother and father
50-Behold!
52-Female horse
53-Part of body
56-Trade for money
58-Bay window
60-Preposition
61-Made of wool
63-Roman magistrates
65-Grassy expanse
66-Steamship (abbr.)
67-Exist

DOWN

1-Hurried
2-Heraldic device
3-Preposition
4-Cloud up
5-Get up
6-Avoided
7-A state (abbr.)
8-Prefix: formerly
9-Radon
10-Beverage
12-Parent (colloq.)
14-Latin conjunction
17-Rage
20-Wrongheaded
24-Actual being
25-Crafty
27-Part of stove
28-Zest
29-Girl's nickname
30-Leave out
32-Direction
36-High mountain
37-Precious stone
42-Sandarac tree
44-Residue
46-Permit
48-Iroquoian Indians
49-Wants
51-Spanish pot
54-Roman road
55-Altitude
56-Compass point
57-Dawn goddess
59-Chinese mile
62-Teutonic deity
64-Note of scale

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 21

Russell Agrees With 200 G's In 2-Year Pact

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell, one of the National Basketball Association's all-time greats, has agreed to terms in a two-year contract calling for slightly more than $200,000 per season as player-coach of the Boston Celtics, The Associated Press learned Sunday night.

A source said that formal announcement of Russell's signing will be made within the next couple of days. He received an estimated $150,000 a year in his first two years as player-coach.

Russell, who will be 35 in February, led the Celtics to the NBA championship in his second year as player-coach last season.

N.E. COLLEGE FOOTBALL
Colgate 28, Boston Univ. 0
Norwich 32, Colby 9
Maine Maritime 29, Curry 0
Bates 18, Middlebury 0
Connecticut 21, Vermont 0
C. W. Post 28, Northeastern 22

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

B. C. by Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

PEANUTS

23 SEPT 1968

Plus Factors Arrive on Schedule as UM Again Dumps Maine

By Tom FitzGerald
Senior Reporter

Even though the thermometer was zeroing in on 90 and the janitors were still calling in "sick," leaving the dorm rats mired in their squalor, it was a typical Yankee Conference weekend for UMass.

Maine, a school that has less than half as many students as UMass and in a few years may have less than a third, came 300 miles for the usual treatment bestowed on Conference rivals. The Black Bears amassed a grisly total of 124 yards in total offense. An average fan at Alumni Stadium has to walk much farther than that to get to the john.

You'll remember that Maine is the outfit that professes not to offer athletic scholarships. It may toy with semantics in recruiting talent, but let us once and for all face it: as far as football goes, Maine may never have what UMass has.

Coach Walt Abbott still looking for his first victory or tie in his second year at Maine, kept the doors of the visitors' quarters at the Stadium closed to all but Maine personnel after the game. A half-hour after the game ended, he came out alone, lugging equipment with a clipboard under one arm.

A small crowd of Maine sympathizers stood nearoy, some of them the parents of the 15 Bears players from Massachusetts. No one approached him, but then

Each year, NSA chooses career opportunities to Lib majors through participat Professional Qualificatic This year, NSA has schi for Saturday, October 19t Completion of this Test is considered the 30-3 rout at Orono last fall. "Adams is a fine passer. We knew they were going to be good. We just weren't hitting. No, we had been using Benner at running back all through practice." How about your own boys, coach? Farrell,

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

ONE THAT GOT AWAY—Nick Warnock (83), UMass end, dives for pass quarterback Tim Adams that was too high on sideline. Closing in on the second-quarter play is Maine cornerback Tom Jordan (20).

Benner, Quackenbush, Wing? He just said, "No." He had on a gray Maine athletic department shirt.

Vic Fusia wore a light suit, tie and, of course, the hat, which he cherishes as much as Y.A. Tittle used to cherish his helmet. Once during the game, with 13.31 left in the third quarter, Fusia actually whipped off the hat for a moment when Warnock just missed a pass in the middle of two defenders.

"Maine has excellent personnel," he said, fondling a can of soda and finishing another cigaret. "They're gonna beat a lot of people. They're always tough." He said the same thing last year.

"It was a sloppy game," he continued. "We made more errors than we should have. That's expected for the first game. But the only way we could lose was to beat ourselves." UMass should have scored four more touchdowns, he said.

He ticked off the Redmen's plus factors, the same ones he said last week would be rallying points for UMass all season.

First, the running backs — Jerry Grasso, Ed Sarno, Craig Lovell, John Decembrele, Bruce Cochrane. Veteran tailback Tim Driscoll and soph wingback Pat Scavone were interested observers for the most part. Fusia was not satisfied with the group's showing Saturday but he knows this may be the best stable of horses he has had in eight years at UMass.

Second, the deep backs on defense — Co-captain Mike McArdle, Steve Rogers, Bill Frye and Chief Don Dotson. "They were always in the right position," he said.

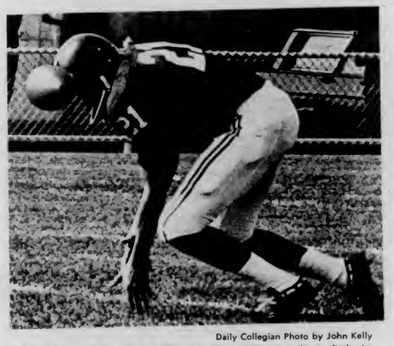
Third, kicking and punting—Marty Scheralis handled kick-off and place-kick chores adequately, continuing the streak of conversion kicks maintained by Ed Sherman, an academic casualty, after the first touchdown of the 1967 Maine game. Co-captain Nick Warnock is again punting into the coffin corners, and the return man, Steve Parnell, gave notice of things to come with a 40-yard burst on a punt halfway through the first period.

Fourth, the ends — Warnock, Al Becker and soph Nick McGarry on offense and Tom York and Randy Robinson on defense. Warnock was under double coverage and didn't catch a pass all afternoon, but Becker hauled down the two TD passes, Grasso grabbed five passes in the second quarter and McGarry caught three in the last touchdown drive, one from Grasso on a fake field goal play. Fusia laughed that he hadn't tried that play since he was coaching high school ball in Indiana.

A fifth plus, Saturday at least, appeared in the slender form of quarterback Tim Adams, who had eight minutes of experience behind Greg Landry last year but who can now boast a win in the first game he started. Landry lost his, 10-8, to Maine in '65.

Fusia said Adams made only two bad passes all day, one overthrown and one underthrown, in completing 15 of 32 for 164 yards. "I thought he passed his first test successfully," said Fusia. Backfield coach Jack Delaney held up the play book, listing all the formations and patterns the new quarterback had to memorize, and said, "That's an awful load. I take off my hat to him."

Not everything went according to plan. Sophomore tackle Fred Hupprich, who returned this year from three years in the service, may be wondering why he did. He suffered a broken collarbone in the first quarter and is probably on a medical discharge for the season. Linebacker Dennis Gray was sidelined with torn cartilage in his knee.



The halftime show had as many uncertain moments as the Redmen's 15th straight Yankee Conference win. Before Cochrane mutted a touchdown pass late in the game, the drum major of the UMass marching band had dropped his plumed hat, which was stepped on by the rear guard, a twirler had dropped her baton and one of the Flying Redmen had dropped his rifle, bayonet and all.

UMass coaches, however, had everything planned but the heat. "When we came in at halftime, there were some white faces," said Delaney. Maine's defense deployments, which held the Redmen without a first down until four minutes had gone by in the second quarter, simply meant a shift to "the second part of our game plan," Fusia said, and opened up the UMass offense.

Less expected were two consecutive plays in the fourth quarter. McArdle intercepted a pass by Dave Wing, fell to the ground and started walking to the sideline when he was nailed from the rear by a Maine player. Then soph guard Pierre Marchando, a converted fullback, picked up a fumble on the snap, and tried to skirt end with it. The refs marked it a one-yard gain for UMass. "I was supposed to pull out on the play, and suddenly there was the ball," Pierre laughed.

An even more humorous moment was provided by WMUA's pre-game guest, Len Harlow, the Maine publicist, who said the school's policy against athletic scholarships gives Maine "an added incentive against teams that give athletic scholarships (namely, all Maine's foes). We go into all our games as underdogs, so we have a psychological advantage."

All was well at game's end for most of the 14,000 fans, who included some 8,000 students. And for the local package store owners. "A fall weekend is our best season," said one. But there were surprises. Fusia, had to solicit a ride home from a Daily Collegian reporter.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

BAD HOP—Steve Parnell, the Redmen's elusive punt return threat, finds the ball can be difficult to tackle too as it hits his helmet after bouncing on the Stadium during Saturday's action against Maine.

SENIORS!

Class of 1969

Executive Council

Applications Available

In R.S.O. Office

DUE SEPT. 30

The Brothers of

Lambda Chi Alpha

cordially invite all upperclassmen to a

FORMAL SMOKER

Monday, Sept. 23rd, 1968

8:00-10:00 p.m.

374 N. Pleasant St.

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

NICK OF TIME — Nick McGarry leaps to grab pass with some interested observers on the Maine sideline. McGarry, soph end from Arlington, Va., grabbed three passes in a reserve role.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

PUTTING THE MOVES — on Maine's Ernie Quackenbush (88) is Craig Lovell (40). Looking on is Tom Jordan (20).

Booters Shut Out AIC, WNEC, Tie Westfield in Exhibitions

By Walt Stachura
Staff Reporter

Sophomore Steve Blanchette paced the UMass soccer team to a 2-0-1 record during the college soccer jamboree at AIC park in Springfield Saturday.

Blanchette topped the list of scorers Saturday with two goals and three assists. UMass soccer coach Peter Broaca called Blanchette's performance "a pleasant surprise."

UMass, AIC, Western New England and Westfield State were the teams that played in the jamboree, each team playing against each other in 30 minute skirmishes.

The Redmen started the day's events by playing Westfield State to a scoreless tie. This performance against the Owls was an improvement from earlier in the week, when the Redmen bowed to Westfield, 2-0, in a scrimmage.

Following the tie with Westfield, the booters squared off against the Golden Bears of Western New England college.

Duane Brown started the Redmen scoring against WNE with Blanchette picking up an assist on the play. Ed Schmitter tallied the second UMass goal of the scrimmage with Wingman, Larry DeFelice assisting on the goal.

Broaca was well pleased with the Redmen's performance in this game because it came right after the Westfield State contest forcing the Redmen to play the equivalent of almost a full game without a break.

UMass came back strong after a rest period while two other teams were playing and overwhelmed AIC, 4-0, in the final contest of the jamboree.

Blanchette opened the scoring with his first of two goals early in the contest. Co-captain Tom Ward gave the Redmen a two goal advantage a little later during the scrimmage with Blanchette assisting.

Bruce Allen tallied the third UMass goal against the Yellow Jackets and Blanchette completed the UMass scoring for the day with his second goal of the game.

Overall, Broaca was very satisfied with his team's performance in the jamboree. He commented that the jamboree gave the Redmen booters some valuable experience, especially for the many sophomores on the squad.

Besides Blanchette, Broaca had special praise for halfbacks Marty Mughogho and Rick Matuszeak. Also, the defense would have to be commended as they did not allow a goal in any of the three scrimmages.

UMass will have one more scrimmage before their opening game against Maine at home on Saturday. This Tuesday, the Redmen take on AIC in a final tuneup before the regular season opener.

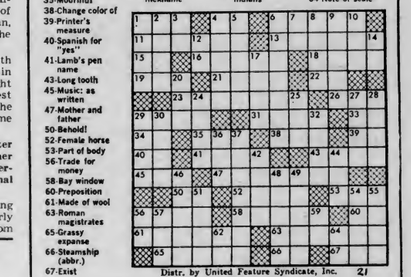
COLLEGIAN SPORTLINE

545-0344

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

P	A	S	T		A	D	E		C	A	R	T
A	L	A	R		G	U	R		I	N	E	E
C	O	R	A		T	R	E	A	T	S	E
T	E	D	S		S	E		W	E	L	T	S
		T	O	M	M		S	H	E
F	A	N		O	E	S	E		A	P	S	E
A	L	I	P	E	D		R	E	T	A	I	L
D	I	G	G	E	R		D	E	E		C	W
			S	T	A		S	E	A
E	R	A	S	E		M	E		A	T	E	S
C	O	N	T	R	A	S	T		G	I	L	A
H	A	T	E		T	E	N		L	A	I	N
O	M	I	T		E	L	A		E	L	S	E



21

ACROSS

1-Drunkard
4-College degree
6-Place of combat
11-Correct
13-Manly
15-Spanish article
16-Flaming
18-Let it stand
19-Condensed moisture
21-Eskers
22-Preposition
23-Members of university governing board
26-Negative
29-Lads
31-Narrate
33-A state (abbr.)
34-Printer's measure
35-Mournful
38-Change color of
39-Printer's measure
40-Spanish for "yes"
41-Lamb's pen name
43-Long tooth
45-Music: as written
47-Mother and father
50-Behold!
52-Female horse
53-Part of body
56-Trade for money
58-Bay window
60-Preposition
61-Made of wool
63-Roman magistrates
65-Grassy expanse
66-Steamship (abbr.)
67-Exist

DOWN

1-Hurried
2-Heraldic device
3-Preposition
4-Cloud up
5-Get up
6-Avoided
7-A state (abbr.)
8-Prefix: formerly
9-Radon
10-Beverage
12-Parent (colloq.)
14-Latin conjunction
17-Rage
20-Wrongheaded
24-Actual being
25-Crafty
27-Part of stove
28-Zest
29-Girl's nickname
30-Leave out
32-Direction
36-High mountain
37-Precious stone
42-Sandarac tree
44-Residue
46-Permit
48-Iroquoian Indians
49-Wants
51-Spanish pot
54-Roman road
55-Altitude
56-Compass point
57-Damn goddess
59-Chinese mile
62-Teutonic deity
64-Note of scale

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 21

Russell Agrees With 200 G's In 2-Year Pact

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell, one of the National Basketball Association's all-time greats, has agreed to terms in a two-year contract calling for slightly more than $200,000 per season as player-coach of the Boston Celtics, The Associated Press learned Sunday night.

A source said that formal announcement of Russell's signing will be made within the next couple of days. He received an estimated $150,000 a year in his first two years as player-coach.

Russell, who will be 35 in February, led the Celtics to the NBA championship in his second year as player-coach last season.

N.E. COLLEGE FOOTBALL
Colgate 28, Boston Univ. 0
Norwich 32, Colby 9
Maine Maritime 29, Curry 0
Bates 18, Middlebury 0
Connecticut 21, Vermont 0
C. W. Post 28, Northeastern 22

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

B. C. by Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

PEANUTS

UMass Belts Maine, 21-3 in Season Opener

Adams' Passes to Becker Score Two; QB Runs for One

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

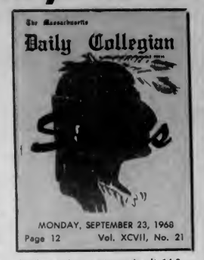
Junior quarterback Tim Adams, in his first varsity start, hit 15 of 32 passes as he led UMass to a 21-3 win over Maine here Saturday before 14,000 at Alumni Stadium.

Adams, taking up where his much heralded predecessors left off, started slowly, then caught fire before an enthusiastic home opener crowd as he threw for two touchdowns and picked up six points alone on a quarterback sneak.

Maine, behind fullback Bob Farrell, took the opening kickoff and moved steadily downfield until Bill Frye recovered a loose ball in the Black Bear backfield.

Jerry Grasso gained seven yards on the first Redman play from scrimmage, and that along with a 40 yard punt return by Steve Parnell and a 50 yard field goal attempt by Marty Scheralis were the only bright spots in the first quarter for the home town fans.

Maine, meanwhile, picked up a fumbled UMass handoff and three plays into the second quarter, scored on a 32 yard field goal by Ernie Quackenbush.



Taking the ensuing kickoff, Adams ignited a Redman drive as he found wingback Grasso on four different occasions. UMass was stopped on a fourth-and-two gamble at the visitors 15 when they could have gone for the tie. It was only a temporary setback, however, as the Redmen offense was just getting into high gear.

With 6:18 left in the half, Tom York pounced on another loose ball at the Maine 32. Adams found Grasso for a 20 yard gain on a third down pass and then after Craig Lovell carried to the Black Bear four, Adams hit senior end Alan Becker for six points on a clutch fourth and two call.

The first of Marty Scheralis' three conversions made it 7-3.

After intermission the hosts started moving again the second time they got their hands on the ball. On a first down play at the UMass 29, Bruce Cochrane found daylight on the right side and raced to the Maine 41. It looked like a touchdown jaunt but Black Bear safety John Collins dove for Cochrane's heels and tripped up the big fullback.

The Redmen moved closer to a touchdown, however, with Lovell doing most of the work. On a third and goal from the ten Becker again shook himself loose in the end zone to make it 14-3.

Ed Sarno and John Decembrele pooled running talents to keep up the pressure on the Maine defense. Early in the last period Adams moved the Redmen deep into Black Bear territory again. A fluke interception by John Wolfgram stopped the drive near the goal line.

A fake field goal attempt set up UMass' last score. On a long fourth down from the Maine 25, holder Grasso took the snap, raced to his right and tossed to Nick McGarry at the nine yard line. Another McGarry reception, this one off his shoetops and between two defenders, put the ball only a foot away from paydirt. A quarterback sneak topped off the scoring and sewed up the contest.

The entire Redman defense deserves as much credit as the Adams-led offense. Despite two key injuries, the UMass defenders allowed the opposition only one look at Redman land all day, that being the occasion of Quackenbush's field goal. Nick Warnock's exceptional punting and Scheralis' handling of the kickoffs also came in for credit on this point.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly
LEAPING IN A CROWD of Maine players, UMass' Jerry Grasso (22) grabs a Tim Adams pass in the first half. Defending are Fran Griffin (11) and Ernie Quackenbush (88).

Adams Performs A Successful Debut

By Pete Pascarelli
Sports Day Editor

He had to start his first college football game, and he had to do it before 14,000 hometown fans. He was following three of New England's greatest quarterbacks. But Tim Adams, UMass' junior quarterback adjusted to his new found position of prominence to the tune of two touchdown passes and one scoring run.

Enough has been written lately about the great burden Adams was carrying going into Saturday's Maine opener. The Wellesley native was after all the heir apparent to those past stars of the yesteryear, John McCormack, Jerry Whelchel and Greg Landry. So, the pressure on Adams was an obvious thing.

He was well aware of the fact. "Of course I was nervous at first," said Adams. "I had never been in this spot before so that I couldn't really judge how I would react."

The first moments of the signal-callers debut were not auspicious. The Redmen did not get their initial first down until 13:26 of the second period. UMass did not move at all the first two times they had the ball in the first period and the third time, Adams fumbled handing off and lost the ball to Maine.

Adams realized his troubles, saying, "I was lost at first out there. But the bench gave me a lot of help and lost most of my jitters after those first plays."

Adams, beginnning in the first moments of the second period began to find the mark with his passing. He hit wingback Jerry Grasso on a drive that finally stalled on the Maine 15. Adams had to find Grasso, due to Maine's concentration on Nick Warnock. "They had double coverage on Nick, so I had to look to the other side," said Adams. He found success there in the forms of Grasso, Alan Becker and Nick McGarry.

The UMass quarterback called his own plays for the bulk of the contest, Redman coach Vic Fusia, said, "We called some of his plays at the beginning, but he was mostly on his own." Fusia added, "We were playing as conservatively as possible, so that Tim wasn't forced to checkoff very much."

Adams won the admiration of two prominent senior members of his offense, Nick Warnock and Bruce Cochrane. Warnock, who did not have one of his better days, said, "He's as good a passer as Greg was, right now, and he'll get better. He throws hard and has the poise to take charge."

Cochrane, who had the frustration of getting caught in the clear and dropping an Adams pass in the end zone one of five passes by Redmen receivers, said of his quarterback, "He is a fine athlete and we have had no difficulty in adjusting to him."

The coaching staff said of Adams passing, which was statistically 15 for 32, that he threw only two bad passes, one when his hand was wet and one when he overthrew Warnock angling for the end zone corner.

So when all the returns were in it seems that Tim Adams has worn the shoes he had to fill comfortably enough. Or as Fusia said, "He passed his first test today and he'll pass quite a few other tests before he is through."

Redman Rantings—Cochrane said of his breakaway, "I had two choices one to wait for a block that was coming, or to turn on the speed. I waited too long to decide and was nailed."... Tom York said, "We were in better shape than they were." ... Come to find out, after much to do about Amherst defeating Maine in a scrimmage, It was Maine's second team that went down to the Lord Jeffs. Doctors said that Noel Schablik sidelined with a foot injury, may be ready for Buffalo, the big center is not as optimistic. . . The punting on both teams was excellent, UMass averaging 39 yards and Maine 38. . . Although the Redmen face a tough battle Friday night in Buffalo, eyebrows must have been raised by the 35-0 trouncing of Hofstra at the hands of Delaware. Rhode Island, who is being touted by many as Conference title timber, was shutout by Temple, 28-0. . . Boston University, who unveiled its new Astro-turf unveiled little else as it was trounced by Colgate, 28-0. . . . Connecticut eased by Vermont 21-0. Sophomore Rick Robustelli played most of the game as the Husky's QB, Vinnie Clements scored twice and Mike Zito once. Buffalo squeaked by Kent State 21-13. . . Next week should be a big test of Yankee Conference strength as Maine meets Boston University, UMass travels to Buffalo, Rhode Island plays Brown, Connecticut will play Yale, New Hampshire entertains Dartmouth and Vermont takes on Wilkes College.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly
PLACE KICKER DELUXE—Fran Griffin (11) of Maine appears to be kicking what actually was a UMass fumble. Maine's Don Loranger (86) sits by.

Intramurals Open This Evening

UMass' Intramural season opens tonight with football action scheduled in all leagues. Tennis competition in the singles division begins Wednesday of this week.

An added feature of tonight's curtain-raiser will be the annual opening ceremonies of the intramural season beginning at 6:30. Among the guests scheduled to attend are President Lederle, Provost Tippo and Professor Richason, Chairman of the Athletic Council.

Field	Time	Teams
1	6:30	Pines vs. Maroons
2	6:30	Oaks vs. Eagles
3	6:30	Maples vs. Elms
4	6:30	Whwl vs. Cleavers
5	6:30	Lobos vs. Adams 16
6	6:30	Handbooks vs. Adams 16
1	7:30	Bugsde I vs. Broncos
2	7:30	Hemlocks vs. Pied Pipers
3	7:30	Redwoods vs. Buffaloes
4	7:30	Smashers vs. Spartans
5	7:30	Ironmen vs. Lions
6	7:30	Bruisers vs. Cools
1	8:30	Bulldogs vs. Senators
2	8:30	Crushers vs. Colt 45's
3	8:30	Terrors vs. Commanches
4	8:30	Cougars vs. Jaguars
5	8:30	Patriots vs. Leopards
6	8:30	Panthers vs. Nags

See More Football and Soccer on Pages 10 and 11

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly
NEARLY A SHUTOUT — Marty Scheralis (72) comes close to blocking Ernie Quackenbush's (88) field goal try. The holder is Dave Wing (10). The three-pointer was Maine's only score of the day.

METAWAMPE:
40 W - 12 L - 4 T -- .769 PCT.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 32 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1968

Daily Collegian Photo by Del Gariepy
FROSH QUEEN — Crowned queen of the soph-frosh picnic held Saturday after the football game was Mary Ann Gerdermann (right). Standing at the left is Betty Pugh, the former queen.

Day of Awareness Plans Endorsed By Social Action Council Board

The Board of Directors of the Martin Luther King, Jr. Social Action Council have voted to endorse and support plans for the Day of Awareness scheduled for this Thursday, Sept. 26. The unanimous action was taken at a meeting late last week.

The meeting was attended by students Deitra Eastmond and Ken Mosakowski, faculty members Isadore Silver and Robert Tucker, Rev. Ron Hardy of the Chaplain's Office, Assoc. Dean of Students Mark Noffsinger, Assistant to Provost Dallas Darland, and Interim Executive Secretary Gilbert Salk.

Salk, speaking of the King Council's action, stated the Board felt that this was an ideal method to begin general campus discussion of some of the major problems in America. "Ultimately," he said, "it makes little difference whether one agrees or disagrees with present policies. In a free, democratic society, all citizens should be anxious to hear and discuss many different points of view. It is an unfortunate fact that in America today dissent is frequently equated with disloyalty or treason. In fact, many dissenters are protesting because they are loyal, and see present policies as harmful to America."

The purpose of this Day of Awareness is to bring out the reasons for feeling these policies are harmful, At present, none of the political candidates are discussing these issues in depth," he said.

Art Cunneen, Chairman of the Committee for Student Awareness, in presenting this program to the King Council, stated that "a Day of Awareness is vital to the University community in order to involve the students and faculty in the major issues of the day."

Several faculty members, as well as professors from other schools have been invited to

(Continued on Page 4)

Amherst Board of Selectmen Issue 'Ban on Outside Use of Water'

By Mark Silverman
Friday Issue Editor

The Amherst Board of Selectmen today issued a "ban on the outside use of water", and asked for citizens' cooperation in limiting consumption of water in response to a "serious water crisis" facing the town.

The water shortage, prompted by a prolonged drought, directly threatens Orchard Hill dorms with loss of adequate water pressure. Amherst Town Manager Allen Torrey explained that, "The water towers which provide hill dorms with water are at an extremely low level. We pump them up at night, but in the mornings normal student use drastically lowers the level." These dorms would be the first affected on campus by the drought.

Mr. Torrey went on to say that, "with no end to the drought in sight, the recommendations of the Board of Selectmen are necessary to safeguard public safety. Our reservoir is down very low, and we are now drawing on our reserves. We are at the point now where we would be hard pressed for sufficient water pressure in the event of a major fire."

The University, according to Torrey, uses 59% of the town's water. For this reason, the town manager explained, "it is necessary that members of the Uni-

(Continued on Page 3)

Nixon Says LBJ Calls Signals For Democrats from the Bench

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon scoffed yesterday at Hubert H. Humphrey's claim to be captain of the Democratic team, saying that President Johnson—"that old boy over there on the bench"—is calling all the signals.

The Republican presidential nominee used football talk to renew his argument that Humphrey is tightly tied to the policies of the current administration.

He told a rally of campaign workers packing a hotel ballroom that the election-day choice is whether the government should proceed with the same signals and the same plays "that we've tried for the past four years, and we haven't won a game."

"I read with great amusement the statements by Vice President Humphrey to the effect that he is now the captain of the team," Nixon said. "He may be the captain of the team, but that old boy over there on the bench is calling all the signals."

Nixon said that when he can he intends to campaign for Republican candidates in states where the GOP stands a chance of gaining control of a congressional delegation.

Janitors Reach Back to Work Agreement; Some Return to Jobs

By Don LeBlanc
Staff Reporter

A back to work agreement was reached today in the week-old janitors strike, however compliance on the part of the striking janitors is doubtful.

One hundred and fifty janitors stood outside as union representatives met with UMass President Lederle and administrators from the business and personnel offices. No agreement as to wages or working conditions was reached, and the administration maintained a "stay tough" attitude toward the strikers "sick leave" excuse.

The majority of janitors outside of the meeting said they would not return to work until definite agreements were reached in regard to wages and working conditions.

A union spokesman, Barbara Fifeld said that the walkout was spreading despite the talks, and that 120 janitors refused to work today.

About 100 custodians met yesterday in the same spot and voted not to return to work until the university agrees not to discipline members of the union who reported "sick" during the past week.

The mass meeting, advertised in advance, also attracted a number of UMass police cruisers, according to union officials, but there was no demonstration. Members of the university security force also are members of Local 1776, under a ruling by the state Labor Relations Commission.

Health Officials Warn Of Possible Flu Epidemic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Health officials say a new strain of Asian flu has increased the possibility of another flu epidemic in this country this winter.

As late as last May, the authorities were saying it looked as if the country would escape major outbreaks of the disease during 1968-69.

But in July, a new strain of Asian flu broke out in Hong Kong, and outbreaks of the same strain have since been confirmed in Formosa and Singapore.

The Public Health Service's Advisory Committee on Immunization now has revised its flu forecast for the coming season, saying the new strain "increases the probability" that flu "will occur extensively" in the country.

The advisory group recommends that "high risk" groups be vaccinated against the disease, which can cause death among those especially susceptible.

The New Northeast--'Old Quad' Takes On New Look

By Viola Osgood
Special to the Daily Collegian

The "Old Traditional Quad" will soon become the most talked about area on campus. Two young area coordinators, who have fresh, young ideas will help bring about a renaissance in the Northeast area.

All sorts of plans to bring life to the Quad, without changing tradition, are being made.

For the residents of the Northeast, the additions of Mike West as coordinator and James Collins, his assistant, are welcome changes to the campus' sleeper.

The Quad is the area where student government and leadership will become a reality. Government of each house is being left up to the discretion of each individual house government. The Head of Residence and the dorm counselors will be left free to counsel and perform the other duties that do not involve governing the house. Student government has been a fallacy for a long time on campus, but now the residents of the Northeast feel that it is time they did something about it. And what better place is there to begin than the "New Northeast"?, they wonder.

Plans being formed for the Northeast include: a student run newspaper, sports activities, dances, opening of the Little Hatch at night, an area calendar, and many other things so long lacking in this area.

The student newspaper will be first and foremost a newspaper. It will contain commentary of student and faculty ideas, gripes and general opinion. However, one can never say what the entire scope of a newspaper will be, but these are a few of the thing that will be covered in "THE NORTHEAST PASSAGE".

Organized sports, in a sense, have already come to the Quad in the form of touch football. Last Sunday, the Crabtree House girls played the guys from Hamlin, and this week there was a tight-to-the finish contest between Crabtree and Thatcher. Each dorm has been asked to form a team and to get an athletic chairman so sports events in the Quad will become an "in" Sunday feature.

The area coordinator is now working to get the Little Hatch in Worcester Commons open at night, and to secure there a study area when the Commons is not being used for meals.

Students of the Northeast Quad would like to set up a program with faculty members from the various departments. The members of the Northeast Faculty Fellow Program will be chosen by the residents of the area according to their interests. Presidents of the various dorms are going to encourage students to set up faculty-student teas so that the dorm members can get an idea of the faculty they'd like to see involved in the Faculty Fellowship program.

The area coordinators have shown a genuine interest in working in close relationship with the students of their area to bring to the Quad a residential college atmosphere while preserving all the traditional beauty of it.

It is an undisputable fact that the Quad is the most beautiful residential area on campus, and no one in the Northeast would stand by and see that changed, but for too long a time, the Quad has been known as the campus "do-nothing area".

Members of the area feel that it is possible to "do-something" and still not change tradition.

For one thing, the Quad will remain the most beautiful area on campus. Students living there will still be able to study at night. The friendly atmosphere, for so long presistent here, will become even more profound.

The "New Northeast" will begin to blossom Friday night at 8 p.m. at a dance, sponsored by the Northeast Area Presidents' Council, on the Quad Green. There will also be a big bonfire and the first edition of the Northeast Passage will be out for public consumption.

Job Corps Women Demonstrate Against Alleged Police Brutality

LEWISTON, Maine (AP)—About 70 members of the Job Corps for Women demonstrated outside the police station yesterday protesting alleged police brutality and their treatment by Maine people.

Most of the group members were Negroes.

"People here treat us like animals," one demonstrator said.

The group marched 13 miles from the Women's Job Corps Center in nearby Poland Spring. The demonstration was touched off by the court cases yesterday of three Job Corps girls charged with disorderly conduct.

The cases were continued to Sept. 30 in Lewiston District Court.

The Corps Center in Poland Spring has an enrollment of 1,040.

Several demonstrators carried signs saying "We want freedom" and this slogan also was chanted.

"If we are so dirty," said one, "why do the white boys come to take us out."

One of the corpswomen said that they were there to seek freedom in Maine. "You do not understand our problems as there are only a few Negroes in Maine," one of them said.

After the demonstration several of the corps-women and three representatives of the Center went to the office of Acting Police Chief Lucien H. Longtin to discuss their complaint.

He told them an investigation into the charge of police brutality would be undertaken soon. He said he would contact State Police Chief Parker Hennessey and ask him to appoint a man to conduct an impartial probe.

Robert G. Lake, Corps center director, said Monday night the three girls attempted on their return to the center after their court appearance to dissuade the protestors from undertaking the march. A few dropped out after this but the rest continued, he said.

Lake told the marchers before they left the center that the Job Corps was not authorizing the march and that those who undertook the hike would be doing so "on their own." But Lake added that he has not yet decided what action will be taken a-

(Continued on Page 3)

Agnew Lashes Back at Democrats, Says 'They Must Be Desperate'

HONOLULU (AP)—Spiro T. Agnew, the Republican vice presidential candidate, said yesterday the Democrats "really must be desperate" to accuse him of using a contemptuous word for Japanese.

Agnew was commenting on a statement yesterday by Rep. Spark M. Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, who charged Agnew with using the term Jap—which Matsunaga said is a contemptuous word for Japanese.

A story in the Washington Post said Agnew, running mate to Richard M. Nixon, visited the newsmen's section of the plane on which he was travelling and noticed a sleeping reporter of Japanese ancestry.

The article quoted Agnew as asking, "what's the matter with the fat Jap?"

Agnew said "the reporter and I happen to be good friends and kid each other a lot about that."

"It really is ridiculous when they start to accuse the son of an immigrant of something like this. They must be desperate. They must be really desperate."

He accused the Johnson administration of giving the country a "hangover" from a four-year "spending binge," causing sharply spiraling inflation. "It's a hangover that can't be cured at the Humphrey family pharmacy."

Soviets Agree to Withdraw Troops in Czechoslovakia

PRAGUE (AP) — The Soviet Union has agreed in principle to withdraw all but 100,000 of the half million troops now occupying this country by Oct. 28, informed Czechoslovak sources said today.

But, the sources said, the agreement hinges on further Czechoslovak concessions, such as tighter press controls, to be discussed at a meeting in Moscow between Soviet and Czechoslovak leaders.

The Prague leadership, including Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik and Slovak party chief Gustav Husak, are preparing to go to Moscow this week.

The bulk of the seven divisions that are to remain are to be stationed on the border with West Germany. However, Soviet troops also are scheduled to take over a military camp in the Mlada Boleslav region, about 60 miles northeast of Prague, on one of the main highways to Poland, the informants said.

Czechoslovak forces living in the camp have been told to be ready to move out by Oct. 15. The sources said the Soviet withdrawal, except for the troops that are staying permanently, is to be completed by Oct. 28, the 50th anniversary of Czechoslovakia's founding.

In return for the troops' withdrawal the Soviets are understood to be demanding the dismissal of a number of Czechoslovaks, including some newspaper editors. Although the Czechoslovak press is now officially censored, it remains critical of the Soviet occupiers.

Czechoslovak sources expect a quick final agreement on the troop question at the Moscow meeting.

Viet Cong Shell Fuel Complex Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy rockets hit an allied fuel complex south of Saigon early this morning while U.S. Marines reported discovery of still another big weapons cache near the central area of the demilitarized zone.

The rocket attack hit Nha Be, seven miles south of the capital, and Vietnamese sources reported six 107mm rockets struck three fuel barges, wounding six civilians.

The newest munitions find was made about 2,000 yards south of the DMZ where Leathernecks are hunting for North Vietnamese base camps. A U.S. spokesman said they found 30,000 more rounds of ammunition, 180 mines and 126 rocket warheads.

All told, the Marines have turned up about 35 tons of enemy war supplies in the last three weeks. A Leatherneck demolition team destroyed Monday's find.

Tuesday's communique on fighting throughout the country indicated its pace has slackened again. Only a few incidents were reported by the American and Vietnamese commands.

In another Viet Cong rocket attack, three civilians were killed and seven others wounded in a 30-round shelling at the Phong Phu subsector headquarters 80 miles from Saigon.

Monday, South Vietnamese troops bore the brunt of the ground fighting from the Mekong Delta to the demilitarized zone, while American infantrymen fought a series of skirmishes near the Cambodian border.

No Pressure Put On Republicans To Support Ticket

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP) —Republican leaders are not insisting that their party's congressional candidates support the national ticket against George Wallace at the risk of hurting their own campaigns.

A delegation of leading Republican members of the House met in Greensboro yesterday with Republican candidates from North Carolina and Kentucky. A source who attended the meeting said later:

"We were told we were not expected to go around badmouthing Wallace under any circumstances."

The delegation included Rep. Gerald Ford of Michigan, House minority leader. Ford later confirmed at a news conference in Winston-Salem that national Republicans don't expect the candidates to support the national candidates if it jeopardizes their campaigns.

"We want all of them to support the national ticket if they can," Ford said, "but if they can't because of local sentiment, we will understand."

F111 Jet Fighter Crashes In Desert

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Another of the controversial F111 fighter-bombers crashed on the desert yesterday. The Air Force said the two men aboard ejected safely.

Nellis Air Force Base said navy pilot Lt. John M. Nash and an Australian flight lieutenant, Neal M. Pollock, were picked up by helicopter and taken to a hospital for examination.

A group of Australians has been testing the plane at Nellis for possible use by that country. The craft that crashed was on a training mission. Cause was not known.

This was the seventh of the Air Force's F111A models to crash. Two of the navy's F111B models also have crashed.

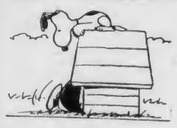
The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

The Brotherhood of

A E Π



cordially invites upperclassmen to a formal

OPEN SMOKER

Tues., Sept. 24 at 8:30

Rides at dorms Call 5-2886

505 East Pleasant St.

Have you seen the PEANUTS SHOWCASE?

by

CARDS CANDY GIFTS

Ambassador Cards at

THE THREE C's

191 No. Pleasant St.

The Sisters of

Gamma Sigma Sigma

Cordially invite you to attend one of our Coffee Hours

Tues., Sept. 24 8-9 p.m.

Thurs., Sept. 26 7-8:30 p.m.

Berkshire Rm., S.U.

Don't be left out in the warm . . . Come on in where the cleaning is breezy!

at

HERCULES CLEANERS

187 North Pleasant St.

Amherst

Univ. of Mass.

SCUBA CLUB

invites any interested student, faculty, staff to ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING.

Curry Hicks Lobby

Wed., Sept. 25

7:00

Coed

Please bring swim suits—coed

In Memoriam

Arthur Patrick Murphy, Jr.

Class of 1970

Killed in Action at Quang Tri

July 20, 1968

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

IBI Investigates Incidents Of ROTC Building Bombings

WASHINGTON (CPS) —The FBI is investigating weekend bombings of ROTC buildings on the University of California's Berkeley campus and at the University of Delaware.

Newark, Delaware police said they found two beer bottles containing a gasoline-like substance in the remains of the two-story building. There was extensive damage to uniforms stored in one room.

A bomb in a black satchel was placed on the doorstep of the Naval ROTC building at Berkeley Friday night. The explosion ripped up the porch, shattered doors and windows and smashed furniture inside.

No one was reported injured in either incident.

ROTC was made voluntary at Delaware in January upon recommendation of a faculty study committee after student protests. Some 28 students were suspended last fall after staging a "walk-on" that disrupted an ROTC drill and encouraged 26 ROTC cadets to walk off the drill fields in protest of compulsory military training. All freshmen men were required to enroll in the training courses. Students at Delaware say there is widespread resentment of the ROTC program on the campus.

Science History Lectures Set At Smith College

NORTHAMPTON — Harold Fruchtbaum will give two lectures on the history of science in McConnell Hall, Smith College tomorrow and Thurs. at 8 p.m. Both lectures are open to the public.

The first lecture is entitled "The History of Science and the Comparative Study of Civilizations" and the second, "Charles Darwin and Edward Blyth: A Problem in Scientific Creativity." Blyth was a 19th century zoologist and a contemporary of Darwin, the noted evolutionist.

Fruchtbaum is currently a Research Fellow at Cambridge University (England). He is on a two year leave of absence from Smith where he is a member of the history department.

Before joining the Smith faculty in 1967, Fruchtbaum taught history of science under the Four-College Cooperative Program. He received his B. C. E. degree from the New York University of Engineering, his S. M. degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from Harvard University. In 1959 he was awarded the Bowdoin Prize at Harvard and he has been a Woodrow Wilson Fellow, A National Science Foundation Fellow and a National Institute of Health Fellow.

Classes Disrupted At Boston English

BOSTON (AP)—Classes were disrupted in a half dozen Boston high schools Monday in the wake of a ruling by English High Headmaster Joseph Malone that black students could wear native style costumes to school.

The ruling, made last Friday when a group picketed the school to protest suspension of two students for wearing such garb, was overruled Monday by Louis Welch, assistant superintendent of high schools.

Outside the school, several hundred white students gathered in a counter protest, lighting up a bonfire with neckties which school regulations require them to wear.

A statement issued by the English High faculty, meanwhile, said it is "unalterably opposed" to allowing establishment of any racially segregated organization with school approval.

In the discussions with the black students last week Malone also agreed to formation of a black student union in the school.

The faculty statement said the School Committee is the elected representative of the people in control of the school, and that the faculty "could not recognize the right of any self-appointed group to dictate policies of the school."

Supreme Court Justice Refuses To Halt Marine's Vietnam Duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice John M. Harlan refused yesterday to halt a Marine's assignment to Vietnam until the Supreme Court decides whether to hear his suit challenging the legality of his call to active duty as a reservist.

Harlan said he was turning down the appeal of Paul V. Winters, Jr. even though two groups of reservists have won reprieves from Justice William O. Douglas until all nine justices consider similar challenges.

He noted that both he and the full court had twice turned down appeals by Winters earlier this year.

Winters still could go to other justices, including Douglas, to try and win delay—as happened in the two cases now pending before the court.

Over the weekend Douglas ordered the Army not to send two groups of reservists to Vietnam, the 448th Postal Unit and the 1018th Service Supply Co.—even though the Army already had delayed their deployment indefinitely. On Sept. 12 he had ordered the Army not to ship out the 1002nd Combat Supply Co.

In both of those cases Douglas granted the stay after the reservists had been turned down separately by Chief Justice Earl Warren. Justices have individual stay powers.

The court is to reconvene on Oct. 7 and it is expected to decide shortly afterward whether to hear arguments on the reservists' appeals. If the cases are accepted it probably would mean further delay in their going to Vietnam. If they are turned down the military services will be free to ship them out promptly.

The appeals are based on a contention that it is unconstitutional for the president to activate reserves for extended duty without a declaration of war or national emergency.

Influenza Epidemic Expected During the Winter in the U.S.

The University Health Services have been advised by the Department of Public Health that an outbreak of Asian influenza is expected to occur in Massachusetts during the coming winter.

In a recent epidemic of Asian influenza in Hong Kong it has been found that this strain of influenza has undergone a major antigenic change. Unfortunately, the vaccine which is in current use gives only partial protection against this new strain of Asian influenza. A new vaccine, which will include the new strain of Asian influenza, is expected to be available in December, 1968.

The U.S. Public Health Service has not recommended immunization against influenza for individuals under the age of 50 who are in good general health. For students who have chronic heart disease, chronic lung disease, chronic kidney disease, or diabetes, immunization against influenza can be obtained at the University Health Services. The Infirmary urges students with the above-mentioned conditions consult with them soon. Because the supply of vaccine is limited, it will not be possible to provide influenza immunization for the general student population who do not have these conditions.

General Motors Boosts Prices

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors Corp. came up yesterday with a smaller price increase on its 1969 cars than those posted last week by Chrysler Corp. but GM insisted there had been no Washington pressure to keep its price boost low.

It marked the third consecutive year that Chrysler had led off the auto industry pricing parade with an increase only to have GM, giant of the industry, announce a smaller boost. In the past two years, Chrysler was forced to roll back its prices to meet its competition.

GM board chairman James M. Roche said the list price of GM's new 1969 line which goes on sale this week had gone up an average of $49 or 1.6 per cent.

Chrysler announced Sept. 16 a list price hike which it said averaged $84 or 2.9 per cent. Ford and American Motors have not announced prices yet.

Within hours after GM's prices were announced, Chrysler's top management was reported in a hastily called session to review GM's figures.

Chrysler then issued a statement saying, "General Motors has made a number of changes in equipment, specifications and model designation. It is therefore impossible to make any meaningful comparison until a more detailed study of comparable offerings of both companies can be made. We have such a study under way."

There were some indications that Chrysler was considering a price rollback to keep its increase in line with that of General Motors.

Roche called a surprise news conference Monday to explain thinking behind GM's decision to raise prices on its new 1969 offerings.

Controller Named At Smith College

NORTHAMPTON — Charles L. Johnson has been named Controller of Smith College.

He will work with the Office of the Treasurer at the college.

He had been supervisor of cost accounting at Pennsylvania State College for the past year. Prior to that post he had been senior auditor at the Corning Glass Works, Corning, N.Y., from 1966 to 1967, and assistant in admissions at Columbia College of Columbia University.

From 1961 to 1965, he served with the U. S. Navy as a chief engineer in Southeast Asia and as a foreign intelligence officer.

A native of Evanston, Ill., Johnson graduated from Columbia College and holds an M.B.A. from the Columbia Graduate School of Business, which he earned in 1966.

He is a member of the National Association of Accountants, and of the Columbia College and Graduate School of Business Alumni Association.

JOB CORP. . . .

(Continued from page 2)

gainst those who took part.

State Police estimated that close to 200 marchers started the hike here from the center but Lake said most of those who started from the Center "returned here without going all the way."

Lake said he did not authorize the march because the protestors did not have all the facts resulting from a Monday morning meeting of Corps officials with Chief Longtin and other Lewiston authorities.

WATER BAN . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

versity community observe the restrictions placed on the town by the board of selectmen. These include watering lawns, washing cars and windows, excessive use of showers, and other use of water which may be termed less than a necessity."

"If the town," Torrey concluded, "could cut down its water consumption by a million gallons a day, the crisis can pass without really inconveniencing the community, but cooperation is imperative."

WANTED—

Beautiful Girls over 21

Apply in person to

BILL NOLAN

at

The English Pub

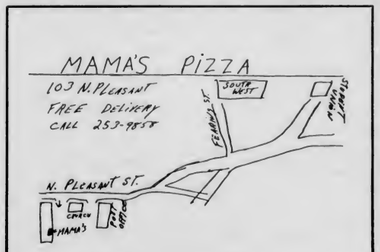
18 East Pleasant St.

Amherst

OPEN SMOKER

Phi Sigma Delta

WINNER OF THE PRESIDENT'S CUP,



PHI SIG'S SECOND HIGHEST NATIONAL AWARD

Come See Why We Got It!

Mon., Sept. 23 at 8:00

at our chapter house

367 North Pleasant St.

SENIORS!

Class of 1969

Executive Council

Applications Available

In R.S.O. Office

DUE SEPT. 30

Mama's Pizza

Come on down

See your Pizza

MADE BEFORE YOUR EYES

FREE DELIVERY

Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

253-9858

103 No. Pleasant St.

Editors To Represent UM At Convention In Oct.

When the world's largest gathering of college student editors convenes in New York City, next month, the University of Massachusetts will be conspicuous by its presence.

Attending the annual joint convention of the Associated Collegiate Press and the National Council of College Publications Advisors will be more than a dozen students representing the Massachusetts Daily Collegian, New England's largest daily student newspaper; the Index, the yearbook whose staff is now preparing its 100th volume; the general interest magazine, Spectrum; and the yet unnamed humor magazine which plans its debut on campus this year.

Also on hand for the three-day convention at the Waldorf Astoria will be their consultants, who are members of the journalistic studies faculty here.

Alvin F. Oickle, part-time lecturer in journalism and technical adviser to the Collegian, will coordinate publicity for the convention. He is managing editor of The Greenfield Recorder.

Dr. Dario Politella, associate professor of journalistic studies and consultant to the editors of all the campus publications, will be active during the convention in his capacities as president of the National Council of College Publications Advisers and as coordinator of its national Commission on the Freedoms and Responsibilities of the College Student Press in America. In addition, he will lecture on "Student Power and the Student Press" at the Friday afternoon session of the 1,500 delegates.

Dartmouth Pres. Plans Retirement

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — John Sloan Dickey, who became president of Dartmouth College in 1945 after a distinguished career in law and with the U.S. State Department, announced Monday that he plans to retire during the 1969-70 school year.

Dickey, 60, served as a special assistant to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, as chief of the department's division of World Trade Intelligence and was the first director of the department's Office of Public Affairs.

Dickey, the college's 12th president, said he informed trustees of his plans about two years ago and started organizational arrangements in the interest of an orderly transition.

He made the announcement at the conclusion of his traditional convocation address opening the school year.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Marine Chains Self To Dramatize Denial Of Human Rights, Freedoms

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A Fairfield, Conn., Marine who chained himself together with six other persons in the Harvard Divinity School Chapel said Monday he did so to dramatize "the way a person's rights and freedoms are denied in the military."

Paul Olimpieri, 21, who Sunday chained himself to six others in the chapel in Cambridge, Mass., said in a telephone interview at the chapel he wants "people to realize what's going on in the war and in the military."

"I believe the war is wrong and I believe the way a person is treated in the military is wrong since a person cannot express his beliefs," Olimpieri said.

A spokesman from the Quonset Point, R.I., Naval Air Station confirmed Monday the Marine was absent without leave from his base since Aug. 30.

Olimpieri said he had received two Purple Hearts after a year of service in Vietnam.

"The people of Vietnam do not want us there, and they do not give us their full support. They just want to live in peace. They are sick of fighting," he said.

"If they want to persecute someone for saying what he believes, then let them," he said of his possible punishment for his absence from his base.

"This is just a good example of what we are fighting for over there. Our military structure is run just as bad because a person can't say what he believes," he added.

Olimpieri chained himself to persons who said they were members of the New England Committee of Religious Concern for Peace and the New England Resistance, an antidraft organization.

Olimpieri said he would do the same thing "a hundred times over" if he had the choice again.

Bacteria Develops New Resistance To Penicillin Drug

SEATTLE (AP) — A potentially deadly bacteria which frightened the medical world in the 1950's when it became resistant to penicillin may be changing its stripes again, the medical director of the University of Washington Hospital said today.

Dr. Roger J. Bulger, an assistant dean and assistant professor of medicine at the university's medical school, said the infamous staphylococcus aureus — "staph" — appears to be producing new lines of resistant offspring.

He told the Washington State Medical Association the new strains of staph, like those which caused outbreaks of hospital staph infections 15 years ago, are said by some researchers to be uncommonly deadly and difficult to kill.

Methicillin, a type of penicillin developed in time to wipe out the penicillin-resistant bacteria in the earlier outbreak, has been reported ineffective against staph strains found in North Carolina, Massachusetts, South Carolina, Texas and New York, he said.

Bulger said there have been four cases since 1965 in Washington State and Alaska involving methicillin-resistant staph. Two patients died of the bacterial infection, he said.

Several new antibiotics, have been effective against methicillin-resistant staph bacteria, he said.

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR XEROX COPIES

We certainly hope you aren't paying 10 cents a copy. More likely you're paying 5 cents. That's still too high! GNOMON COPY SERVICE cuts this price in half and more! Our rates are 5 cents for the first copy of an original, and for multiple copies of the same original, even lower: 3 cents each for the second thru tenth copies and 2 cents each from the eleventh on.
Service while you wait, or overnight. Forty copies a minute.

gnomon copy service
FREE Collating
103 North Pleasant St.
Store No. 9
Amherst, Massachusetts
Phone 253-7393
FAST Service
XEROX COPIES AT:
5¢ — 3¢ — 2¢

Milton Native Resigns Government Post In Vietnam, Returns Home

MILTON, Mass. (AP — Corruption and broken promises by the South Vietnam government, with "no changes coming," Dennis A. Smith said, are the reasons he resigned his government post in South Vietnam and returned to his home in Milton.

Smith, 29, who was chief of the social welfare program and refugee advisor to the mayor of Saigon, resigned last week in protest he said, against the South Vietnamese refugee program and U.S. indifference to the refugee problem.

"I spent as much time there as I could in good conscience," Smith said. "I was thinking about quitting for a month and a half, after I became aware of the graft in the government."

Smith said officials at Camp Petrus Ky., in Saigon the largest refugee camp in Vietnam with about 14,000 inhabitants, are pocketing funds intended for the refugees.

"Just downright graft," Smith said. "The money is going into officials' pockets."

Smith said each refugee family is entitled to 10 bags of cement, 10 sheets of aluminum roofing and about $85 to get re-established.

"Many people received either a small portion or none of their allotment," Smith said, "and the ones I saw had been there since the Tet attacks in January."

Smith said the administrator of the Social Welfare Department admitted there was corruption and said he would investigate.

"I checked with him once or twice a week for about six weeks," Smith said. "It resulted in nothing, zero."

He said he talked to U.S. officials about the situation, but was told it was a problem for the Vietnamese to solve.

Smith said he will go to Washington Wednesday to discuss his resignation with Agency of International Development officials.

Smith, who spent 16½ months in South Vietnam, also was deputy chief of refugee operations and refugee regional director and action officer for Corps areas II and III.

AWARENESS DAY . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

speak. Among other topics, speakers are expected to discuss the racial situation, the poverty problem, the war against Vietnam, the civil war in Biafra, campus riots, and urban unrest.

The Day of Awareness will begin at 1:00 p.m. with rallies in each of the residence areas. The rallies will include jug band music or guerrilla theatre. Each rally will culminate in a march leading from the residence area across campus to the campus pond. The program of speakers is expected to begin at about 2:00 p.m.

All students, faculty, and administrators are being urged to attend: Democrat, Republican, or Independent; Conservative, Moderate, Liberal, or Radical. "Students owe it to themselves to be informed about all points of view on all the major issues," Salk concluded.

NOTICES

ANGEL FLIGHT
There will be an Angel Flight meeting tonight at 7:00 p.m. at Dickinson Hall. A reception for the officers and their wives will follow at Memorial Hall.
FORESTRY MEETING CLUB
The first meeting of the year will be held in: Room 203, Holdsworth Natural Resources Center, today. Applications for membership will be accepted, and plans for the coming events of the semester will be discussed. After the meeting, slides will be shown. All interested are invited to attend.
FIRE DEPT.
Meeting for all interested in membership, 7:00 p.m. in Plymouth Room.
EDUCATION CLUB
"A Night with the King and His Court." Come meet Dean Allen and the new faculty in the Colonial Lounge in the S.U. on Wed. at 8:00 p.m. Membership forms available.
NAIADS
The Naiads will hold optional practices for all those interested in trying out, today, Wed., and Thurs. at 6:30 p.m. in the Wope pool. Practices will also be held on Sept. 30.
LOST AND FOUND
Brown wallet lost between S.U. and Whitmore. Important papers. If found call Lee at 546-9524 or 253-9157. $5.00 reward.
Black and white kitten, children's pet, lost Sat. nite on E. Pleasant St. Call 253-7295.
Small gold religious charm has been found near the North Dining Commons. Call Carolyn at 215 Leach.
Found, pair of glasses with dark frames in two tone brown case. Call at S.U. Lobby.

Found, On Sept. 10 or 11 I picked up by mistake two packages from the boys who gave me a ride from Zayres in a white VW. The packages contained one laundry bag, one picture frame, and some picture hangers. Please contact Mimi Kuryla at 119 Patterson or call 6-9584.

Growth of Slums Blamed on Gov't

(AP) — A government official Monday blamed government for what he called tax laws that encourage the development of slums. Dr. Richard E. Slitor, now a Treasury Department official, said both federal and local laws encourage landlords to overcrowd buildings, allow them to deteriorate, claim depreciation write-offs and then sell out after "skimming off the cream."

Slitor, who prepared his study while on leave from the government, suggested that tax credits for investment in low-income housing be ended and replaced by direct government spending.

UMass Aggie Engineer Wins Award

UMass Prof. Robert G. Light has been awarded an Educational Aids Blue Ribbon Award at the 61st annual meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) held at Utah State University in Logan. The ASAE is the professional and educational organization of engineers in agriculture.

Each year the ASAE presents the award in recognition of "outstanding effort and achievement in the development of noteworthy educational aids." Prof. Light's winning entry was "Covered Free Stall Loose Housing System for Dairy Cattle."

Prof. Light joined the UMass staff as an assistant professor of agricultural engineering in 1962. Now an associate professor, he teaches primarily extension courses in the department.

Who's Who On Campus

Nominations are now being accepted to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. The selections are being based on four major criteria: student scholarship; participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities; citizenship; and service to the University. Nominations will be accepted from any individual or group and should include a description of the nominee's qualifications. Nominations must be received no later than Monday, Sept. 30.

Please send all nominations to Chairman, 'Who's Who Committee," R.S.O. #801, Student Union.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Q. T. V.
invites
all upperclassmen
to a
FORMAL SMOKER
Monday, Sept. 23
7:00 - 9:00

GAMMA
SIGMA SIGMA
COFFEE HOURS
Tuesday, Sept. 24 8-9 p.m.
Thurs., Sept. 26 7-8:30 p.m.
Berkshire-Bristol Room
Student Union

● OPEN HOUSE,
● SUPPORT FOR BILL BAIRD'S BIRTH CONTROL MOVEMENT,
● $41,000 FOR MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR. SOCIAL ACTION COUNCIL
● YAHOO - You'll see it this semester!
● ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES REPORT,
"21" ROOM IN CAMPUS CENTER
● GRADUATE DRAFT DEFERMENTS,
● SENIOR WEEK BUDGET (killed),

We spend $300,000 directly and control another quarter million!

AND NOW WE ARE WRITING A NEW STUDENT GOVERNMENT CONSTITUTION.

All of these issues affect YOU and YOU can affect their outcome.

Run for the Student Senate:

Pick up nomination papers in Student Union Lobby.
Completed papers are due Friday, September 27 by 5:30 p.m. at the Senate table in the S.U. Lobby.

Vote in the Senate Elections:

October 3 from 6-9 P.M. in Residence Halls.
Commuters, Fraternities, Sororities vote from 9-5:30 P.M.
in the Student Union Lobby.

STUDENT POWER!

Student Senate Public Relations Committee

Senate And The ROTC

The Student Senate will consider, on Wednesday night, the position of ROTC courses and the very existence of this organization on this campus. Previously, in the spring, the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Senate voted to abolish credit for the upper level ROTC courses and this now comes before the entire Senate. A second bill goes even further and asks for the abolishment of all parts of the program.

The question of ROTC is being discussed on college campuses on every level—from its worth as a form of academic study to its relationship to the peace movement and the war in Vietnam. Obviously there is a slight difference between ROTC courses and entomology in the form of $50 paid by the Federal government to students enrolled in the upper level ROTC courses.

This is currently a major problem for universities across the nation, not just UMass. Boston University already has taken action on the question and decided to eliminate academic credit for ROTC.

Whether you support or oppose academic credit for its courses, are in favor of continuing or discontinuing the ROTC program at UMass, make it a point to take an active part in this most vital decision.

The Student Senate meeting begins at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of the Student Union. Participate now and you won't have to complain later.

Reflections

Equality For All

It was a low-keyed meeting. There were no outbursts in anger and frustration; this was in contrast to the atmosphere some ten hours before. At 3 A.M. Sunday, there had been a mood of anger and disgust; all were frustrated at not knowing what had really happened.

Now it was early Sunday afternoon, and with those directly and indirectly involved present, all hoped that any confusion might be cleared. A calm, logical discussion began; there had been a scuffle between two University students. On any given football weekend, this is normal. However, this particular incident took on added implications: one of the students was black, the other, white. Except for one University Police Official, everyone here seemed to identify with the real problem. As might be expected in such circumstances, a major concern was the wild rumors and subsequent action which might occur. This fear became partial reality; rumors circulated, and two innocent people were injured.

After all had related their stories, everyone agreed concerning conclusions. The initial scuffle was between individuals; there were no racial implications. It was purely coincidental that those involved were different in color.

The following incidents, however, in which two innocent people were hurt, took on a slightly different hue. Both injuries were the result of overreactions of the offenders. Immediately, onlookers assumed racial connotations, creating fuel for rumor fires.

No longer will Massachusetts' students sit peacefully and read accounts of integration efforts solely at other universities. Here at UMass, breaking the barrier is no longer a newspaper experience, but a fact of University living. That a scuffle took on unnecessary racial connotations, should be a sign that the road to full acceptance and integration, here, as everywhere, will be a long, hard one full of tension and misunderstanding. It is a road that will become bumpier should we allow emotions and personal prejudice to overshadow our intellect and efforts towards progressive action.

In the past, UMass students have united in common purpose to oppose administrative, bureaucratic, and legislative pressures (Yahoo, open house, academic reform). This current problem, new to the Amherst campus, will test whether students here can unite in an effort to solve an internal problem; one that does not unite students against an outside force, but is within the student body itself.

Will this separate more widely the division between whites and an increasing population of blacks on campus, or will it cause efforts to find peaceful solutions? Undoubtedly, in the coming years, there will be hatred and disgust, among black and white. This hatred will create polarity; white red-necks and black militants will be at opposite extremes. Caught in the middle will be those hopeful of non-violent answers and actions. The big question will be how many of us will assume the responsibility to see that red-necks and militants gain little support with all their emotional shouts and quiet ignorance; then we might concern ourselves with the difficult task of finding equality for all.

Rick Elias
Editorial Staff

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
Sports Editor ..... Mike Curran

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor, Pat Flanagan; Staff, Rose Miller; Editorial, Day Editor, Karen Aude.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Chicago, You Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet"

INSIDE REPORT:

Bobby's Last Book

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

NEW YORK — A manuscript by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy on the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, its very existence kept secret from the public until this week, threw the world of publishing into an uproar and may soon have a similar impact on Washington.

Confidential negotiations for posthumous publication of the manuscript (only 90 pages long) finally concluded on Thursday with an amazing $1,000,000 agreed by McCall's Magazine to be paid for magazine and book rights. When published, Kennedy's last book will disclose how much the missile crisis was handled personally by the Kennedy brothers and how little Dean Rusk, as Secretary of State, had to do with it.

The manuscript's origin was a request last year from the New York Times Magazine for Kennedy to write an account of the missile crisis to commemorate its fifth anniversary. Kennedy agreed, but his manuscript soon exceeded magazine length. At the time of his death, Kennedy had completed the narrative in 90 pages but was still polishing the prose.

After the assassination, the Kennedy family turned the manuscript over to Theodore Sorensen, who edited it and proceeded to offer publication rights at prices that have astounded the publishing world.

Sorensen sold the serial rights to McCall's, with McCall's also having book publication rights. The manuscript will include a preface by former British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan (whose publishing firm has bought British book rights) and an introduction by former Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

With seven major New York publishing houses in on the bidding, Sorensen had wanted an eye-popping $350,000 for the book alone. The highest offer was around $300,000 from Doubleday.

Those who have seen the manuscript say it is surely Robert Kennedy's own work with few editorial intrusions by Sorensen. Moreover, it reveals as never before the intimate role played in the missile crisis by Attorney General Kennedy, including details of his conferences with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Management of the crisis is shown in the hands of the Kennedy brothers with Rusk relegated to a minor role. There is one poignant scene where John and Robert Kennedy, at the peak of the crisis, reminisce over how they had stood together previously in times of personal stress, particularly when their older brother, Joe, Jr., died.

A footnote: Publishers were irked that Sorensen's written proposal for publication specified that a "legal" fee to him of $10,000 plus expenses would be shared by the book and magazine publishers. Normally, such fees are taken out of the purchase price of the manuscript, but Sorensen did not want to shortchange the Kennedy Library.

Rocky in the Pentagon?

When they met here recently, Richard M. Nixon murmured to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller in parting: "I'll be seeing you on Jan. 21." That would be the day after the inauguration, a sign that Nixon has plans for his old intraparty rival in his Administration.

Contrary to some published reports that Nixon would fear Rockefeller in Washington as an independent power, Rockefeller is now the top prospect for Secretary of Defense. For Secretary of State (the job Rockefeller would much prefer), however, Nixon wants a lesser known, more submissive figure.

A footnote: Friends of Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts are pushing him to be Nixon's Attorney General. The appointment of a Negro to this critical position would produce screams of outrage from Nixon's Southern supporters.

Tight Democratic Money

Well-heeled New Yorkers who contributed so generously to Sen. Eugene McCarthy's Presidential campaign have tended to close their wallets for local anti-war candidates. That's what Gov. Harold Hughes of Iowa found in a recent unpublicized fund-raising expedition to New York.

Hughes, who has an excellent shot at winning a Republican seat in the U.S. Senate, met with liberal fatcats at Manhattan's St. Regis Hotel in hopes of raising at least $30,000. As it turned out, he was lucky to end up with pledges of $19,000.

(c) 1968 Publishers-Hall Syndicate

Letters to the editor must be typewritten at 60 spaces and double-spaced. All letters must be signed by hand. Letters not signed in this manner and not typewritten will not be printed. Letters must not exceed 40 lines and are subject to editing and condensing. Names will not be withheld and pseudonyms will not be used.

COLUMBIA ANALYSIS:

Stuck In Expansion Policies

NEW YORK (CPS) - - After a sharp re-evaluation of their demands and goals, Columbia University radicals have decided that their protest must be of the fundamental wrongs they see at the university and their implications for the larger surrounding society.

In strategy sessions last Thursday following a Wednesday shutdown of registration and illegal use of a building, the students agreed that their emphasis on amnesty for 30 suspended students as a primary demand had drawn attention from "the real issues" during this fall's opening of the university. They said the pressure they felt to "prove to the mass media that the Columbia revolution wasn't dead, that summer couldn't kill it" had made them move too hastily without analyzing their actions.

The university's reaction to their marches and sit-ins Wednesday over the suspended students had also, in the words of one, "made us look mindless and uncoordinated, like kids who were looking for an excuse to riot." Officials' tactics so far this week have been to leave the protesters pretty much alone. When registration was blocked, they simply closed up shop. Later they "punished" the demonstrators by revoking the campus privileges of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), but later when the students broke into the Social Sciences Building to hold a meeting there anyway, nothing was done to stop them.

The administration has apparently learned more from experience about how to deal with protests than the students have about planning them. By applying tactics used by other college administrators and ignored by many police forces - - "if rioters are not provoked, there's a good chance serious trouble will be averted" - - the Columbia officials made the students look a good deal worse than they did during April's massive strike.

Now, however, the students say they will concentrate not on the narrow issue of student amnesty, but on the more widespread one of the university's involvement with corporate interests and its control over much of the city surrounding its campus.

Their specific target now is Columbia's urban renewal projects, the latest of which may make $180 million for the firm of two Columbia trustees.

The "Piers Project," as the renewal scheme is called, is a plan to tear down a 40-block area north of the Columbia campus, now occupied by apartment buildings whose tenants are more than 10,000 students, old people and Puerto Ricans, and to construct in their place a complex of light manufacturing, research buildings for government projects, recreation facilities, and middle-income housing for 3000 persons.

The project is sponsored by the Morningside Renewal Council, a coalition of city institutions (a majority of them school connected with Columbia) interested in "up-grading the environment of their neighborhood. The MRC is generally acknowledged to be controlled by Columbia; it recently awarded the Piers Project contract, valued at between $160 and $180 million, to Uris Building Corporation. Two University trustees, Percy Uris and Adrian Massie, control that corporation.

That such blatant examples of university control by New York financial interests are still coming to light, after faculty deplored such university activities and many officials said Columbia was changing its policies, illustrates the students' point.

The university seems at this point to be caught up in a web of involvement from which the best of intentions are powerless to extricate it. Andrew Cordier may want to drop trespass charges against 400 students, but City District Attorney Frank Hogan (also a Columbia trustee) will not drop them.

The university may want to drop its role as slumlord of Morningside Heights, but as long as the members of its board of trustees stand to benefit from that role, as long as almost every major financial interest in New York is represented on the board it may be impossible.

Rescuing Columbia from its entanglements in ghetto real estate and with business and government will require more sweeping structural changes than the placing of students on faculty committees and letting professors have an Academic Senate. It will require replacement of many of the men who now rule Columbia, and a change in philosophy on the entire Board.

Such a change is what the students say they want to fight for. To accomplish it, they will try to appeal to members of the community around Columbia (who they think are being victimized by the university's practices but are afraid to fight). They also plan to work to attract broader-based student support within the university, by holding dorm seminars and other meetings to talk about what the university is, what it does and its relationship with the money and power of New York.

Realizing that old tactics may not fit every situation, they want now to fit the means to their message.

Unrest In Europe -- Part I

Paris In August

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the first in a series of articles on European students by Brian Braun, Executive Editor of the University of Illinois Illini, who visited England, Ireland, Italy, Israel, Greece, France and Spain during the summer and spoke with hundreds of students, faculty members and administrators there. The articles are reprinted from the Illini by special permission of the author.)

By Brian Braun
College Press Service

Four students met on a Paris corner three blocks from the Sorbonne late in August to talk about the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia. The huddle grew to 20 within minutes, and only an hour later nearly 100 persons surrounding the St. Michel fountain were hashing over the developments of the preceding 24 hours and wondering what could be done in support of Czech freedom.

Announcements were chalked on sidewalks and walls as the students decided to meet for a rally at the corner of St. Germain and St. Michel that evening.

Four blocks after the demonstrators had decided to march to the Russian Embassy, over 30 of the demonstrators found themselves staring out through the bars of Paris police cans.

The march had few repercussions outside the Paris student community, yet its construction and development make it a significant incident. Like its big sisters, the Berkeley 1964 riot and the May—June Paris student revolt, the Czech demonstration in Paris began with an overriding issue that had mass appeal.

Like Paris and Berkeley, the demonstration was not organized in a back room by outside agitators who in turn incited the students, but instead began with the students' unrest which later was magnified through the organization of experienced student and non-student leaders.

The discussion at the fountain provided an opportunity for the organizers, and they quickly became the planners and the protagonists. Like nearly every other student demonstration, the August Paris march was neither unplanned nor spontaneous. After the catalyst appeared and the rally was called, demonstration leaders met in a Left Bank coffee house to determine the proper course of action—they knew their decision could be forced later by a series of inciting speeches at the mass meeting.

Despite the presence of literally hundreds of Americans and other foreign students in the St. Michel area (many of whom had been involved in American protests of various kinds), the demonstrators were nearly all French.

(to be continued)

HUAC Member Calls For SDS Investigation

WASHINGTON (CPS) — If Representative Albert Watson had his druthers, the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) would be one of the groups on the government's Subversive Organizations blacklist.

The South Carolina Republican last week called on the floor of the House of Representatives for a "full-scale investigation" by the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HUAC) of the "most dangerous New left group operating in the country today."

Watson said SDS plans to overthrow the U.S. government, and cited as examples of their tactics the recent Chicago demonstrations and the disruption of Columbia University last spring.

He said Federal agents who attended the SDS National Convention at Michigan State University in June heard sessions which discussed the "fine points of firing Molotov cocktails from shotguns" and other tactics of guerrilla warfare.

Watson also charged that SDS was heavily infiltrated by members of the Communist Party, who see the campus groups as a good base from which to launch their own activities.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

ATTENTION NEW STAFFERS

of the

DAILY COLLEGIAN

INSTRUCTIONAL DISCUSSION SESSIONS WILL BE HELD

BEGINNING TONIGHT

-- Tuesday, Sept. 24, 6:30-7:30 p.m., Ballroom, S.U.

-- Wednesday, Sept. 25, 6:30-7:30 p.m., Norfolk Room, S.U.

-- Thursday, Sept. 26, 8:30-9:30, Norfolk Room, S.U.

All New Staffers Must Attend at Least One of These Sessions.

24 SEPT 24

'Triple Jeopardy' to Students Feared In Compromise Anti-Riot Provision

WASHINGTON (CPS) —Confusion shrouds the intent of the compromise anti-riot provision in the 1968 Higher Education bill that could deny federal financial aid to campus demonstrators, but opposition is already mounting because of the threat to academic freedom and the possibility of subjecting students to "triple jeopardy."

Officials of education groups who had opposed earlier amendments that would have automatically denied assistance are uncertain what the preliminary version means.

But they are quick to voice opposition to the general principle of federal interference in a university's internal affairs.

Some feel that withholding of loans and grants is unfair punishment, a third threat to a demonstrator who already could face possible court action and school discipline.

John F. Morse, director of the Commission on Federal Relations of the American Council on Education, repeated an earlier ACE statement to this effect.

"Efforts by Congress, however understandable in the temper of the times, to establish still a third and additional system of sanctions and penalties can only serve to confuse the orderly application of time-tested procedures," the statement said.

Rep. William F. Ryan (D.-N.Y.), who tried unsuccessfully to kill anti-riot amendments this summer, said he is still opposed to allowing a school to "punish students by withholding financial assistance." He also said he doesn't feel "Congress should deal in this manner with people with whom it disagrees."

The denial of all scholarship funds seems unfair to many who have noted that while students suspended from school rarely are barred for longer than one year, those denied federal funds are not eligible to re-apply for three years.

Officers of the National Student Association are planning possible legal tests and other strategy should the provision be adopted.

An official of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) called such provisions "unfortunate" and noted the "added complexity" in administering federal assistance.

Herman Orentlicher, AAUP's staff counsel, also said the provision could "tie a school's hands" in dealing with students. "A university wanting to take some action might not take any against protests because the penalty is too severe since the law seems to insist on withdrawing aid from students judged to violate its standards," he said.

Faculty Recital To Be Held Wed. At Bowker Aud.

A University of Massachusetts faculty recital featuring the oboe will be held Wednesday, Sept. 25, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The program is open to the public without charge.

Assistant professor of music Charles Lehrer will perform two 18th century works and two contemporary pieces for the oboe. Scheduled for the performance are Couperin's seven-movement Troisieme Concert Royal, Telemann's Sonata in G minor, Francis Poulenc's Sonata (1962) and Arnold Cooke's Sonata (1957).

Prof. Lehrer joined the staff at the University this fall after completing his Ph.D. requirements at the University of Michigan.

He will be accompanied by Miriam Whaples at the piano. Miss Whaples, who earned her Ph.D. at Indiana University joined the UMass music department staff in 1966.

R.R. Signalmen Threat in Strike

CHICAGO (AP) - Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen have voted to authorize a strike which a union spokesman said could tie up all major railroads in the nation.

C.J. Chamberlain, international union president, said today that more than 90 per cent of the ballots were in favor of authorizing a strike.

He said a federal mediator will enter the negotiations Wednesday and that if after a reasonable time no progress is made a strike date then would be set.

The 13,000-member union is seeking a 25 per cent wage increase over three years, retroactive to July 1. Chamberlain said the carriers have offered wage hikes amounting to about 9 per cent over 18 months.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Mass Disruption Labeled 'Disgraceful, . . . Irreverent.'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. ((AP)) — The Roman Catholic archbishop of Milwaukee labeled the disruption of Sunday services at St. John's Cathedral by antiwar demonstrators as "disgraceful, unwarranted and irreverent."

Archbishop William E. Cousins said Monday the members of the group that sought to take over the pulpit "achieved their purpose" which he said was to "create a disturbance for the sake of publicity."

But, the archbishop added, "they will . . . face the justifiable criticism of countless religious people who cannot recognize the profanation of a church as legitimate protest."

Eight persons were arrested by police as demonstrators marched to the sanctuary. During the ensuing melee with ushers, worshippers and priests, the 73-year-old cathedral rector, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. James E. Kelly was pushed to the floor. He was not injured.

Among those arrested was the Rev. Nicholas Riddell, 38, identified by the Rev. Guy Lofy, superior of the Carmelite Monastery at St. Florian's Church in Milwaukee, as a priest of that order. Police said Riddell was attempting to get to the pulpit.

The demonstrators said they had asked permission to read a statement from the pulpit urging the church to "actively resist war and racism."

Police Sgt. Michael Bavle said he had to put handcuffs on Father Riddell "to prevent him from committing battery" on the other officers.

Religion and Racism To Be Discussed Thurs.

On Thursday, Sept. 26, Roger Dewey will be speaking to the University community on "Christianity and Racism." Sponsored by the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, the lecture will be held in S.B.A. 120 at 7:30 p.m.

A 1963 graduate of Cornell who has worked for architectural firms in New York, Chicago, and New Orleans, Dewey is now a student of city planning at Harvard and is working toward his masters degree.

At present the speaker is an associate of a Metropolitan Boston program involving 150 evangelical churches which are working with Negroes in the areas of welfare and politics.

One branch of this is a pilot program in tutoring based on the systems analysis approach. The program is largely controlled and supported by the Black Community.

CANDIDATES NIGHT
All Prospective Student Senate Candidates
Should attend an orientation meeting in the Student Union Council Chambers Thursday, Sept. 26, from 7-9 p.m.
Senators, Senate Officers and Committee Chairmen will be present to answer any questions.
CANDIDATES SHOULD ATTEND
Student Senate Public Relations Committee

"Take your place in the leadership of the campus community"
Area East
Judiciary Selections
October 1
7:00 p.m., Hampden Room, Student Union

THE BROTHERS OF
LAMBDA CHI ALPHA
Cordially invite all upperclassmen to an
INFORMAL SMOKER
Wednesday, Sept. 25th, 1968
7:30 - 9:30 P.M.
374 N. Pleasant St.

The Brothers of
DELTA CHI
Cordially invite all upperclassmen to a formal
OPEN SMOKER
Tonight at 9 P.M.
For Rides. Call 549-0415.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say, THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

Blastina Boyd, alias "peg leg," has recently had her cast removed. Let's hear it for Blastina! 9/26

LOST

Lost or stolen in vicinity of 296 N. Pleasant St. Sept. 17, one black and white male kitten. Call 546-8193 or 253-5637. $5.00 reward. 9/25

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1956 Plymouth. Call 256-6976 9/24

1962 Chev wagon; 6 cyl. standard, new tires, new brakes, very clean $475. Call 1-532-1396 between 8 and 9 p.m. Located at 48 Amherst Rd., So. Hadley. 9/27

1962 MGA Mark II Roadster. The last MGA built. New top, batteries, two new tires, valve job. Tonneau and two extra tires and wheels, radio. Runs very well. 27 MPG. Call Chuck at 584-9361. 9/30

Buick convertible, 1963 LeSabre, looks and runs like new, excellent tires, automatic transmission, power brakes, power steering, radio and heater, low mileage. Bargain at $795, call 584-1497.

STEADY PASSENGERS WANTED

Ride to Worcester Saturday morning after 11:00 a.m. Return Monday morning. Call Zelda Bilsey (791-7251) in Worcester or leave a note in 1805 Calvin Coolidge Tower. 9/24

HELP WANTED

Wanted by Record Club of America, Campus Representative. To earn over $100. Write for information to: Mr. Ed Benooy, College Bureau Manager, Record Club of America, Club Headquarters, York, Pennsylvania 17401 9/244

FOR SALE

Vespa 125 cc. motor scooter for sale. Excellent running condition. Two helmets included. Must sell — going in service. Only $99. Contact Bill, 549-0169, 33 Phillips St. 9/26

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware, Tu-Fri 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412. 9/26

1965 Honda 150 in perfect cond. brand new engine, clutch, pipes, brakes carrier rack & rebuilt trans. Bills to show for all work & parts, dark blue, cheap. 253-9326. 9/24

New York Headmaster To Be At Smith Wed.

The founder and headmaster of what has been termed as "New York's only realistically integrated private elementary school" will speak at Smith College Wednesday.

Augustus Trowbridge, of the Manhattan Country School, will talk about "The Role of the Independent School in a Racist Society: Making Prejudice Impossible."

The lecture, which is sponsored by the Student Lecture Committee, will take place in Sage Hall at 8 p.m. It is open to the public.

The Manhattan Country School is located in an old Baroque mansion on 96th Street at the dividing line between Harlem and fashionable uptown New York. Thirty per cent of the student body are Negro or Puerto Rican. LIFE magazine, in its June 14, 1968 issue, described it as "New York's only realistically integrated private elementary school."

Manhattan Country, founded by Trowbridge in 1966 with 66 pupils, last year had an enrollment of 102 children. Twenty per cent were on full scholarship and 30 percent on partial scholarship. The other 50 percent paid the high tuition necessary to keep the school running. The students came from both lower- and upper-income families.

Trowbridge insists on a truly integrated student body at Manhattan Country. This is in sharp contrast to the three per cent ratio of Negro and Puerto Rican students currently enrolled in New York private schools.

The young headmaster says, "I don't know what proportions of black to white make integration, but I do know it can't involve having token representatives. Nothing is more detrimental than putting a child into a situation as a token, because as a token he is not free to be himself . . . Our goal is to be a model for urban education for elementary schools."

To give their students the experience of country living Manhattan Country operates a 500-acre farm in Roxbury, N.Y. The children are sent there on weeklong field trips.

To maintain their unique racial distribution, an extensive scholarship program is essential. Too new to have alumni, the school faces a constant fund-raising crisis.

Trowbridge will illustrate his lecture with a short film on Manhattan Country School which was shown on the Today television program.

NASA Will Meet To Plan Future Apollo Flights

WASHINGTON ((AP)) — Space agency officials will meet in early November to decide whether to send three American Astronauts around the moon the next month if the first Apollo orbital flight is a success, a spokesman said Monday.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration plans to make the first manned Apollo flight - designated Apollo 7 - on Oct. 11 with three astronauts aboard.

William C. Schneider, mission director for the Apollo 7 flight, told a news conference he would like to see the circumlunar flight made in December if all considerations are favorable.

'Remembering' To Be Examined By Psychologists

Why is it that you remember some things you read in books and forget others?

Two Smith College psychologists working on a new, two-year, $19,900 National Science Foundation grant here, Dr. Barbara Stewart Musgrave, and Research Associate Dr. Jean Carl Cohen will try to find the answer.

They will be seeking to find out what makes some reading materials more "easy" or "difficult" to read. They will write prose passages which will appear to have similar meaning but which will differ in carefully controlled ways. Each passage will distinguish several different instances of the same class of things.

The passages will not be unusual in language or style, but of the sort that can be found in an ordinary textbook. Although all the passages on any topic will have the same words and the same amount of information, the way in which the words are combined will cause the uncertainty of meaning.

Both recall and matching tests will be used to determine the amount of learning by the students who will read the varying passages. By the study, the researchers hope to add to the relatively few recent studies of content learning using prose materials.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Phi Sigma Kappa
cordially invites
all upperclassmen
to an open FORMAL SMOKER
Tues., Sept. 24 9:30 P.M.

Soviet Troop Withdrawal To Be Discussed in Moscow

PRAGUE ((AP)) — Czechoslovakia's leaders plan to go to Moscow Tuesday or Wednesday, hoping to arrange withdrawal by Oct. 28 of most Soviet occupation troops in exchange for new controls on the press and dismissal of some officials, Czechoslovak informants said Monday night.

They reported the Czechoslovak delegation would include Communist party leader Alexander Dubcek, Premier Oldrich Cernik and Deputy Premier Gustav Husak.

The Czechoslovaks were said to be expecting quick final agreement on a meeting, since some negotiations already have taken place in Prague with the Soviet special envoy, Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov.

Cernik has announced publicly that most of the more than 500,000 Warsaw Pact troops who occupied Czechoslovakia Aug. 20-21 would start a phased withdrawal in the next few days.

Sources with access to the Czechoslovak side said the green light for the pull-out still hinges on the new top-level Moscow meeting.

The last such confrontation was Aug. 23-26. After trying but failing to form a Czechoslovak puppet government, the Soviets brought Dubcek to Moscow. He then signed an agreement that the occupation eventually would be ended, in return for action to strengthen Czechoslovak communism against "counterrevolutionaries."

Another Soviet demand the Czechoslovaks are thought to have accepted is the permanent stationing of Warsaw Pact forces in the region of the West German frontier.

The Czechoslovaks have been told by Kuznetsov to expect additional press controls and the removal of office holders regarded by Moscow as anti-Soviet.

Czechoslovak leaders were said to have agreed in principle to such action. It was understood that there would be no further punishment of ousted job holders.

The Brothers of
Theta Sigma Phi
ΘΣΦ
in affiliation with
Sigma Alpha Epsilon
ΣΑΕ
Cordially invite all Upperclassmen to a Formal
OPEN SMOKER
Thurs., Sept. 26, 1968
7:30 - 10:30 P.M.
Middlesex Room, S.U.

ATTENTION NEW STAFFERS
of the
DAILY COLLEGIAN
INSTRUCTIONAL DISCUSSION SESSIONS WILL BE HELD
BEGINNING TONIGHT
-- Tuesday, Sept. 24, 6:30-7:30 p.m., Ballroom, S.U.
-- Wednesday, Sept. 25, 6:30-7:30 p.m., Norfolk Room, S.U.
-- Thursday, Sept. 26, 8:30-9:30, Norfolk Room, S.U.
All New Staffers Must Attend at Least One of These Sessions.

Mexican University Rector Resigns In Wake of Strikes, Kidnappings

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Unidentified gunmen shot up three more schools yesterday, a few hours after the rector of the University of Mexico resigned in the wake of two months of student strikes and violence. Students were reported wounded and kidnapped during the early morning attacks.

And, shortly before noon, 800 riot police surrounded La Ciudadela, site of a vocational school that since rioting started July 26 has been an assembly point for students bent on raising trouble. A newsman on the scene said students were gathering but that there were many more police than students.

The school at La Ciudadela, Vocational No. 5, was one of the ones shot at during the night by individuals who arrived in cars, opened fire and fled. Another school was Preparatory No. 9 near Insurgentes Avenue, main route from downtown to the Olympic Stadium where the 1968 Olympic Games will be opened Oct. 12.

About 30 shots were fired at Preparatory School No. 5 in the Coapa area near the Olympic Village and the university campus. The campus and Olympic Stadium have been occupied by troops since last Wednesday night. Students still at the three schools said several of their number had been wounded and others kidnapped by the vigilante groups which, since violence stared, have staged similar raids on three other occasions.

University rector Javis Barros Sierra who took office 2½ years ago, replacing a rector who also had been plagued by a two-month student strike, gave what he termed his "irrevocable" resignation to the University Council Sunday night in protest of the government's decision to send troops onto his campus.

It was reported that Felix Barra, secretary-general of the University Teachers' Union, warned the University Council that if it accepted Barros Sierra's resignation the university's 7,000 professors would resign.

The students on strike have refused to take exams until the government acceded to their demands, including the dismissal of three police officials and disbanding of the riot police corps.

QUONSET CLUB GOLF DRIVING RANGE
Route 9 - Hadley, Mass.
(½-MILE FROM THE UNIV. OF MASSACHUSETTS)
Free Golf Instruction Every Day from 7 to 8 p.m.
(EXCEPT MON.)
By Bob Caprera, P.G.A. Professional
ALSO GOLF LESSONS BY APPOINTMENT
OPEN DAY - NITE TEL. 253-9214

Class of 1971 Executive Council
MEETING
Tonight in SBA 120
Plans for Sophomore Weekend to be discussed!
ALL INTERESTED ARE INVITED TO ATTEND
PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL ELECTIONS

Come to BOLLES for the shoe that will complement your casual outfits.
Nothing looks better than a pair of Bostonians.
Pay a visit to our famous Boot-cellar before the season is upon us.

THE BROTHERS OF
Tau Epsilon Phi
cordially invite all upperclassmen to Open Smokers on Tuesday, Sept. 24 - at 10:00 P.M. – Formal
Wednesday, Sept. 25 - at 10:00 P.M. – Informal
Thursday, Sept. 26 - at 9:00 P.M. – Informal

U.N. Favors U.S. Bombing Halt, Secretary-General Tells Newsmen

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. Secretary-General U Thant expressed belief today that a majority of the 124 members of the United Nations would vote for an immediate cessation of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam if the issue were put to a test.

He told a news conference he was convinced he was voicing the conscience of the world in continuing to urge a total bombing halt as an essential first step toward meaningful Vietnam peace talks.

Thant added, however, that he didn't "see any light at the end of the tunnel for another year or more."

The secretary-general dealt with a wide range of world problems, including the Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia, the Nigerian civil war, Red China and Soviet claims that the U.N. Charter permits Soviet military intervention in West Germany to curb an alleged threat of Nazi resurgence.

Thant declined to challenge the Soviet interpretation of the charter, but declared that it was the duty of all U.N. members to seek peaceful settlement of disputes rather than to take unilateral action.

On the Vietnam question, the secretary-general suggested the wording of a resolution which might be put before the forthcoming session of the General Assembly to test sentiment on a Vietnam bombing halt. But he said he was not suggesting that any government ask to have the issue inscribed on the agenda or that the resolution actually be introduced.

Thant was pressed to interpret provisions of the U.N. Charter which the Russians claim give them authority to send military forces against West Germany to halt a resurgence of Nazism. He said he would give his interpretation only if asked by a member government or by a U.N. organ.

He added, however, that he believed the Bonn government was dealing with the problem and "no unilateral action should find a place in such an eventuality."

Quick Out For Spacemen Seen Must In Case of Orbit Dropout

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Engineers studying emergency escape devices believe bail-out capsules could be built to bring astronauts back to earth safely if disaster struck an orbiting space station.

Except for deciding whether the bail-out craft should be cone-shaped or round, "We have pretty well settled down to one concept," said Warren Carter, manager of the study for Lockheed Missiles and Space Co.

Lockheed engineers—working under an eight-month $200,000 contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration—"have generally agreed on internal subsystems, flight operations, re-entry trajectories, sequence of events and splashdown characteristics" for an earth orbiting escape device, Carter said.

Their final design concept, to be presented to the space agency before the end of this year, may form the basis for building bail-out craft to fly with manned earth orbiting space stations in the 1970s or 1980s. No operational escape system could be available for several years, during the Apollo man to the moon program.

"Visualize some kind of space station with an escape device attached to it on an airlock," Carter said in describing the evolving bail-out concept during an interview.

"An emergency occurs and it becomes obvious that the only way to get back to earth is by using the escape device. Three astronauts get aboard, seal it off, activate it and use an explosive charge of some kind to separate it from the space station."

Once away, the astronauts will have to remain in orbit for up to 12 hours to give ground controllers time to compute and send re-entry instructions and calculate the best landing zone, the study manager said.

They then will fire retrorockets and parachute to a landing on water, he said.

Energy Commission Appoints R.I. Man Senate Must Confirm Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate section of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy approved today the nomination of Francesco Costagliola, a native of Cranston, R.I., to be a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

A committee aide said the nomination would be sent promptly to the Senate for confirmation.

President Johnson nominated Costagliola for the position Friday. He is to serve the remainder of a term expiring June 30, 1969, filling a vacancy created when Commissioner James T. Ramey was appointed to a full five-year term.

Five commissioners preside over the AEC.

Costagliola is a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and saw action in the Pacific in World War II. He commanded the destroyer Halsey Powell in the Korean War.

He served in the Atomic Energy Division of the Office of Chief of Naval Operations as chief of the weapons section in the early 1950's.

Costagliola was the principal military deputy to the assistant to the Secretary of Defense for atomic energy from 1964 until he joined the joint committee. He holds the Naval rank of captain.

COLLEGIAN SPORTLINE
545-0344

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

New Faculty, Research Appointments Announced by Physics, Astr'my Dept.

Amherst Mass.—The department of physics and astronomy at the University of Massachusetts has announced the appointment of six new faculty members, seven new research associates and lecturers and one visiting lecturer.

According to Dr. Robert L. Glucksternn head of the department, and Dr. William M. Irvine, chairman of the astronomy program these new additions will complement and strengthen existing research programs in high energy physics, nuclear physics, solid state physics, radio astronomy, and astrophysics

Joining the department as associate professors are: Dietrich R. Freytag, formerly of CERN, the International Nuclear Research Laboratory at Geneva, Switzerland, who will work with Dr. Wilfred Cleland in a new high energy experimental program; Richard G. Huguenin, formerly of Harvard University, who will join the astronomy program to establish an experimental research effort in radio astronomy, and Gerald A. Peterson, who spent the past year at the Institute of Nuclear Physics, Amsterdam, while on leave from Yale University, and who will start a new experimental research program in nuclear physics, using electron linear accelerators such as those at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Yale University.

At the rank of assistant professor the new appointments are: Dr. William Dent, formerly a research associate at the University of Michigan, who will join the astronomy program as an experimentalist in radio astronomy; Dr. Allan Hoffman, the past year a research associate at Brown University, who will begin new experimental studies in solid state physics; and Dr. James F. Walker, formerly a research associate at MIT, who will conduct theoretical studies in nuclear and atomic physics.

The new appointments as research associate and lecturer include: Dr. Rabinder N. Madan, of the University of California at Santa Barbara and Dr. Robin W. Tucker of Cambridge University, England, who will collaborate with Drs. Cook and Brehm in theoretical high energy physics; Dr. Akira Uesugi of Kyoto University, Japan, who will work with Dr. William Irvine in theoretical astrophysics; Dr. Chook Teck Yap, a nuclear theorist from the University of Singapore, Dr. Barton Goz of Rutgers University, who will join Dr. Huguenin in the new radio astronomy program.

Joining Dr. Strong's program in experimental astro-physics are Mr. Donald J. Lovell of the University of Michigan as visiting lecturer, and Mr. William Mankin of Johns Hopkins University as research associate and lecturer.

Along with their professional research efforts in physics, the research associates as well as new faculty members will contribute significantly toward strengthening and expanding the instructional programs within the department at the undergraduate as well as the graduate level, Dr. Glucksternn said.

The present appointments bring the total teaching faculty in the Department of Physics and Astronomy to 51, of whom 10 are research associates or lecturers.

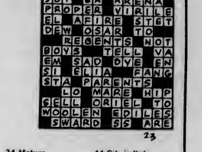
Alumnus Dr. Lin Dao Yang To Speak Here Thurs., Fri

Amherst, Mass. -- Dr. Lin Dao Yang, retired president of Chung Chi and United Colleges in Hong Kong and a distinguished alumnus of the University of Massachusetts, will speak at the University Sept. 26 and 27.

The talks are part of a five-day visit to the University made at the invitation of President John W. Lederle and co-sponsored by the UMass Asian Studies Program and the Center for International Agricultural Studies.

Thursday, Sept. 26, at 4 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the UMass Student Union Dr. Lin will speak on "The Science of Peace." The talk is open to the public without charge.

Friday at 11 a.m in the Student Union Nantucket Room Dr. Lin will speak at a seminar for faculty and students of the College of Agriculture on the topic "Land Resource Management in Communist China." The seminar, open to all interested persons, is co-sponsored by the Center for International Agricultural Studies and the department of agriculture and food economics.



Friday at noon the visitor will be honored at a Student Union luncheon sponsored by the Asian Studies Program and the Center for International Agricultural Studies. Friday afternoon he will be interviewed over Five College Radion Station WFCR.

OPEN SMOKER
Theta Chi
UPPERCLASSMEN
Formal; 7:30-9:30 Monday, Sept. 23
Tuesday, Sept. 24
Thursday, Sept. 26

"I have a dream..."
You can help make the dream come true.
Students - Faculty - Administrators - Work with us.
Martin Luther King, Jr. Social Action Council
204 Hampshire 545-2661
--Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr.
(A Public Service of the MDC)

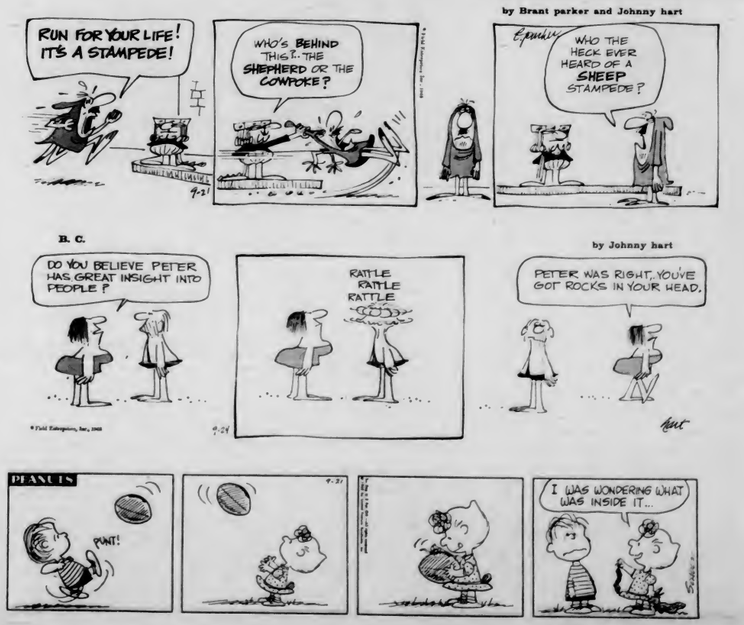
CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1-Male sheep
4-Declared
8-Watch pocket
11-Mountain in Crete
12-Weary
13-Peruse
15-Entrance
17-Deposit
19-Negative
20-Lock opener
21-Make lace
22-Hindu cymbals
23-Toward shelter
25-Grass mowed and cured for fodder
26-Step
27-Encountered
28-Stroke
29-Goal
30-Paid notice
31-Head of parish (pl.)
33-Symbol for calcium
35-Pronoun
36-Period of time
37-Fat behind
38-Let it stand
40-Edict
41-Outcast
42-Writing implement
43-Genus of cattle
44-Dance step
45-Babylonian deity
46-Ventilate
47-Conjunction
50-Dalmeate
52-Makes into leather
54-Guido's high note
55-Sodium chloride
56-Opera by Verdi
57-Drink slowly

DOWN
1-Tear
2-Fuss
3-Place where goods are sold
4-Remain
5-Be ill
6-Prefix: not
7-Procrastination
8-Cook in fat
9-Faroe Islands whirlwind
10-Trite
14-Stupid person
16-Golf mound
18-Near
21-Shreds
22-Scottish cap
23-Wine cup
24-Conducted
25-Possesses
26-Pronoun
28-Equality
29-Macaw
31-Fondle
32-Native metal
33-Household pet
34-Mature
35-Chicken
37-Whips
38-Hurried
39-Rips
40-Chief artery
41-Chapeau
43-Prefix: twice
44-City in Italy
46-Shoemaker's tool
47-Finish
48-Man's name
49-Knock
51-Cooled lava
53-Three-toed sloth

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 23



EXTRA ATTRACTIONS . . .

(Continued from page 12)

Two things did go right, no matter how you figure it. UMass won the game, and as Dean Warren McGuirk said, "It was an important game," and the plane advertising the frosh-soph picnic made its appearance before the end of the game. J.C.

MDC photo Staff meeting tomorrow night in the Student Union Ballroom 6:30 p.m.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

24 SEPT

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Spirts
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1968
Page 12 Vol. XCVII, No. 24

Anyone Interested?

All candidates for the freshman or varsity swimming team report to Boyden Pool after 4 p.m. any day this week.

Anyone interested in becoming a freshman or varsity soccer manager see Coach Broaca in the Boyden Building as soon as possible.

Team meeting for anyone interested in varsity or freshman track, Wed. 4 p.m., in Boyden 251.

Redmen Trample Maine With Extra Attractions

Saturday's football game was like a political campaign: Someone won, but some things went wrong. UMass was out on the field playing against the University of Maine. Maine was the opposition that the Redmen rolled over, 21-3. The Black Bears managed to score three points on the field goal. So they were there.

If you were bored watching the game and didn't happen to bring along a comic book or crossword puzzle, there were other things to keep your mind occupied.

In the first half, Alan Becker went into the end zone for the first UMass touchdown. As tradition demands, all the freshman beanies went sailing into the air in jubilation. But where were all the beanies? The frosh were seated in their own cheering section to instill class spirit and enthusiasm for their school. But the sky was dotted with only a few maroon and white flying objects.

At the far end of the Stadium, the Class of '71 was standing with large masses of red and white balloons. The balloons went sailing into the air after the extra points—in four large bunches—after they were disengaged from the gate.

And the band also was there at the halftime. The drum major came strutting out and in a few moments lost the plume from his hat. The rear guard of the band, unaware of the fallen plume, trampled it. The band sounded fine, but not everyone was in step.

(Continued on page 11)

Photo by John Kelly

LOPING LOVELL—Craig Lovell (40) gallops toward the endzone seemingly unaware of the presence of the referee in his immediate line of progress. For more pictures by John Kelly of the game see tomorrow's MDC.

The Crew Club:

How Long Can the Athletic Council Ignore It?

By Jan Curley
Assistant Managing Editor

Varsity sports at UMass are a funny thing. They are funny not in the humorous connotation of the word, but in the sense that they are odd. What other schools the size of UMass can boast of not having a hockey rink or a track, although there are teams competing in both sports.

And how about the baseball field complete with a smell reminiscent of the days when this place used to be called Mass. Agricultural School? Also, lest you have forgotten, there is the Cage. That's the place where everything has a purplish cast, and hoop practice was rained out once.

Each sport has its own particular set of trials and tribulations indigenous to it, but crew has the best one of all. One can't complain that there isn't a place to hold the races. Nature took care of that by creating the Connecticut River.

Some man was kind enough to build Mitch's Marina in South Hadley near the Calvin Coolidge Bridge; and although it was constructed with the local habitants in mind, it's a nice place to have a boat house and to hold a regatta. The crew club also has three shells complete with oars.

Just A Club

So, what's so funny about that? Well, the crew club is just that; it's a club not a team. The Athletic Department is withholding official sanction from the club as if it were the terrestrial equivalent of sainthood. It's pretty hard to do this when there are 27 rowers, three spares and two coaches who practice four hours seven days a week regardless of the weather and race Saturday afternoons. But that's how it's been since 1965.

Previous to this date there had not been a crew team at UMass since 1872, at which time the boat was retired. The team had won the championship the year before against such Ivy League powers as Brown and Harvard.

Crew was very different in those days. The coach was paid, and the rowers were recruited. Things were rougher, too.

When crew was reorganized in 1965 it was through the mutual efforts of a group of young men who wanted more than just some rowing fun Sunday afternoons and a former BU rower who was willing to become their coach. He made crew what it is today, a hard working, competitive, bone-aching sport.

You don't get a seat because you learned how to row at summer camp. You have to work out during the winter in the basement of Mem Hall on the rowing machine and the weights. You have to able to run the Tower, 21 flights of stairs up and down. Then if you weigh enough, and you're still alive, you might earn a seat. That's half the battle; you have to be able to keep up the pace to keep your seat, or you'll be bumped.

Too Much Money . . . .

At the time of its reinception, it was understood that crew would have to remain an R.S.O. for three years. During this period, crew was to be subsidized by the Student Senate. Being an R.S.O. is a problem in itself.

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert

Springtime is synonymous with budget time.

All monetary requests for the next season must be included in the budget. Anyone who has to bring a budget on the floor of the Senate knows what a hassle that can be. But Dave Clarke and Mike Faherty, the varsity and freshman coaches respectively last year, have done it before. Could you see Vic Fusia on the floor at 3 a.m. haggling over the price of footballs?

To Warren P. McGuirk crew has been a hands-off proposition because of the money involved in financing it. McGuirk claims it is a $50,000 operation, and in an interview last summer, President John W. Lederle stated crew would cost $60,000. These figures are based on such college crews as Harvard, Cornell and Yale, and it must be considered that their outlay involves a great deal more than the one here. Harvard, for instance, has a crew five to six times that of UMass' and they naturally have more shells and boathouses, and some of their rowers are also on scholarships. The crew program here has developed to the stage where little remains to be done as far as buying equipment goes. The only way the crew could fail now would be through a lack of cooperation from the Athletic Dept.

The budget for crews comparable to UMass' run in the $10,000 range. The Student Senate appropriated the UMass crew less than $6,000 last spring.

McGuirk said the Athletic Council has been reluctant to appropriate any large sums of money to the crew club until they could be assured that crew would be a continuing sport. In the past, he stated money and equipment had been invested for a group of students desiring a fencing team, but the interest in the sport waned after a year. The Athletic Department was left holding the foil.

Rowing Alumni

Crew is a sport largely supported through a rowing alumni. Since there hasn't been a crew for almost 100 years, it would be a little difficult to solicit any of them. There should be a rowing alumni within five years, but, in the meantime, some people interested in bringing rowing back to UMass have made contributions. A recent donation was used to buy a trailer to transport the shells to the regattas. The rowers assembled it during spring vacation in their spare time when they weren't chopping the ice on the river in order to practice.

All students at UMass are forced to contribute to the support of the athletic teams through a mandatory payment of an athletic fee as part of their semester bill. You get a football ticket booklet in your packet as automatically as you get your course schedule. The student, although he pays for these tickets, is not legally able to give them away or to sell them. Have you ever wondered what the football players do with theirs?

McGuirk has stated before that the Athletic Department exists to bring programs to the students in which they are interested. When Clarke was reorganizing the crew club, he was told that there would have to be a demonstration of interest in rowing. The boys who have tried out for crew have shown that they are interested in the program, and this interest has been sustained through to the present.

Those who are fortunate enough to make the club have been willing to stick with it even though they knew they would receive no recognition. For the past three years, they were not even given any physical education credit even though the band members were getting it for their extra-curricular activity.

The interest is not all one sided.

The interest does not exist only in those in the club, but also with the loyal band of fans who get to South Hadley for the races even if they have to hitch. All you have to do is attend a race or practice to find this out for yourself.

In addition to varsity and freshman crews, there is also a junior varsity crew which competes intercollegiately. McGuirk wants to build up other Jayvee sports before crew. But suppose they have a junior varsity baseball team, against whom are they going to compete? There isn't another school in the Yankee Conference with a junior varsity team.

Competition will have to be sought outside the Conference, and according to McGuirk, the schools will have to be within a 50-mile radius for obvious financial reasons, i.e. travel expenses.

Still, the Athletic Council has appropriated money to develop junior varsity sports before subsidizing crew beyond the $2,000 given for this year.

Recognition for An Entity — .

In order for a sport to receive varsity recognition, they must measure up to some criteria. McGuirk had cited four things to Clarke and Faherty.

First is the fact that there is a lack of control over the members. If by this is meant that the rowers are not supervised, what are the two coaches doing there every day? They take attendance, which is mandatory under penalty of losing your seat, and they are on the river coaching the practice from the launches.

Secondly is a turnover rate, but a check of the attendance sheets will prove that the members are regular. Next year at least 17 will be returning from this year's squad. A third reason mentioned is a lack of faculty participation. Crew has two advisors because it is an R.S.O. and both advisors are faculty members.

McGuirk stated he conferred with Faherty, the present varsity coach, about hiring a part-time coach. The coach and rowers agreed a change in coaching personnel was not necessary.

Somewhat related to this is the statement that there was no qualified physical education teacher conducting the practices in order that physical education credit be give. For this reason, the Phys Ed credit was withheld. After a three year harangue, credit for part of the year has been granted.

Last week Dean McGuirk expressed the hope that crew would receive varsity recognition by the end of the academic year. Speaking for himself and not the whole council, he stated he felt that the "boys in the crew club had done a fine job of organizing themselves", and varsity recognition looms in the future.

But the crew club is a problem of the present, and before it becomes the haunting ghost of Christmas Past, they should be granted the varsity recognition.

(ed. note: Rerun and updated from the Summer Statesman.)

Weather Forecast: Like Autumn

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 25 13 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1968

About 150 UMass custodians gathered behind Whitmore to hear union President Paul Korpita announce that talks with university administrators has successfully ended the six-day walkout.

Janitors Back at Work; Grievances Unsettled

The walkout of University janitors ended yesterday with a back to work agreement, however the basic grievances which prompted the strike remain unsettled.

The University agreed to allow the janitors to use the "sick" excuse, and thereby conceded to the union's demand that no discipline be taken against the strikers. However, this was the only agreement reached in a three hour meeting between officials from the University Business and Personel office and the janitor's union.

The custodians, Gerald Grady, Univ. Business Manager, said, will be allowed to take the time out either as vacation or as sick leave, providing each absent employee signs a statement saying he was ill. Doctors' certificates, Grady said, will not be required.

Officials of Local 1776, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Workers, AFL-CIO, immediately called all striking custodians back to work on the night shift. During the day more than three quarters of the custodial staff of 350 had been absent from their jobs, many attending a mass meeting in front of Whitmore Hall, the UMass administration building, yesterday morning.

During the meeting union representatives met with University President John W. Lederle, Grady and Personnel Director John DeNyse, and quickly ironed out the sticking point—disciplinary action against the custodians—which had for a time threatened a campus-wide strike of other university workers.

UMass officials said last night that the agreement with the custodians may have forestalled a work stoppage on campus building projects, since the area building trades council had advised the university that a picket line would be established if the custodial strike was not settled. This, it was feared, would have stopped construction on millions of dollars worth of buildings, including several being erected with university trust funds and classified as income-producing properties.

Monday's settlement of the immediate grievances of the custodians will be followed by lengthy bargaining sessions during which union officials and university authorities will seek to hammer together a contract covering the custodians, the security forces on campus, and the agricultural workers covered by Local 1776's contract.

Due in 60 days or sooner is another bargaining election covering between 2-300 food service workers at UMass. The group, which services the cafeterias and dining commons, had chosen the Massachusetts State Employees Association as bargaining agent in elections held in May, but the vote was challenged and the state Labor Relations Commission ruled a new election must be held.

Returning janitors will still work on a pay scale of $82 to start and $102 after seven years. Parking rights and working conditions will remain the same, and, essentially because of the conditions described by the janitor's grievances, custodial staffs will remain undermanned.

Lawyers in Murphy Murder Trial Selecting Prospective Jurors

Northampton—Four jurors were impaneled Tuesday in Hampshire County Superior Court for the Stephen H. Murphy murder trial. All together fourteen jurors will be selected from a 90 member pool.

Murphy, 24, of Lexington, a former UMass music major, is charged with the beating and burning death of UMass student George W. Rollins, Jr., 23, of Belmont in March, 1967 in their rooming house at 133 Main St., Amherst.

Murphy was taken into custody at his Lexington home March 25, 1967, two days after Rollins was pulled unconscious from his burning room in Amherst. Suffering head injuries and burns over 60 per cent of his body, Rollins died in a Boston hospital April 7, 1967. Police confiscated a half jug of acetone and two cans of paint thinner from the room.

Murphy is represented by Atty. John F. Murphy and Atty John F. Foley, both of Northampton. District Atty. Oscar Grife of Northampton will prosecute for the commonwealth.

Presiding Judge Donald M. Macaulay told prospective jurors that they must view the case with an unbiased and unprejudiced opinion and that they must be of good moral character and have a sound sense of judgment.

The judge also stated that the selected jury will be secluded from the publicity the trial may receive from the press, radio or television.

City Council Opposes North Station Site

The possibility of UMass-Boston being permanently located in the North Station area received another setback yesterday when the Boston City Council went on record as being unalterably opposed to that location. In the two and a half hour meeting the council drafted a resolution calling upon Mayor Kevin White to join their opposition to the North Station site and urge the Boston Redevelopment Authority to encourage University officials toward locating their Boston campus in the Columbia Point Area.

Voting against the resolution were Councilors John L. Saltonstall, Jr., and Gerald O'Leary. Saltonstall expressed views the situation should be left in the hands of Gov. Volpe's office and UMass officials. O'Leary opposed the Columbia Point location. Patrick McDonough voted present and the other six councilors favored the resolution.

MERCHANTS OPPOSE

The North Station site was hinted a few weeks ago by U-Mass officials and it caused an immediate controversy, including opposition by merchants, the Boston Garden Corp., and the Massachusetts General Hospital.

University planners eyed a 20-acre tract behind the railroad terminal for a high-rise campus that would enroll 15,000 to 20,000 students by 1980.

Hale Champion, BRA administrator, appeared at the hearing and told councilors that his office favored the 90-acre site at Columbia Point.

Frank O'Brien, representing U-Mass, revealed that college trustees would disclose officially this week, possibly Thursday, their choice for location of the Boston campus.

GARDEN CONFLICT

Speaking in behalf of the Boston Garden Corp., President Edward Powers voiced his opposition to the North Station area and expressed concern that U. Mass schedules would conflict with Garden dates that attracted a record 1,982,000 persons last year.

B R A Transportation expert William R. McGrath noted that from a traffic standpoint, location of UMass at North Station would "strangle the city." It was estimated that an additional 6000 cars would be taken into the downtown area because of the campus.

Besides the congestion problem, nearly everyone pointed out the burden on the Boston taxpayers through the loss of the valuable tax property if it were taken over by UMass.

Trustee John W. Haigis, Jr. when contacted at his home in Greenfield last night by the Daily Collegian, stated that the Buildings and Sites Committee would still report on both the Columbia Point and North Station sites when they meet probably the first week in October.

He went on to say that the committee was not acting in "defiance of the City Council," and that the Board of Trustees or his committee had not chosen either site yet. Haigis said that BRA Chairman Hale Champion had always been in favor of U-Mass choosing the Columbia Point site.

Peace Protestors Burn Files From Selective Service Office

MILWAUKEE, Wis. UP — A group of peace protesters broke into a Selective Service office shortly after it closed Tuesday, seized bags full of records and set them afire in a tiny park across the street, police said.

"They overpowered a cleaning woman, took away her keys, opened the doors, came out with the records and burned them," said police sergeant Fred Stein, one of the first at the scene.

Stein said at least a dozen were arrested, including several young men in clerical garb.

One eyewitness said flames, apparently feeding on gasoline shot 20 feet into the air before firemen arrived to douse them.

The charred and water soaked records lay in a tangle of burlap under a barren flag pole dedicated to "The memory of those who served" in World War I.

One of those taken away was Michael D. Cullen, an Irish-born ex-seminarian, who took part in a demonstration Sunday that disrupted the Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. John.

Cullen declined to comment as he waited to get into the police van. Asked what was burning in the miniature park, he replied, "1-A records."

Larry Hartzheim, 18, of Milwaukee, said he was standing on a corner across the street from the office building when "four or five white guys started dragging bags out of the building.

"They carre across the street and poured gasoline all over it. They took four five-gallon cans from a white truck."

Hartzheim said it was at least five minutes before police arrived. "It went right up," Hartzheim said. "They just stood there and started singing." One of the songs Hartzheim recalled was "We Shall Overcome."

Boston Schools Rocked By Racial Disturbances

BOSTON UP — Demonstrations and disturbances which began with a dispute over whether black students could wear African costumes to high school, spread Tuesday to other Boston high schools.

At least nine public high schools in all parts of the city were affected.

"These are not isolated incidents," said Thomas S. Eisenstadt, chairman of the School Committee. "No one of our school teachers or students is safe, primarily in the black areas."

Eisenstadt asked Lt. Gov. Francis W. Sargent, who was acting governor in the absence of Gov. John A. Volpe to have the National Guard put on a standby alert.

Sargent declined to do so, saying he could act only at the request of the mayor of the city, Kevin H. White.

Later the School Committee agreed to make the same request of the mayor, but he was not available at that time.

Deputy Police Supt. Herbert F. Mulloney mobilized 600 officers, detectives, clerks and trainees and stationed them at nine trouble spots. He authorized two division's to call in all off-duty men.

Officials said 14 fire alarms, 12 false, were turned in from six schools and disturbances were reported at three others.

"It apparently results from activity of a black student union in relationship with the National Black Antiwar, Antidraft Committee," said Ronald Johnson, director of educational publications and informational services for the School Committee.

The Negroes protested withdrawal of permission for them to wear African garb to school. White students claimed that they should not have to wear neckties if Negroes could wear African clothes.

Police Disperse Unruly Students

By Ronald J. LaBrecque
Senior Reporter

An unruly crowd of male students, estimated at one point by police at 250 persons, assumed "mob characteristics" Tuesday night before being dispersed by campus police.

What apparently began as another in a recent series of "panty raids" at approximately 11:15 p.m. took on more serious proportions as the crowd attempted to elude police while moving from the Central dormitory area to the Southwest complex.

At least three of the youths were apprehended by police and driven away in police vehicles, but no further information was available Tuesday night as to what action would be taken against them.

As the crowd moved through the Southwest complex, doors to women's dormitories were locked in an effort to keep the "panty raiders" out, although several threatened to break in if their so-called demands were not met. In recent raids several resident corridor areas of a women's dormitory have been broken into.

The activities Tuesday night apparently had no connection, contrary to rumors, with incidents of the weekend.

WORLD NEWS ROUNDUP

MEXICO CITY

Snipers shoot it out with police after the army takes a vocational school in Mexico City's continuing student-government crisis.

BOSTON

A dispute over whether Negro students at a Boston high school should be allowed to wear African clothing to class spreads to other public schools. A fire and vandalism are reported.

WASHINGTON

Efforts are being made to find a quick way out of the fight over Abe Fortas' nomination as chief justice of the Supreme Court.

The House, idle a second straight day for lack of members in town, decides to make it official with long recesses for campaigning.

The U.S. has lost at least $60 million in nine crashes of the Air Force's F111A fighter bomber.

S. Vietnamese Fire Howitzers Into Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) - South Vietnamese forces have fired 105 mm. howitzers into Cambodia to silence Viet Cong guns shooting across the border, the commander of South Vietnam's 3rd Corps said Tuesday.

Lt. Gen. Do Cao Tri said his troops fired across the frontier last Friday after they were shelled by enemy mortars covering the retreat of a fleeing band of Viet Cong who had tried to overrun a government outpost at Phuoc Tan.

He said he expected the Cambodian government to complain about the attack. But the Saigon government claims it has the right to fire on gunners shooting at them from inside Cambodia and to engage in "hot pursuit" of enemy units that seek sanctuary across the border.

Cambodia has repeatedly denied that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are based on its territory.

Tri made his announcement soon after American B52 Stratofortresses dropped 750 tons of bombs in saturation patterns along enemy infiltration routes near the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon. Most of the strikes were eight or 10 miles from the frontier, but one bombing run was only two miles east of Cambodia.

Elsewhere in the air war, U.S. fighter-bombers braved monsoon weather, surface to air missiles and heavy anti-aircraft fire to fly 111 missions over North Vietnam.

The U.S. Command said enemy ground fire downed a Navy A4 Skyhawk and an American helicopter in South Vietnam. The Skyhawk was the 899th American warplane announced as downed in combat over the North and the helicopter was the sixth chopper lost in the past four days.

The pilot of the Skyhawk was listed as missing 13 miles northwest of Vinh. In the helicopter crash, a Vietnamese soldier was killed and three Americans and two South Vietnamese were wounded.

Heavy fighting south of Da Nang and along Saigon's northwestern invasion corridor pushed South Vietnamese combat casualties last week to 473 the third highest weekly toll since the enemy's second wave offensive in May.

NATIONAL

Union leaders concede public service strikes such as the current walkout of New York City teachers hurt the public. But they say employees will do what they have to do to make gains.

Richard M. Nixon, campaigning across the Northern Plains, blames Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman for "rising prices and declining income" among farmers.

Humphrey holds his first formal news conference since becoming the Democratic presidential nominee, then heads for California to campaign.

VIETNAM

South Vietnamese lob artillery shells into neighboring Cambodia in an attempt to silence Viet Cong guns.

INTERNATIONAL

The U.N. general Assembly opens its 23rd session with the election of a Latin American as president and admission of Swaziland as its 125th member.

Bishops tell Britain's 4 million Roman Catholics to follow both the Pope and their own consciences on birth control.

Maximum exposure, latest fashion for the jet set, is shown in a resort wear collection in London.

Police Remove AWOL Marine Veteran From 'Sanctuary' In Harvard Chapel

CAMBRIDGE (AP) — A Marine veteran of the Vietnam war was removed from "sanctuary" in the Harvard Divinity School chapel Tuesday and returned to the Quonset, R.I., Naval Air Station.

Local and armed forces police took Cpl. Paul Olimpieri, 21, of Fairfield, Conn., into custody after cutting a chain with which he was linked to his wife, Lynn.

The officers had a federal warrant charging Olimpieri with being absent without leave from the Quonset station. The young Marine had sought sanctuary in the chapel in Andover Hall last Sunday.

Officers said Olimpieri, his wife and two students were sleeping in a room near the chapel's altar when they arrived. They said they carried Olimpieri from the building.

Dean Krister Stendahl of the Divinity School and university police were outside Andover Hall when the arresting officers arrived.

The university said its police had been notified just before the officers arrived and they informed the dean, who was served with the warrant.

Dean Stendahl asked university police to open the doors to the hall. The university said its police did not not participate in Olimpieri's removal.

Olimpieri was awarded two purple Hearts in Vietnam where he served for 13 months. He returned to the United States in December and extended his enlistment for two years in January.

He said Monday he sought sanctuary because the military had broken promises to him. He said he had expected to be stationed near his family but was assigned to a six-month training cruise to the Mediterranean.

Olimpieri said he believes the Vietnam war is wrong but that he was not allowed to express that belief in the military.

He had been supported in the sanctuary by students and the New England Resistance.

The Student Association adopted a resolution supporting him and began a fund drive to provide food and necessities for him and his wife.

Dean Stendahl met with 25 faculty members and said a subcommittee of five had been named to study the situation and to talk with Olimpieri and the Student Association.

Change of Heart

The AWOL Marine veteran had a change of heart Tuesday after his apprehension by military police.

Cpl. Paul Olimpieri, 21, of Fairfield, Conn., wearing a new Marine uniform, and with his straggly beard shaved off, said in a statement his actions of the last few days were a mistake.

"I feel I was used by various groups to publicize their political goals, whatever they may be," the statement said. As Olimpieri and his wife stood by, the statement was read by a Marine officer at the Barracks at the Boston Navy Yard.

Olimpieri's "sanctuary" at the Divinity School was supported by the New England Resistance, an anti-war, antidraft organization which has been active in other "sanctuary" cases in New England, and by the Committee of Religious Concern for Peace.

"I do not want any further association with these groups," Olimpieri's statement said.

"I am just beginning to realize that things can be done through the proper channels," his statement continued. "I found this out the hard way and I hope that other servicemen will learn from my mistake."

Olimpieri declined, on the advice of a lawyer, to answer any questions by newsmen.

Lt. Col. Andrew E. Anderson, executive officer of the Marine Barracks, said the news conference was held at Olimpieri's request.

Students desiring to attend the 1969 University of Massachusetts Summer School in Bologna, Italy, should see Professor Howard H. Quint, room 724, Thompson Hall on Tuesdays between 2 and 4 p.m. or by appointment (see Miss Wilkey in the History Office, room 714). Students from all schools and departments of the University may apply. All other things being equal, early applicants will be given preference for acceptance into the program which is limited to 65 students.

Those students who attended the 1968 Summer School in Bologna are requested to contact Professor Quint at their earliest convenience.

Politics '68

NIXON

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, on a mission to elect Republican Senate and House candidates, told a cheering airport crowd of 4,000 here today that a "great turning point" has been reached in the presidential campaign.

Speaking on an open air platform in a chilling wind, Nixon said that he had been delayed in arriving by a head wind which slowed his plane.

"The significance of this head wind," he said, "is that it is blowing strong toward Washington, D.C."

Exhibiting confidence that he is winning in his contest with Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey, Nixon attacked the vice president as one who only wants to continue the policies of the Johnson administration.

He added that the "great turning point" now has been reached in his campaign for the presidency.

HUMPHREY

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey acknowledged Tuesday that he is trailing Richard M. Nixon but he charged that his Republican opponent is "dancing around the fire" on major issues.

The vice president held his first news conference here since winning the Democratic nomination in Chicago in August. He denounced some hecklers as trying to destroy his campaign and pulled out some poll results to back up his declaration that "I know how to win."

Humphrey said polls and other reports that he has, show a close contest with the Republican presidential candidate, Richard Nixon slightly ahead and George Wallace—the third party candidate—showing strength.

But Humphrey—while promising a short but effective campaign—asked for help to get "Mr. Nixon on that tube to debate."

His Republican opponent, Humphrey said, had talked of favoring debates between the candidates—such as the 1960 confrontations between Nixon and the late President John F. Kennedy.

But Nixon, he said, has not picked up the challenge to debate.

Further, Humphrey contended he doesn't like a moratorium on every significant issue and that Nixon "should not dance around the fire."

Humphrey said he was willing to take on both Nixon and his running mate, Maryland Gov. Spiro Agnew, at the same time: "Nixon could give the soft answers, Agnew could give the hard answers and I'd give the right answers."

MUSKIE

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Democratic vice presidential candidate Edmund Muskie declared Tuesday that the policeman's night stick is not the answer to crime.

Muskie, on a three-hour visit to Charleston, told some 3,000 supporters at the state capitol that "the answer is to deal with the conditions that deny people an opportunity. I would not be so irresponsible as to suggest that crime wears a party label or that concern for crime wears a party label."

Muskie said Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon offers only one answer to crime: "Vote Republican."

He also took an apparent shot at third party candidate George C. Wallace, saying, "When you build walls between people, you build hate. And when you build hate, you build insecurity."

Speaking to newsmen earlier, Muskie said he has met privately with Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy twice since the Democratic National Convention, but he refused to reveal what was discussed.

Replying to Nixon's charges that Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey must bear some responsibility for the Johnson administration's record, Muskie said:

"By the same logic ther, Mr. Nixon should be held accountable for the Eisenhower administration," which he said saw three recessions and veto of two housing bills.

Wallace, he said, "plays upon the fact that there is disorder to inflame people, but he doesn't spell out details or specifics."

Student Riots, Czech Crisis, Hurt Fr. Reds

PARIS (UPI) — France's potent Communist movement, shaken by recent events in France and Czechoslovakia is wrestling with one of its most serious crises since World War II.

The party claims a quarter million members and has been commanding a million votes in national elections. It has been a powerful influence in European communism. Now its leadership, under secretary-general Waldeck Rochet, is beset by a variety of problems.

Internally, the French student revolt of May and June caught the party unprepared and brought it severe embarrassment. This in turn contributed to ideological division in the ranks between those standing ostensibly for "peaceful" conquest of power and those impatiently advocating violent revolutionary action.

Then the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia compounded the confusion and added to the divisions. Party leaders found themselves obliged to criticize the Russians sharply and publicly.

The French party finds itself with a tiny but noisily pro-Chinese minority on the extreme left, elements on the right who resist Soviet direction, and those in the middle seeking to steer a safe course through the reefs.

It took 10 years for the French Communists to recover from the shock after Russian tanks crushed the Hungarian revolution of 1956. In that period, Rochet repeatedly stood publicly for the "peaceful road" as the only practical policy in France.

Thus, the party rejected a call for a general strike during the student rebellion. That was one reason why it sustained a severe loss. The nation, without Communist leadership of labor, was paralyzed by an enormous strike wave over which the party had no control.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

IMPROVE YOUR READING
SPEED and COMPREHENSION STUDY SKILLS
5 week Rapid-Reading Course
Tuesdays & Thursdays
7-8:30 p.m.
Starts Oct. 1
Registration: Sept. 26: 7:00 p.m.
School of Education Rm. 125
Limited to 30
NO TUITION CHARGE

HAPPY HOUR
Friday 4-7 P.M.
SPECIAL PARTIES
TEL. 586-0114
"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY
SECOND FLOOR—CENTER
OPEN
4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays
12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.
1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun.
FACULTY & STAFF WELCOME

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 3, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

UMass Prof., Once Hungarian Prisoner, To Lecture On Czechoslovakia Today

A University of Massachusetts professor, who is a former Hungarian political prisoner and authority on East Europe, will assess "Czechoslovakia Today" at a lecture in the Lounge of Noah Webster Residence Hall, Thursday, Sept. 26, at 7 p.m.

Dr. Ferenc A. Vali, UMass professor of government, is a distinguished political scientist and international lawyer with wide experience in European affairs. A native of Budapest, Prof. Vali earned his doctorate of laws degree from the University of Budapest and a Ph. D. from the University of London.

He was sent to Istanbul by the Hungarian government during World War 11 on a confidential mission to make contact with Allied powers. After the war, he taught at the University of Budapest until banned from the faculty by the Communists early in 1949.

His western connections led to his arrest and that of his wife in 1951. He was imprisoned for five years, she for three. Just before the Hungarian Revolution in 1956 he was released and aided in an effort to reorganize the Hungarian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

When the Revolution was crushed by the Communists, Dr. Vali and his wife escaped into Austria and later made their way to the United States. His book, "Rift and Revolt in Hungary", published in 1961, is a vivid picture of a satellite nation under Soviet rule.

His most recent book, published in 1967, "The Quest for a United Germany," is a plea for the reunification of Germany. Dr. Vali believes that the present division of Germany provides a continuing threat to world peace.

In his discussion Thursday, Dr. Vali will recount the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia and the impact that it has on present world affairs. The lecture is open to the public without charge.

Awarness Day Features Speakers

Student Awareness Day was recently endorsed at a meeting of the Martin Luther Social Action Council and will begin today at 1 p.m. with marches originating in the Northeast, Southwest, and Orchard Hill areas and proceeding to the campus pond area.

The names of speakers scheduled to participate in today's Student Awareness Day were revealed. They are:

Rev. A.C. Ross: minister from the Riviera—Brightwood sections of Springfield. Both Riviera and Brightwood are the Negro-Puerto Rican ghetto areas in that city.

Andrew Griffin Jr.; director of Northern Educational Services in Springfield.

Also speaking are Rev. Ron Hardy: campus minister and chairman of the board of directors for the Martin Luther King Social Action Council.

Art Cunneen; chairman of the committee for Student Awareness Day.

Gill Salk; executive secretary of the Martin Luther Social Action Council.

Jack Deaver; professor in French and Comparative Literature at the University of Mass.

The speakers speak on civil rights, Vietnam war and other vital issues. According to Gill Salk, executive director of the Martin Luther Social Action Council, "many of these issues are being ignored in the present presidential race."

Nominations are now being accepted to Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges. The selections are being based on four major criterion: Student Scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the University. Nominations will be accepted from any individual or group and should include a description of the nominees qualifications. Nominations must be received not later than Monday, September 30.

Please send all applications to Chairman, Who's Who Committee, RSO #801, Student Union.

New Yorker Detained In U.S.S.R., Protesting Czech Invasion

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet police officers seized an attractive New York girl and her British companion Tuesday as they handed out leaflets protesting the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia to an angry rush hour crowd of Muscovites. After six hours detention, the two were released and ordered out of the country.

Officers arrested Vicky Rovere, 24, and Andrew Papworth, 24, members of the International War Resisters organization, within a minute after they began distributing leaflets calling on the Soviet population to rise up and protest the invasion "with every peaceful means at your disposal."

"Our reception on the streets of Moscow was very unfriendly," said Miss Rovere, worker for pacifist groups. "Most people tore up our leaflets, and some called us provocateurs."

Miss Rovere and Papworth each smuggled in about 1,000 of the Russian language leaflets condemning the occupation and calling for withdrawal of troops. The evening crowd that witnessed the brief demonstration on Pushkin Square showed no sympathy for the young couple, they said.

"As the police took me away, an elderly man came up and hit me in the stomach," Miss Rovere reported. She was not injured seriously but she said, "It hurt at the time."

Miss Rovere and Papworth were put in separate hotels. Plainclothes police were assigned to keep visitors away until they could be taken to the airport Wednesday morning.

Congressional Truancy Makes House Sit Idle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House forced into idleness for the second straight day for lack of members in town, is getting ready to make the truancy official with several long recesses for campaigning.

Democratic leaders Tuesday avoided the embarrassment of the day before when a roll call showed only 188 of the 432 members on hand. When the quorum issue was raised Tuesday they simply adjourned the House, 10 minutes after it had met.

The Senate, facing a possible filibuster on the nomination of Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to be chief justice, did better, with 67 members on hand Tuesday. The Senate had found itself without a quorum of 51 Friday and took 2½ hours to assemble one on Monday.

House Democratic leaders have decided to make it officially easy for members to get on with their campaigning, with the elections only six weeks off, even if the Fortas nomination and other business drags out the Senate session.

So far as these leaders are concerned, only one major new bill has to be passed at this session—a catchall appropriation bill.

The plan is, if the session drags on, to concentrate legislative business in one or two days a week and take repeated three-day recesses in between.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

SEVEN DAYS IN MAY
The Story of an Incredible Plot against the Presidency of the United States
Sponsored by: University of Massachusetts Young Republicans
Mahar Auditorium
Wed., Sept. 25th 8:00 p.m.
Donation 50 cents

DANCE: SEPTEMBER 27
The Blue Grass
Sponsored by Revelers
Admission 50 cents S.U. Ballroom

SOUTHWEST ASSEMBLY
Nomination Papers may be picked up in the Southwest Office, Coolidge (T-2) Lobby
Due Saturday, Sept. 28, at 4 p.m.
Elections will be Thurs., Oct. 3

Senate Seeks Quick Way To Skirt Fortas Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—With the belief growing in the Senate that Abe Fortas is not going to be confirmed as chief justice, efforts are being made to find a quick way out of the fight over his nomination.

Maneuvers being talked about but still in too early a stage to gauge their chances of success include:

-A motion to send the nomination back to the Senate Judiciary Committee, which approved it 11 to 6 last week after nearly three months of consideration.

-A resolution declaring the sense of the Senate that no vacancy exists on the Supreme Court as long as Chief Justice Earl Warren remains on the bench.

ABE FORTAS

Meanwhile, the start of Senate debate on the nomination was delayed by continuing series of controversial amendments to a minor tax bill that had been scheduled for passage last Friday.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D - Mont., told a reporter that he does not think a filibuster against Fortas's nomination already is under way, but he added "I could be wrong." ...

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager of the tax measure, said he did not think the spinning out of the debate on it was intended as part of an anti-Fortas filibuster but added "that's the way it's working out."

However, Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., scoffed at such talk. He said the principal amendments were being offered by Democrats to carry out administration requests.

Opponents of President Johnson's nomination of Fortas picked up another vote during the day when Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., announced he had decided to vote against confirmation.

This raised to at least 30 the number of senators who have declared they oppose confirmation.

An AP survey Sept. 10 showed that 26 senators were opposed then to Fortas's confirmation while 46 favored it. The survey, based on personal contracts and publicly stated positions, indicated that 23 senators then were uncommitted. Four were not reached. There was one vacancy.

A simple majority of 51 members is needed for confirmation, but a two-thirds vote of the 100 members is needed to end a filibuster.

Two Republican senators, unwilling to be quoted by name, reported that a resolution declaring no vacancy exists on the court was discussed Monday night at a meeting in the office of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill.

Dirksen, the Senate GOP leader who is on record in support of the Fortas nomination, told reporters that someone had mentioned such a resolution to him but declared he had not discussed it with Mansfield.

Mansfield said he had heard nothing about any such move and declared there has been no change whatever in plans to call up the nomination for debate and eventually seek to invoke the Senate's cloture rule to shut off debate.

Nixon Backer Expects Decline In U.S. Troops

SEATTLE (AP) — Republican Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin said Tuesday night U.S. troop strength in Vietnam is likely to decline by 90,000 by next June, no matter who is elected president.

Laird accused Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey of implying that only he could accomplish a cutback.

Laird, a member of the House defense appropriations subcommittee, said no one should consider the change a product of the Vietnam peace talks—or of the presidential campaign.

Laird said he had not discussed the subject with Richard M. Nixon, the Republican presidential nominee. Laird is accompanying Nixon on his current campaign swing.

Laird said the troop reduction "is—and has been—ordinary and methodical military planning."

"Hanoi must not mistake it," he said. "The American public must not misread it. And it's time a flailing Humphrey left it alone."

At a news conference, Laird refused to disclose the source of his information, but said he had revealed no classified data.

The congressman was asked repeatedly whether his statement did not confirm what Humphrey had said about troop reductions in Vietnam. He said it was up to the questioners to decide whether that was the case.

Laird accused Humphrey of "dangerous, harmful . . . confusing and, in my view, irresponsible talk" about reductions in U.S. troop commitments in Vietnam.

Laird said the United States has during the past 18 months equipped and upgraded South Vietnamese personnel while that nation has increased sharply its own draft calls.

He said U.S. requirements for construction and support personnel have eased, and "in the normal course of events" well over 200,000 Americans will be rotated back from Vietnam by next June

OPEN SMOKER
Phi Sigma Delta
WINNER OF THE PRESIDENT'S CUP,
PHI SIG'S SECOND HIGHEST NATIONAL AWARD
Come See Why We Got It!
Thursday, Sept. 26 — 10:00
at our chapter house
367 North Pleasant St.

252 SEPT 52

British Catholics Told To Follow Pope's Encyclical; Own Conscience

LONDON (AP) — Britain's four million Roman Catholics were told Tuesday to follow both the Pope and their own consciences on birth control.

Few thought this pronouncement from their bishops would do much to still the storm that has raged here since publication eight weeks ago of the papal encyclical continuing the Church's ban on the use of contraceptives by Catholics.

Some feared it might make the work of parish priests even more difficult.

Within hours after archbishops and bishops issued the message to their flocks, John Cardinal Heenan, head of the local hierarchy, said he would explain it further at a news conference Wednesday.

Some Catholics thought that the 30 bishops had taken a lenient and tolerant view of the problem facing many families over birth control. Others criticized their indecision.

The bishops backed Pope Paul VI fully when they declared, "It is against the plan of God to take positive steps to destroy the possibility of the transmission of life."

Yet later they referred in very careful language to the role of human conscience.

The encyclical was a statement of principle not a detailed personal guide, they said.

"The Pope does not attempt to tell parents how many children they ought to have. This decision is one to be taken by the parents alone in the light of all moral considerations laid down in the encyclical," the bishops said.

And at another point they added: "Neither this encyclical nor any other document of the Church takes away from us our right and duty to follow our conscience. The Pope, bishops, clergy and faithful must all be true to conscience."

Placement Meetings Scheduled for Thursday, September 26, 1968 at 11:15 a.m.

	LOCATION
1. All students interested in TEACHING Conducted by Mr. Charles F. Smith	Education Audit.
2. All ENGINEERING majors Conducted by Mr. Robert J. Morrissey	Goessmann Audit.
3. All WOMEN who are NOT planning a TEACHING career Conducted by Mrs. Dorothy B. Hardesty	S. U. Ballroom
4. All College of AGRICULTURE men Conducted by Mr. George E. Emery	Bowker Audit.
5. All BUSINESS, LIBERAL ARTS and PHYSICAL SCIENCE men Conducted by Mr. Clarkson S. Edwards	Mahar Audit.

PI BETA PHI

will hold

UPPERCLASS RUSH

at

Beta Kappa Phi Fraternity

406 N. Pleasant St.

WED. SEPT. 25 7 P.M.

THURS. SEPT. 26

Univ. of Mass.

SCUBA CLUB

invites

any interested student, faculty, staff to ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING.

Curry Hicks Lobby

Wed., Sept. 25

7:00

Coed Please bring swim suits—coed

The Brothers of

Theta Sigma Phi

in affiliation with

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Cordially invite all

Upperclassmen to a Formal

OPEN SMOKER

Thurs., Sept. 26, 1968

7:30 - 10:30 P.M.

Middlesex Room, S.U.

Jazz Workshop Presents First Program Friday

The new University of Massachusetts Jazz Workshop will present its first program Friday, Sept. 27, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

The group includes musicians from the University student body, supplemented by distinguished guests from the professional jazz world.

"With our currently rock-oriented popular music culture in mind, the Jazz Workshop is designed to provide an important and meaningful musical balance," said Andrew D. Haigh, the workshop's faculty advisor.

The Jazz Workshop cordially invites all members of the Five-College community and all those elsewhere interested in jazz to attend. Tickets will be sold at the door or in advance at a reduced rate at the Student Union Ticket Office.

Proceeds will be used to pay guest performers and finance future programs. Another Jazz Workshop performance is scheduled for Dec. 3, in the Student Union Ballroom.

Reservists Are Denied Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Earl Warren denied Tuesday a request by 43 Army reservists from New York to temporarily delay their impending departure for Vietnam until the Supreme Court decides the legality of their call to active duty.

Their attorney, Philip J. Hirshkop, filed the request earlier Tuesday with the court for members of the 74th Field Hospital, now stationed at Ft. Lee, Va.

He said his partner in the case, Michael J. Kunstler, now will seek a temporary stay for the soldiers from Associate Justice William O. Douglas, vacationing in Goose Prairie, ash.

Douglas granted stays to three other Vietnam-bound Army reservist units last week after Warren initially had denied their requests. A person can appeal to any justice after the one who supervises the geographic jurisdiction turns down an appeal.

All the soldiers are among some 17,000 Army reservists called to active duty by a May 13 presidential order.

Their attorneys are contending the soldiers can't be called to active duty legally for more than 17 days except in a national emergency or a declared war. They argue that neither criteria was met in the reservists' callup.

SENIORS!

Class of 1969

Executive Council

Applications Available

In R.S.O. Office

DUE SEPT. 30

OPEN SMOKER

Theta Chi

UPPERCLASSMEN

Formal; 7:30-9:30 Thursday, Sept. 26

Initial Plans For Homecoming Announced by Vice-Chairman

By Richard S. Kline
Staff Reporter

"Biggest and best ever is an old, worn out cliche, especially on this campus," claims Bob Joyce, Vice chairman of the Homecoming Committee. "But," he adds, "it probably most aptly fits this years' Homecoming."

The initial plans for the event, which culminates on the weekend of October 25, were revealed in the Daily Collegian yesterday.

"We're expanding Homecoming from its usual status of a weekend affair to a week-long event. We want to return to the true, traditional essence of Homecoming as The biggest event of the academic year," says Joyce.

Tom Mitchell, Homecoming's Publicity and Moustache Commitee Chairman.

Stressing "greater student involvement" in the affair, the vice-chairman of the activity and his committee is "planning the week to appeal to everyone."

In addition to the traditional concerts, "We'll have events spanning the spectrum from the old fashioned ideas of moustaches and raccoon coats to both the traditional and latest fads in entertainment."

The first of the planned events to be announced by the Homecoming Committee, a moustache contest, is perhaps, indicative of the new, expanded Homecoming activities. "We want to give individual students on campus a chance to get really involved in the week," Joyce claims.

The awards and prizes in the contest will be for: 1) the longest, 2) the bushiest, 3) the most unusual and 4) the moustache with the biggest "handlebars."

"As well as tickets to the concerts with preferential seating for the winners, we plan special presentations to the dormitories and the fraternities in the event," stated Joyce.

Registrar Postpones Re-exam After Thinking of the Motorist

Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin today announced that the Federally-required written re-examination of drivers on Rules of the Road must be postponed for at least one year.

The Registry had planned to inaugurate the re-examination effective in January, 1969, but Registrar McLaughlin said that legislative disapproval of funds made it impracticable to start the new program without necessary additional Registry Examiner personnel.

McLaughlin said, "If we tried to do this job without additional help, the result would be long lines standing outside Registry offices day after day in bitter Winter cold and in hot humid Summer weather. I think that the taxpayers are entitled to more consideration than that and I do not propose to start the new system until the necessary money and manpower are available."

The Registrar said that the new four-year photographic license will begin on schedule effective February 1, 1969. This system will require drivers to come personally to the Registry for renewal of their driving privilege once every four years at which time they will be photographed by an "instant photograph" system and will have their eyesight re-checked. The new photographic system will be available at all 34 Registry offices throughout the Commonwealth.

The Registrar discussed possible penalties in withholding Federal highway construction and highway safety funds because of the state's failure to undertake written examination procedures. McLaughlin said that he doubted any Federal reprisals of this sort would be taken since the new Federal Highway Appropriation Act recently signed by the President has deferred Federal penalties for another fiscal year.

I do not believe that Transportation Secretary, Alan S. Boyd, or the National Highway Safety Bureau Director, Dr. William Haddon, Jr., would wish to penalize any state which has done so well in other areas of the highway safety program.

I am confident that the Federal authorities will realize this is only a temporary postponement for fiscal reasons and that Massachusetts will, ultimately, conform to the National Highway Safety Standard relative to written re-examination of drivers."

Finally, McLaughlin emphasized that the written re-examination requirement will, when finally implemented, apply to all drivers regardless of age. He said that there had been misapprehension that re-examination was intended only for elderly drivers. "But," McLaughlin said, "this is not the case. It will apply to all drivers of all ages when it becomes effective."

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Government Troops Violate Traditional University Autonomy in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Student snipers battled police and army troops later Tuesday in Mexico City's worst fighting since the revolutionary days of the 1920s. A hospital official said at least 15 persons were killed in 24 hours of gun battles.

"It's still dangerous as hell out there," said an ambulance driver who delivered a wounded student to the hospital. Nearby armed students on the roof of the National Polytechnical Institute could be heard firing on police and soldiers.

More than 400 assault cars ringed the Santo Tomas Vocational School, part of the larger institute campus that was occupied by the army after a night-long battle.

The hospital official said the figure of 15 known dead was less than the actual death toll because students were seen hauling away some bodies as troops advanced on the vocational school before dawn.

The same official said about 35 persons had been wounded by gunfire, some of them seriously. They included bystanders and passengers on a bus gunned down by night riders early Tuesday. One man on the bus was shot in the back five times, he said.

It was the most serious crisis President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz has faced in his four year of office.

The sniping was so intense that troops occupying the vocational school pulled back to position around the walls. Nearby streets littered with remains of burned out buses, trucks, jeeps and cars.

A policeman said authorities were amazed at the amount of arms and ammunition possessed by the students. Most were .22-caliber rifles or pistols, easily obtained at low prices in Mexico.

The student disorders began July 26 after police broke up a minor rumble between rival high schools. The students said the police used unnecessary brutality, and demonstrations snowballed.

Besides demanding the dismissal of several Mexico City police officials, the students have voiced a host of other complaints. One of them is that the conservative Institutional Revolutionary Party, PRI, has controlled Mexican political life too long. The PRI has won every presidential its formation in 1928.

They are also demanding that the hated "grenaderos" — riot police—be disbanded, and removal of an antisubversion clause from the federal penal code.

On July 29 demonstrators and riot police clashed at a preparatory school near the national palace, and paratroopers used a bazooka to blow open the school door.

The students struck on July 30 and promised continuing demonstrations to disrupt the Olympic Games scheduled to begin Oct. 12. At one time more than 200,000 persons took part in a protest march demanding a "dialogue" with Diaz Ordaz.

Instead the president retaliated with sterner measures. On Sept. 1 he promised he would use all the force necessary to keep order. Diaz Ordaz added fuel to the unrest when he ordered the army to occupy the University of Mexico last week after receiving a tip that rebellious students planned to occupy the Olympic Stadium on the campus.

...It was the first time in nearly 40 years that federal forces set foot on an academic campus, and enraged students accused the government of violating Latin America's traditional university autonomy. Rector Javier Barros Sierra resigned in protest Sunday.

Diaz Ordaz, who has almost unlimited power under the Mexican constitution, justified the university occupation by charging that persons not affiliated with the university were using it for political ends. He said non-students were preventing students who wanted to study from returning to classes, which have been indefinitely postponed.

UMass Professor Publishes Study On Puritanism

A University of Massachusetts Professor, Everett H. Emerson, has completed the only available study of the entire Puritan movement and the only anthology of English Puritan writings.

Entitled "English Puritanism from John Hooper to John Milton," and published by the Duke University Press, the book traces the history of Puritanism in England from its beginnings in the reign of Edward VI to the eve of its triumph during the reign of Charles I.

The book attempts to achieve a measure of both breadth and depth by balancing an historical survey with a study of the careers and writings of 20 individual Puritans. Among those studied are Thomas Hooker, the founder of Connecticut; the famous satirist "Martin Marprelate"; the influential William Perkins; and the most famous Puritan of them all, John Milton.

The book contains selections from the writings of each Puritan treating such subjects as education, recreation, the fall of man, the selection of a wife, and the life of a Puritan saint.

NOTICES

INTERNATIONAL CLUB:
Coffee hour in Middlesex Lounge Wed. at 6:30.

HILLEL CLASSES:
Elementary Yiddish classes to be held at the Student Union at 6:30 Thursday.

NEWMAN CLUB:
Van Ryan's Express starring Frank Sinatra will be shown at 7 and 9 on Friday in Mahar. Members are admitted free; 50¢ for non-members. A Road Runner cartoon will be shown. First Coffee House to be held Sat. night from 8-11 in Newman Lounge. On campus talent invited to perform. 50¢ charge for non-members. Refreshments.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
Sat. 1:15 a free bus will leave for the Belchertown School from SU.

ROISTERS DOISTERS
There will be a meeting of the Roister Doister Dramatic Society at 7:30 p.m. Wed., Oct. 2 in the Bristol and Essex rooms of the Student Union. Officers will be elected, and plans for the annual production discussed. All old members and interested newcomers are welcome.

UMASS DAMES CLUB
Fall Fashion Show and General meeting to be held at Farley 4-H House at 8:15 Sept. 25.

INTERVARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Thurs., Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. Roger Dewey will speak on "Christianity and Racism" SBA 120. Discussion following lecture.

NAIADS
Optional practices for all those interested in trying out for Naiads, the University synchronized swimming group will be held tonight at 6:30 in Wone pool. Tryouts the 26th and 30th at the same time. Everyone, men and women are welcome to try out.

BIOCHEMISTRY SEMINAR
Wed., Sept. 25 at 4:30 in 259 Goessman, William Gelb will speak on "Studies of Methylation of Nucleic Acids."

HEYMAKERS:
Attention Heymakers, old and new Squares, we're meeting Wed. at 7:30 in the Union ballroom. Everyone invited. Old Squares urged to attend for election and new Squares for learning.

OPERETTA GUILD
Tryouts for Annie Get Your Gun tonight and tomorrow night at S.U.

PINNINGS:
Judith E. Lensner, 1969, Emerson to James L. Bernat, 1969, Delta Chi.
Judy Gravel '70, Lambda Delta Phi to George Hamberg '70, Holyoke Community College.
Donna Hamblett '70, Lambda Delta Phi to Carl Albro '70, JFK Lower.
Carol Neilson '69, Lambda Delta Phi to Dennis McKinstry '68, George Washington Upper.
Joy Eisentraut '70 J.Q. Adams Middle to Robert Stranger '70, Cance.
Nancy Ruth Stark '72, J. Q. Adams to Ralph Douglas Monroe '70, University of Rochester.
Christine Gould '69, Belchertown to Richard Harper '69, Brett.
Pam Dudley '69, 264 N. Pleasant St. to Raymond Gerbi '69, Lambda Chi Alpha, Colby College.

ENGAGEMENT:
Susan K. Pevzner '69, Brooks to Steven D. Brown, Northeastern Grad School.
Linda Rivera '69, 422 Thoreau to Robert Berseron '70, 226 James.
Mary Elizabeth Cook '71, Calvin Coolidge to Norman A. Ingles, U.S. Navy.
Mary Lea Mable '69, Johnson to Gary Bianchi '69, TEP.
Karen Taggart '70, Crampton to John Hubley '70, Beta Kappa Phi.
Joanne E. Burke '70, Chi Omega to Richard P. Milede '68, Tau Kappa Epsilon.
Marjorie Raschdorf '69, Mary Lyon to Greg Sclesska, Jr. '69, Brett.
Pam Mittelstadt '69, St. Vincent's School of Nursing, New York to Rick Nuccio '69, Colonial Village.
Linda DeCost '69, Crampton to John Day, Reading, Mass.
Jerry Iris Kaplan '70, Iota Gamma Upsilon to Alan Jerry Sher, Bryant College '68.
Jacqueline Day, Worcester to David Smith '69, JFK.
Priscilla Queen, Coolidge to Russell Chamberlain, Seabees, U.S. Navy, Davisville, R.I.

MDC

HOT NEWS

LINE 5-2550

THURSDAY EVENING SPECIAL PARTIES

8-12 P.M.

The Modern Sounds of Peter Finke

at the Electric Piano

The Cork and Bottle Room

Howard Johnson Motor Lodge

second floor center

AREA EAST

JUDICIAL SELECTIONS

OCTOBER 1

7:00 P.M.

Hampden Room

Do Something!!

Mama's Pizza

You've tried pizza — now try the BEST PIZZA in Amherst

FREE DELIVERY

Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

253-9858

103 No. Pleasant St.

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

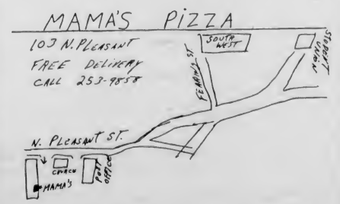
253-7100

256-6667

THE BROTHERS OF

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Cordially invite all upperclassmen to an



INFORMAL SMOKER

Wednesday, Sept. 25th, 1968

7:30 - 9:30 P.M.

374 N. Pleasant St.

ΛΧΑ

Pi Beta Phi's

UPPERCLASS RUSH

will be held at Beta Kappa Phi

406 North Pleasant St.

"Take your place in the leadership of the campus community"

Area East

Judiciary Selections

October 1

7:00 p.m., Hampden Room, Student Union

A Call For Awareness

It is inevitable that the students of UMass should lose contact with the world and its problems.

Snuggled away in the heart of the Pioneer Valley, one often finds it hard to believe that Americans are fighting and dying thousands of miles away in a place called Vietnam at this very moment. It is difficult to comprehend the fact that poverty, hunger, discrimination and disease still exist throughout our own country. And it is easy to forget that a national election is fast approaching — an election which will seriously affect our lives and the course of our country more profoundly than any to date.

Were we an urban campus perhaps this situation would not exist to such an extent. Urban schools such as Boston University, Harvard, Columbia, etc., have passed the panty raid stage and have gotten down to more serious business. Perhaps we might blame UMass' isolated location for the fact that the majority of student activity is still being expended for reasons which are at best dubious.

The time has come for the students of UMass to look over the horizon. Tomorrow's "Day of Awareness" offers such an opportunity to begin examining reality anew.

And this is something UMass and its inhabitants could definitely stand to do. —JHD

ROTC And Academia

When the Student Senate considers the status of ROTC on campus at tonight's meeting, hopefully the discussion will center around academic rather than moral arguments.

While questions concerning war and our involvement in Vietnam are open to a great deal of emotional and philosophical debate, it doesn't take one long to analyze the academic content of the ROTC curriculum and draw a conclusion.

ROTC definitely has its place, and that would appear to be apart from the realm of the academic community. —JHD

Guest Editorial

Beyond The Ivy

The time for Students on campus to become concerned about the issues of our society is now at election time, not at crisis time when the Senate has "failed" them, Senate elections offer students the choice of whether they want to move forward in student government or merely remain dormant for another year.

The Student Senate, often assailed as weak and inefficient, is a body without personality or aims before election time. The individuals elected will decide the future. It is their personalities in the aggregate that shape the Senate personality. The Senate is representative of the wishes of the students. It should reflect an active interest in the academic and social aspects of the University life as well as a keen interest in life beyond the "ivy". Election time offers the many factions on campus a chance to come together.

If the goals of the undergraduates on campus are to make the University a better environment for learning and living, then there is room in Student Government for any faction. This must be the year the Students begin to value each other's goals, aspirations, and worth to the community. If the student body is to move forward in student SELF-GOVERNMENT, this must be the year that students stop trying to rush in and get a piece of the action. We must insure that there is enough of the action to go around for everyone.

Paul J. Silverman
President, Student Senate

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.
BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor: Sue Gerson, Janet Howes; Sports Editor, Steve Shamban

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Cannon To Right Of Us, Cannon To Left Of Us, And Oh, Brother — "

INSIDE REPORT

HHH's Shallow Texas Well

AUSTIN, Tex.—Top figures in the Texas labor movement presumably one of Hubert Humphrey's bastions of support, are now so worried about his campaign that they are talking about the advisability of his resigning as Vice President.

Hank Brown, who presides over the state AFL-CIO and his highly regarded by all factions of the split Democratic party here, told us that Humphrey must do something "spectacular" to have any chance at all of taking Texas.

"He's got to become his own man and establish an identity of his own, and if that means resigning as Vice President, then so be it," Brown said.

Ironically enough, Brown's deepening worries about the campaign coincide with the first serious evidence that Humphrey is at last becoming a visible Presidential nominee here.

What may be a turn for the better came last week, when the Democratic party's fall convention passed a resolution (after a backstage battle) endorsing the entire party ticket, from courthouse to White House. That same convention also received President Johnson's warm endorsement of Humphrey in a telegram that had been scrupulously cleared with outgoing Gov. John Connally, the most powerful figure in the state party.

Moreover, the President's endorsement has now led to the first serious effort by Humphrey's campaign to build a campaign kitty in the sixth largest state, which is covered wall-to-wall by a carpet of oil, aircraft, and insurance money.

For weeks, the traditional Democratic party fatcats have held back, waiting to see what the President and Connally would do. In that interim, some money usually reserved for Democrats has been flowing into the coffers of Richard M. Nixon's smoothly efficient campaign.

Finally, a two-headed campaign operation is about to take shape, composed of leading non-elective Democrats: one (probably banker Walter Hall) who is close to liberal Sen. Ralph Yarborough; the other (probably Dallas attorney Robert Strauss, the National Committeeman) who is close to Yarborough's long-time antagonist, Connally.

But tender and modest as these campaign shoots are, there should be no mistake about their implications.

With political allies of the President and the Governor now ready to make a fundamental effort for the Humphrey-Muskie ticket, there can be little if any chance for a Humphrey break with Mr. Johnson over the war in Vietnam. Some of Humphrey's allies have been contemplating just such a break in the hope of getting Humphrey to stake out an independent position on the war, particularly the bombing of the north, and smoking out Nixon.

But when we asked top Democratic figures here when the President's friends would get busy and raise some money for Humphrey, the invariable answer was this: when the President and Connally are satisfied that Humphrey won't publicly break with Mr. Johnson over the war. The implication is clear that no such break is now likely, if it ever was.

Thus, the price of Humphrey's modest support by the Texas Democratic establishment may prove costly, and the benefits illusory. As of today, Nixon is far in front here and George Wallace, the arch-segregationist third-party nominee, is pressing close to Humphrey from behind.

Moreover, the Vice President's effort here has already been plagued by more than its share of campaign boo-boos. For example, a top-rank elected Democrat was actually turned back at the door when he sought, in reply to Humphrey's telegram of invitation, to pay his respects to the nominee on Sept. 10 in Houston.

It wasn't Humphrey's fault. It was nothing more than bad staff work. No one guarding Humphrey's door had heard of the guest, and his name wasn't on the calling list. But in this campaign, Humphrey can't afford the luxury of poor staff work.

Furthermore, the boycott of the intellectuals and youth that has beset Humphrey elsewhere is a major problem here in Texas. Backers of Sen. Eugene McCarthy are doing virtually nothing and unless Humphrey can follow Brown's prescription of something "spectacular" they're not likely to.

(c) 1968 Publishers-Hall Syndicate

Letters to the editor must be typewritten at 60 spaces and double-spaced. All letters must be signed by hand. Letters not signed in this manner and not typewritten will not be printed. Letters must not exceed 40 lines and are subject to editing and condensing. Names will not be withheld and pseudonyms will not be used.

Viewpoint

The "Involved" and The Evolved

By Professor J. F. Hanson

As the instructor of Evolution (Ent. 209) I feel that a comment from me is in order on the ad for the course that appeared in two issues of the Collegian last week. This is how it happened, along with some of the background discussion and thinking.

Several students who were gathered in my office to discuss some of the far-reaching implications and applications of evolutionary mechanics, as they often do, got worked up over the pathetic failure of college teachers to incorporate evolutionary mechanics as the supporting framework for understanding changes in their respective disciplines. As the boys got worked up about the fact that the Campus Powers have successfully hidden my course where few students know about it, one of them got the idea of advertising it in the Collegian. I suggested that this would hardly be appropriate (every attempt over the past 10 or 15 years to get this course accredited in the Arts for Science Distribution has failed) since it is not easily available to the students who might benefit most from a broad synthesis of all disciplines.

A few minutes later two of them stalked out of the room and over to the Collegian office, with a promise from a third for some financial support, and plunked down a check for $18 for a two-day ad for Ent. 290 across the bottom of a page in the Collegian. Even though I wasn't, at that time, very sure of my moral or emotional support of their action, I must confess that I am impressed with their dedication to a cause. They may well have done more in a few minutes to publicize the importance of understanding the process of change (which is what evolution is all about) than I have been able to do in 20 years.

Through regular channels I have been trying to get "Evolution" recognized and expose the inadequacies of some of the courses on this campus, particularly those in the behavior sciences and philosophy. Thus, I was glad to see the article by Richard Story "The Year of Curriculum Change" in Tuesday's Collegian, the same issue in which "my" ad appeared. I must congratulate him and the many other students who, because of their dissatisfaction with the courses and teaching on campus, are prodding the administration to take some action along these lines. Having written to several generations of administrators on this subject, I am with them 100 per cent.

My latest attempt, a letter to Provost Tippo of over six months ago, to the best of knowledge, has been ignored, despite pleas to the Provost. It is founded on the thought that in this day of knowledge explosion we must consolidate and integrate. This is best accomplished by a fundamental approach to operational mechanisms in each discipline. The basic processes in all disciplines have been shown to be isomorphic with the process of biological evolution.

The importance of teaching operational fundamentals in each discipline seems self evident. Imagine an engineer not understanding the fundamentals of his field and still keeping his job. Who amongst you would be the first to cross a bridge built by a man who didn't know the deep-down basics of metallurgy, mechanical stresses, etc.? And yet we find a strong line of resistance to such teaching among administrators and teachers in many fields, particularly in the Arts and the Humanities. No one has stated the need for reform in these fields better than the former President Herbert Hoover who, because of his engineering background took for granted the necessity of considering in human affairs the very mechanism by which we were designed, the biological evolutionary mechanism. In 1950 he wrote: "I have wished that the economists and sociologists and governmentalists generally would get together with the biologists. In the long run, society will be built upon the sums of human behavior. And that behavior has deeper roots than wishful thinking and exhortation. Those chromosomes which transmit the behavior through geologic ages ought to haunt the thinking of the social and governmental doctors."

There are some hopeful indications that the efforts of "fundamentalists" like Hoover have not fallen completely on deaf ears, even on this campus. (1) President Lederle, in his opening convocation address last week, used the word evolution three times and to show that this wasn't mere lip service made reference to certain features of the evolutionary mechanism, such as "survival", "adapt", and "powers of adaptation have never before been challenged as critically as they are today". (2) The Adelphians, during the past year, have dedicated their efforts and energies toward improving (change) courses and curricula and will continue to do so, I am sure. (3) The person or persons who wrote the thoughts passed out on mimeo sheets at President Lederle's opening convocation address did a masterful job of dealing with the problem of change (see last Thursday's Collegian) by emphasizing: (a) telling it like it should be (change), (b) dealing with the real world in our courses, and (c) the importance of emphasizing understanding, not memory.

CERTAINLY, IF WE ARE TO CONTROL FUTURE CHANGES, RATHER THAN BE VICTIMS OF THEM, WE MUST START TO THINK IN TERMS OF THE MECHANISM OF CHANGE.

I would like to believe that the administration is sincere in "their" stated dedication to better teaching (change) and innovation (change). Certainly the logic in President Lederle's address was quite above reproach. The question is one of the existence of a credibility gap. Does he (and his cohorts) really practice what he preaches? One has to wonder at what, over the years, looks very much like foot dragging. Statements like the one disributed at the opening convocation shows a great deal of frustration about getting more words than action. So does the recent activities of the custodians. And the article in a recent issue of the Hampshire Gazette by a noted State legislator seems to be along the same vein. Must we always come to the point of trying to publicly embarrass "them" before reasonable action can be obtained?

It is an accepted fact that it is dangerous to be outspoken and many have suggested that we may well be moving toward dome sort of teachers' union because of this situation. Why is it that the "involved" teachers, referred to in President Lederle's convocation address, end up as crushed men. one by one? Probably because the "involved" teacher is outspoken. It is noteworthy that at this moment, the lowest paid full professor on campus is a coach who has never had a losing season here. The lowest paid associate professor on campus, after 22 years of teaching here, has had to resign to take another position with a pay check sufficient to care for his family. The outstanding accolades to him by his immediate superior at a party in his honor as he leaves this campus was to his excellence as a

(Continued on Page 8)

The English Pub

presents a refreshingly different way to spend a WEDNESDAY evening

COME HEAR

CHARLIE BRADSHAW

at the piano

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

Blastina Boyd, alias "peg leg," has recently had her cast removed. Let's hear it for Blastina! 9/26

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1962 Chev wagon; 6 cyl. standard, new tires, new brakes, very clean $475. Call 1-532-1396 between 8 and 9 p.m. Located at 48 Amherst Rd., So. Hadley. 9/27

1962 MGA Mark II Roadster. The last MGA built. New top, batteries, two new tires, valve job. Tonneau and two extra tires and wheels, radio. Runs very well. 27 MPG. Call Chuck at 584-9361. 9/30

Rambler station wagon, 1965, 34000 miles by original owner, automatic transmission, excellent condition, new tires plus snow tires, radio & heater; $995. Call 584-1497 9/30

LOST

Lost or stolen in vicinity of 296 N. Pleasant St. Sept. 17, one black and white male kitten. Call 546-8193 or 253-5637. $5.00 reward. 9/25

FOR SALE

Vespa 125 cc. motor scooter for sale. Excellent running condition. Two helmets included. Must sell — going in service. Only $99. Contact Bill, 549-0169, 33 Phillips St. 9/26

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware, Tu-Fri 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412. 9/26

STEREOPHONIC TAPE-RECORDER: Roberts 997 professional model. Used minimally. Perfect for the serious music lover or musical group. Reasonably priced for such a high quality machine. 256-6449 (after 5). 9/30

For Sale: Used 35 mm Minolta camera. Included: Argus lightmeter, and Kallmar auxiliary teleloto and wide-angle lenses $50 buys all. Phone Arthur, 546-9464 10/11

Campus Comment

A Call For Awareness

To all faculty, staff, and administrators:

Are you one of the citizens of this University to whom President Lederle referred in his Convocation address when he said, "To many of them education is apparently the down payment on a lifelong meal ticket to material affluence, physical comfort, and the preservation of the status quo?" Or do you, like the President, "believe that we are here to confront, to challenge, to find a better way . . . (that) it is our role here to do something about 'like it is,' with the purpose of making life 'like it ought to be?'"

Thursday, September 26, 1968, has been chosen as a Day of Awareness. Rallies beginning in each of the Residence Areas will move across campus to the South Terrace of the Student Union. Beginning at 2:00 P.M., a program of speakers will discuss the major issues confronting America as a nation, and you as a citizen, today—issues which all three major candidates are refusing to acknowledge.

"Lawnorder" is not the only issue, especially when it means that order is more important than justice. There are thousands of people—white, black, Mexican, Indian, Puerto Rican—starving in America. This is an issue!

Hundreds of young Americans are dying in a major war against Vietnam. This is an issue!

This nation has been accused of being racist by a Presidential Commission. This is an issue!

Campus and urban riots are the symptoms of a deeper problem. This is an issue!

None of the candidates seem willing to give any more than vote-gathering lip service to these issues. Awareness Day will provide a discussion of them in depth. Students, faculty, and administrators are being asked to attend and participate in the discussions. Will you join us in trying to make life "like it should be?"

Please help us heed the President's call to find a better way. We have respectfully requested that faculty members announce to all classes on Wednesday and Thursday that Awareness Day will be this Thursday, September 26, 1968. We have further requested that they cancel their Thursday afternoon classes and meet with us, and their students, on the South Terrace at 2:00 P.M.

Art Cunneen, Chm.,
Committee for Student Awareness

Gilbert J. Salk,
Interim Exec. Sec.
Martin Luther King Jr.
Social Action Council

ROTC Commentary

To the Editor:

The very fact that the Student Senate is considering the abolishment of credit for ROTC courses is most commendable and indicates the political maturity of that body. As a veteran of one year of ROTC I found the benefits slight indeed.

It is true that I learned to shine my shoes well and to take apart an absolete rifle. The lessons in military history were somewhat interesting, although rudimentary and without much depth, and the propaganda films were amusing in a somewhat surreal way.

The fact that the government finds it necessary to bribe people to take upper level courses does not speak very highly of ROTC. Such bribery I beleve has no place whatsoever in an academic community and is in some ways even more disturbing than the fact that one also receives credits. Apparently the present regime regards soldiers as more important to the well being of the country than doctors, lawyers or teachers.

The question, however, is broader than merely the problem of ROTC on this campus. It is whether or not the university will continue to be a humble and obedient servant of the military-industrial complex. If the Senate passes the bill it will be a step in the right direction and the focal point of the university may, if the trend continues, once more be the education of the student in the purest and most meaningful sense of the word.

Michael G. Minsk

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Rapp's Delicatessen
AND RESTAURANT
79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
Delicious Salads -- Desserts
HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE
FREE DELIVERY
Every night 6-11 p.m.
Phone 256-6759
Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m
BIGGEST and BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

252 SEPT 512

Unrest In Europe -- Part 2

Paris In August

By Brian Braun
College Press Service

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second in a series of articles on European students by Brian Braun, Executive Editor of the University of Illinois Illini, who visited England, Ireland, Italy, Israel, Greece, France and Spain during the summer and spoke with hundreds of students, faculty members and administrators there. The articles are reprinted from the Illini by special permission of the author.)

Buoyed by a feeling of security they derive from belonging to the group, they were quickly moved to action. Foreign students were alienated by cultural differences and the existence of the already-established group—most of whom were Paris students or Left Bank dwellers whose conmmunication lines and political interests were strongly established.

Among them demonstrators (nearly all of whom were in their late teens or early twenties), the same environmental factors which motivate American students seemed to be present. The majority indicated by their appearance and speech that they came from middle-class French families. As groups of them spoke later, their idealism was readily apparent and their anger, distrust and frustration with established politics was quickly recognizable.

It is not difficult to understand why these students are participants in this type of action. They are brought up in homes with middle-class values that often directly conflict with what is, in fact, the social norm. As children they learn right and wrong values, yet as they mesh into the university community they learn that grays fill the spaces between the extremes.

Striving for independence, they are again bound by a rule-laden administrative body that appears remote and impersonal; none of the tactics that were previously successful against parents are now effective, so new paths for persuasion are found.

Bound together as a powerful interest group, the students are able to use their common frustration as a Maypole to rally round.

Sometimes the purpose for their action is muddled by the overriding motive—confrontation with wrong, confrontation with the establishment (black) for liberation and justice (white). The leaders come from roughly the same mold. Believing in right and wrong largely in terms of absolutes, and with a powerful need to lead and organize, they become the forces behind the group action.

After the confrontation with the police, I asked several students why they had marched. A 20-year-old girl told me they had hoped to show the Russians "they had made a mistake in Czechoslovakia." An arrested leader answered, "Like our confrontation with the University and the government last May, we marched tonight to show our government and the Russians what must be done about Czechoeslovakia."

A 22-year-old former Sorbonne student who lives near St. Germain in the center of the student district explained, "They were marching in frustration. They were genuinely mad at an older generation they view as a singular entity."

Wallace Visits Kentucky U

By Guy M Mendes
College Press Service

George Wallace, a man who has contributed greatly to the political polarization of this country, visited the University of Kentucky last Saturday and was greeted by a complete reversal of the polar stereotypes.

While eight "straight-looking" anti-Wallace pickets paraded and a number of neatly-attired members of a campus action group passed out anti-Wallace leaflets, some 35 scroungy, bearded, beaded, sandaled, long-haired "hippies" (as they called htemselves) demonstrated for nearly two hours in support of the former Alabama governor.

Carrying placards reading "Turn on with Wallace," "Keep America beautiful, get a hair-cut," "Sock it to us George," "America—love it or leave it," "Hippies for Wallace," and shouting slogans like "Law and Order Now" and "We're for Poleece Power," the group was curiously received.

Many of the crowd of 10,000 who turned out to hear Wallace were supporters from across the state. Some of them were able to perceive the tongues in the hippies' cheeks, but many were unable to cope with the reversal of stereotypes.

"I thought hippies were for McCarthy," said a Wallace supporter who appeared dismayed by the prospect of Association with freaks.

Other Wallace supporters could not overcome the stereotype and were sure the hippies were goofing on them. "You can look at them and tell they're not Wallace people," said one. "They're either doped up or ignorant."

Even Wallace was somewhat bewildered by the group when they gained his attention during his oratory. It was a typical Wallace speech, complete with catchphrases, Wallace witticisms and emotional appeals to the working man. All the same old lines were there:

". . . who can't park their bicycles straight . . . they looked down their noses at the people of . . . will be the last car they lay down in front of . . . never made a speech in my life that reflected on . . . got some free speech folk in this country . . ."

As the atmosphere grew tense, as the fervor spread in the crowd, the hippies came through to lighten the mood. They started chanting "Sock it to 'em George, sock it to 'em George."

Wallace, thinking the shouts came from one of the usual groups of adversaries who attend his speeches, pulled out several patented retorts from his repertoire: "All right, you're not goin' to get promoted to the second grade . . . you people don't know how many votes you get me each time you. . . ."

Then, pointing toward the group which was sitting high in the balcony he said, "You need a haircut," though he was too far away to see how correct he was. The hippie group began chanting even louder—"We want Wallace."

Wallace hesitated, took a step backwards, approached the mike again and said, "Oh, I think they're for us up there," which brought wild applause from the group. The little man with the slicked-back hair had been goofed on and didn't know it.

Later at the airport, when asked about the hippies he was to say, "If they're really for me, I'd be glad to have them."

To the hippies, it was a romp at a high level of satire. They converted the new left victory signal into a three-fingered "W" for Wallace and they also amended the "Hell no, we won't go" chant to "Heck yes, we want George"—a somewhat morally re-armed version of the anti-draft original.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Guy Mendes is associate editor of the Kentucky Kernel in Lexington.)

VIEWPOINT . . .

(Continued from page 7)

teacher, personal friend and placement officer of each of his students.

Make a list of the faculty members and administrators who have left this campus in recent years and you will find that it is more often the fresh cream than the sour milk that is being drained away, frustrated by a university unwilling to let the "involved" teacher rock the boat a little. What has happened to the winners of the Distinguished Teacher of the Year award (who are often outspoken) is also an interesting study. Only by rocking the boat once in a while will we discover whether or not it is really seaworthy.

So, please, you "trouble makers", keep up the good work. And please proceed logically, methodically and patiently, though not too slowly, so that in the end the results will be worthy of the effort.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Q. T. V.
invite all upperclassmen to an
INFORMAL SMOKER
Wednesday Sept. 25
7:00 - 9:00

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Phi Sigma Kappa
cordially invites
all upperclassmen
to an open FORMAL SMOKER
Thurs., Sept. 26 10:00 p.m.

You have the power
to turn this university
upside down--peacefully
SENATE ELECTIONS OCTOBER 3
6-9 P.M. IN RESIDENCE HALLS
Commuters, Fraternities, Sororities — 9-5:30 p.m. in Student Union Lobby
Correction: Pick up nomination papers in Student Union Lobby! (Not R.S.O.)
Completed papers are due
Friday, September 27 by 5:30 p.m.
at the Senate table
in the S.U. Lobby
STUDENT POWER
RUN! VOTE!
Student Senate Public Relations Committee

Donald S. Call
If while playing . . .
You broke your glasses –
Save the pieces and bring them to us for exact duplication.
"FINE EYEWEAR DOESN'T COST—IT PAYS!"
56 MAIN STREET
AMHERST, MASS. 01002
253-7002

We, The Brothers of
Tau Kappa Epsilon
Cordially invite all upperclassmen to attend our
OPEN SMOKERS
Wed., Sept. 25—7:30 p.m.—Formal
Thurs., Sept. 26—7:30 p.m.—Informal
401 North Pleasant Street

DON'T JUST SIT THERE!
Take a walk to the THREE C's
featuring:
THE PEANUTS SHOWCASE by Ambassador cards

Also Barricini candy, gifts,
Hummel figures, stationery, etc.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Radical Students Agree, Support Revolt in Mexico

NEW YORK (AP)—An international conference of student radicals, deeply divided through six days of meetings over how to make revolution, has agreed finally to demonstrate in support of the student revolt in Mexico City.

The conference sessions often disintegrated into shouting matches before the Monday night decision.

The foreign representatives claimed that American radicals lacked discipline and were prone to dash into the streets without a plan. The Americans complained that the foreigners talked a lot about theory and what they had done in the past, but lacked spontaneity and ideas of what to do now to promote worldwide revolution.

About 20 foreign students attended the meeting sponsored by the militant Columbia University chapter of Students for a Democratic Society, which led the demonstrations last spring that crippled the school.

The foreigners represented groups in France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Mexico, England, Canada, Norway and Sweden. They met against a background of red flags, a Viet Cong Flag, pictures of Mao Tse-tung and Che Guevara.

The conference ended late Monday

Dr. Wolf Given Editorial Appt. On Ed. Magazine

Dr. William C. Wolf, Jr., coordinator of educational research at the University of Massachusetts and professor of education, has been named editor of the Educational Researcher, official monthly publication of the American Educational Research Association (AERA).

Dr. Wolf has experience in university, federal and foundation research administration. He succeeds Dr. Jason Millman of Cornell University as editor.

The Educational Researcher reports affairs of AERA and its members and provides important perspectives on educational research in general and on the Washington scene in particular, Dr. Wolf noted. "It is a lively, occasionally controversial, comprehensive publication," he said.

The Index would like to announce that the 1968 yearbooks are available in the Index office in the Student Union. All students who have not received their books, may pick them up anytime. The Index office is located on the second floor balcony to the left of the RSO office.

SOMETHING OLD
SPECTRUM, spring 1968
SOMETHING NEW
SPECTRUM, fall 1968

SPECTRUM is looking for material for the November issue . . . deadline October 14th at the latest . . . in

- Fiction
- Drama
- Book, music and play reviews
- Satire
- Scientific, political and philosophic essays
- Art
- Photography
- Poetry

Material may be brought into the Franklin Room or left in our mailbox, #102, R.S.O. office.

Strikes Affect Everything From Children to Garbage

The New York City teachers strike, which is affecting 1.1 million children, enters its 13th day Wednesday, the latest in a series of public employee strikes and slowdowns to hit the nation's cities.

Within the past year New Yorkers have had to endure two teacher's strikes, a strike by garbage collectors that left tons of refuse on the streets and slowdowns that snarled air traffic and commuting on the Long Island railroad. A subway slowdown was attempted but proved less effective.

And now city officials are hearing talk of strikes by firemen, policemen and garbage collectors.

Public service labor leaders say their unions to a large extent are going through the same period of intensive growth and struggle for recognition that industrial unions went through 30 years ago.

But government employes are handicapped, say their leaders, by the fact that many states do not provide for collective bargaining—or any realistic alternative they can employ to seek higher wages and better working conditions.

Every state has one provision or another prohibiting strikes by public service unions. In New York, the Taylor law provides for fines up to $10,000 a day for each working day the employees are on strike.

Its backers hailed it as a model for public employee disputes. But since it went into effect last September the teachers and sanitiation unions heve struck and their leaders have gone to jail for contempt of court.

Miller of Smith Music Dept. To Give Recital

Robert M. Miller of the Smith College music department will give a piano recital in Sage Hall 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 29.

The public is invited to attend without charge.

He will play Suite, Opus 25 (1924) by Arnold Schoenberg. This will be the first performance of this work at Smith.

Miller will also play Prelude and Fugue in E Flat Minor, Bk. 1, WTC by J. S. Bach; Sonata in A Major, Opus 120 by Franz Schubert; Nocturne No. 6 in D Flat Major by Gabriel Faure; Toccata by Francis Poulenc; Pavane Pour une Infante Defunte by Maurice Ravel; and L'Isle Joyeuse by Claude Debussy.

Miller has taught piano and music theory at Smith since 1961. Educated at Northwestern University, he studied in Paris under two Fullbright grants and received the Licence de Concert from the Ecole Normale de Musique.

Faulty Electric Fence Allows Prisoner to Escape

BOSTON (AP) - A prisoner who escaped from the Massachusetts Correctional Institute last week was aided by a nonfunctioning electronic security fence system.

The faulty system has been turned off for more than two years it was revealed Tuesday in a report issued by State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko.

Last Friday Robert G. Dellello, who was serving a life sentence for murder, escaped in a heavy fog. Supt. Philip J. Picard said he doubted the prisoner would have escaped if the system was working properly.

In the report, Buczko said the fence was contracted in 1961. The fence was supposed to detect the approach of anything of 50 or more pounds.

The system never worked properly and often was tripped by birds, wind or the rain, causing much confusion in the guard towers.

If you see news in the making, call 5-2550 Hotline

The Faculty Group on Peace and War has learned that the FBI has been questioning Students at Connecticut Universities and Colleges who were arrested recently in Chicago. The faculty group urges any UMass students who may be approached by an FBI agent to contact a lawyer immediately.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

The Brothers of Sigma Alpha Mu
cordially invite all upperclassmen to an
OPEN SMOKER
Thursday at 10:00 p. m.
Formal: Refreshments will be served

CANDIDATES NIGHT
All Prospective Student Senate Candidates
Should attend an orientation meeting in the Student Union Council Chambers Thursday, Sept. 26, from 7-9 p.m.
Senators, Senate Officers and Committee Chairmen will be present to answer any questions.
CANDIDATES SHOULD ATTEND
Student Senate
Public Relations Committee

Decorate
your room with WALL
POSTERS
from
A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
45 So. Pleasant St.
Open Weekdays
5 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Sundays
5 a.m. to 1 p.m.

THE BROTHERS OF
Tau Epsilon Phi cordially invite all upperclassmen
to OPEN SMOKERS on
Wednesday, Sept. 25 - at 10:00 P.M. – Informal
Thursday, Sept. 26 - at 9:00 P.M. – Informal

Baseballers Take Two From Springfield College

By Steve Shamban
Sports Day Editor

UMass varsity baseball mentor Dick Bergquist enjoyed as successful a weekend as a coach could expect during a fall practice schedule as his Redmen swept a Saturday doubleheader from Springfield College 8-5 and 4-3. Neither game was particularly well played, as the total of 11 errors will attest, but several sophomores played well indicating possible strengths for the future.

In the first game, Springfield rocked Redman hurler Dick Rappolli for five runs on four hits, two walks, one stolen base and one error. Two of the four Chief hits were triples by soph Steve Steitz who looks like he's going to be a good ballplayer.

The Redmen redeemed themselves somewhat in their first with three runs. Mitch Salnick singled, stole second, went to third on Steve Stanford's single and Bob Hansen walked to load the bases. Co-captain Tony Chinappi then scored Salnick on a fielder's choice and Warren Mason singled sharply to left plating Stanford and Hansen.

Three more UMass runs in the second decided the issue. Chuck Espanet singled to left, Dan Roberts, pinch-hitting for Rappolli, singled, and Salnick singled Espanet in. Stanford bounced out, scoring Roberts and an error by the shortstop on Chinappi's grounder plated Salnick for the deciding run.

The remaining two Redman runs in the fourth and sixth were driven in by junior Bob Hansen on a single and a triple to deep right making the final 8-5. Pitchers Norm Elliot and John Kitchen wrapped up the last five innings with little difficulty.

Sophomore pitching held up strong for the Redmen in the second game as the foursome of Don Anderson, Lou Collabello, Jack Bernardo and Dick McAuley held the Chiefs to three runs on five hits and three errors.

Springfield's ever-present Steitz was responsible for all three runs as he had one rbi and scored on two errors. Errors were costly all day to the Redmen and one can only hope that they are not portents of things to come.

UMass wrapped the game up in the first inning on a two run triple by Dick Pepin, a fielder's choice by Tim Berringer and a triple by soph Steve Verenis.

DIAMOND DUST—Sophomore outfield candidate Mitch Salnick had a big day reaching base six times out of eight with two stolen bases. Stanford had three hits in the first game while slugger Hansen had two triples.

York, Becker Gain Varsity M

(Continued from page 12)

Gray with a sprained knee who will be out this week for sure and possibly next week in Delaware . . . Noel Schablik had the cast removed from his ankle Monday, but a start for him at Buffalo is also doubtful . . . Tom York gained a cast last night, but it will be removed Fri. morning. It's doubtful that he will be seeing any action this Saturday, either.

No Free Play

Boyden will be closed to free play on any Sat. when there is a home football game. It will be open on all other Sat. unless otherwise notified.

Booter Offense Opens Up

(Continued from page 12)

of the play was in the AIC end of the field as the Redmen outshot the Yellow Jackets by a 2-1 margin.

One fault singled out by Broaca, was the tendency for his team to overpass the ball while on offense. He blamed the overpassing, especially among the sophomores, as the main reason for his team not scoring in the first half.

However, the Redmen seemed to straighten out this difficulty and came up with the three second half goals and just missed on several other opportunities.

The Redmen are 2-1 in full length scrimmages and with a 2-0-1 record in a jamboree appear to be ready for the home opener against Maine Saturday morning at 10:30 on the field in front of Boyden Gym.

In these preseason games, the Redmen were very strong defensively as they have allowed only two goals to be scored against them. Meanwhile, the offense has come alive with seven goals in the last two games, after scoring but three times in the first four contests.

COLLEGIAN SPORTLINE
545-0344

Have A GRINDER & PEPSI from the CARRIAGE LIGHT
at SOUTHWEST by Prince House
and CENTRAL by Gorman House
WEEKDAYS — 7 P.M. - 12:30 A.M.
FRIDAYS — 7 P.M. - 1:30 A.M.
SATURDAYS — 12 NOON - 1:30 A.M.
THANKS

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING
Daily—7:00 and 9:00
Sat. 1:30-3:30-5:20
Sun. 7:20-9:20
Plus
Select Shorts
Doris Day-Robert Morse
Terry-Thomas-Patrick O'Neal
"Where Were YOU When The Lights Went Out?"
PANAVISION and METROCOLOR
When N.Y. Became the 'Fun' City

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

NOW!
Cinema I
The original uncut versions
Still the Screen's Greatest
Double Creature Feature!
"FRANKENSTEIN"
BORIS KARLOFF—Shown at 7 & 9:30
- - - Plus Bela Lugosi in
DRACULA
Shown at 8:15
NOW! Cinema II
MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
in Albert Camus
"The Stranger"
Shown at 8:15 & 9:45
plus JAMES COBURN in
"The Presidents Analyst"
Shown at 8
Next to Zayre's
Campus Twin Cinemas
256-6411

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

SHA LAMB PATH
EAR OGEE ERIA
EIR PETTINESS
PRIDE TEOS
VE ALL LSIS
HOE PIE EVADE
IS PAL FOG EA
PLIES MAN AAR
SOON CAT AS OILS ENTER
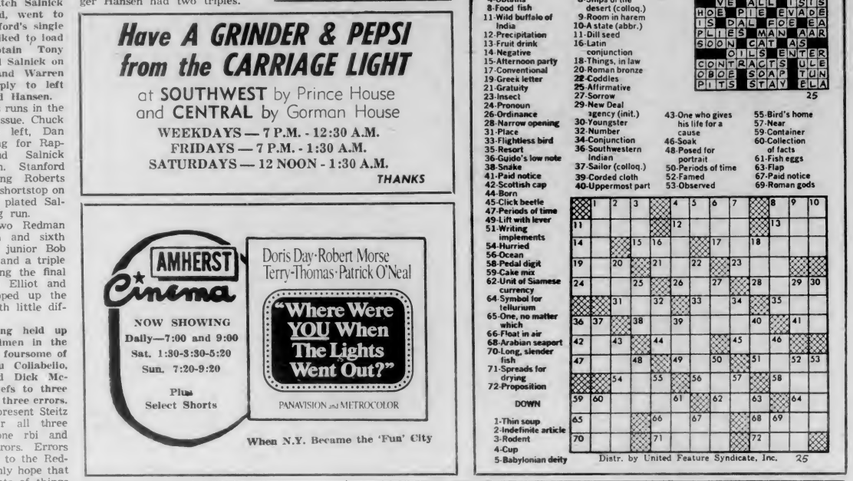
CONTRACTS ULE
OBOE SOAP TUN
PITTS STAY ELA



25

ACROSS

1-Prohibit
4-Obtains
8-Food fish
11-Wild buffalo of India
12-Precipitation
13-Fruit drink
14-Negative
15-Afternoon party
17-Conventional
19-Greek letter
21-Gratuity
23-Insect
24-Pronoun
26-Ordinance
28-Narrow opening
31-Place
33-Flightless bird
35-Resort
36-Guido's low note
38-Snake
41-Paid notice
42-Scottish cap
44-Born
45-Click beetle
47-Periods of time
49-Lift with lever
51-Writing implements
54-Hurried
56-Ocean
58-Pedal digit
59-Cake mix
62-Unit of Siamese currency
64-Symbol for tellurium
65-One, no matter which
66-Float in air
68-Arabian seaport
70-Long, slender fish
71-Spreads for drying
72-Proposition

DOWN

1-Thin soup
2-Indefinite article
3-Rodent
4-Cup
5-Babylonian deity
6-Metal
7-Supercilious person
8-Ships of the desert (colloq.)
9-Room in harem
10-A state (abbr.)
11-Dill seed
16-Latin conjunction
18-Things, in law
20-Roman bronze
22-Coddles
25-Affirmative
27-Sorrow
29-New Deal agency (init.)
30-Youngster
32-Number
34-Conjunction
36-Southwestern Indian
37-Sailor (colloq.)
39-Corded cloth
40-Uppermost part
43-One who gives his life for a cause
46-Soak
48-Posed for portrait
50-Periods of time
52-Famed
53-Observed
55-Bird's home
57-Near
59-Container
60-Collection of facts
61-Fish eggs
63-Flap
67-Paid notice
69-Roman gods

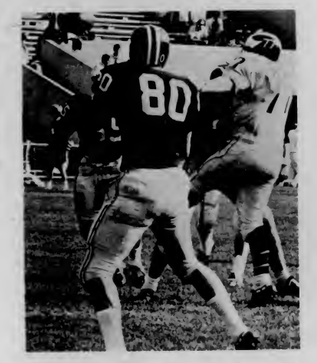
Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 25

THE WIZARD OF ID — by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. — by Johnny hart

SLOW MOTION GRACE—Steve Parnell, Redman safety, has a fallen Black Bear to hurdle on his way down the turf.

BAGGED BECKER—Tight end Alan Becker (81) is tackled hard by safety Fran Griffin (11) of the Maine Black Bears.



OOF—Fullback Bruce Cochrane grimaces in misery after missing an intended pass from quarterback Tim Adams.

THROUGH THE AIR—A Redman cheerleader does some acrobatic stunts for a good cause—a UMass victory over Maine, 21-3.

REDMAN SNAG — Steve Rogers (left) and Bill Frye bat down an errant pass in Saturday's game.

FAKED OUT—Nick McGerry (80) and Randy Robinson (85) converge for the pass reception on a fake field goal attempt that scored a first down for the Redmen.

WORDS OF ADVICE OR CONSOLATION—Black Bear Coach Walt Abbott confers with his quarterback, Dave Wing, during their beating from UMass.

Daily Collegian
Football Pix
By John Kelly

SEPT 1952

"The High Cost of Excellence"

$390,000 Budget Divided 50 Ways in Hopes of Victory

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

Last Saturday students were again treated to what has become practically an institution here at UMass, victory in athletic competition. This wasn't always. Only little more than a decade ago, a Redman football team was plowed under to the tune of 77-0. And generally speaking, UMass teams always finished as "also rans."

Fortunately, for alumni, students and fans, that era is little remembered history. In five of the last six years, the Redmen have captured the coveted Keany Trophy, emblematic of overall supremacy in Yankee Conference competition.

Outside the league, UMass has more than held its own, also. When our student athletes in maroon and white uniforms visit any section of the northeast, they are treated with respect both for their sportsmanship and excellence in competition.

The increasing quality of our teams has brought along with it an increasing quanity of teams. During the 1968-69 academic year, 34 varsity, freshman and SSA teams will carry the colors in formal competition.

The monetary backing of all this activity is financed, in large measure, by a fee assessed on all undergraduates. In many universities, as at UMass, this is specifically designated as an athletic fee; at some institutions, students pay a general fee part of which supports their intercollegiate program.

During the 1968-69 academic year, approximately 13,000 Redmen undergraduates will fork over $30 apiece totaling $390,000 toward the Athletic Department budget.

Director of Athletics, Warren P. McGuirk and his staff started early last fall to prepare a budget for each of the 34 teams. They first try to pinpoint as closely as possible the estimated costs of equipment, team travel, visiting team guarantees, game officials, police, ticket salesman, ushers, and dozens of other items required to conduct each sport. As might be suspected a football team budget bears little resemblance to that of the rifle team, either in amount or line of items.

After many gruelling sessions, the proposed budget finally gets pared to the point where expenses are balanced by income. At this time, the budget is reviewed by the Finance Committee of the University Athletic Council.

Subsequently, the whole council, comprised of four alumni, five faculty members and the President of the Student Senate, proposed a blueprint which is submitted to University President John W. Lederle and his fiscal advisors, who ultimately present it to the Board of Trustees for final approval.

A look at the budget shows the largest of almost 50 items to be the operating expense which takes $106,000 off the top. This item is large however because it includes $72,000 in salaries for sports information people, a ticket manager, a financial manager and several others. The Commonwealth provides salaries for all the full-time coaches and a large number of support personnel.

Next largest item is the Stadium Debt Service, $80,000. The new Alumni Stadium had to be financed by the Building Authority with bond authorization included in the Athletic Trust Fund Budget since the state provided no replacement when the original Alumni Field where Whitmore now stands, was torn down in early 1965.

The largest team item is the $73,000 earmarked for varsity football. It costs big-time money to play big-time football as you see from that figure. Football helmets cost $25 apiece for example. Another interesting statistic is the price tag for the Buffalo trip this weekend. Approximately $5,700 will be spent to put the UMass team on the field at War Memorial Stadium Friday night.

Other team budgets range in size from varsity basketball ($18,200) to freshman tennis ($350). Add to the team totals a few miscellaneous items such as Athletic Injury care which includes $8,000 paid to the University Health Services for services rendered and $2,300 for health insurance; band and cheerleaders ($3,100); Intramurals ($10,000); Women's Athletics Association ($8,500) and modest contingent and capital outlay accounts and the money is spent.

Crew, though not yet a formalized University sport, gets $2,000 (out of contingent) and considerable logistic support from the Athletic Staff.

As with most budgets the impossible generally happens. Contingent gets drained, but miraculously someone doesn't spend all their money and the year ends up in the black. Before the cheering subsides at Boyden, however, Dean McGuirk and his staff are preparing the budget for the coming year.

Athletic scholarships and grants in aid as currently limited by the much publicized Yankee Conference 20-Formula (20 scholarships per class in football and basketball) are approved by the Barber Award sub-committee of the University Scholarship Committee. Financing for such awards comes from gate receipts, football programs, guarantees, special contributions, game concessions and such.

So as in any other area of endeavor in life, excellence carries a high price tag. UMass students who compare their intercollegiate Athletic and Intramural programs and facilities with those of other New England state universities must consider themselves well-off. Only one of the other Yankee Conference schools provides a program approaching the quality and diversity for student participation.

With the approaching completion of our own Olympic track and significant progress being made toward a dream of a hockey rink, a really complete program is on the horizon.

So the Athletic Department is rapidly moving toward a plan to comply with the Trustee's 1958 directive to develop athletic and intramural programs "representative of the best efforts of the University, with aims and ideas . . .comparable to those expected of academic departments."

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

PRACTICE KICK—Co-Captain Wilke Wood sends ball downfield in pre-season practice session.

Booters Top AIC, 3-0, In Final Scrimmage

By Walt Stachura
Staff Reporter

Prepping for its official opener Saturday, the UMass soccer team blanked American International College (AIC), 3-0, with a strong second half surge in their final preseason scrimmage.

After a scoreless first half, Duane Brown opened the scoring with a low shot into the corner of the net after taking a good lead pass which broke him into the clear.

A few minutes later into the third period, Brown had another golden opportunity but was foiled by a fine diving save by the Yellow Jackets goalie.

The Redmen continued to apply the pressure throughout the period but were unable to score as some of their shots just skidded wide of the AIC goal.

Early in the fourth quarter, Manty Mughogho poped in the second UMass goal as his high floater from in front of the net just went in under the crossbar.

Mughogho's goal seemed to spur the Redmen on and halfback Dave Dec tallied the third Redmen goal. His long shot was partially deflected by the goalie's hand but still slammed into the corner of the net.

After Dec's goal, the Redmen seemed more concerned to protect their shutout for their three goalies, Steve Kramer, Tom Malone and John Knox, who all saw action during the game. With a strong defensive showing the Redmen kept the ball away from their own goal and achieved the shutout, their fourth in a row.

UMass soccer coach Peter Broaca was well pleased with the efforts of his team during the scrimmage, especially with the ball control by his offense. Most

(Continued on page 10)

Gridmen Set for Bull Fight

By Tom FitzGerald
Senior Reporter

When the Redmen shuffle off to Buffalo this week, they may face the most difficult game of the season. Such was the prognosis of new assistant coach Milt Piepul at yesterday's Varsity "M" Club luncheon.

The Bulls have the "best-balanced club" since Coach Doc Urich took the reins three years ago, Piepul said. "They compare very favorably with B.C. and Holy Cross," he said, citing the other two tough ones on the UMass schedule.

Piepul should know. The former Notre Dame star fullback was lured to UMass this year from the Cross after coaching stints there and at Dartmouth and Brown. Saturday, he was in Kent, Ohio, watching Buffalo rip Kent State, 21-13, and the week before, he saw the Bulls bow to Iowa State, 28-10, in Ames, Iowa.

Although highly rated quarterback Mike Murtha is out for the season with an injury, the Bulls have power to burn in the running of tailbacks Ken Rutkowski and Pat Patterson, he said. But he added that Buffalo may not be up to snuff in the defensive secondary, which allowed 305 passing yards in the Kent State game.

Friday's game, first night game for the Redmen in four years, is slated for an 8 p.m. kickoff in 45,000-seat War Memorial Stadium.

The Redmen will fly from Bradley Field in Windsor Locks, Conn., at 11 a.m. Friday and, believe it or not, will set up camp in the Lord Jeffrey Amherst Inn in Amherst, the section of Buffalo where the new part of the State University of New York is situated.

During yesterday's luncheon in the Newman Center, first gathering of the season for the "M" Club, members of the University administration were conspicuously absent. But "M" Club officials are confident of larger crowds for the luncheons, which are scheduled each Tuesday of the football season and may continue, less frequently, during the basketball season.

"M" Club president Tony Williams announced the first two winners of the club's weekly football awards — junior defensive end Tom York and tight end Alan Becker—for their glittering performances in Saturday's 21-3 trouncing of Maine.

York, a 6'1, 200-pound psychology major from Bedminster, N.J., appears off to his second outstanding season. York suffered an ankle injury early in the game but continued to apply his usual forceful tactics.

TOM YORK

Becker grabbed three passes but made an even greater impression for his consistent blocking. Coach Vic Fusia said the 6'4", 200-pound hotel management major from East Rutherford, N.J., may have to fill in at defensive end Friday night unless York's injury heals. Fusia said that whenever he reprimands Becker in practice, "It crushes me."

The coach also had kind words for the surprising efficiency of huge Dick Donlin, the rookie tackle who executed 89 percent of his blocking assignments against Maine, "one of the highest percentages we've ever had," Fusia said. "It's almost unheard of."

He noted the successful switch of Mike Cooney from tackle to guard. "We're such great coaches. We had him out of position for two years."

UMass' pass blocking for quarterback Tim Adams was superb, according to the Redmen coaches, citing center Bob Sheehan, guard Bruce Fulton and tackle Jim Nangle in addition to Donlin and Cooney.

"Adams was a little confused early in the game, but he came into his own," said Fusia, who promised continued emphasis on passing Friday night. He also predicted that the 1968 season will feature the outside running of the speedy set-backs much more than past years.

REDMAN ROUNDUP — Adams was named to the All-East Division I team for his first starting performance . . . Fullback Ed Sarno caught four passes Saturday and a wife Sunday. A large number of his teammates journeyed to Waltham for the wedding . . . Karen Kirrane was the blushing bride; Bob Goc was the best man for his teammate. Present home is in Belchertown . . . Will they be honeymooning in Niagara Falls after the Buffalo game this weekend? . . .

Fred Hunprich has been sidelined with a broken collarbone for at least "six weeks" according to Redman trainer Vic Keedy . . . Other casualties are Dennis

(Continued on page 10)

Last Night's Intramurals

FOOTBALL SCORES
Fraternity League
Spartan Division
PSD 14, SJS 12
TC 32, DC 0
ZN 42, PLPhi 0
Athenian Division
PMD 83, APO 0
AEPi 14, TEP 12
BKPhi 38, SAM 0
Trojan League
QTV 26, TKE 6
SPE 18, ASP 0
LCA 28, PSK 0
Independent National Road Runners-Bouncing F's, Forfeit
SX 12, 3 M's 0
Little Feitas 12, Bulldogs 8
West Residential Hall League
Hi Lo's 26, Hoovers 0
Bears 28, Chestnuts 0
Hickory 8, Hicks 8
East Residential League
Phalanx 16, Lemons 6
Aces 25, Rams 0
Grad-Fac League
Selobassas-LA Club, Forfeit
CIA Rejects 12, Least Squares 6

Weather Forecast: Like Autumn

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 26 14 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1968

STUDENT SENATE ADOPTS 'NO ROTC CREDIT' MOTION

By Chris McGahan
Student Govt. Editor

The Student Senate's second regular meeting of the fall semester was called to order by Student Senate President Paul Silverman in a Council Chambers packed with observers waiting to hear the Senate debate the fate of credit for ROTC courses at the University.

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert

An overcrowded 3 Council Chambers forced the Student Senate last night to reconvene in the Student Union Ballroom. Arguments pro and con were heard on the ROTC Course Credit issue.

Before the debate began Silverman made a series of announcements and appointments. Appointed were: Paul Silverman as Fine Arts Council alternate; Senator Steven Walt and Mary Ware to the Academic Honesty Committee of the College of Arts and Sciences; Richard Story and Senator Joseph Kilmartin to the newly-established Committee on Undergraduates; Barbara Ditkoff and Chris McGahan to the Ombudsman Committee; and a number of area judiciary appointments.

President Silverman then requested that S147 and S148, the two bills dealing with ROTC credit, be taken up out of order. This motion was defeated.

The agenda was taken up in its regular order. Two bills submitted by former Senator Patricia Petow calling for publication of the Athletic Council budget and for the establishment of a faculty-student committee to investigate "what are the circumstances under which students should be required to pay an athletic fee?" The report would be delivered by February 1, 1969. The latter motion passed unanimously.

A bill amending the Judicial Act to require notification of a defendant within twenty-four hours after receipt of a written complaint against him, submitted by Senator Jim Moran, was also passed.

An act to appropriate "sufficient funds to cover the deficit of the Operetta Guild" was committed to Finance Committee pending action of the Fine Arts Council this morning.

After disposing of three other

(Continued on page 2)

Emotions Run High Over ROTC Issue

By Richard Lane
Staff Reporter

"It is probably the most emotionally charged issue that could come before the campus now."

These are the words Richard Story, Chairman of the Student Academic Affairs Committee, used to describe two resolutions before the Student Senate on the abolition of academic credits for both lower and upper level Military Science courses on this campus, last night.

Story's remarks proved to be indeed accurate as a solid two hours of debate preceded the actual voting on the issues.

To see just how high feeling on the night's issue would rise the Collegian interviewed a number of students before and after the meeting.

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert

Pros . . .

From the meeting's outset there appeared to be a very large and significantly vocal majority of the audience favoring the proposed Senate resolution to abolish ROTC credit. Many wore symbolic black and red armbands and represented various student activist groups such as CSA (Committee for Student Action).

One unidentified male student stated that he believed credit should be given for lower level ROTC because it gives the individual the opportunity to "see how the military works and serves as a valuable experience." On upper level military courses he added however, that they "support the military" and that this is "not the purpose of a university."

He added that "Students should have a chance to see both sides of the issues." As a consequence the student offered a solution of having courses in "radical politics" available in order to "balance out" everything.

One young University coed told the Collegian before the meeting that she "realized that the discussion will reach both the realistic and idealistic levels," but that she definitely thought the Senate "should abolish credit for it." She also felt it was not the purpose of the University to offer this type of course.

Donald Legg, an active member and supporter of the ROTC program expressed his hope that the meeting would remain "open-minded" but feared that discussion might center on "moral issues" rather than academics. Legg stated his belief that students in the ROTC program should be given credit because "they deserve it."

Once the issue reached the Senate floor both the academic and the emotional-moral aspects came out.

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert

. . . and cons.

Senator Fred Hartwell was applauded when he told the meeting that "ROTC credit is unjustifiable" without equivalent courses in revolution and radicalism offered.

The applause and cheers and even standing ovations continued whenever strong arguments were given to abolish ROTC credit.

Consequently when Senator Moran spoke out in favor of ROTC credit by telling the audience to "be real and don't avoid the reality of the situation" he was hissed. Moran was also laughed at when he told the audience that the purpose of ROTC drill is to "build confidence" in the students.

Despite the emotional tone which seemed to be characteristic in many speakers, the meeting did accomplish clearing up many misconceptions concerning the ROTC program on campus.

In addition some speakers such as Bart Kaplan managed to bring out very valid and objective points in making their arguments clear. Kaplan, for instance stated that he considered military science courses unworthy of credit because they failed to meet various standards such as subject matter, instructor-student relationship, and materials used in the course.

Those in favor of the Senate resolutions seemed to agree that the ROTC program has no real worth or meaning in an academic community while the students such as Legg and Moran who oppose the Senate resolution attempted to describe the ROTC program by comparing it to other University study areas.

When the voting finally had been finished and the amendment supporters won by an almost 2 to 1 (21-12) margin there

(Continued on page 2)

Day Of Awareness To Be Held Today

A "Student Awareness Day" will begin on the University of Massachusetts campus today beginning at 1:00 p.m.

Plans call for marches to originate in the Northeast, Southwest and Orchard Hill areas and proceed to the campus pond.

There will be speakers and group discussion at the pond in addition to jug band music and other groups.

Those slated to speak are:

Rev. A.C. Ross: Minister from the Riviera-Brightwood sections of Springfield.

Rev. Ron Hardy: campus minister and chairman of the committee of directors for the Martin Luther King Social Action Council.

Art Cuneen: chairman of the committee for Student Awareness Day.

Gil Saik: executive secretary of the Martin Luther King Social Action Council.

Jact Deaver: professor in French and Comparative Literature at the University.

Among topics to be discussed by these speakers are the racial situation, poverty program, war in Vietnam, Biafran war and campus riots.

According to Saik, organizer of today's action, the program is to "make the student body more aware of the major issues in this campaign. At present, none of the political candidates are discussing these issues in depth."

Another proposed speaker, Art Cuneen, said he will "make it known to students who do sympathize against the war and who are concerned with such issues as civil rigts, that they are not alone in their feelings. Many peo-

(Continued on page 2)

26 SEPT 26

SENATE . . .

(Continued from page 1)

minor bills, the Senate, having moved by now to the Ballroom because of the overflow crowd, got to the major items considered last night.

Vice President Frederic Hartwell presented a substitution amendment for S148, which was taken up out of order. As originally worded the bill "Moved to recommend to the Provost that the ROTC program on campus be abolished." Hartwell's amendment abolished academic credit for lower level ROTC courses, making provision for review of this stand if "the lower division ROTC courses . . . develop any significant extra-military faculty participation and interdisciplinary character . . ."

Hartwell noted that this would accomplish the same end as the original bill by removing any incentive for anyone to join. President Silverman noted that he would conduct the meeting in the manner of an open forum, allowing anyone he recognized to speak for three minutes.

Representatives of ROTC and campus peace groups were given equal opportunity to express their views.

Several Senators also debated the motion.

After nearly two hours of debate the motion passed on a 21-12 roll call vote.

S147 was considered next.

Chris McGahan, Chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee when the bills were considered, presented the committee rationale for unanimously passing the bill, which called for the abolishment of credit for upper level ROTC courses. He traced the history of the comittee's investigations, noting that they began as a result of SPA anti-ROTC demonstrations during October, 1967.

Senator Moran, a member of Air Force ROTC, noted that he would not address himself "to those of you out there somewhere in a dream world." He went on to comment that ROTC is a reality, that the military is a reality, and that he would be placing his life "on the line" for two years "to protect," looking directly at the large group of observers, "your right of free speech."

Responding to his remarks, Senator Larry Marcus noted that if "the military continues to be a reality, someday, maybe, an atomic bomb dropped on America will be a reality." Marcus said "They should be learning the anatomy of a revolution, not how to prevent one."

Bart Kaplan, graduate student in English and an active campus radical, outlined four criteria he as a teacher used to determine the academic legitimacy of a course, commenting that ROTC courses failed all four criteria. Despite defense of the program by Cadets Robert Larson, Dermott Curran and others, the bill also passed on a 21-12 roll call vote.

In the Senate's final action of the evening, Senator Paul Paplauskas introduced a motion to place the two bills on a general referendum. He was supported in his efforts by Senators Elinor Needle, Deverton Cochrane, and Joseph Kilmartin. The motion was opposed by Vice President Hartwell. He claimed that upcoming elections for every Senate seat would serve to vindicate or repudiate the Senate's actions. The motion was defeated and the meeting was adjourned.

Graduate Senate Elections Now Taking Place on Campus

Annual elections for the Graduate Student Senate are now taking place in departments with graduate enrollment, according to Thomas Minogue, GSC president.

The elections are based on a representation of one senator for each 50 graduate students on the rolls of a department, but no more than three from any one department.

The elections are preparation for the first Graduate Student Senate meeting of the 1968-69 academic year which will take place Monday, Sept. 30 at 8:30 p.m. in the Plymouth and Norfolk rooms of the Student Union. The public is invited

Elections are expected to continue into October, according to Minogue. Department - wide groups of graduate students wishing to hold elections may get in touch with Minogue by phone at 5-2173 or with David Yelton, vice-president, at 5-1356 or Ethan Roberts, treasurer, at 5-2865 or Michael Rosen, secretary, at 5-2587.

According to Minogue, the Graduate Student Senate is intended to represent the interests of graduate students vis-a-vis the university administration and faculty. It is now occupied with proposals for a procedural code for handling charges of violations of rules and regulations which may be brought by elements of the university graduate students to replace the present informal system for levying administrative sanctions.

The GSS is also interested in situations created for graduate students as the result of last summer's cutback in National Science Foundation funds scheduled for UMass Minogue said. The size of the cutback threatens the level of support for graduate students with incomes from these funds.

GSS is also concerned with such issues as housing, on-campus parking privileges for graduate students, and the level of fees charged graduate students by the university and its use of the funds raised, Minogue said. He cited as an accomplishment of the GSS the fact that the two graduate students were named to the 18 member university committee which will select a person to fill the now vacant post of Dean of the Graduate School. This vacancy was created last summer when Dean Edmond C. Moore resigned to take a post at another university.

This year for the first time the body will be funded, Minogue said. A tax of 50 cents a semester per graduate student on the rolls of UMass will be paid from fees charged such students by the university. The GSS will have the power to disburse these funds.

Further information on elections of the Graduate Student Senate and the activities of the body will be released when they are available.

EMOTIONS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

was wide applause and standing ovations from the floor as well as the traditional victory hand signs, by many.

After the meeting when questioned again by the Collegian, ROTC supporter Donald Legg stated that he "still feels students should get academic credit" for ROTC but has no further plan of action at present. He did express his relief that the night's discussion "really hit the academic plane" rather than the emotional.

One student senator seemed to disagree however as he stated that the whole meeting appeared to him very "emotional," indeed.

Whatever else one thinks, however, be it along moral, or academic lines, as one student senator so aptly put it, the ROTC credit situation is definitely an "extremely important and relative issue."

DAY OF AWARENESS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

ple have just given up on the issues because progress is being made so slowly in these areas."

Continuing, he said that a Day of Awareness is necessary to the University community in order to involve the students and faculty in the major issues of the day.

Plans for the Day were voted on and supported by the Martin Luther King, Jr. Social Action Council last Thursday.

The meeting was attended by students Deitra Eastmond and Ken Mosakowski, faculty members Isadore Silver and Robert Tucker, Rev. Ron Hardy of the Chaplain's Office, Assistant to the Provost Dallas Darland, Interim Executive Secretary Gilbert Salk and Assoc. Dean of Students Mark Noffsinger.

Noffsinger was one of those faculty and administration members asked to speak today. He declined for personal reasons.

Asked his overall opinion on the idea of a Day of Awareness Noffsinger told the Collegian that he "supports very much" the idea, but expressed "genuine disappointment" at the lack of "more advanced preparation," on the part of the group.

The Assoc. Dean of Students went on to state that, regarding any possible trouble coming out of the day's activities, "I certainly hope that we are free on this campus to discuss any issue that is relevant to the students and the total community."

THURSDAY EVENING SPECIAL PARTIES
8-12 P.M.
The Modern Sounds of Peter Finke
at the Electric Piano
The Cork and Bottle Room
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
second floor—center

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

AREA EAST
JUDICIAL SELECTIONS
OCTOBER 1
7:00 P.M.
Hampden Room
Do Something!!

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

ATTENTION NEW STAFFERS
of the
DAILY COLLEGIAN
THE LAST OF OUR
INSTRUCTIONAL DISCUSSION SESSIONS WILL BE HELD
TONIGHT
-- Thursday, Sept. 26, 8:30-9:30, Norfolk Room, S.U.
All New Staffers Must Attend at Least One of These Sessions.

Politics '68

NIXON

SEATTLE (AP) — Richard M. Nixon campaigned afloat Wednesday, urging a buildup in U.S. sea power, and then declared there will be no reduction in American combat strength in Vietnam.

Nonetheless, the Republican presidential nominee said technical progress in the war zone may make possible some American troop withdrawals which would not affect combat capabilities.

Nixon said that some American troops may be removed from Vietnam because of greater participation in combat by South Vietnamese forces, and because of a lessening of requirements for U.S. support and construction men.

"But I agree there will be no reduction in combat strength while the Paris talks are under way," Nixon said.

HUMPHREY

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey urged Wednesday that his two presidential opponents, Richard M. Nixon and George Wallace, join him in a cross-country debating tour in the tradition of the Lincoln-Douglas debates.

Humphrey urged that the candidates be heard together on the same platform in the same towns at the same time so that on Nov. 5 "we wouldn't be voting on who has the most razzle-dazzle, the most money . . . the most slogans."

Humphrey made the dramatic proposal in informal remarks to 200 students who met him at Peppardine College. Earlier in a speech to older citizens, Humphrey promised that if elected he would work for a 50 per cent increase in social security benefits.

Humphrey, standing in the sunlight outside the college cafeteria, said "I haven't had a television advertisement since Aug. 20 because we haven't had the money . . . so help me God."

Humphrey has been hammering at his demand for Nixon to join him in a debate like the Nixon-John F. Kennedy debates in 1960.

Humphrey strategists, acknowledging they are lagging as of now, hope a debate with Nixon — and Wallace — would put their candidate ahead.

WALLACE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach said Wednesday presidential candidate George C. Wallace brings shame to the phrase "law and order."

Katzenbach, referring to Wallace's efforts to block integration of the University of Alabama in 1963, said, "when the governor of a state ignores a court order and then goes and preaches law and order, that term is as denigrated as it can be."

Katzenbach, who faced Wallace at the door of the university as a Justice Department official at the time, made the statement in testimony before the President's commission on violence.

MUSKIE

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP)— Some 50 college students chanting "Stop the War" and booing drowned out Sen. Edmund Muskie as he addressed a rally Wednesday at the Washington County courthouse.

The students, from Washington & Jefferson College, started the uproar a few minutes after the Democratic vice presidential candidate started to deliver a prepared speech.

Street Violence Erupts In Boston Racial Disturbance Spreads From Schools

BOSTON (AP) — Violence and disorder moved from public schools to the streets of Boston Wednesday as police and Negroes clashed after incidents of vandalism and looting.

Gov. John A. Volpe, in Los Angeles campaigning for the Nixon-Agnew ticket, notified his office Wednesday he was returning "on the first available flight" because of concern over community tensions in Boston.

Twelve persons were admitted to City Hospital with injuries suffered in the disturbances which were centered in the black areas of Dorchester and Roxbury.

Public schools, which had been the focal points of disturbances and demonstrations for two days, opened quietly.

The violence broke out as Negro adults and youths returned from a black power rally at Franklin Park in Dorchester. The rally was an outgrowth of Negro demonstrations earlier in the week for permission to wear African costumes to school.

Helmeted policemen cleared several hundred persons—mostly young Negroes—from the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority's Dudley Street station after an officer was hit on the head with a liquor bottle.

Rocks and bottles were thrown after the station was cleared, and five police officers were treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises suffered in the melee.

About 300 police, armed with nightsticks, cordoned off the area for about 30 minutes, and all business establishments closed for the day.

Several hundred Negroes attended the Franklin Park rally and heard militants stress black nationalism and self-determination.

A half-hour battle between police and Negroes in the Roxbury section followed the rally. Bricks, rocks and beer cans were thrown at police, who used nightsticks to break through a crowd at one intersection.

A former Boston School Committee chairman, Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, was chased by about 100 Negro youths at the rally.

She and a woman identified as her secretary were standing about 100 yards away watching the rally when the youths, some of them yelling "Get Mrs. Hicks," ran towards them.

Mrs. Hicks and her companion escaped before they were harmed.

Mrs. Hicks, who opposed bussing plans to desegregate city schools when she was a member of the School Committee, was an unsuccessful candidate for mayor last year.

Dr. Lin Dao Yang To Speak On "The Science Of Peace"

Dr. Lin Dao Yang, retired president of Chung Chi and United Colleges in Hong Kong and a distinguished alumnus of the University of Massachusetts, will speak on "The Science of Peace" this afternoon at 4 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the UMass Student Union. The talk is open to the public without charge.

Friday at 11 a.m. in the Student Union Nantucket Room, Dr. Lin will speak at a seminar for faculty and students on the topic "Land Resource Management in Communist China."

The seminar, open to all interested persons, is co-sponsored by the Center for International Agricultural Studies and the department of agriculture and food economics.

The talks are part of a five-day visit to the University made at the invitation of President John W. Lederle and co-sponsored by the UMass Asian Studies Program and the Center for International Agricultural Studies.

Friday at noon the visitor will be honored at a Student Union luncheon sponsored by the Asian Studies Program and the Center for International Agricultural Studies. Friday afternoon he will be interviewed over Five College Radio Station WFCR.

Czech Lecture Tonight

The lecture on "Czechoslovakia Today" concerning the present Soviet invasion and its impact on world affairs will be given in the lounge of Nosh Webster Residence Hall at 7 p.m. tonight by Dr. Ferenc A. Vali, UMass professor of government. Please disregard last night's Collegian headline which seemed to suggest that the lecture was given last night.

Perpetual Panty Raids Pose Puzzling Problem

Nightly panty raids, set in a background of scattered fireworks and discharging of water bombs from balconies, sung to the tune of obscene language, are fast becoming the "order of Business' 'on Orchard Hill.

Wednesday night at 9 p.m. some 150-200 male students marched up the Orchard Hill walk and stationed themselves in front of Emily Dickinson Residence Hall. The group's chantings went on for about 15 minutes with intermittent booing when their demands were not met.

The students began to disperse across the Quad towards Field House after one male student managed to climb onto the third floor balcony of Dickinson and was immediately apprehended. A small group remained for about 10 minutes with the majority of the "mob" marching off towards the Webster parking lot.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

THE BROTHERS OF
DELTA CHI
Cordially invite all upperclassmen to an informal smoker tonight
at 9 p.m.
For Rides, Call 549-0415

DANCE: SEPTEMBER 27
The Blue Grass
Sponsored by Revelers
Admission 50 cents S.U. Ballroom

You have the power
to turn this university
upside down--peacefully
SENATE ELECTIONS OCTOBER 3
6-9 P.M. IN RESIDENCE HALLS
Commuters
Fraternities
Sororities
9-5:30 p.m. in Student Union Lobby
Correction: Pick up nomination papers in Student Union Lobby! (Not R.S.O.)
Completed papers are due
Friday, September 27 by 5:30 p.m.
at the Senate table
in the S.U. Lobby
STUDENT POWER
RUN! VOTE!
Student Senate Public Relations Committee

International Student Radicals Hold Meeting On Revolution

NEW YORK (AP) — Student radicals from 10 countries showed plenty of zeal but little solidarity during a conference on revolution that ended here this week.

The six-day meeting, the International Assembly of Revolutionary Students, was sponsored by the Columbia University chapter of Students for a Democratic Society, which led the student strike that closed down Columbia last spring.

The conference was held to give American and foreign student activists a chance to share their experience in working toward bigger and better revolutions.

But the theorists clashed with the activists and what might have been dialogue often disintegrated into shouting matches.

The foreign students appeared to feel that the Americans had little understanding of revolution, lacked discipline, and were prone to rush madly into the streets.

Some of the Americans felt that the foreign students tended to talk and lecture interminably about theory and what they had done in the past.

Crowds at the evening sessions numbered from 300 to 800, but only about 20 participants were from foreign countries—France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Mexico, England, Canada, Norway and Sweden.

The radicals agreed at their final session Monday night to hold another demonstration in support of the Mexican students this weekend. By the time the meeting closed, however, they still had not agreed on details.

Gibson School Dispute Goes To Court Mon.

BOSTON (AP) - All parties involved in a dispute over six teachers suspended by the Boston School Committee in connection with a boycott at the Gibson elementary school were ordered Wednesday to appear at a hearing Monday in Suffolk Superior Court.

The teachers seek an open hearing before the School Committee in their bid for reinstatement.

The teachers were suspended after they decided to accompany their pupils when organizers of the school boycott led them from the Gibson School to a "liberation school" nearby.

COLLEGIAN SPORTLINE

545-0344

Olympic Pres. Denies Racial Charges

CHICAGO (AP) - Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, says racial charges against him are a "complete distortion of facts."

Brundage made the statement Tuesday after 21 Negro athletes and an assistant coach of the U.S. Olympic team training for the Games at South Lake Tahoe, Calif., signed a petition calling for Brundage's removal as head of the IOC.

Brundage, who will celebrate his 81st birthday Saturday before leaving for Mexico City, site of the Olympic games Oct. 12-27, allegedly made the racial statements on a national television program.

The Negro group, including assistant coach Stan Wright charged that Brundage "dared us to participate in protest and then threatened us with a quick trip home.

Brundage said the questioned remarks apparently stemmed from a question and answer session following a Sept. 17 speech before the National Press Club in Washington.

Brundage said "There seems to be a complete distortion of facts in the matter. There were no dates nor threats.

"The fundamental basis of the Olympic movement is no discrimination of any kind-racial, religious or political. Every competitor is judged on his own merits.

"The Olympic Games, however, must not be used as a tool or weapon in any controversy and they are not a forum for protest or demonstrations of any kind.

"It made a general statement that demonstrations are not permitted at the Games, that the word boycott is not used in Olympic circles and that demonstrators of any nationality would be sent home. This is a permanent Olympic policy."

In the Amherst-Smith Summer Theater Production of Jean Genet's "The Balcony," the Thief (Sarah Foore, Sm '71) is harassed by the Executioner (Brock Putnam, AC '70) and the Judge (Gene Gaddis, AC '69). Repeat performances are being given this weekend at Kirby Theater on the Amherst College campus. All seats are reserved—$2.00 Saturday evening, $1.50 Friday, Sunday and Monday. Curtain is at 8:30. For reservations call 542-2278.

Campus Chest Raises $1200 For NSSFNS

Last year's UMass Campus Chest drive succeeded in raising $1,200 in funds which have been allocated to the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro students. This money along with federal aid has helped place black students (those participating in the "Upward Bound" program) from Massachusetts in local colleges, the students being placed in schools which would be most suitable to the individual academic and economic needs. Other Campus Chest contributors within the five college area have been Amherst College and Mt Holyoke College.

NSSFNS is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization providing college referral services and scholarship aid to black students on a non-fee basis.

Hugh W. Lane, President of NSSFNS, has announced for 1968 twenty-four new scholarships made available from funds raised by twenty-seven separate college drives including one high school, (Phillips Exeter Academy). Their efforts have resulted in $13,000 which has been placed in a Combined Campus Chest Supplementary Scholarship Fund.

The twenty-four Combined Campus Chest scholars come from thirteen states and have enrolled as freshmen at twenty-four colleges in fifteen different states. They represent a sizeable proportion of the 345 NSSFNS scholars who are in attendance this year at 192 American colleges. Freshmen among the NSSFNS scholars number 134 with the remainder sophomores and juniors. NSSFNS does not make senior year awards, preferring to spread its limited funds among new students less able to get help elsewhere.

Pay a visit to the THREE C's to browse among the wide variety of cards, candy, gifts, and school supplies -- don't forget THE PEANUTS SHOWCASE by Ambassador Cards

OPEN SMOKER
Phi Sigma Delta
WINNER OF THE PRESIDENT'S CUP,
PHI SIG'S SECOND HIGHEST NATIONAL AWARD
Come See Why We Got It!
Thursday, Sept. 26 — 10:00
at our chapter house
367 North Pleasant St.

Amherst Optical Shoppe
195 No. Pleasant St.
featuring:
- immediate attention to emergency repairs
- large selection of fashion-right frames
- excellent display of custom-fitted sunglasses

don't chance losing your glasses, come in and have your name engraved on your frames for a small charge.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

The English Pub
REMEMBER!
Coats and ties are required wear after 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR XEROX COPIES
We certainly hope you aren't paying 10 cents a copy. More likely you're paying 5 cents. That's still too high! GNOMON COPY SERVICE cuts this price in half and more! Our rates are 5 cents for the first copy of an original, and for multiple copies of the same original, even lower: 3 cents each for the second thru tenth copies and 2 cents each from the eleventh on.
Service while you wait, or overnight. Forty copies a minute.
gnomon copy service
FREE Collating 103 North Pleasant St. Store No. 9 Amherst, Massachusetts Phone 253-7393 FAST Service
XEROX COPIES AT:
5c — 3c — 2c

NES Sponsors Tutoring Service For Springfield Students

"Do you give a damn?"

The Martin Luther King Social Action Committee erected a sign on the southwest tunnel asking the question of students walking through the pedestrian passageway Sept. 18.

Their purpose, Gilbert Salk, Executive Secretary said, was to try to promote more campus interest in the Northern Educational Service.

NES is a tutoring agency sponsored by the federal government, providing a one to one relationship between a college student and a Springfield area student ranging in age from six to eighteen years and coming from a low income family. Special talent says Salk, is not required since tutoring is in the basic learning skills.

Transportation to nine Springfield centers will be provided by the King Council. Interested students should attend a meeting Thursday. Sept. 26 at Mahar Auditorium at 8:15 P.M. Students unable to attend the meeting may call 5-2661 for more information.

WMUA Program

Student Senate Members To Discuss Campus Issues

"Last night's Senate action to recommend abolition of academic credit for R.O.T.C. courses was actually a representative vote of the entire student body," says Staff Sheehan of WMUA.

"Speaking for their consititutents, the senators debated, raised mostly pertinent questions, and received more information than the average student on this campus about R.O.T.C. courses."

Next Thursday most of these Senators will be up for re-election for another year. They have had the opportunity to express their views on this important issue, among others in the past, and now WMUA is offering the same chance to the student body.

For those who are considering becoming involved in the senate yourself, or are just curious what the current issues on campus are, "Student On Campus", tonight at 9:30 on WMUA—91.1 FM will fill you in.

Moderator Staff Sheehan's guests this week include Senate President Paul Silverman, Student Government Association Committee Chairman Dev Cochrane, (responsible for the actual running of the elections), among other Student Senators.

Students desiring to attend the 1969 University of Massachusetts Summer School in Bologna, Italy, should see Professor Howard H. Quint, room 724, Thompson Hall on Tuesdays between 2 and 4 p.m. or by appointment (see Miss Wilkey in the History Office, room 714). Students from all schools and departments of the University may apply. All other things being equal, early applicants will be given preference for acceptance into the program which is limited to 65 students.

Those students who attended the 1968 Summer School in Bologna are requested to contact Professor Quint at their earliest convenience.

Asst. Prof. of Home Economics Named Chairman of Food Management Seminar

Mrs. Jane F. McCullough, assistant professor of home economics at the University of Massachusetts, has been named chairman of the 16th annual Food Management Seminar to be presented in January by the Massachusetts Food Service Educational Council and the University of Massachusetts.

The sessions are scheduled for Jan. 22, 23, and 24 at the University. Vice-chairman is Charles Coulson of Cambridge, manager of the Harvard Faculty club.

Announcement of the selection of Mrs. McCullough was made by council president Carl E. Jensen of Boston, Group Director in New England of Restaurant Associates Industries, Inc.

Mrs. McCullough is a graduate of Ohio University and did graduate work at Oklahoma and Cornell Universities. She came to the University of Massachusetts in 1954 and teaches quantity food and service courses in the School of Home Economics' department of food and nutrition to home economics and restaurant and hotel management students.

Previously, she was food service director at St. Joseph's College in Indiana, had a similar position with Douglas Aircraft Co. in Oklahoma, and served as a member of the Ohio University staff. She has been a consultant for many firms and food service organizations; is a member of the American Dietetics Association, Food Service Research Association, and Phi Tau Sigma; and is a past president of the Western Massachusetts branch of the Food Service Executives Association.

The Massachusetts Food Service Educational Council is made up of the Massachusetts Restaurant Association, Massachusetts Hotel - Motel Association, New England Club Managers Association, Massachusetts Dietetics Association, Boston and Western Massachusetts branches of the Food Service Executives Association, Massachusetts School Food Service Association, and the Epicurean Club of Boston. A committee of representatives from each of these industry groups is assisting Mrs. McCullough with plans for the seminar.

The annual food management seminar brings together at the Amherst campus each January people from all phases of the state's food service industry to study problems and consider industry trends and developments. More than 300 attended last January.

Clifford Stops Republican Prediction of Cut in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford knocked flat Wednesday a Republican prediction that the United States likely will cut its troop strength in Vietnam by next June.

At the same time, Clifford's statement by implication challenged forcasts by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic presidential candidate, that systematic reduction of U.S. forces should be possible soon.

The defense chief spoke out a day after Rep. Melvin R. Laird R-Wis., said in Seattle that by June 1969 "we are likely to have fewer U.S. troops in Vietnam—by some 90,000—than we have today, unless the military situation deteriorates."

Laird is a member of the House defense appropriations subcommittee before which Clifford testified in secret earlier this month. There was no immediate indication as to whether Laird was present. The defense secretary disclosed his previously secret testimony, given Sept. 10.

Clifford recalled that he was asked by Rep. Glenard P. Lipscomb, R—Calif., whether there was a basis for reports that there would be a substantial decrease in U.S. troops in Vietnam either late this year or early late next year.

The defense secretary recalled that he testified then that:

"No such information was coming authoritatively from the Pentagon.

"We had no plan to reduce the number of troops in Vietnam at all.

"We had an authorized figure of 549,500 and we would maintain that figure until there was some development that caused us to decide that we could bring some home.

"I was unwilling to say that there was any specific time when we would bring some home.

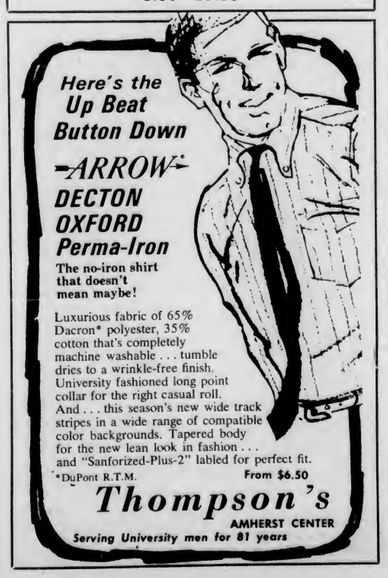
"I could not predict the return of any troops in 1969." Clifford said he wanted to restate that position at this time.

Nominations are now being accepted to Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges. The selections are being based on four major criterion: Student Scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the University. Nominations will be accepted from any individual or group and should include a description of the nominees qualifications. Nominations must be received not later than Monday, September 30.

Please send all applications to Chairman, Who's Who Committee, RSO #801, Student Union.

Deadlock in Viet Talks Deepen

PARIS (AP) —



The deadlock in the Vietnam peace talks deepened Wednesday and U.S. patience seemed to be wearing thin, but there was no sign either side wanted to break off the weekly conferences under way since mid-May.

The United States accused the North Vietnamese of refusing to join in any serious peacemaking.

"We find their position today, as we have found it in the past, to be intransigent, unmoving and uncompromising American spokesman William Jordon reported after another session.

Conceding that the talks were indeed deadlocked, Nguyen Thanh Le, who speaks for North Vietnam, put the blame squarely on the United States.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF
Q. T. V.
invite all upperclassmen to an
INFORMAL SMOKER
Thurs., Sept. 26
8:00 - 10:00

Hello Friend Folk Gathering
HAMPTON COMMONS
SAT. & SUN. 7:30-11:30
Anyone interested in performing call
SOUTHWEST MASTER'S OFFICE 5-1551
After Five: 6-7518 or 6-7511
Deadline Thurs. 10 p.m.

HILLEL CLASSES
and
DISCUSSION GROUPS
Thurs., 6:30 p.m.—S.U.—Elem. Hebrew
Sat., 11:30 a.m.—S.U.—Bible Study
12:30 p.m.—S.U.—Talmud in Eng.
Mon., 6:30 p.m.—S.U.—Problems in Belief (Disc.)
7:30 p.m.—S.U.—Patterns of Jewish Practice
HILLEL SERVICES
Fri., 7:30 p.m.—S.U.—Sabbath Eve*
Sat., 9:45 a.m.—S.U.—Sabbath Morning
*following service Dean Fields wil be our speaker.
YOM KIPPUR SERVICES
Tues., Oct. 1, 6:15 p.m.—S.U. Ballroom
Wed., Oct. 2, 9:30 a.m.—S.U. Ballroom

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Mama's Pizza
Mama's is out to win you over this year.
FREE DELIVERY
Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.
253-9858
103 No. Pleasant St.

26 SEPT 1968

The Rights of Others

Last night while the Student Senate was debating the status of ROTC on campus, the most vocal of all minorities continued to cause growing concern on the part of students and administrators alike.

The first campus disturbance of the year is amusing. Two weeks worth of horseplay is not. Such blatant abuse of the rights of others is inexcusable, and such misuse of hard-won student freedoms can only endanger their very existence.

This past weekend saw the dawn of a new era of social regulations for dormitories across the campus. Many more dorms will be following soon. But should such childish activity continue, it would seem to indicate that certain segments of the University community are not yet ready for such a responsibility. The UMass student who is capable of governing his own life and his own dormitory is being placed in a precarious situation by those who obviously don't give a damn.

Student rights should not be interpreted as meaning "license for students to do as they will". The concept applies mainly to academic, social, and political rights, but also implies a certain amount of responsibility, consideration of and respect for the rights of others.

Without such responsible cooperation we can not expect to maintain our newly-won freedom.

Give A Damn

On this Day of Awareness it is perhaps appropriate to mention the Springfield tutoring program being sponsored by the Martin Luther King Jr. Social Action Council. NES—Northern Educational Service—provides you with the opportunity to teach basic learning skills to children from black ghetto or other low-income areas.

A meeting of all interested students will be held tonight at 8 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium. Need we say more?

A Feeble Voice

Campus-wide elections for the Student Senate will be held next Thursday, October 3. With the deadline for submitting nominations papers drawing near (tomorrow at 5:30), it would appear that 21 seats will remain vacant due to want of even one candidate.

According to Senator Bruce Balboni, chairman of the Senate Public Relations Committee, the following dorms have yet to produce any candidates: Knowlton, Mary Lyon, Thatcher, Butterfield, Chadbourne, Greenough, Hills South, J. Adams Lower, J. Adams Upper, J. Q. Adams Lower, J. Q. Adams Middle, Coolidge Middle, Crampton, Thoreau, Washington Middle, Brett (2), Moore (2), Cance (1 of 2), and Pierpont (1 of 2).

Perhaps each resident of these dorms should be aware that should his dorm have no voice in the Senate, then he has no voice in the Senate either.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert '69

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor: Dick Boucher; Sandra Czaporowski, Louisa Varnum, Claudia Hamberg, Pat Lampart, Howard Bresner, Lucy McGough. Editorial Editor: Dave Baskin.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Thanks, I Think"

INSIDE REPORT:

Wallace vs. Nixon

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

DALLAS—Glib predictions of early summer that George Wallace's roaring Presidential campaign would "peak" as soon as the two major parties fielded their own nominees have now been proved wholly false.

Instead of stalling, the Wallace movement is still picking up speed, fueled for the first time by an organization nucleus that is making use of such conventional campaign operatives as advance men, heretofore conspicuous by their absence from Wallace's forays.

For the past year, Alabama senators, representatives, and other state officials recruited to help his campaign have been tied up in ballot-qualification work —getting legally-required signatures to place his name on the ballot of all 50 states and bringing court suits where necessary.

That period is over. The release of this manpower for the election campaign itself is transforming what used to be skeletal advance parties, sent ahead to make the skimpiest preparations for Wallace's arrival, into a full-fledged campaign apparatus.

Moreover, the campaign is now taking in at least as much money as it is spending and it is spending all it can.

Consider the whirlwind visit of the arch-segregationist here in Dallas this week. He arrived Monday for lunch and left the next morning. In that brief 24 hours, Wallace picked up a minimum $150,000 and possibly twice that much, well over half from small-time givers — the "rednecks" of whom Wallace proudly says: "There's more of us than there is of them."

The money machine is working overtime for Wallace, another sure indication that Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon could make no more serious mistake than to assume that the Wallace tide is receding.

A $1,000-a-plate luncheon here on Monday yielded close to $50,000. A $25-a-plate supper took in almost $30,000. An additional $100,000 will be gleaned from more than 1,000 subscription petitions passed out to volunteers at the rally Monday night.

And this is only Wallace's conventional money. The exotic contributions are top secret, but one single fat cat is known to have offered to finance no less than six national half-hour television programs at prime time between now and the election. Wallace's present inclination is to say no. He doesn't need it.

This evidence that Wallace's prospects are still rising has led to deep study within the Wallace high command of how he should operate the last six weeks of the campaign, with some tentative conclusions not wholly welcome to the Nixon camp. Nixon, not Humphrey has now become the main Wallace target.

Wallace is cutting far more deeply into the labor vote, both union and non-union, than anyone thought possible. Here in Texas, for example, one informed estimate now gives Wallace between 40 and 60 percent of labor —probably not enough to take the state for him, but enough to deny it to Humphrey. Similar, if lesser, labor defections are being found all over the country, among such usually faithful Democratic unions as the auto and steel workers.

This has been the natural result of the race revolution and the bitter politics of protest, coupled with the growing conservatism of union rank and file, who have become the conservative wing of the Democratic party.

But Nixon's right flank includes no members of labor unions, and Wallace's startling inroads there are not hurting Nixon. Consequently, Wallace's object now will be to make Nixon answer to the wrath of parents whose children are caught up in the turbulent school crisis, particularly in the border states and the North, and appropriate those suburban votes to himself.

Wallace told his shrieking cohorts Monday night that Nixon and Gen. Eisenhower took power in 1952 promising a return to local government "one of the prettiest and finest things you ever heard." But what happened? Earl Warren became Chief Justice, an appointment "presided over by Mr. Nixon," and his first decision was the 1954 school desegregation case.

This Wallace thrust against frontrunner Nixon coincides with his new list of top-priority states in the North—Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan. As of today all are in Nixon's pocket.

(c) 1968 Publishers-Hall

Letters to the editor must be typewritten at 60 spaces and double-spaced. All letters must be signed by hand. Letters not signed in this manner and not typewritten will not be printed. Letters must not exceed 40 lines and are subject to editing and condensing. Names will not be withheld and pseudonyms will not be used.

The Dorm Counselor Defined:

A Counselor Is A Counselor

Because of recent suggestions proposed by the various "authorities" involved, during the first few weeks of the semester, there have been countless queries directed to everyone regarding the new roles and responsibilities of the dorm counselor and the Head of Residence. The amount of discipline, professional counseling, leadership and clerical work (in addition to security patrol) should be herein clearly delineated. This suggestion supercedes all others on this particular subject.

1. The counselor shall not act as a policeman. Disciplining a corridor is in the hands of everyone, not just the counselor, in order to preserve his position in any way possible. Thus, the counselor must never be an authority figure.
2. A counselor must remember that he is a resident of the dorm just like any other student and has the same responsibilities. Thus when writing up a regulation infraction he must be sure to put "Student", not "Counselor", after his name, so as to remind all of his status.
3. A counselor must remember that as a paid university official, his first responsibility is to the University, thus it is in his best interest to report any and all University violations.
4. A counselor must remember that as a paid University official he is responsible for administering any and all clerical matters pertaining to his section. He is being paid for his great skill and ability.
5. A counselor should remember that as a paid university official he should put in all the time he is paid for. A counselor must remember he is on call 24 hours a day and is expected to be available at all times. All counselors should undergo counselor training sessions to better prepare themselves for the problems they will encounter.
6. A counselor should remember that his first and primary function is the counseling of students. He was hired for his tact, insight, perception, and knowledge of human experience.
7. A counselor should refer any and all major problems to a University Service (i.e. Mental Health) when these problems become at all personal, and not administrative.
8. A counselor must remember that all that is said within the confines of his room is to be "Top Secret" and regarded as "Classified" material.
9. A counselor should consult either the Head of Residence, Area Coordinator, or any other "University Personnel" whenever it is in "the best interest" of the student at hand.
10. The counselor must remember that in every instance he is a counselor, not a security guard, and should not be letting people in after curfew unless authorized as a "Work-Study" Night Receptionist.
11. In case of major disturbance, i.e. panty raid, water fight etc., a counselor must keep all students off balconies, bolt and secure all doors and keep the residence hall safe, even if it means risking his position on the corridor.

It is hoped that this memorandum has alleviated some of the confusion regarding the role of the counselor and the extent of his duties. We believe that each counselor, student and Head of Residence should now know where the counselors stand.

Steve Selby

Violence: A Paradigm of Social History

The ebbing of an exacerbated mistrust leads to hate and for many from there to violence. Thus, Cassius Chaerea stabbed to death Emperor Caligula, Lee Harvey Oswald assassinated John Kennedy, James Earl Ray cut down Martin Luther King and Sirhan Sirhan brought Robert Kennedy to eternal rest. An obsession for revenge, a life wrought with guilt provisions conducive to violence.

A paradigm is a prototype, or a pattern illustrating a grammatical inflection of a noun, verb, etc. The pattern which we must concern ourselves with is the consistent intervals of militancy in history. It would not be without relevance to state that at stipulated times in the life of a nation, violence has played the role of a distressed and disconcerted people. We look at the examples of the distraught French who in 1789, 1830, and 1848 overthrew the ruling government by revolution. Here in America an awakening people threw off the yoke of British oppression. And how? Each time by violence.

Without doubt history is a story of wars giving birth to empires and then delivering them into dust. We recall the empires of Assyria, Greece and Rome to perceive the truth. Pride, greed and envy have been the seeds for the inception of conflict. These characteristics of man have provided the impetus for forming great world powers—and for each time there was a change of power, violence erupted.

In the Middle Ages the Crusaders carried on the pogroms in the name of Christ and in the time of Hitler for the cause of justice. One-third of world Jewry, or six million people, were exterminated in a megalomaniacal vision.

What of civil violence? The attrition among ethnic and racial groups within a society is a prime factor to unrest within a nation. Pagan turned against Christian in Rome, Catholic versed Protestant in England, Arab challenged Jew in Palestine, and Black mistrusts White in America.

Many times violence can be curbed by calm realistic minds. Such was the case in the Greek-Turkish dispute over Cyprus. Such was the case when Attila The Hun was persuaded not to attack Rome. Such was not the example when a six day war erupted between Egypt and Israel and when the insatiable desires of Hitler strove for world domination.

We all do realize that many segments of militancy can be averted by foresight. In the aspect of civil violence we can bridge the gaps of misunderstanding and mistrust by becoming more concerned and active citizens. But too many times those desires do not exist.

Where much destruction is thwarted by foresight, there are many times when we do not recognize the symptoms until almost too late. Then only a major effort at the important root of the dissatisfaction can avert something ominous.

Can violence be justified? When a people have exhausted all know-how to alleviate their problem and there is no appreciable concern from the other side, then violence may be the only avenue to voice frustration and need for change. Thus the riots in American cities and student dissent throughout the world. However, to believe that open opposition can bring about quick change we look to ourselves—for America is a very good example. The machinery in overturning established institutions is aggravatingly slow at best. Laws may be changed rather quickly in contrast to the needed wait for erasing deep rooted ideas.

Today, more than ever before, there is a growing realization that we are all responsible to the future course of this nation. Hate and mistrust can never be eradicated but they can be greatly mitigated by a more conscious effort on the part of our generation and those to follow. Can we desire to exist in a state comparable to that of the degenerating Roman Empire, when the life of no man, including the emperor, was safe from malice. Do we wish to flounder in a sea of irresolution while those who encourage ill will roam the streets? Do we have the right to determine by our own insouciance the uncertainty of the future to our unborn children? Do we have the moral right?

I cannot answer whether violence is essential to change. It would appear so from lessons of the past. But are these incidents of insurrection and revolution in Greece and Rome only applicable to their time and societies? I doubt that very much.

Steve Selby is a freshman in the experimental Project 10 group. He is a resident of Boston, and herein he exhibits his preference for history as his major.

THE INSIDE LINE

Operetta Guild: A Pawn of Power Politics

By Chris McGehen, Student Government Editor

An issue highlighting the confusion surrounding the operation of some of the groups under the recently-established Fine Arts Council has been brought to a head and should be resolved by the end of the week if all goes as planned. In the meantime, the University Operetta Guild, beset by serious financial and internal organizational problems, finds itself in the position of unwitting pawn in a Student Senate-Fine Arts Council power politics confrontation.

Over the past few semesters, the Guild, for a variety of reasons, has accumulated a substantial debt. During the past spring, the Guild's Business manager, John Callahan, approached the Fine Arts Council to request funds for a new production in the fall. Over the summer the debt grew from approximately $600 to nearly $1300.

The Guild being a Recognized Student Organization, the debt was covered by the RSO office. But the Guild now finds itself in the unenviable position of owing $1300 to the Senate, with a commitment to produce a show —involving script rentals, royalty payments, etc.—and only $1000 in operating capital from the Fine Arts Council.

Several issues arise from this situation. Is the Senate responsible for the debt, despite the fact that the Guild apparently desires its future support from Fine Arts and not the Senate? Did the Guild, by taking the first step in asking for funds from Fine Arts, commit itself to re-constitute itself under the jurisdiction of the Fine Arts Council? Is the Fine Arts Council morally responsible to assume the debt of the Guild, having agreed to at least minimally subsidize it, given the rather nebulous status at present of the Operetta Guild?

The showdown takes place this morning at the first meeting of the Fine Arts Council. Senate Vice President Frederic Hartwell, also a member of the Fine Arts Council, feels that the Council did accept responsibility for the debt last spring when they agreed to subsidize this fall's production. (The Council has approximately $12,000 in unallocated funds, so the money is available.) Whether the rest of the Council feels this way is uncertain.

There are several new members whose positions are not clear, however. A struggle may develop over the selection of a Chairman, drawing lines between the faculty and student factions on the Council. The students wish to elect Raymond Taylor to succeed Dr. Paul Norton. The faculty may want to elect one of their own group. If this struggle comes about the line of demarcation may extend to the Operetta Guild issue.

Vice President Hartwell hopes to have committed a bill pending before the Senate binding the Senate to cover the debt until the Council resolves the issue at its meeting. Hopefully the Senate will agree to accept Hartwell's strategy, although it is clearly —legally responsible for the debt incurred by this RSO group.

Regardless of the outcome of the meetings of the two groups, the Operetta Guild must come to grips with the question of where they belong—in RSO or under Fine Arts. One way or the other, the debt will be covered. But both the Senate and the Council have the option of punishing the Guild for its fiscal folly. In the meantime, the fate of the Operetta Guild, with a fine tradition of twenty-five years standing, hangs in the balance. For its sake the issue should be settled soon.

A larger question is also involved—that of student control of student funds. The Fine Arts Council, composed of five faculty and five students, has been rather stringent in attaching strings to their appropriations. It is to be hoped that the Council will begin to grant greater student control over student funds.

The Operetta Guild's wrist should be slapped for its past mistakes, but it should be allowed to work out its internal problems in its own way. The important thing is to allow student control of student funds. The Operetta Guild would be a good place to start.

Campus Comment

Change Has Gotta Come

To the Editor:

This year the Public Relations Committee of the Student Senate has desperately tried to encourage enthusiasm and activism in the Senate's general elections to be held on October 3. We have been emphasizing STUDENT POWER and have been doing so with a sincere belief in this slogan.

While this publicity drive has not been a failure, neither has it been a smashing success. To what do we attribute this apparent apathy and lack of interest in student goverment? One can argue effectively that students don't care for the Senate because it has been too slow in doing things, because it deals with trivialities or because it simply does nothing. While it is true that the Senate is slow as it must be for intelligent debate, it is not true that it does nothing. All the major social and academic reforms have come as a result of Senate action. It is also true that there are Senators who seem to delight in the insignificant, but these are a minority.

Rather, the real reason for this indifference towards student government rests mostly with the students of this university. Daily Collegian editor Jack Dean put it rightly when he said the University of Massachusetts is still in its "panty raid stage". The degree of activism and awareness on this campus is pitifully low. Too many students look upon UMass. as a trade school or a vocational institution and not as they should see it — four years (or more) spent at a university designed to educate them, to make them more worthwhile citizens who believe in freedom of speech, (including dissenting speech) the equality of races with action and not just words, and all the other democratic doctrines on which the United States is based. Instead we have students who never think such thoughts, we have students who worry about nothing except next week's exam and this weekend's big drunk.

The small group of bearded or long-haired students are not to be scorned. For the most part they are sincere in their beliefs. But the point is that they have beliefs, and they think and are aware. Conservative or liberal you should get involved. Do not disassociate the Student Senate from the things that are really relevant — get in there and change it.

Bruce R. Balboni

Chairman of Public Relations of the Student Senate

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

STUDENT SENATE CANDIDATES!

Drawings for places on the ballot will be held on

Friday, Sept. 27, at 6:00 P.M.

in the Student Senate office, Student Union

Only candidates or their representatives may attend.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF

KAPPA SIGMA

INVITES ALL

UPPERCLASSMEN TO A

FORMAL SMOKER

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26

AT 9:30

Unrest In Europe -- Conclusion

Paris In August

By Brian Braun
College Press Service

Europe is divorced from American students by an ocean, at least six hours and $500 or more. While the continent is no more monolithic than Berkeley is like Bob Jones College, in the educational sphere similar problems haunt most European countries.

"In Vienna and all over Europe, the problems are the same. University facilities are inferior, we have no access to our professors, professorial appointments are determined by other professors, students have no voice in university government, course requirements are rigid and overcrowding is rampant," Walter Leinmuller, a University of Vienna student, said.

In addition to those problems, students in Greece, Italy, Spain and to a lesser degree France are faced with government interference in their education. Spanish students, like students in many communist countries, are faced with politically censored learning experiences, particularly in history, political science and other social science courses.

One student complained that "the government regulates our curriculum and confines our education to such strict guidelines that objective education is possible only in the physical sciences. When Franco protects his regime we get what is roughly equivalent to a Communist line."

Dr. Papisca Antonio, assistant professor of international organization at the University of Parma (Italy) and a former Adlai E. Stevenson United Nations fellow, said, "There are only two free universities in Italy—the rest are carefully controlled by the state. He added, "All professorial chairs are political issues in this country. Professors decide who will occupy any given chair and they are advised by the government as to who is acceptable and who is not."

Even admissions are government-influenced. If an applicant to the university is known to be hostile to the government, he is denied entrance even if he is superbly qualified in every other respect. If his father has a long record of agitation he may be refused as well," he said.

Prior to the May revolution at the Sorbonne, French students found their educations similarly controlled. With the appointment of Edgar Faure as minister of education, the French academic community is hoping the ministry will abandon its former role of educational dictator and assume the role of government-education liaison as Faure has promised.

Vienna student Leinmuller's charges reflect the problems faced by nearly every country on the continent. In Italy, Antonio notes that despite the fact that "only 10-15 percent of my countrymen are afforded the opportunity to attain a higher education nearly every one of our universities is frightfully overcrowded."

Giusepe Della Grotte, an assistant professor doing research work in Venice, said, "In some of the larger Italian universities like the Universities of Rome (70,000 students) and Milan (45,000) the conditions are so bad that sometimes as many as 50 or 60 students have to stand in back during lectures."

Student voice in university government is virtually unheard of in the provincial European educational structure.

Rigid course requirements are evident all over Europe. Students have little curriculum flexibility as specialized education often begins in the freshman year. In Italy, for example, the first degree a student earns is in his speciality.

Thus doctors and lawyers do not do undergraduate work, but in effect go directly to law or medical school. Their programs are carefully planned for them and their preference in course selection is totally ignored.

The English Pub

REMEMBER !

Coats and ties are required wear after 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday

Giant Poster from any photo

2 ft. x 3 ft. only $1.95*

($4.95 value)

*Send any black & white or color photo (no negatives) and the name "Swingline" cut out from any Swingline package (or reasonable facsimile) to: POSTER-MART, P.O. Box 165, Woodside, N.Y. 11377. Enclose $1.95 cash, check, or money order (no C.O.D.'s). Add sales tax where applicable.

Poster rolled and mailed (postpaid) in sturdy tube. Original material returned undamaged. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Get a Swingline Tot Stapler

98¢

(including 1000 staples) Larger size CUB Desk Stapler only $1.69

Unconditionally guaranteed. At any stationery, variety, or book store.

Swingline INC.
LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y. 11101

THE BROTHERS OF

ΣΩΕ

Sigma Phi Epsilon

invite all upperclassmen to

OPEN, FORMAL SMOKERS:

THURSDAY, SEPT. 26 at 9:00 P.M.
MONDAY, SEPT. 30 at 7:00 P.M.

WANTED—

Beautiful Girls over 21

Apply in person to
BILL NOLAN
at
The English Pub
15 East Pleasant St.
Amherst

SENIORS!

Class of 1969
Executive Council
Applications Available
In R.S.O. Office
DUE SEPT. 30

All signs point to a visit to BOLLES

RABBIT EARS

BOLLES

FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES

to check out the latest in fashion–right shoes by Zodiacs
While you're here pay a visit to our famous boot-cellar for men & women

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

"Take your place in the leadership of the campus community"

Area East

Judiciary Selections

October 1

7:00 p.m., Hampden Room, Student Union

SOUTHWEST ASSEMBLY

Nomination Papers may be picked up in the Southwest Office, Coolidge (T-2) Lobby

Due Saturday, Sept. 28, at 4 p.m.

Elections will be Thurs., Oct. 3

Yearbooks Available, Staff Positions Open

The 1968 yearbooks are stacked in the Index office, second floor balcony, between the Collegian and RSO office. All students with the blue IBM card issued with the registration packet should bring it along and pick up their yearbook. Swingshifters ('71) are entitled to an Index although they didn't receive the appropriate card; they need only their student I.D.'s. Students who were here only one semester last year have to pay three dollars. Any undergraduate who was here both semesters, but did not receive this card may get one if they sign to that effect.

Many people are needed to help with the '68-'69 Index, Vol. 100, and the second largest yearbook in the country. Some extra time, a willingness to learn, and a little dedication are all we require for membership; nobody gets left in the lurch. For all interested, a general meeting will be held in the Council Chambers, Student Union, on Thursday Oct. 3, at 8:30 P.M. Potential staffers may also put their names on the list in the INDEX office.

New Job Recruiting System Is Launched on 800 Campuses

A new and unique method of recruiting graduating and graduate students for industry and the professions has been instituted on more than 800 campuses this fall by a company called COMPUJOB.

Headed by two dropouts from the Wharton Graduate School of Business Administration, president Tanfield Miller, age 21, and vice president Edward M. Swan, Jr., age 27, COMPUJOB, paradoxically, uses computers to make recruiting more personal. Briefly, its system is as follows.

Questionnaires are distributed to students on campus to be filled out and returned to COMPUJOB. These have been planned to provide an extensive and realistic description of individual educational background, occupational and locational preferences and, significantly, personal goals. Using computers, COMPUJOB then matches students' qualifications to the particular specifications made by its widely diversified clients. Clients then get "profiles" of the students who seem to be most interested in working for that type of employer.

There is no cost to the student. Questionnaires come in their own postage-paid, pre-addressed envelopes addressed to COMPUJOB, 1100 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. The client pays, contacts the student directly and coordinates with the college placement office.

Covering virtually every category of industry and the professions, COMPUJOB's clients include such companies as American Airlines, CIBA Drugs, Ted Bates Advertising Agency, J. C. Penney stores, American Friends Service Committee, Bankers Trust Company, Allied Chemical, Riegel Textiles, American Can, Continental Oil, The Board of National Missions (United Presbyterian Church), etc.

A massive program of distributing the questionnaires is now in progress. Many of the 800 colleges are using their own facilities for distribution: at registration, in living quarters, through placement offices. COMPUJOB representatives are also distributing the questionnaires on campus. Poster displays and direct mail are other tools to help ensure maximum exposure to students.

Geared to serve both large and small employers, COMPUJOB's immediate benefit is to help make the on-campus personal interview more meaningful. Through the COMPUJOB "profile" system, both the employer and the applicant meet knowing that each is interested in the particular characteristics of the other.

By mid-October, COMPUJOB expects to have information on more than 50 per cent of those graduating students who will enter the labor market next year. Small colleges are not neglected. In the past, high cost prohibited industry from sending recruiting representatives to these schools where students urgently need the wide exposure COMPUJOB now can give them.

Prof. Light Receives ASAE Award

University of Massachusetts Professor Robert G. Light has been awarded an Educational Aids Blue Ribbon Award at the 61st annual meeting of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE) held at Utah State University in Logan.

Each year the ASAE presents the award in recognition of "outstanding effort and achievement in the development of noteworthy educational aids." Prof. Light's winning entry was "Covered Free Stall Loose Housing System for Dairy Cattle."

The competition for these awards "encourages agricultural engineers in industry and public service to strive for excellence in extension activities through the interchange of ideas on successful methods and techniques contributing to overall improvement in extension methods." The ASAE is the professional and educational organization of engineers in agriculture. More than 6500 members are represented in 70 foreign countries and in the 50 states.

Prof. Light joined the UMass staff as an assistant professor of agricultural engineering in 1962. Now an associate professor, he teaches primarily extension courses in the department. A graduate of the University of Maine, he received his MSAE degree from Pennsylvania State University where he taught for two years before joining the staff at the University of Connecticut in 1958.

U. S. Army Field Band To Perform

The United States Army Field Band of Washington, D.C., will make its appearance at the John M. Greene Hall, Northampton, Mass., on Wed., October 2nd, at 8:00 p.m.

Known as the "Kings of the Highway," the Field Band travels thousands of miles each year on two major tours and is considered by music critics to be one of the most proficient musical organizations now appearing before the public. Following their concert in York, England, John Blunt of the Yorkshire Evening Press wrote" . . . 115 men in a park did more good for their Country in 90 minutes, than the pronouncements of their statesmen could do, perhaps in as many months." And, after their Paris performance, Ivan H. Peterman, Paris correspondent for the Philadelphia Enquirer said, "A Paris audience came to sniff at Gershwin but forgot their French nonchalance to cheer enthusiastically."

Highlights of its world wide tours include performances at London's Royal Festival Hall, the Olympic Stadium in Berlin, Concert Hall in Amsterdam, Carnegie Hall in New York Hollywood Bowl, and most recently, the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City.

Be there for the down beat at 8:00 p.m., when the spotlight is on the Army's musical ambassadors, the United States Army Field Band from our nation's capital.

Tickets for this Oct. 2 concert may be obtained free of charge in person or by mail from Room 107 Dickinson Hall.

To receive tickets by mail, please include a self-addressed stamped envelope with your request.

MDC CLASSIFIED

HELP WANTED

Part-time cafeteria (Hatch) evening supervisor with food service experience. Three nights per week. Apply at the Student Union Food Service office. 9/30

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

STEREOPHONIC TAPE-RECORDER: Roberts 997 professional model. Used minimally. Perfect for the serious music lover or musical group. Reasonably priced for such a high quality machine. 256-6449 (after 5). 9/30

For Sale: Used 35 mm Minolta camera. Included: Argus lightmeter, and Kalimar auxiliary telefoto and wide-angle lenses. $50 buys all. Phone Arthur, 546-9464 10/11

308 caliber husquarna sport rifle, Monte Carlo stock, machined molt; carrying case; 4 power savage scope sling; 220 rounds winchester ammo. All in exc. cond. $175 or best offer. Patrick: 323-7872 at night. 9/30

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1962 Chev wagon; 6 cyl. standard, new tires, new brakes, very clean $475. Call 1-532-1396 between 8 and 9 p.m. Located at 48 Amherst Rd., So. Hadley. 9/27

1962 MGA Mark II Roadster. The last MGA built. New top, batteries, two new tires, valve job. Tonneau and two extra tires and wheels, radio. Runs very well. 27 MPG. Call Chuck at 584-9361. 9/30

Rambler station wagon, 1965, 34000 miles by original owner, automatic transmission, excellent condition, new tires plus snow tires, radio & heater, $995. Call 584-1497 9/30

PI BETA PHI

will hold

UPPERCLASS RUSH

at

Beta Kappa Phi Fraternity
406 N. Pleasant St.
7 P.M.
THURS. SEPT. 26

We, The Brothers of

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Cordially invite all upperclassmen to attend our

OPEN SMOKERS

Thurs., Sept. 26—7:30 p.m.—Informal

401 North Pleasant Street

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

IMPROVE YOUR READING
SPEED and COMPREHENSION STUDY SKILLS
5 week Rapid-Reading Course
Tuesdays & Thursdays
7-8:30 p.m.
Starts Oct. 1
Registration: Sept. 26: 7:00 p.m.
School of Education Rm. 125
Limited to 30
NO TUITION CHARGE

THE BROTHERS OF

Tau Epsilon Phi

cordially invite all upperclassmen

to an

OPEN SMOKER

Thursday, Sept. 26 - at 9:00 P.M. – Informal

Rioting Mexican Students Keep Mexico City in 24-Hour Turmoil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Heavy rain Tuesday night dispersed rioting students whose battling with the police kept parts of Mexico City in turmoil for more than 24 hours and left at least 15 persons dead.

Four other deaths were reported Tuesday night during hit-and-run clashes involving students, other dissidents, police and soldiers. But these deaths could not be confirmed.

The fighting Monday night reached a peak not seen in the Mexican capital since the revolutionary days of the 1920s. It slacked off Tuesday, and officials went ahead with preparations for the Olympic Games, scheduled to open in Mexico City on Oct. 12.

Throughout the day Tuesday sirens wailed and shots could be heard as police sought out snipers who, after a bloody night of fighting around vocational schools in the northwest part of the city, holed up in apartment houses in the area.

Firing increased shortly before night fell, and a magazine reporter on the scene said two students were killed at a vocational school in the downtown Ciudadela section.

At another vocational school in the Tlatelolco area, the scene of heavy fighting Saturday and Monday nights, three buses were burned and police in possession of the school drove back 2,500 students by firing into the air and shooting tear gas into the crowds. ¾

The student unrest, which has plagued Mexico's capital since July 26 and threatens to cut attendance at the Olympics, has been attributed to violation of the right of university autonomy, police brutality, hooliganism, Communist influences and determination to gain certain concessions from the government.

UMass Youth Orchestra Begins Rehearsals Oct. 7

The University of Massachusetts Youth Orchestra under the direction of Joseph Contino will begin its third full season when it commences rehearsals Oct. 7.

Formed in 1965, the orchestra serves as a training group for talented young players of orchestral instruments who either have no opportunity for orchestral experience or who desire additional training in ensemble playing. Two concerts are given yearly, in January and in May. Weekly rehearsals are held on Monday evenings on the University campus in Old Chapel Auditorium. Students up to and including high school seniors are eligible. There is no geographical restriction although most of the orchestra's membership consists of players from surrounding communities.

The orchestra is conducted by Joseph Contino, associate professor of music at the University. A graduate of Oberlin Conservatory of Music, he has been at UMass since 1950. He has had extensive experience in many phases of performance and conducting, presently devoting his major efforts to performance and teaching of clarinet, flute and saxophone and to teaching conducting. He has taught and directed young players both in the public schools and at summer music camps. Under his guidance, the Youth Orchestra acts as a laboratory group for conducting and orchestration students of the music department.

New members are invited to come to the auditions on Monday, Sept. 30 in Old Chapel. All qualified applicants are accepted insofar as instrumentation permits. Auditions begin at 7 p.m.

Hampshire College Appoints Dr. Hafner Dean of Natural Science

Franklin Patterson, President of Hampshire College, announced today the recent appointment of Everett M. Hafner, Dean of the School of Natural Science. Dr. Hafner has come to Hampshire from the University of Rochester where he was Professor of Physics in the Department of Physics and Astronomy.

Professor Hafner was born in Brooklyn, New York. He attended Union College, Schenectady, New York and the University of Rochester where he received the Ph. D. degree in physics in 1948. His early research, carried out at the University of Rochester in 1950, was in nuclear physics; his group was the first to detect proton-induced nuclear fission.

After receiving his doctorate, Professor Hafner joined the staff of the Brookhaven National Laboratory where he worked on the development of an experimental program in nuclear structure and low-energy scattering. In 1952 he spent a year as a National Science Foundation Postdoctoral Fellow at the Cavendish Laboratory in Cambridge, England.

Professor Hafner's research interests have covered a variety of fields in nuclear physics, cosmic rays, and astronomy. He worked for several years with the 130" cyclotron on the Rochester campus in studies of scattering at high energies.

He then shifted his interest to the search for high energy gamma radiation in cosmic rays; his group carried out an extensive sequence of balloon flights in the stratosphere and an experiment in the first OSO satellite. For the last few months, he has been working at the at the Mees Observatory of the University of Rochester on optical studies of the recently discovered pulsating radio sources.

Professor Hafner is a Fellow of the American Physical Society and a member of the Executive Section. He is active in the Visiting Scientists' Program of the American Institute of Physics, and a member of the American Association of Physics Teachers, the New York Academy of Sciences, Sigma Xi, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Middle East Presents Possibility of New War

When Cairo and Moscow, within 24 hours, warn that there is an imminent danger of a new war in the Middle East, the rest of the world is bound to take stock of the possibilities.

The Middle East temperature is rising again, and with it the possibility of parellel between what is being said and done today and what happened 12 years ago.

At that time a Middle East crisis occurred just in time to divert world indignation from the Soviet Union for its abrupt strangulation of a Hungarian freedom movement.

The Russians were not directly responsible for provoking that crisis at that particular moment, although their determined intrusion into the area at the time with Soviet arms had a lot to do with it. The crisis of 12 years ago was sparked by a British-French attempt, in league with Israel, to counter Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal Zone.

There is Western concern that the Arabs once again may be placing a superabundance of confidence in their Soviet arms. The Russians have poured into Egypt and Syria tanks, artillery and combat aircraft, along with other armament and military advisers. This has created a situation in which one side or the other may feel impelled to make a "preventive" strike. The burning question thereafter would be whether a new Arab-Israeli war, given the new intensity of the cold war, could be confined to the Middle East area.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF

Phi Sigma Kappa

cordially invites

all upperclassmen

to an open FORMAL SMOKER

Thurs., Sept. 26 10:00 p.m.

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

"Kubrick provides the viewer with the closest equivalent to psychedelic experience this side of hallucinogens!" —Time Magazine "A fantastic movie about man's future! An unprecedented psychedelic roller coaster of an experience!" —Life Magazine "Kubrick's '2001' is the ultimate trip!" —Christian Science Monitor

METROCOLOR MGM PRESENTS A STANLEY KUBRICK PRODUCTION SUPER PANAVISION

2001: a space odyssey

KEIR DULLEA · GARY LOCKWOOD

Eves. 8:15
Wed., Sat., Sun. Mat. 2:15
Special Group Rates

CINEMA I RT. 5 RIVERDALE RD. W. SFFLD.
ACRES OF FREE PARKING 733-5131

AT CINEMA 2 — INTERLUDE . . . AT CINEMA 3 — DARK OF THE SUN

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

invites all upperclassmen

to an

INFORMAL OPEN SMOKER

Thursday, Sept. 26 at 8:00 p.m.

CANDIDATES NIGHT

All Prospective Student Senate Candidates

Should attend an orientation meeting in the Student Union Council Chambers Thursday, Sept. 26, from 7-9 p.m.

Senators, Senate Officers and Committee Chairmen will be present to answer any questions.

CANDIDATES SHOULD ATTEND

Student Senate
Public Relations Committee

Senate Rollcall Votes Noted in ROTC Credit Issue

The following are the two rollcalls last night in the Student Senate concerning ROTC academic credit.

S147 — Moved to recommend to the Provost that academic credit be abolished for all upper level ROTC courses contained in the ROTC program.

S148 — Moved to recommend to the Provost that academic credit be abolished for all lower level ROTC courses as they presently exist.

	S147	S148
Senator
Silverman
Anderson	Yes	Yes
Beharry	No	No
Blanchet	Yes	Yes
Cochrane	No	No
Cowie	No	No
Curci	Yes	Yes
Dittfach	Yes	Yes
Dubois	Yes	Yes
Dudash	Yes	Yes
Forman	Yes	Yes
Fox	No	No
Gauthier	No	No
Goffin
Hanlon
Harold
Hartwell	Yes	Yes
Hayes
Johnson, B.	Yes	No
Johnson, L.
Kilmartin	Yes	Yes
Kinner	No	No
Looney	Yes	Yes
Lucey	Yes	Yes
Marcus	Yes	Yes
McCauley	Yes	Yes
Moran, E.	No	No
Moran, J.	No	No
Needle	Yes	Yes
O'Brien	Yes	Yes
Olken	No	No
O'Neill
Papaluca	Yes	Yes
Rosen	No	No
Russell	No	No
Schneider	Yes	Yes
Sharrillo	No	Yes
Shaw
Souza	Yes	Yes
Tripp
Walt	Yes	Yes
Balboni	Yes	Yes

Scuba Divers Find Cannons In Vt. Lake

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP)— Two bronze cannons found in Lake Champlain by teen-aged scuba divers have been identified as dating from 1748 and manufactured at an arsenal in England.

The weapons were discovered recently by Peter Vernooy and Mike Davidson, both 14 and of Plattsburgh, and Patrick Munn, also 14, of Cliff Haven. The boys had been diving west of Crab Island.

The cannons both well preserved, weigh about 900 pounds each and are six feet long. They presumably came from a British ship.

A newsman has described the guns as bearing a crown and cross and the marking of King George II, the letters "GR" with a number "2."

The cannons were placed outside the homes of two of the boys.

NEWMAN CLUB
Van Ryan's Express starring Frank Sinatra will be shown at 7 and 9 on Friday in Mahar. Members are admitted free; 50 cents for non-members. A Road Runny cartoon will be shown.
First Coffee House to be held Saturday night from 8-11 in Newman Lounge. On campus talent invited to perform; 50 cents charge for non-members. Refreshments.

HILLEL CLASSES
Elementary Hebrew classes to be held at 4:30 Thursday in Student Union.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
A free bus will leave for the Belchertown State School from the Student Union Saturday at 1:15.

ROISTER DOISTERS
There will be a meeting of the Roister Doister Dramatic Society at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 2 in the Bristol and Essex rooms of the S.U. Officers will be elected and plans for the annual production discussed. All old members and interested newcomers welcome.

SIGMA DELTA TAU
Four fir extinguishers for sale at $15 apiece. 409 N. Pleasant St. Regularly $50 each.

CAMPUS HUMOR-SATIRE MAGAZINE
Meeting 7 p.m. in Commonwealth Room, Student Union. Writers and cartoonists needed, as well as general staff members. All welcome.

BAHAI CLUB
Open discussion "Unity in Diversity" at 8 p.m. Friday in Worcester Room of Student Union. Refreshments.

MARTIN LUTHER KING JR. SOCIAL ACTION COUNCIL
Open meeting for all those interested in tutoring for N.E.S. in Springfield. Tonight at 8 p.m. Commitment: 3 hours per week. Transportation provided.

COOPERETTA GUILD
Tryouts for Annie Get Your Gun tonight, 6:30-10:30 in the Bristol Room of S.U.

STUDENT AFRO-AMERICAN ORGANIZATION
There will be an important meeting at 8 p.m. in the Mills House Basement.

SCROLLS
Short meeting at 6 p.m. tonight in Worcester rooms A and B in S.U.

NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
All interested are invited to an introductory meeting at Northampton State Mental Hospital. Transportation will be provided. Meet at 6:30 p.m., Oct. 3 in S.U. Lobby.

INTER-VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP
Tonight at 7:30 in SBA120, Roger Dewey will speak on "Christianity and Marxism". There will be a discussion following the lecture.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
There will be a meeting with Dr. Arny on Monday, Oct. 7 at 8 p.m. in room 109 Hasbrouck. This will be an organizational meeting to plan activities for the coming year. All interested are welcome to attend. A Sar Pary will follow the meeting.

LOST:
Yellow over jacket. Nehru collar, 1 orange and 1 black stripe down front. In Machmer W-12 or Level 4 of Goodell Library. Name Tag inside. Call Dave Baskin, 6-7638. Reward.

FOUND:
Slide rule by pond on Pleasant St. side Wed. morning about 11 a.m. Owner please go to S.U. Lea & Found.

Campus Police have recovered a camera stolen from a parked car outside Greenough early Sunday morning. Will the owner please contact the Campus Police.

ENGAGEMENTS
Susanne Chechila '71, Coolidge Upper to Wesley D. Mueller '70, Western New England College.
Tina Marie Swift '71, Melville to Bruce W. Thompson '72, Milton, Mass.
Nancy L. Bergman '69, Thoreau to Kenneth N. Temkin '68, Boston University.
Kathy Bilsbury '69, Brooks to Dana Hiscock '70, Columbia Law School.

PINNING
Leanne Goyette '70, Field to William Nagle '69, Holy Cross.

NOTICES

A set of keys on a round keyring, sometime Saturday night. Finder please call Wayne, 6-7177.

In Hamden commons Snack Bar. Small ring with red center stone circled with rhinestones. If found please contact Mary at 6-6355. $5 reward.

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

HOT NEWS
LINE 5-2550

NOW!
Cinema I
The original uncut versions
Still the Screen's Greatest Double Creature Features!
"FRANKENSTEIN"
BORIS KARLOFF—Shown at 7 & 9:30
- - - Plus Bela Lugosi in
DRACULA
Shown at 8:15

NOW! Cinema II
MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
in Albert Camus
"The Stranger"
Shown at 6:15 & 9:45
plus JAMES COBURN in
"The Presidents Analyst"
Shown at 8
Next to Zayre's
Campus Twin Cinemas
256-6411

25c S.U. MOVIE 25c

Billy Budd

Terrance Stamp

SU BALLROOM

THURSDAY, SEPT. 26

6:00 - 8:15

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP — Pilots landing and taking off from Waterville's airport encountered a slight delay recently — a big cow moose ambled on to the runway and parked in the middle of it.

An arriving Executive Airlines plane circled the airport awaiting moose clearance, finally landed at the other end of the 5,000 foot long landing strip.

Several pilots of smaller private craft postponed landings and takeoffs

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

BAR GETS COD
ARNA RAIN ADE
NO MEAN ROMAN
ETA TIP BEE
TRAY LAW SLOT
GET MOA GPO
UT SAT WAD
TAM NEE DOR
ERAS PRY PENS
PAN CEASE
RATTER MATTE
ANY SOAR ADEN
GAR TEDS BUD

2-26

ACROSS

1-Beverage
4-Hebrew letter
6-Cubic meter
11-Buy back
13-Cylindrical
15-Teutonic deity
16-Field flowers
18-Exclamation
19-Conjunction
21-Stupefy
22-Prepare for print
24-Great bustard
26-Location
28-Frozen water
29-Bar legally
31-Care for
33-Symbol for tin
34-Ireland
36-Food program
38-Parent (colloq.)
40-Solar disk
42-Challenged
45-Arabian garment
47-Halt
49-Roman tyrant
50-Tibetan priest
52-Snare
54-Symbol for tantalum
55-Conjunction
56-Tells
59-Conjunction
61-Retreat
63-Worn away
65-Scorches
66-Symbol for nickel
67-Before

8-Gaelic
9-Note of scale
10-Science of moral duty
12-Man's nickname
14-Consumed
17-Article of clothing
20-Ceremony
23-Roman gods
24-Faroe Islands whirlwind
25-Rail bird
27-Wife of Geraint
30-Fruit seeds
32-College official
35-Irritates
37-Allowance for waste
38-Pertaining to the cheek
39-Lowers
41-Girl's name
43-Rubber on pencil
44-Note of scale
46-Part of "to be"
48-Communion plate
51-Solo
53-Persian fairy
57-Be mistaken
58-Conjunction
60-Poem
62-Symbol for tellurium
64-Prefix: down

DOWN

1-Exist
2-European dormice
3-Man's nickname
4-Edible seeds
5-Sends forth
6-Contined
7-Golf mound

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 26

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. by Johnny hart

PEANUTS

26 SEPT 68

Adams Named Yankee Conference All-Star

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian Sports
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1968
Page 12 Vol. XCVII, No. 26

York Cited for Defense; McGarry Sophomore Pick

UMass quarterback Tim Adams, Rhode Island tackle Greg Bogdanich and Connecticut defensive back Mike Zito have been chosen as the top offensive, defensive and sophomore players in the Yankee Conference for their performances last Saturday.

Adams made his initial varsity start by completing 15 of 32 passes for 164 yards and two touchdowns as Massachusetts won its fifteenth straight Yankee Conference game, 21-3, over Maine. Adams also scored the third Redman touchdown. The 6' 175-lb junior from Wellesley was selected to the weekly E.C.A.C. Division I All Star Team.

NICK WARNOCK
'Fine Punting'

Bogdanich played a good defensive game despite Rhode Island's 28-0 loss to Temple. The 6'3, 240-lb. junior turned in a staunch performance before being injured late in the game.

Zito ignited Connecticut's 21-0 win over Vermont by scampering 98 yards with the second half kickoff for a touchdown. The 5'6, 165-lb. sophomore also made five key tackles and broke up four passes. He was selected as the E.C.A.C. Division I Defensive Back of the Week.

Other nominations were for offense: tackle, George Kupfrian, UConn; split end Bill Lawrence, Vermont; end Harry Walker, URI and halfback Gene Benner, were UMass end Tom York; halfback John Krot, UConn; linebacker John Wojciechowski, Vermont and halfback John Collins Maine. Sophomores nominated for their playing were end Nick McGarry, UMass; middle guard Jerry Elliott, Vermont and halfback Bob Hamilton, Maine.

After viewing the films of Saturday's UMass romp over Maine, Coach Vic Fusia made a few discoveries and had a few comments.

Fusia was dispirited over UMass' being able to score only three times after receiving the ball in good territory. Good territory according to Fusia, is "any time we can get the ball beyond our own 35. If we can get it three times a game, we're doing about average. We should have scored five times."

Maine started a set of downs only once beyond their own 35. Pete Quackenbush recovered an Adams' fumble on the Redman 44 and booted a field goal for Maine's only tally.

Fusia cited three of his players for credit in the excellent field advantage position that the Redmen had all afternoon. "Nick Warnock did an excellent job with his punting, and Marty Sheralis kicked off just like he was supposed to do."

The third man was quarterback Tim Adams, who made his starting debut. "Any time we can keep possession of the ball and move it deep into enemy territory, it means that the other team can't score." He went on to say that Adams did a "fine job" of keeping the ball and moving it.

The coach lauded tackle Dick Donlin and tight end Alan Becker for their offensive play. Donlin averaged better than 50 percent. Becker caught three passes, two for touchdown tallies, blocked well and received a Varsity "M" award at the luncheon Tuesday, as the game's outstanding offensive player.

Smiling over the defense, Fusia said it "was an excellent unit effort." Tom York received the other Varsity "M" award for his defensive job. It was the third award for him in the games he has played.

DICK DONLIN
Varsity 'M' Club Offensive Player

TIM ADAMS
Yankee Conference All-Star

Last Night's Intramurals

FOOTBALL SCORES

Residence Halls

South League
Moons 34, Grants 18
Eagles 18, Pines 14
Elms 19, Oaks 6

North League
Buffaloes-Hemlocks, forfeit
Pied Pipers 31, Brigade 1 6
Bronoos 27, Barracudas 6

Central Tower League
Iron Men 8, Bruisers 0
Cools 37, Spartans 8
Smashers 14, Lions 6

Independent Division

American League
Cleavers 24, Adams 16
White Heat White Light-Adams 22, forfeit
Blow-bows 21, Brooks 0

Residence Hall South Tower League
C-Crushers 26, Terrors 14
Senators 7, Comanches 0
Bulldozers 16, Coyt 45'c 6

North Tower League
Panthers 32, Patriots 0
Mags 12, Jaguars 0
Leopards 38, Cougars 7

NOTE: There will be no intramural games tonight.

Baseballers Win, 9-3, Over Siena

The Redmen nine outhit Siena College of Loudenville, N.Y., yesterday, 9-3, in a nine inning game held on Varsity Field.

Lou Collabella was the winning pitcher for UMass. He relieved Don Anderson in the fourth and John Kitchen relieved him in the seventh. Bob Wilman and Chuck Newell were the other half of the batteries.

Newell singled and homered, Bob Hansen doubled, Espanet had two hits and Dick Pepin tripled.

BOX SCORE

Siena College	100 010 100—3 10 3
UMass	010 120 50x—9 12 1

Anyone Interested?

All candidates for the freshman or varsity swimming team report to Boyden Pool after 4 p.m. any day this week.

Anyone interested in becoming a freshman or varsity soccer manager see Coach Broaca in the Boyden Building as soon as possible.

No Free Play

Boyden will be closed to free play on any Sat. when there is a home football game. It will be open on all other Sat. unless otherwise notified.

Harriers Set to Recapture Conference Title

"If all the kids stay healthy this could be our best year ever," said Coach Ken O'Brien speaking about the 1968 edition of the Redman cross country team. Coach O'Brien, who is in his first year as head coach of cross country, made this prediction despite the fact that he thinks UMass has one of the toughest dual meet schedules in New England.

"Harvard and Springfield have not lost a dual meet in two years, and Providence and Holy Cross usually have good clubs," he said. On top of these four clubs the coach noted that the Yankee Conference will probably have the toughest and tightest competition in its history.

Four teams wil be vying for the honor of being Yankee Conference champs this year. UMass, which is seeking its third title in four years, will have to battle UConn, URI and New Hampshire for the crown.

UConn, the defending champs who just nipped UMass last year by one point in a dual meet and in the conference meet by seven points, will have its entire contingent of lettermen returning. The Huskies are led by three top runners, juniors John Vitale, Craig McColl and Steve Flanagan.

New Hampshire, which finished third behind UMass and UConn in the conference last year, also has its entire squad returning.

Rhode Island is classified by Coach O'Brien as the dark horse of the conference, for they lost only one letterman, but they have good runners from their frosh squad that was second in the New Englands last year.

However, Coach O'Brien feels that his Redman team can take back the crown that slipped away from them last year.

This year's team consists of seven lettermen and 11 sophomores. It is a very strong club with good top runners and excellent depth. But, the coach admitted that the team needed time to develop because of the sophomores.

Leading this year's team will be senior co-captains Paul Hoss and Charlie Lang. "Our co-captains are good team leaders and will help our many sophomores to develop," said Coach O'Brien. Hoss, who placed first in the conference race last year and ninth in the New Englands, is also the school record holder in the mile.

Lang placed third in the conference and fifth in the New England races last season. He is recovering from a case of mono and is still not up to full effectiveness.

Also running in front of the pack will be sophs Leo Duart and Ron Wayne. The hard working Duart placed eighth in the frosh IC4A cross country championship last season.

Wayne, who set the UMass frosh records on the cross country course in the mile and two mile, placed third in the New England freshman championship last year.

Battling for the fifth spot will be seniors Marc Gelinas, Diego Gonzalez and sophomore Larry Paulsen. Gelinas who ran third in the conference meet as a sophomore but was injured last season, is expected to come back strong this year.

Gonzalez was the most improved runner on last season's cross country team also is expected to improve more this year. Paulsen who was one of the top frosh runners last year, has a god shot to make the fifth spot.

Early season injuries will hinder the first few performances of Dave Evans, Ron Ryan and Bill Donaldson who were fifth, sixth and seventh men on last year's varsity. But they hope to recover before mid-season.

This group of Redman harriers gets its first taste of competition Saturday when they travel to Franklin Park in Boston, home of the New England championships, to face two tough opponents, Harvard and Providence College.

Harvard always has a good team and this year is an exception. Leading the Crimson squad will be Doug Hardin, who has just come back from Olympic training in Utah. Another Olympic hopeful, who also didn't make the Mexico City team, is Ray Shaw. Harvard's third top runner, Dave Pottette, was their best frosh runner last year.

The Friars of Providence also will be fielding a good team this weekend. Providence won both the varsity and frosh titles two years ago, and although they had an off-season last yer, they should be among the best in New England again.

Both Harvard and Providence must agree that the third team in the tri-meet is one of the top teams in New England. Coach O'Brien feels that the meet will be too close to make a prediction, but he feels that the fourth and fifth finishers on each team will make the difference.

The UMass' fourth and fifth runners could be any of four men: Lang, Gelinas, Gonzalez and Paulsen. Providence will probably have the edge because of the upperclassmen they have in these positions.

The UMass schedule will have "the team on their toes at all times," said Coach O'Brien. "We will always be coming up against good competition, and we will have to work hard right through the meets as we key for the Yankee Conference meet at Burlington, Vt., Nov. 2.

This year's freshman squad is a pleasant surprise to Coach O'Brien. He says the team is coming along but is not yet in the best of form. He feels the team will become a good, close-knit squad by the time of the New Englands.

The group of frosh runners includes Don Dusky, Gloucester; Mike Cowles, Amherst; Ron Swasey, North Andover; Al Magnum, Lowell; Steve Whicher, Wakefield; Wayne Lucas, Boston; Bruce Blackburn, Woburn and Bob Jayes, Randolph.

J.D.F.

Photo by John Kelly

THE LONG STRETCH—Redman goalie Steve Kramer makes a flying attempt to get to the ball in a practice for the opening of soccer season Saturday against Maine. The game will be at home at 10:30 a.m.

Racial Tension Grips Boston; School Issue Paramount

BOSTON (AP) — A new wave of violence by roving gangs of Negro youths broke out Thursday in the dominantly black Roxbury section, with casualties including an elderly white couple beaten and an automobile overturned and burned.

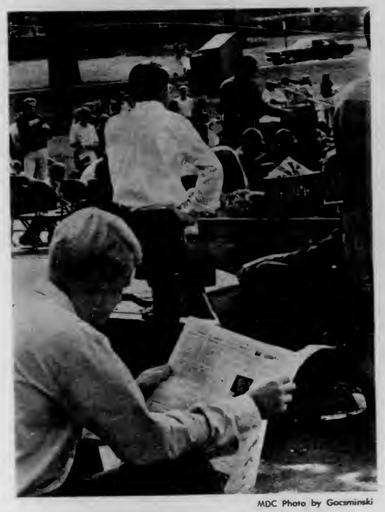
Two detectives called to the scene of one disturbance were stoned, and were taken to Boston City Hospital with head injuries. The injured couple also required hospital treatment.

A gang of black youths tipped a parked car over on the street at Harrison Avenue and Zigler Street, and set it afire.

Passing cars in the area were stoned.

Police Commissioner Edmund S. McNamara ordered day shift police to be held on duty as a precaution.

Sporadic outbursts of violence came all through the day as Negroes largely stayed away from the city's high schools, where violence broke out Monday and Tuesday when black students were told they could not wear native costumes to classes.



Gov. John A. Volpe cut short a campaign trip to Los Angeles in behalf of the Nixon-Agnew ticket and returned home urging moderation to prevent further unruly conduct.

Attendance figures from 32 of the city's secondary schools showed that more than 2,600 students absent and nearly 21,300 attending classes.

There are about 6,000 Negroes in grades 7-12 in Boston. A group in the Negro section of Roxbury Wednesday urged a boycott by Negro and sympathetic white students "until the current situation returns to normal."

The white student demonstration was at East Boston High School where some students chanted "Two, four, six, eight Eastie wants to segregate."

A light rain in the morning apparently helped to keep the city quieter than Wednesday when violence, looting and robberies erupted as police battled Negro gangs who roamed the streets after a Black Power rally, invading stores and looting them, and beating whites who chanced along.

MDC Photo by Gocsminski

THE DAY OF AWARENESS saw many students sit idly by, unaware of the reasons for being aware. Students slept, talked, and read newspapers while, a few feet away, the speaker program was in session.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
VOL. XCVII, NO. 27/5 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1968

Real Involvement Urged In Awareness Day Program

By John J. Poirer
Staff Reporter

The Committee for Student Awareness held their first Day of Awareness yesterday, with marches from residence areas to the Union, and a series of speakers on the Union Lawn. The Speeches, all aimed at involving students with critical issues of the campus nation, and world, were greeted with light applause from the disappointingly small audience of about 300.

During the latter part of the meeting, CSA collected $50 to aide starving children in Biafra.

Gil Salk, interim secretary of the Martin Luther King Social Action Council, began the round of speeches with an appeal to students to "care now about the issues which face" them. "This is your world, get on top of it," he urged.

Following Salk, Rev. Mr. Hardy, Campus minister and chairman of the board of the MLK Social Action Council, told students that to "wait for the establishment to solve the problems which face all of us, would be less than human."

Robert Henderson, dressed in traditional African garb, exhorted students to brace themselves for the "Tempest" of racial strife which awaits them if no constructive action is taken in the area of race relations now.

Rev. A. C. Ross, experimental minister for Brightwood Riverview Project, picked up the theme of the plight of minority groups and described conditions in the Riverview project in Springfield. He lamented on the lack of schools, medical, police, and fire services. He said that the residents were faced with an apparent lack of concern, and a real lack of action on the part of city and federal housing administrations.

See Editorial, Pg. 4

Most students had wandered away at this point. Jack Deaver, French Professor then compared the conscientious objector with many heroes of literature, using Sophocles, Antigone, and Sir Thomas Moore as examples. He stated that the couprage involved in these heros' refusals to bend to the wishes of the powerful was the same as that of the antihero of today.

In what was the most radical speech of the day, Fred Moore of the New England Committee for Non Violent Action, called on Students to destroy draft files, and effect an overthrow of the government through noncooperation with civil authorities.

Sam Ajiri closed the meeting with an appeal to Americans to care and do something about inhuman conditions in Africa.

Chech Crisis Explored In Webster House Talk

By Neal Novack
Staff Reporter

"The Czechoslovakian people have suffered worse than another Munch, and I again feel betrayed." These were the fervently spoken words of Dr. Ferenc Vali, Professor of Gov't. at UMass, in his lecture "Czechoslovakia Today" given last night in the main lounge of Webster House.

At the opening of the lecture, Dr. Vali directed his discussion to a brief summary of recent Czechoslovakian history. The most crucial date referred to by Dr. Vali was 1948, when it was "left for the Russians to liberate the capital of Czechoslovakia. The loyalty of Czechoslovakia to Russia was not affected by the death of Stalin, and despite the Hungarian revolt in 1956 the Czechs' loyalty as a satellite state seemed to be assured. Secretly, though, the Czechs were always looking towards the West.

As a result of the subjugation of Czechs to remain a satellite country, the one-time and well-known Czech astuteness in matters of economics was replaced by a dissipation of wealth.

The appointment of the new Czech party president, Alexander Dubcek gave the people cause for new hope in attaining freedom. President Dubcek's "action program" was one of democratization, and a gradual establishment of human rights such as freedom of speech and expression. Dr. Vali stated that under Dubcek "the party was to be an important force, but its directive methods were to be abolished . . . the party was not to direct everyday political events.

Becoming aware of the gradual intensification of the reform program of the Czech party leaders, Moscow and other satellite countries became alarmed and feared infectious results. Moscow also feared that if Czechoslovakia should eventually drop out of the defense system (Warsaw Treaty Organization) there would result a wide gap of strategical significance. Dr. Vali continued by saying that "Dubcek and his colleagues tried to demonstrate that they would remain committed to their treaties with Russia and would remain loyal."

This evidence of Soviet-Czech tension lead Dr. Vali into a discussion of "Czechoslovakia Today" which began with the Soviet invasion on August 21 of this year by some 600-650 thousand communist troops from Russia and satellite countries. Dr. Vali pointed out that it was a very well prepared military operation, probably planned some six months in advance. The Czech leaders were taken unaware, kidnapped, physically beaten and brought to Moscow for "negotiations".

"When asked what the 600,000 troops are doing in Czechoslovakia, a Czech might answer: "They're trying to find the guy who invited them"."

ABOUT 250-300 STUDENTS attended the speaker program. Few of them took part in the marches from the residence areas to the Union South Terrace Lawn. Most outlookers "dropped by" to and from classes

Ball Quits U.N. Post Joins Humphrey Staff

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON—(AP) George W. Ball resigned from the U.N. ambassadorship Thursday to campaign for Hubert H. Humphrey, and President Johnson named Washington Post editor J.R. Wiggins to the U.N. Job.

Johnson personally emphasized his approval by calling newsmen to the White House Cabinet Room for the surprise announcement. At the same time he said Ball is not quitting out of disagreement with administration foreign policy.

The President praised the "dedicated and distinguished contributions to the public service" by the 58-year-old Ball.

"As you will see from his announcement," Johnson told reporters, Ball's resignation "has nothing to do with public policy but does have something to do with domestic politics."

Ball was simultaneously holding a news conference at the State Department at which he criticized Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon and explained why he is stepping out of the $30,000-a-year ambassadorship to a world organization to which he was named by Johnson last April.

The president of the United States must possess "settled principles and clear vision" plus "the perception and compassion that will enable him to feel and understand the pic forces now at work in a fast-changing world," Ball said.

Democratic nominee Humphrey "has those qualities and Richard Nixon lamentably lacks them," said Ball who is to become Humphrey's principal adviser on foreign policy.

As for speculation that he is angling for appointment as secretary of state should Humphrey win election, Ball— a longtime No. 2 man under uncumbent Secretary Dean Rusk—declared that "after the November election I shall return promptly to private life."

He added he has told the vice president he wants no role in a Humphrey administration.

Lederle's Son Abducted, Found

The son of the president of the University of Massachusetts was found early Thursday morning bound and gagged in a cemetery not far from his home on campus.

According to Thomas Lederle, 21, he was on his way to work at Amherst College when he was abducted by two unidentified persons at approximately 6:30 a.m.

He said he was taken to the cemetery where he was tied to a tree.

About 8:15 a.m. the caretaker of the cemetery heard shouts for help and found young Lederle.

Amherst police were called and are still investigating.

A spokesman for the University said that the youth seemed "quite confused" under questioning and asked to be admitted to Northampton State Hospital. He entered late in the afternoon.

Will You Go to Church Sunday Morning after Hearing LUCIFER Saturday Night?

DANCE

STUDENT UNION

SATURDAY, SEPT. 28TH

8 - 12 P.M.

Admission 75¢

TREAT YOUR DATE AT BUDGET RATES

Hatch Specials

Sunday, Sept. 29

Hatch Steak Dinner with Onion Rings, French Fries, Tossed Salad, Rolls & Butter — $1.49 plus tax

CHICKEN IN THE BASKET with French Fries, Rolls & Butter — $1.19 plus tax

Served 11:30 A.M. - 2:30 P.M. & 4:30 - 7:30 P.M.

Ice Cream Bar Specials

Large Chocolate Chip Cone .20
Black Cherry Sundae .30

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

World Needs Peace Power UM Alumnus Tells Students

By Sharon Samuels
Staff Reporter

"With all our science and technology to create an abundant life,we have ignored the most important science, the science of peace." So observed Dr. Lin Dao Yang, distinguished alumnus of the University of Massachusetts, while addressing an informal gathering Thursday afternoon in the Colonial Lounge.

He continued by saying that, while nations are willing to spend billions of dollars for war, they hesitate to spend a little on man. However, he added, it is not entirely the fault of those contributing to the art of war that this neglect has come about.

"All people must be willing to shoulder the responsibility, including those of us here today." He stated that "there must be a beginning in the science of peace, and this is long overdue."

Peace, he said, "is a worthwhile goal that may take generations to achieve." The root of the problem of reaching this goal, according to Dr. Lin Dao Yang, lies in our own minds and hearts.

"We harbor the idea of self above all else." And, "As long as we keep this obsession we will have war and strife, and peace will remain elusive."

The second problem to be solved is, in his opinion, the obtaining of enough food along with equitable distribution for all peoples of the world. The solving of this problem "is the only stable foundation on which a science of peace can be founded." He feels that there is too little emphasis placed on the relationships between land, people, food and politics in atempting to bring about peace.

He went on to present some of the problems of producing enough food that presently face the world, using China as an illustration. The two he considers most important are the rate of food production per acre and soil erosion.

"We have literally become one world," he said, in reference to great advances in methods of transportation and communication. "It is imperative that we learn to live in harmony." He concluded optimistically, saying "I believe humanity is slowly moving toward the time when there will be no war."

Dr. Lin Dao Yang graduated from the Massachusetts College of Agriculture in 1912. He returned to China to work with conservation and relief agencies, Later, he became an educator and has held the honor of being president of two colleges in Hong Kong, Chung Chi College and United Colleges. After World War II he served in the United Nations.

Murphy Trial Begins

Five Amherst police officers testified Thursday afternoon in the Steven H. Murphy murder trial in Hampshire County Superior Court. They related the events after the fatal fire in March, 1967.

One officer reported that at 2:45 am, a Korean student came to the police station to report the fire. Upon investigation, police found a single room on fire. They pulled George Rollins, a Belmont native, from the room. Rollins face and arms were bloodied, and the officers reported that they found 2 empty cans of paint thinner in the room.

Earlier in the morning, the jurors viewed the scene of the alleged crime, 133 Main Street, Amherst.

Murphy, 22, is on trial for the murder of his roommate, George Rollins.

Peace Corps Recruiters On Campus Next Week

By Pat Francis

Many of the "younger generation" today is concerned about experiences, and how to get them. Some people get their kicks from pot or drugs, others from driving a car at 90 per hour. The people in the Peace Corps get their kicks from helping people develop confidence in themselves, and helping them do things.

Judith Musick of California, Alan Maurer of Connecticut and Fred Cookson of Maine are representatives of the Peace Corps on Campus next week. They will be in the Student Union lobby from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. to answer questions students may have about the Peace Corps, what it does, and social action at home and abroad.

All three are former volunteers. Each possesses a great deal of feeling about the Peace Corps, and the work volunteers do. They agree that having served in the Peace Corps has changed their lives. Miss Musick asserts that "I can't remember anything before Peace Corps. I was a little kid. Somehow in the process of crossing over, I grew up."

However, the Peace Corps isn't a ready-made place for young Americans to grow up. The prime purpose is to help the people in the host country to develop confidence in themselves.

The representatives are authorized to process applications, and give the placement test Although they are primarily interested in seniors and graduate students, anyone, who is over 18, a U.S. citizen, and has no dependents under 18, may apply.

Volunteers begin with a two month training program, in the U.S. or the host country. The program includes intensive language training cultural and background study, and some technical training.

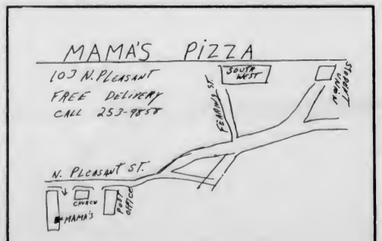
Reserve Monday Night For the MOVIE at the

English Pub

Don't forget our coat and tie policy
Fri. & Sat. nights after 6 p.m.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

HAPPY HOUR Friday 4-7 P.M.



SPECIAL PARTIES TEL. 586-0114

"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"

Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
ROUTE 9, AMHERST-HADLEY
SECOND FLOOR—CENTER

OPEN
4 p.m.-1 a.m. Weekdays
12:00 p.m.-1 a.m. Sat.
1:00 pm.-1 a.m. Sun.

FACULTY & STAFF WELCOME

THIS WEEKEND JOIN THE

Mama's Pizza

REBELLION

FREE DELIVERY
Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.
253-9858
103 No. Pleasant St.

McCarthy's Name Back in News

In N.H.

CONCORD, N. H. (AP) The names of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and Mayor Lindsay of New York will not appear on the November presidential ballot in New Hampshire after all, Secretary of State Robert Stark said today.

However, Stark added that the names of the four electors pledged to McCarthy and Lindsay will be on the ballot. Stark made his announcement after conferring with state Atty. Gen George Pappagianis.

The McCarthy-Lindsay ticket was advanced earlier this month by an organization calling itself the "New Party." McCarthy, a Democrat, was the organization's presidential nominee. Lindsay, a Republican, was its vice presidential nominee.

Stark said McCarthy asked via telegram that his name be removed from the ballot State law stipulates that any document requesting removal be notarized, but Stark said Pappagianis ruled that the telegram was sufficient in this instance for the state's purposes.

Stark also noted that an affidavit was to follow the telegram. The telegram apparently arrived prior to Wednesday's 6 p.m. removal deadline.

Meanwhile, an attorney representing the New Party in New Hampshire, Hal Close of Keene, was quoted today as saying that he will take Stark's decision to court.

Close, commenting in a radio interview, said he would base his case on two factors: that McCarthy and Lindsay failed to withdraw their names in accordance with state law and that it is the electors, rather than the candidates, for whom the voters actually cast their ballots.

On Television

ST. PAUL, MINN. AP — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is considering appearing on nationwide television in October to announce his support for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the St. Paul Pioneer Press said today. The Minnesota senator has not endorsed any candidate since he lost the Democratic presidential nomination to Humphrey in August.

A story by Al Eisele of the newspaper's Washington bureau said McCarthy's office confirmed Wednesday that negotiations have begun with the Columbia Broadcasting System regarding the availability of 30 minutes of prime television time.

McCarthy returns to Washington, D.C., today from a two-week vacation on the French Riviera. He is expected to decide this weekend whether to go ahead with the television speech, according to the report.

The article said McCarthy has been told by numerous close friends and advisers and by his wife, Abigail, that he will be blamed for Humphrey's defeat if the vice president loses the election.

HOT NEWS
LINE 5-2550

UM Orchestra Begins Third Year

Amherst, Mass. -- The University of Massachusetts Youth Orchestra under the direction of Joseph Contino will begin its third full season when it commences rehearsals Oct. 7.

Formed in 1965, the orchestra serves as a training group for talented young players of orchestral instruments who either have no opportunity for orchestral experience or who desire additional training in ensemble playing. Two concerts are given yearly, in January and in May. Weekly rehearsals are held on Monday evenings on the University campus in Old Chapel Auditorium. Students up to and including high school seniors are eligible. There is no geographical restriction although most of the orchestra's membership consists of players from surrounding communities.

The orchestra is conducted by Joseph Contino, associate professor of music at the University. A graduate of Oberlin Conservatory of Music, He has been at UMass since 1950. He has had extensive experience in many phases of performance and conducting, presently devoting his major efforts to performance and teaching of clarinet, flute and saxophone and to teaching conducting. He has taught and directed young players both in the public schools and at summer music camps. Under his guidance, the Youth Orchestra acts as a laboratory group for conducting and orchestration students of the music department.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Thant Hopes Would Bring UN Viet Action N. Viet into UN Family

By William L. Ryan
AP Special Correspondent

Q. What do you feel about the recent proposal . . . tending to bring the problem of the Vietnam war before the United Nations?

A. We have always declared that the U.N. organization does not have to busy itself with the Vietnam affair.

Q. What is the basic reason for this attitude?

A. "We deem that this organization is an instrument in the hands of the United States." The interview took place less than a year ago in Hanoi. A French journalist was questioning Pham Van Dong, the premier of North Vietnam.

The way Secretary-General U Thant sees it, a vote of the U.N. General Assembly would show the international community in favor of a halt to the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Thus, if such a vote were taken and turned out the way the secretary-general predicts, North Vietnam would stand to benefit from the action of an organization it has repeatedly denounced and rejected.

For a long time, echoing their Red Chinese neighbors, the North Vietnamese have made no secret of their scorn for the United Naitons. Any suggestion of an attempt to seek a U.N. role in Vietnam was indignantly rejected.

Thant himself had made such an effort. In March 1967 he sent a note to all parties in the conflict. This suggested a three-step approach to peace, through a truce, preliminary talks and reconvening the 1954 Geneva Conference. While this did not suggest a direct role for the United Nations as such, a role would be implicit in Thant's own inspiration for such a procedure. Hanoi underscored this in a curt rejection.

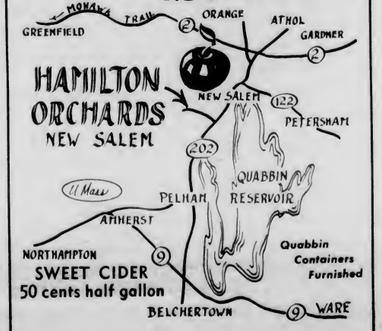
You have the power to turn this university upside down--peacefully

SENATE ELECTIONS OCTOBER 3
6-9 P.M. IN RESIDENCE HALLS

Commuters, Fraternities, Sororities — 9-5:30 p.m. in Student Union Lobby

Correction: Pick up nomination papers in Student Union Lobby! (Not R.S.O.)

Completed papers are due
Friday, September 27 by 5:30 p.m.
at the Senate table
in the S.U. Lobby



STUDENT POWER

RUN! VOTE!

Student Senate Public Relations Committee

PICK YOUR OWN APPLES

McIntosh $1.50 ½ Bushel

STUDENT SENATE CANDIDATES!

Drawings for places on the ballot will be held on Friday, Sept. 27, at 6:00 P.M.
in the Student Senate office,
Student Union

Only candidates or their representatives may attend.

SENIORS!

Class of 1969
Executive Council
Applications Available
In R.S.O. Office
DUE SEPT. 30

AREA WEST JUDICIAL SELECTIONS

Hampden Commons (# 7) 7:00 P.M.
Tuesday, October 1, 1968

openings for
2 seniors
3 juniors
composed of
1 or 2 men
3 or 4 women

Do Something!

"Take your place in the leadership of the campus community"

Area East Judiciary Selections

October 1

7:00 p.m., Hampden Room, Student Union

Restructure Greek System

Many UMass Greeks concerned about the future of fraternities admit they are in trouble; popularity, prestige, power — in short, the entire system — is on the wane.

Some regard a fraternity as a crutch, others see it merely as a social club, many consider it a haven of self-centeredness, materialism, and prejudice. Yet, beneath any stereotyped facade lie organs whose potential for positive contribution to the University community has nearly been forgotten. Division between North Pleasant Street and the rest of the campus has become more than one of purely physical location. Why? While many factors have been suggested (indeed, there are many), two factors may hold the key.

One has been propounded by graduated Greeks: fraternities have lost all concepts of once well-defined goals. Trying to compare actual fraternity life with ideals expressed in pledge handbooks is a farce. Terms like honesty, integrity, sincerety, individualism, and brotherhood, used in beautiful epithets, are forgotten soon after hell night (one wonders if they are ever really considered). No one expects Greeks to live according to "the book"; neither is it expected they reach the other extreme—wallowing in hypocrisy.

The second factor stems from the fact that Greeks, once student leaders, are falling to the rear. It appears that the fraternity man has not kept pace with the American student—especially during the past half-decade of fantastic change. While the emphasis on student government and student responsibility has intensified, responsible Greek involvement has declined. Where was Greek influence during the battling for serious academic reform or the open house proposal? What was the reaction of many Greeks last year at the death of Martin Luther King? (Or should we even bother to repeat the incidents?) As President Lederle noted last week, college should not provide an "ivory tower" of isolation; rather, it should be a focal point of discussion, concern, and positive action. It is not hard to see that the student is moving, more and more, in this direction. Yet, has the Greek system grown and expanded in attitude and action with its fellow university institutions, or is it still providing a haven for students belonging to an age of the years ago?

It would be unfair to generalize and include all Greeks or fraternities as typical of the aforementioned; yet, it is unquestionable that the problem (decline in popularity and prestige) does exist, creating considerable concern along North Pleasant Street. The remedy does not lie in holding Greek Week in the fall rather than the spring, with hopes of impressing new students, thereby renewing enthusiasm.

It's time for the Greek system to emerge from dormancy and realize its true potential. It's time for Greeks to take a hard look at the system, consider its flaws, and strive for a rebuilding of responsible fraternalism. Otherwise, fraternities at UMass will continue their steady slip into the bottomless pit of has-beens.

R.E.

Thought for Today

"If yesterday was a Day of Awareness, then I would hate to see a Day of Apathy."
-Anonymous

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

EDITORIAL DAY EDITOR: Nancy Bourgain, Editorial Staff, Rick Elias
Copy editing and make-up — Ruth Lovelace, Pat Francis, Robert Willis, Anne Giardina
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert '69

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"I've Decided To Protest Too—I'm Gonna Vote For Humphrey And Free Speech!"

INSIDE REPORT:

Privileged Sanctuaries for HHH

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

Los Angeles — Vice President Humphrey has now discovered that a Presidential nominee can slip into the third largest city for a campaign tour, avoid all anti-war pickets, and slip out again—with hardly anone aware of his presence.

That sums up Humphrey's all-day search for votes here on Wednesday (Sept. 25). He spent two hours on the California free-ways to make two speeches to highly selective audiences, both overwhelmingly Republican, and answered questions on a live television program staged in the middle of the afternoon.

But a hard question remained after Humphrey slipped out of town: just what did the 24-hour visit accomplish?

Consider his visit to Pepperdine College, a small, highly conservative, religious-based college of 1,300 students only a mile from the Negro ghetto of Watts.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn, one of the lesser known politicians here whose support for Humphrey goes back before the June 4 California primary, arranged the Pepperdine visit without clearing it with a single major party leader and despite the serious reservations of some of the shrewdest California Democrats. When Martin O'Donnell, chief advance man for the Los Angeles visit, asked a political expert about it, he was advised that Pepperdine had a reputation as anti-Negro and the visit could have harmful ramifications.

Hahn is a graduate of the college and consequently had a personal interest in getting the Vice President onto the small, neat campus, which is soon to be moved elsewhere because of the swift deterioration in the surrounding neighborhood. Hahn spent Tuesday at Pepperdine coaching the well-disciplined students against protesting Humphrey's visit.

In fact, there wasn't a chance of any protest. There are no hippies and few beards at Pepperdine and anti-war activity is practically non-existent. Humphrey was very enthusiastically received during his short talk to the students, while outside, beyond the fences protecting the campus, the real world of Los Angeles bustled and throbbed.

Humphrey's other speech during this campaign tour to the largest city of the largest state was almost as protected as Pepperdine College. With 2,500 in the amphitheater of Leisure World, a comfortable retirement community at Seal Beach in highly conservative Orange County, the Vice President unveiled his plan for expanded Social Security.

Again he was warmly received, despite a Republican majority in Leisure World approaching 70 percent. Again no one else saw him, either during the 40-minute motorcade on the freeways or on his arrival at Leisure World, where not a black face was visible.

If Humphrey were comfortably ahead of Richard M. Nixon, spending 24 hours this way five weeks before the election might be the best way to protect his lead.

But Humphrey faces the very opposite situation, both here and everywhere else. His party in California, a snakepit in the best of circumstances, is just coming out of the violent agony that followed the primary and the Chicago convention. A major upheaval resulting from the takeover by Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh, following the June 4 primary, has confounded until now Humphrey's best efforts to build a workable campaign organization. Money is practically non-existent, and brief television spots appeared for the first time only this week.

Nixon, on the other hand, has been running a sophisticated blend of five-minute TV spots for weeks and is alleged to be spending between four and five million dollars in California alone.

No wonder, then, that Humphrey got a lot of advice from the professionals who saw him on Wednesday's tour. Instead of privileged sanctuaries, these advisors said, the Vice President needs maximum exposure, notwithstanding the political risks of pickets shouting obscenities (which may in fact help rather than hurt Humphrey).

What is needed, in short, is the politics of maximum not minimum participation, of boldness, imagination and experimentation. This trip was indeed far better than Humphrey's last visit here, but still far short of what is needed. Just before leaving, Humphrey described the day as "one of the best I've had." Still, it wasn't nearly good enough.

NOTICES

KOISTER DOISTERS
Meeting Wednesday at 8:30, 13 Dickinson basement. Newcomers welcome.
PRE-MED SOCIETY
Dr. James Mulvihill, Harvard Med School Dean will be on Campus Oct. 9, from 2-5 p.m. Interested students should sign up in Pre-Med Office.
NORTHAMPTON VOLUNTEERS
Meeting Oct. 2 in Union Lobby.
MASS. FRINGE POLITICS
Discussion on candidates, platform and publicity in new part of hatch, 7:00 Sunday.
CAMPUS HUMOR-SATIRE MAGAZINE
Meeting 7 p.m. Sept. 30. Writers and Cartoonists needed as well as general staffers.
BAHAI CLUB
Meeting 8:00 today, Worcester Room, SU - Open Discussion, refreshments.
ASTRONOMY CLUB
Meeting Monday at 8:00 Hasbrouck 109. Organizational meeting. Public welcome.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Yellow jacket in Machmer W12 or level 4 of Goodell Library. Call Dave Baskin, 6-7629. Reward.
Lost: Set of keys on ring sometime Saturday night. Call Wayne at 6-7717.

PINNINGS and ENGAGEMENTS

Engagement: Karen Haley '70, Crampton to Mark Butler '69, Phillips St., Amherst.
Engagement: Lynda Stein '69, 310 Patterson to David H. Luben, US Army, Fort Devens.

Truman Honored

WASHINGTON (A P) — The House passed Thursday a resolution honoring former President Harry S. Truman for the part he played in creation of the United Nations.

The resolution was sent to the Senate.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

UMass Professor Publishes Second Edition

Amherst, Mass.— University of Massachusetts professor Donald E. Lundberg has authorized the release of a second edition of his book "Costa Rica" through Costa Rican publisher Juan Mora.

First published in 1960 by Peninsular Press, the new edition updates available information on the small Central American country. According to Dr. Lundberg, the book was written to give an understanding of Costa Rica—politically, economically, sociologically and psychologically.

In 221 pages, Dr. Lundberg tells about the character and culture of the country, its religion, politics, agriculture, and investment climate. Writing from personal experience, he also pinpoints some "must see" tourist attractions and how to get there. Because of the country's low cost of living, Dr. Lundberg considers it an ideal place to retire provided an adjustment to the climate and culture can be made. His guidebook is chock full of information which any prospective visitor to Costa Rica would be glad to have.

Dr. Lundberg is a professor of food science and technology and chairman of the University's hotel and restaurant management program. He earned his B.A. and M.A. degrees from Iowa State College and Duke University and received his Ph. D. degree from Cornell University. He has written extensively on the subject of hotel and restaurant management based on his own experience for a variety of trade magazines.

Come to the AMHERST TOWER

For Fine Italian Pizza,
Subs, and Dinners
Open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun. open 11 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.
Call 253-7100
256-6667

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

Snoopy where were you? 10/1

HELP WANTED

Part-time cafeteria (Hatch) evening supervisor with food service experience. Three nights per week. Apply at the Student Union Food Service office. 9/30

Banjo player experienced in Gay 90's Sing-Alongs, Dixieland, Ragtime. Call 544-6722 eve's. 10/3

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

STEREOPHONIC TAPE-RECORDER: Roberts 997 professional model. Used minimally. Perfect for the serious music lover or musical group. Reasonably priced for such a high quality machine. 256-6449 (after 5). 9/30

For Sale: Used 35 mm Minolta camera. Included: Argus lightmeter, and Kalimar auxiliary telefoto and wide-angle lenses. $50 buys all. Phone Arthur, 546-9464 10/11

FOR SALE

308 caliber husquarna sport rifle, Monte Carlo stock, machined molt; carrying case; 4 power savage scope sling; 220 rounds winchester ammo. All in exc. cond. $175 or best offer. Patrick: 323-7872 at night. 9/30

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1962 Chev wagon; 6 cyl. standard, new tires, new brakes, very clean $475. Call 1-532-1396 between 8 and 9 p.m. Located at 48 Amherst Rd., So. Hadley. 9/27

1962 MGA Mark II Roadster. The last MGA built. New top, batteries, two new tires, valve job. Tonneau and two extra tires and wheels, radio. Runs very well. 27 MPG. Call Chuck at 584-9361. 9/30

Rambler station wagon, 1965, 34000 miles by original owner, automatic transmission, excellent condition, new tires plus snow tires, radio & heater; $995. Call 584-1497 9/30

1962 Ford Galaxie 500 good condition, $295. Evenings. Call: 253-7642 or 253-7966 10/1

Must sell 1965 MG 110 4 doors sports sedan, 4 cylinder, 4-speed, radio, back up lites, extras! 30 plus M.P.G. dark green, excellent condition, 35,700 miles Best offer. Call 549-1318

1960 Thunderbird coupe white, black interior, new tires, front end, brakes, & the rest of the stuff they tell you in ads. $550 can be seen at 51 South East St. 10/1 a great liberal writer speaks out fearlessly and frankly read

"A WORD EDGEWISE . . ."
a new column by
JOHN P. ROCHE
Professor of Labor & Social Thought
Brandeis University
TUESDAYS AND THURSDAYS
in the RECORD AMERICAN and every Sunday in the
SUNDAY ADVERTISER

"He presents the liberal view with zest, authority and fierce independence"

Starting Sunday, Sept. 29
COLLEGE POLL
. . . reflects thinking, attitudes and aspirations of college students
Every Week in the Sunday Advertiser

There are a least seventy-five groups currently playing at dances in and around Worcester. One of them, Lucifer, will be featured at a dance at the Student Union ballroom this Saturday night.

Lucifer (until recently named The Sad Side) can probably be rated (by frequency of bookings, by the size of the crowds they draw, and by audience response) as second only to The Joneses, who are the group in Worcester. Lucifer makes regular appearances at Bogey's, a small popular college age club in Worcester, and at the Hulaballoo in Dudley. They have also played at Leicester Airport, the Hive in Springfied, the Brandy Banjo in Worcester and the Summit Lounge in Dudley. Lucifer is popular at Holy Cross College and at Worcester Tech; they have been playing frequent engagements on both campuses for more than a year.

Lucifer generally expects a dancing audience; they are seldom disappointed, although they have, on occasion, found themselves suddenly "in concert' while playing a request number. Their material ranges from a fairly heavy emphasis on Soul through renditions of Cream and a little Hendrix. They also include tasteful selections from past songs by groups such as the Beatles and the Byrds. Lucifer's vocal style is extremely competent. While their three-part harmonies provide a fine professional sound, they are equally comfortable with solo vocal performances.

Lucifer is an experienced group, making their first appearance on this campus. There are several excellent groups now popular here. Nonetheless, one more—a group with perhaps something new to offer—should be a definite gain for those who care about music. Adv.

EDITORS FROM THE
FOUR COLLEGE NEWSPAPERS
WILL INTERVIEW
DAVID EISENHOWER
ON WAMF 89.5 FM
SUNDAY NIGHT, 8:00 PM

DANCE: SEPTEMBER 27
The Blue Grass
Sponsored by Revelers
Admission 50 cents S.U. Ballroom

Have A GRINDER & PEPSI
from the CARRIAGE LIGHT
at SOUTHWEST by Prince House
and CENTRAL by Gorman House
WEEKDAYS — 7 P.M. - 12:30 A.M.
FRIDAYS — 7 P.M. - 1:30 A.M.
SATURDAYS — 12 NOON - 1:30 A.M.
THANKS

Another Presidential Candidate

Gregory Gains Support

DICK GREGORY MDC Photo

by JILL WALLACK
Staff Reporter

A movement has sprung up on the UMass campus and on many other college campuses throughout the country, to back the presidential campaign of Negro comedian Dick Gregory.

In an interview held last Wednesday evening, Arthur Cunneen, UMass chairman of the Committee for Student Awareness, discussed the purpose of the write-in campaign for Gregory.

Cunneen felt that the chief goal of Gregory's campaign is primarily to give back to the people their freedom of expression. He feels, too, that only through the election of a man who will represent them is the will of the people expressed directly. For him, and for many others, Dick Gregory is such a man. He is a man of ability who "will bring us back to a position where we can take stock of where we're going." He will enable us to re-establish direction towards a goal of present and future solutions to the pressing problems facing America today.

Presently Gregory's campaign in Massachusetts is being run on a local level, though Cunneen is hopeful that it will rapidly become a statewide effort. On the UMass campus, this campaign for Gregory is being directed by the Committee for Student Awareness. They are attempting to reach those people who Cunneen feel are the voiceless majority who cannot support the other candidates. The campaign will further attempt to make the students aware of the problems facing America and to attempt to educate people with the knowledge that the other candidates, especially Humphrey, have denied the people their voice.

REBIRTH OF
THE NEW NORTHEAST
DANCE TO THE SOUNDS OF
THE BOSS TWEEDS
ON THE QUAD GREEN
SAT., 8 P.M. UNTIL FREE

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Hi, thought I'd drop you a line from the beautiful jungle Country where I'm filming. I'm finally alive (the most dropping behind the Pueblo hounds to get high (Enjoy Christmas pigs you die!) I left my mind in San Francisco I left my life in LA Thought I'd let you in on a Chevalet from CA I am The N.L.F. in middle Hope not afraid Hope not alone (You are afraid You are alone) Can it be the Way I planned Has finally come Home? Farewell & Fortune, Fatso P. O. Box

Tape from California
Phil Ochs

PLEASURES OF THE HARBOR A & M 4133
2 Great Albums from Phil Ochs
Now Available at the UNIVERSITY STORE and MELODY Corner, Downtown Amherst

Booters To Tilt With Maine Black Bears

By Walt Stachura
Staff Reporter

The UMass soccer team will open its 11 game season tomorrow morning in a Yankee Conference tilt against the Maine Black Bears at the field in front of Boyden starting at 10:30.

New head soccer coach Peter Broaca, who took over for Larry Briggs after 40 years of coaching at UMass, has seven returning lettermen and a large group of sophomores on this squad which will try to better last year's 5-5 record and a second place finish in the Yankee Conference.

Four sophomores appear to be probable starters for tomorrow's game, with at least three of them in the front wall.

Broaca stated that the front line will probably be composed of sophomores Larry DeFelice and Duane Brown and senior co-captain Wilkie Ward with one of two sophomores, Steve Blanchette or Marc Cantor at the wing slot.

The halfbacks will be the 3M line of Marty Mughogho, Rich Meyer and Rick Matusczak. Fighting for the three fullback berths are senior co-captain Bob Dubiel, Ed Sanborn, John Mercury and Ed Schmitter.

Starting goalie should be returning letterman Steve Kramer, but senior Tom Malone may also see some action.

Maine should prove to be a capable starting opponent for the Redmen. The Black Bears will have 11 lettermen returning from last year's 4-6-1 squad. Also, several excellent prospects from the freshman team will help to bolster the squad.

Among those expected to lead the Black Bears in 1968 are co-captains Swatulani Munthali from Zambia, a halfback and inside, and Harrie Price of Mooerstown, N.J., a wing.

Munthali was named All-Maine last season and Price was named to the second team. Those up from the freshman team who are expected to help are Reuben Hernandez of Hinckley, Maine via Cuba; Jossy Byamah of Uganda, East Africa; Brian Smith of Bloomfield, N.J. and Grant Wood of Hebron, Maine.

Two players who did not see action last season but are expected to aid the Black Bear attack are Eduardo Beltran of Bangor via Ecuador and George Bisbano of North Plainfield, N.J.

Maine appears to have a strong offense but a weak defense from early performances. The Black Bears opened their season with a 4-3 loss to Jersey City State College and in another scrimmage scored five goals.

The Redmen have not allowed a goal in their last four outings, but the Black Bears appear to have enough scoring scoring punch to test the defense strongly.

Rugby Club Meets Dartmouth In First Match of the Season

The UMass rugby club open its season tomorrow with a match against the Dartmouth Indians in Hanover, N.H. The first game will be played at 10 a.m. and the second starts at 11 a.m.

Jerry Bruen, maintaining the scrum, will be returning from last year's team. Also returning are Don Zingale, Mike Meehan, and this years captain, Jeff Freedman. He will be calling the directions from scrum half and kicking.

Teddy Hogue will be in the backfield, Gene Oliver, is the tackler, Frank Deslata, who has good outside speed and tackling, will also be playing, lining three fourths.

Dartmouth boasts one of the best playing fields on the east coast. Their man to stop will be the captain, Mike Vasey, strong on defense and running. Rick Berg and Pete DeSheas are in the backfield. Milt Jacobsen is the hooker. The Indians also have an Englishman on the team, have an Englishman on te team, Luce O'Reilly.

No Free Play

Boyden will be closed to free play on any Sat. when there is a home football game. It will be open on all other Sat. unless otherwise notified.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

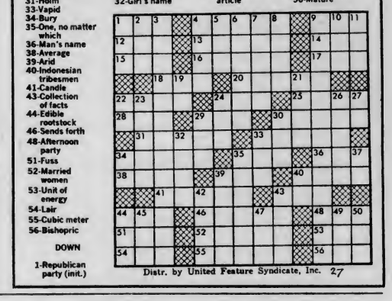
NOW!
Cinema I
The original uncut versions
Still the Screen's Greatest
Double Creature Feature!
"FRANKENSTEIN"
BORIS KARLOFF—Shows at 7 & 9:30
- - - Plus Bela Lugosi in
DRACULA
Shows at 8:15
NOW! Cinema II
MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
in Albert Camus'
"The Stranger"
Shows at 6:15 & 9:45
plus DAVID COOPER in
"The Presidents Analyst"
Shows at 8
Next to Bayer's
Campus Twin Cinemas
256-6411

FIRST AREA DRIVE-IN SHOWING
DEERFIELD
DRIVE-IN THEATRE
ROUTE 5 & 10
SOUTH DEERFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS
TEL. 665-8746
FRI. - SAT. - SUN.
He's the living- and dying-end in excitement!
MGM presents
An Alfio Kloss Production
starring Tony Anthony
"THE STRANGER RETURNS"
METROCOLOR
also
"THE FEARLESS VAMPIRE KILLERS"
OR: Pardon Me, But Your Teeth Are in My Neck
SHOWTIME 7:30
FEATURE FIRST RUN ONLY

AMHERST Cinema
NOW SHOWING
Daily—7:00 and 9:00
Sat. 1:30-3:30-5:20
Sun. 7:20-9:20
Plus
Select Shorts
Doris Day · Robert Morse
Terry-Thomas · Patrick O'Neal
"Where Were YOU When The Lights Went Out?"
PANAVISION and METROCOLOR
When N.Y. Became the 'Fun' City

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

CROSSWORD PUZZLE



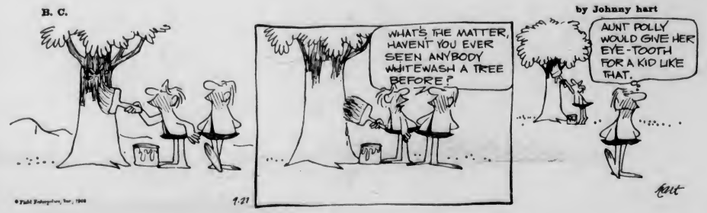
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ALE PE STERE
REDDEN TERETE
ER DAIS IES PA
OR STUN EDIT
OTIS SITE ICE
ESTOP TEND SN
ERIN DIET
MA ATEN DARED
ABA STOP NERO
LAMA TRAP TA
AS RE ATES SO
RETIRE ERODED
SEARS NT ERS

27

ACROSS
1-School of whales
4-Jogged
9-Male sheep
12-Tuberous root
13-Pope's veil
14-Period of time
15-Writing implement
16-Eagle's nest
17-Chicken
18-Hostelry
20-Minute groove
22-Restaurant
24-Tiny
25-Ancient Greek coin
28-Beverage
29-Footlike part
30-Marsh bird
31-Holm
33-Vapid
34-Bury
35-One, no matter which
36-Man's name
38-Average
39-Arid
40-Indonesian tribesmen
41-Candle
43-Collection of facts
44-Edible rootstock
46-Sends forth
48-Afternoon party
51-Fuss
52-Married women
53-Unit of energy
54-Lair
55-Cubic meter
56-Bishopric

DOWN
1-Republican party (init.)
2-High card
3-Display
4-Grant use of
5-Native metal
6-Analyzes, as sentence
7-Choice part
8-Antlered animal
9-Reinstates
10-Exist
11-Male
19-Compass point
21-Island of Inner Hebrides
22-Symbol for calcium
23-Place in line
24-Damp
26-Musical drama
27-French article
29-Through
30-Pigpen
32-Girl's name
33-Vessel's curved planking
34-Prefix: not
35-Come onto scene
37-Conjunction
39-Resign
40-Indefinite article
42-Church benches
43-The caama
44-Cushion
45-Poem
47-Prefix: three
49-Before
50-Mature



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 27

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

B. C. by Johnny hart

27 SEPT 27

Redmen Clash With Buffalo Bulls

HOT NEWS
LINE 5-2550

'UMass Is Dangerous Team' - Bulls Coach

By Martha Curran
Senior Reporter

UMass' football team faces its own "day of awareness" today as it meets the highly - regarded Buffalo Bulls in vast War Memorial Stadium. The night encounter begins at 8:15, an encounter both coaches see as being a tough battle.

"The University of Massachusetts is a dangerous team," Richard (Doc) Urich, head coach of Buffalo, said yesterday. "The Redmen have strong personnel," he added in an interview with the Daily Collegian. Urich lists UMass among his team's toughest opponents.

Tonight's game, the third in the UMass-Buffalo series, will break a 1-1 tie, barring a deadlock tonight. In 1964, in Buffalo, the Redmen defeated the Bulls 24-22 at Rotary Field. In 1965, Buffalo won 18-6 here at Alumni Stadium.

A capacity crowd is not expected at the home of the Buffalo Bills simply because capacity is 45,000.

The contest will be Urich's first night game with Buffalo since he became head coach there three years ago. The Redmen who haven't played a night game in four years, have spent the past few evenings under the lights of the intramural fields.

Both teams have been forced into lineup changes due to injuries to key operators. Buffalo's All-East linebacker Mike Luzny, who was sidelined earlier with a knee injury, was expected to be ready for tonight's game. Urich, however, said "It's doubtful he'll see any action this soon, since he only started practice this week."

Mick Murtha, Buffalo's number one quarterback is out for the season. Urich lamented, "This is a great loss." Dennis Mason will start in Murtha's place.

Urich praised the Redmen again when he said, "They're a fine team, well-drilled and well-coached.

UMass, meanwhile, will feature several position changes, including sophomores Bill Byron and Nick McGarry getting their first varsity starts and last week's offensive star Alan Becker, moving to defense.

These developments occurred because of injuries incurred last week. Defensive end Tom York is a very doubtful participant in tonight's contest as is linebacker Dennis Gray. Becker will play in York's spot while Byron will fill in for Gray. McGarry takes over Becker's tight end positions.

UMass coach Vic Fusia said he hopes both York and Gray will be ready for next week's Delaware game. The same, however, can't be said for tackle Fred Huprich who is lost for the season. Mark Toner will start in his place.

Fusia stated that the busiest man on defense could be Andy Guarino. Guarino will fill in at both middle guard and at tackle. Fusia said of Guarino, "Andy is one of the most valuable players we have."

Fusia has great respect for the Buffalo eleven, saying "their only possible weakness is the deep backs." Otherwise, the Bulls are strong, according to Fusia.

Although the Bulls are smarting from the loss of Murtha, Fusia sees this as no big break for the Redmen. Fusia said of replacement Mason, who is a senior co-captain, "He is outstanding on the option, play-calling, and keeps the offense well balanced." Mason has completed 20 of 35 passes in the last two games.

Buffalo also has a split end, Dick Ashley who worries Fusia. "He has been getting double-coverage from all their opponents," said the coach, "so that they have gone to the other side, to the tight end and slot back."

In Ken Rutowski and Pat Patterson the two tailbacks, the Bulls, have, according to Fusia, "two of the finest backs we face all year. They have good speed and can go all the way."

Fusia, in other words, expects a difficult game. The injuries to York and Gray compound the troubles the Redmen will face. For, the Bulls are an explosive offensive team. It is therefore the Redman defense that will be sorely tested.

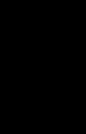
UMass will most probably pass a lot again this week, probing the Buffalo weakness in the secondary. Last Saturday, the Redmen passed 36 times.

Buffalo has played twice this season losing its opener to Iowa State, 28-10, and defeating Kent State, 21-13, although Kent shocked the Bulls for 305 yards in passing. although Kent shocked the Bulls for 305 yards in passing. Following tonight's game with UMass, the Bulls play in the Boston College home opener. Buffalo also plays Holy Cross and Boston University in common opponents. The Bulls have been installed as one touchdown against the Redmen.

UMass will face a forty degree temperature drop when they reach Buffalo. A Buffalo television station told the Daily Collegian late last night that the temperature tonight in Buffalo could reach the low 40's. Coming from the rear 90 degree heat box of last Saturday, the UMass Redmen could be in for a chilling evening.

KEN RUTKOWSKI
Buffalo Tailback

Probable Starting Lineups



UMASS—Offense				BUFFALO—Offense
83	Warnock, SE	Sr. 6'2	200	87	Ashley, SE	Sr. 6'1	201
70	Donlin, LT	Jr. 6'6	275	73	Centofanti, LT	So. 6'	210
71	Cooney, LG	Jr. 6'	225	64	Maser, LG	Sr. 5'11	214
50	Sheehan, C	Sr. 6'6	230	52	Wesolowski, C	Sr. 5'11	214
62	Fulton, RG	Jr. 5'11	200	62	Kowalewski, RG	Sr. 5'11	210
78	Nangle, RT	Jr. 6'3	205	77	Wolf, RT	Jr. 6'3	220
80	McGarry, TE	So. 6'5	210	85	Lang, LE	Jr. 6'	210
14	Adams, QB	Jr. 6'	175	19	Mason, QB	Sr. 5'11	188
22	Grasso, WB	Jr. 6'	185	44	Drankowski, WB	Sr. 6'1	183
40	Lowell, TB	Jr. 6'	194	21	Rutkowski, TB	Sr. 5'9	180
31	Sarno, FB	Jr. 6'	230	35	Zelmanski, FB	So. 6'1	185
	Defense				Defense
81	Becker, LE	Sr. 6'1	200	90	Hanley, DE	Jr. 6'1	205
72	Scheralis, LT	Jr. 6'1	230	83	Kovey, DE	Jr. 5'11	202
61	MacLean, MG	Jr. 5'10	205	75	Riccelli, DT	So. 6'2	242
77	Toner, RT	Jr. 6'1	205	70	Walgate, DT	Jr. 6'2	235
85	Robinson, RE	Sr. 6'	200	69	Sabo, LB	Sr. 5'10	210
33	Dotson, Chief	Jr. 6'	190	65	Clark, LB	Jr. 6'	212
55	Fortunoff, LLB	Jr. 6'1	205	34	Luzny, LB	Jr. 5'9	209
53	Byron, RLB	So. 6'3	218	32	Richner, LB	Sr. 5'11	197
24	Frye, LCB	Sr. 5'9	185	40	Elliott, S	So. 5'11	195
25	McArdle, RCB	Sr. 6'	190	29	Horn, S	Jr. 5'11	175
45	Rogers, S	Jr. 6'2	190	23	Kish, HB	Sr. 5'11	198

Alan Becker
Redman Left End

Dick Ashley
Buffalo Split End

Nick McGarry
Redman Tight End

Tom Centofani
Buffalo Tackle

METAWAMPE'S GRID PICKS

The old warrior had tears in his eyes. His ROTC credit is no more. The Boston school system wouldn't let him wear his turtle neck loin cloth to school.

And it was so long before the janitors came back that his teepee was completely overrun with rodents. To make things worse the old injun hit only a 76 percent completion last week. Gloom was in his every movement. But one thing revived the ancient redskin, a trip to exotic Buffalo where it is even legal for Indians to imbibe. With this thought in mind, he presents another installment.

MASSACHUSETTS 21, BUFFALO 13
For Buffalo roam, Redman rages (Score reflects the drinking ages.)

HARVARD 27, HOLY CROSS 14
In Harvard Square where drugs are best, Crusaders face an acid test.

DARTMOUTH 24, NEW HAMPSHIRE 14
Green will rise from drunken revel, But Wildcats know Root of their trouble.

YALE 20, CONNECTICUT 13
Sloan Coffin's plight had New Left ravin' But Dowling reinspires New Haven.

BOSTON COLLEGE 14, NAVY 11
Yukica starts to earn this pay, As Middies sink in Chesapeake Bay.

NOTRE DAME 35, PURDUE 19
Pat O'Brien's exhortation, recalls the Gipper, carriers nation.

FLORIDA 13, FLORIDA ST. 7
Fullback Smith draws sunkissed raves, Sending Gators back to their Graves.

KANSAS 32, INDIANA 20
Harry's harried in Hockers' haunt, And coach earns nickname "Fourth Down Point."

PENN ST. 23, KANSAS ST. 17
Nittany are blessed with Pittmen, Who the Wildcats find can really hit man.

GEORGIA TECH 17, MIAMI (FLA.) 14
Although the Wrecks lost Snow, King, The Hurricanes just aren't blowing.

Rhode Island 21, Brown 7
Boston University 30, Maine 13
Vermont 22, Wilkes 6
Army 14, Vanderbilt 13
Bucknell 28, Pennsylvania 20
Columbia 14, Lafayette 3
Pittsburgh 17, West Virginia 7
Cornell 20, Colgate 12
Princeton 31, Rutgers 29
Syracuse 19, Maryland 6
Delaware 27, Villanova 10
Temple 33, Wayne 7
Dayton 14, Bowling Green 0
Illinois 12, Missouri 10
Ohio 15, Kent State 8
Miami (Ohio) 21, Western Michigan 7
Michigan State 23, Baylor 12
Minnesota 13, Nebraska 10
So. California 42, Northwestern 14
Ohio State 24, Southern Methodist 13
North Carolina State 17, Oklahoma 15
Washington 30, Wisconsin 20
Alabama 20, Southern Mississippi 0
Michigan 14, Duke 7
Georgia 16, Clemson 3
Auburn 28, Mississippi State 7
South Carolina 7, North Carolina 6
Tennessee 21, Memphis State 8
Arizona St. 34, Texas-El Paso 28.
Virginia 21, Virginia Military 20
Arkansas 28, Tulsa 12
Wyoming 21, Air Force 20
North Texas State 34, Colorado St. 17
Oregon State 38, Utah 15
Utah State 26, Wichita State 12
Colorado 7, California 0
Stanford 21, Oregon 6
Brigham Young 32, Iowa State 14
Cincinnati 14, Xavier 6
Citadel 30, Lehigh 7
Louisiana Tech 10, East Carolina 8
Mississippi 21, Kentucky 7
Arizona 30, New Mexico 14
New Mexico State 35, Texas, Arlington 21
Louisiana State 17, Rice 14
Richmond 19, Davidson 9
San Jose State 20, Fresno State 13
Texas Christian 14, Iowa 7
Texas 22, Tech 10
Toledo 25, Marshall 6
Texas A&M 24, Tulane 7
UCLA 40, Washington State 13
West Texas State 51, Pacific 38

Redmen Tapes To Be Shown On TV Sunday

Highlights of all Redman football games will be televised from 1-1:30 p.m. every Sunday over Channels 22 (Springfield), 32 (Keene, N.H.) and 14 (Worcester.)

Brief taped highlights of UMass games have been produced through the cooperation of the Athletic Department and the University Photo Center for the past four years, but this fall is the first time that a full half hour color program has been attempted.

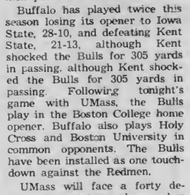
UMass Opponents Play Traditional Ivy Rivals

UMass isn't the only one traveling this weekend. Seven of the nine other Redman opponents are on the road in this first full weekend slate of football.

Three Yankee Conference teams challenge their arch Ivy League rivals. Rhode Island would seem to have the best chance of victory as they pick on Brown at Providence. Last weekend Rhody was upended by powerful Temple, but hopefully they have most of their mistakes behind.

New Hampshire, with rookie coach Jim Root at the controls, has its work cut out for them in a game against Dartmouth at Hanover. Jeff Norton, the big Green's outstanding defensive ear, is out with a knee injury.

Down at the Yale Bowl, Brian Dowling will be giving the new-look Connecticut Huskies a good workout. UConn's sophomore backfield sparkled a week ago in a shutout over Vermont.



Vermont, meanwhile, entertains little known Wilkes College. Catamount coach Bob Clifford says his team "will have to cut down on mental errors" if they plan on winning.

Boston University travels up to Orono, Maine, for a meeting with the Black Bears. BU is favored to win this battle of losers. Terrier coach Warren Schmakel plans to give sophomore Pete Yeten a start at quarterback while Walt Abbott, facing his tenth straight loss, is expected to pull out all stops in hopes of an upset.

After trouncing a veteran Hofstra team, 35-0, Delaware should be able to get past Villanova. The Blue Hens will be starting 10 sophomores.

In the feature New England game, a sophomore studded Holy Cross unit visits Harvard. The Crusadere have just lost defensive halfback Kurty because of poor marks.

Finally, Boston College, under Joe Yukica, faces Navy at Annapolis. Joe Margetti is expected to start for the Eagles while the Middies have made several changes after their clobbering by Penn State last Saturday.

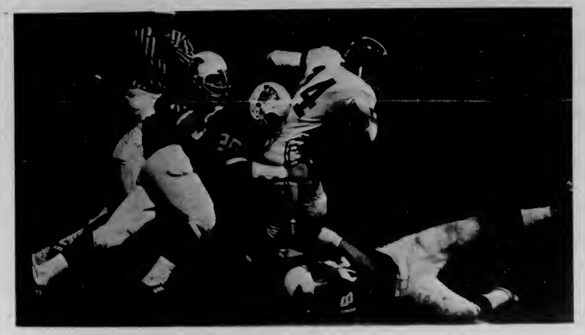
BILL BYRON
UMass Linebacker

Redmen on the Warpath

FOOTBALL — vs. Buffalo, at War Memorial Stadium, Buffalo, N.Y., 8:15 p.m., tonight (WMUA, 91.1 FM)

SOCCER—vs. Maine, at home, tomorrow, 10:30 a.m.

CROSS COUNTRY — vs. Harvard-Providence Dual Meet, at Franklin Park, Boston, tomorrow, 12 noon.



BASEBALL — vs. Mass. Bay Community College, at home, doubleheader exhibition, game tomorrow, 12 noon.

Frosh Hoopsters

ALL freshman basketball candidates meet in Room 251, Boyden Building, 7 p.m. Wed., Oct. 2

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 28 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1968

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly
THE BEGINNING OF A LONG NIGHT—UMass quarterback Tim Adams (14) is brought down by three Buffalo tacklers after being forced to scramble out of the pocket early in the first quarter. Buffalo routed the Redmen, 23-0. For stories and more pictures, see pages 10-12.

Smith College Starts Recruitment Of Negro, Disadvantaged Women

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. —On a tree-shaded, 200-acre campus in a farming valley, Smith College seems far removed from the educational needs of capable Negro or disadvantaged young women.

But the college has been trying to shorten the distance. Some very active efforts are being made by the board of admission of Smith, the largest private women's college in the U.S., to recruit Negro applicants for its annual enrollment of about 2350 undergraduates.

Last year, Director of Admission Miss Jane Sehmann visited a number of schools in Brooklyn and Harlem attended by disadvantaged pupils. The same schools will be revisited this year.

Members of the admission staff traveled to a number of cities in the South and Middle West—in each city the schedule included visits to schools attended by students of very limited financial means. This plan is being continued this year in cities in Oklahoma, Texas, Pennsylvania, Illinois and in a few large cities in other states.

Interested Negro students here visited their home schools during vacation periods last year as official representatives of the college. The young women also cooperated with the admission office in writing to both prospective students and accepted candidates. It is expected that the student visits will be repeated this year.

Last year the director of admission met with representatives of groups also concerned with the problems of the disadvantaged students—the Project Coordinator of the College Discovery and Development Program of the New York City Department of Education; the director of Opportunity Project for Education now in Washington, D.C., and the assistant director of admissions at Wesleyan University, which has an unusually extensive program for the enrollment of disadvantaged students.

The Upward Bound programs at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Brandeis, Southeastern Massachusetts Technological Institute and Yale University's Summer High School were visited this summer by a Smith College assistant director of admission. Also during the summer, the director of admission spoke at a meeting held by the College's School for Social Work to discuss Smith's efforts to seek the disadvantaged and to ask for assistance and suggestions in this endeavor during the coming year.

Three staff members of the office are now planning an extensive series of meetings in several schools in eight Connecticut communities this fall. The schools were selected following a survey of the Negro population in these and other cities. The plan calls for three visits to each school by a staff member before January.

As in the past several years, principals or guidance counselors in predominantly Negro schools have been invited to be the college's guests at a Smith College-Amherst College Secondary School Colloquium.

Hunsberger Addresses Convocation Of Arts and Sciences Faculty

Daily Collegian Photo by Ken Emery
DEAN I. MOYER HUNSBERGER delivered a convocation address to the College of Arts and Sciences Faculty in Bartlett Hall in which he called for leadership to initiate change.

By Richard Story
Education Editor

Calling for a "marshalling of teams to manage change," Dean I. Moyer Hunsberger addressed a convocation of the College of Arts and Sciences faculty last Thursday evening. "The function of leadership is to initiate change," he said, in remarks urging renewed and extended faculty involvement in the process of change.

Dean Hunsberger, speaking in Bartlett, began with a reference to our having been told "it . . . like it is," and proceeded to elaborate with some discussion of the subway necessary to get to where "it ought to be." With preliminaries aside, the substance of the address came later in the hour.

He discussed a summer-long intra-College session on the curriculum, saying that much of what had come out, so far, was not original. In terms of the particular history of college curriculum discussion, this was something of an overstatement—there was novelty in the first airing of

(Continued on Page 2)

Murder-Arson Trial Continues Of Former UMass Student

The Commonwealth's star witness, Sang Seek Park of Seoul, Korea, continues his testimony this morning in the murder-arson trial of Stephen H. Murphy, 24, of Lexington, a former UMass student charged with the death of his roommate George Rollins in March, 1967.

Park, a political science graduate student at UMass was a roomer in the apartment house at 133 Main St. In testimony Saturday morning Park, now a resident of Northampton, told the court that he, Rollins, and Murphy were in Murphy's first floor room listening to a tape recorder on the morning of March 23d.

Park said he left the pair and went to his room next door at about 1 a.m. He said he heard an hour later "a proof-like something blew up" in Murphy's room.

Park said he heard a voice call, "Steve, Steve," and when he went into the hall to investigate found the hall full of smoke. Park testified he did not open the door to Murphy's room, but raced to the nearby Amherst police station to report the fire.

In previous testimony, Amherst police described how they pulled a badly beaten and burned Rollins from the blazing Murphy room. Murphy allegedly disappeared after the incident, but surrendered to Lexington police two days later.

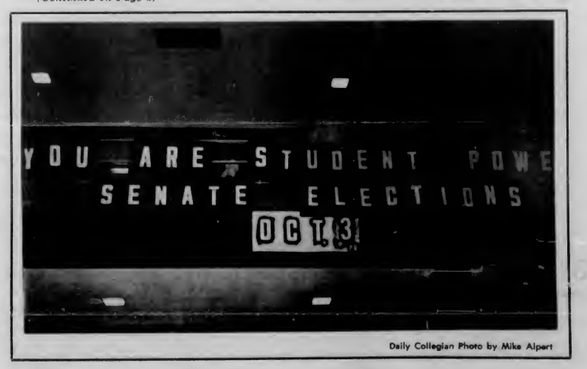
Dr. David Jackson of the Cooley Dickinson Hospital staff testified Saturday that he treated Rollins for head injuries immediately after the fire, and said the injuries "could have been caused by a mason's hammer" introduced into evidence. The hammer was found in Murphy's room by Amherst Fire Chief John Doherty after the blaze was extinguished.

Dr. Jackson said he treated Rollins for a fractured jaw, severe cuts of the scalp and face and third degree burns.

Det. Lt. John O'Connell of the district attorney's office testified he took possession of a mason's hammer, a turpentine can, a glass bottle of acetone, two empty cans of paint thinner, a partially burned bedspread and a blood-stained blanket found in Murphy's room following the fire. The state contends Murphy spread the inflammable fluids over Rollins and about his room to hide the alleged beating.

While addressing the court Friday, District Atty. Oscar Grife of Northampton said the state will attempt to prove that Murphy beat Rollins about the head with a mason's hammer and that in setting fire to the room

(Continued on Page 2)



Former Columbia Student Calls For 'Radicalization Program'

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Mark Rudd, the former Columbia University student who reportedly led the student revolt there last spring, called for a nationwide "program of radicalization" in a speech yesterday at Yale University.

He said the radical, new-left student movement must intensify campus activities until the entire student body is leftist and decides to shut down "capitalist" universities.

This movement on the campus, he said, could then widen to in-

(Continued on Page 2)

Daily Collegian Photo by Mike Alpert

Troops Withdraw from Mexican Univ.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Peace prospects brightened considerably yesterday on the Mexican student front. Students softened their demands for a settlement as federal troops prepared to evacuate the national University campus.

The Mexican capital appeared regaining its normally ebullient atmosphere after three days of respite from student strife.

Already under orders to leave the vast campus of the National University in the city's southern outskirts, the troops awaited only a formal takeover by university authorities.

There was still no firm indication when university officials would resume charge of the 80,000-student school.

Asked how soon they could evacuate the grounds once officials took over, an army captain told reporters: "We'd probably set an Olympic record for speed."

While asserting they would continue insisting on six basic demands as a condition for a full settlement, the student council, in a communique Saturday night, said it was willing to initiate peace talks with the government under these conditions:

1. Withdrawal of troops from the university grounds and one campus of the National Polytechnic Institute. 2. An end to all alleged police repression. 3. Unconditional release of all "authentic student prisoners.

Although the terms were regarded as tough, it was a change from their previous position that peace talks could begin only if the government met all six basic conditions.

There have been persistent but unconfirmed reports that the government is willing to make major concessions in the interests of clearing the atmosphere of strife during the Olympic Games, starting Oct. 12. But there was a question as to whether it would go as far as to release all students.

The reference to "authentic" students was believed an acknowledgement that many nonstudents have infiltrated the movement.

The six basic points students had set forth as a minimum condition for settling the two-month conflict are: 1. Disbanding of the granaderos, or anti-riot police, 2. Dismissal of three top police officials, 3. Release of all student prisoners, 4. Repeal of the antisubversion law, 5. Reaffirmation of university autonomy and 6. Indemnity for deaths and injuries.

The strike council emphasized that while there remained a threat of repression there would be no talks with government officials. They expressed fear of arrest if they came out in the open.

Although the student communique's terms indicated a continuing tough line, a growing impression was that this posture was largely for public consumption.

● Hunsberger

(Continued from Page 1)

the "clustering" idea for academic and administrative restructuring.

The idea holds promise, if developed, of a completely new approach to the areas usually associated with arts and sciences.

With just enough restrained humor to make for a dignified pep rally, the Dean left the very clear impression that Change is the name of the game for this coming season.

● Murder-Arson Trial

(Continued from Page 1)

"meant to hide his crime or supplement what he had done."

Rollins, a senior majoring in German, died in a Boston hospital two weeks later.

Also on Friday Lt. George W. Powers of the state fire marshal's office testified that the fire was of "incendiary origin, accelerated by inflammable fluids."

Teaching Assistants To Discuss Need For Organization

Miss Suzanne Rinaldo, teaching assistant in the Dept. of English, has announced that there will be a meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Bartlett 205 for all interested teaching assistants. The meeting is to determine the need for organization of teaching assistants on the UMass campus.

The organization, if formed, would be concerned with the common interests of all teaching assistants, including non - payment, discussion of formal status within the University, and communication between the administration and the assistants.

According to Miss Rinaldo, a number of teaching assistants received no salary within the last two weeks, without notification from the University.

Although the primary purpose of the group is not to redress salary grievances, Miss Rinaldo feels that there is a definite need for some sort of organization of the teaching assistants to determine what their needs are, and how they propose to meet them.

Harriman Says Some Progress Made in Paris Peace Talks

TOKYO (AP) — The Mainichi Daily News said yesterday U.S. Ambassador W. Averill Harriman reported perhaps there has been some progress "behind the facade" at the Paris peace talks.

The major Japanese daily said Harriman expressed his opinion in an interview with correspondent Yuzo Hatano last Thursday. It quoted him as saying:

"I think the North Vietnamese realize they have to make a settlement that is fair. Perhaps, therefore, some progress has been made behind the face, although I can tell you that there has been no agreement reached on any point."

Mainichi said Harriman described Hanoi as "completely arrogant" in its demand for an unconditional halt of U.S. bombings of North Vietnam to encourage progress at the talks.

Harriman added, "They won't give any indication what they will do if the bombing stops. All they will say is, 'We will undertake serious talks.' Now that's an arrogance which I have never known in any international relationship before."

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

THE BROTHERS OF

ΣΦΕ

Sigma Phi Epsilon

invite all upperclassmen to

OPEN, FORMAL SMOKERS:

TONIGHT, SEPT. 30 at 7:00 P.M.

Committee for Student Awareness To Meet to Plan Out Programs

The Committee for Student Awareness, the group that organized last Thursday's Day of Awareness, will meet this evening at 8:15 p.m. in Council Chamber "B" of the Student Union.

According to Art Cunneen, acting chairman of the group, discussions at the meeting will center around the development of a program designed to bring to the attention of the student population the national and international problems facing society today. Plans will be laid for future Teach-Ins, Days of Awareness, work shops, and Demonstrations.

The Dick Gregory Presidential Campaign will be an additional major topic of discussion. Efforts will be made to determine the committee's specific role in the campaign.

The committee, according to Cunneen, "will serve as a sort of complement to the SDS chapter that is forming on campus; our primary purpose being to confront the students with major national and international issues, while we may demonstrate how these issues relate to him as a member of the university community, our primary interest is in talking with him as a student—in the Emersonian sense of that word."

He went on to say that the program will involve and demand the efforts of a great many people and invited anyone who was at all interested to attend tonight.

Oregon Senator Says Republicans Should Not Dodge Controversy

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Republicans may win political offices by avoiding controversial issues, but such tactics will not build foundations for future GOP victories, says Oregon's Republican Sen. Mark O. Hatfield.

"Caution growing out of a sense of responsibility should not be confused with caution growing out of political calculation," he said Saturday in an editorial in the October issue of the Ripon Forum.

The Forum is published by the Ripon Society, a Republican research and policy organization with headquarters in Cambridge.

His guest editorial entitled "Facing the Vietnam Issue" said the Paris peace talks call for political candidates to carefully weigh their comments on Vietnam.

But, he added, "the Paris peace talks should not become the skirts for timid men to hide behind."

Hatfield did not specifically mention any political candidates in his editorial.

The Republican party, he said, "will have to demonstrate to the American people that we are not merely political opportunists riding to power on a wave of disenchantment and malaise."

In the same issue, the Ripon Society said a poll of its 510 subscribers showed that only 32 per cent of former supporters of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, R-N.Y. say they will vote for the Republican presidential ticket of Nixon-Agnew.

Pilot Program Offered For Secondary Education

A pilot program is being offered to secondary education block students, Dr. Robert Jones of the Education Department announced at the fall "block meeting". According to Dr. Jones, some thirty candidates will be teaching and observing in the Amherst High School and Junior High School for a full semester.

Mr. Bill Fanslow, coordinator of the program, has said that the experiment, involving immediate try-out of methods courses together with extended experience with pupils would replace the traditional "Ed. Block". The old Education Block program consists of two eight-week units: Education 310 and 311, and Education 285.

The University interns, who have been observing and teacher-aiding in the Amherst system since September 16, report "enthusiastic cooperation" from the Amherst school staffs, Fanslow said.

UMass Graduate Killed by Train

CAMBRIDGE — Miss Sandra Smith, 23, daughter of a UMass chemistry professor, was killed Thursday at 5:55 p.m. when she jumped in front of a train in a Cambridge subway station, police said.

She was the daughter of Prof. J. Harold Smith and Mrs. Smith of 23 Phillips St., Amherst.

Dr. David C. Dow, medical examiner, said death was caused by a fracture of the cervical vertebrae and multiple injuries. She was dead on arrival at 6:18 at Cambridge City Hospital.

The doctor ruled the death a suicide.

Dr. Dow said Miss Smith had recently received psychiatric help.

At the Central Square station, she was seen taking off her shoes and placed them and her pocketbook on the pavement just before leaping in front of the four-car train, officials said.

She graduated from Amherst-Pelham Regional High School in 1963 and from the University of Massachusetts in June of 1968. At both high school and university she was active in drama, music and political circles.

She was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints of Amherst. She had also studied at Utah State University and Brigham Young University.

Besides her parents, she leaves three brothers, Stephan E., a student at the University of Utah; James H., a student at Amherst College, and David F., at home; and a sister, Janet F., a student at New York City University. Douglass funeral home is in charge. Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

● Columbia Student

(Continued from Page 1)

clude Negroes, oppressed workers and the poor.

Rudd pointed to three reasons for the furor at Columbia last spring: under-achieved civil rights, opposition to the Vietnam war and students' dissatisfaction with capitalist society.

He was the leader of the Students for a Democratic Society at Columbia when students there took over five university buildings.

Rudd faces charges carrying sentences of up to eight years for his alleged militant activities during the violent April week.

He was here to speak on "Revolutionary Movements in the U.S. and Europe" before the Yale SDS chapter. Some 400 students and faculty attended.

Another speaker was Dietrich Wessel, instructor of sociology and philosophy at the University of Frankfurt. He told about militant student achievements in West Germany.

ORGANIZATIONAL MEETING

for

BRIDGE CLUB

in Commonwealth Room

Student Union Oct. 1, 1968

at 7:30 p.m.

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Analysis

Urban Schools Decentralized

By John Zeh
College Press Service

Last year when the Ford Foundation tried to diffuse a volatile dispute over ghetto education by getting the city school board to establish three demonstration units run by parents, Superintendent Bernard E. Donovan was hesitant.

"Everybody wants control," he said then, "but to use it effectively is another thing."

The plan was implemented; the parents were given control. Now in the wake of a city-wide teachers' strike comes the question of whether that control is being used effectively. The issue constitutes a major challenge to the principle of school decentralization, and has important implications for all big cities.

One of those three demonstration districts was in the Ocean Hill-Brownsville area, which is predominantly black and Puerto Rican. The 18 parents on the local governing board there last spring dismissed 10 white teachers on charges of sabotaging the decentralization plan or doing unsatisfactory work.

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) local affiliate stepped in, charging denial of due process. The central Board of Education ordered the local board to reinstate the fired teachers after a trial examiner cleared them. But it refused, precipitating state intervention. The local board was suspended, but the union still is not satisfied.

The stalemate continues because the parents, teachers, and central administrators are pitted against each other in a three-way power play.

The AFT's position is a compromising one because the union backs the general idea of decentralization and because it came to power six years ago by stressing its civil rights and anti-bureaucracy achievements.

Its local has insisted that its members must retain their job security as authority is transferred — a demand that in effect weakens community control.

The National Education Association, which lost the 1961 fight to bargain for New York teachers to the AFT affiliate, is "studying the situation." Its president, Mrs. Elizabeth D. Koontz, this week endorsed decentralization but decried the "mad scramble for power and influence" in New York.

Mrs. Koontz, who is black, said within each school the principal and a faculty committee should screen and select new teachers, with the advice of the community.

Her statement urges a "return to the individual schools and to the separate publics they serve (of) their rightful share of authority and responsibility for operating schools."

The second faction, the black community, is equally adamant about its rights to run the system. "This community will control its schools and who teaches in them," insists the Rev. C. Herbert Oliver, chairman of the Ocean Hill-Brownsville governing board.

The central school board has had to impose its power in a situation supposed to have been purely local, thus rekindling the fires of controversy that erupted when decentralization was first proposed.

The problem of overcentralization was first pinpointed in 1961 by James B. Conant, former president of Harvard University. He wrote in "Slums and Suburbs" of "the necessity to match neighborhood needs and school services. Decisions made in a central office "are remote from many diverse neighborhoods which constitute the city and may not make sense in a particular school. In any event this procedure tends to isolate the community from what goes on in the school," he said.

Since Dr. Conant coupled that observation with the warning that "social dynamite" was piling up in slum schools, the situation has become noticeably acute. Many middleclass whites, dissatisfied with the education their children are getting but unable to exert influence for change, have utilized private schools or have fled to the suburbs.

The gap in the quality of education available to middle-class children and the poor has caused even greater turmoil. Efforts to close that gap understandably cause more tension and dissatisfaction. Those who feel that dismantling an unresponsive bureaucracy can only make the situation worse are defending the status quo from shaky ground.

Stats Released on Smith Frosh

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. —The freshmen classes at Smith College here have been becoming more and more diverse.

Of the 652 students in the Class of 1972 at Smith, the country's largest private college for women, 63.4 percent received their education in public schools. Some 36.6 percent entered from independent schools.

The freshmen have come to this 200-acre New England campus from 468 schools in 40 states plus the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, and 10 foreign countries. They were chosen from an applicant group of 2,222 students who applied from 1235 schools. The applicant group for the freshmen class ten years ago represented 927 schools.

Thus, although that class and the Class of 1972 were almost equal in size, the number of schools placing students in Smith this year is almost exactly double. And, more than half the students in the Class of 1972 are the only freshman here from their secondary school.

The board of admission votes on applications without quotas of any kind. Its objective is to admit students who most clearly give evidence of being able to profit from an education at Smith and of being a productive and valuable member of the college community.

Interviews for admission, which some hopeful young women might find unnerving, are recommended but not required at Smith. They are given only slight emphasis in the admission process. There primary purpose is the exchange of information, rather than a personal assessment.

Twenty-three students entered this fall with advanced standing, 12 joining the junior class and 11 the sophomore class.

This spring, for the second time, freshman admission was offered at the midyear to a small number of carefully selected candidates who had been placed on a waiting list. With the help of the dean of the Class of 1972, six of the young women planned their first semester program at the institution they will attend for the first semester as day students.

Having informed the institution of their plan to come here at the midyear, they will enter Smith January 29.

Soph Exec Council Supports Senate ROTC Recommendation

The Sophomore Class Executive Council voted last night 33-28 to endorse Senator Bruce Balboni's position on ROTC, that the Senate recommend to the Provost that credit be abolished for all ROTC courses.

The recommendation was voted by the Senate last Thursday.

Nixon Hits Democrats On Law and Order

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP)—Richard M. Nixon proposed last night creation of a cabinet level council to lead a fight against crime and a national academy of law enforcement to train local police.

Hitting hard at a key issue in his Republican presidential campaign, Nixon charged that the Democrats have failed to preserve law and order in the United States.

"Under the stewardship of the present administration, crime and violence have skyrocketed in America," he said.

He accused Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic presidential nominee, of taking a "casual approach to the problem."

Nixon gave his detailed presentation of his views on crime in a speech prepared for delivery over the NBC and CBS radio networks.

Meanwhile, he continued to relax under the sunny Florida sky yesterday before leaving today on a campaign trip through Michigan, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Georgia, South Carolina and New York.

His approach to the crime problem differed from Humphrey's who proposed massive federal aid to improve local police, courts and correctional institutions.

"We do not need mammoth federal grant after mammoth federal grant," said Nixon. "We need a comprehensive American commitment."

Instead, he proposed a national academy of law enforcement. It would, he said, "make available to local law enforcement agencies training in the most sophisticated modern methods as well as information about the social sciences and about community relations."

"Careers in law enforcement will be enhanced," Nixon said. "These men will be proud of their profession and the people will be proud of their policemen."

Criticizing the Johnson administration for what he called a lack of leadership in the field, Nixon said he would issue an executive order creating a cabinet level law enforcement council to coordinate national policy on crime control and prevention.

Nixon also proposed a national coordinating center to serve as a clearing house for civic groups and policemen with new ideas on stopping lawlessness. And he said he would begin a series of town hall conferences on crime if he is elected.

Nixon said that between 1960 and 1967, FBI figures show home burglaries up 187 per cent, narcotics violations up 165 per cent; murder up 34 per cent and assault up 67 per cent.

He called violent crime "a great national disaster" that each year hospitalizes 200,000 people, kills some 12,000 and costs a billion dollars.

Cities, he said, have been "plagued by fire, entire neighborhoods destroyed, buildings gutted, thousands hospitalized or homeless, businesses wiped out" by "Americans transformed into a mob."

Heckled Humphrey Wonders What To Do With The Crowd

SEATTLE (AP) — A frustrated Hubert H. Humprey is trying to find a way for putting down hecklers dogging his steps and trying to shout him down.

Some key advisers—who have watched the vice president unsuccessfully plead with noisy hecklers to act like ladies and gentlemen and even to debate with him said yesterday they feel the only course is to throw them out.

Neither Humphrey nor his aides have been pleased with the

(Continued on Page 4)

NOTICES

HEYMAKERS
Attention Squares Henry returns for another fun nite Wed., Oct. 2, at 7:30 in WOPE. We're looking forward to seeing all of you.

COMMITTEE FOR STUDENT AWARENESS
Organizational meeting Sept. 30 at 8:15 P.M. in the Council Chambers in the Student Union.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
October 1, 6:30 p.m. Nantucket-Norfolk Room, S.U. Executive board at 6 p.m.

CAMPUS HUMOR-SATIRE MAGAZINE
Monday, Sept. 30 Commonwealth Room, S.U. General meeting for prospective writers, cartoonists and members. All welcome.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
October 27, 7:30 p.m. School of Bus. Admin., Rm. 4. General meeting. All members urged to attend for discussion of ground school and flying contest.

PRE-MED. SOCIETY
Thurs., Oct. 3, 7:45 p.m. Public Health Aud. Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of the Mass Medical School will speak on the UMass Medical School admissions policies. Membership will be taken and plans will be discussed for the formation of a student-faculty pre-medical committee. Everyone welcome regardless of class year.

RESTAURANT AND HOTEL MANAGEMENT
Course being offered by UMass at Pittsfield is being held in room 241 in the Pittsfield High School, 300 East St. Although the 22-week Monday evening course started last Monday, registrations will be accepted at the second session tonight. Sessions are 7 to 9 each Monday evening, and tuition for the course is $30.00.

FIRE DEPT.
Meeting tonight 6:30 p.m., Plymouth Room, for new members and interested students.

PINNINGS
Miss Laura Sensbach, Brooks House '70 to Alan Maclsaac, Webster House '71.
Susan Galus '71, Coolidge to Tony Correnti '71, Kennedy.

ENGAGEMENT
Martha Millis, North Adams to Richard Lejar '69, Washington.

Come to the AMHERST TOWER

For Fine Italian Pizza,

Subs, and Dinners

Open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun. open 11 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.
Call 253-7100
256-6667

THE BROTHERS OF

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

cordially invite all Freshmen and Upperclassmen to a

SMOKER

at Memorial Hall 8:00 p.m., Sept. 30, 1968

Alpha Phi Omega is a national service fraternity

Every student on the campus who fails to vote in the Senate elections is throwing away his right to have a responsive Student Government. The administration will then start making decisions for us.

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS

OCTOBER 3, 6-9 P.M.
IN RESIDENCE HALLS

COMMUTERS, FRATERNITIES, SORORITIES } 9-5:30 in Student Union Lobby

YOU MISSED NOMINATION PAPERS
BUT IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO START
A WRITE-IN CAMPAIGN.

STUDENT POWER!

Question your candidates, if dissatisfied, run yourself.

STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE

30 SEPT 03

Pre-Law Students To Register

All students interested in attending law school who have not yet registered with the Pre-Law Advisor, Richard E. Conklin, should do so as soon as possible. The Pre-Law Advisor's Office is located in 362 Whitmore Administration Building, and registration is being handled there by Mrs. Brenda Thoma.

Registration is open to all students from all classes to participate in the Fall Program of the Pre-Law Association. In addition, students who register and are planning to apply to law school this year will receive an application packet containing LSAT application, two faculty recommendation forms, a notice on the draft status of students entering graduate and professional schools and instructions on the content of their personal dossier. Conklin will be available to clear up any questions on application procedure unanswered by this material.

There are a few deadlines approaching for senior pre-law students. For those wishing to take the LSAT Nov. 9, the deadline for application is Oct. 19. Also, as a general rule, registration for interviews with representatives from law schools must be made one week in advance.

Law school representatives have already begun to schedule visits to the Amherst area. Professor Richard Breen from the University of Maine Law School will be on the UMass campus Thursday. Later that evening, Professor Roberts from the Cornell Law School will address students from the Four-College community in a general meeting at Amherst College. On the following day, Friday, Professor Roberts will be available to meet individually with qualified students seeking admission to Cornell Law School.

On the morning of Oct. 9, Dean A. Kenneth Pye from Duke University School of Law will be on campus to speak to a general meeting of pre-law students. Beginning at 1 p.m. that same afternoon, Professor A. Dan Tarlock from the Indiana University School of Law will conduct individual interviews with students wishing to learn about the programs offered at the school.

Students planning to attend these interviews should sign up approximately one week in advance of the date scheduled. The registration will be kept by the Pre-Law Advisor in 362 Whitmore. It is necessary that students read the appropriate catalogue before attending an interview to insure that questions asked will be of a mature and significant nature.

Priority in admission to these interviews will be given to senior pre-law sstudents. Underclassmen should watch for programs of a more general nature, however, such as sample classes given by law school professors, where their participation would be welcomed. Specific announcements will be made in advance on the nature of each program.

HUMPHREY . . .

(Continued from page 3)

results of a pair of confrontations that had Humphrey dealing directly with hecklers, thus almost giving them equal billing.

In Cleveland he led the crowd in trying to laugh down a relatively small group of protestors. Saturday night he entered into a kind of a debate with another band whose emblems included a red flag bearing the likeness of Che Guevera, Cuba's late apostle of revolution.

A group of 100 to 150—equipped with a bullhorn— worked their way into a key location in the bleachers directly to the platform's right.

The young man, standing near the back of his group of protesters declared, "We have not come to talk with you Mr. Humphrey. We have come to arrest you."

"Proceed," said Humphrey. "Be sure there's no police brutality, that's all."

In a few minutes there was a new roar from the protestors of "Dump the Hump, Dump the Hump," drowning out the vice president.

Police and security agents moved a score or so out of the hall while many others of the demonstrators walked out.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

LIMITED OFFER — I will photograph you free. Select the best shot and pay only $7.00 for 3 8x-10's. There's absolutely no obligation or pressure to buy. If you don't like what I get. That's my fault. Kent Bates—Photo Studio at the alley (over the Leather Shed) 256-8146. 10/2

Colorful prints various sizes, picture frames, reverse paintings on glass, art exhibitions of local artist. The "Y" Gallery, 755½ Chicopee St., Willimansett, Mass. 01003. Open 12-4 daily, 6-9 eves. Sat. all day. 10/2

Use ADDRESS LABELS and save a pain in the neck! Just lick on a label for your letters and possessions. Send name, address, and only 75c to: College Stickers, P.O. Box 829, Amherst, Mass. 01002 10/2

Snoopy where were you? 10/1

HELP WANTED

Part-time cafeteria (Hatch) evening supervisor with food service experience. Three nights per week. Apply at the Student Union Food Service office. 9/30

Banjo player experienced in Gay 90's Sing-Alongs, Dixieland, Ragtime. Call 544-6722 eve's. 10/3

College students earn $60 a week for 3 eves and Sat. Scholarship grants avail. Call 584-7467 10/4

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

STEREOPHONIC TAPE-RECORDER: Roberts 997 professional model. Used minimally. Perfect for the serious music lover or musical group. Reasonably priced for such a high quality machine. 256-6449 (after 5). 9/30

FOR SALE

308 caliber husquarna sport rifle, Monte Carlo stock, machined molly carrying case; 4 power savage scope sling; 220 rounds winchester ammo. All in exc. cond. $175 or best offer. Patricki 323-7872 at night. 9/30

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware. Tu-Fri. 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412 10/7

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

1962 MGA Mark II Roadster. The last MGA built. New top, batteries, two new tires, valve job. Tonneau and two extra tires and wheels, radio. Runs very well. 27 MPG. Call Chuck at 584-9361. 9/30

Rambler station wagon, 1965, 34000 miles by original owner, automatic transmission, excellent condition, new tires plus snow tires, radio & heater; $995. Call 584-1497 9/30

1962 Ford Galaxie 500 good condition, $295. Evenings. Call: 253-7642 or 253-7966 10/1

Must sell 1965 MG 110 4 doors sports sedan, 4 cylinder, 4-speed, radio, back up lites, extras! 30 plus M.P.G. dark green, excellent condition, 35,700 miles. Best offer. Call 549-1318

1960 Thunderbird coupe white, black interior, new tires, front end, brakes, & the rest of the stuff they tell you in ads. $550 can be seen at 51 South East St. 10/1

'61 Chevy convertible in good shape. Best offer, call 256-8255 between 6:30-8:30 p.m. 10/2

'61 Rambler clean and operating. But needs many repairs, some major. Phone AL 3-5007, 6-8 p.m., for details. 10/2

'57 Ford—Very good condition new tires (not retreads), new ball joints recently installed, engine and transmission in excellent condition. Carburetor recently rebuilt. Engine timed and tuned ready to drive—even muffler and tailpipe only 4 mos. old—A good buy for only $250.00. Call evenings 549-0939. 10/3

Soviets Deny Violation Of Status Quo in Europe

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda denied yesterday that the Soviet Union violated the status quo in Europe by invading Czechoslovakia and stationing large numbers of troops there.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper condemned the "psychosis" about the presence of these troops that it said was being worked up in Western capitals.

Pravda did not offer any explanation for its contention that the military situation in Europe has not changed. It implied that the Soviet Union has the right to move its armed forces within the East bloc without any response from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"Any realistic-thinking politician in the West sees the absurdity of this invention that the European status quo has been violated," the paper said.

It assailed the United States and West Germany for urging the strengthening of NATO because of what has happened in Czechoslovakia.

"American imperialism wants to create a hotbed of tension on the European continent," Pravda declared.

It said Bonn was trying to put pressure on President Charles de Gaulle "to support the military efforts of NATO" but expressed confidence in France's "negative position on these plans."

Turning to the situation within Czechoslovakia, Pravda voiced continued Soviet dissatisfaction.

It maintained anti-Soviet forces were "hypocritically exploiting the slogan of national unity" in order to thwart the Moscow agreements. These agreements, imposed after the invasion, provide for Czechoslovakia to return toward Soviet-type rule.

Pravda lashed Czechoslovak journalists for "hindering the quickest possible normalization of the situation."

It noted with disapproval that a board meeting Thursday of the Union of Czechlovak Journalists praised underground press activities after the invasion.

Pravda also criticized Rude Prava, voice of the Czechoslovak Communist party, and other Czechoslovak newspapers for their coverage of the 30th anniversary of the Munich agreement. It said they failed to play up sufficiently the Soviet Union's refusal to recognize the Munich agreement.

A Review

Jazz Makes the Scene at UMass

By Ray Taylor
Fine Arts Editor

Finally it has happened Jazz has come to UMass, not just any jazz, but good sincere jazz; and if last Friday's performance in Bowker Auditorium of the Sound Light Mind Explosion Two was any indication, the arrival was long overdue.

The first group to appear was the Myer-Conn Quintet. Led by Amherst jazz trumpeter Jim Meyer the group paced through its maneuvers. The polished professionalism which emanated from the Quint tended to shroud any and all originality. The music just didn't seem spontaneous and neither did the reaction.

Of particular interest, however, was pianist-composer Steve Brodie. In his case, his practiced technique served more as a springboard than as a limit. His solos and comping were tasty to say the least.

The next event was a Soul-Rock group, the Vinegar. Considered by some to be the high point of the evening, the Vinegar did in fact find themselves in a unique position. They were the only "entertainers." With the antics of the drummer-gummer and the Wilson Pickett voice and delivery of James Nagle, the change-up was appreciated.

Unfortunately, the Vinegar fell into the same hang-up as most Rock groups feeling it necessary to play through and not for their audience. The termination of their act as such was greeted by many thankful eardrums and a few resounding headaches.

At this point, it is a shame that the last group, the Elysian Quartet has to be reviewed in this same article, for they if anything were in a class by themselves. Piloted by Bruce Krasin, the foursome could do no wrong. Krasin, a name which is anything but new in area jazz circles, was superb. Without a doubt, he has to be classified as one of the best college jazz saxophonist-flutist in the East. His musical accomplices also deserve mention—on piano Ray, on bass guitar Jim Bridges and on drums Len Ezbicki. One can only hope that we hear more from them in the near future.

As the evening drew to a close and one left Bowker, one felt a sense of being refreshed—of being bathed in something pure and good. If you weren't at Bowker Aud. Friday, you missed a lot.

HUNGRY ?

Call

MAMA'S PIZZA

FOR FAST FREE DELIVERY

253-9858

Deliveries from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Open 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.

SALESMEN WANTED

FOR

Daily Collegian* Advertising

ON COMMISSION BASIS

APPLY IN PERSON -- WEDNESDAY -- 12:30-2:00 P.M.

UMass History Prof. Publishes Book On Progressivism

Is American freedom best maintained through the operations of large, active government — or through the small, "hands-off" systems now associated mainly with the nineteenth century?

This question forms a theme in a book by Professor Jack Tager, of the UMass department of history. "The Intellectual as Urban Reformer: Brand Whitlock and the Progressive Movement" was recently published by the Case-Press in Cleveland, Ohio.

Reformers of the Progressive Era were ruminators, highly concious of the dilemmas and paradoxes implicit in their movement. They wanted a new America but not too new. They wanted to change their nation without destroying its fundamental traditions. The eternal battle of liberalism against conservatism often was waged within the mind of a single individual.

Novelist Brand Whitlock was such a man. Mr. Tager has made of him a symbol of the intellectual confusion of his period. The book is an account of a nineteenth-century man, a rural American with Jeffersonian ideals who moves to the city.

Day of Awareness

September 26, 1968

Photos by Mike Alpert
Damien Kuffler
Bob Gosciminski

Layout By Mike Alpert

30 SEPT 1968

Campus Police And Arms

Several campuses, including the University of Connecticut and the University of Buffalo, are in the midst of a dispute among administrators, students and security forces over the latter's right to bear arms.

At UConn, the controversy began two weeks ago when the Student Senate passed a resolution stating that the campus police should not be allowed to carry weapons in the "peaceful academic community." President Homer D. Babbidge said that he has recently appointed a committee to study the responsibilities of the security forces of the University, but denied the charge made by the forces that he had issued an order which would restrict the carrying of arms, except on a limited basis. The policy now in effect provides for arms to be carried "whenever, in the judgment of the chief of security, it is essential to the safety of the officer or the protection of the community."

At UMass, (also a "peaceful academic community"), the campus police wear arms at all times. Although they are required by law to carry them at certain times, such as during the transfer of money, there are times when they become at least unnecessary, if not downright ridiculous. The time has definitely come to a re-evaluation, and perhaps change in this policy.

K. B.

A New Connotation

When one says "Harvard University" there is a certain connotation of excellence. In contrast to this when one says "Howard University" there is a certain absence of an academic image. Howard what? Those who know of Stokely Carmichael's alma mater will either think of Howard University as a good black school or as another one of those training grounds for militant black racists. Luckily, the people who are ignorant of Howard University and those who know the school for the good it does, out number those who feel adversely against any black school.

One thing must be said about Howard University and other black schools. Howard was established because Afro-Americans were not allowed to attend white schools. Therefore, any racial connotation belongs to the past and present white establishments. It must be noted that Howard University was established by the federal government during that inspirational time immediately after the Civil War. It still receives more than a fair share of federal funds.

However, the point is that an Afro-American cannot establish anything that excludes whites without whites becoming scared and irritated even though there are clubs and other so called benevolent organizations, even in the "liberal" North which exclude black membership.

We should look at black schools for what they are—institutes of higher learning. And these questions should be asked: Is Swahili any more impractical than any other language that is offered by the university to fill only the requirement? Isn't black heritage important to the black man as the white heritage to the white man or is black heritage just unimportant to the builder of curriculums.

Therefore, it does seem logical that, if the Afro-American cannot get the education he wants in the schools already established, he will inspire the building of schools that will satisfy his interests. The fact that black schools deal with Afro-American subjects shouldn't concern anyone.

E. R.

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.
BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

EDITORIAL DAY EDITOR, Nancy Bourgain, Editorial Staff, Rick Elias
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert '69
Issue Editor: Jan Curley; Sports Editor: Pete Pascarelli, Editorial Editor; Kathy Biggane; Ernest Reis

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Sock It To 'Em, Baby"

INSIDE REPORT:

Berkeley and the Black Panthers

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

BERKELEY, Calif. - The real danger of the vicious dispute here over Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver is that for the first time faculty and students on the Berkeley campus may form a solid front against the Board of Regents, leading to massive confrontation and chaos.

Cleaver, the author of "Soul on Ice," is now scheduled to go on trial Dec. 2 for attempting murder and assault in a shootout between police and Black Panthers last April. He was chosen by a faculty committee to give ten lectures in an experimental course on racism (Social analysis 139x).

Led by Gov. Ronald Reagan, outraged members of the Board of Regents were barely prevented by a tie vote from banning any appearance at all by Cleaver. Instead, the Regents voted 10 to 8 to restrict Cleaver to a single lecture, a compromise that left all sides angry.

Symptomatic of the extreme political tensions arising out of the issue was the overwhelming vote in the California Assembly ten days ago censuring University of California President Charles Hitch and Berkeley Chancellor Roger Heyns for permitting the faculty to set up the experimental course in the first place. The California Senate went further. It censured the Regents Board itself for not ordering an absolute ban on Cleaver.

And yet the mere act of the Board in imposing changes in the experimental course sets a precedent. In 1920, the Board delegated all power over courses and curricula to the faculty. Social Analysis 139x, with Cleaver as its chief lecturer, may have been planned to test President Hitch and the Regents and stimulate a crisis (although there is no evidence that it was), but it was nevertheless specifically approved by the Board of Educational Development, an arm of the Academic Senate which has total authority over curricula.

Hence, a confrontation of major dimension over academic freedom seems unavoidable between the faculty, which isn't about to give up its power over curricula, and the Regents with President Hitch and Chancellor Heyns caught in the middle.

But what makes this situation far more explosive is the prospect of union between faculty and student radicals, backed this time by many students who are not radical and took no part in past challenges to authority, such as the 1964-1965 Free Speech Movement.

The last hot controversy between the faculty and the Regents was 18 years ago when the faculty successfully revolted against a special loyalty oath imposed by the Regents. Then, there were no radical students on campus and no radical youth movement in the nation. The professors fought alone.

Likewise, in 1964 when the Free Speech Movement was launched by Mario Savio, the faculty was involved in only minor ways. There was no union.

But when the fall term registration started here last week, the campus seethed with only one issue: Cleaver and the Regents. On Tuesday night Wheeler Auditorium was jammed with students in a protest meeting. They passed a resolution demanding that the Regents rescind their action. But a tentative decision came out of that rally to delay any action campaign until the faculty decides what it will do. The faculty meets next Tuesday (Oct. 1) and pressures for revolt against the Regents are already inflamed. For example, professors counseling caution are being caustically reminded that this week marks the 30th anniversary of Neville Chamberlain's Munich sellout.

Thus, the ingredients for massive confrontation are all here, with no easy compromise in sight. Furthermore, when the action comes it will have an immediate political impact, leading to citizen demands for a far more rigid and authoritarian control over the University by the Regents.

The University and the politicians already live in different worlds, and while the faculty plots its counteraction against the Regents, the politicians are being besieged by the voters not to let Cleaver appear on campus at all.

Thus, even the most liberal politicians here who are willing to go far in the name of academic freedom are saying little in defense of the invitation to Cleaver. No Matter how it ends, they fear the result will give powerful new weapons to the right wing, led by Reagan and Dr. Max Rafferty, the Republican nominee for the U.S.Senate, and perhaps irretrievably damage a great university.

Campus Comment

Argument for R.O.T.C.

To the editor:

It is my opinion that the recommendation of abolishment of credits for R.O.T.C. courses on this campus reflects a great deal of the one sidedness of some of the students on this campus.

If one was present at the senate meeting in which this was passed one would have seen a great deal of students who just would not listen to the pro side (those who wished credit for R.O.T.C.), and it is my opinion that the issue of Viet Nam, although not openly injected, had a great deal to do with the outcome of the senate's vote. Some remarks from the audience were "why give credits to kill" and "R.O.T.C. men are Fascists". When one has such views as these (ones that are completely untrue) how is it ever possible to get a good evaluation of the overall situation?

One of the arguments against R.O.T.C. was that it is an unintellectual course in which the student is not allowed to express his views. On the contrary, one is allowed and also encouraged to do so. However, you can take arguments to the ridiculous state also. For example, after one student at the meeting asked if you could express your views in the classroom and was given a positive answer, another student then asked if you could ask questions during drill! In any man's army you should know what the answer is to that! If the student who asked that question had been to an R.O.T.C. meeting he would have found that drill is taught in order to instill discipline which is an essential in military life.

Also, I would like to say that the R.O.T.C. course here on the U Mass campus is strictly voluntary and if a student in the R.O.T.C. course does not wish to go on he can drop out without any trouble at all. Those who do go on into the junior and senior years, however, are those who either wish to serve in the military as a career or who wish to fulfill their military obligations as officers. On this basis I would think that the R.O.T.C. men who wish to do this should get credit for the R.O.T.C. courses just as a geologist would get credit for the geology courses he took.

If one were at the senate meeting he would have also noticed a large group of students who felt that those taking R.O.T.C. were blood lovers. Such a rash assumption also reflects again on the one sidedness of the group attending that meeting. If one had the initiative to talk to one of the R.O.T.C. men I am quite sure that he would find they are not Hitler types, but fellow students who are interested in their country's well being just as another student might wish to enter the political network of our country or still another student might wish to enter into social work.

J.M.H.

Student Action

To the Editor:

I am in unequivocal agreement with the positive action of the Student Senate in demanding that academic credit for ROTC be abolished. And I agree with the grounds for doing so because there can be no blinking at the fact that the ROTC program is, not deserving of credit as an academic endeavor.

To the best of my knowledge we are the only University in the United States to demand abolition of ROTC credit and still allow that organization to remain on campus.

But now a larger question remains. What will be the disposition of that demand.

Let's not kid ourselves. The Student Senate's action is only a beginning. Final action on the bill will probably not come until late this year - if then. What this means to us is that the time for pressure through lobbying has only begun. Unless we keep applying relentless pressure and making ourselves heard little additional student opinion will be felt during the long journey of our demand to its final disposition.

To be certain, Senate President Silverman will deliver our mandate to the Provost. He will hand it over to the faculty Senate who, in turn, will commit it to its Academic Matters Committee. That committee will report the bill back to the floor of the faculty Senate for final approval or disapproval.

It would be folly to suggest that we ought to expect action over night. We have long sought an effective tripartite governmental system on our campus. And we ought to give it a chance to work.

But even while we continue to respect the right of those administrators and faculty to consider the action, we cannot cease to be a loud and effective lobby for our bill.

The voice of the student body through its elected representatives has spoken. Let it be quite clear that this student body will not witness or permit any feign or stall. The bill ought not to die in the Academic Matters Committee. Presently we are represented by only one student on that committee. We ought to press for greater representation. To get this accomplished we must speak again through the student senate.

Finally, the disposition of the ROTC bill is still largely unknown. What we deserve is a reasonably swift response which we shall never accept in the form of a continuing "maybe". The only way to avoid this "maybe" is by exerting every ounce of pressure we can muster on the faculty. And if we don't get some answer then we should think about sitting-in and other not so subtle forms of pressure. And if it comes to that, save me a seat, because I will be there.

Senior Class President
Wayne M. Thomas

Abolishment of Credit

To the Editor:

Wonderful! Why SHOULD Cadets receive credits for learning how to kill people, innocent people from our day and age? The military has a lot of Damn Gall to train their puppets in publicly financed institutions. The idea of receiving credits for ROTC is completely ludicrous.

But why stop at ROTC? Should we not continue to cleanse the University of EVIL? Here we submit a nine-point program:

1. Abolishment of credit for Business Administration so that students will not be trained in the art of Capitalism;
2. Abolishment of credit for Physical Science so that students will not be able to develop mechanisms of warfare;
3. Abolishment of credit for Government and History so that students will not be persuaded by the teachings of democratic principles;
4. Abolishment of credit for Nursing so that students will not be able to save the lives of soldiers who in turn will be able to kill more innocent people;
5. Abolishment of credit for Microbiology so that students will not be able to devise new methods of germ warfare;
6. Abolishment of credits for Psychology so that students will not be able to devise propaganda to use against communism;
7. Abolishment of credits for Speech so that students will not be able to make speeches for their candidates, because freedom of speech is evil;
8. Abolishment of credits for Restaurant and Hotel Management so that students will not be able to cater to the wants of the capitalistic classes; and
9. Abolishment of credits for Foreign Languages so that no more ethnic jokes can be told by students.

And then we could BLAH BLAH BLAH BLAH . . . . . .

Scott C. Smith
John Astifan

An ineligible college football player is one who can run and kick—but can't pass.

The Daily Collegian welcomes letters on all subjects. Letters must be typewritten at 60 spaces. All letters must be signed by hand. All letters not signed in this manner will not be printed. Letters should not exceed 30 lines and are subject to editing and condensing.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

THE BROTHERS OF
PHI SIGMA KAPPA
cordially invite
ALL UPPERCLASSMEN
to an
OPEN INFORMAL SMOKER
Mon., Sept. 30 9:00-10:00 p.m.

On UMass Lemmings

"Once in a hundred years the Lemmings come
Westward, in search of food, over the snow,
Westward, until the salt sea drowns them dumb,
Westward, till all are drowned, those Lemmings go."
Twice in a week the U.Mass. Lemmings come
Southwestward in search of panties, in the night.
Southwestward until academics drowns them dumb
Southwestward till all are drowned these Lemmings go.

John Masefield Co. 1910
William Donaldson '70

Part 9

Comment: The Plight of S. Vietnamese Students

By Tran Van Dinh
College Press Service

On July 24, two co-eds representing the executive committee of the Saigon Student Union (SSU) called a press conference at the Union's headquarters to protest the "kidnapping" of Nguyen Truong Con, 23-year-old editor of the Sinh Vien, the SSU's official magazine. Con had been picked up that day by the police without a warrant while he was on his way home.

Miss Hao said: "Since 1954, South VietNam has voluntarily joined the side of freedom, and despite several successive government's pledge to implement democracy, the students have not seen democracy anywhere." She warned that "by court-martialing Nguyen Truong Con, the government will collectively court-martial 25,000 students and 5,000 readers of the magazine as well".

The next day, a field military court sentenced Nguyen Truong Con to five years at hard labor. The verdict could not be appealed. He was accused of "having disseminated false peace and pro-communist printed material harmful to the anti-communist struggle of the Vietnamese people and armed forces."

The condemnation of Nguyen Truong Con was but one case in the long list of repressions by Thieu - Ky military regime against Vietnamese who fight for peace and civil rights. (Truong Dinh Dzu, the runner up peace candidate in the 1967 presidential elections, was also condemned to five years at hard labor July 26.

Suffering from arbitrary measures by their own government is not new to Vietnamese students. But in recent weeks, the arrests of students have reached a regularity unmatched even by the 1963 crackdown on the Buddhists and students by the late President Ngo Dinh Diem. Two years ago, during the Buddhist uprisings in the summer of 1966, many students (especially those at the University of Hue in Central VietNam) were imprisioned. Quite a few joined the National Liberation Front (NLF) just to surface again in the Tet offensive. The Tet offensive in early February, which brought the war into the heart of the cities where most students live, the brutality of the U.S. military operations conducted to "save" Saigon and Hue, have left a trail of shock and despair for many who in the past could afford to go to school and forget that a few miles away, in the rice fields, their countrymen were dying by the thousands.

The demands for peace which have been the basis of the student movement grew louder. At the end of May, Tran Van Huong, previously respected for his honesty and known for his desire for the end of the war, was named Prime Minister. The presence in his Cabinet of some liberal intellectuals such as Ton That Thien (Minister of Information, former editor of the VietNam Guardian) and the Au Ngoc Ho (Minister of Economy) gave some hope to the students and encouraged them to step up their struggle. On June 12, the Saigon Student Union, representing 25,000 students (85 percent of the College student population in the country), made public a statement on the situation of the nation. The statement reads:

"As the TET offensive occurred, most of the Vietnamese people feel that the country is undertaking a historical change. After many years of slaughter, the war cannot be ended by the armed forces. On the other hand, ammunitions have more and more destroyed and exhausted the energy of the people and the nation. Up to now, that kind of bankruptcy is still going on because of the dominating ambition from the outside, so the present situation of the country is more and more miserable. Understanding the danger of extinction and seeing the slaughter of people, the destruction of the buildings, the Saigon Student Union solemnly declares before history, people and students.

"1. It is time for the war in VietNam to be ended through the negotiations, so the people will not be extinguished. VietNam must have peace, independence, freedom, so that everybody can have a chance to begin the building of the country.

"2. We ask for an essential peace solution in the South and particularly demand the Tran Van Huong government to carry on his promise as he assured the Premiership in Saigon.

POLICE – LAW – THE STUDENT
TONIGHT
'ACTION' 68'
ON WMUA (91.1FM)
with RON LaBRECQUE
JOHN F. BOYLE—Sheriff of Hampshire County
DONALD N. MAIA—Sgt., Amherst Police Dept.
ALEXANDER P. BLASCO—Chief, University Police
Questions to guests will be accepted during airtime — phone 5-2425 or 5-2876

30 SEPT 03

The Concert Association season gets underway on Wednesday, October 9 with a visit by the distinguished English guitarist-lutenist, Julian Bream. This noted RCA Victor recording artist makes his first visit to his campus.

UMass Concert Association Announces 1968-69 Program

The Roger Wagner Chorale, one of the truly outstanding choral groups now before the public, will be here Tuesday evening, October 29. This concert promises to be one of the most popular attractions visiting the campus this year!

The Concert Association of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst has announced its program for the 1968-69 season. A series of eight internationally prominent events will visit this campus during the year, all of which are open to UMass undergraduates without charge by redeeming the stub found on the back page of the Concert Association Program which was distributed at registration.

Graduate students and their spouse are sold tickets at the greatly reduced price of $4.00 for the series of eight concerts. Faculty, staff and members of the community may purchase season subscriptions to the series for $8.00 which reflects a saving of 33% over the single ticket cost.

The Box Office at the Student Union will handle ticket information and reservations beginning today. As in the past, undergraduates wishing to attend the series must turn in their stubs at the Box Office prior to each concert to be sure of seating. An innovation this year is a policy of reserved tickets for each of seven concerts scheduled for Bowker Auditorium.

Metropolitan Opera soprano, Phyllis Curtin will be heard in recital here on Tuesday evening, November 12. Miss Curtin is ranked by critics and public as one of the "greats" and an outstanding concert can be expected by this noted artist.

On Monday evening, December 9 one of the world's greatest exponents of the violin will appear here under the auspices of the Concert Association. Ruggiero Ricci, the fabulous technician and interpretive artist will perform a recital which should prove to be unforgettable!

Arthur Weisberg will conduct the Weisberg Contemporary Chamber Ensemble in a program of "20th Century Classics" when he appears here on Thursday, March 20th. This organization is recognized as one of the leaders in its field. In addition to its formal concert here, Mr. Weisberg has agreed to give a lecture on the music he has programmed on the afternoon of the concert. This event should be one of the most interesting and provocative events on campus this year!

Gina Bachauer, (below) the magnificent Greek-born pianist will appear here on Monday evening April 7. This remarkable artist has performed as recitalist and as soloist with the world's leading symphony orchestras throughout her long and distinguished career. Mme. Bachauer appeared as soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood this past summer and received rave reviews from press and public alike.

Duo Rampal/Veyron-La Croix, the immensely popular harpsichord and flute duo from France will make their first appearance at these concerts. Known for their magnificent performances throughout the world in concert and as recording artists, this event should be one of the most beautiful and interesting evenings ahead.

Closing out the Concert Association's 1968-69 season will be the New York Brass Quintet on Friday evening, May 2. One of the finest groups of its kind in the country today, this concert promises to be one of the most exciting and curious concerts planned.

UMass Film Highlights Progress In the State University System

UMass has released a new motion picture entitled "Giant Step," which highlights recent progress in the State University system.

The 16 mm, 28-minute, sound, color film is available, without charge, to educational, civic, industrial organizations and television stations.

Starting with the enactment of the Harrington-Willis bill, the film recounts the great strides the University has made in developing a state-wide system with campuses in Amherst, Boston and Worcester and facilities in South Deerfield, Belchertown, Waltham, Wareham, Nantucket and Gloucester. The rapid growth of the University from 5,271 students in Amherst 10 years ago to 19,865 students at its Amherst and Boston campuses this year is vividly portrayed.

Major emphasis is placed on the role of students in the classroom and in the many extra-curricular opportunities that are available to them in cultural, governmental, athletic and social areas.

A major focus of the film is on the university applicant and his chances to be one of the 3,150 freshmen at the Amherst campus selected from more than 19,000 applications.

The role of the faculty in teaching and research is detailed in another section. A look at the types of decisions top administrators and trustees must make in planning for a growing enrollment and future needs of public higher education in the Commonwealth is presented in a segment of an administrative meeting.

The University's many services to the Commonwealth's communities through extension services, experiment station, Speech and Hearing Center, Bureau of Government Research, Labor Relations and Research Center and Commonwealth Technical Resources Center are covered in another section of the film.

Program chairmen and other organizational representatives who would like to use the film may contact the University Film Center, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, 01002, or telephone (413) 545-2298.

Canadian Doctors Perform Fifth Heart Transplant Operation

MONTREAL (AP)—Canadian doctors transplanted the heart of a 16-year-old motorcycle victim in a 58-year-old man yesterday in the country's fifth such operation.

A 20-man team headed by Dr. Pierre Grondin, who performed the four previous transplants, began the operation at 2:05 a.m. and completed it four hours later.

The recipient was identified as Rosaire Brien, a roads department employee from St. Esprit de Montcalm, 40 miles south of Montreal. Doctors said he had been suffering from heart disease.

The donor was Gary Mersereau of Edmunston, N.B., who suffered severe brain damage in an accident last Sunday and was brought here Saturday when it appeared he was near death. Doctors also removed his eyes and kidney for future transplants.

Filipino Student Demonstrate Against United States, Britain

MANILA (AP) — About 35,000 Filipino students demonstrated yesterday against United States, Britain and Malaysia, while 8,000 anti-Philippines demonstrators attended two rallies in Malaysia.

The demonstrations in each country concerned the Philippine claim to Malaysian Sabah, the former territory of North Borneo, that has caused Malaysia and the Philippines to break off diplomatic relations and move troops for "defensive reasons."

Students at the Manila demonstration hanged effigies of U. S. State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey, Malaysian Prime Minister TunKu Abdul Rahman and the British Military commander in the Far East.

They called McCloskey a "treasonous traitor," expressing disbelief in U.S. claims of neutrality in the Sabah dispute. After a mock trial they also found the Malaysians guilty of being "warmongers" and "British lackeys." Britain has sided with Malaysia in rejecting the Philippine claim to Sabah.

The students blamed Rahman for the strained relations between the two Asian countries and denounced "American apathy and attitude especially in this moment of Philippine need."

They advocated that the Sabah issue be turned over to the International Court of Justice "and thus assert our rightful claim by peaceful means."

In Malaysia, Rahman told a rally of 5,000 anti-Philippine demonstrators in Penang that he was "confident in facing the crisis with overwhelming support from all sections of the Malaysian community."

At another demonstration in Kota Bharu, 210 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, about 3,000 youths swore allegiance to the Malaysian government and volunteered for military duty in Sabah if they were needed. The youths were members of the United Malay National Organization.

Greeks Vote on Constitution; Affirmative Vote Expected

More than half of Greece's 8.5 million people voted yesterday on a new constitution. Their army-imposed goverment expected a large affirmative majority it can consider a vote of confidence.

The polls closed as scheduled at sundown in most of Greece. In Athens and neighboring Piraeus voting booths were kept open after dark to accommodate long lines of voters still patiently waiting.

Meaningful returns were not expected to be available before midnight 6 p.m. EDT.

Balloting began at dawn at 8,108 polling stations throughout the country. Voting was obligatory for all persons between 21 and 70. A hot sun and cloudless sky made the obligation easier.

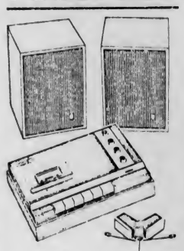
Voting was held under martial law. There were no signs of disorders in Athens and no reports of them from other areas of the country.

Voters in several rural communities complained, however, that voting booths were not available to let them vote secretly.

Voters in the Athens suburb of Liossia called newspapers to complain they had been given only "yes" ballots. The procedure was supposed to give each voter a "yes" and a "no" ballot, one to be cast, the other discarded.

For weeks the authoritarian regime of strongman Premier George Papadopoulos had been urging Greeks to vote "nai" yes for the new charter.

The referendum will have little effect on Greece's immediate future. It is merely the first step along what may prove a long road to return of elected government, ended with an army coup d'etat April 21, 1967.



No date has been set for an election that might restore the parliamentary system.

The new constitution provides for a "crown democracy" and for continuation on the throne of the present king and his heirs—although with greatly reduced powers.

In several vaguely worded articles it also provides for procedure in the event the throne should become vacant - apparently allowing for the possibility that King Constantine might not return from his self-imposed exile. In that event a new king would be elected by Parliament and especially elected "representatives."

The charter greatly increases the authority of the executive branch of government, cuts Parliament from 300 to 150 members and establishes some unprecedented provisions against corruption.

stereo cassette recorder

Norelco® 450

Just slip in a tape cassette, and record up to two hours! Or play your favorite pre-recorded cassettes! Or plug in your phonograph or radio and tape your own stereo cassettes. Or use it as a PA system. This remarkable Norelco 450 recorder/player is the beginning of great fun with cassettes in your home, and can be the core of a fine home stereo sound system. Come in for a demonstration today.

MELODY CORNER INC.
EVERYTHING AUDIO
79 South Pleasant St. • Amherst, Mass. 01002

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

POW ALFRED, POW.

ADLER 72s
The gym sock that grew up
THE ADLER COMPANY Cincinnati, Ohio 45214 A Division of Burlington Industries
F. W. Thompson & Sons

30 SEPT 03

Broaca Wins Debut

Booters Blank Maine 2-0 in Opener

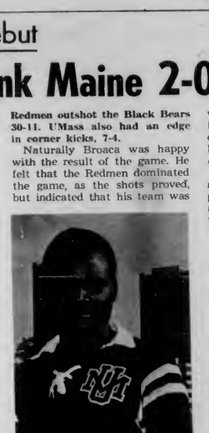
By Walt Stachura
Staff Reporter

Led by a strong defense, the UMass soccer team successfully opened its season by blanking Maine, 2-0, Saturday morning at varsity field.

The game which gave UMass coach Peter Broaca a successful start in his first varsity coaching duty, was tight and close in the first half.

Although the Redmen enjoyed a wide territorial advantage in the opening half, they were unable to score due to a stubborn Maine defense and some fine saves by Maine goalie Frank Stewart.

The Redmen received the first big break of the game early in the third quarter, when they were awarded a penalty kick after a Maine fullback accidentally touched the ball with his hand.



Wilkie Ward took the direct kick from in front of the net and blasted the ball into the upper left corner, beating Stewart cleanly.

After Ward's goal, UMass continued to apply the pressure and had several shots slip just wide of the net. After one heavy spurt of shots on the main goal, Marty Mughogho headed in a crossing pass from Mark Cantor to put the Redmen up by two goals.

Maine began to apply some pressure early in the fourth quarter but the Redmen defense managed to keep the Black Bears hooters away from the net. One man managed to slip through the defense but was stopped from pointblank range by UMass goalie Steve Kramer.

An indication of the Redmen domination during the game was the shots at goal in which the Redmen outshot the Black Bears 30-11. UMass also had an edge in corner kicks, 7-4.

Naturally Broaca was happy with the result of the game. He felt that the Redmen dominated the game, as the shots proved, but indicated that his team was a little sloppy around the net and missed several good scoring opportunities.

MARTY MUGHOGHO
Scores and UM Goal

Broaca was especially pleased with the work of his defense, particularly the fullback line of Ed Schmitter, Bob Dubiel and Ed Sanborn. Goalie Steve Kramer came up with a fine effort, according to Broaca, as did halfback Rich Matuszczak.

Maine coach, Paul Stovell, felt that his team did not have a very good day, especially in moving the ball. He said that his club had a bad passing day which hampered their attack throughout the game.

Stovell called UMass "a very aggressive team and a good passing club." He also complimented the work of Kramer and the overall hustle of the entire Redmen team.

The Redmen might have suffered a big loss when Mughogho limped off the field with a knee injury late in the game.

Boston College will provide the next opposition for the Redmen on Friday in Boston. The next home game for the Redmen will be Oct. 12, an important Yankee Conference clash with Connecticut.

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

COMING DOWN HARD—UMass fullback, Ed Sarno (31) is upended by an unidentified Buffalo player. Moving in background is Nick Warnock (83).

A's Have Best Year, So Finley Fires Manager

OAKLAND (AP) — Bob Kennedy was fired Sunday as manager of the Oakland A's shortly after the team concluded its best American League baseball season since 1955. He was replaced by Hank Bauer.

Bauer, fired earlier this season as manager of the Baltimore Orioles, was signed to a two-year contract by owner Charles Finley.

Finley, who showed up at the Oakland Coliseum for the first time in more than a month, called Kennedy into his office after the game. Then Finley issued a statement saying Kennedy, 48, had been relieved of his duties after an 82-80 record in his first and only season as manager.

UMASS OFFENSE . . .

(Continued from page 12)

UMass had one last chance to get on the board in the waning moments of the contest. After a fumble recovery, Adams connected with tight end Nick McGarry twice moving the ball to the Buffalo eleven yard line, before an interception killed the drive.

The final score was an accurate reflection of what went on, on the field. Aside from a courageous display by an inexperienced defensive line and linebacker corps, it was a gloomy night for the Redmen.

Harriers Defeat Prov. But Are 2nd to Harvard

BOSTON — A band of bearded harriers from Harvard stopped both UMass and Providence College in the opening cross-country race for UMass this Saturday at Franklin Park, Boston.

The Redmen runners put up a good fight as they were downed by Harvard while defeating Providence. The final score was Harvard 25, UMass 43, Providence 64.

In winning the race, the Crimson's Royce Shaw covered the 5.5 mile course in a time of 26:50. He was followed over the finish line by teammate Doug Hardin.

Third place went to UMass' Paul Hoss. The Redmen senior covered the distance in 27:07 and like Shaw and Hardin he broke the old course record of 27:10.

Sophomore Ron Wayne was the second Redmen, finishing fifth in the race as he stayed right up with the more experienced runners. Another UMass sophomore, Leo Duart, placed eighth even though he hadn't practiced much during the week of an injury.

Fourth man for the Redmen, 13th in the race, was senior co-captain Charlie Lang who ran well as he continues to progress on his comeback from illness.

The fifth man for UMass was soph Tom Derderian. He placed 17th. Marc Gelinas was 21st, Larry Paulson 23rd, and Diego Gonzalez 26th to round out the Redmen's top eight men in the tri-meet.

Coach Ken O'Brien said he was pleased with his team's performance. He lauded the performances of Hoss and Wayne for staying up in the pack and running well. He is also pleased with the way Lang is coming back.

O'Brien said that the fourth and fifth men of Harvard were stronger than expected and that Harvard's depth was very strong. They placed seven men in the top 11.

The coach also expressed surprise at the ease UMass beat Providence. But he added, "They'll be stronger when we meet them again in the New Englands."

The UMass Frosh also battled Harvard and Providence Saturday. They came up on the long end of a 24-39-62 score with Harvard winning. Harvard frosh captured first, third, fourth, and and sixth.

The Little Redmen were lead by Don Dunsky who finished seventh. He was followed by Wayne Lucas in 9th, Mike Cowles 14th, Bruce Blackburn 15th, and Ron Swasey 16th.

Coach O'Brien said he was pleased with the frosh team. He feels that they will pull together and become a real strong unit very soon.

Northeastern will be UMass' next opponent, on the same course next Saturday. Northeastern downed New Hampshire this weekend. Another conference rival, UConn, surprisingly walloped Holy Cross 19-46.

METAWAMPE:
.713 PCT

"Take your place in the leadership of the campus community"

Area East Judiciary Selections

October 1

7:00 p.m., Hampden Room, Student Union

Spend Monday Night at the Movies at

English Pub

featuring tonight:

LAUREL & HARDY

in

Finishing Touch

UPPERCLASSMEN
Wonder Who Are Those Girls in Snappy Blue and White Uniforms?
COME SEE US
Angel Flight Rush
Oct. 1 — Colonial Lounge
Oct. 2, 3 — Dickinson Hall
7 - 9 P.M.

AREA WEST JUDICIAL SELECTIONS
Hampden Commons (# 7) 7:00 P.M.
Tuesday, October 1, 1968
openings for
2 seniors
3 juniors
composed of
1 or 2 men
3 or 4 women
Do Something!

Frosh Hoopsters
ALL freshman basketball candidates meet in Room 251, Boyden Building, 7 p.m. Wed., Oct. 2

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Intramural Football Completes Its First Week of Action

Central Tower League

	W	L
Smashers	2	0
Cools	1	0
Lions	1	1
Ironmen	1	1
Bruisers	0	1
Spartans	0	2

LEADING RECEIVERS
Reinhardt—Smashers 6
LEADING PASS RUSHERS
MacLean—Ironmen 2
TEAM OFFENSE
Cools 79
TEAM DEFENSE
Smashers 6
LEADING PASSERS
Lowe—Smashers 18-35
LEADING SCORERS
Reinhardt—Smashers 24

East League

	W	L
Aces	1	0
Phallies	1	0
Flaming A's	0	0
Lessons	0	1
Rams	0	1

LEADING RECEIERS
Sprague—Lemons 3
Rose—Phallies 5
LEADING RUSHERS
Balkus—Lemons 5
TEAM OFFENSE
Aces 18
Phallies 18
LEADING PASSER
Keurulainen—Lemons 5-16
LEADING SCORERS
Sprague—Lemons 6
Daley—Phallies 6
Soter—Phallies 6
Rose—Phallies 6
TEAM DEFENSE
Aces 0

Grad-Fac League

	W	L
CIA	1	0
Selobinas	1	0
Dinks	0	0
Toads	0	1
LA Club	0	1
Squares	0	1

LEADING RECEIVERS
Maringale—Squares 5
TEAM OFFENSE
CIA 12
LEADING PASSER
Donner—Squares 10-23
LEADING SCORERS
Linack—CIA 6
Rufo—CIA 6
TEAM DEFENSE
CIA 6

Trojan League

	W	L
QTV	1	0
SPE	1	0
LCA	1	0
TKE	0	1
ASP	0	1
PSK	0	1

LEADING PASS RECEIVERS
Canterbury—LCA 5
Melbonough—SPE 5
Gallucio—QTV 5
LEADING RUSHERS
Maglio—LCA 2
Jellow—TKE 2
TEAM DEFENSE
LCA 0
SPE 0
LEADING PASSERS
Parlbum—SPE 9-11
LEADING SCORERS
Canterbury—LCA 1*
TEAM OFFENSE
LCA 2*

West League

	W	L
Hi-lo's	1	0
Black Bears	1	0
Hickory	1	0
Hoovers	0	1
Chestnuts	0	1
Hicks	0	1

LEADING SCORERS
Fredricks—Hi-lo's 24
LEADING PASS RUSHERS
Longarini—Hickory 3
TEAM DEFENSE
Hickory 0
Hi-lo's 0
LEADING PASSERS
Murbe—Black Bears 11-21
LEADING RECEIVERS
Fredricks—Hi-lo's 6
TEAM OFFENSE
Black Bears 28

National League

	W	L
BX	1	0
Little Fellas	1	0
Roadrunners	1	0
3 M's	0	1
Bulldogs	0	1
Bouncing F's	0	1

LEADING RECEIVERS
Delugann—BX 3
Massey—BX 3
LEADING PASS RUSHERS
Smith—Bulldogs 1
TEAM OFFENSE
BX 12
Little Fellas 12
LEADING PASSERS
Newell—Little Fellas 5-9

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

South League

	W	L
Maroons	2	0
Maples	1	0
Oaks	1	1
Eagles	1	1
Elms	1	1
Grants	0	1
Pines	0	2

LEADING RECEIVERS
John Murphy—Maroons 9
LEADING PASS RUSHERS
Murphy—Eagles 4
TEAM DEFENSE
Maroons 18
LEADING PASSERS
Aylward—Maroons 26-46
LEADING SCORERS
James Murphy—Maroons 20
TEAM OFFENSE
Maroons 80

American League

	W	L
Cleavers	2	0
Lobos	2	0
Handbooks	1	1
WH-WL	1	1
Adams 16	0	2
Adams 22	0	2

LEADING SCORERS
Harvey—Cleavers 31
LEADING PASS RUSHERS
Nolan—Lobos 6
TEAM DEFENSE
Lobos 6
LEADING PASSERS
Rigney—Lobos 26-38
LEADING RECEIVERS
Harvey—Cleavers 9
TEAM OFFENSE
Cleavers 68

North Tower League

	W	L
Mags	2	0
Leopards	2	0
Cougars	1	1
Panthers	1	1
Jaguars	0	2
Patriots	0	2

LEADING RECEIVERS
Harrington—Leopards 7
TEAM DEFENSE
Mags 6

Tower League

	W	L
Bulldozers	2	0
Terrors	1	1
Colt .45's	1	1
"C" Crushers	1	1
Senators	1	1
Comanchees	0	2

LEADING RECEIVERS
Blair—Terrors 9
LEADING PASS RECEIVERS
Ostby—Terrors 4
TEAM DEFENSE
Senators 12
Bulldozers 13
LEADING PASSERS
Blair—Terrors 18-28
LEADING SCORERS
"C" Crushers 34

Athenian League

	W	L
PMD	1	0
AEP	1	0
BKP	1	0
APO	0	1
SAM	0	1
TEP	0	1

LEADING RECEIVERS
Panchuck—PMD 4
Kodmaus—PMD 4
LEADING PASS RUSHER
Davis—PMD 3
Kuja—BKP 3
TEAM DEFENSE
PMD 0
BKP 0
LEADING PASSER
Rigney—PMD 18
LEADING SCORER
Rigney—PMD 18
TEAM OFFENSE
PMD 83

North League

	W	L
Broncos	2	0
Pied Pipers	2	0
Redwoods	1	0
Buffaloes	1	1
Barracudas	0	2
Hemlocks	0	2
Brigade	0	2

LEADING RECEIVERS
O'Brien—Pipers 10
LEADING PASS RUSHERS
Slack—Pipers 3
TEAM DEFENSE
Pipers 6
Broncos 6
TEAM OFFENSE
Pipers 65

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

MOVING IN for the final Buffalo score is tailback Ken Rutowski (21) Rutowski scored two times and was the game's leading ground gainer.

Spartan League

	W	L
PSD	1	0
TC	1	0
ZN	1	0
PLP	0	1
DC	0	1
KS	0	1

LEADING RECEIVERS
Sculley—KS 5
Nowland—ZN 5
LEADING PASSERS
Melville—ZN 13-22
LEADING SCORERS
Howland—ZN 12
Delesto—PSD 12
Sculley—KS 12
Tanner—TC 12
TEAM OFFENSE
ZN 42

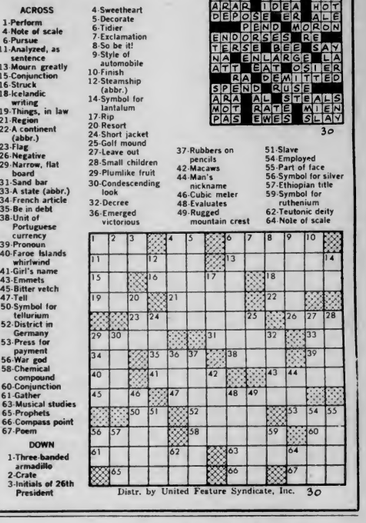
Tonight's Action

Time	Field	Teams
6:30	1	Oaks-Grants
	2	Maples-Maroons
	3	Elms-Eagles
	4	Adams 16-Handbooks
	5	W-H/W-L-Lobos
	6	CleaversAdams 22
7:30	1	Hemlocks-Barracudas
	2	Redwoods-Broncos
	3	Buffalos-Pied Pipers
	4	Cool-Ironmen
	5	Smashers-Bruisers
	6	Spartans-Lions
8:30	1	Commanchees-Crushers
	2	Bulldozers-Terrors
	3	Senators-Colt "45"
	4	Mags-Patriots
	5	Cougars-Panthers
	6	Jaguars-Leopards
9:30	1	Chestnuts-Hoovers
	2	Hilos-Hickory
	3	Hicks-Trojans
	4	Rams-Phallies
	5	Lemons-Flaming "A"

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

HARP LATH SPA
ARAL IDEA ERIE
DEPOSE ERALE
PEND MORON
ENDORSES RE
TERSE REPRISAL
NA ENLARGE LA
ATT BAT OSIER
ERA DEMITED
SPEND USE
ARA AL STEALS
MOT RATE MIEN
PAS EWES SLAY



30

ACROSS

1-Perform
4-Note of scale
6-Pursue
11-Analyzed, as sentence
13-Mourn greatly
15-Conjunction
16-Struck
18-Icelandic writing
19-Things, in law
21-Region
22-A continent (abbr.)
23-Flag
26-Negative
29-Narrow, flat board
31-Sand bar
33-A state (abbr.)
34-French article
35-Be in debt
38-Unit of Portuguese currency
39-Pronoun
40-Faroe Islands whirlwind
41-Girl's name
43-Emmets
45-Bitter vetch
47-Tell
50-Symbol for tellurium
52-District in Germany
53-Press for payment
56-War god
58-Chemical compound
60-Conjunction
61-Gather
63-Musical studies
65-Prophets
66-Compass point
67-Poem

DOWN

1-Three-banded armadillo
2-Crate
3-Initials of 26th President
4-Sweetheart
5-Decorate
6-Tidier
7-Exclamation
8-So be it!
9-Style of automobile
10-Finish
12-Steamship (abbr.)
14-Symbol for lantalum
17-Rip
20-Resort
24-Short jacket
25-Golf mound
27-Leave out
28-Small children
29-Plumlike fruit
30-Condescending look
32-Decree
36-Emerged victorious
37-Rubbers on pencils
42-Macaws
44-Man's nickname
46-Cubic meter
48-Evaluates
49-Rugged mountain crest
51-Slave
54-Employed
55-Part of face
56-Symbol for silver
57-Ethiopian title
59-Symbol for ruthenium
62-Teutonic deity
64-Note of scale

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 30

PEANUTS®

By Charles M. Schulz

B. C.

by Johnny hart

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

30 SEPT 1968

UMass Offense Stalls, As Buffalo Wins, 23-0

Mason Is Star for Bulls; Redmen Lose First Game

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

BUFFALO, N.Y. — A strong University of Buffalo team, led by passer Denny Mason, picked on an impotent UMass offense and a harried UMass defense for a 23-0 victory Friday night before 9,493 jubilant fans at War Memorial Stadium. Mason, a hometown product, broke a number of school records as he hit 17 aerials out of 21 attempts in a sensational display of accuracy.

The visitors started with spirit as Craig Lovell picked up 15 yds. on the first play from scrimmage. Ed Sarno then churned up 1; yds. with a handoff and UMass was in Buffalo territory. Buffalo's highly-rated rushing defense then shut the door on the Redmen.

A sliced punt gave Buffalo the ball on their own 35 yd. line and from then on the Bulls had field position advantage.

A punting duel then ensued with UMass being pushed back deeper and deeper into its own territory after each exchange. Near the end of the first quarter Buffalo finally was able to crack through the hard-hitting Redman defense. Mason, with hot hands, marched the Bulls to the UMass seven as the period ended.

The UMass defenders held tight though and the home-town fans had to settle for a Bob Embrow field goal which put Buffalo up, 3-0.

Mason directed the Bulls to a score the next time they got the ball. Two perfect passes to tight end Paul Lang gave the home-towners a first-and-ten at the Redmen 13 yard line. After two running plays failed, Mason hit tailback Ken Rutowski for a touchdown. It was the senior quarterback's ninth straight pass without a miss, putting Buffalo ahead 9-0 as the conversion attempt went wide.

The Buffalo defense meanwhile, was being very inhospitable to New England visitors. They gave Tim Adams a particularly hard time. UMass was only able to pick up two first downs, aside from the opening plays, during the entire first half.

After intermission, Buffalo scored again as Mason continued his flawless peformance, moving the Bulls 64 yards in ten plays to make it 16-0. Senior end Dick Ashley, who holds the school record for career pass receptions and yardage, sparked the drive with three key receptions. Joe Zelmanski, a hard-running sophomore fullback picked up the six-pointer on a three yard burst.

An Adams to Warnock aerial and a pass interference call moved the Redmen into Buffalo territory. The Bulls knocked down an Adams aerial on a fourth down and three from the 37, however, and took over on downs.

Aside from that ill-fated thrust the only ray of light for the Redmen in the third quarter was a booming 61 yard punt by Warnock which took UMass out of a hole.

Early in the fourth quarter, the visitors had a shot at getting back in the game. Adams moved the Redmen to the Buffalo 20 yard line. A strong Bull pass rush then pushed the junior quarterback back to the 32 and on fourth down defensive tackle Joe Riccelli batted down a pass attempt.

Buffalo came up with its final score after getting good field position from its defensive unit. Starting out on the UMass 41, Mason hit his favorite target, Ashley, again for eleven yards. Two plays later he bootlegged for eleven more.

On a third and eight play, Rutowski took a flare pass, sidestepped three would-be defenders and scampered into the end zone.

(Continued on page 10)

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

LOOK UP IN THE SKY—UMass end Nick Warnock (83) looks up at a pass that has bounced off him. Moving in from behind is Buffalo defender, Dave Richner (32).

UConn Suffers Key Injuries

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — University of Connecticut football co-captain Henry Palasek will be wearing a cast for at least two weeks as a result of a "severe knee ligament sprain" suffered in the Huskies' 31-14 defeat at the hands of Yale Saturday.

Palasek, linebacker, had made 11 unassisted tackles and helped out on 11 others in the previous Connecticut game, a victory over Vermont. He was injured on the third play of Saturday's action at Yale Bowl. Connecticut starting quarterback Pete Petrillo suffered a severe ankle sprain and was limping Sunday, a University spokesman said, but it was expected he'd be ready to play at New Hampshire next Saturday.

Boston College 49, Navy 15
Harvard 27, Holy Cross 20
Dartmouth 21, New Hampshire 0
Brown 10, Rhode Island 9
Springfield 28, Amherst 14
Northeastern 42, Bridgeport 19
Wilkes 31, Vermont 9
Worcester Tech 14, Bowdoin 10
Williams 31, Trinity 14
Boston Univ. 6, Maine 3
Bates 32, Norwich 0
Wesleyan 42, Middlebury 40
Tufts 28, Drexel Tech 7
Bridgewater 47, Curry 14
Yale 31, Connecticut 14
Central Conn. 33, Ithaca 6
Rensselaer 6, Colby 0
American International 27, Coast Guard 14

Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

THE STORY OF THE GAME—Buffalo's Denny Mason (19) gets off an aerial despite pressure from UMass' Randy Robinson (85), Marty Scheralis (number obscured) and Alan Becker (81).

Mason's Glitter Brightens Stadium

By Peter Pascarelli
Sports Day Editor

BUFFALO, N.Y. — War Memorial Stadium in Buffalo is a lousy place to play a football game. Even had UMass won, which they never got close to doing, it still is a lousy place to play.

You are advised as soon as you arrive in Buffalo that you better not drive to the stadium for it is very probable that either your car will be stolen or it will be minus a few parts.

So you take a bus to the stadium, which resembles a fortress. Barb wire surrounds all entrances. Police are everywhere, night sticks ready, helmets being worn.

Inside War Memorial Stadium, there are not many unobstructed seats and the lighting is bad. It becomes pretty obvious why the City of Buffalo is trying so hard to build a new stadium.

The University of Buffalo tried hard to give the impression of big-time class to the game. Introductions were made in the pro manner, the players coming through the goalposts. Buffalo cheerleaders led a small bull out on the field, named Buster V. But all this was seen by only 9,493 people rattling around the cavernous stands, which hold 45,000.

There is nothing wrong with the Buffalo football team, however. Quarterback Denny Mason, a hometown Buffalo boy, was going into this season, a senior co-captain who was going to sit on the bench. But when Mick Murtha, number signal-caller got injured, Mason was installed as a starter. After seeing Mason, Murtha must be a Bart Starr.

Mason completed his first 13 passes Friday night. He ended up 17 for 21 overall. It was not a bad percentage for a second string quarterback.

Buffalo coach Doc Urich termed Mason's performance, which broke a school record for single game completions, as "unbelievable". Urich added, "Denny played well against Iowa State in our first game but it was nothing like this. Completing 17 of 21 is great no matter who you are or who you play."

Urich, who coached under Ara Parseghian at both Miami (Ohio) and Notre Dame, was impressed by UMass despite the 23-0 score. "They were a fine team personnel-wise, said Urich, "and measure up favorably with others we play."

The Buffalo mentor saw his team's swiftness as being the big factor. "UMass just didn't have the same team speed that we did," said Urich, "and didn't have a back line like Ken Rutowski to pick up the big yards."

Rutowski led all rushers with 60 yards gained. He and pass catching Dick Ashley were the other big offensive weapons. Ashley, who is Buffalo's all time pass catching leader, snared eight passes. He, however, also was the most embarrassed person in the area when he dropped a 45 yard bomb when he was 10 yards in the clear, during the fourth quarter.

Buffalo dominated all game statistics. They had 19 first downs to UMass 10, and gained 356 yards in total offense to the Redmen's 138.

It was pretty hard to find any UMass bright spots. Bill Byron played a fine game at linebacker in his first varsity start and then it was learned later, suffered a possible shoulder seperation. Marty Scheralis injured his left elbow and Dick Don injured his knee.

UMass left Buffalo on their chartered flight with only one thought in mind.

War Memorial Stadium in Buffalo is a lousy place to play a football game.

REDMEN RANTINGS —UMass was hurt several times by passes blocked at the line of scrimmage by Buffalo linemen . The Redmen started fast when on the first two plays, Craig Lovell and Ed Sarno went 15 and 10 yards respectively . . . UMass was hurt by poor field position in the first quarter . . . Andy Guarino and John Maclean led two defensive stands in the first half when Buffalo had short yardage situations . . . The deepest UMass drive in the last quarter was stalled by an interception . . . University of Buffalo athletics are in serious trouble, stemming from a student referendum that would do away with mandatory student athletic fees. The referendum comes up this week . . . Buffalo has a busy week coming up with Boston College the Bulls' opponent Saturday. If you havent heard yet, the Eagles trounced Navy 49-15 . . . Conference schools suffered a blow to their prestige—all Yankee Conference teams lost non-conference games . . . Besides UMass loss, Vermont lost to Wilkes College 39-9, Wilkes extended its winning streak to 22 games . . . Boston University edged Maine 6-3 . . . Yale routed Connecticut 31-14, in a game highlighted by injuries to Husky aces Pete Petrillo and Henry Palasek . . . Brown edged Rhode Island 10-9 as the Rams missed a two point conversion with three minutes left . . . Dartmouth edged New Hampshire 21-0 . . . Harvard beat Holy Cross 27-20 in a televised thriller . . . Delaware was beaten by Villanova, 16-0.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 29 17 | UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS | TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1968

Humphrey Says Bombing Halt 'Acceptable Risk for Peace'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey — dramatically moving his presidential campaign from the shadow of Johnson Administration war policy—said Monday night he would be willing to stop the bombing of North Vietnam "as an acceptable risk for peace."

Humphrey, in a nationwide television speech on foreign policy, expressed belief a bombing halt could lead "to success in the negotiations and a shorter war."

"This," Humphrey added in his prepared remarks, "would be the best protection for our troops."

The vice president, however, appeared to add a modifier. He said that in "weighing the risk" and "before taking action" as president he would place key importance on evidence—"direct or indirect, by deed or word"—of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between the North and South.

"If the government of North Vietnam were to show bad faith," he added, "I would reserve the right to resume the bombing."

Humprey was said to feel his statement was a significant departure from Administration policy.

The vice president, trailing his opponent, Richard M. Nixon in the polls, has been urged by many supporters to take a stand on Vietnam independent of the Administration to show he is his "own man" and to attract the anti-war group within the Democratic Party.

In Washington, the White House declined comment on Humphrey's change of course. Humphrey said he was paying for a half-hour of prime television time in order to tell the voters "my story, uninterrupted by protestors and demonstrators," or "by second-hand interpretation."

Humphrey noted that President Johnson will hold the power of the presidency — as well as the authority for making decisions in Vietnam until January 20 and he added:

"And the voice at the negotiating table must be his. I shall not compete with that voice. I shall cooperate and help."

Humphrey said that when the President made his decisions on Vietnam, "I have supported them."

But Humphrey said that in 112 days there would be a new president and new advisers, and, as he said in his acceptance speech, "The policies of tomorrow need not be limited by the policies of yesterday."

Humphrey said he would not undertake a unilateral withdrawal of American troops, which he said "would be an open invitation to more violence, more aggression, more instability."

Nor, added Humphrey, would he "escalate the level of violence in either North or South Vietnam. We must seek to de-escalate."

Humprey also outlined what else he would do in addition to a willingness to stop the bombing:

—Move toward "de-Americanization of the war," through a timetable negotiated with the South Vietnam government to reduce U. S. forces.

—Propose once more an immediate ceasefire with United Nations or other international supervision and withdrawal of all foreign forces from South Vietnam.

"What I am proposing is that it should be basic to our policy in Vietnam that the South Vietnamese take over more and more of the defense of their own country," said Humphrey.

Humphrey earlier told a Democratic meeting it is time for Democrats to start to get rolling on the campaign.

Humphrey described himself as the "Lonesome Ranger" in campaigning and he sternly warned his fellow Democrats "if the election were held today we wouldn't have a prayer."

However, Humphrey promised a slam-bang campaign against a Nixon record, as well as against George Wallace, and left on a fighting note—that the election was not today and that Harry S. Truman had fought back and won against bigger odds in 1948.

Sen. Kennedy Lauds Humphrey's Speech

WASHINGTON (AP—Vice Pres. Hubert H. Humphrey's split with the Johnson administration's war policy drew praise from Democrats in Congress Monday.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. joined several Democrats in congratulating Humphrey for his pledge to suspend all bombing of N. Vietnam if elected president.

"To all who look for peace in Vietnam," said Kennedy, "you have given great encouragement and hope."

'Miracle Maker' Democrat To Speak at Smith Wed.

The man credited with launching the "Dump Johnson" movement, and an early encourager of Sen. Eugene McCarthy's Presidential nomination bid, will speak at Smith College Wednesday, Oct. 2.

He is Allard K. Lowenstein, 39, a leading New York reform Democrat, lawyer and law instructor who is also candidate for Congress from the Fifth Congressional District of New York. Lowenstein's lecture, "What Happens After Chicago?" is being sponsored by the Smith College Young Democrats. It will take place in Sage Hall at 9:45 p.m., and is open to the public.

"Miracle Maker" is the term applied to Lowenstein by Newsweek magazine in its June 10, 1968 issue.

"Lowenstein is a cheerful, tireless, immensely articulate lawyer and law instructor from New York who last summer came to the conclusion that the only effective way for a Democrat to alter the Administration's policy in Vietnam was to prevent Lyndon Johnson from being renominated. This, he was assured by almost all his liberal friends (including Robert F. Kennedy), was plainly impossible, but nevertheless Lowenstein set about doing it. . .On Mar. 31, when the President announced that he would not run, Al Lowenstein's miracle became history."

Lowenstein has repeatedly interrupted his campaign for a seat in Congress to support national causes. A member of the board of directors of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, he went to Washington to lend his aid to the Poor People's march. Before that, he helped arrange Martin Luther King's funeral.

According to Newsweek, his own campaign has been a microcosm of McCarthy's. Students man his headquarters and youthful canvassers work hard in his behalf.

More Witnesses Testify In Murphy Murder Trial

NORTHAMPTON — Michael Kelley, now of Slippery Rock, Penn, testified Monday afternoon in the murder trial of Stephen H. Murphy of Lexington. Kelley said that he received a phone call at 2 a.m. on March 23, 1967, in his Lincoln Ave. apartment from the late George Rollins, less than an hour before the fire which took Rollins' life was reported. Kelley said that during the 20 minute conversation he heard an unidentified male voice in the background.

Earlier, the Commonwealth's star witness, Sang Seek Park, a political science graduate student at UMass, testified that he saw Murphy and Rollins together about an hour before the fire broke out.

The state is trying to prove that Murphy beat Rollins about the head with a mason's hammer and then set the room. located at 133 Main St., Amherst, on fire.

Also Monday, Bruce McBomby of Iowa City, Iowa, a former music major at UMass, as was Rollins, testified he received a call from Murphy two days after the fire, when Murphy was brought back to the Amherst Police Station from his home in Lexington.

McBomby asked Murphy if he had committed the crime. Murphy replied, "No". He asked Murphy where he had been and Murphy replied "I went south." Murphy then asked McBomby if he'd come to see him at the Amherst police station but was told he could have no visitors at that time.

A former employee of the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Arthur Horne, now of Annapolis, Md., and a former resident of the Amherst rooming house, testi-

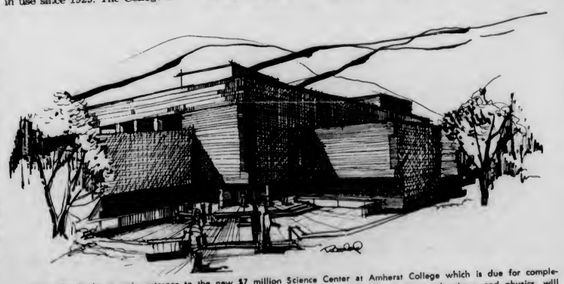
(Continued on Page 3)

'Life Beyond Earth' Subject of Symposium at Amherst

Man's accelerating quest for evidence of life beyond the earth will be the subject of a scientific symposium at Amherst College, Nov. 22-23, to mark the dedication of a new $7 million Science Center at the College.

A number of the nation's leading astronomers and space scientists are to participate in the 2-day program, which will assess prospects for the discovery of other forms of life both on planets elsewhere within our own solar system and in the universe beyond.

Walter Orr Roberts, president this year of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the world's largest professional scientific organization, has organized and will serve as chairman of the Science Center dedicatory program.



The Amherst symposium will have as its principal speakers Carl Sagan, professor of astronomy at Cornell Univ. and co-author with the Russian astronomer I. S. Shklovskii of the 1966 volume, Intelligent Life in the Universe; and Frank D. Drake, a fellow member of the astronomy faculty at Cornell and director of the Arecibo Ionospheric Observatory in Puerto Rico which is operated by Cornell.

To open the dedication program Friday evening, Nov. 22, Dr. Alfred Gellhorn, newly appointed dean of the Univ. of Pennsylvania Med School, will present a public lecture on the topic, "Undergraduate Science Education in the 1970's."

The new Science Center at Amherst, for which ground was broken in the fall of 1966, is due for completion during the present fall semester. The building will house the College's departments of astronomy, chemistry, and physics as well as such interdisciplinary programs of faculty and undergrad study and research as biophysics and biochemistry, chemical physics and astrophysics.

The five - level building will nearly double the space presently available for these disciplines in the Fayerweather Physics Lab, built in 1895, and the Moore Chemistry Lab, which has been in use since 1929. The College also maintains an Observatory with 18- and 8-inch refracting telescopes and a planetarium.

Formal dedication of the Science Center is planned for Saturday noon, Nov. 23, at the conclusion of the two-day scientific program.

Artist's sketch shows main entrance to the new $7 million Science Center at Amherst College which is due for completion in late fall. The five-level structure, to house the College's departments of astronomy, chemistry, and physics, will be dedicated Nov. 22 and 23 during a special symposium on the scientific quest for evidence of life beyond the earth.

Recruiting on UMass Campus

Peace Corps Volunteers Speak of Benefits and Problems

"Life in the Peace Corps," an observer has noted, "is made up of thousands of highly personalized experiences, not one of which is really typical and no two of which are entirely alike."

If the "typical" Volunteer cannot be defined, it is at least possible to develop a computerized version of the "average" Volunteer: 23.6 years of age and male (64 per cent). A college graduate (77.7 per cent; 96.9 per cent at least attended college). Nearly one fifth are married (18.7 per cent, compared with 10.8 per cent in 1962).

But statistics reveal little of the heart and soul of the Volunteers although they can be useful in illuminating some aspects of the Peace Corps.

Growth, for example. Volunteers are in 57 countries, 14 more than when Jack Vaughn became director in March 1966. As of Jan. 15, there were 12,238 Volunteers in the field and another 679 in training.

The Peace Corps has received more than 240,000 applications, of which a fifth were accepted for training; three out of four of those became Volunteers. To date, 2,565 have extended their tours, while 164 joined for another two years.

More Volunteers have come from California than any other state: 4,671. New York has contributed 3,385; Illinois, 1,651; Pennsylvania, 1,440; and Massachusetts, 1,286. Vermont has the most Volunteers per capita with 131, followed by Washington (950), Colorado (599), Oregon (572) and New Hampshire (184).

The University of California at Berkeley leads the colleges in number of Volunteers with 922. Then comes the University of Wisconsin's main campus at Madison with 451, the University of Washington with 442, Stanford University with 411 and the University of Michigan with 381.

The Peace Corps has an enviable reputation for economy. It returned $5 million of its 1967 appropriation, and has reduced the cost of selecting, training and supporting a Volunteer for one year from $9,074 in 1963 to $7,453 in 1967.

Host countries have contributed $19.5 million to overseas costs. Usually this is in the form of such services as vehicles and housing, but some countries pay at least a part of the Volunteers' monthly allowances.

The Peace Corps has 397 programs in operation. The largest contingent is in India, where 969 Volunteers work mainly on food production and health projects. Then come the Philippines with 756, Colombia with 706, Micronesia with 656, Brazil with 645, and Malaysia with 565.

The Peace Corps fills more than 300 job requests, including advertising, accounting, art, biochemistry, carpentry, city planning, recreation, drama, entomology, horticulture, machinists, oceanography, plumbing, diesel mechanics, athletics and welding. In British Honduras, a meteorologist set up the country's first hurricane-warning system, a boon to the entire Caribbean and the mainland United States.

Of the 16,227 Volunteers who have returned to this country, 37 per cent have gone back to school. Of those who went to work, a third teach, 19 per cent are in Federal agencies (57 are Foreign Service Officers), 11 per cent work for social-organizations and 18 per cent are in business and industry.

But if, as the Peace Corps says, it is interested primarily in altering attitudes and instilling confidence, how can its work be measured? In many ways it can't. One Volunteer, groping for a reason for his optimism, could say only that "things will be different because people will be different."

Yet, the right statistics can provide some insights here too. For example, in a survey of 4,200 returned Volunteers 94 per cent said they would join again, 82 per cent would like to return to the same country, 74 per cent would volunteer for the same type of work and 63 per cent said they should be succeeded by another Volunteer.

About 75 per cent said they believed they had contributed to the country's social and economic development, but there was little self-congratulation. About 84 per cent said they were satisfied with their service, but only about 25 per cent felt they had done "very well" as Volunteers. About a third said they performed their jobs well, a fourth said they were able to get the people they worked among to know them better, and nearly 70 per cent said they did well in getting to know the people.

Volunteers readily admit to problems, although they are rather sophisticated about them. Only five per cent of the men and two per cent of the women complained about "serious" dating problems. About a third found transportation a problem. Language tripped up many, although 45 per cent considered themselves fluent. Instead, their major worries centered in their jobs. They complained about not enough work to do, frustrating work experiences, lack of support, poor qualifications and the failure of the people they worked among to help themselves.

At some point every Volunteer found himself slipping into a period of profound depression. How deeply and how long he was affected depended on many factors, but 40 per cent had at least one depression period and 38 per cent had two. Of these, 44 per cent had a depression period that lasted a month and 26 per cent found their difficult time lasted two months. But Volunteers who experienced more than one period of despair found each successive one shorter than those that preceded it.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I, Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

UConn Student Senate Tells Campus Police To Stop Carrying Guns On Campus

STORRS, Conn.—A confrontation is forming between the University of Connecticut and the campus security forces over the need to bear arms.

The issue of the carrying of sidearms by the 20-man campus security force began two weeks ago when the Student Senate passed a resolution stating that the guards should not be allowed to carry guns and other weapons in "the peaceful academic community."

The security guards, meeting Friday, said that they will fight an order by UConn Pres. Homer Babbidge which restricts them from carrying sidearms except on a limited basis.

The President of the Conn. Employees Union Inc. said that if the university did not withdraw its order, the guards would hold a hearing on the matter and call in representatives from the F.B.I. and the Conn. State Police to testify on the restriction.

Pres. Babbidge said he would be "willing to sit down with the security officers" to discuss the matter. He also said he recently appointed a committee to study the "whole question of the security force's responsibilities in the university community." The committee will be comprised of members of the faculty, students, administration, and the security force.

Humor Magazine Editors Aim For Early Winter Publication

The UMass campus humor magazine, formerly known as Yahoo, will publish its first edition in two years in late November, the editors announced today.

Dave Stevens, Rick Cooper and Lynn Audit agreed that despite many handicaps, the campus should see a "relevant, provocative and very, very funny first issue soon after the national elections".

Cooper cited "RSO red tape, lack of student interest and support, and time in that order" as the chief handicaps preventing an earlier edition.

About the name change, Dave Stevens stated, "This is not a name change. We are officially publishing without a name for at least the first edition, because we think that the trustees' decree that we use some other name than Yahoo is simply silly at best and attempts to whitewash an issue which doesn't and shouldn't need whitewashing. It also amounts to outright censorship," he stated.

Miss Audit said that there will be some differences between this magazine and the old Yahoo. "We plan to create a magazine directed to our readership. By that I mean," she said, "we are soliciting material from the whole campus, and are trying to include selections which will appeal to most of the elements on campus—not things which tickle our own particular fancy."

The Student Senate appropriation for YAHOO was overruled in 1966, following controversy over a cartoon which many administrators and politicians cited as "irreligious."

If you see news in the making, call 5-2550 Hotline

Students desiring to attend the 1969 University of Massachusetts Summer School in Bologna, Italy, should see Professor Howard H. Quint, room 724, Thompson Hall on Tuesdays between 2 and 4 p.m. or by appointment (see Miss Wilkey in the History Office, room 714). Students from all schools and departments of the University may apply. All other things being equal, early applicants will be given preference for acceptance into the program which is limited to 65 students.

Those students who attended the 1968 Summer School in Bologna are requested to contact Professor Quint at their earliest convenience.

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM

Presents

JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH

Speaking On:

"The Anatomy of Turmoil"

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4

8:00 P.M., BOWKER AUDITORIUM

BELL'S PIZZA

is celebrating its FIRST ANNIVERSARY tomorrow

We invite you to come down and help us celebrate

ALL DRINKS FREE even if you don't buy anything!

BELL'S PIZZA already famous for great pizza, delicious HOT OVEN GRINDERS

Open 11 a.m.-12, until 2 a.m. Fri. & Sat.
65 University Drive
256-8011

President Johnson Urges Nations To Continue Economic Cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson urged top monetary policymakers of more than 100 nations Monday to keep up the momentum of international economic cooperation rather than settle for "stop-and-go economic growth."

"The more we move out of phase with each other the more we will each have to restrict ourselves," Jonson said. "The more we move together, the more rapidly each of us will be able to advance the prosperity of our own people."

Robert S. McNamara, the World Bank president, asked a doubling of bank aid to Africa, Asia and Latin America over the next five years.

Johnson was the surprise leadoff speaker at the combined annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. Governors of the two bodies are ministers of finance and central bank heads from a broad array of nations, including many newly come to nationhood.

Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the IMF, reported to the governors that the world monetary system in the past year has had to stand up to profound shocks "but the system has withstood the shocks."

Unfortunately, in putting their houses in order, he said, some of the industrialized nations with balance-of-payments problems have resorted to controls harmful to their smaller trading partners.

"This simply shuffles on to poorer countries part of the burden of adjustment," Schweitzer said.

Johnson called on the affluent nations to continue to extend assistance to the emerging group, but conspicuously made no promises on behalf of the United States.

With opposition to foreign aid running strong this year, the House and Senate have voted foreign aid appropriations of $1.6 billion and $1.9 billion, respectively, either of which would be the lowest in the 21-year history of the program. The final figure is yet to be agreed on.

McNamara, Johnson's former secretary of defense, making his first address to the governors as World Bank president, took note of the growing disenchantment of developed nations with assistance to those less developed and said this poses a special challenge to the World Bank.

He called for a doubling of World Bank lending activity in the next five years, setting the target for the half decade at approximately $10 billion.

'Mother' Ruled Not Obscene, Court Releases Thatcher

GREENFIELD — David Thatcher, 22, of Greenfield was freed of a charge of "selling an obscene thing", in a Superior Court ruling Friday. Judge Wilfred J. Paquet said that recent rulings of the Supreme Court left no alternative.

Thatcher had appealed a $100 fine and a one-month sentence to the House of Correction imposed in District Court for selling Ye Mother of Voices, an underground newspaper. The state charged that Thatcher had violated a state law prohibiting the sale of "obscene" material to minors.

Appearing for the defense was Isidore Silver, a counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union in Amherst and an assistant professor at UMass. He insisted that the publication was not obscene under the definitions of the U.S. Supreme Court and the judge concurred.

British Championship Debaters To Meet University Team Here

The 1968 British Championship Debaters from the University of Strathclyde, Scotland, will be coming soon to the UMass to debate with members of the Massachusetts team. Miss Marlene Fine, vice-president of the Massachusetts team, has announced the debate is scheduled for Oct. 24 at 8:00 p.m. in Mahar Auditorium.

Topic for the debate will be "Resolved that Capital Punishment is the World's Worst Crime."

Opposing two representatives of the Scotland team will be Stephen Daggett, president of the Massachusetts team, and Miss Fine. The remaining members of the two teams and the audience will be encouraged to participate in the contest by "badgering" the debaters with questions and comments during the debate, Miss Fine said.

Six Attend Teaching Meeting

A total of six people attended a meeting of Teaching Assistants last night. The meeting was to determine the need for such an association, and to determine the methods to handle grievances of the assistants.

Poor attendance was attributed to the lack of advance publicity and the hour.

The decision was reached to confine the Association of Teaching Assistants to the English Dept. for the present. However, assistants from other departments are welcome to attend future meetings, although no definite date has been set.

Faculty Recital Series Features Estella Kersenbaum

The third performance of the Music Department Faculty Recital Series will feature Estela Kersenbaum Olevsky in a piano recital in Bowker Auditorium on Friday at 8:00 p.m.

The program will include Chopin's Sonata No. 3, op. 58; Albeniz's Navarra; Berg's Sonata, op. 1; Valses nobles et sentimentales by Ravel and Malambo by Alberto Ginastera, an Argentinian composer who was a composition teacher of Miss Kersenbaum Olevsky.

The artist studied piano at the National Conservatory in Argentina. She also received her masters degree from this institution. Miss Kersenbaum Olevsky appeared on many leading South American concert stages, radio and TV, and has toured around the world with her husband Julian Olevsky, a concert violinist.

There will be a meeting Wednesday at 8:30 p.m., in the Nantucket Room in the Student Union for all seniors and grad students in health-related majors interested in joining the Peace Corps. A movie will be shown.

If you see news in the making, call 5-2550 Hotline

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Donald S. Call

If while playing . . . You broke your glasses – Save the pieces and bring them to us for exact duplication.

"FINE EYEWEAR DOESN'T COST—IT PAYS!"

56 MAIN STREET
AMHERST, MASS. 01002
253-7002

Valley Peace Center to Hold Draft Counseling Classes

The Valley Peace Center will hold a draft counseling workshop beginning Oct. 8th at the Peace Center. Mr. John Perkins formerly a biology professor at Harvard and now serving his alternate service as a peace intern with the American Friends Service Committee in Cambridge will conduct the workshop.

The workshop will consist of four two hour sessions on Tuesday evenings in October. From 6-8 p.m. there will be a workshop for experienced draft counselors who wish to be brought up to date on recent court decisions; from 8-10 p.m Mr. Perkins will conduct a workshop for beginners which will be open to all interested individuals including those who may not wish to become counselors but want information on how Selective Service works and the rights and obligations of young men affected by the system.

The Valley Peace Center is located on Cook Place, just off Main Street. Those wishing to register for the course or those with draft problems may call the Peace Center (253-3683).

Cooperative Extension Service To Plan Training Conference

An in-service training conference for municipal building officials in New England will be held on campus Oct. 14 through 18, conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service of the College of Agriculture.

Panels and other sessions will cover building regulations, building technology, municipal law and management programs. Speakers will be from the University faculty, state, federal and local government, and private industry.

The conference is presented as part of the Extension Service planning and resource development program in cooperation with the Building Officials Conference of America, Inc., and building officials associations in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Further information on the conference is available from chairman John H. Noyes, extension forester, Holdsworth Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst 01002.

New York Teacher Strike Ends

NEW YORK (AP)—The end of a three-week teachers' strike sent most of New York City's 1.1 million public school pupils back to classes yesterday, but the battle ever "decentralization" appeared far from settled.

Officials of the Ocean Hill - Brownsville district—a group of eight mostly Negro and Puerto Rican schools in Brooklyn—denounced the strike-ending pact, but did not prevent the return of white teachers whose ouster had triggered the strike.

It was not clear how or if the Ocean Hill - Brownsville officials would oppose the pact between the city Board of Education and the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers.

The pact, worked out with Mayor John V. Lindsay's help, called for reinstatement of 110 white teachers, posting of observers to insure that they can teach without harassment, and addition of six days to the school term—at full pay for teachers—to make up lost time.

The Ocean Hill - Brownsville district is one of three conducting experiments in "decentralization"—or neighborhood control—which is scheduled to become citywide next year.

The district board ousted a group of white teachers last spring, charging them with sabotaging the experiment, and replaced about 100 other teachers who walked out in sympathy with the ousted teachers.

TRIAL . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

fied he owned the hammer and the container of acetone, which he kept stored in the basement of the rooming house, which the state says were used in the fire and beating.

Judge Donald MacCauley yesterday allowed the jury to see a dozen slides of pictures taken by Boston Medical Examiner Dr. Michael Luongo after he performed an autopsy on the body of Rollins.

Both defense attorneys had requested the court to exclude the slides because they had not been allowed to see the pictures in advance.

The judge told the jury not to be prejudiced by the showing of the pictures.

Meet the Spoiler...

BOSTONIAN FLEX-O-MOCS

Traditional moccasin comfort in a modern looking, fashion-right design. Note the smart, semi-square toe . . . the bold strap-and-buckle . . . the handsewn front seam. And if that isn't enough to spoil you, the price will! Many Flex-O-Moc styles to choose from.

BOLLES FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES

Supreme Court Draft Case To Change Selective Service System

College Press Service

WASHINGTON — This month the Supreme Court will hear a draft case that may affect hundreds of young men around the country, whose verdict will almost surely deal a blow to the Selective Service System and the procedures it has followed during recent months in reclassifying protesters.

In an unusual development for such a case, the defendant, a 24-year-old divinity student, and the prosecution, attorneys for the Justice Department, have both recommended the same holding—that the decision of a lower court to uphold his reclassification to 1-A and his subsequent induction because of his protest activity—be reversed.

The Justice Department, in recommending reversal, has collided with the Selective Service and its director, Lewis B. Hershey, who maintain that local boards have a right to reclassify "those who engage in illegal activity" as delliquents—an action that puts them at the head of the list of priority for induction.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which represents Oestereich, is fighting the reclassification on several grounds and on several leveis. It argues that:

1. The declaration of delinquency and reclassification is invalid because it is punitive and therefore cannot be undertaken without the due process safeguards to the registrant required by the Constitution (counsel, confrontation and cross-examination, and impartial tribunal and so on):

2. That the act of returning a draft card is speech protected by the First Amendment. Evidence here, among other things, is the fact that in the original Selective Service Act after World War I "failure to possess (have on one's person, as it is now interpreted) a Registration Certificate (draft card)" was not on its face illegal, but was merely evidence (to be investigated) of failure to register, which was illegal.

The ACLU lawyers would like to see those sections of the draft laws that provide for violation for not having a draft card on one's person (rather than not having registered) and that provide for delinquency reclassification for persons who have failed to perform some step in the registration process declared unconstitutional, and they raise in their brief, filed with the Court last month, far-reaching questions about the consistency of draft provisions with Constitutional guarantees.

The Justice Department brief, filed last week, admits that inconsistencies existed between the provision for exemption (which, according to Solicitor General Erwin Griswold, is guaranteed by Congress and not subject to local board interference) and the provision for reclassification.

It suggests, however, that in such cases as this one, where individuals have permanent exemptions, those exemptions must take precedence over the board's right to reclassify. Thus, the case would not apply to students who have only deferments until they are out of school, not exemptions.

The Justice Department says, however, that serious question may be cast on the constitutionality of delinquency reclassification as a general procedure by such a finding in this particular case.

Such unconstitutionality is the ACLU's major contention, because of a third provision in the Selective Service Act which prohibits court review of draft disputes before induction. The lawyers say delinquency reclassification fits the definition of punishment set down in previous court cases (retribution and deterrence, among other things) and therefore is illegal since punishment cannot be meted out in this country without a trial and due process of law.

The prosecution never really deals with this question (other than saying it might come up), but recommends that the Court avoid having to decide that difficult legal question by merely saying the exemption of divinity students takes precedence in this case over a board's reclassification.

That "easy way out" of a thorny case is probably exactly what the court will do when it hears the arguments and rules in October, since the practice of the court is to decide the case by the least controversial and upsetting route. But if the justices do it that way, the question will doubtless come up again—next time the defendant will be someone who doesn't have the exemption and can fight on the issue.

The Justice brief also puts much of the blame for the tricky legal situation on General Hershey. The Department has previously argued that his October 24 letter to local boards, recommending that they reclassify and induct protesters posthaste, was "a statement of personal opinion only" and not mandatory or binding. In cases brought against Hershey last spring by the National Student Association, the court ruled that local boards were not legally affected by that directive.

Now, however, the Justice Department, in a deviation from its spring position, agrees with the opposition that Hershey's memorandum, for all its "informal" status, was indeed in effect "inviting local boards to use their reclassification powers in a punitive way" — using them to "get the bad guys." It urges the court to take into account when it considers the case the fact that (as the ACLU counts) at least 76 of the 650 men who turned in draft cards in October are now involved in legal proceedings because they have been reclassified, and many others probably just went into the Army because they couldn't afford court costs — all of which goes to show that the letter had some effect on the boards, and they weren't "just acting randomly and individually" as was claimed last spring.

The Oestereich case is the first of all these, perhaps the only one, to reach the "court of last resort," the Supreme Court. Its decision will affect hundreds of other cases now in court. If it decides on the narrow point of law recommended by the Justice Department, that will still affect perhaps 1000 cases, according to officials. If it should decide to tackle the whole problem of inconsistencies and illegalities in the Selective Service law in general terms, as advocated by the ACLU, its ruling will affect every reclassification instance now in process.

Either way, General Hershey has lost his battle this time, Although the Justice Dpartment gave him eight pages in its brief, explaining his side of the story and stating the Selective Service case for upholding the reclassification, it would not let him enter his own brief to the Court.

Both sides seem to concur that his memo last October was a blunder, both tactically and legally. And both concur that local boards have acted illegally in many cases.

The differences come in basic support for the draft as it now exists. Most telling, perhaps, is the ACLU's continual references to reclassification as "punitive", and the Justice lawyers' contention that "induction isn't punishment" — inferring that young people should be happy to serve in the armed forces, not try to avoid it by any means possible.

The really broad issues — whether delinquency reclassification should be considered illegal not even as punishment for past deeds because it forces compliance with the procedures of the draft system, whether it denies the right of free speech to registrants who must be afraid to dissent for fear of being reclassified — are only touched on in this case, but they, too, are still hovering beneath the surface, ready to come up next time.

World News Briefs

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — If you want to see Old Glory flying over Fort McHenry, where "The Star-Spangled Banner" was written it will have to be by the dawn's early light, or some other form of daylight.

The national monument has been without electric power since last Tuesday, National Park Service officials confirmed yesterday. During the blackout, the flag, which usually is spotlighted at night, has flown in darkness.

Robert Krick, chief historian at the shrine, said the trouble has been traced to water in the power lines and should be repaired by today.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson issued the annual Columbus Day Proclamation yesterday.

He called on the nation to observe Oct. 12, the 376th anniversary of the feat of Columbus, with appropriate ceremonies and displays of the flag.

DETROIT (AP) — Richard M. Nixon declined comment last night on Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's statement that he would be willing to stop the bombing of North Vietnam.

Nixon, the Republicans' presidential candidate, conferred with Michigan Gov. George Romney before addressing a statewide television audience. An aide indicated Nixon would want to study Humphrey's statement before considering a response.

Earlier Nixon said he is studying a new national approach to unemployment providing private enterprise with financial incentives to create jobs.

POLAND SPRING, Maine (AP) —Disorderly conduct charges against two enrollees at the Poland Springs Job Corps Center for Women were dismissed yesterday in District Court in Lewiston when the court was advised the two girls had been dismissed from the Corps.

The charges were brought against Sandra E. Ackerman, 18, and Susan V. Doyle, 19. They were arrested Sept. 21 by Lewiston police and their resultant accusations of "police brutality" triggered a 13-mile protest march by 70-Corpswomen from the Center to Lewiston and disorders at the Center.

Lewiston police were cleared of the brutality charges in an investigation by the Maine attorney general's office.

Robert G. Lake, Center director, has said no corpswomen would be dismissed just for taking part in the march even though he forbade the demonstration.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)— Security was tightened yesterday at the Navy and Marine Reserve Training Centers here and in Salem, Ore., as investigators sought clues in Sunday's explosions and fire at the Eugene center.

"We've done the preliminary investigations and collected the evidence," said Police Chief Art Ellsworth. "Now we are waiting for some help."

He said the Federal Bureau of Investigation was sending two special agents.

Some $106,000 in damage was caused by the early Sunday morning explosions and fire. Destroyed or damaged were two bulldozers, four dump trucks, a trailer, a crane and a personal carrier.

Bombs blew the bulldozer engines apart. Another bomb destroyed the crane engine and blasted its cab, throwing one door atop a building 30 yards away.

The rest of the damage was caused by fire.

We have room for anyone willing to work for change . . .
CONSERVATIVE? MODERATE? LIBERAL?
RADICAL? or OTHER?

If you believe that the world can be changed thru EVOLUTION rather than REVOLUTION, let us help you do your thing.

If you want to do something, but don't know what you can do, come in and talk.

Open Membership Meeting of the
MARTIN LUTHER KING SOCIAL ACTION COUNCIL
Thurs., Oct. 3, 1968 — 8:00 p.m.
Morrill Auditorium

All interested persons—students, faculty, administrators, and others are invited to attend.

A public service of the Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Looking for an unusual gift?
Something for the man who has everything? or Something that will add real class to your bartending?
Look no further, here is the item that will fill the bill—

a jigger in either plain or polished pewter found at

BAKER-WINN JEWELERS
31 So. Pleasant St.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

LIMITED OFFER — I will photograph you free. Select the best shot and pay only $7.00 for 3 8x-10's. There's absolutely no obligation or pressure to buy. If you don't like what I get. That's my fault. Kent Bates—Photo Studio at the alley (over the Leather Shed) 256-8146. 10/2

Colorful prints various sizes, picture frames, reverse paintings on glass, art exhibitions of local artist. The "Y" Gallery, 755½ Chicopee St., Willimansett, Mass. 01003. Open 12-4 daily, 6-9 eves. Sat. all day. 10/2

Use ADDRESS LABELS and save a pain in the neck! Just lick on a label for your letters and possessions. Send name, address, and only 75c to: College Stickers, P.O. Box 829, Amherst, Mass. 01002 10/2

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware. Tu-Fri. 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412 10/7 0169, 33 Phillips St.

HELP WANTED

Banjo player experienced in Gay 90's Sing-Alongs, Dixieland, Ragtime. Call 544-6722 eve's. 10/3

College students earn $60 a week for 3 eves and Sat. Scholarship grants avail. Call 584-7467 10/4

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

Rambler station wagon, 1965, 34000 miles by original owner, automatic transmission, excellent condition, new tires plus snow tires, radio & heater; $995. Call 584-1497 9/30

Must sell 1965 MG 110 4 doors sports sedan, 4 cylinder, 4-speed, radio, back up lites, extrasl 30 plus M.P.G. dark green, excellent condition, 35,700 miles. Best offer. Call 549-1318

'61 Chevy convertible in good shape. Best offer, call 256-8255 between 6:30-8:30 p.m. 10/2

'61 Rambler clean and operating. But needs many repairs, some major. Phone AL 3-5007, 6-8 p.m., for details. 10/2

'57 Ford—Very good condition new tires (not retreads), new ball joints recently installed, engine and transmission in excellent condition. Carburetor recently rebuilt. Engine timed and tuned ready to drive—even muffler and tailpipe only 4 mos. old—A good buy for only $250.00. Call evenings 549-0939. 10/3

Vespa 125 cc. motor scooter for sale. Excellent running condition. Two helmets included. Must sell — going in service. Only $99. Contact Bill, 549-10/2

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Thirty-Four Year Old Draft Protestor Sues For Recovery Of Exemption Status

WASHINGTON (CPS) — Attempts by Selective Service to draft protestors against the Vietnam war and the draft system have now involved a 34-year-old Baltimore man in a suit to recover his exempt status.

Arthur I. Waskow, a teaching fellow at Washington's Institute for Policy Studies and a prominent opponent of the war, was turned down last week on an appeal to his Baltimore draft to revoke his reclassification to 1-A delinquent status. Delinquent classification can speed up induction into the armed services. Waskow was one of ten men, including Dr. Benjamin Spock and Yale University Chaplain William Sloane Coffin, who last Oct. 20 gave Justice Department officials a briefcase containing the draft cards of 357 Vietnam delinquent war protesters. He was notified in February that he had been reclassified 1-A, even though he is 34 (and in three weeks will be too old), married and the father of two children and has a heart condition that gave him a 4-F deferment.

The Baltimore board justified its action on the basis of a controversial memorandum to local boards from Lt. Gen. (Ret.) Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service System, on October 24, four days after last fall's protest and the March on the Pentagon by thousands of demonstrators. The memorandum said participation in anti-war activity is grounds for reclassification.

The Hershey memo was later "interpreted" by Justice Department officials as not binding, but merely an expression of Hershey's personal opinion, after the letter was attacked as unconstitutional and contrary to the Selective Service Act's procedural protections.

The Justice Department has since revised its views, now admitting that reclassification for protest activities may be unconstitutional, and recently opposed such reclassification in the case of James J. Oesterecih, now before the Supreme Court. A Justice Department brief filed with the high court in that case says that while the October 24 directive may have been a statement of personal opinion, it "in effect did invite boards to utilize delinquency reclassification in a punitive fashion," a use it called inconsistent with the Selective Service Act and the Constitution."

Waskow called the reclassification "an extralegal and unconstitutional punishment for resisting the American war in Vietnam." At his Friday hearing, he not only protested his reclassification, but asked his board to resign their posts.

At the beginning of the session, Waskow asked that the normally closed hearing be open to the press and other observers. When he was refused and the room was cleared, he objected that closing the hearings is for the protection of the draft registrant, but that here the board, not the registrant, was closing the hearing.

Later Waskow told reporters, the board had told him he could be reclassified 4-F "if I agreed to take back my draft card and promise never to do it again." He refused.

He says he will appeal the decision to a five-man State of Maryland appeal board, and from there to a national presidential board if necessary. If those appeals fail, he says he will take the case to court.

An unanswered question in the case is whether the board would actually try to induct Waskow if they succeed in reclassifying him. He has said that under no conditions would he participate in the Vietnam War." and so would refuse induction.

At the Institute, a radical "think-tank," speculation is gloomy. "I think they may try to draft him," said a young man who works at IPS and is a conscientious objector, "because the government wants him in jail."

Northampton State Hospital Asks For Student Volunteers

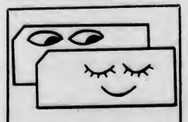
The Northampton volunteers are looking for 52 students interested in helping at the state hospital.

With the Northampton volunteers students have an opportunity for social action rather than flamboyant demagoguery. Each student is required to give two hours of his time with the patients at Northampton hospital. The students' visits are both pleasant and therapeutic.

No special skills are necessary. The student is free to develop his own program in line with his talents and his patient's interests.

Students interested in this worthy cause are asked to come to the Student Union lobby Thursday evening, October 3, at 6:30. Transportation to the hospital is provided. Each week buses will leave on Wednesday at 6:30. For further information call Walter Mullin; 6-8975.

United States Behind In Race Warns The Space Administration



CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Jams E. Webb, administrator for the Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Monday that the United States is no longer pursuing "it's goal of pre-eminence in space" as a result of budgetary cutbacks.

Webb delivered the first in a fall series of John Diebold lectures at the Harvard Business School.

The Soviet Union is "stepping up its effort at the same time that we are curtailing our own", Webb said.

"I do not find a decline in public support for the space program. Rather, many fear we are in a period in which we are focusing on other serious needs and problems." Webb said.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

DATAPAIR

Conservation Needed In Caribbean Seen In UMass Professor's Book

A regional conservation program in the Caribbean is urgently needed, according to a new book by University of Massachusetts professor Carl A. Carlozzi and his wife, Alice A. Carlozzi.

The authors maintain that little remains of the unique natural features and records of aboriginal and early European settlement in the area, and what does remain is vulnerable to destruction in the name of economic advancement.

In "Conservation and Caribbean Regional Progress" published by the Antioch Press, Dr. and Mrs. Carlozzi present a partial inventory of the natural and historic resources of the Lesser Antilles.

The islands of the Caribbean are rich in human and geographic history, natural beauty and recreational opportunities. Yet, according to the book, years of neglect have eroded and depleted their social, economic and natural resources, until now many of their most alluring attractions are threatened with extinction.

Following a discussion of the historical, social and economic conditions of the islands the authors list the sites most worthy of protection, reclamation or development and note what now is being done and what can be done to foster a continuing program of conservation in the region. They propose the development of parks, reserves, historic monuments and recreational areas on both national and international bases and describe the necessary machinery and agencies to accomplish such programs.

Dr. Carlozzi is associate professor of resource planning in the department of forestry and wildlife management and the department of landscape architecture at the University. He is also senior research associate in the Caribbean Research Institute and has been a consultant on conservation and recreation not only throughout the Caribbean but in New York and the New England states. Mrs. Carlozzi studied at Denison University, Kent State University and the University of Massachusetts.

VA to Release Findings on Hearing Aids

WASHINGTON (A P) — The Veterans Administration said Thursday it will be free under new contracts to make public the findings of tests made with hearing aids to evaluate their use by veterans.

For some time the VA has had arrangements with the Bureau of Standards to test hearing aids and provide data on quality and suitability. The manufacturers provided the hearing aids free with an agreement that test results would not be given to anyone outside the federal government.

Under the old and new arrangement the firms cannot use the findings in their advertising to indicate VA endorsement.

Academic Programs Established By College of Arts and Sciences

Dean I. Moyer Hunsberger recently announced the establishment of three new academic programs within the College of Arts and Sciences. He said that the new programs should be considered as analogous to the departments, and the chairmen will have the status of department heads. All three programs include courses at both the undergraduate and graduate level, and graduate degrees may be earned in Comparative Literature and Linguistics. The rosters of these programs are listed below.

Asian Studies Program
Chairman (Acting): Prof. T. O. Wilkinson
Kaoru Ohta, Lecturer (part time)

Comparative Literature Program
Chairman: Prof. Wolfgang Bernard Fleischmann
Don E. Levine, Instructor
C. William Mosblus, Instructor
Henry A. Schroeder, Jr., Asst. Prof.

Linguistics Program
Chairman: Assoc. Prof. Peter H. Salus
Richard M. Demers, Asst. Prof.

Johnson Invokes Taft-Hartley Law In Dock Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson invoked the Taft-Hartley law to head off a longshoremen's strike scheduled to begin at Atlantic and Gulf ports at midnight yesterday .

SALESMEN WANTED
FOR
Daily Collegian Advertising
ON COMMISSION BASIS
APPLY IN PERSON — MONDAY, OCT. 7, 12:30-2:00 P.M.

"Take your place in the leadership of the campus community"

Area East
Judiciary Selections

October 1
7:00 p.m., Hampden Room, Student Union

Every student on the campus who fails to vote in the Senate elections is throwing away his right to have a responsive Student Government. The administration will then start making decisions for us.

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS
OCTOBER 3, 6-9 P.M.
IN RESIDENCE HALLS
COMMUTERS, FRATERNITIES, SORORITIES } 9-5:30 in Student Union Lobby

YOU MISSED NOMINATION PAPERS
BUT IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO START
A WRITE-IN CAMPAIGN.

STUDENT POWER!
Question your candidates, if dissatisfied, run yourself.
STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE

Laugh, America!

The present thought of the vast majority of civilians stranded in the embargoed state of Biafra is death. One-half pound of food per week is not conducive to the sustenance of life. It results in protein deficiency, contorting the body, warping the mind and lowering the level of existence to sub-human. The pride of the Ibo tribe which once strongly forbade begging of any sort is mangled. The primeval urge to survive overshadows all else. Hunger is not a threat here—its blackness is seen in the distended bellies of the children, in the abject expression of the mother whose child cries for the nourishment she cannot give, whose child loses quickly the energy even to cry, whose child perishes before her eyes with the swollen belly, stick-like limbs and red-tinged hair of starvation.

And when hunger fails to take one more child's emaciated body, the flames of Russian-supplied ground-to-ground rockets claim it. The massive attacks on villages and marketplaces cannot be stopped by rifle bullets. A bullet is useless in a strafe onslaught.

But the war continues. The Biafrans have sworn to fight until the genocide has obliterated all—soldier and civilian alike. They will fight to the last man-or woman-or child, so high are the stakes. What is worth enough to allow a mother to see her children perish, one by one, and still desire to struggle for life? Freedom. From persecution. From fear of raging mobs and of world-supported extermination.

Extermination—Genocide—conjures up scenes of gas chambers, concentration camps and pine-scent soap made from the fats of human beings, yes? There is no gas here, no organized "collection" of an "inferior race". No, just the bombing of hospitals, strafing of marketplaces, burning of villages, and first rape, then slaughter, this last scene in a church. And here there is an awful hunger—in the eyes of those yet still clinging to their last thread of life—and in the putrefied eyesockets of those human beings who starve to death and rot at the rate of 6000 per day.

So laugh, America. Sit back in your padded lounge chair, glass of beer in hand, eyes glued to a flickering tube —sit back and laugh. Because it is your country too that is supporting this human misery and degradation. Laugh, America, land of foolish sheep.

KAL

Put your girl to sleep sometime with rats instead of nursery rhymes – with hunger and your children by her side.

And wonder if you'll share with them something else that must be fed or fear may lie beside you, or may sleep down the hall.

And if I begin to teach you how to give a damn about your fellow man . . .

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert '69

Issue Editor: Pat Flanagan, Staff: Rose Miller, Sports: Steve Ross, Editorial Editor: Keren Aude, Staff: Katherine Lucey, Keith Bromery, Kathy Biggone.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"And I'm Staying Right Here To Guard It For You"

INSIDE REPORT:

Hubert's Best Southern State

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

RALEIGH, N.C. — At a private breakfast in Washington a few weeks ago, all eight North Carolina Democrats in the House of Representatives polled themselves on the current strength of George Wallace in their own districts.

After a brief discussion by each, the finding was unanimous: third-party Presidential candidate George Wallace would carry all eight districts.

If this were the Deep South, that verdict would scarcely surprise. But North Carolina, of all the Southern states, should be the exception—the one dike against the Wallace tide now surging from the Gulf of Mexico to the Mason-Dixon line. Unfortunately for Humphrey, it isn't. The objective evidence at this early stage in the campaign shows Wallace still gaining and Richard M. Nixon strong. Consequently, Democratic office-holders and candidates are in the throes of an extraordinary effort to put Hubert Humphrey in purgatory and keep him there until Nov. 5.

The effort to ostracize candidate Humphrey really began a month ago when Gov. Dan Moore agreed to run as favorite-son Presidential candidate to give Robert Scott, Democratic nominee for Governor, a place to hide on the Presidential rollcall at Chicago. Scott never did switch his vote from Moore to the Vice President (and, partially as a result of this foresight, he now holds a slight lead over Republican conservative Rep. James Gardner, who has mounted the most resourceful and best financed Republican campaign for the state house in this century).

At least one of the Democratic Congressional incumbents, Rep. Walter Jones whose 1st District is in the heart of the Wallace country in eastern North Carolina, has gone to extreme lengths to disassociate himself from his party's Presidential ticket. Jones let it be known last week that, if the election is thrown into the House of Representatives where each state would have one vote, he will cast his vote for the winner in his district—almost certain to be Wallace.

For Jones, that is no light threat, because if the Republicans pick up two seats in the election, shifting the balance from the present 8-3 to 6-5, Jones would nullify North Carolina's vote in the unlikely event the election is decided in the House.

Gardner's campaign against Scott is typical of the political game being played here. He is relying heavily on Scott's fear of being tainted with Humphreyism. Television spots now being filmed for saturation coverage next month will feature Humphrey's militant civil rights speech at the 1948 convention back-to-back with Scott's 1964 campaign for the Democratic ticket. Scott was then national chairman of Rural Americans For Johnson-Humphrey Committee.

The only offset to this blatant ostracism of Humphrey is a threat that surfaced here last week by a few Negro leaders to switch their support from Scott to Gardner unless Scott and the regular Democrats radically change course and publicly support Humphrey.

But this threat, no matter how nobly based, is preposterous. At a closed-door state campaign organization meeting here Thursday, with top Negro Democrats present, a working arragement was reached: Negro leaders said they would limit their public campaign to the Humphrey-Muskie ticket but would not actively work against Scott.

But the Negro vote, which is less than one-fifth of the total, is a slender reed indeed for Humphrey to lean on. And to make matters even worse, the small but energetic McCarthy organization here is sitting on its hands, waiting for Sen. Eugene McCarthy (now in Europe) to make up his mind about backing Humphrey.

In precinct committee contests last spring, McCarthy men captured better than one-third of the precincts in populous Mecklenburg County (Charlotte) and made deep inroads in Orange County (Durham) and here in Wake County.

"These kids ought to be our shock troops," a top party official told us. "They're what we need for canvassing, doorbell ringing, and all the nuts and bolts, but they're not lifting a finger."

Accordingly, even though Humphrey has a better chance here than in the rest of the South, he's already a distinct underdog in a state that stayed Democratic against Barry Goldwater. It will take events in Washington, such as a change in the President's war policy or an easing of school integration to change the odds. Events here are out of Humphrey's control.

Campus Comment

Warrior of Hollow Happiness Does Not Exist

To the editor:

It is clear to me that no man of reason or integrity can with good conscience vote for either of our two major presidential candidates.

It is also clear to me that no man of reason or integrity can with good conscience vote for the third party or its leaders, Lyndon Baines Humphrey and Mao Daley Hubert.

After a good deal of thought about the dilemma which faces every thinking American, after a careful rereading of the Tractatus logico-philosophicus, I have come to three conclusions which express deep truth with faultless logic:

0.1. Woruber man nicht schweigen kann, davon muss man sprechen.

0.2. Each of the three major presidential candidates is worse than the other two.

0.3. Hubert Horatio Humphrey does not exist. Alas for that warrior of hollow happiness!

Now, having had some fun, let me try to be serious. I am offering the following as a collection of tentative thoughts and tentative proposals.

1.1. I am assumirg that anyone who agrees with me even in part will automatically cross off the ballot Mr. Nixon, Mr Wallace and their sorry side kicks.

1.2. I propose that we vote in November, that we cross Mr. Humphrey off the ticket too, and that we write in a Eugene McCarthy-John Lindsay ticket. Any variation of this would do. Each of us can think of several honest men who are sane and sensitive, men such as Nelson Rockefeller, Edward Kennedy, Mansfield, Fulbright, Ralph Yarborough, or women such as Mrs. King.

1.3. I propose that we not organize, but that we simply call ourselves Decent Democrats or Decent Republicans.

1.31. I believe that this is a better and more precise description of our stand than the terms "Dissident Democrat" or "Dissident Republican", which carry a slight connotation of minority feeling. I believe that we are in fact the majority.

1.4. If we are asked whether we are not wasting our vote, let us reply that any vote for Mr. Humphrey is equally wasted.

1.41. Mr. Humphrey was not nominated by the American people in the Democratic Party. He was nominated by political bosses and political hacks. And there are not enough Daleys and Meanies and Connallys and Johnsons and Frank Erwins to give him any kind of respectable vote in November. (I even doubt that all five of them will vote for him).

I believe that Mr. Humphrey will suffer the most crushing defeat of any democratic presidential candidate in this century.

1.5. If we are told that Mr. Humphrey is the lesser of the evils, let us reply that he is not.

1.51. Try this experiment. Sit in a dark room for thirty minutes, relaxed and with your eyes closed. Then think about each of the three presidential candidates one at a time. I think you will agree with me that statement 0.2 is not a joke but a sad truth.

1.52. A Humphrey presidency would be a continuation of the most disastrous administration our country has suffered since George III. It would be a continuation of Mr. Johnson's brutal war. It would be an escalation of Mr. Daley's brutal storm troop tactics.

1.6. Many of us voted for Mr. Johnson and Mr. Humphrey four years ago. Many of us feel that we are more ashamed of this than of anything else we have done in our lives. I know that I feel this.

1.61. I believe that the country would have fared better with Mr. Goldwater, for the simple reason that the democratic party is our majority party, and that Congress would have been more effective in opposing and stopping Mr. Goldwater than Mr. Johnson.

1.62. For the same reason I believe that a Nixon presidency presents fewer risks than a Humphrey presidency.

1.7. Mr. Humphrey has a character fault which is slight but which all the same should disqualify him from seeking the presidency. He lacks courage.

1.71. Not only does he let himself be bullied by one of the half dozen greatest bullies and egos of this century (and we have had some lulus, Hitler and Stalin and Mao), he also lets himself be bullied by two-bit bullies and two-bit politicians.

1.72. Any Vice-President of the United States with an ounce of courage would have stepped into the Chicago streets and would have used his authority to stop the blood and the beating.

2.1. Mr. Humphrey may have some decency. If so, I wish to propose to him the following action.

2.2. Within two weeks Mr. Humphrey should go on national television and tell the nation that he now realizes he has been nominated by the professional politicians, that the people do not want him and will not vote for him, that he is resigning as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency, that he is reconvening the National Democratic Convention to nominate another presidential candidate, and that he will throw his support to Mr. McCarthy or Mr. Kennedy or Mr. Mansfield, to someone we can vote for and live with.

2.21. I would not be surprised by such an act of magnanimity. But neither do I have much hope.

Let me finally say that, to the best of my knowledge, the University of Texas does not necessarily endorse all the opinions expressed above, that, in particular, I have reasons to doubt that the University of Texas has ever officially stated or ever officially believed the logical consistency of "Woruber man nicht schweigen kann, davon muss man sprechen" and that nothing I have proposed is to be construed as urging the University of Texas to cast its institutional vote in any specific manner in the November presidential elections. To put it simpler, I am speaking for myself.

Sincerely yours.,
Alfred Schild
Ashbel Smith Professor of Physics
Director, Center for Relativity Theory
The University of Texas;
Decent Democrat for McCarthy-Lindsay

Capital Quotes by The Associated Press

"It would appear that the consumer price index will continue to go up," Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics in announcing a rise of three-tenths of 1 per cent for August.

"I expect President Johnson is going to be as active as President in the remaining weeks as he has in the past," press secretary George Christian said.

"The selection of two political cronies for these positions degrades the court, destroys respect for your judicial system and creates additional lack of confidence among the people of this nation," Sen. Howard H. Baker, R—Tenn., during Senate debate on the Supreme Court nominations.

Capital Footnotes by The Associated Press

Everette MacIntyre took the oath for his second full seven-year term as a commissioner of the Federal Trade Commission Thursday, a stint which will extend his service with the regulatory agency to nearly 40 years.

The Index would like to announce that the 1968 yearbooks are available in the Index office in the Student Union. All students who have not received their books, may pick them up anytime. The Index office is located on the second floor balcony to the left of the RSO office.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Unto Themselves

To the editor:

"Do your own thing" regardless of imposing authority and its consequences was strongly suggested at the Day of Awareness. "Don't let them tell you who to kill. If you want to kill someone, get your own gun." It seemed apparent from these words that the speaker was condoning a singular responsibility, a responsibility to oneself. This disregard and disrespect for authority can't feasibly benefit the society, only the particular individual.

Now we are aware that people in Biafra are starving and that the people of the United States, Americans, are being called upon as a whole to help. Money is needed as well as time. The speaker is making it our responsibility to succor these starving masses.

But if we adhere to the above doctrine of "do you own thing", of what significance is Biafra to a group responsible only unto themselves?

This Day of Awareness has evinced only a lack of coherence among its participants.

Christine Force

UPPERCLASSMEN
Wonder What It's Like to be an Angel?
Come Find Out!
Angel Flight Rush
Oct. 1 — Colonial Lounge
Oct. 2, 3 — Dickinson Hall, 7-9 p.m.

Search For Boston Site

The city of Boston is the setting for what has become a three year argument over the site of the new $3,000,000 campus complex. The site selection committee has narrowed down the number of prospective sites to two—the North Station area and the site at Columbia Point in South Boston. However, a stalemate has been reached between the forces in support of the North Station site and those advocating Columbia Point.

Although the North Station site has better commuting facilities, the construction of the campus there would greatly affect the Boston Gardens. The Gardens would be either completely lost in time, or at the very least encircled by campus buildings. Over $1½ million dollars in taxes from the Gardens and other buildings on Causeway St. would be lost. The Columbia Point site offers more acreage for development and a savings of $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 in land damages and demolition costs.

Since it is clearly apparent to all involved, (including the Massachusetts General Hospital, the North Station Merchants Association, and the Boston Redevelopment Authority) that UMass Boston's new campus ought to be located at Columbia Point, there is no reason for further delay on the part of the Board of Trustees. When the Board meets in October, a final decision must be reached to enable the start of construction.

Conclusion

Comment: The Plight Of S. Vietnamese Students

by Tranh Van Dinh
College Press Service

In the aftermath of the Tet offensive, the Saigon government closed all schools and drafted the students to form the "Students Division for the protection of the Capital." The Saigon Student Union challenged the legality of the government measure and the usefulness of the Division. In a statement on June 16, the SSU charged that the formation of the Capital Division is unconstitutional, that it has led "to serious corruptions and bad misunderstanding in the public opinion" and asked the government to "use the students to help the refugees," to "disband the Division," and "to reopen the University."

The Capital Division has the duty "to guard atop buildings, make observations and sound alarm and can only open fire when attacked by the enemy." Soon after the Division was formed, Phan Tiet, a 21-year-old student at the Faculty of Science was wounded while on duty at the Ham Tu Quay in Cholon. This incident aroused the students' concern for the safety of their friends. Faced with the students' opposition, the government at first made a few concessions to gain time for repressions: the Student Division was not disbanded but was "put on a less active footing so that the students can devote more time for their year end examinations." The University of Saigon was reopened.

The students' opposition to the "Capital Division" was part of opposition to the mobilization decree signed by President Nguyen Van Thieu on June 19. This decree called for the drafting of 269,000 men into the regular army this year and for the compulsory participation of some 300,000 more in the "people's self defense units." The draft involves in theory all men from 16 to 50. Those who can afford to bribe the authorities can still stay out. Some desperate young people have tried to flee the country. On September 1, the Hong Kong port authorities discovered three Vietnamese hiding aboard the SS Mandor that docked in the harbor. The men aged 18, 23 and 35, confessed they tried to avoid the draft.

After the condemnation of Nguyen Truong Con, the students were worried about the fate of the Chairman of the Saigon Student Union, Mr. Nguyen Dang Trung. In July, Nguyen Dang Trung was quoted in the press as having said that "we students are determined not to accept a war when this war is burning out the future of the people, when this war is being pushed on through foreign pressures." In July, he was invited by the Association of U.S. Student College Presidents and Editors to make a lecture tour in the U.S. in August, summoned by the police, Nguyen Dang Trung did not appear. He was condemned to 10 years at hard labor in absentia.

One of Trung's friends, Ho Huu Nhat, a former member of the Executive Board of the SSU, is now directing in cladestinity the "Saigon Students Committee for Peace," an organization affiliated with the NLF. Several students have been "kidnapped" or met with mysterious death.

Vietnamese students abroad are being subjected to repressions and harrassment by the Minister of Education, the 44-year-old U. S. trained dentist turned politician, Dr. Nguyen Van Tho. On July 20, Tho announced that he "has decided to terminate money exchange allocated and to recall oveseas students whose study term expires or who have participated in pro-communist activities abroad." The students will be tried in absentia before a martial court and may be deprived of citizens' rights. Several students studying in the U.S. who have voiced their protest against the war have received such notifications from the South Vietnamese Embassy in Washington, D.C.

Hundreds of students in Europe and France have been the targets of these repressive measures, even monks and nuns. But they are not impressed. Practically all the students in Europe joined the pro-Hanoi "United Association of Overseas Vietnamese." Some belong to "Buddhist Student Association" of the United Buddhist Church of Vietnam.

Such opposition to war, mobilization and the U.S. makes President Thieu's intention of taking on a heavier share of the war effort just another hope.

AREA WEST
JUDICIAL SELECTIONS
Hampden Commons (# 7) 7:00 P.M.
Tuesday, October 1, 1968
openings for
2 seniors
3 juniors
composed of
1 or 2 men
3 or 4 women
Do Something!

at NYU:

Orienting The Frosh To The Ebony Tower

by Joe Pilati

The following article was written by Joe Pilati, former editor of the Boston University News. Joe followed Ray Mungo in this controversial position and is now writing for the Village Voice, in which this article appeared on Sept. 26.

When I started college four years ago, at a sprawling concrete multiversity in Boston not unlike New York University, it was still a time for polysyllabic platitudes from presidents and deans, for beanie-wearing by those freshmen still uninitiated into semi-hip sophistication, and for universal acceptance of the assumption that The Campus Is The World, and You'd Better Believe It.

Recently at NYU, it wasn't like that at all. Presiding over one of several meetings with the class of '72 was John F. Hatchett, director of the new Martin Luther King, Jr., Afro-American Student Center and the central figure in a volcanic controversy that erupted on June 24, when the black educator was appointed, and hasn't stopped spurting since.

Hatchett, scorned by the New York Post and other bastions of the "liberal community" as an "anti-Semitic" threat, strode purposefully into the Elsner and Lubin Auditorium of the Leob Student Center (one of the city's finest examples of Gas Station Gothic) to a standing ovation from two dozen members of the Black Allied Student Association and bewildered gazes from the remainder of the audience--200 or so fresh-faced Caucasian frosh who looked as though Columbia meant to them a medium-sized city in Missouri.

"Welcome to NYU"

Hatchett's introductory remarks were as perfunctory as they could be: "Welcome to NYU, and more especially, welcome to my black brothers and sisters." Then he swung immediately into his real message, and the freshman-beanie mentality was consigned forever to the ash-heap of history.

"Black is beautiful. This is not a cliche, not some fantasy, but a statement of affirmative fact. This is the year for black," he declared. His audience was wondering, he suggested, "who is this man who has been so misrepresented." He quoted Camus to the effect that "90 per cent of the world's press lies," and I'm sure he had the New York Times and the New York Post in mind.

"There is no controversy" surrounding his appointment, Hatchett insisted, "except in the minds of those who perpetuate it."

Addressing those in the audience who "will be liberal arts graduates" and will "go into teaching," Hatchett said he hoped "your radicalism will not be a fad, not a fancy. Revolution consists of much more than that."

The school strike, he argued, was "called by a man so drunk for power, so racist-motivated, that he doesn't give a damn about the lives of millions of children who somehow want, but aren't getting, anything approaching an education."

United Federation of Teachers President Albert Shanker and his union are "out to break any meaningful community control," Hatchett said. "This is a racist society, and New York is one of the most racist cities in the country. And I say to the university that there's a hell of a lot to be done, and you're just making the dimmest beginnings."

The "miracle," he added, is that "the schools in Ocean Hill-Brownsville are running. This is a victory for the black and Puerto Rican community. You can put away your little pipe dream that we're going to get rid of white teachers when community control comes."

A Note of Reassurance

Hatchett did have one note of reassurance for the NYU administration: "As long as they're fair and just to me, I'll be fair and just to them. But I've had my toes stepped on often enough, and I've had my behind kicked often enough, so that the next time someone steps on my toes or kicks my behind, he'll lose his foot.

"If I'm beholden to anyone,it's to the black students here," he asserted, but here too there was a critical footnote: "I've seen too many natural hairdos housing processed minds. Before black students can engage in a real dialogue, we must first understand ourselves."

By now, with the restless audience exhibiting varying degrees of apoplexy and approval, Hatchett was ready for questions. The first question, from a black student, dealt with academic freedom. The student said he intended to "publish a lot of research," and "a lot of minority groups may not like what comes out of this research." He sought Hatchett's opinion on the likelihood of publishing his findings, in view of the "big stink raised, particularly in the Jewish Press."

"A Nebulous Concept"

Hatchett's response was even and temperate, if somewhat beside the point. He said the concept of academic freedom is "a somewhat nebulous one, in the minds of many reserved for only tenured faculty at a university. . . . I find this an unsatisfactory state of affairs." Referring to his own case, he said that those who worked on the settlement which upheld his right to head the Afro-American Center "demonstrated the most vital thing—unity. They had enough sense to realize the real injustice in a country where justice is a mockery. The fundamental factor was the impetus given by black students, who were able to persuade a number of white student leaders to also uphold the idea of justice."

A white faculty member disputed Hatchett's view of academic freedom "for tenured faculty only," and swung into an analysis of the concept "from the German." He seemed to be patting himself on the back for defying the FBI at some point in his career, and then got around to his question: "We, all of us, have a great number of responsibilities to students, colleagues, to the university as a whole, and that includes the administration." Why, then, did Hatchett say his first responsibility was to black students?

Hatchett replied calmly that the King Center was "set up specifically for minority group students," and that his definition of "black" also included Puerto Rican, American Indian, African, Afro-Indian and other non-white students. "My major responsibility is to black students, but this doesn't preclude my relating to all students, faculty members, and administrators."

A student wanted to know why "an intelligent man like you, in your condemnation of the school system, singled out Jews as persecutors of New York City students."

Charges Censorship

"Even though I'm entitled to First Amendment privileges, I'm under a modified form of censorship," Hackett responded. "I can only work in terms of black and white, so therefore I can't answer the question."

But where candor fails, circumlocution might be in order, so Hatchett continued: "You have to take a good look at the school system. Read some of the vital statistics, and you will discover that the system is pretty rotten. What has happened is that these groups that persist in their attacks do so for reasons other than they are uttering. Do you really think they're after little old me?" he asked, with a winning grin. "They're after money, because some of them head up professional fund-raising operations. They're after reputations. They're after everything except the truth, and if truth stood up and slapped them in the face, they wouldn't recognize it."

The same questioner pressed on: "Why did you speak as if it was just Jews who were doing the persecuting?"

Not Stupid — Ignorant

With a look of boundless patience, Hatchett told his questioner that "your problem is not simply one of being young, but of being ignorant. Not stupid, mind you, but ignorant. I'd suggest that if you have made reference to something I have written, go back and read it, put your dictionary beside you, and read it again."

All of the vague references to "something" Hatchett wrote were of course allusions to his article entitled "The Phenomenon of the Anti-Black Jews and the Black Anglo-Saxons: A Study in Educational Perfidy," published last winter in the Afro-American Teachers' Forum. The article was roundly condemned as "black Nazism" in a joint statement by the American Jewish Congress, the Catholic Interracial Council, and the Protestant Council of New York. However, officials of the last two groups named have subsequently declared that Hatchett is not, in their opinion, an anti-Semite, however loosely worded his article might has been.

The same faculty member who had earlier argued with Hatchett about academic freedom wanted to know where he could get a copy of the elusive article. A black student jumped to his feet and announced that copies were "selling for $1000 each, with proceeds to the Martin Luther King scholarship fund." The white teacher assumed a wounded expression, announced that "as a faculty member here, I don't have that kind of money," and besides, he had "already given $100 to the fund."

Hatchett said he was "constantly amazed that people are asking for an article that's been bootlegged all over the city. It's being run off right here across the campus," he said, pointing dramatically toward the auditorium exits. "The only problem, dammit, is that people are not reading it. You can try to find a bootleg copy, or you can get it for $2.50 from the Afro-American Teachers' Association."

It was only when a black coed asked him to describe his plans for the King Center that Hatchett displayed any enthusiasm for his orientation chores. He said the center is "off to a very slow start, partly because of the controversy, partly because of a small budget. We are going to succeed because students on this campus—mostly black but some whites too—are aware that there is nothing wrong with having a specialized center for minority group students. I was very lucky to acquire a good staff, and a lot of students worked day and night with the budget. I'm not an administrator, I'm a teacher. I'm the poorest administrator around here."

Physically Impossible

He said he regretted that it would be "physically impossible for me to counsel nearly 2000 black and minority group students," but that he planned to involve himself in a series of seminars "which must, unfortunately, be limited for the most part to minority group students. The Center is open to everyone, but you must realize the space limitations."

A group of prominent NYU alumni met last Friday to urge university President James Hester to revoke Hatchett's appointment, according to a reporter from the NYU campus paper, the Washington Square Journal, who was not permitted to enter the midtown alumni club but spoke to members outside. It appears, then, that the Hatchett hassle is far from over. Hatchett says his primary aim at this point is to take care of business at the Center, but whether he will be able to do so in his ebony-tower storm center is still problematical.

If the orientation meeting made anything clear, it certainly demonstrated that Hatchett can create an amazing rapport with students of every hue. More than three quarters of the predominatly white audience rose to applaud him at the end of the question period.

Perhaps, if Hatchett is lucky, the white community will come around to the point of view expressed last Friday afternoon by Reverend Howard Moody of Judson Memorial Church, a member of the Protestant Council which had a hand in the condemnation of Hatchett's article. "We can take Hatchett to task for generalizing from specifics," Moody said, "but we all do that." Bad as I thought his article was, from the standpoint of judiciousness, there is more anti-Semitism coming from the pulpits of Protestant churches every Sunday than there was in that article."

No More Gentle Words

Moody said it is crucial to deal with Hatchett's article "just as we should deal with riots in the cities," by asking ourselves "if we understand that which gives rise to such human expression."

Gentle words may be no longer adequate. The Hatchetts and the Cleavers, with surnames that fairly decapitate hypocrisy in the "liberal" urban metropolis, will not be suppressed.

Remembering Chicago

Marchers and HUAC

CHICAGO (CPS) -- The Democratic Convention's long nights of violence are one month gone this week, but they are not forgotten.

Students, professors, clergymen and members of the Chicago community plan to commemorate the "anniversary" Saturday (Sept. 28) with a march and rally in downtown Chicago.

The organizers of the march, representing Citizens for a Free Chicago (an ad hoc group of university people, housewives, civic leaders and clergymen), the Chicago Peace Council, the Mobilization, former supporters of Eugene McCarthy and other diverse student and peace groups, expect attendance by 10,000 people.

The march will assemble at the north end of Chicago's Loop walk down Michigan Avenue to the Hilton Hotel (the scene of greatest violence during the convention) and rally in Grant Park across the street.

The organizers applied to the city for a permit for the march, but had received no response four days before the scheduled demonstration. According to Chicago University professor of anthropology Robert Levine, the group plans to "file suit in Federal court" if they are not granted a permit."

The House Un-American Activities Committee has not forgotten Chicago either. They have scheduled an investigation of the demonstration and the violence, to begin October 1 in Washington, and have subpoenaed Yippie founders Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman and Mobilization leaders Tom Hayden and Dave Dellinger to appear.

Rubin, who was served with his subpoena in the center of a group of newsmen and students on the University of California Berkeley campus, burned it, but said he would go to Washington anyway "to collect the expense money HUAC will pay and use it for the movement." He called the committee members "a bunch of Southern racists with nothing better to do" than persecute students and young people.

Rubin last appeared before HUAC in 1966, in connection with the Berkeley Vietnam Days protest. On that occasion he wore a revolutionary war uniform to the hearing; this time he says he may go nude "to show I have nothing to hide."

krackerjacks

Coming Soon to Amherst

next to the Carriage Motor Inn
201 N. Pleasant St.

LATEST FASHION
CLOTHING

THE BROTHERHOOD OF

Phi Sigma Delta

cordially invites all upperclassmen to an

INFORMAL SMOKER

Tues., Oct. 1 — 9:00 p.m.

at our chapter house
367 North Pleasant St.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Work with Children

A Chance for Student Involvement

A program aimed at creating an opportunity for student involvement with local disadvantaged children on a one-to-one basis has been initiated by Susan Finneran, class of '69.

Similar to a big brother or big sister program, it requires that the college student devote approximately one day a month to a disadvantaged child, taking him to a play, a museum, or an historical site with the general purpose of teaching him what life is "really like."

Miss Finneran said: "Both will learn something from each other . . . we have a warped view of what it's really like."

Not meant for the child "to find the student's position enviable," the program is designed "to expose him to the cultural background other kids take for granted. . . . a zoo isn't a zoo unless you've been there."

Miss Finneran said she also plans to contact University groups to attempt to instigate free programs in local underdeveloped areas which would be comparable to those sponsored by Summerthing in Boston, and to bring disadvantaged children to campus for special events.

Dr. Noffsinger, Assistant Dean of Students, has stated that he is willing to help in any way he can. In addition, Miss Finneran is enlisting the aid of the class executive councils, the Interfraternity and Panhellenic councils, and the Martin Luther King, Jr. Society, and she plans to begin the program by Thanksgiving.

Volunteers may contact Susan Finneran at 315 Lincoln Ave. or phone 256-6868.

Hanoi Denies 'Withdrawal' Talk

PARIS (UPI) — The vice president of South Vietnam's Senate predicted yesterday that Hanoi will stage a major military withdrawal, allowing President Johnson to call a bombing halt of North Vietnam within 36 days. But Hanoi's official spokesman denied it.

Nguyen Gia Hien said war-weariness and demoralization will compel the North Vietnamese to begin scaling down the war very soon, without announcing or acknowledging such action. In response, the Johnson administration will call off bombing attacks on the North, said Hien.

But in another news conference, Hanoi spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le insisted four times that his government still demands a total unconditional halt of all American military operations against the North as the essential prelude to real peacemaking.

Dean Rusk and U Thant Open High Level Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk opened a series of high level meetings yesterday with a private talk with Secretary-General U Thant on the Middle East and other pressing international issues.

While the immediate spotlight was on the threat of a new war between Israel and the Arabs, the Rusk-Thant talk of more than an hour covered Thant's proposal for a Big Four summit meeting, Vietnam and Czechoslovakia.

Rusk had an afternoon appointment with Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, and will see Arab leaders and foreign ministers, from almost 80 countries in the next 10 days.

They are gathering in New York for the 23rd session of the General Assembly, which opens general policy debate Wednesday.

In advance of the Eban-Rusk meeting Israeli sources discounted reports that Eban had in his pocket precise proposals for a Middle East peace settlement.

These informants made clear that Israel was placing first emphasis on safeguarding its frontiers in any settlement with the Arabs. Eban will deal with general principles rather than go into territorial matters when he addresses the assembly on Oct. 8, the sources added.

The U.S. position was that it still hoped that Gunnar Jarring, Thant's Swedish special envoy, would work out a plan along the lines set out in a Security Council resolution last November.

The United States has reacted negatively to Thant's proposal that Rusk, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, British Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and French Foreign Minister Michel Debre arrange for a Big Four meeting while in New York.

NOTICES

ANGEL FLIGHT
Angel Flight rush will be held tonight in the Colonial Lounge from 7-9 p.m. All Upperclasswm are invited.

NEWMAN CLUB
First in a Diocesan Series, "Road to Christian Maturity" is a lecture WHY FAITH by Fr. Dealies of Our Lady of the Elms on Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. in Social Hall. All interested persons invited.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB
Elections of Officers and a Coffee Hour will be held in the Colonial Lounge of the Student Union on Oct. 3, at 4:30.

STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY
All students wishing to organize S.D.S. please attend this important meeting, Wed., Oct. 2 at 8:30 in the Worcester Room of the Student Union.

AMATEUR RADIO ASSOCIATION
An important meeting of the Radio Assn. including elections will be held in the radio room in the computer center at 7 p.m., tonight. All are invited.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB
A meeting of new and old members will be held in the Student Union Ballroom on Oct. 2 at 7:00 p.m.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB
A general meeting of all members to discuss the ground school and flying contest will be held in the School of Business Administration, RM 4 on Oct. 3, at 7:30 p.m.

GAMMA SIGMA SIGMA
Executive Board meeting at 4:00 p.m. in the Nantucket-Norfolk Room of the Student Union.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY
Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of the UMass Medical School will speak on the UMass Medical School and Admissions Policies. Membership will be taken, and plans will be discussed for the formation of a Student-Faculty Pre-Medical Committee. Everyone welcome-regardless of Class Year.

HEYMAKERS
Attention Squares! Henry returns for another Fun Night Wed., Oct. 2, at 7:30 in WOPE. We are looking forward to seeing all of you.

SKI CLUB
Officers for coming year will be elected and a talk on buying ski equipment will be given. The meeting will be held in Hasbrouck 20 on Monday, Oct. 7 at 8:00 p.m.

CLASS OF '70 LECTURE COMMITTEE
A planning meeting for all members of the committee will be held in the Hampden Room of the Student Union on Wed., Oct. 2, at 8:00 p.m.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB
See the "Parade of Morgans" in the Grinnel Area on Oct. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS
First meeting for discussion of the national election . . . student involvement, club elections. All students welcome.

PINNING
Diane L. Dik '69, Iota Gamma Upsilon to Robert Dale Potter '70, MacMurray College, Illinois.
Judith Erickson '71, Van Meter to Kenneth Horseman '71, Greenough.
Paula DeAngelo '70, Chi Omega to Michael Fanchuck '69, Phi Mu Delta.

ENGAGEMENT
Ebel Whitelesey '70, Chi Omega to James G. Brown '67, Bates.
Dorothy Comeu, Westfield State '69, to David Liukkonen '69.

MENC MEETING
A meeting will be held on Wed., Oct. 2 at 7:45 p.m. in Worcester of the Student Union.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Season Ticket Rate Reduced For Concerts

The UMass Concert Association has announced a revised subscription policy for its 1968-69 concert series in an effort to attract music lovers throughout the western Massachusetts area.

Season tickets for eight major concerts will be offered at a one-third reduction from the single ticket price and season subscribers will be assured choice seats for each concert. As in the past, UMass undergraduates are admitted without charge. Graduate students at UMass are given a special reduced rate.

The 1968-69 Concert Association series will begin Oct. 9 with a recital by the distinguished English guitarist-lutenist Julian Bream and will be followed by such attractions as the Roger Wagner Chorale; Phyllis Curtin, soprano; Ruggiero Ricci, violinist and the eminent Duo Rampal/Veyron LaCroix. In addition, there will be a recital by the brilliant Greek pianist Gina Bachauer, a concert by the Weiaberg Contemporary Chamber Ensemble and by the New York Brass Quintet.

All concerts will be evening performances and all but one will be held in the newly-renovated Bowker Auditorium. Information and tickets are available at the Student Union Ticket Office.

The Faculty Group on Peace and War has learned that the FBI has been questioning Students at Connecticut Universities and Colleges who were arrested recently in Chicago. The faculty group urges any UMass students who may be approached by an FBI agent to contact a lawyer immediately.

Essence de Chantilly
by Houbigant
Just one of the many fine scents that can be found
at
College Drug

DEAN FIELD'S "ON THE LINE"

Call in any questions about the University – parking, housing, the Commons, academic policy, anything at all!!!!
DIAL 5-2425 or 5-2876 TONIGHT!!!
(A WMUA Special Events Production – Air Time 9:30 on 91.1 fm.)

NOTEBOOKS
LOOSELEAF BINDERS
FILLER PAPER—Plain —Ruled
INDEX CARD—3 sizes Plain or Rules Colors—White PAPER CLIPS
RULERS
WATERPROOF SCHOOL BAGS
PENCILS
PENS—BIC Lindy Papermate Scheaffer Scripto
CIGARETTES
FILM & FLASHBULBS
TYPEWRITER PAPER 3 Brands
WRAPPING PAPER
LABEL IT, Label Maker
TELEPHONE Locks
ERASERS
SCRATCH PADS
PENCIL SHARPENERS
STAPLERS
ENVELOPES
WRITING TABLETS
MAGNETIC LETTER CLIPS
PASTE, CEMENT, GLUE
TYPEWRITER RIBBON
DESK BLOTTERS (3 sizes)
RUBBER BANDS
THUMB TACKS
MARKING PENS— Pantel Carter Scripto Flair
HIGHLIGHTERS
LIGHTERS
SCOTCH TAPE
MAGIC TAPE
MYSTIC TAPE (all colors)
CREPE PAPER & Streamers
PLAYING CARDS
GIFTS From 15c to $100.
HUMMEL FIGURES
CHARLOT BYJ ORIGINALS
BARRICINI Candy
PIERCED EARNINGS
PINS
HANSON STAINLESS STEEL
PEANUTS YO YO's
STUFFED ANIMALS
HEX SIGNS
ANTIQUE COLORED BOTTLES
ASH TRAYS
THE TOY, You Destroy, To Enjoy
CHANUKA MENORAHS
MEMORIAL LIGHTS
AMBASSADOR CARDS
CONTEMPORARIES
RED FARM STUDIO
PARTY GOODS Napkins Plates & Cups Invitations Tallies Table Covers
GUEST BOOKS
SCRAP BOOKS
AUTOGRAPH BOOKS
ADDRESS BOOKS
TRAVEL BOOKS
DIARIES (1 and 5 year)
BABY BOOKS
WEDDING ALBUMS
WEDDING INVITATIONS
TRAVEL ALARMS
GO-GO CLOCKS
OIL LAMPS
SCENTED CANDLES
SCENTED SOAP
INCENSE
SEALING WAX STICKS
SEALING WAX SETS
NOTE PAPERS
CENTERPIECES
COASTERS
BOWS
RIBBONS
GIFT WRAP

Most items can be imprinted at a nominal cost.

SEE US

THREE C'S

191 N. Pleasant St.
253-9306

Open 9:0 a.m.-5:30 daily
Friday til 9:00
Sunday 9:00-1:00

'Peanuts' -- The Little Folks World of Charles Schulz

"Your city is full of peanuts!"

Now a statement like that might not sound altogether complimentary, unless you happened to be in the peanut-vending business. But the man who said it, a tall, quiet-spoken artist by the name of Charles M. Schulz, wasn't referring to the kind of peanuts you eat. He meant little folks, youngsters.

"Peanuts are the grandest people in the world," he explains. "Your children are peanuts, and so are mine. They're delightful, lovable, funny, irresistible and wonderfully unpredictable. I really hate to see them grow out of the peanut stage."

Charles M. Schultz should know. He's the creator of "Peanuts," the comic strip being distributed to newspapers throughout the world by United Feature Syndicate, Inc., which has won readers of all ages and earned for Mr. Schultz such prized honors as the National Cartoonists' Society's "Cartoonist of the Year" award in 1956 and 1964 (the only two-time winner), the society's "Best Humor Strip of the Year" award in 1962, the 1958 "Humorist of the Year" award of the Yale Record and many others.

In 1963 Anderson College, Anderson, Ind., bestowed on him an honorary doctorate degree in humane letters. A similar honorary degree was given to him in June, 1966, by St. Mary's College, St. Mary's, Calif.

"Peanuts" Invade TV

In the fall of 1965 artist-writer Schulz was invited to create a television special for network presentation, and the result was "A Charlie Brown Christmas," which was broadcast in December, 1965, and earned a Peabody Award and a Television Academy Emmy Award. This was followed in the spring of 1966 by the tremendously popular "Charlie Brown's All-Stars," a humorous salute to baseball and vacation time, and "It's the the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown." Other TV specials are certain to be forthcoming.

Born in Minneapolis a bit more than 40 years ago, he can't remember a time when he didn't like to draw pictures. Sometime during grammar school he decided he wanted to be a cartoonist, and after graduating from high school he took a correspondence school course in art. With this basic training (and his natural talent) he was about to embark on his chosen career when World War II interfered. Entering the Army in February, he served as a machine-gun squad leader in France, Germany and Austria, before receiving his honorable discharge in February, 1946.

Even in the Army, however, he found time to draw comical sketches of amusing little youngsters and their distinctive reactions to life. Once back home in Minneapolis again, he began drawing two-column panel cartoons for magazines and sold several to the Saturday Evening Post and other periodicals. He also worked as instructor at the same Minneapolis art school at which he had been a correspondence student some years before.

The Big Break

In 1949 he sent a bundle of the panel cartoons to United Feature Syndicate in New York. "My wife and I kept our fingers crossed, waiting for the reply," he says. "And when the syndicate wrote that they would be interested in seeing my funny youngsters developed in comic-strip form, rather than as single panel cartoons, I really got excited. I had already developed some definite little characters that I thought would make a good daily strip, so I drew them up and left for New York."

It was a nasty, rainy morning when he arrived in New York, and to keep his drawings dry he tucked them under his coat and hurried to the syndicate office without pausing for breakfast. He was so early that none of the staff had arrived for the day, so he left the drawings with the receptionist and went out to eat.

While he was gone, the editors arrived, and the receptionist gave them the samples. They looked them over, and by the time Schulz returned they had decided that his inimitable little characters — good ol' Charlie Brown, Lucy, Patty, Violet, Schroeder and the others — would indeed make a good comic strip. And thus was "Peanuts" born.

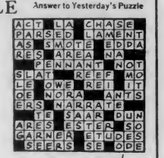
Dieters' Delight

Since its first appearance in 1950, the strip has generated a constant flow of surprisingly devoted fan mail. A lady in Washington, D.C., wrote, "Although peanuts are fattening and I'm supposed to be on a diet, I just can't resist your delightful comic. I read it every morning in lieu of breakfast." And a young wife in San Francisco wrote, "Whenever I refer to my soon-to-be-born first baby, I call him Charlie Brown. If he is a boy I will undoubtedly name him Charlie Brown."

College students all over the country have voted "Peanuts" their favorite comic strip. The Detroit Free Press inadvertently omitted the strip from the first two editions one day, and as the editor explained in a front-page story, "Our switchboard lit up like a Christmas tree. With all the phones ringing, it sounded like a Chinese temple at New Year's. We stopped the presses—just like the movies—and got 'Peanuts' back into the paper."

Mr. and Mrs. Schulz now have five real-life "peanuts" of their own: three girls—Meredith, Amy Louise, and Jill Marie—and two boys—Charles Jr. and Craig. Friends of the family are sometimes inclined to see the Schulz children depicted as characters in the strip.

"It's not quite that easy," Mr. Schulz says. "Occasionally I do use an actual incident or an apt remark as the basis for a strip. But mostly I think the characters in the strip have their own individual personalities, that are just as real to me as those of my own children."



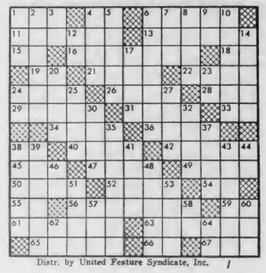
When the growing real-life family outgrew the house in Minneapolis in the spring of 1958, the Schulzes packed up and moved westward, to a larger, comfortably rambling home in Sebastopol, Calif. There, in a studio separated from the main house by enough distance to insure reasonably uninterrupted working hours, Mr. Schulz follows his long-established practice of starting his day's work as close to 6:30 a.m. as possible.

He averages about eight hours' work a day, he says. Sometimes, when ideas come fast, he turns out two or three strips in that time, and sometimes—but rarely—he discards everything because it doesn't meet his exacting standards.

How does he feel about the very satisfying success of his little brain-children? "I'm one of the luckiest people I know," he says. "All my life, I wanted to draw a comic strip—and now I'm doing it, and people seem to like it. I can't imagine anything I'd rather do more than what I'm doing."

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



ACROSS

1-Period of time
4-Pronoun
6-Blemish
11-Dried grape
13-Expert
15-Symbol for niton
16-Involves as a necessary accompaniment
18-Note of scale
19-Cyprinoid fish
21-Amount owed
22-Dines
24-Classify
26-Soaks
28-Beverage
29-Vegetable
31-Permits
33-Printer's measure
34-Malay canoe
36-Memorandum
38-Compass point
40-Girl's name
42-Recreation areas
45-Cravat
47-Cut
49-Skin of fruit
50-One opposed
52-Southwestern Indians
54-Symbol for cerium
55-Preposition
56-Rigorous
59-Teutonic deity
61-Expose
63-Part of flower
65-Paper measure (pl.)
66-French article
67-Worn

DOWN

1-Sea eagle
2-Fixed portion
3-Three-toed sloth
4-Intellect
5-Go in
6-Struck
7-Hindu cymbals
8-The caama
9-Pronoun
10-Irritate
12-Compass point
14-Ascended
17-Son of Adam
20-Fall in drops
23-Cooled lava
24-Conjunction
25-Ripped
27-Cease
30-Bows
32-Heavenly body
35-Yearly publications
37-Man's name
38-Step
39-Victor
41-River islands
43-Rests on the knees
44-A state (abbr.)
46-Latin conjunction
48-Part of flower
51-Mental image
53-Father
57-Male sheep
58-Symbol for cerium
60-Ethiopian title
62-Brother of Odin
64-Faroe Islands whirlwind

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Students Have Paradoxical Eating Habits

Student employees at the North Dining Commons are discussing the "paradoxical" eating habits of students.

According to Miss Diana Fricchione '71, who works on the serving line, overweight students eat bread, butter, and gravy. Underweight students, on the other hand, refuse starchy foods.

Pointing out that more males than females accept vegetables, she added that "guys go after the green beans."

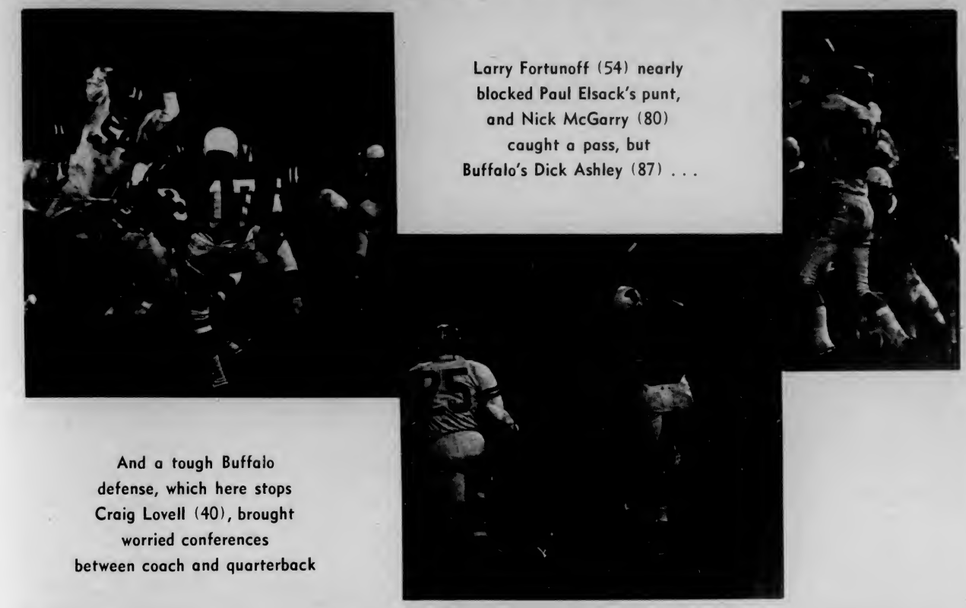
Most soup, which is rarely taken, returns to the garbage line. Here, Miss Mary Roberts '71, also notes that the lettuce of fruit salads, sliced pears or peaches on lettuce, is usually left untouched.

The workers agree that fresh fruit, especially bananas, is popular. And, though not as common a choice as it was last year, jello is the last dessert to go.

Miss Fricchione observes that ice cream is not the most popular dessert. Cakes and pies are first choices. Ice cream is chosen only when jello is the alternative.

Court Rules Youth Not Forced Into Enlisting

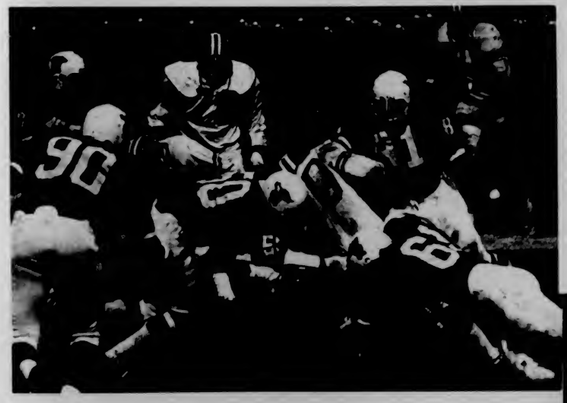
BOSTON (AP) — A Dracut youth's petition to be discharged from the Marine Corps on grounds he was forced into enlisting was denied Thursday in U.S. District Court.



Judge Frark Murray ruled there had been no coercion and that John Zurawski, 19, enlisted of his own free choice.

Zurawski has been in custody at 1st Naval District headquarters for failing to report for duty at Camp Pendleton, Calif., in August. He surrendered as AWOL Sept. 16 when his lawyer filed the petition for his discharge from the Corps.

Zurawski contended that three persons — his father, a Marine Corps recruiter in Lowell, and a Lowell probation officer—forced him into enlisting in July 1967 while a stubborn child charge was pending against him in Lowell District Court.



It was revealed at Thursday's hearing that Zurawski had applied to enlist in the Navy before he enlisted in the Marines.

A Dark, Dreary Buffalo Evening

Larry Fortunoff (54) nearly blocked Paul Elsack's punt, and Nick McGarry (80) caught a pass, but Buffalo's Dick Ashley (87) . . .

And a tough Buffalo defense, which here stops Craig Lovell (40), brought worried conferences between coach and quarterback

But it all did no good as Buffalo's winning coach after congratulations from his foe relaxes after a well-deserved victory.

All Daily Collegian Sports Photos By John R. Kelly, III Senior Photographer

Fusia--'We Learned a Football Lesson'

ED SARNO
Offense's Best

Defense Was Vulnerable, Buffalo Found the Holes

by Steve Ross
Sports Day Editor

"They were too much football team for us." This was coach Vic Fusia's comment after viewing the films of Buffalo's 23-0 thrashing of the Redmen. Chosen as recipients of the Varsity 'M' Club awards were fullback Ed Sarno on offense, and defensively Randy Robinson and Steve Rogers shared the honor.

Fusia remarked, "We made many mistakes and it seemed that every time we did, they hit at our weakness." Inexperience hurt the Redmen, and Fusia was the first to admit it. "We learned a football lesson out there. Hopefully it will be a graduate course and we will profit by our miscues," he said.

Fusia, however, didn't paint an entirely gloomy picture of the loss. He praised his defense. "Our defense was strong," he said, "but every time we made a mistake, Buffalo was there to take advantage of it."

The line looked particularly impressive, but the secondary was weak. Fusia, however, was not disheartened, "All the mistakes we made can be corrected," he noted.

Fusia cited the inability of the offense to sustain a drive as a reason for the licking. "Any time you have bad field position and can't improve it you'll be in trouble," he pointed out, "and that's exactly what happened to us."

The Buffalo defensive line was chiefly responsible for the Redmen offensive woe. The line was tough against the run, and knocked down half a dozen passes.

The lighting at War Memorial Stadium didn't do the Redmen a bit of good. Wingback Jerry Grasso said, "A couple of times the ball was coming at me and it seemed to explode when I tried to catch it." Coach Jack Delaney asked "How can anybody play baseball in that park? I'd hate to be an outfielder in that park. A guy could get killed out there."

When asked if Delaware's 16-0 loss to Villanova affected his preparation Fusia replied, "A coach doesn't really care if an opponent has a winning or losing record. Rather we study films and try to pick out weaknesses and try to exploit them.

"Maybe an Athletic Director cares if a school is coming off a win or a loss, or a fan worries about a team being 'up' for a game, but a coach has to assume that a team will be up and play its best possible game." Then he shook his head and said, "Buffalo sure played a good one against us."

STEVE ROGERS RANDY ROBINSON
V 'M' Club Defense Winners.

Intramural Action

Last Night's Scores

Granta 19 over Oaks 12
Maroons 38 over Maples 6
Elms 13 over Eagles 6
Iroquois 27 over Hicks 0
Chestnuts 34 over Hoovers 6
Hi-Lo's 28 over Hickories 6
Phallic's 12 Rams 6
Lemons 15 over Flaming A's 0
Patriots 6 over Mags 0
Panthers 27 over Cougars 13
Leopards 33 over Ironmen 18
Ghouls 35 over Ironmen 18
Smashers 33 over Bruisers 0
Lions 22 over Spartans 12
Commanches 11 over Crushers 0
Terrors 20 over Bulldozers 6
Colts 45's 24 over Senators 6
Handbooks 25 over Adams 18 12
Lobos 34 over Wheel 12
Cleavers over Adams 12, forfeit
PSD over PLP 0

Country Meet

On Wednesday, October 5, the annual intramural cross-country meet will move out from the entrance to Alumni Stadium. The race will begin at 5 p.m. with all contestants being requested to report at 4:30 p.m.

Entries close this Wednesday, Oct. 2nd, for the event which counts toward the Davis Award and the Olympus President's and Provost's Cups.

SPE will be shooting for its third consecutive team title this year.

The runners will be shooting for the all-time record of eight minutes, eight seconds, set by Gerald Johnson '67.

Tonight's Action
Football

Time	Field	Teams
1:30	1	PLP-TC
	2	ZN-KS
	3	PSD-DC
	4	PSK-SPE
	5	QTV-LCA
	6	TK Es-ASP
1:30	1	ASP-ATG
	2	BKP-APO
	3	SAM-TEP
	4	Road Runners-Little Felins
	5	BX-Bulldogs
	6	Bouncing "P"s-3Ms
1:30	1	Hoovers-Trojans
	2	Bears-Hicks
	3	Chestnuts-Hilos
	4	Flaming "A"-Rams
	5	Phallics-Aces
9:30	5	Least Sqs-LA Club
	6	CIA-Pinks

Tug of War

Pit	Time	Teams
1	6:30	Colonials vs. Smashers
2	6:30	Spartans vs. Colt '45's
3	6:30	Terrors vs. Can - Cools

Athletic Fields Near Completion

by Peter Pascarelli
Assistant Sports Editor

It may look like a Kansas wheat field now but within two years the land to the west of the Boyden Building will have one of the finest athletic facilities anywhere.

This conviction was expressed by Dean of Physical Education and Athletic Director Warren P. McGuirk, who also revealed this week that UMass should finally have its long-awaited track by the beginning of spring.

The 82 acres, bordered on the south by New North Hadley Road and on the north by the brook, which runs near the varsity baseball field, will contain room for sports ranging from football and soccer to tennis and golf.

"We would like to have the best athletic facilities anywhere in the northeast within two years," said McGuirk. "I don't think anyone will be able to equal what we'll have," added the dean.

The northwest corner of the large expanse of land, of which 20 acres has been held since 1958 and the remaining 62 acres newly purchased, will contain the olympic-size track—eight lanes on a quarter-mile oval. McGuirk hopes to have the track completed by early spring but, he cautioned, it all depends on "Old Man Weather."

On a traditional base, the track itself will have an all-weather composition surface and the track site will accommodate facilities for field events. Dean McGuirk hopes to entertain a New England track meet next spring.

In the field between the track and the current baseball field will be an athletic field that can be used for any purpose.

Moving north from New North Hadley Road, the construction of which was precipitated by the removal of the old road for further field development, are five soccer fields, five lacrosse fields and three intramural football fields, raising the total of such fields to five.

Moving to the west there will be a freshman baseball diamond and another of the all-purpose fields. The field will be large enough for a full soccer game and will also be used for freshman lacrosse. McGuirk hopes that varsity lacrosse can be played in Alumni Stadium.

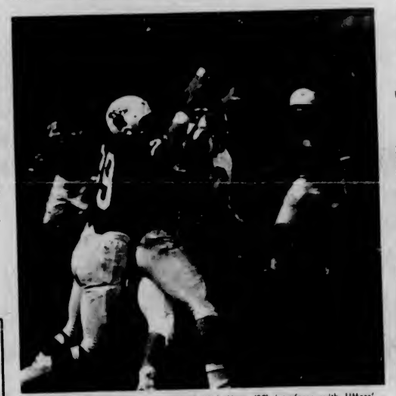
Adjacent to these fields will be the site of 24 tennis courts. The courts below Bartlett Hall are to be removed with the Bartlett construction of an addition to be named Maurice Tobin Hall. This new addition will be used by the psychology department.

East of the tennis courts, as outlined by McGuirk, is land for "future site for athletic structures." The dean would not elaborate on that statement.

All the fields are being constructed to accommodate soccer, which requires the largest area.

The final facet of the development will be renovations to the present baseball field. A link wire fence will be built to surround the field and dugouts will be installed. McGuirk said of this field, "It is our hope that this will be one of the finest baseball fields for college competition anywhere."

Eventually trees and shrubs will be added to the complex to break up what may look now like a barren expanse.



A new feature of the program of building will be 15 golf driving stations in the area of Route 116.

Of course all this expansion does not come easily or cheaply. Dr. McGuirk estimates $600,000 for the total expansion, not including the tennis courts.

He terms the whole building process "slow and steady procedure." He added, "Some people expect things to happen overnight, but it just doesn't work that way.

"It took time to draw up plans, and get them to the proper specifications. But everyone from the School of Agriculture, from which land had to be appropriated, to the alumni and administration to the state legislature, have been more than cooperative with us.

"It took a long time and sometimes even I lost my patience," concluded Dean McGuirk, "but I know that we are very glad to have these facilities in our near future."

JERRY'S JUMPED—Buffalo corner back Dick Horn (29) interferes with UMass' Jerry Grasso (22). Tom Elliot (number obscured) moves in for Buffalo.

MDC HOT NEWS LINE 5-2550

No Free Play

Boyden will be closed to free play on any Sat. when there is a home football game. It will be open on all other Sat. unless otherwise notified.

Rugby Wrecked, Indians Romp

In its opening match, the UMass Rugby Club opened its season Saturday by losing both its A and B game to Dartmouth College.

The Redman B's, hampered by lack of playing experience came home with valuable lessons, but also a 15-3 loss. Playing against the more experienced Indians, however, should improve the performance of the B squad.

Minus several regular starters, the UM A's lost 25-3. The Redmen were still fairly strong in the scrum, winning the majority by way of the talented toe of hooker Don Zingali and the punch of second rowman Dick Delmonico and Don Chamberlayne.

UM loose field play was poor on both offense and defense. But, a week's practice should improve that aspect of the Redmen's play.

The Redmen's only score against the well-drilled Indians came late in the first half on a penalty field goal.

Next week UM travels to Fairfield College looking to two tough contests.

AP's Top Ten

1.	Purdue 42	2 - 0
2.	Southern Calif. 2	2 - 0
3.	Penn State 1	2 - 0
4.	Florida	2 - 0
5.	Notre Dame	1 - 1
6.	Ohio State	1 - 0
7.	Nebraska	3 - 0
8.	Kansas	2 - 0
9.	U C L A	2 - 0
10.	Louisiana State	2 - 0

A.L. Standings

	W.	L.	Pct.	GB
Detroit	103	59	.636	—
Baltimore	91	71	.562	12
Cleveland	86	75	.534	16½
Boston	86	76	.531	17
New York	83	79	.512	20
Oakland	82	80	.506	21
Minnesota	79	83	.488	24
California	67	95	.414	36
Chicago	67	95	.414	36
Washington	65	96	.404	37½

Cross-Country Rosters Due This Wed., Oct. 2

Frosh Hoopsters

ALL freshman basketball candidates meet in Room 251, Boyden Building, 7 p.m. Wed., Oct. 2

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 30 / 75 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1968

Murphy Is Guilty of Murder; Will Be Given Sentence Today

NORTHAMPTON—Steven H. Murphy, 24, a former UMass graduate student, was found guilty of murder in the first degree last night by a Hampshire County Superior Court jury after three and one half hours of deliberation. Judge Donald M. Macaulay will sentence Murphy at 11 a.m. today.

Murphy sat impassively as the jury foreman read the verdict of guilty which was returned at 9:00 p.m., and asked that the death penalty not be imposed. He was also found guilty on a charge of arson.

Murphy had been charged with beating his roommate, George W. Rollins, 23, of Lexington with a mason's hammer and then setting their room afire at their 133 Main St. Amherst apartment.

During summations, the defendant stood up and shouted at the prosecution attorney, Oscar W. Grife, "You're a liar."

Colored slides of the body of the victim were shown to the jury Monday. Dr. Michael Luongo, senior Suffolk County Medical Examiner, told the 14-member jury that Rollins died of third degree burns over 60 per cent of his body and from severe head injuries.

The head injuries were allegedly inflicted during a fight between Murphy and Rollins.

Rollins succumbed at the Massachusetts General Hospital two weeks after he was pulled unconscious from the burning room by Amherst police.

Murphy was arrested March 25, by police in Lexington and charged with murder.

The state had contended that Murphy poured paint thinner and acetone over Rollins after beating him with a mason's hammer and set fire to the room to cover up the beating.

Judge Macaulay allowed 13 items to be introduced in evidence over the objections of defense attorneys, John J. Foley and John F. Murphy. They included the hammer, the empty can of paint thinner, a gallon jug of acetone and bloody and burned bedding allegedly taken from Murphy's room after the fire.

(Continued on Page 6)

Educational Marathon To Be Held Thursday

Part carnival, part happening, part educational fair — an "educational marathon" will be held from noon to midnight on Thursday, October 3, at the School of Education. In an attempt to blow their cool in one big show, over fifty events will be offered in an attempt to suggest the variety, excitement and intellectual electricity that the School is seeking to develop in the coming years.

More than thirty faculty from the School of Education — all new with the arrival of the Dean, Dwight Allen — will be participating.

Discussions, seminars, films, demonstrations, panels, lectures and music will all be keyed to involving the ideas and perspectives of the undergraduate in making American education relevant to the needs and demands of our time.

See schedule p. 7

Severe Cutback in NSF Funds May Affect UMass Grad Students

By Everett R. Jameson
Staff Reporter

The acting dean of the graduate school at UMass., Arthur C. Gentile, has announced receiving notice of a "severe cutback" in funds from the National Science Foundation.

A ceiling representing a 20 per cent reduction from last year has been placed as of August 14, 1968, on the expenditure of all NSF funds for the current fiscal year.

Though full priority is being given to the support of graduate students, the cutback makes the continuance of financial aid an uncertainty for many graduate students after next January. Graduate student senate President Thomas Minogue sets the number of students affected by this cutback at 139.

At a meeting on September 30, a committee asked by university provost Oswald Tippo to study the budgeting of remaining funds reaffirmed to a small gathering of students the school's intention to make every effort to meet payments to students. Expenditures in all other areas have been curtailed, and appeals have been made to the NSF and to Congress for more money.

The possibility of university or state funds is being considered. As of now, there is a shortage of money, compounded by the commitment of funds to research this past summer, which might mean the end of funds for many students.

Toy Gun, War Paint for Peace

Rubin Tries to Enter Hearing on "Chicago"

WASHINGTON (AP)—Police hustled peace protester Jerry Rubin, wearing a bandolero ribbed with live bullets, out of a congressional office building today after he tried to enter a hearing on Chicago's bloody antiwar demonstrations during the Democratic National Covention.

Rubin, a major participant in the confrontation between protesters and Chicago police, was among witnesses subpoenaed to testify as the House Committee on Un-American Activities began an investigation of the disorders.

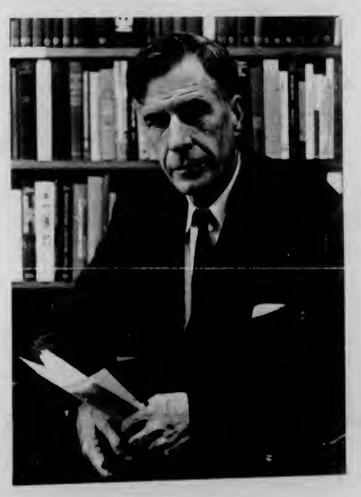
Rubin, who had not been called to testify until Thursday, led a straggly band of demonstrators to the committee door. He marched bearded, barefoot and barechested, carrying a toy M16 rifle, wearing a pistol belt and presenting a resplendent display of war paint and multi-colored peace symbols daubed on his body.

Capitol police guarding the hearing chambers halted Rubin at the door and ordered him to strip off the belt of bullets which he was wearing on his chest along with his love beads.

Two policemen grasped him by the biceps where Rubin had red and orange antiwar symbols painted, marched him down two stories of marble stairs and escorted him out of the House Office Buildings.

There was no attempt by other demonstrators to interfere with the police action.

Police said Rubin would be barred until he shed his ammunition. The guards also confiscated a black bull whip from another protest leader, Abbie Hoffman.



Rubin, Hoffman and four other leaders of peace protests, including David Dellinger, told a news conference before the hearings that they are asking for a federal court injunction to forbid issuance of any citations for contempt of Congress against them during the hearings.

(Continued on Page 7)

Williams Trial Starts Today

BOSTON (AP) — Trial is to get under way in U.S. District Court here today for two young persons accused of throwing paint on Selective Service files in Boston June 4.

The defendants — Suzanne Williams, 19, of Leverett, and Francis T. Femia, 20, of Williamston, W. Va. — are charged with willfully injuring government property, willfully attempting to obliterate and destroy records and willfully hindering and interfering with administration of the Selective Service.

JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH

John Kenneth Galbraith Will Lecture At Mahar on 'The Anatomy of Turmoil'

The UMass Distinguished Visitors Program is initiating its 1968-69 program Friday evening, Oct. 4 with world famous economist and historian John Kenneth Galbraith.

Speaking on "The Anatomy of Turmoil," Galbraith will lecture in Mahar Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

Currently Paul M. Warburg Professor of Economics at Harvard Univ., Mr. Galbraith has won international acclaim for his many and varied efforts.

He has a Ph.D. in economics from the Univ. of California and was Social Science Research Council Fellow at Cambridge Univ. in 1937-38. Prior to World War II, he taught at the Univ. of California, Harvard and Princeton. He is an LL.D. of California, Michigan, Massachusetts, Bard, Brandeis, Loyola, Miami, Boston College and other American universities, of Toronto, Saskatchewan and Guelph in Canada and a Doctor of Letters of the Universities of Annamalai and of Mysore in India.

During WW II, Mr. Galbraith was Deputy Administrator of the Office of Price Administration. In this post he was principally responsible for organizing the wartime system of price control which he headed until 1943.

Later he was a director of the U.S. Strategic Bombing Survey and the head of the Office of Economic Security Policy in the Dept. of State. He was awarded the Medal of Freedom by Pres. Truman for his wartime service. He was for several years the editor of Fortune.

Mr. Galbraith is the author of American Capitalism; The Great Crash, 1929; The Affluent Society; The Liberal Hour, Economics and the Art of Controversy; Economic Development; The Scotch and the recently published The New Industrial State.

American Capitalism is an analysis of the problem of market regulation and power in the modern capitalist society. The Great Crash, 1929 is a standard work on the great financial collapse. The Affluent Society, the best known of Prof. Galbraith's books, is a study of the economic and social problems of the high-income community with special attention to the problem of maintaining balance between the public and private sectors of the economy.

The Scotch is an amusing but penetrating account of the community in which Prof. Galbraith was raised on the north shore of Lake Erie in Canada. It was highly praised by critics in both countries and has achieved the status of a minor classic in Canada. The New Industrial State has been described as his most important book. It knits the great changes of the past fifty years into a complete and consistent view of modern industrial society.

Mr. Galbraith has long been active in Democratic Party affairs and in 1952 and 1956 was a member of the campaign staff of Adlai Stevenson. He was Chairman of the Economic Advisory Committee of the Democratic Advisory Council from 1956 to 1960.

An early and active supporter of John F. Kennedy, he was on the 1960 convention staff of the late President and was associated with him in numerous political activities. He is currently Chairman of Americans for Democratic Action. In recent years he has been a frequent spokesman for American liberals on both foreign and domestic policy.

From the spring of 1961 until mid-1963, Mr. Galbraith was

(Continued on Page 6)

2 OCT 2

Dean Rusk Tries To Spur Middle East Peace Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Secretary of State Dean Rusk conferred privately with U.N. envoy Gunnar V. Jarring today in an effort to spur Middle East peace negotiations while Israeli and Arab foreign ministers are in New York for the General Assembly.

The two met for breakfast as part of Rusk's intensive diplomatic consultations on world problems. He talked for more than an hour Monday with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and had an appointment to see Jordan's foreign minister, Abdul Monem Rifai, later.

There was no word from either Jarring or Rusk as to details of their conversations, but informed sources said the central point of Rusk's talks so far has been that Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow, should be the main channel for peace negotiations.

Rusk also had been stressing two other main points:

-Any settlement must be worked out between Israel and her Arab neighbors, rather than imposed from the outside.

-The time for negotiations is now, while high-level leaders from the interested parties are here.

Jarring, who has been working on the Middle East problem for 10 months, is understood to be consulting quietly with Eban, Rifai and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad. He makes it a policy to say nothing about his meetings, even to the extent of not confirming that they took place.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

REMINDER

To all Social Chairmen

DEADLINE DATE

for

Homecoming Queen Nominations

is Thurs., Oct. 3

HHH Bomb Halt Pledge Gets Reactions

Nixon fears trump card Lost

DETROIT (AP) - Richard M. Nixon said Tuesday that unless Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey clarifies his conditional offer of a Vietnam bombing halt, it could destroy "the only trump card" American negotiators have in the Paris peace talks.

The GOP presidential nominee said that Hanoi's leaders may interpret Humphrey's statement as offering "a concession in January that they could not get now."

He said that would destroy whatever chance there is that the current negotiations might bring a settlement.

Nixon told a news conference that despite Humphrey's statement he will continue to remain silent on his own Vietnam peace plan while negotiations in Paris have a chance for success.

Humphrey, in a speech in Salt Lake City, said he would stop bombing of North Vietnam "as an acceptable risk for peace."

But he said "before taking that action - would place key importance on evidence - direct or indirect- by deed or word - of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

Asked if Humphrey's statement took away that bargaining power, Nixon replied that question could only be answered by the American team at the Paris talks. But he added:

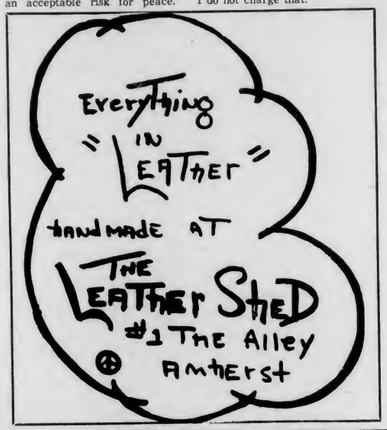
"In my view, having studied this over the years' the representatives of the government of Hanoi read everything that is being said by the prominent political figures in the United States, and particularly presidential candidates."

"And I think it is possible, very possible, that the men in Hanoi could interpret this particular statement as offering them a concession in January that they could not get now. It is possible, I do not charge that."

N. Viet Sees No Policy Change

PARIS (AP) - Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's qualified bomb-halt pledge was brushed off by a North Vietnamese spokesman in Paris Tuesday as "still the same demand for reciprocity which we reject."

The North Vietnamese have long spurned American demands for prior assurances that the Communists display matching restraint after a halt in the bombing of the North. They have insisted instead that a cut-off of American military action against the North must be unconditional.



In a campaign broadcast Monday, Humphrey said that if elected president he would stop bombing the North but only if he saw "evidence of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

Le Duc Tho, Hanoi politburo member and one of the North Vietnamese delegates at the Paris peace talks, said he saw "absolutely nothing new" in Humphrey's offer.

The North Vietnamese have offered verbal assurances that "positive efforts" would follow an unconditional American bombing, but the Humphrey pledge was viewed as by no means unconditional.

The Soviet news agency Tass also said "no new approach" could be detected in Humphrey's speech broadcast from Salt Lake City, Utah.

Some foreign diplomats feel, however, that Hanoi might surprise its Moscow supporters.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

INTERESTED? in the INDEX

We're interested in having YOU!

on our staff

Come to a

GENERAL MEETING

on OCTOBER 3rd at 8:30

in the COUNCIL CHAMBERS - S.U.

FBI Says Crime Is Rising; New Left Is New Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI said today it has more than kept up with the nation's rising crime rate, but added that the New Left movement "has mushroomed into a major security problem."

In its annual report, the federal crime agency said the fiscal year that ended last June 30 was a period of "harsh, unremitting challenge for law enforcement."

In a section headed "Protecting our Internal Security," the report, mirroring earlier statements by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, charged that the Students for a Democratic Society is at the core of student unrest "held together by a bitter hatred of . . . the institutions of democratic society."

It accused SDS of sponsoring workshops to teach sabotage and how to manufacture explosives for possible use against some government facilities.

The FBI said it measured gains in several major areas of crime fighting, including a 19 per cent increase in its arrest rate over the previous year.

The 1968 figures were 18,881 apprehensions, compared with 15,878 the year before.

Another gain was claimed in convictions. The figures were 13,059 persons convicted in 1968, against 13,032 in fiscal 1967. The report stated that 97 per cent of those arrested were convicted.

The report came with "Law and Order," a major issue in the presidential campaign.

Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon claims that crime is running wild and enforcement and court procedures haven't been able to keep up.

The agency also said the Communist party continues as a danger to the nation's internal security, although it has been working to achieve respectability in the nation.

The report listed no arrests nor convictions in fiscal 1968 regarding internal subversion crimes.

According to the report, the two Soviet diplomatic missions in Washinton and New York have increased their staffs from 346 persons in 1964 to 573 in fiscal 1968.

Between 70 and 80 per cent of these people are involved in intelligence, the FBI said.

If these figures are correct, the Soviet Union has between 400 and 480 spies of various descriptions in this country.

Here, too, the report didn't list any arrests or convictions but stated: "The FBI remains alert to this danger."

Reporting on its activities against organized crime, the FBI said its probes netted the convictions of 281 figures associated with the Mafia crime syndicate during the fiscal period.

This compared with 197 the previous year, and in addition the report said there were more than 675 persons awaiting trial on charges growing from the FBI's drive against organized crime.

The rise in bank robberies and related crimes was described as "bewildering," though the report appeared to show that the FBI

(Continued on Page 7)

Tufts Students To Determine Visiting Hours

MEDFORD, (AP) - Tufts University has decided to let its students determine - with few restrictions - what are proper visiting hours for members of the opposite sex in dormitory rooms.

The action, taken by the university committee on student life, bars only overnight visits.

"We don't expect any abuses and we won't be peering over anyone's shoulder," Dean of Men Alvin Schmidt said Monday.

Under the old rules, women were allowed in men's rooms until 11 p.m. on school nights and until 1:30 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

Residents in individual dormitories were to meet to determine visiting hours.

The committee, composed of seven deans and professors, also doubled its membership to include seven students - giving the student body an equal voice in the group's affairs.

SQUAW TALK

There will be a meeting for all girls interested in writing for the Daily Collegian's Women's Page Thursday at 6:45 p.m. in the Daily Collegian office.

AWOL GI's Flee Sanctuary In BU Due to Bomb Threat

BOSTON (AP) - An AWOL U.S. Marine who took sanctuary with another serviceman at Boston University's Marsh Chapel gave himself up to military authorities late Tuesday shortly before the university received a telephoned bomb threat.

A B.U. spokesman said a man who had a "cool voice" telephoned the security office and said a plastic explosive with a time mechanism had been placed somewhere in the chapel.

University officials informed antiwar demonstrators conducting the sanctuary with the second serviceman, and the building was evacuated to enable bomb squad police to make a search.

A university spokesman said the AWOL Marine Pfc. Thomas Pratt, 22, of Norwalk, Conn., stationed at Quonset Point, R.I., left the chapel voluntarily, joined his family and was taken to the Marine Barracks at Boston Navy Yard.

The second serviceman, who maintained his "sanctuary" until the bomb threat forced the chapel to be cleared, identified himself as Army Pfc. Raymond Kroll, 18, of College Springs, Wash., stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Earlier Pratt said he was due at Quonset Point Aug. 23. but did not go.

The two were supported in their decision to seek sanctuary by theology students at the university. A spokesman for the students said the pair also had the support of the Boston Committee of Religious Concern for Peace and the New England Resistance, an antiwar group.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

LBJ Sticks With Fortas Despite Senate Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson refused Tuesday to back down on his nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice, despite a Senate vote against considering it.

"The nomination is still there," a White House spokesman said, meaning it has not been withdrawn.

Senate administration leaders failed by 14 votes to break a filibuster against calling up the nomination and announced they were putting it aside for the time being.

At the White House, press secretary George Christian told reporters:

"The President nominated Justice Fortas and felt he was highly qualified for the position. Certainly nothing has happened to change his feeling on that.

"He feels that there is a majority in the Senate in favor of the nomination and naturally he wishes there had been a more favorable vote today."

Christian added that Johnson still believes that a majority of the Senate would appprove the nomination "if the opponents would permit it to come to a vote."

PEACE CORPS NEEDS YOU

Nursing, medical technology, public health, nutrition and related majors are invited to a special Peace Corps meeting, Wednesday night in the Student Union lobby at 7:00 p.m.

WED. & THURS. EVENING 8-12 P.M. SPECIAL PARTIES 586-0114

THE MODERN SOUNDS OF PETER FINKE
at Electric Piano

"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
second floor—center

GORMAN RESIDENTS
VOTE
ELTERS
FOR SENATOR

Rapp's Delicatessen
AND RESTAURANT
79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
Delicious Salads -- Desserts
HOT CORNED BEEF — HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES — CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE
FREE DELIVERY
Every night 6-11 p.m.
Phone 256-6759
Sunday-Thursday — 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday — 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.
BIGGEST and BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

To a freshman girl in J.Q.A. or Coolidge, Uncle Sammee Munichullio of Holiday Inn says "Hi, Girl Welcome to U. of M." 10/4

LIMITED OFFER — I will photograph you free. Select the best shot and pay only $7.00 for 3 8x-10's. There's absolutely no obligation or pressure to buy. If you don't lke what I get. That's my fault. Kent Bates—Photo Studio at the alley (over the Leather Shed) 256-8146. 10/2

Colorful prints various sizes, picture frames, reverse paintings on glass, art exhibitions of local artist. The "Y" Gallery, 755½ Chicopee St., Willimansett, Mass. 01003. Open 12-4 daily, 6-9 eves. Sat. all day. 10/2

Use ADDRESS LABELS and save a pain in the neck! Just lick on a label for your letters and possessions. Send name, address, and only 75c to: College Stickers, P.O. Box 829, Amherst, Mass. 01002 10/2

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware. Tu-Fri. 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412 10/7

WANTED

Banjo Band—Contract Social Chairman at 542-2186. 10/8

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

Rambler station wagon, 1965, 34000 miles by original owner, automatic transmission, excellent condition, new tires plus snow tires, radio & heater; $995. Call 584-1497 9/30

Must sell 1965 MG 110 4 doors sports sedan, 4 cylinder, 4-speed, radio, back up lites, extras! 30 plus M.P.G. dark green, excellent condition, 35,700 miles. Best offer. Call 549-1318

'61 Chevy convertible in good shape. Best offer, call 256-8255 between 6:30-8:30 p.m. 10/2

Vespa 125 cc. motor scooter for sale. Excellent running condition. Two helmets included. Must sell — going in service. Only $99. Contact Bill, 549-0169, 33 Phillips St. 10/2

'57 Ford—Very good condition new tires (not retreads), new ball joints recently installed, engine and transmission in excellent condition. Carburetor recently rebuilt. Engine timed and tuned ready to drive—even muffler and tailpipe only 4 mos. old—A good buy for only $250.00. Call evenings 549-0939. 10/3

1961 Chevrolet Impala, 2 dr. hotp., 283, auto., P.S., $425 or best offer. 253-3628 10/8

'61 Rambler clean and operating. But needs many repairs, some major. Phone AL 3-5007, 6-8 p.m., for details. 10/2

ROOMMATES NEEDED!

Need female roommates to live in huge new furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at 467-7918 any time. 10/8

HELP WANTED

Banjo player experienced in Gay 90's Sing-Alongs, Dixieland, Ragtime. Call 544-6722 eve's. 10/3

College students earn $60 a week f.r 3 eves and Sat. Scholarship grants avail. Call 584-7467 10/4

HAPPENING? FAIR?

Educational Marathon?

- ENCOUNTER GROUPS
- MICRO-TEACHING
- "WHAT'S ALL THE FUSS ABOUT" — Dean Dwight W. Allen

12 noon to 12 midnight Meals will be available
SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
THURSDAY All invited THURSDAY

Part I The Inside Line

Leftist vs. Beta Chi: Commuter Confrontation

By Chris McGahan, Student Govt. Editor

Well, it's that time of year again. Leaves are turning, evenings are chillier and candidates can not only hear the golden tones of their own voices, but can also see their dulcet phonemes condensing in the nippy autumn air. Yes, it's Student Senate election time again. We don't mean to imply, of course, that the Julian calendar or even the academic calendar is reckoned in relation to Student Senate election day. However, several important ideological contests are being fought in various constituencies across the campus.

One of the most interesting election fights is taking place—wonder of wonders!—in the commuter constituency. More often than not in the past, it took the regular election plus several by-elections to f'll the commuter quota of eight seats. With reapportionment last year the commuter allotment nearly doubled to fourteen seats. This year there are 33 candidates for the fourteen vacancies.

But this is only the beginning of the story. Last year, the Beta Chi fraternity presented a slate of candidates to the commuters, running on an "Its time to end the raw deal for the communters' plank." Five Beta Chi's and three independent candidates won that race. Unfortunately for the commuters, the bloc turned out to be more talk than action.

The attendance records of the Beta Chi's was such that several of them had to be replaced during the course of the year, owing to the Senate's five-absences-automatic-expulsion rule. They had also claimed that they were going to put an end to "kids playing games" in the Senate. Translation: We're going to take this seriously.

Epilogue: Of the original five commuter senators elected from the Beta Chi bloc, only one remains in the Senate, and even he was re-elected after having resigned because of his imminent expulsion under the attendance rule.

It seems that this sort of performance is deserving of close scrutiny by commuters who will be voting in tomorrow's election. By contrast, of the three independents elected last fall, all served a full term without the benefit of a handy mid-term re-election, although one did resign for personal reasons late in the year.

One wonders what is the point of running a slate of candidates, this year even without a platform, if it is not either to "play games," frivolous or serious, or simply for the aggrandizement of raw power in an increasingly powerful Student Senate. The pay-off for this strategy, if successful, probably will come the second week in April of next year, when the Senate convenes to elect officers for '69-'70.

This bloc of fourteen commuter Senators is the largest in the Senate and if nearly all belong to the same fraternity, one can only conclude . . . Their handout reads: "Commuters!! If you desire active representation, then vote for these candidates." If they promise to be as active as they were last year, then I would say their definition of active is somewhat at odds with mine.

And the plot thickens still further. Another slate of eleven candidates is being put up by a campus leftist group. Whether one is sympathetic with their goals or not, at least they do present a platform upon which the voters can make a judgment. They want to dis-arm the campus police. This is reasonable. They want to push for administration implementation of the recently passed no-ROTC credit bills. Another realistic goal.

They also want to abolish loyalty oaths for student employees. Since these have been declared un-Constitutional by the Supreme Court on several occasions, this too seems like a reasonable goal. And they want to look into bookstore prices. A spokesman for the group said: "We're not sure it's profiteering, but we think it should be looked into. Finally, to sum up, our platform could be characterized as a general discontent with the coldness and sometimes the irrelevancy of the University." This at least represents a basis for rational judgment.

In addition, at least one of the independent candidates, Sharon O'Brien, is worthy of consideration. She is the incumbent Senator from Crabtree House with nearly two years' experience. She voted to abolish ROTC credit, to revise University alcoholic beverages policy, to establish open houses on students' terms, and so on. A candidate with such a fine voting record as this, although running with no machine behind her, should not be cast aside lightly.

But speculation still exists as to the ultimate goal of the two "tickets," as opposed to their immediate goal of electing a bloc of Senators. Are the Beta Chi's in fact aiming at electing one of their own to a position of Senate leadership in the spring? If so, what happens after that, with ideological stands so un-certain?

Are the leftists aiming ultimately, as is rumored, at electing sufficient numbers of representatives to overthrow the present Senate leadership and establish a regime in their own style? And if this is true, is it good and/or needed?

Every commuter who votes tomorrow must ask himself these questions. In answering them (if indeed he can), he must take into consideration not just the election of his Senators for this year, but also the direction the Senate will take in future years as a result of his vote. And it is more questionable yet if anyone of these blocs elected in toto can adequately represent the full spectrum of commuters.

Both groups are also running an un-determined number of candidates in various other constituencies across the campus. We just hope that this year the voters will not only take the trouble to vote, but also take the trouble to find out what they are voting about. Perhaps it's too much to expect. We hope not.

"Nothing To Get Excited About — I Don't Hear Any Bombs"

INSIDE REPORT:

The Wallace Revolution

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WARREN, Mich. -- In this overwhelmingly Democratic stronghold of the United Auto Workers (UAW), the dramatically rising support of union members for George Wallace -- its intensity still not appreciated by Democratic politicians -- has become a full-fledged political revolution.

That is the conclusion we reached after a day's polling last week with Mrs. Mina Cuker, the highly capable Michigan supervisor for pollster Oliver Quayle. In the lily-white industrial suburb of Warren, Wallace's startling strength in an area of normally huge Democratic majorities darkens Hubert H. Humphrey's prospects for carrying this state that is so vital to him.

Of 50 voters interviewed who can be expected to vote on Nov. 5, 83 percent voted for Lyndon B. Johnson against Barry Goldwater in 1964 and most have long records of Democratic voting. Their current preferences: 20 for Wallace, 14 for Vice President Humphrey, 10 for Richard M. Nixon, 1 write-in for Sen. Eugene McCarthy, 5 undecided.

Even more shocking than their preference for Wallace was the intensity with which it was voiced. While we had to drag out preferences for Nixon or Humphrey amid mutterings about "lesser of two evils" and "a poor choice this year," Wallace voters tended to volunteer their opinion as soon as we opened the door.

Thus, one 37 year old wife of a UAW assembly line worker who has never voted "because all politicians are liars," has registered this year and joyously declares she will vote for Wallace. "He could be lying, too," she added, "but I don't think he'd let the colored push him around."

Such support of Wallace as "an honest man" and "a man of the common people" was frequently voiced by his supporters and some nonsupporters as well, contradicting the cherished hope of Democratic politicians that Wallace support among blue-collar workers is wholly negative and will dissipate long before Election Day. Rather, in our sample, it seemed far more positive than either Nixon's or Humphrey's.

Nor did we see justification for that other security blanket grasped in labor-Democratic circles: the likelihood that Wallace is merely taking away the usual Republican labor vote. Instead, many Wallace supporters interviewed were vociferously anti-Republican and anti-Nixon.

One youthful Italian immigrant who works at the Jones and Laughlin steel mill here, for instance, revealed he was for Wallace "as the one guy who can enforce the law" with Humphrey his second choice, adding: "Nixon? The Republican? You think I want a be out of work?"

But economic considerations are not paramount among factory workers here with homes costing $25,000. What concerns them to the point of obsession is race, and this is the heart of the Wallace revolution--a revolution far greater than its leader. According to answers to poll questions prepared by Quayle, racial attitudes of Nixon and Humphrey supporters here are nearly identical to views of the Wallace supporters.

In our 50-voter sample, only 4 thought the police were "too tough" at the Chicago convention; almost all volunteered their support for greater police powers and stricter law enforcement; only a handful did not bring up the Negro question, others voicing openly the need to keep their neighborhoods lily-white against the Negro tide.

With these tenets of the Wallace revolution affecting all voters here, some Humphrey supporters don't sound much like Hubert Humphrey. A 40-year-old electrician who would "hang draft-card burners by the nearest lamp pole" deeply admires Wallace (his second choice) but will vote for Humphrey. "I just always vote straight Democratic," he explains.

But many others have cast aside ancient party loyalties and have anointed George Wallace as articulator of their own desires. "He'd crack the whip on the Negroes," says a school janitor. "He's for the people and against the colored," says the pretty blonde wife of an auto worker. "He'll bring us law and order without a revolution," says a Chrysler plant supervisor.

With our sample containing an exaggerated number of younger factory workers (among whom Wallace is most popular), we do not forecast a Wallace victory in this county. Nevertheless, his strength does spell disaster for Humphrey. What the Vice President's Michigan supporters are doing about it will be treated in a future column.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert '69

Issue Editors: Janet Howes and Sue Gerson. Sports Day Editor: Steve Shamban

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

List of Candidates For Senate Elections

Student Senate elections will be held on Thursday, October 3. Dormitory residents will be able to vote in their residence halls from 6-9 p.m. Commuters, fraternities and sororities may vote in the Student Union lobby from 9-5:30. Remember—if you don't vote for somebody—Student Power is just a big sign in the Union.

The following is a list of the candidates as they will appear on the ballot:

Commuters: 15 seats
Kenneth Menegat
Larry "Trillo" Feinberg
James Barabe
Richard Stumpek
Richard Looney (incumbent)
Andrew C. Jewett
Gary D. Le Beau
Robert J. Kentfield
Malcolm J. Chisholm
Sharon O'Brien "present senator (Crabtree)"
Paula Putecky
William Van Kiveek
Michael M. F. Meehan
Robert Singleton
Richard Ryan
William D. Chiodo
James Hayes (incumbent)
Richard E. Clarity
Robert H. Wilson
Robert Skrok
Charles T. Packard
James F. Martin
David Ridley
Russell Davenport
Robert Capeless
Peter Feasel
Peter Woodcock
Paul Putnatura (incumbent)
George W. Maiewski
Mark Zaltman
Mike Garjian
Tentley Bebinef
Jim Moran "present senator (Brett)"
Fraternity: 3 seats
Neil Weinberg
Robert F. Smith
Steve Mullen
Steve Adams
David J. Veale
John "Dobie" Gillis
Robert Remar
Sorority: 2 seats
Barbara Lee Kaminitz

QUAD AREA
Crabtree: 1 seat
Gail Ravgiala
Linda J. Holmes
Dwight: 1 seat
Dawn Dudash (incumbent)
Hamlin: 1 seat
Milt S. Blaut
Curtis Hamilton
Steve Carroll
Johnson: 1 seat
Kathy Sousa (incumbent)
Knowlton: 1 seat
Susan L. Bacon
Leach: 1 seat
"Fuzz" Hanlon (incumbent)
Lewis: 1 seat
Jane Cullinan
Susan H. Kinner "present senator (Hamlin)"
Mary Lyon: 1 seat
Katie Farrell
Elaine Quaglieri
Thatcher: 1 seat
Ferdi Gunduz
Peter J. Reilly
Mike Chrobak

ORCHARD HILL
Emily Dickinson: 2 seats
Roxanne Fritz
Ann C. Cowdey
Catherine Leonard
Field: 2 seats
Dianne Phillips
Ann "Mac" McGunigle
Grayson: 2 seats
James A. Poitras
David Gary
Webster: 2 seats
Larry Woods
Wayne Soini

CENTRAL AREA
Hill — Baker: 2 seats
William A. Perkins
Michael W. Deipha
Stephen C. Nazzaro
Floyd Forman (incumbent)
Butterfield: 1 seat
Stephen Chiulli
Chadbourne: 1 seat
Peter Blanchet (incumbent)
George L. Rogulski
Greenough: 1 seat
Robert S. Hildebrand
Van Meter North: 1 seat
NO ELECTION
Van Meter South: 1 seat
Sheryl J. Gilmore
Carol Lee Andrews
Brett: 2 seats
Richard C. Bonito
Scott T. Thomson
Peter Finn
Paul Harold (incumbent)
Paul K. Canham
Brooks: 1 seat
Joyce Zilinski
Gorman: 2 seats
Phil Rosen (incumbent)
Stafford Sheehan
Glenn Eltera
Geoffrey A. MacDonald
David Larson
Hills North: 1 seat
Deverton C. Cochrane (incumbent)
Hills South: 1 seat
Wayne Sawchuck
Wheeler: 1 seat
David Nevard
"Big Jim" Fox (incumbent)

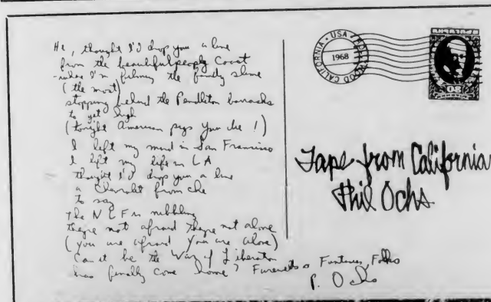
SOUTHWEST AREA
Emerson: 1 seat
Lin Lamminen
Valerie M. Prada
James: 1 seat
Michael J. Krause
Robert Diffenderfer
Melville: 1 seat
Karen MacNutt
Joan McCourt
Thoreau: 1 seat
Charlotte A. Curci (incumbent)
Jeanne Umana
Kennedy (Lower): 1 seat
Brad Johnson (incumbent)
Kennedy (Middle): 1 seat
Mike Peirce
Mark Brenner
Kennedy (Upper): 1 seat
Bradley A. Sweet
Joe Kilmartin (incumbent)
Coolidge (Lower): 1 seat
Nancy Jeanne Melanson
Cathy Broomfield
Janice F. Persson
Coolidge (Middle): 1 seat
Ann B. Quirk
Coolidge (Upper): 1 seat
Kathleen Kennedy
John Quincy Adams (Middle): 1 seat
Kathleen M. Gwiazda
Judith A. Bellis
John Quincy Adams (Upper): 1 seat
Carol Sargent
John Adams (Lower): 1 seat
Brian Woodrow
John Silva
Ronald Gould
Stephen Walt (incumbent)
John Adams (Middle): 1 seat
Mark Smith
Charles Kelly
Bernard Kaplan
John Adams (Upper): 1 seat
Paul M. Johnson
David Reid
Washington (Lower): 1 seat
Gregory Ryerson
Paul Anderson (incumbent)
Gary White
Paul Dudash
Washington (Middle): 1 seat
Joseph Donovan
Rick Verrochi
Mike Berman
Washington (Upper): 1 seat
Richard L. Camann
William F. Harrington
Crampton: 1 seat
Janet Traverse
Gerry Garlapy
MacKimmie: 2 seats
Daniel Madden
Roland T. Sharillo (incumbent)
Nick Brown
Patterson: 2 seats
Pat Beharry (incumbent)
Ellen Moran "present senator (J.Q.A. Lower)"
Cance: 2 seats
Mark Raskind
Dale M. Mandigo
Robert Anderson
Joel Fox
Moore, Pierpont:
Elections postponed indefinitely

Supporters of Humphrey-Muskie To Hold Meeting

The University of Massachusetts Young Democrats for Humphrey-Muskie announced plans for an organizational meeting in the Student Union Thursday, October 3, at 8:30 p.m.

In light of recent developments in the Presidential campaign, the need has been felt for concentrated efforts for H-M.

BELL'S PIZZA
is celebrating its FIRST ANNIVERSARY today!
We invite you to come down and help us celebrate
ALL DRINKS FREE even if you don't buy anything!
Come in and see why BELL's PIZZA is famous for great PIZZA, delicious HOT OVEN GRINDERS
Open 11 a.m.-12, until 2 a.m. Fri. & Sat.
65 University Drive
256-8011



Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

GNOMON
5¢ first copy of a page

SELLS
3¢ each 2nd thru 10th

XEROX
2¢ each 11th on up

COPIES
103 N. Pleasant St.
Amherst, Mass.
253-7393

TAPE FROM CALIFORNIA/A NEW ALBUM BY PHIL OCHS/A&M SP 4148

PLEASURES OF THE HARBOR A & M 4133

2 Great Albums from Phil Ochs

Now Available at the UNIVERSITY STORE and MELODY Corner, Downtown Amherst

UMass Gov't. Professor Edits New Political Science Journal

The UMass Press has published the first issue of "Polity," the new journal of the Northeastern Political Science Associations.

The new political science quarterly will serve the interests of political scientists in the northeastern states including New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

UMass government professor Loren P. Beth is managing editor of the journal which will publish in September, December, March and June. Two other University professors made written contributions to the first issue of the journal. William C. Havard, chairman of the department of government, wrote the essay on "Polity: Its Origins and Objectives." Howard Wiarda, assistant professor of government, contributed a research note on literature about the Dominican Republic crisis.

Dedicated to the proposition that political science is a vital field and that its findings can be scholarly, literate and contemporary, the journal will attempt to stimulate creative exchange. Review policy will stress depth-evaluations of a small number of scholarly publications.

NOTICES

MENC:
MENC meeting Wed., Oct. 2 at 7:45 in Worcester Room of Student Union.

EQUESTRIAN CLUB:
7:30 p.m., Oct. 2 in Grinnell Area see "The Parade of Morgans." All welcome.

THE CLASS OF '70 LECTURE COMMITTEE:
Meeting for all members of the committee on Wed., Oct. 2 at 6:30 in the Hampden Room.

HEYMAKERS:
Attention Squares! Henry returns for another Fun Nite Wed. at 7:30 in WoPe.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB:
Election of officers and coffee hour Wed. Oct. 2 at 6:30 in Colonial Lounge.

NEWMAN CLUB:
Wed. Oct. 2 at 8 p.m. in Social Hall, the first in a Diocesan series "Road to Christian Maturity" is a lecture WHY FAITH by Fr. Desilets of Our Lady of the Elms. All interested persons invited.

STUDENTS FOR A DEMOCRATIC SOCIETY:
All students wishing to organize SDS please attend this important meeting at 8:30 p.m. Wed. in the Worcester Room.

SCUBA:
Meeting Wed. Oct. 2 at 7:00 in Curry Hicks. Please bring masks, fins, snorkle, and dues! Instructors come few minutes early please.

ANGEL FLIGHT:
Angel Flight Rush will be held tonight in Dickinson Hall from 7-8 p.m. All upperclassmen are invited.

SPORT PARACUTE CLUB:
Membership drive Oct. 2 at 7:00 in Commonwealth room. No experience or equipment needed. Movie will be shown.

YING REPUBLICANS:
Meeting 6:30 Wed. Oct. 2 in Machmer W16.

PINNING:
Margie Davis, '72, Patterson to Barry Blair, '70, Mackimmie.

ENGAGEMENTS:
Andrea Fitt, '69, Pierpont to Jeffrey Burgess, '69, Moore.
Estelle Caron, '71, St. Joseph's Nursing School, Providence, R.I. to Roger Gamache, '71, T-6.

SPORT PARACHUTE CLUB:
Meeting at 7:00 Oct. 2 in the SU Ball room. No experience or equipment necessary. New and old members and others with prior experience encouraged to attend. Movie to be shown.

COLLEGIATE FLYING CLUB:
General meeting in SBA 4 at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 2. All members urged to attend for discussion of ground school and flying contest.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY:
7:45 p.m. Thurs. Oct. 3 in Public Health Aud. Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of UM Med School will speak on the UM Med School and Med School Admission Policies. Membership will be taken and plans will be discussed for the formation of a student-faculty pre-med committee. Everyone welcome, regardless of class year.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS:
First meeting at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 3 in Nantucket Room. Discussion of national election . . . student involvement. Club elections. All students welcome.

GALBRAITH . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

Ambassador of the U.S. to India. He was actively concerned during these years with American assistance policy and Indian economic development.

The efforts of Ambassador Galbraith were warmly received in India and his services had the distinction of being regarded with equal approval by the Indian and American governments. In his A Thousand Days, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr. notes that "From time to time the President took pleasure in announcing that Galbraith was the best ambassador he had."

Mr. Galbraith is a widely respected reviewer and critic and his book reviews have been known many years to readers of The New York Times and Book World.

Prof. Galbraith is a Fellow (in literature) of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. He is a member of the Century Association and the Federal City Club of Washington.

MURPHY GUILTY . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

The blood spattered and charred clothing of Rollins was also introduced as an exhibit.

State chemist Francis Hankard of the Department of Public Safety and parties who had allegedly talked to Murphy just before the fire and just after his arrest testified Monday.

Atty. Foley maintained that the state had not shown any connection between the items and Murphy, but the Judge ruled that the items were not confiscated in an "unreasonable search" contrary to the Fourth Amendment. He said the state had introduced sufficient evidence for the admission of the items.

The state had called to the stand Bruce MaCombie of Leverett who had talked with Murphy after his arrest and Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Kelly of Slippery Rock, Pa., formerly of Amherst, who had talked with Rollins by telephone just before the fire.

Every student on the campus who fails to vote in the Senate elections is throwing away his right to have a responsive Student Government. The administration will then start making decisions for us.

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS

OCTOBER 3, 6-9 P.M.
IN RESIDENCE HALLS

COMMUTERS, FRATERNITIES, SORORITIES } 9-5:30 in Student Union Lobby

YOU MISSED NOMINATION PAPERS
BUT IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO START
A WRITE-IN CAMPAIGN.

STUDENT POWER!

Question your candidates, if dissatisfied, run yourself.

STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE

The English Pub

presents a refreshingly different way to spend a THURSDAY evening –

come hear
CHARLIE BRADSHAW
at the piano

DATAPAIR

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

DANCE
Q-Club
EVERY TUESDAY, THURSDAY
Happy Hours – Friday
Tel. 253-9214

"Kubrick provides the viewer with the closest equivalent to psychedelic experience this side of hallucinogens!" –Time Magazine "A fantastic movie about man's future! An unprecedented psychedelic roller coaster of an experience!" –Life Magazine "Kubrick's '2001' is the ultimate trip!" –Christian Science Monitor

MGM PRESENTS A STANLEY KUBRICK PRODUCTION

2001 a space odyssey

EVES. 8:15 STUDENT
WED. • SAT. • SUN. GROUP
MAT. 2:15 RATES
SEATS FREE
SHOWTIME LAST 14 DAYS PARKING

Cinema 1 RT. 5 RIVERDALE RD. W. SPFLD. 733-5131

AT 2 – "INTERLUDE" AT 3 – "SALT & PEPPER"

MAMA'S PIZZA

FREE DELIVERY
Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.
253-9858

5-2550 Hotline

Now Is The Time To Add The Excitement of Stereo Tape... The New Sony Solid-State Model 255 Stereo Tape Deck Recorder!

If you waited until now to buy a stereo tape recorder, or if you are thinking of replacing or adding to your present stereo set-up, and you're looking for the most for your money, investigate the new Sony Model 255 Stereo Tape Deck Recorder.

All of Sony's latest design improvements have been combined into the remarkable new Solid-State Model 255. It has no less than eight new professional-type Sony "Tape it Easy" features that you would expect to find only in much higher priced equipment. And, of course, you can count upon the extraordinary 'Sound of Sony.'

$159.50

SONY SUPERSCOPE
AMERICA'S FIRST CHOICE IN TAPE RECORDERS

MELODY CORNER INC.
EVERYTHING AUDIO
79 South Pleasant St. • Amherst, Mass. 01002

School of Education Announces Marathon Events

The following listing summarizes the events presently scheduled for the Marathon. Later offerings will be announced at an information booth at the School on Thursday.

EDUCATIONAL MARATHON
(All events in School of Education bldg.)

12:15 p.m.

Dwight W. Allen, Dean, School of Education, "WHAT'S ALL THE FUSS ABOUT?"
An introduction to the MARATHON, a comment on the scope and objectives of the Planning Year; a reflection on the state of American education. (Auditorium)

1:00 p.m.

Richard J. Clark, Jr., "WHAT'S MICRO-TEACHING? A DEMONSTRATION"
A demonstration of the new technique of using video-taped feed-back and critique for the systematic development of teaching skills. (Auditorium)

David Day, "PRE-SCHOOL EDUCATION"
A discussion of developments and possibilities in early childhood education. (Room 126)

James Black, "THE DRAFT AND HOW TO STAY IN THE CLASSROOM"
A member of the Resistance leads a discussed on the various draft classifications and procedures. (Room 128)

"GOODNIGHT, SOCRATES"
(see film descriptions) Room 226-228.

2:00 p.m.

Gerald Weinstein, "STRENGTH TRAINING: A DEMONSTRATION FOR INNER CITY SCHOOLS"
A demonstration of the use of "Strength Training Clinics" to prepare teachers for work in inner-city schools in particular, and all schools in general, by the author of The Disadvantaged: Challenge to Education. (Auditorium)

David Yarrington, "READING: THE GREAT DEBATE"
A demonstration of various technical equipment used in teaching and a discussion of the role of all teachers as reading experts. (Room 125)

Hank Holmes, David Schimmel, "THE PEACE CORPS AND EDUCATION"
A discussion of some of the existing educational and cultural possibilities made available through the Peace Corps. (Room 126)

Richard Coffing, "THE NEW CORPORATE DESIGN FOR EDUCATION"
A discussion of some of a dramatically new model and structure for educational and business institutions (Room 223)

Linda Johnson, Bill Hasson, "WHY ENTER EDUCATION: THE NEW FRONTIERS"
A "rap" session on the possibilities of change and challenge in and through education. (Room 225)

Daniel Jordan, "THE MUSICAL APPROACH . . ."
The use of musical analogies to suggest points of view on education. Concert pianist Jordan has appeared innumerable times on national television as pianist and lecturer. (Auditorium)

David Schimmel, "INTERNATIONAL EDUCATION: A NEW THRUST"
A consideration of the possibilities of a major new thrust for the School of Education. (Room 126).

Jimmie Fortune, "RESEARCH POSSIBILITIES IN EDUCATION"
A discussion of the variety and excitement of new research possibilities in education, learning theory, etc. (Room 130)

Ernest Anderson, "COMPUTER ASSISTED INSTRUCTION — A TIME SHARING DEMONSTRATION"
From 3:00 p.m. until 5:00 p.m., Anderson will be available to demonstrate the use of the time-sharing systems at the University and discuss computer uses in education. (Montague House, next to the School of Education, first floor behind the kitchen)

George Urch, "EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES OVERSEAS"
A discussion of opportunities for innovative administrators and teachers in countries outside the U.S. (Room 228)

Louis Porcelli, "NEW DIRECTIONS IN FILM USAGE"
(See film descriptions) (Room 226-228)

4:00 p.m.

James Mass, "CREATIVE PROBLEM SOLVING — A MULTI-MEDIA APPROACH TO TEACHING"
Mass, a Professor of Psychology at Cornell University, is nationally known for his use of film music, and slides to approach the problem of creativity. (Auditorium)

Peter Wagschal, "THE NON-TEACHER"
A seminar exploring the ramifications of the idea of teachers as students and students as teachers, also a discussion of the "non-school". (Room 125)

Masha Rudman, "THE THEATRE 2000"
A consideration through discussion of the possibility of training teachers in all fields solely through the use of the theater. (Room 126)

Lyman Brainerd, "TERMITES IN THE CELLAR, OR THE TRADITIONAL SCHOOL"
A discussion focusing on the assumptions behind traditional educational practices and an attempt to move toward a more vital and relevant conception of learning experiences. (Room 223)

"WHAT HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS THINK"
From 4:00 p.m. on, a group of Amherst High School students will be available to discuss their view of secondary education. (Room 128)

5:00 p.m.

FILM: THE QUIET ONE"
The portrayal of how counselors reached a withdrawn boy at the Wiltwyck School, an institution for disturbed, delinquent boys. A classic which is noteworthy because it also explores in detail how a boy's ghetto experiences made him withdraw. (Auditorium)

William Hill, "REVOLUTION IN MUSIC AND ART"
A discussion of the social revolution in art and music—what are artists really saying with their easels and axes, brushes and bodies? (Room 126)

Lloyd Kline, "HOW TO TEACH A LARGE GROUP WITHOUT LECTURING"
A discussion and demonstration of the possibilities of not lecturing when in a lecture hall. (Room 223)

Walter Reuling, "TANDEM TEACHING"
A proposal for configuration of the student teaching experience to make it easier, effective, and more meaningful. Discussion (Room 225)

6:00 p.m.

Jack Woodbury, Elliott Williams, "A MODEL EXPERIMENT IN BLACK-WHITE EDUCATION"
Discussion of a special urban affairs program conducted for high school students in greater Chicago. (Room 126)

Mike DeBlois, "THREE DISCUSSION METHODS"
There's more tahn one way to lead a discussion. (Room 223)

David Sadker "EDUCATION IN THE MILITARY"
What kind of education is possible in the military? Discussion. (Room 225)

Ray Johnson, "A NEW DESIGN IN SCHOOL STRUCTURE"
An exploration of the new possibilities, now being tried country-wide, to individualise instruction through "FLEXIBLE SCHEDULING". (Room 226-228)

RUBIN . . .

(Continued from page 1)

They said there would be a rally on the Capitol Mall on Thursday, the day the protest leaders have been summoned to testify.

Rubin and Hoffman are leaders of the Youth International Party, known as Yippies. Dellinger led the peace march on the Pentagon a year ago. The others joining in the court suit were Rennie Davis, Thomas E. Hayden and Robert Greenblat.

Rubin, who appeared at a HUAC hearing two years ago wearing an American Revolutionary War uniform, said he was dressed for this week's investigation in "the guerrilla outfit of the future."

FBI SAYS . . .

(Continued from page 3)

had kep pace by securing a record number of convictions.

The report showed 2,558 violations of the Federal Bank Robbery and Incidental Crimes statutes, with 1,105 convictions recorded.

Describing the protection of civil rights as "an essential principle in a democratic society," the report pointed pridefully to its part in apprehending James Earl Ray, the accused killer of Dr. Martin Luther King jr., and listed other prominent civil rights investigations concluded during the year.

7:00 p.m.

Allen Ivey, "WHAT ABOUT SENSITIVITY TRAINING?"
An explanation and demonstration of the possibilities of developing individual sensitivity and inter-personal communication by a well-known expert in Human Relations. (Auditorium)

Carol Carter, Robert Mackin, "GOLD IN THE GHETTO"
A discussion seminar exploring the fantastic potential of young people presently blocked by the failure of educational systems. (Room 126)

Mark Cheren, Dick Nessen, "STUDENT RIGHTS AND STUDENT POWER"
A meeting of students to consider the developing place of students in the educational order. (Room 227)

FILMS: "SUMMERHILL" and "ORPHEON"
(See film descriptions) Room 224-228.

Atron Gentry and Robert Woodson, "BLACK-WHITE ENCOUNTER AND EDUCATION"
A session—to be followed by workshops—in inter-racial understanding and communication, led by the directors of two of the most successful ghetto service organizations in the United States. (Auditorium)

Susan Brainerd, David Lepard, "ORPHEON"
A demonstration of a new method of teaching and interpreting music. (Room 126)

Jack Ahern, "CAREER OPPORTUNITIES IN EDUCATIONAL ADMINISTRATION"
A discussion of a rapidly changing, wide-open field. (Room 223)

9:00 p.m.

Arthur France, "CONFRONTATION IN THE INNER-CITY"
A discussion, based on recent videotape interviews with participants on the confrontations at the Gibson Houses in Boston and the Ocean Hill-Brownsville area of New York City. (Auditorium)

Staff, "BLACK-WHITE ENCOUNTER WORKSHOPS"
A "follow-up" to the Auditorium sessions. (Rooms 125, 126, 223, 225)

Chad Osborne, "WHY NOT LEARNING AS ENTERTAINMENT?"
The School's guitarist explores the possibilities of learning as entertainment through project presentations. (Room 124).

FILMS: "ALEXANDER AND THE BROKEN HEADLIGHT" and "THE IDAHO TEST"
(See film descriptions) Room 226-228.

10:00 p.m.

Richard Lacey, "FILMS AND DISCUSSION" "FLAVIO", "RUNNER", "TOYS"
Three startling and poignant films that have important implications for education; discussion follows. (Auditorium)

Todd Zachus, "SKINNER AND BEHAVIOR MODIFICATION"
A discussion of research in the field of behavioral learning theory. (Room 126)

David Sadker, "UNIONIZE OR NOT UNIONIZE"
A discussion of teachers unions—problems and possibilities. (Room 124)

Sacco and Black, "RELAXATION"
Exercises devoted to the relaxation of the exhausted "marathonite". (Marks Meadow Gym)

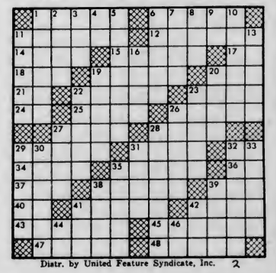
11:30 p.m.

FLICKS / PLUS: "LAUREL AND HARDY FILMS—AND—MORE"
A spirited contention that a few laughs are more educational than most so-called "instructional" films. Chad Osborne, a folk and blues guitarist, will also join the action. (Auditorium)

1. THE QUIET ONE: The film shows how counselors reached a withdrawn boy, at the Wiltwyck School, an institution for disturbed, delinquent boys. A classic which is noteworthy because it also explores in detail how a boy's ghetto experiences made him withdraw. (Auditorium, 5:00 p.m.)
2. SUMMERHILL: A. S. Neill's famous school whose students are given freedom, but not license; controversial.
   ORPHEON: A short cartoon which echo's many of the issues in SUMMERHILL about discipline and freedom. Discussion following. (Room 226-228, 7:00 p.m.)
3. GOODNIGHT, SOCRATES: When urban renewal destroys a Chicago Greek community, the change is reflected through a boy's eyes. Raises the question of how a young person copes with rapid technological change. (Rom 226-28, 1:00 p.m.)
4. RUNNER: A short study of a champion distance runner, with narration by W. H. Auden. A film essay in excellence. PLAVIO: Gordon Parks' film about a boy in dire poverty; poses some of the most disturbing questions in education. TOYS: One of the most startling and controversial films on violence – short but not sweet—produced by the National Film Board of Canada. (Auditorium, 10:00 p.m.)
5. ALEXANDER AND THE BROKEN HEADLIGHT: Some of the most delightful animation recorded on film.
   THE IDAHO TEST: An amazing study of national standardized examinations as seen by students. Written, filmed, and produced by a group of high school students in California. (Room 226-228, 9:00 p.m.)
6. "NEW DIRECTIONS IN FILM USAGE": A special demonstration led by Louis Porcelli of North Reading, Massachusetts, on developments in film uses for high school students—a project supported by a special Office of Education grant. (Room 226-228, 3:00 p.m.)
7. LAUREL AND HARDY: Lots of Laughs, and, we contend, more educational than many so-called "instructional" films. (Auditorium, 11:30 p.m.)

Purchase your school year calendars from
A. J. Hastings
Newsdealer & Stationer
45 So. Pleasant St.
Open Weekdays
8 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Sundays
8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667



Cinema 2
Now Thru Tuesday
SAMMY DAVIS
PETER LAWFORD
"Salt and Pepper"
Nightly ex. Fri. & Sat. at 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat. at 6-8-10
Cinema 1
Thru Tuesday
SIDNEY POITIER
"For Love of Ivy"
Nightly at 7 & 9
NEXT TO ZAYRE'S
Coming Cinema 3
Campus Twin Cinema
256-6411

MDC HOT NEWS LINE 5-2550

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

ERA ME STAIN
SALSIN MASTER
NT ENTAILS TI
ID DEBT EATS
GOAD DIES ERIS
ONION LETS EN
PROA NOTE
SW BONA PARKS
TITE SNIP RIND
ANTI UTES CE
IN DRASTIC ER
REVAL AREOLA
REAMS LE EGS

ACROSS
1-Lures
6-Widewake
11-Hidden
12-Sea nymph
14-Great Lake
15-Evaluates
17-Artificial language
18-Young boy
19-Leases
20-Chapeau
21-Near
22-Bodies of water
23-Walk in water
24-Pronoun
25-Poems
26-Reveals
27-Performs
28-European
29-Quarrels
31-Nerve network
32-A continent (abbr.)
34-Paddles
35-Enclosures for animals
36-Note of scale
37-Mature
38-Sat for portrait
39-Article of furniture
40-Sun god
41-Metal tubes
42-Toward shelter
43-Traps
45-Singing voice (pl.)
47-Retail establishment
48-Narrow, flat boards

DOWN
1-Chastise
2-Tart
3-Anger
4-Symbol for tellurium
5-Hits
6-Poker stakes
7-Dregs
8-Bitter vetch
9-Note of scale
10-Angry outburst
11-Musical sign in Psalms
13-Lavishes fondness on
16-War god
19-Underworld
20-Rabbit
22-Pilfers
23-Diminishes
26-Lessened
27-Challenge
28-Hates
29-Floats in air
30-Heathens
32-Guides
33-Assistants
35-Thicket
38-Dock
39-Blemish
41-In favor of
42-Collection of facts
44-Near
46-Spanish article

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE WIZARD OF ID — by Brant parker and Johnny hart

PEANUTS

2 OCT

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1968
Page 8 Vol. XCVII, No. 30

Last Night's Intramurals

TOUCH FOOTBALL SCORES
Fraternity League
Spartan Division
KS 22, ZN 19
PSD 42, DC 0
TC 23, PLP 6
Trojan Division
TKE 12, ASP 6
QTV 13, LCA 6
SPE 42, PSK 0
Athenian League
BKP 56, APO 0
Independent
National League
Roadrunners 30, Little Fellas 6
Bouncing B's 20 3M's 16
Bulldogs 19, BX 0
Resident Hall League
West Division
Hills's 37, Chestnuts 0
Bears 19, Hicks 8
Trojans 7, Hoovers 6
East Division
Rams 29, Flaming A's 0
Aces 28, Phallics 12
TUG OF WAR
Southwest League
Smasher - Colonials forfeit
Colt 45's 2, Spartans 0
Terrors 2, Canned Cools 0
Canned Cools 3, Spartans 0

Tonight's Intramurals

Time	Field	Teams
6:30	1	Eagles-Maples
	2	Maroons-Oaks
	3	Grants-Pines
	4	Position-American
7:30	1	Pied Pipers-Redwoods
	2	Broncos-Hemlocks
	3	Barracudas-Brigade I
	4	Position-Central Tower
8:30	1	Position-South Tower
	4	Position-North Tower
9:30	1	ZN-TC
	2	PLP-PSD
	3	KS-DC
	4	LCA-SPE
	5	PSK-TKE
	6	QTV-ASP

Falcons Gain New Coach

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, one of pro football's most colorful characters, Tuesday was given the job of building the hapless Atlanta Falcons into a National Football League contender.

"Van Brocklin has been controversial" Atlanta owner Rankin Smith said in announcing the firing of Norb Hecker as coach and the hiring of Van Brocklin. "But he has one of the finest minds in pro football."

Van Brocklin, 42, has been given a long-term contract and promised a free hand in trading and drafting players, Smith said. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The former NFL quarterback and coach of the Minnesota Vikings for six years was still at his home in Medicine Lake, Minn., when the Falcons announced the coaching change.

"I've got a house for sale," Van Brocklin said before leaving for Atlanta, adding that he had not had time to think about changes he planned for the Falcons, who have won but four times since joining the NFL in 1966.

Smith said he fired Hecker after "an agonizing night" because "the club was not making the kind of progress I had anticipated."

Cross-Country Rosters Due Today

Vanquished Redmen Eye Delaware

Fusia Praises Bulls' Ricelli; Redman Depth Thins

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

At the Varsity 'M' Club luncheon yesterday which honored Ed Sarno, Steve Rogers and Randy Robinson, Coach Vic Fusia stressed that, "If we hit, like we did against Buffalo and play sound football, we should beat Delaware Saturday."

Concerning last Friday's loss to Buffalo, Fusia cited the collapse of the UMass passing game as the chief reason for the loss. "We couldn't pass because we couldn't protect. We couldn't contain their defensive right tackle in particular," according to Fusia.

BILL SROKA

The Bulls defensive right tackle, whom Fusia termed, "a Sicilian," was Joe Ricielli, A 6'2, 242 pound senior from Syracuse, N.Y. Ricielli, who's just coming into his own in his final year was the fifth man in the UMass backfield for much of the game. He personally knocked down two Adams' passes and got his hands on a couple of others besides coming up with several key tackles.

Fusia restated his feeling that we had the open receivers. He stated that, "none of the Buffalo deep backs were good pass defenders, they were all inexperienced." UMass' delivery system wasn't clicking however.

Following in Tim Adams', footsteps fullback Craig Lovell was honored by being named to the ECAC division 1 football team for his Friday night exploits against the Bulls. Also named to the squad were Boston College's Dave Bennett who ran through Navy's defenses to the tune of 156 yards; Rutgers' quarterback Bruce Van Ness and Brown halfback Tom Lemire who averaged 4.8 yards per carry against Rhode Island. Linemen earning recognition were ends Bob Neary of Holy Cross and Rick Lussen of Yale, tackles Mike Reid of Penn State and the aforementioned Ricelli, guards Bob Kelcourse of Dartmouth and Joe Rinaldi of Colgate and center Lloyd Weston of Pittsburgh.

CRAIG LOVELL

The Redmen will be extremely thin at several positions next weekend. Dick Donlin is out with a knee injury so Mike Cooney is being put back at offensive tackle along with Jim Nagle. Mike Sarowsky, a 6'2, 205 pound junior from Peabody, will be the only back-up man.

MIKE COONEY

A similar situation is present in the defensive tackle slots. Marty Scheralis will probably be on the sidelines with an ailing shoulder while Fred Hupprich, the other pre-season starter is recovering from a broken collar bone sustained in the Maine game. Mark Toner, who made his varsity debut against Buffalo, will team up with sophomore Bill Sroka, a 6'2, 205 pound, Auburn, N.Y. native to fill the vacancies.

Dennis Gray, the veteran weak-side linebacker, will hopefully return to his post against Delaware, after missing the Buffalo game. Tom York's cast will be removed today and he'll give the bum wheel a tryout.

Coach Bob Graham's scouting report pictured Delaware as a well-drilled team with a "fancy Dan" offense. According to Graham, who watched the Blue Hens beat Hofstra, 35-0, and succumb to Villanova, 16-0 the past two weekends, "they like to start off real fancy. They use double reverses, screen passes, criss-cross counter plays, besides putting the wingback or tailback in motion on many downs."

Graham believes that if you stop their initial fancy starts, they'll be forced to revert back to normal football. Delaware's key offensive threats appear to be quarterback Tom DiMuzio and end Ron Withelder. Both are juniors. Withelder is a former high-school All-American with great hands while DiMuzio, a converted halfback, specializes in the bootleg.

The Blue Hen defense features a veteran linebacking corp headed by Little All-American John Favero. The defensive backfield is also a strong point with three or four defenders returning from last year.

JIM NANGLE

Tickets for the Delaware game are available at Room 251 in Boyden. Unfortunately there are no student rates. All tickets are going for $3.50.

McLain vs. Gibson in Series at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A classic pitching showdown between Detroit's Denny McLain, the first 31-game winner in 37 years, and St. Louis' Bob Gibson, the 1967 hero, opens the World Series Wednesday at Busch Stadium with the home-town Cardinals favored.

Gibson, shooting for a record-tying sixth straight series victory, comes into the big confrontation with a dazzling 1.1 earned run average and 13 shutouts. McLain, baseball's story of the year, is the first to win 31 since Lefty Grove in 1931.

Most observers expect the first game to set the pattern for the Series in which the Cardinals are listed as 8-5 favorite. It is probable that the two pitching aces will meet three times if the Series goes the seven-game route.

The bare statistics give the Tigers the edge in power with 185 homers to 73, but the speedy Cards have outhit the American League champs in average .249 to .235 and have stolen 110 bases to 26 by Detroit.

Game time is 1 p.m. CDT or 2 p.m. EDT with radio and television coverage by the National Broadcasting Company.

As both clubs clinched the pennants with room to spare, most of the usual pre-opening hysteria seems to be absent. It undoubtedly will heat up when they get down to work. A sellout crowd of 54,575 will be on hand.

Because Lou Brock's speed and base stealing ability ran Boston into the ground last year McLain was asked Tuesday how he planned to handle the Cards' left-fielder.

"We'll have to get him out or let him hit a home run," quipped the glib McLain, who has new answers for all situations. "That will keep him off the bases."

Mayo Smith, Detroit manager, is gambling by playing Mickey Stanley, his regular center fielder, at shortstop in order to get Al Kaline into the lineup. Stanley has played only eight games at short. It will be the first Series for Kaline, 33, who has been playing major league ball with the Tigers for 16 years.

Cardinal's Manager Red Schoendienst is sticking with the same lineup that played most of the season and beat Boston last fall. Although Roger Maris, who will retire after the Series, has been sharing right field with Bob Tolan, the redhead has the ex-Yankee slugger in right.

The pitching matchups after the first game call for Detroit's Mickey Lolich, 17-9, to face the Card's Nelson Briles, 19-11 in Thursday's second game. After a day for travel Friday it will be Earl Wilson 13-12, for the Tigers against Ray Washburn, 14-8, in Detroit Saturday.

Frosh Hoopsters
ALL freshman basketball candidates meet in Room 251, Boyden Building, 7 p.m. tonight.

No Free Play
Boyden will be closed to free play on any Sat. when there is a home football game. It will be open on all other Sat. unless otherwise notified.

Denny McLain Stays Cool

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Denny McLain, Detroit's $35,000 pitcher and $100,000 organist, quickly moved Tuesday to cool his confrontation with Bob Gibson in the first game of the World Series by pointing out he may be more excited when he opens in Las Vegas.

"I think people are blowing this thing between Gibson and me out of proportion," McLain said in the Tiger dressing room as he sat on a stool sipping soda pop and humming "Fly Me to the Moon" in between answering questions.

"The Series is the Tigers vs. the Cardinals. It isn't Gibson vs. McLain. We'd look mighty funny out there all alone. This whole buildup about a confrontation doesn't bother me at all. I may be more excited when I open in Las Vegas."

McLain, who pitched for $35,000 this season and will pitch for $100,000 on a post-season tour with his organ combination, tempered that statement by saying he didn't mean to imply that the World Series wasn't important.

"This is different," he said. "Opening in the Series is the greatest thing that's ever happened to me, but it's different. Only one word is involved in pitching in the Series and it begins with P. Pride."

Did that mean money wasn't factor for the 24-year-old right-hander who anticipates his 31-victory season should bring him a $100,000 salary next year in addition to his many post-season appearances and endorsements?

"Heck, money isn't involved at all," McLain replied. "Besides, with what I'm going to make, my Series check is going to income tax anyway. The only thing involved is that I'd love to have a World Series ring that says 'Champions.'"

It's Not New to Gibson

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bob Gibson, pointing out he's been here before, said Tuesday he isn't awed by the aura surrounding his heralded duel with 31-game winner Denny McLain in the first game of the World Series.

"It doesn't affect me one bit," the St Louis right-hander said. "Pitchers' records don't make that much difference. I've been beaten by guys I didn't even know.

"They did the same thing last year when I pitched against Jim Lonborg in the seventh game. I'm just going to go out and try to win. I'll just do my best, that's all. It doesn't matter who I'm pitching against. A matchup against anybody in a World Series gives you a challenge. I just have a special feeling about winning. If McLain had won 20, I'd want to beat him just the same—even if he won 10 games."

Gibson, who will be seeking his sixth straight complete series game victory Wednesday, believes the rest of the teams have been overlooked.

"I don't look at it as a matchup between two pitchers," he commented after taking batting practice. "It's a match between two great clubs. I think more emphasis should be made of St. Louis playing Detroit."

Asked to compare the Tigers with the Boston Red Sox, whom he beat three times last year, the 22-game winner said:

"Detroit might hit more homers, but I don't think they hit for average as well as the Red Sox. But I'm not concerned about home runs because if I have my stuff, they aren't going to hit a lot of homers."

Senate Reconsiders Action Barring All ROTC Credit

By Chris McGahan
Student Govt. Editor

In a surprise move, the Senate voted last night to reconsider its action of last week abolishing academic credit for ROTC. The bills were introduced by Senator Sue Kinner, but on a Parliamentary technicality she was not allowed to enter them for consideration, as she had not voted with the prevailing side in previous action. Senator Paul Papaluca, who had supported the bills, then introduced the reconsideration motions. The motions both passed by an 11-8-1 margin. Senator Kinner then moved that reconsideration be postponed for one week. This motion passed with no trouble.

Senate Vice President Frederic Hartwell presided at the regular Senate meeting last night in the absence of President Paul Silverman. Hartwell announced that the status of the alternate of the Fine Arts Council appointed last week was in question. It is not certain whether the issue will be resolved at the next meeting of the Council or not.

Three Justices were selected for Area West Judiciary: Kathy Lucey, Kenneth Rutherford, and Alan Byer.

Elections will be held in Pierpont and Moore at a later date, according to Student Government Affairs Chairman Deverton Cochrane. Write-in efforts will be allowed in Van Meter North and John Quincy Adams Lower as the result of the defeat of a motion seeking to postpone them, since no candidates took out nomination papers.

Moving on to consideration of the regular agenda, Senator Joe Kilmartin withdrew his motion to appropriate approximately $1300 to cover the Operetta Guild debt. The Fine Arts Council voted last week to cover this debt.

An act appropriating "not more than $350" to purchase a tape recorder for use by the General Court and other judiciaries was committed to Finance Committee for one week.

Two amendments cutting a $400 appropriation for the Academic Affairs Committee were defeated. Chairman Richard Story indicated he needed the funds for two types of consultants in the preparation of the Committee's master curriculum report. Senator Joe Kilmartin claimed that the Senate should not allow itself to be controlled by the financial committees.

Finance Committee Chairman Pat Beharry said it was not in the best interests of the Senate to appropriate the funds without knowing exactly how it would be used. In defense of the bill, Senator Laurence Marcus said the Senate should stop pinching pennies and appropriate the funds. After further debate the bill was passed by a show of hands.

The Senate approved the constitutions of Coolidge Lower and the Collegiate Flying Club and accepted a revised Hamlin House constitution. It committed the constitution of Emerson House to Activities Committee for further study and passed the Residence Hall Act of 1968.

Vice President Hartwell withdrew a bill providing for compulsory guest register attendants and a companion bill on the grounds that, if passed, they would indicate de facto approval of the guest registration provisions of the Open House policy.

A special Business motion introduced by Senator Kilmartin instructing the Vice President to investigate the possibility of seeking equal time to respond to a WHYN radio editorial critical of recent Senate action on the ROTC issue was passed on a voice vote.

A motion binding the use of certain Martin Luther King Jr. Social Action Committee funds for tutorial purposes only was sent to Budgets Committee for study. The bill was introduced by Senate Treasurer Alan Gauthier.

Amendments to the Activities Act were committed to Activities Committee for additional work, wrapping up the regular session.

The Senate adjourned after passage of the ROTC reconsideration motions with a bare quorum of 21 members present.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
VOL. XCVII, NO. 18 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS THURSDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1968

Jug Band Plays On at m.f.p. Rally

Approximately 35 people attended the first rally of the m. f. p., Massachusetts fringe politics, party at the campus pond yesterday afternoon. The m. f. p. is a group of students now running for the Student Senate joined in a temporary political party to publicize themselves and their ideas.

Abe Fortas Requests Nomination Withdrawal, Pres. Johnson Accedes

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a strongly worded letter to President Johnson deploring attacks on the Supreme Court, Justice Abe Fortas bowed to Senate opposition Wednesday and requested withdrawal of his nomination to be chief justice.

Shortly thereafter, Johnson issued a statement saying that with "deep regret" he was acceding to Fortas's request and withdrawing the nomination.

"I believed when I made this nomination, and I believe now, that he is the best qualified man for this high position," the President said.

Johnson's nomination of his long-time friend and adviser to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren appeared to have been doomed Tuesday when the Senate refused to cut off a filibuster by opponents.

A 45-43 vote to put the Senate's antifilibuster rule into effect was 14 short of the required two-thirds majority of senators voting. And taking into account six additional senators who did not vote but announced their position, the count would have been 47 to 47.

The 58-yr.-old Fortas, appointed to the Supreme Court by Johnson in 1965, became the first nominee for chief justice to fail a Senate confirmation since 1795, when George Washington's nomination of John Rutledge was rejected 14 to 10.

Referring to the Senate's refusal to cut off a filibuster by opponents of Fortas's confirmation, Johnson said:

"The action of the Senate, a body I revere and to which I devoted a dozen years of my life, is historically and constitutionally tragic."

Supporters of the nomination said Fortas was the first Supreme Court nominee to be denied confirmation by a filibuster, although the Senate has refused to confirm about one-sixth of all Supreme Court nominees.

Although there were scattered demands in the Senate that Fortas resign from the bench, he said in his letter to Johnson that he will be on hand to participate in the court's work when it opens its new term on Monday.

Fortas, in requesting withdrawal of his nomination, noted that the Senate had refused to end the filibuster against calling up his nomination and also that the Supreme Court will start a new term on Monday.

He said that continued efforts

(Continued on Page 2)

Fierce Fighting Breaks Out In Downtown Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Bloody fighting erupted in downtown Mexico City Wednesday night. Troops in armored cars opened up with machine guns on student snipers, and gangs of youths roamed streets shooting and throwing gasoline bombs.

An American cameraman said a motorcycle policeman had been shot dead at his side. The photographer, Carl Sorenson of Columbia Broadcasting System, said troops smashed his camera and held him prisoner for more than an hour. Scattered reports from the scene indicated there were scores of wounded.

Thousands of persons were said to have been arrested.

The student-army crossfire sent residents of the area and passers-by fleeing screaming for cover.

The battle was the latest and possibly the worst outbreak in more than two months of demonstrations and occasional violence in the Mexican capital. Student leaders have objected to what they say is government repression.

Wednesday night's disorders, which lasted more than three hours, broke out after student leaders, faced with a massive deployment of federal troops and armor, called off a scheduled protest march against the administration of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

The battle area was in the downtown section of the capital, several miles from the Olympic village at the southern edge of the city, where final preparations were under way for the 1968 Olympic Games, which open this month.

Hundreds of residents fled from their buildings in the apartment district, scene of a bloody gunfight last week.

First SDS Organizational Meeting Held Last Night in Worcester Room

By Richard Lane
Staff Reporter

The first organizational meeting of Students for Democratic Society on campus was held last night in the Worcester Room. Over 30 students showed up for what spokesman Steve Gaman termed a session "to try to get an SDS organization here on campus."

The interested members agreed to set up the office of presiding chairman, secretary-treasurer, and temporary publicity and research committees. Nominations for offices are to be next Wednesday night at SDS's first open meeting of all interested membership.

Gaman, a junior and former member of SPA (Students for Political Action), led a group discussion of SDS goals and issues in response to queries from students as to just what the role of SDS is.

Among the primary issues with which SDS is to be concerned are: (1) abolition of academic credit for ROTC on campus, (2) request the Southwest Dining Commons to stop serving California grapes in sympathy and support of striking grape growers in that state, (3) no student loyalty oaths, (4) no military-industrial recruiting on campus (i.e. Dow), (5) anti-war and anti-draft action, and (6) disarmament of campus police.

Gamen stated that the ROTC issue should "be one of our main activities" and that the group must "persuade the Faculty Senate that we have an issue here."

Speaking on the basic philosophy of the Students for Democratic Society Gaman said that "The war and alienation on campus have put students in a psychological frame of mind to accept SDS. They can really take part and do something now. SDS is an outlet."

Various other students indicated that SDS should concentrate its efforts on local campus issues rather than more national ones, or that it should serve as an "awareness" group for informing students.

One student said that SDS should "increase dialogue on campus among groups who try to avoid each other, like hippies, frat members and 'back-of-the-hatchers'."

He expressed the overall strategy of the organization is to "put your body on the line for what you believe in," through civil disobedience, passive resistance, sit ins and teach ins.

Gaman pointed out that SDS membership as a consensus would decide what is "ripe for action," and that each local chapter is autonomous to "do its own thing." He did, however, state that there might be possible coordinated programs with

(Continued on Page 2)

OCT 3

Politics '68

Humphrey

JACKSONVILLE, Fla (AP)—Hubert H. Humphrey, who came South to hit George Wallace where he lives, took out instead after Richard Nixon Wednesday by saying: "Before I get through with him he'll have a blowtorch on his political tail like he never had before."

Humphrey flew from Knoxville, Tenn., to Jacksonville where a lunch hour crowd estimated by police at 10,000 turned out to listen.

The Vice Pres. said he was in an uphill fight against the Republican nominee who, he said, was running a cool and composed compaign.

Then Humphrey told the crowd he would heat up the blowtorch for Nixon.

At a downtown corner Humphrey warned against extremism of the right and left as he turned his attack to Wallace.

He warned against extremists "who chant and disrupt meetings" and the Vice Pres. added: "There is another form of radical extremism—just as dangerous, just as corrosive to our liberties—the extremism of those who preach disrespect for our courts, disrespect for our laws, who play to the basest fears and deepest suspicions of our people."

Nixon

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon, campaigning on a colonial college campus and then in a Navy city, accused the Democratic administration Wednesday of compromising future American naval strength and permitting the Soviet Union to mount "a major challenge against Western seapower."

In a speech prepared for a rally, Nixon said:

"Americans must come to grips with two critical facts. First, the Soviet Union is making a very impressive bid to become the world's No. 1 sea power: Second, the U.S. has not been doing what it should to keep them from over taking us."

In his naval speech, Nixon attacked the Democratic administration specifically for "departmental dragging of feet" in building nuclear carriers and their escorts.

"Moreover, her navy is one of the most modern and efficient afloat," Nixon said of Russia, "while two-thirds of our ships are of WW II vintage."

Despite this, Nixon said the U.S. Navy has removed 50 ships and 100 aircraft from active service.

In his speech at William and Mary, Nixon drew heavily on American history as he called for a renewal of personal freedom.

This freedom, he added, "is not a license to disrupt, but it is a liberty to dissent; not a duty to destroy, but an obligation to challenge."

Wallace

EN ROUTE WITH WALLACE (AP) — George C. Wallace said Wednesday during a campaign swing through the industrial Midwest, that he would name his third-party running mate at a Thursday morning news conference.

Speculation that his choice would be retired Air Force Gen. Curtis LeMay was strengthened by a report that LeMay had boarded a nonstop flight from his home in Los Angeles to Pittsburgh.

And, in a speech repeatedly almost drowned out by hecklers in Canton, Ohio the former Alabama governor called for a television debate with Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon.

Wallace said he understood Nixon planned to send "truth squads" on the campaign trail behind Democratic candidate Hubert H. Hunmphrey.

"I'll tell you what, Mr. Nixon," Wallace said, "let's all of us get on national television and debate and tell the truth on each other."

Wallaces first stop was in Akron and at the airport there he said he would name his running mate at a 10 a.m. news conference in Pittsburgh. He said his running mate would be at the news conference.

As he did in earlier stops in Illinois and Michigan, Walalce made strong appeals for labor support in his Ohio appearances.

Muskie

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie blitzed Chicago Wednesday with a dozen campaign stops, telling audiences that Richard M. Nixon is dodging the question of a Vietnam bomb halt, and calling George Wallace "bad for the country."

Twice in taped television interviews Muskie sparred verbally with Republican questioners. On a show taped at WMAQ-TV for showing Saturday, Muskie clashed with W. Clement Stone, president of the Combined Insurance Co. of America and a Nixon adviser.

Muskie accused Nixon of "indulging in generalities," and added that the Democratic candidates are not spending two or three days every week at Key Biscayne getting a tan. Muskie, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, was referring to a vacation spot frequented by Nixon.

On another taped show, over WBBM-TV, Muskie told Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., that Vice President Hubert Humphrey's bombing stand was as specific as it could be.

"I think he made it more clear than Mr. Nixon or Mr. Agnew," he said.

Muskie's day began at a breakfast meeting with Mayor Richard J. Daley and 200 other Democrats that was closed to the press. Muskie and Daley did not appear together in public during the day.

QUONSET CLUB GOLF DRIVING RANGE
OPEN MONDAY THRU SUNDAY

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

Suzanne Williams Convicted in Boston, Sentencing Set for October 14

BOSTON (AP)—Pacifist Suzanne Williams, who sloshed paint on Selective Service files in Boston last June, was convicted on two counts Wednesday of willfully injuring and attempting to destroy government records.

Ten men and two women were on the jury for the trial of Miss Williams, 19, of Leverett, who has been arrested six times previously for activities in pacifist demonstrations.

Judge W. Arthur Garrity, Jr. set Oct. 14 for sentencing, both for Miss Williams and for Francis T. Femia, 20, of Williamstown, W. Va., who pleaded guilty to the two charges on which she was convicted.

Bail for Miss Williams was set at $5,000.

The prosecution dropped a third count, interfering with Selective Service, against both defendants, eliminating the necessity for trying Femia. He had pleaded guilty earlier to the first two counts and is serving a four-year term for refusing induction in another case.

The paint-dumping incident occurred June 4 when two persons entered a Selective Service office and startled clerks by jerking out drawers of file cabinets and pouring black paint into them. The two fled before police arrived.

Two of the clerks — Betty Fisher and Jeanne McCarthy — testified at the trial, but neither could identify Miss Williams positively as one of the paint-sloshers.

However, Lawrence T. Faux, assistant superintendent of the building which houses the Selective Service, identified Miss Williams as one of the persons on hand shortly after the incident when he arrived.

Miss Williams later sent letters to newspapers and news services identifying herself as one of the persons involved. She was arrested in Northampton Sept. 11 while applying for a driver's license when a clerk recognized her and called authorities.

FOSTAS . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

to secure confirmation, even if eventually successful, "would result in a continuation of the attacks upon the court which have characterized the filibuster—attacks which have been sometimes extreme and entirely unrelated to responsible criticism."

Fortas said he hoped withdrawal of his nomination would "help to put in motion a process by which there will be an end to destructive and extreme assaults upon the court."

SDS MEETING . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

the Martin Luther King Council and Committee for Student Action.

The issue of SDS going into RSO (Recognized Student Organization) was urged pro and con with the consensus that the disadvantages of membership would expose SDS officer names to the Administration in addition to the fact that the SDS'ers may operate with RSO through a radical front group known as SMILE, anyway.

Gamen stated that he personally feels that "it is not necessary to go RSO."

Graduate Senate Meeting Held Last Monday Night

The first meeting of the Graduate Student Senate was devoted to a preliminary report of its election committee, a discussion by President Thomas Minogue of the past work of the group and its officers, and some of its prospects and projects and to the organization of its standing committees.

The meeting which was held Monday evening in the Student Union was attended by 50 people.

David Yelton, vice-president of the GSS and chairman of the elections committee, reported that of 47 UMass departments enrolling graduate students, elections had been held in 30 at which 43 senators were elected. These 30 departments represent over two-thirds of the graduate student enrollment on campus. But not all seats for which the 30 departments are eligible are filled, Yelton said. Three departments have decided not to elect senators at this time. Yelton reported that his committee had not been able to get in touch with graduate students in 14 departments. More detailed information on Graduate Student Senate elections will be released soon.

Six standing committees were organized at the meeting. They include a committee for academic affairs and the procedural code, one for social affairs, a financial committee to consider the budget and to protect financial interests of graduate students, a committee for publicity and publications, and committees on housing and on parking. According to GSS spokesmen, committee membership is open to any graduate student, whether or not he is a senator. Graduate students may sign up for committees through their departmental senators, or at GSS meetings.

The meeting closed with the appropriation of 50 dollars from GSS funds to reimburse the officers for typing and correspondence expenses accrued this summer. The next meeting of the body is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 14 at 8:30 p.m.

Murphy Gets Life

Former University of Massachusetts student Steven H. Murphy, 23, was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for the murder of his college roommate.

Murphy also received a sentence of not more than six and no less than four years for arson in connection with the fatal beating.

Defense attorneys plan to enter an appeal within 10 days.

Murphy, who stood calmly as the sentence was announced, will be taken to the Massachusetts State Prison in Walpole to serve his sentence. He showed little emotion upon hearing the decision, but did attempt to speak to his lawyers. He was restrained by Amherst Police Chief Francis Hart, head of the department which led the murder-arson investigation.

Murphy was convicted of the murder of George Rollins, 23, of Belmont, a UMass senior majoring in German. According to District Attorney Grife, the "cool, calculating murderer" had beaten Rollins about the head with a mason's hammer in their Amherst rooming house on March 23, 1967.

To cover up his crime Murphy allegedly set fire to the room. Rollins was rescued but died two weeks later in the Burns Unit of Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

To a freshman girl in J.Q.A. or Coolidge, Uncle Sammee Munichullio of Holiday Inn says "Hi, Girl Welcome to U. of M." 10/4

The Academy Award winning film classic Music Box is coming to this campus! 8t 3rd

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware. Tu-Fri. 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412 10/7

HELP WANTED

Banjo player experienced in Gay 90's Sing-Alongs, Dixieland, Ragtime. Call 544-6722 eve's. 10/3

College students earn $60 a week for 3 eves and Sat. Scholarship grants avail. Call 584-7467 10/4

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

Must sell 1965 MG 110 4 doors sports sedan, 4 cylinder, 4-speed, radio, back up lites, extras! 30 plus M.P.G. dark green, excellent condition, 35,700 miles. Best offer. Call 549-1318

'57 Ford—Very good condition new tires (not retreads), new ball joints recently installed, engine and transmission in excellent condition. Carburetor recently rebuilt. Engine timed and tuned ready to drive—even muffler and tailpipe only 4 mos. old—A good buy for only $250.00. Call evenings 549-0939. 10/3

1961 Chevrolet Impala, 2 dr. hotp., 283, auto., P.S., $425 or best offer. 253-3628 10/8

1966 PORSCHE 912 22,000 orig. miles, Excellent condition throughout. Gray with black interior. Headrests, Blaupunkt AM, Koni shocks. Call: Don Thimas, 546-6428 after 6:00. 10/10

ROOMMATES NEEDED!

Need female roommates to live in huge new furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at 467-7918 any time. 10/8

WANTED

Banjo Band—Contact Social Chairman at 542-2186. 10/8

Cocktail waitress, pleasant atmosphere. Call 546-8180 or 584-6543. 10/7

SQUAW TALK
There will be a meeting for all girls interested in writing for the Daily Collegian's Women's Page Thursday at 6:45 p.m. in the Daily Collegian office.

CORRECTION
Senate Elections will be held in Van Meter North and John Quincy Adams Lower this evening, from 6-9 p.m. No nomination papers were turned in for these two constituencies, so no names will appear on the ballot. Elections in these two dorms will be strictly of a write-in nature.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Peace Corps Volunteers Describe Experiences

By Patt Frances
Staff Reporter

Peace Corps volunteers work with people in many of the world's underdeveloped countries.

"The Peace Corps is a unique experience because it is an isolated one. Before I went in, I was confronted with, say race riots, and it was easy to get assurances from my friends who were like me. Then I was sent alone to a country where people were very unlike me."

"You don't have ready-made fun in the host countries. You spend most of your time talking to people because they spend most of their time talking."

This is how Alan Maurer of South Windham, Conn. sums up his two years as a Peace Corps volunteer in Colombia. Maurer is on campus this week as a Peace Corps representative.

Judith Musick of Berkeley, California who served in Brazil, agrees and adds, "There are days of satisfaction, of a feeling of accomplishment. But there are many, many days of boredom and of violent homesickness. You can put in almost any negative adjective. Many volunteers come back very disillusioned, while many others are applying for an extension of service."

With Maurer and Miss Musick for the rest of the week are Fred Cookson, Alex Larson and Mohamoud Samater, a native of Somalia in Africa. When questioned about the reactions of host-country natives to the volunteers, Samater replied, "It varies. Those people are there to do something practical for the country. If the government didn't need them, I don't know why they asked for volunteers."

All of the representatives have worked at the booth in the Student Union lobby, as well as making appearances at dormitories and addressing on-campus groups. The most-asked questions concern whether or not volunteers are an 'arm of the U.S.Government', or if they are free to do as they please.

Their answer is that Peace Corps people are in host countries as individuals, and are entitled to their own opinions about U.S. policies. A volunteer has to use his head about in-country politics. According to the ex-volunteers, many times a volunteer isn't successful unless he is subverting the U.S. government.

Miss Musick says, "We're working at a local level, with the people. By forcing a change in their expectations, that will force a change in their government, which will, in turn lead to a change in the U.S. foreign policy."

Another frequently-asked question is "Why did you join?" Answers vary among the volunteers. They generally agree that they have mixed motives, but the basic motives are to help the people of the countries, and to get a good personal experience. However, as Miss Musick asks, "Who are we to be so presumptuous as to think we're going to help anyone?" Maurer adds that "You're running away from something as well as running toward something."

There are problems that stem from the cultural barriers, at first. Samater related a story of how the people in his country were very disapproving of two volunteers who walked in public holding hands because women were relegated to a secondary place in their society. However, the people realized that the volunteers were from a different culture, and there was no problem.

There are certain problems that confront the volunteers because of the relative positions of male and female in the host country. Natives are sometimes taken aback at seeing a girl on a construction crew or a male volunteer teaching cooking. But the volunteers compensate by making themselves tops in a traditional role, too.

The best summing up of the whole experience was a general agreement that "Peace Corps works with people, for people, and because of people."

ROTC Proponants Charge Senate With Unfair Hearing Last Week

By Ron LaBrecque
Senior Reporter

The leading spokesman of the Student Senate bloc which voted against the bills recommending the abolishment of academic credit for ROTC courses said Monday that "the facts were not presented fairly and were clouded by emotion at the Senate meeting last week."

The proponent of credit for ROTC, James Moran '69, Senator from Brett, said "the senators presenting the bill did not research properly and did not give factual references to support their stand."

Moran, who is also Deputy Group Commander in the Air Force ROTC, the second highest student position, said in an interview Monday that more work will be done in the Senate in an effort to withdraw the bills, passed on Sept. 25, before they reach the Provost and the Faculty Senate for further action.

"The vote that night was not representative. Only a third of the Senators were present. Since the meeting I've talked with senators who voted for the bill and are having second thoughts" he said.

Moran was displeased with the emotion displayed at the meeting. "The audience added a great deal to the emotion. The people who had come to the Senate meeting had singled out ROTC on non-factual grounds. Their conception of ROTC as a group of bloodthirsty killers has no basis." he said.

Proponents of the bills stated that ROTC courses have no place in a University, however, Moran said that the courses he takes as a member of ROTC are as relevant as those taken by any student in any department.

ROTC courses are as much a part of my education as an accounting course is for majors in business administration." Moran states.

"We are not taught exclusively how to march and use a rifle. History, philosophy, and ethics are as much a part of our discussion courses as any other here at the University" he added.

Concerning the strictly military aspects of the course which are the objections the opponents of credit for ROTC present, Moran told those present at the Sept. 25 Senate meeting that "the military is a reality and I will be placing my life on the line in two years to protect your right of free speech."

Moran said that he hopes to find support for his position from Senate members and the student body.

"There is much work to be done and much of it will be done in the Student Senate," he said.

Student Rights, Powers Group To Hold Meeting Tonight

Should we establish a "Center for Student Rights and Student Power"?

Thursday, at 7:00 p.m. in room 227 at the School of Education, there will be a meeting of people interested in considering alternative strategies for establishing such a center.

The purpose of such a center would be to accelerate the movement to expand opportunities for responsible student participation and exercise of decision making authority in education systems at every level.

One of the underlying assumptions motivating this purpose is that twelve to twenty years in an autocratic institution, or an institution where democracy is limited to operation at the top, does not prepare people to participate in a democratic society.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

GORMAN RESIDENTS
VOTE
ELTERS
FOR SENATOR

Northampton Volunteer Program
All Interested
Meet in
S.U. Lobby
THURS., OCT 3
6:30 P.M.

The English Pub
REMEMBER !
Coats and ties are required wear after 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday

Cinema 2
Now Thru Tuesday
SAMMY DAVIS
PETER LAWFORD
"Salt and Pepper"
Nightly ex. Fri. & Sat. at 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat. at 6-8-10
Cinema 1
Thru Tuesday
SIDNEY POITIER
"For Love of Ivy"
Nightly at 7 & 9
NEXT TO ZAYRE'S
Coming Cinema 3
Campus Twin Cinemas
256-6411

NOTEBOOKS
LOOSELEAF BINDERS
FILLER PAPER—Plain —Ruled
INDEX CARD—3 sizes Plain or Rules Colors—White PAPER CLIPS
RULERS
WATERPROOF SCHOOL BAGS
PENCILS
PENS—BIC Lindy Papermate Schaeffer Scripto
CIGARETTES
FILM & FLASHBULBS
TYPEWRITER PAPER 3 Brands
WRAPPING PAPER
LABEL IT, Label Maker
TELEPHONE Locks
ERASERS
SCRATCH PADS
PENCIL SHARPENERS
STAPLERS
ENVELOPES
WRITING TABLETS
MAGNETIC LETTER CLIPS
PASTE, CEMENT, GLUE
TYPEWRITER RIBBON
DESK BLOTTERS (3 sizes)
RUBBER BANDS
THUMB TACKS
MARKING PENS— Pentel Carter Scripto Flair
HIGHLIGHTERS
LIGHTERS
SCOTCH TAPE
MAGIC TAPE
MYSTIC TAPE (all colors)
CREPE PAPER & Streamers
PLAYING CARDS
GIFTS From 15c to $100.
HUMMEL FIGURES
CHARLOT BY J. ORIGINALS
BARRICINI Candy
PIERCED EARRINGS
PINS
HANSON STAINLESS STEEL
PEANUTS YO YO's
STUFFED ANIMALS
HEX SIGNS
ANTIQUE COLORED BOTTLES
ASH TRAYS
THE TOY, You Destroy, To Enjoy
CHANUKA MENORAHS
MEMORIAL LIGHTS
AMBASSADOR CARDS
CONTEMPORARIES
RED FARM STUDIO
PARTY GOODS Napkins Plates & Cups Invitations Tallies Table Covers
GUEST BOOKS
SCRAP BOOKS
AUTOGRAPH BOOKS
ADDRESS BOOKS
TRAVEL BOOKS
DIARIES (1 and 5 year)
BABY BOOKS
WEDDING ALBUMS
WEDDING INVITATIONS
TRAVEL ALARMS
GO-GO CLOCKS
OIL LAMPS
SCENTED CANDLES
SCENTED SOAP
INCENSE
SEALING WAX STICKS
SEALING WAX SETS
NOTE PAPERS
CENTERPIECES
COASTERS
BOWS
RIBBONS
GIFT WRAP

Most items can be imprinted at a nominal cost.

SEE US
THREE C'S
191 N. Pleasant St.
253-9306
Open 9:0 a.m.-5:30 daily
Friday til 9:00
Sunday 9:00-1:00

13 OCT 3

Carl Braden, Newspaperman Of The 'Southern Patriot' Speaks In Amherst

A Southern newspaperman, Carl Braden of the "Southern Patriot", a paper published in Louisville, Ky., will speak at an open meeting at the Unitarian Church in Amherst at 8 p.m. tonight.

Braden, his wife Anne and two associates were charged with sedition in Kentucky last year during a drive to organize Kentucky coal miners and then were released when a federal court declared the states have no jurisdiction over sedition and found the charges unconstitutional.

Sedition charges were also filed against Braden in 1954 when he and his wife helped a black family to buy a house in a white suburb. The house was dynamited and the Bradens were accused of causing the explosion to bring about the overthrow of the government. Braden was tried, convicted, and sentenced to 15 years in prison. After eight months imprisonment, he was released when the Supreme Court voided all state sedition laws.

He was sentenced to a one year prison term in 1958 for contempt after telling the House Un-American Activities Committee, "My beliefs and my associations are none of the business of this committee."

Braden is a native Kentuckian who has been in journalism since 1930. He has worked for the Chicago Tribune and Newsweek Magazine.

He is executive director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund. This group is an organization of Southern people, white as well as black, to tackle economic problems and to investigate the distribution of political power.

His visit is sponsored by the Martin Luther King, Jr. Social Action Group, the Valley Peace Center and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

All Interested May Attend Sierra Club Meeting Oct. 7

The University of Massachusetts chapter of the Sierra Club will meet Monday, Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Newman Center and invites all in the area interested in conservation to attend.

The program will include a briefing on the work and objectives of the club and selection of members for the local chapter's conservation committee. The program for a Sierra Club conservation conference Nov. 23 and 24 at UMass will be discussed.

Index Contract For 100th Edition

Contract for printing volume 100 the Centennial Edition of the UMass Index has been let to Delmar Printing Co. of Charlotte, N.C. The announcement was made this week by Editor Lowell H. Fitch, pre-law '69.

The contract is the second largest of any in the country, according to industry sources. The largest contract for printing a campus yearbook is said to be granted by the University of Maryland, which publishes 18,000 copies. The UMass Index will distribute 12,800 next Fall.

Besides its record press run here, the 1969 Index will also include a record 300 color pictures.

Assisting Fitch in supervising production are Managing Editor Lyne R. Waldman, psych '69; Photo Editor Alan L. Marcus, Chem '70; Business Manager Carl Slotnick, Govt. '69; Campus Coordinator Lorrey J. Bianchi '69; and Chief of Personnel and Public Relations Jill A. Wolf, Rec. '69.

Library Hours

Regular Hours
Monday-Friday
8:30 a.m.-10:00 p.m.
Saturday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Sunday—2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.
Additional Reserve Desk Service and Study Hall Hours
Sunday-Thursday
10:00 p.m.-12 midnight
Note: Study Hall hours begin Sunday, September 15. There will be no Study Hall hours on Sunday, November 10.
Vacation and Intersession Hours
Monday-Friday
8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.
Saturday, Sunday—Closed

Irene and Orlin Corey Cited

Irene and Orlin Corey will be cited for their contribution to the theatre and Lynn Ely for her theatrical endeavors in New York and Connecticut.

Recipients of regional citations will include Director-Producer Harvey Grossman (Players Theatre of Manchester, New Hampshire); Robert Guest of Cambridge (Cambridge High and Latin School); Northeastern University; The Boston Herald-Traveler Corporation; and George C. White, founder of the Eugene O'Neill Memorial Foundation in Waterford, Connecticut.

The Moss Hart Memorial Award trophy will be presented to the Staples Players of Staples High School, Westport, Connecticut, for their production of WAR AND PIECES, and an Honorable Mention will be given to the Arlington (Mass.) Friends of the Drama for last season's production of THE MADWOMAN OF CHAILLOT.

DURING THE AFTERNOON, a demonstration of fencing techniques for Shakespearean productions will be presented by an acting group from the American Shakespeare Festival Theatre in Stratford, Connecticut.

The New England Theatre Conference was founded in 1952 to develop, expand, and assist theatre activity on the community, education, and professional levels in New England. Members join in sharing knowledge and know-how and in matching requests and resources; they unite to renew and strengthen the sources of their common devotion and more effectively serve the theatre's work.

FEATURE
STAFF
MEETING
MONDAY NIGHT
7:30 P.M.
NORFOLK ROOM STUDENT UNION

Seniors To Teach School May Take National Teacher Examination

College seniors preparing to teach school may take the National Teacher Examinations on any of the four different test dates announced today by Educational Testing Service, a nonprofit, educational organization which prepares and administers this testing program.

New dates for the testing of prospective teachers are: November 9, 1968, and February 1, April 12, and July 19, 1969. The tests will be given at nearly 500 locations throughout the United States, ETS said.

Results of the National Teacher Examinations are used by many large school districts as one of several factors in the selection of new teachers and by several states for certification or licensing of teachers. Some colleges also require all seniors preparing to teach to take the examinations. The school systems and state departments of education which use the examination results are designated in the Bulletin of Information for Candidates.

The Bulletin of Information for Candidates contains a list of test centers, and information about the examinations, as well as a Registration Form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from National Teacher Examinations, Box 911, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey, 08540.

Firemen Familiarize Themselves With New Campus Facilities

Constant surveillance of campus by the Amherst Fire Department has resulted from physical changes at the university, according to a spokesman today.

To keep pace with the relocation of roads, buildings, hydrants, and electrical facilities the fire department conducts routine tours of the university two or three times weekly, he said.

Such runs through campus allow firefighters to familiarize themselves with the various buildings, hydrant facilities, and approach routes, as well as temporary changes such as trenches and detours, which might cause fatal delay in an emergency.

An informal pre-fire planning comprises a large portion of the campus tours, as firefighters set hypothetical approaches to certain buildings, based on space available for apparatus, hydrant capacity, and the avoidance of equipment traffic jams.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

FENCING
LEONARD TURK
Fencing Master
at
The Academy of Dance Arts
103 North Pleasant
Amherst 256-6650
or call
549-0888 253-2670
Evening classes

The Brothers of
ALPHA PHI OMEGA
cordially invite all Freshman & Upperclassmen to a SMOKER at MEMORIAL HALL at 9:00 p.m.
ALPHA PHI OMEGA is a national service fraternity

The shoe that will save you every time –
SALVATION
by Nina
at
BOLLES
FOR DISTINCTIVE SHOES

DATAPAIR
Five-College Date Matching Service
☆ Each registrant matched to at least 3 members of the opposite sex on the basis of mutual compatibility.
☆ $3.00 registration fee provides free additional matching.
☆ Registrations processed within 72 hours.
Registration questionnaire at your dormitory, or write: THE DATA PAIR PROJECT BOX 521 AMHERST, MASS. 01002

R. W. GRAVES RADIO & TV
197 North Pleasant St.
256-6913
FREE Stand when you buy this RCA Portable Stereo
Translucent cover protects changer. Six speakers. Studiomatic 4-speed changer, audiophile cueing control, tubular Feather Action Tone Arm, diamond stylus.
The APARTMENT Model VLP62
BOTH $159.95

No Immediate Senate Action Anticipated On University Security Sidearms Issue

Student Senate Vice President Richard Hartwell last night announced that the Senate would "definitely not take any action tonight" on the issue of disarming University security forces of sidearms.

Hartwell's remarks were aimed at correcting an erroneous story appearing in a Northampton newspaper Wednesday which stated that, "Agitation by some segments of the student body and a few faculty members at the University of Massachusetts to stop university security forces from carrying sidearms will come to a head at the next Wednesday session of the Student Senate."

In an interview with the Collegian the Senate V.P. stated that while "there certainly is sentiment on campus to disarm University police," specific action would not be taken before next week or the following one.

The Northampton news article had gone on to say that a Senate spokesman announced that a bill is being drafted which would urge that all campus policemen who now wear pistols be required to remove them except when engaged in guarding money.

Hartwell reported that any such bill would have to go to a special Senate committee for study before any action.

The bill, as proposed, would be less restrictive than the complete elimination of weapons for security forces urged by some students and faculty members. As at other universities, critics have declared the wearing of sidearms by police in a "peaceful academic community" is not necessary.

Similar efforts to eliminate guns for security forces on other campuses have met with varying results, but a survey of many large universities shows that only seven do not arm their men with pistols, and in several of these cases the chemical MACE is carried instead. Other universities whose officers do carry guns also use MACE, other weapons and in some instances trained dogs.

Police at the University of Connecticut are involved in a controversy over the "no gun" edict of President Homer Babbidge, who has ordered that sidearms be worn only on limited occasions.

Members of the security forces at UConn., who belong to the Connecticut Employers Union, Inc., have defied the order and threaten to seek a hearing and call in the FBI and Connecticut State Police to testify.

Officers and members of the UMass security force, including Col. John C. Marchant, director, and Chief Alexander P. Blasko, indicated today they would also protest vigorously against any attempt to disarm the university police.

Not only do officers guard money in the course of their duties, but they are frequently called upon to assist the Amherst department and State Police in various duties, Chief Blasko pointed out.

In addition, there could be instances on campus where a policeman might have to depend on his weapon to protect himself or others from deadly harm, the chief noted. He cited the shooting of a girl student two years ago, and the case of a disturbed student who had threatened others with a loaded shotgun as instances in which some form of protection is required by police.

"We have an open campus here," Chief Blasko said, "and anybody could come in and threaten life and property."

Members of the UMass force are continually reminded that their guns are solely for their own protection against deadly harm, or in guarding the lives of others and in protection of valuables, the chief said. The men never use their weapons as threats, and are under strict orders to keep them holstered at all times except in extreme emergency, he said.

Should the antigun bill pass the Student Senate, it would be forwarded through the UMass provost to the Faculty Senate and the board of trustees. Similar proposals in the past have received no administration support.

At Amherst College, it was learned today, security guards who had been issued guns only a short time ago now have been ordered not to bear arms in the pursuit of their duties.

Northampton Volunteers Begin Hospital Orientation Tonight

Northampton Volunteers is a service group designed to facilitate the desperate needs of the mental patients at Northampton State Mental Hospital and to provide a stimulating learning experience for those volunteers who participate in the program.

Anyone interested in joining the program need only to meet the bus in front of the Student Union at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, October 3, or any Wednesday night following. There is no commitment for weekly attendance and everyone, with or without special talents, is encouraged to come. The patients need companionship and personal attention more than any talents anyone could offer.

Recruitment night on Thursday is an orientation program which all prospective volunteers should attend. Small orientation sessions will be held on Wednesday nights for volunteers unable to attend Recruitment Night. Ten colleges from this area participate in the volunteer program. Share your ideas with other interested students.

If you have any questions or suggestions please feel free to contact Walter Mullin: 546-8975 or Ellen Levy: 546-8258.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

Every student on the campus who fails to vote in the Senate elections is throwing away his right to have a responsive Student Government. The administration will then start making decisions for us.

STUDENT SENATE ELECTIONS
OCTOBER 3, 6-9 P.M.
IN RESIDENCE HALLS

COMMUTERS, FRATERNITIES, SORORITIES } 9-5:30 in Student Union Lobby

YOU MISSED NOMINATION PAPERS
BUT IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO START
A WRITE-IN CAMPAIGN.

STUDENT POWER!
Question your candidates, if dissatisfied, run yourself.
STUDENT SENATE PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE

From left to right: Cadet Nadler, Cadet Col. Legg, Major General Burba, Cadet Killeen, Cadet Beaudet, Cadet Fontaine.

Major General Visits UMass Army ROTC

Major General Edwin H. Burba, Deputy Commanding General of the First U.S. Army, visited the UMass Army ROTC Detachment recently. The General was greeted by UMass Professor of Military Science, Colonel Joseph A. Bohnak at La Fleur Airfield.

Following his arrival at Dickinson Hall, the active Army staff of officers and enlisted men was introduced to General Burba. He then attended a coffee hour and was introduced to the Cadet Brigade Commander, Cadet Colonel Donald B. Legg and the Cadet Brigade Staff. The General is in charge of ROTC Affairs for First Army.

His visit gave a special opportunity for discussion with cadets. This June, following graduation, senior cadets will be commissioned in the grade of second lieutenant.

Assisting at the coffee hour were several members of the Colonel's Cadre and the Precisionettes.

Before leaving, General Burba met with UMass President John Lederle at Whitmore.

IN A CRISIS, it takes courage to be a leader . . . courage to speak out . . . to point the way . . . to say, "Follow Me!" In a crisis, it takes action to survive . . . the kind of decisive action that comes from a man of sound instinct, as well as intelligence.

If America is to survive this crisis . . . if the youth of America are to inherit a sane and even promising world, we must have courageous, constructive leadership. The kind of leadership that only George C. Wallace—of all Presidential candidates—has to offer. That's why young Americans who really think support Wallace.

THEY KNOW that it takes courage to stand up for America against the pseudo-intellectual professors, the hippies, the press and the entire liberal Establishment. And they've got that courage.

Thousands and thousands of tomorrow's leaders—the thinking young men and women of America who have courage and who are willing to act—are joining YOUTH FOR WALLACE. You should join, too.

There are no dues. Send in the coupon to receive your membership card, the YFW Newsletter and a copy of "STAND UP FOR AMERICA," the story of George C. Wallace.

Youth for Wallace
1629 K St., N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20006
(202) 296-8192

I am ..... years old and pledge to support George C. Wallace for President. Please send me my membership card in YOUTH FOR WALLACE and the Newsletter.

PRINT NAME _____
MAILING ADDRESS _____
CITY, STATE, ZIP _____
SIGNATURE _____ PHONE _____

OCT 13

Southwest Arrives

The physical development of Southwest is now basically complete. The architect and contractor have given their contribution to the evolution of a residential college. Now the opportunity to transform a group of brick and concrete buildings into a real alternative to traditional dormitory life is the responsibility of the more than five thousand residents of Southwest.

Today the residents of Southwest have the opportunity to accept that responsibility in the election of assemblymen to the newly formed Southwest Assembly. According to Southwest '68-'69, "It is the view of the University that students should control their own environment insofar as they are willing to do so." The Southwest Assembly shall be a reflection of the will of the residents only if the residents express their will via the ballot.

The purpose of the Southwest Assembly shall not only be the initiation of academic, cultural and social programs for the Southwest residential college, but also the solution of immediate problems in the Southwest area. Both of these functions are valid and desirable. The full potential of Southwest is largely unrealized. But it is hoped that the funneling of talents and power into one organization shall facilitate this process of realization.

It is necessary that the residents of Southwest do more than vote. "You are what you eat," and the Southwest Assembly shall be what the students feed it. Ideas, encouragement, protests and questions are essential if the assembly is to be effective. The residents of Southwest have the chance to become more than another "bedroom community."

The Veep Is Weak

It would appear that presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey is at long last attempting to let go of Johnson's apron strings in a last ditch attempt to stand on his own feet and maybe gain some badly needed support. But in trying to prove to the American public that he is his own man, Humphrey, in reality, is showing his true colors as a man of little faith in himself and in his positions.

It is no secret that Humphrey's campaign has suffered greatly from the throngs of youthful dissenters who plague and harass him wherever he goes. It is also no secret that Humphrey has also suffered because of his link with the present administration and its foreign and domestic policies. And now it seems that Humphrey is trying to kill two birds with one stone as it were.

By softening his stand on the Vietnam war, Humphrey is not only trying to pacify his loud youthful dissenters, but he is also trying to prove to the public that he can stand on his own, apart from the administration. But in doing such, Humphrey has shown himself for the weak character he is. Is a man who is so easily swayed by a minority of well publicized dissenters or by an opposition slogan terming him, "Johnson's Boy", the best man to lead our country during these troubled times?

Please don't mistake this writer's view of Humphrey's position change as a hawkish one. This attack is not directed on the position change itself. It is however, an attack on the character of a man who is bidding for America's highest office. And it has been my experience that a man who backs down once will back down again. Humphrey surely would have been better off sticking to his beliefs rather than buckling under pressure.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert '69

Issue Editor: Dick Boucher; Louisa Varnum, Sandra Czaporowski, Claudia Hamberg, Pat Pempart; Editorial Day Editor: Dave Baskin; Staff—Keith M. Bromery, Michael Darman, Karen Aude. Sports Editor: Martha Curran.

Bisdergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Right, George—The Streets Of This City Aren't Safe"

INSIDE REPORT:

The Coalition Crumbles

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

ROCKVILLE CENTRE, N.Y.—By any rational standard, the Long Island AFL-CIO should have had no difficulty endorsing Allard K. Lowenstein, nominee of the Democratic and Liberal parties, for Congress from suburban Nassau County's South Shore.

Lowenstein, 39, an ardent and articulate liberal of national stature, would be a sure vote for organized labor on Capital Hill. Besides, his opponent is right-wing ideologue Mason Hampton, who has described a liberal as "a Democrat with his brains kicked out." A leader of New York's Conservative party, Hampton wangled the Republican Congressional nomination in a back-room deal. If Hampton, once elected to Congress, gave labor a single vote, it would be accidental.

Yet, when Lowenstein was ushered into a 40-minute closed-door session with labor potentates at the Garden City Hotel one afternoon last week, bread-and-butter issues that once moved labor's heart were not mentioned. Rather, the labor chieftains kept peppering Lowenstein with one question: Why don't you endorse Hubert Humphrey for President?

The representative of the Plumbers Union was particularly insistent. By failing to back Humphrey because of his Vietnam stance, dove Lowenstein would insure that the Vice President could not carry his district. That being the case, the plumber implied, labor would make sure that Lowenstein also was a loser.

Lowenstein, a founder of last fall's national "dump Johnson" movement which evolved into the McCarthy campaign, explained that his endorsement of Humphrey would have little impact on the certain loss of Humphrey in this district. His argument hit a stone wall. As Lowenstein had suspected all along, the Long Island AFL-CIO that night refused to endorse him.

"As Lowenstein had suspected all along, the labor leaders that night refused to endorse him (though the full Long Island AFL-CIO four days later reversed that action by a ten-vote margin).

This exercise in irrationality is only the latest in a series of attacks from pro-Humphrey Democrats here that makes it likely Lowenstein would lose to Hampton in this marginal district. And that has dire national implications for the Democratic party.

Lowenstein's loss in itself would be significant. With Sen. Eugene McCarthy sunning himself in the south of France, Al Lowenstein is one of the few peace Democrats pleading with radical youths to keep faith with the political process rather than to enlist in comic open revolutions of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) or flee in exile to Montreal. Should Lowenstein lose, thanks to sabotage from regular Democrats, one last shred of hope in the system by youths who have come here from all parts of the country will be destroyed.

But beyond Lowenstein, this Congressional race reflects in somewhat exaggerated terms the decomposition of the old Democratic coalition under stress of the Vietnam war.

The rebuff from labor was only the most recent assault on Lowenstein since returning here from the Chicago convention. The Liberal party demanded his support of Humphrey as the price for its endorsement. But he won it anyway by force of rhetoric. Local Democrats have attempted to insure his defeat by entering another Jewish Democratic candidate under the standard of the "United Independent Party." One regular Democratic leader last week informed him that he would inform his followers to vote for Hampton unless Lowenstein embraced Humphrey.

Yet, given Humphrey's decision not to abandon President Johnson on Vietnam, Lowenstein would lose far more than he would gain by backing him now.

Late that night, after labor rebuffed him, Lowenstein was backed into the corner of the kitchen at a cocktail party of his supporters here. Several were furious, charging he had betrayed "the movement" by endorsing regular party candidates for state senator and state assemblymen from their district. If he had also backed the Humphrey-Muskie ticket, they would have bodily ejected him from the kitchen.

All this points to the incompatability of today's Democratic coalition. Doves and regulars can no longer cooperate with each other in the interest of beating Republicans but, instead, blame each other for impending defeats.

Furthermore, crumbling of the coalition at the grass roots reveals the superficiality of claims of unity from state Humphrey headquarters now established, tardily, at Manhattan's Dryden East Hotel. Although McCarthy and Humphrey leaders embrace each other there, their rank-and-file supporters here on Long Island continue the blood feud that can be satiated only by catastrophe on Nov. 5.

(c) 1968 Publishers—Hall Syndicate

Part 2 — The Inside Line

Elections' 68

Chris McGahan, Student Government Editor

Elections will be held in 50 constituencies tonight for 76 seats in this year's Student Senate. Seven of these will be un-contested barring eleventh hour write-in campaigns. Two constituencies, Van Meter North and John Quincy Adams Lower, will be strictly write-in efforts, as no one had filed nomination papers by the deadline last week. Two other houses, Moore and Pierpont, have had their election postponed pending Senate resolution of an apportionment question. Student Government Affairs Committee Chairman Dev Cochrane says he hopes that the problem will be settled by next week, "two weeks at the latest."

A word of congratulation should be extended to Senator Bruce Balboni and his Public Relations Committee for the outstanding job they have done in generating interest and even contests in most constituencies. It is at the same time unfortunate that there are still as many free rides as there are.

Several interesting contests are shaping up, especially in Southwest and Orchard Hill. In Kennedy Upper, incumbent Senator Joe Kilmartin is opposed by Bradley Sweet. Kilmartin, who has had his problems with recall petitions in the past, finds himself once again in the position of bucking the house powers-that-be. Sweet is reportedly backed by house President David Gentry as well as much of the House Council. Gentry and Kilmartin have been at odds often in the past.

This seems to be a popularity contest, when in fact it should be judged on the basis of Kilmartin's voting record, one that has metamorphosed in a year's time from one of moderate conservatism to a position of well-reasoned liberal stands. Sweet's threat to Kilmartin's seat should not be taken lightly, but neither should Kilmartin's record.

In Washington Lower, Senator Paul Anderson appears to be fighting for his political life. He seems currently to be running third in a field of four candidates. The issue: Anderson's alleged lack of communication with his constituents. Not to get involved in Burkeian concepts of representation, Anderson is a conscientious and concerned Senator. He was recently rewarded for his labors by being given the chairmanship of the important Student Matters Committee. His constituents should think twice about risking the loss of this quiet but effective voice in the Senate.

He is opposed by Dorm VP Gary White, Paul Dudash, and Greg Ryerson. Again, the contest boils down to personalities. Dudash emphasizes his intention of going to the people to represent their views more accurately than he claims Anderson has. Ryerson was unavailable for comment.

White, who looks like the front runner at this point, is the dorm President's roommate; it is safe to say that the dorm power structure appears to be solidly behind him. Dudash and White both live on the eighth floor, where there is a heavy concentration of dorm officers. If this vote is split fairly evenly, Chairman Anderson may be able to retain his seat. For the sake of continuity within the Senate leadership, it is to be hoped he will.

In what looks like one of the most interesting campaigns of all, Webster House is enjoying the sight of an honest-to-goodness write-in effort. This two-seat constituency, former home of Vice President Rick Hartwell, will decide tonight whether or not it wants continued liberal representation in the Senate, or a liberal-conservative split.

Wayne Soini, the conservative candidate, is waging a low-key campaign reminiscent of his past campaigns. Soini is on the ballot along with Larry Woods. Woods is campaigning more vigorously than Soini on a more liberal platform. Not too involved so far. But there is another factor.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman John Dubois, present Senator from Kennedy Middle, former Webster resident and class associate of Hartwell, is waging a write-in campaign primarily to present a liberal alternative to Soini. Dubois has a fine voting record in the Senate; he has made his positions on important issues clear (Soini says: "I'd like your votes now and later your views."). He occupies an important chairmanship.

Woods and Dubois are basically in agreement philosophically. Consequently, they draw their support from the same group. It is to be hoped that Dubois' write-in effort will not amount to too-little-too-late and that he can appeal sufficiently to Woods' supporters to offset the built-in disadavantage of not being on the ballot.

Commentary

Southwest Organizes First Area Government

By Jonathan Edwards

Area government at the Southwest Residential College at UM is essential. Too long, for lack of an effective, central student voice, problems and undesirable conditions have been unnecessarily tolerated. These affect everyone who lives there. This is merely one example, one which can be repeated 5,500 times: One night in the middle of last winter, Dana Prescott, who lived in Tower Five, having put up with a racking cough, decided to go to the Infirmary for medication. Brushing aside his curtains and looking below at students hurrying toward shelter from the freezing temperature, he got second thoughts—the Infirmary was just too far away in that kind of weather. So Dana stayed in Tower Five, enduring his cough as best he could. The same is still true, and not only about the Infirmary. Dana must waste three-quarters of an hour to go to the store at the Student Union for magazines, stamps, crackers, or books he needs in a hurry. If Dana does not like the way his so-called steak is broiled or the way in which the vending machines seem always to be either over-priced or empty, he has no one to whom to complain who can or will do anything about it. So Dana and his friends in Southwest endure conditions they know should be able to be changed. And sometimes their endurings lead to frustration, which, for lack of any effective means of solution, they shout out the window to the anonymous multitude, who agree with them anyway.

Last spring students from most of the houses of Southwest, aware of situations similar to that of Dana's, met to try to do something about it. They remembered previous efforts to unify and coordinate Southwest, efforts which had been ineffectual because they had been neither well enough defined nor truly representative. Also these failed because their activities were, due to their lack of authority, insufficient to deal with the problems they faced. Thus, these problems were merely tolerated, and not redressed; and these attempts, namely the Southwest Council and the Presidents' Forum, though beneficial in their many, particularly cultural, programs, failed to provide any lasting and effective organization for Southwest.

However, the people meeting last spring, recognized that the central difficulty was institutional, and thus could not be overcome by diligence alone. Therefore they endeavored to alter the existing structure which had smothered student power and right within Southwest. With half of the residential student population of the University, Southwest had nothing even approaching half of the power on campus to utilize for its own improvements. Rather, the students' influence was divided into more than twenty small and uncooperating individual house governments. Only by uniting and concentrating all of this potential power into one central, representative government, without infringing upon the legitimate spheres of authority of each house government, could this strength be effectively wielded toward realizing desirable change and improvement in Southwest.

Only by massing all of the potential influence of numbers and ideas, which had previously been dissipated by fragmentation, could Southwest ever hope to apply enough pressure persistently and consistently to force the University administration into taking valid student demands and complaints seriously, and undertaking meaningful action.

These students drew up a constitution for Southwest, establishing a Southwest Assembly, which was approved by seven-eighths of the house governments of Southwest and by the Student Senate. Now this voluntary group of students has organized itself into a temporary provisional government, whose purpose is not to perpetuate itself in power but to implement the Southwest Constitution in setting up elections in each house, which are to be held tonight, and in transferring authority to these elected representatives, who can then use the influence that comes from numbers and ideas in unison in order to tackle the problems, demands, and complaints that affect persons like Dana and his friends. VOTE TONIGHT, OCTOBER 3, FOR YOUR SOUTHWEST ASSEMBLYMAN.

Campus Comment

BETA CHI REPLIES

To the editor:

In response to Chris McGahan's extended and amazingly vituperous diatribe which appeared in yesterday's Collegian in regard to the Beta Chi ticket in the commuter election, I would like to clarify our position and expostulate on the various halftruths which Mr. McGahan so carefully selected in order to make his rather questionable point.

First, let me introduce Beta Chi to that portion of the student body which does not know us. Beta Chi is not a fraternity in the usual sense. It is an association of service veterans who have returned to school, and because of age, temperament, and various other individual and collective reasons find that their common experiences provide a basis for a social group that is uniquely their own. Beta Chi was founded after the Korean War by a handful of returning Air Force veterans and the name of the group was derived from the abbreviation for the Base Exchange, BX. Obviously, this was a gentle spoof of the Greek system and so it remains today. Primarily a social group, Beta Chi exists as an unofficial, off-campus gathering place for veteran students.

Now, a word concerning the history of Beta Chi's political activities, a history from which Mr. McGahan selected his various limited facts and half-truths with the diligence and self-righteousness of a political paranoid. Last spring, at 10:00 a.m. on the morning of the commuter elections, a group of Beta Chi's were discussing the obvious apathy that existed among the commuter constituency. One member suggested making an obvious point of what apathy could mean in an election by beginning a write-in campaign for five Beta Chi commuters. Well, with two hour's planning and a minimum of effort all five were elected. Unfortunately, they were somewhat amazed at their own success and had reservations about what to do with their positions. Their record in the fall was obviously and admittedly poor but the implications of their discovery were not lost. In the spring, there was another commuter election with ten seats open. Beta Chi commuters took ten seats. The average number of votes needed for election was approximately forty.

Forty votes out of a constituency of thousands! Again, we felt we had proven our point. Further, of these ten elected, all remained through the end of the year and the excellence of their record can be attested to by any senator. Mr. McGahan selected his statistics from the fall elections, carefully ignoring the more significant points pertaining to the rest of the year.

Beta Chi is pictured by Mr. McGahan as being in direct conflict with what he terms "a campus leftist group," another of his generalities and assumptions which he would like accepted. However, in the spring elections of last year, many of the same people who Mr. McGahan categorizes as "leftists" actively supported the Beta Chi ticket. It hardly seems that a great ideological dichotomy exists now, or ever has. I suppose that his intention is to picture Beta Chi as the ultra-reactionary representative of the far right, and it just is not so. Our voting record attests to the fact.

Well then, what is left to consider? Mr. McGahan has attempted to picture Beta Chi as simply power hungry and irresponsible, which isn't true. He has also tried to picture an ideological clash between "right" and "left". It doesn't exist. He points out that apathy in commuter elections no longer exists. This was our aim. In short, if he had written further he would have answered his own objections, but he chose slanted sensationalism. I now ask voters to decide Mr. McGahan's merits as well as those of Beta Chi and wish good luck in the elections to his "campus leftists", whoever they are.

Bob Skrok

CONVINCE GENE

To the editor:

As an elected delegate to the Democratic (*) Convention, I am asking that you support us in our move to convince Gene McCarthy to run on a fourth party ticket.

No one could possibly explain the horror of the convention both inside the hall and out. But as a person who drove alone to the convention and then drove back, I was shocked to find that most of McCarthy's supporters are talking about making their protest by voting for Wallace if McCarthy does not run.

It seems, therefore, to me that McCarthy must respond to the will of those of us who have worked hard for him. I know that he will when he realizes the vast support he has.

Marcelle M. Hall

FRESH IDEAS

To the editor:

It certainly was gratifying to see on page one a five column spread on the "fresh" ideas coming from the Quad. Their "fresh" ideas include individual dorm governments, planned area newspaper, opening a "Little Hatch" at night, and a program with faculty members.

Funny thing about that, but the Central Area has already made each of these a reality. All of the dorms in the Central Area have been operating effectively under individual dorm governments that are unique to the personality of each dorm. Our newspaper, The Central Voice, has been in operation for about a year. Our "Hill Hatch" has been open evenings for a year due to the effective work of John Burke, who has accepted a post at another university, and John Messenger, our Area Co-ordinator. As for Faculty-Student relations, Van Meter North has already instituted many exciting innovations. Through dogged determination we've convinced Gary Aho of the English department to be our Faculty Fellow, even though we can't offer him the plush surroundings of Southwest, only interest and enthusiasm. Van Meter also has a twice-a-month lecture series by Dr. Gage, the 1968 recipient of the Metawampe Award. Other faculty members have been asked to speak, and a tentative schedule is now being finalized.

As for other "fresh" ideas, we have an area council of dorm presidents that works in association with our Assistant Area Co-ordinator, Sue Garson, and the Central Area Co-ordinating Committee. CACC has run car rallies and area dances. Area residents picketed against the increases in room rent and convinced the trustees that equalizing rents between areas was unjust.

The "fresh" ideas of the Quad are nothing more than stale news to the residents of the Central Area!

Mary Jo Arnone
Barbara Sabulis
Margie Tucker
Susan Holmes
Geri Manning

A LITTLE NOISE

To the editor:

Taking credit away from ROTC is doing things backwards. In Monday's Collegian someone presented a 9 point program for taking credit away from all courses. This too is backwards.

We are already living in a token economy. Why not give credit for all learning accomplishments? Learning to kill is still an accomplishment — of sorts. However, credit should also be given for humanistic accomplishments. The NES and Belchertown volunteers (to mention only a few examples) also make worthy accomplishments. What they learn from inter-personal relationships cannot be taught from a textbook. Yet, (and even the most militaristic would admit) such experiences are essential in education.

Whether credit is taken away from ROTC or not (and I would not lament if it were), how about making a little more noise about credit for humanistic educational accomplishments?

Zelda Bilsey

Re-Con, New Corporation, To Match College Students To Employers As Alternative To College Recruiting

NEW YORK (CPS) — In the wake of hundreds of protests of campus recruiting by the CIA and the Dow Chemical Company last year, many students and campus groups began asking themselves what could be done about the process of campus recruiting itself. Many students thought some groups should be barred from the campus because of their participating in the war in Vietnam and the government. Others said students should be given control of placement bureaus and make policy for them. Many thought the university should not be an employment agency at all, and recruiting should be done independently. To the activists, placement bureaus were wasted administrative baggage, even consciously evil.

To the average graduating student, the placement bureau is a place he goes to fill out a form, pay his $5 or $10 fee and sign up for interviews with companies who all sound alike to him. He goes to maybe three interviews during the fall, misses some companies' visits by not looking at the announcement board, can't see some because he has exams that day, can't see others because their schedules are full. When one of his three interviewers follows up with a job offer, he accepts with great relief that his career plans are made.

The result of that process on hundreds of college campuses? A job turnover rate that in many businesses approached 40 per cent because of the dissatisfaction of employees who took a job not knowing what to expect. A recruiting disadvantage for those companies without enough money to recruit all over the country. Mostly, the failure of students to find jobs they like and that satisfy their growing need for creative work.

The chancy, sometimes inequitable and notably inefficient way present college recruiting operates frustrates both the students who are looking for jobs which will give them a chance to be more than cogs in an industrial machine, and industries and business, which this year will offer more than a million jobs to a college market of some 900,000 graduates.

The Placement Director

Often, however, they are bound in antiquated procedure by a third party in the recruitment game — the college placement director. It is the placement director who decides when recruiters from different companies will be scheduled on their campuses, it is he who often counsels the student on what kind of job he is most likely to get, and who sometimes honestly feel that students are not capable of knowing what job is best for them and need official guidance to make these decisions.

A group of bright young men, all recently students, operating in a chaotic Madison Avenue office, think they have the answer for recruiting — using a computer as a central information agency to match a large number of college students with a large number of prospective employers.

They have formed a corporation called Re-Con (a shortening of "reconnaissance"), which will for the first time this fall involve several hundred companies and thousands of students in a sophisticated matching process which, according to the men running it, will place applicants in jobs they probably won't want to leave after a year, and will give small companies a new advantage in competing for college graduates.

Representatives on 500 college and university campuses (including the 400-odd National Student Association member schools) will distribute special questionnaires to business and engineering students. These questionnaires ask the student to write his own subjective resume and to list his preferences for type of employment, geographical location (which Re-Con thinks is for many students the most important factor), and educational background and interests.

At the same time, businesses and industries looking for management personnel will file their job specifications with Re-Con. They pay for the service on a sliding rate scale varying with the number of applicants they are looking for and whether they want data on students in only one school, one state or across the country.

After the computer has taken in all the employers and all the students' information on some day in late October, the companies will be given the names of all the students who fit most closely with their requirements. Then the companies will contact those individuals and set up meeting.

"In The Drivers Seat"

According to Ed Beagan, a graduate of New York University's New School and the main energy force behind Re-Con, the importance of the system is that it "puts the student in the driver's seat through the whole recruiting process—not the company and not the placement director." The service is, first of all, free to students—there is no charge to them for the processing of their questionnaires. The cost of the operation is borne by the fees companies pay the service. Then, all the student has to do is sit back and wait for the companies to come to him—there's no signing up for interviews, no ambivalence about the company's qualifications. When a firm calls a student and wants to see them, he knows that firm matched his specifications as well as he matched theirs. Even so, he is not obligated to talk with any company, and the terms are his.

The process' other advantage, Beagan says, is that it "applies modern technology to a complicated process that's been carried on by horse — and — buggy methods." Computer data banking means students can be exposed to jobs they might otherwise have ignored, and firms without resources to send recruiters to many campuses will be able to extend their recruiting to students they would otherwise have missed.

Predictably, the corporation's activities are meeting with opposition from college placement directors, who are fearful of encroachment on their power and even fearful of computer technology. A few of them, who operate as miniature dictators on their campuses — outlawing any correspondence between employers and students which doesn't go through them, have threatened companies that if they participate in "computerized placement" they will be banned from the campuses.

Such threats pose a danger to Re-Con's successful operation; they may intimidate students into a choice between the two methods — computer and conventional — rather than the chance to use them both.

Some Shortcomings

The system also has its own shortcomings for large numbers of students. Of the four areas students follow—the professions, teaching, the arts, and business-industry, Re-Con is geared only to business-industry, with a small service for prospective teachers. This limits the students who can participate largely to graduates of business and engineering schools.

The Re-Con people, however, hope if all goes well to be able to extend their service to these areas in a few years. "Someday," they say, "we'll even be able to find a part-time job for a guy working on his Ph. D. in sociology at the University of Chicago."

Another type of student with Re-Con is not yet equipped to deal is the "failure" — the student with an unimpressive academic record and no outstanding talent who would not tend to match the desires of any employer on paper, although he might in person give an entirely different feeling.

For those it can serve, the system promises remarkable results. Last year a localized version of it (which expanded into the present Re-Con Corporation), created by a group of students at Pennsylvania University 's Wharton Graduate School of Business, helped many of 500 Wharton graduates find jobs.

The national directors hope they can do many times that well this fall.

WED. & THURS. EVENING 8-12 P.M. SPECIAL PARTIES 586-0114
THE MODERN SOUNDS OF PETER FINKE
at Electric Piano
"THE CORK and BOTTLE ROOM"
Howard Johnson Motor Lodge
second floor—center

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

INTERESTED? in the INDEX
We're interested in having YOU!
on our staff
Come to a
GENERAL MEETING
on OCTOBER 3rd at 8:30
in the COUNCIL CHAMBERS – S.U.

Dr. Alspach Edits Book

Dr. Russell K. Alspach, head of the English Department at the University of Massachusetts, has recently edited the third edition of Allan Wade's book "A Bibliography of the Writings of W.B. Yeats."

First published in 1951 as a part of the Soho Bibliographies series, the book was revised and edited in 1938 by Rupert Hart-Davis. In the third printing of the book, Dr. Alspach has added publications dealing with Yeats that have appeared between 1957 and early 1966. This newly added material appears in the form of corrections and additions while at the same time keeping unchanged the format of the first and second editions.

Dr. Alspach is the author of "Irish Poetry from the English Invasion to 1789," He has coedited "The Variorum Edition of the Poems of W.B. Yeats" and edited "The Variorum Edition of the Plays of W. B. Yeats."

Prof. Alspach holds B.A., M.A., and PH.D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania. He taught English there from 1924 to 1942, served in the Navy during World War II, and became professor of English and Head of the Department at West Point in 1947. He retired as a Brigadier General in 1965, and was appointed to the faculty at UMass in 1966.

Art Collection To Be Shown at Smith

Abandonment of "the dull but safe practice of buying reproductions of works of art, no matter how famous" for the "exciting quest of originals, no matter how modest" - is a hope of the lenders of an exhibit now here.

The exhibit is at the Smith College Museum of Art. It is a selection from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. Held of New York City.

Ranging from a Roman marble head of the first century A.D. to the works of contemporary painters and sculptors, Held describes the works as "not, strictly speaking, a collection. It is the accumulation of things which during a period of about 35 years we saw, fell in love with, and could afford to buy or to barter."

Held is a professor of fine arts at Barnard College, Columbia University, and is the author of several books on Rubens. His wife is conservator for the New York Historical Society. Their daughter Anna (Mrs. L.G.Audette) graduated from Smith in 1960.

"Occasionally we have lent one or the other item to special exhibitions, but this is the first time a large part of this accumulation of material has been shown," says Held.

In noting the pleasure of buying the works of art, he adds that "We cannot expect that those who now see these things in the impersonal settings of a museum can ever remotely have the intimate relationship and the pleasurable associations that the circumstances of acquisition, and the long ownership, have given to us.

"We hope, however, that at least some of the works are of sufficient interest by themselves to make a visit rewarding."

The exhibit will continue through October 27. The museum is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Sundays from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m.

Computer Helps Students In Transferring To New Colleges

A computer program has been developed to help prospective college transfer students select new colleges or universities.

Called SELECT, the program determines the 10 to 15 schools in the country which best match a student's interests, aptitudes and financial requirements. The student's specifications are compared with over two million data entries on approximately 3000 colleges and universities in the United States. SELECT does not guarantee admission, but it advises applicants of colleges where they stand the best chances of acceptance.

In order to use SELECT, a student obtains a SELECT questionnaire from a high school guidance counselor's office at any local high school or by requesting one by mail from SELECT, Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc., 757 Third Avenue, New York, New York, 10017. He fills it out, returns it and a personalized computer letter containing the 10 to 15 colleges is sent to him within two weeks after mailing.

The SELECT questionnaire seeks such academic information as college entrance test scores, high school rank and course interests. It queries the student on his preference for a fraternity-sorority system, concern for religious activity, whether his reason for attending college is future career, external pressure or education, if the student works best under pressure and many other introspective questions.

SELECT was developed by Bernard Klein, 21, and Ray Kurzwell, 20. They originated the idea as college freshmen and worked steadily on its development for over two years. Both will be seniors this fall at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The data in SELECT is regularly updated to assure accurate results. The cost to the student for the SELECT service is $15.00.

Campbell Soup Gives $1000 To R. and H. Management

A grant of $1,000 has been made to the restaurant and hotel management program at the University of Massachusetts by the Campbell Soup Co. to further and develop the program, part of the College of Agriculture's department of food science and technology.

In accepting the grant, Dr. William B. Esselen, head of the department, expressed appreciation for the tangible interest and support that the Campbell Company and other food and hospitality industry firms have provided to the Massachusetts program in the form of grants and scholarships.

The University has a four-year course leading to a bachelor degree and a two-year program leading to an associate degree in restaurant and hotel management. There are 250 full-time students enrolled in these programs at the Amherst campus.

Noted Cartoonist Darper Hill To Speak Today

Darper Hill, "noted political cartoonist," according to Professor Arthur B. Musgrave of the Journalism Department, will speak on the use and effect of caricatures today, at 4 p.m. in Machmer W-12. The talk is sponsored by Professor Musgrave's Journalism 201 class. Professor Musgrave has opened the illustrated lecture to the University.

Hill, considered by Musgrave to be the New England area's foremost editorial cartoon expert, coordinated the recent exhibit of political cartoons in the Student Union Lobby.

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

BICYCLE AUCTION
Saturday, October 5
South Terrace — Student Union
11:00 A.M.
INSPECTION AT 10 A.M.
Bike descriptions available at Lobby Counter of Student Union

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM
Presents
JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH
Speaking On:
"The Anatomy of Turmoil"
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4
8:00 P.M., MAHAR AUDITORIUM

Philosopher Strawson To Appear As Speaker In Lecture Series

Philosopher Peter F. Strawson will be the first speaker in a series of lectures sponsored by the University of Massachusetts department of philosophy.

Mr. Strawson will appear Fri., Oct. 4, at 4 p.m. in the Colonial Lounge of the S.U. He is a fellow of University College at Oxford Univ. and the author of three books: Introduction to Logical Theory, Individuals, and The Bounds of Sense.

The Dept. of philosophy has scheduled a series of seven lectures with a correlated seminar for 4-college grad students and faculty. The core of the program will consist of visits by seven distinguished philosophers, during which they will give a public lecture and will meet once with the seminar. The department has planned tentatively to publish the lectures at the end of the series.

Organized around the topic "Experience and Theory," the lecture series has scheduled philosophers Roderick Chisholm, Wilfred Sellars, Max Black, Donald Davidson and W. V. Quine for future speaking dates.

The next speaker is Max Black, who will appear Nov. 15. All lectures are on Fridays at 4 p.m. in the S. U. Colonial Lounge and are open to the public.

NOTICES

W.A.A. OPEN SWIM

Open swim for female students will be held at WOPE on Saturdays for the following dates: Oct. 5, Oct. 19, Nov. 2, Nov. 9, from 1-5 p.m. The dates are scheduled as they do not conflict with home football games.

SCROLLS

Meeting tonight at 7 in Worcester rooms A and B of S.U.

INTERNATIONAL FOLK DANCE GROUP

Dance every Friday, 8-11:30 at the Davis Ballroom, Davis Center, Smith College. Meetings open to anyone, with or without experience. No charge.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS

A free bus will leave for Belchertown State from the Student Union at 1:15 on Saturday.

The Pre-Medical Society will meet on Thursday, October 3 at 7:45 at the Public Health Auditorium.

Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of the UMass Medical School, will speak on the UMass Medical School and Medical School admissions policies. Membership will be taken and plans will be discussed for the formation of a student-faculty pre-medical committee. Everyone will be welcome regardless of his class year.

MLK SOCIAL ACTION COUNCIL

Open meeting tonight at 8 in Morrill Auditorium. Old members, new members, curious and hecklers invited.

NEWMAN CLUB

Movie: "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte" plus Road Runner cartoon in Social Hall at 6:30 and 9 P.M. Friday. Members free, Non-members 50¢.

LOST

Pair of prescription sunglasses (impossible to see through) in vicinity of Bartlett and the Student Union. Reward! Call Priscilla May, 253-7601.

Taken: UMass notebook containing a Brandeis syllabus and a UMass library book by Charles Grant. Taken from under bench at yesterday's Jug Band festival by pond. Extremely important: please return to S.U. Lost and Found.

FOUND

Sum of money in Boyden parking lot last week. Call at Dean Bischoff's office, 201 Boyden.

PINNINGS

Doreen Reese '70, Pierpont to Thomas Criswell '67, UMass grad.

Anne Brooke McClay '71, Chi Omega to Dave Murray '70, Phi Mu Delta.

ENGAGEMENTS

Vivian Begger '69, Chi Omega to Jerry Rush '68, TEP.

Nancy Wainer '69, Boston Univ. to Paul D. Cohen '69, AEPi.

The Faculty Group on Peace and War has learned that the FBI has been questioning Students at Connecticut Universities and Colleges who were arrested recently in Chicago. The faculty group urges any UMass students who may be approached by an FBI agent to contact a lawyer immediately.

Speaking of HANGOUTS

Fri.-Sat. The Red Gertrude Good-Time Banjo Band

Sunday 9:00-1:00 John Morgan & his 12-String Guitar

Tues. Wed.-Thurs. Ha-Ha Ha Ha-Ha Ha Rock - Soul ANDY JAY & The Collections

Free champagne for the ladies 8-10 p.m.

THE RED GERTRUDE

1270 Memorial Ave. West Springfield

Across from Exposition

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Here's the Up Beat Button Down

ARROW DECTON OXFORD Perma-Iron

The no-iron shirt that doesn't mean maybe!

Luxurious fabric of 65% Dacron* polyester, 35% cotton that's completely machine washable . . . tumble dries to a wrinkle-free finish. University fashioned long point collar for the right casual roll. And . . . this season's new wide track stripes in a wide range of compatible color backgrounds. Tapered body for the new lean look in fashion . . . and "Sanforized-Plus-2" labeled for perfect fit.

*DuPont R.T.M. From $6.50

Thompson's

AMHERST CENTER

Serving University men for 81 years

COLLEGE DRUG

Why not wait in Ambush? . . .

perfume by Dana

Also cologne • spray cologne • bath powder soap

Pub News . . . . .

Happiness is JOHN MORGAN

direct from

"Your Father's Mustache"

Friday Nite—9:30 till . . . . . ?

Remember Friday nite is date nite at the Pub – Coat & Tie Please.

—Photo by D. Witkoski

CALLING THE SIGNALS to open the 1968-69 Intramural season, Peter Graham, new Assistant Director of Athletics, gets support from Dr. George Richason, Emery Loud, Evan Johnston, Provost Oswald Tippo and Dean Warren McGuirk.

Women's Tennis Team Winners In First Match

The wind played havoc with the tennis balls, but the UMass Women's Tennis team defeated Northampton School by a score of 6-0 in the season's opening meet.

All of the doubles matches and all but one of the singles were victories for U.M. The doubles team of Mary Fyrer and Linda Taylor put down their opposition, 6-0, 6-0.

The next match is Mon., Oct. 14, against Mt. Holyoke College.

Naiads Open '68-'69 Season

After a week of optional practices and tryouts, 26 new names have been added to the Naiad roster; total membership for the year is 49. Practice began last night in preparation for the annual Naiad show, to be held this year on March 13, 14 and 15.

Watch for Metawampe's Grid Picks

No Free Play

Boyden will be closed to free play on any Sat. when there is a home football game. It will be open on all other Sat. unless otherwise notified.

UMass Mermaids Prepare For Swim Season Schedule

Twenty-three UMass girls work out four days a week in the WoPe Pool in preparation for a 10-meet schedule which has been tentatively established for the Women's Swimming team.

Miss Beverly Reed, who coaches the W.A.A. Competitive Team, announced that the team will travel to Pennsylvania to compete in the Eastern Intercollegiate Championships at the end of the regular season.

MDC HOT NEWS LINE 5-2550

GREEKS

ROBERT REMAR

For

Student Senate

Vote Today S.U. Lobby

25c SU MOVIE 25c

"The Music Man"

Robert Preston • Shirley Jones

Thursday, October 3

7 p.m.

AMHERST Cinema NOW SHOWING IT'S "SHEER CLASS!"

The Mirisch Corporation Presents Steve McQueen Faye Dunaway in A Norman Jewison Film "The Thomas Crown Affair" co-starring Paul Burke Jack Weston Music - Michel Legrand Written by Alan R. Trustman

Weekdays at 6:40 and 8:55

Sat. & Sun. at 2:00-4:40-6:50-9:00

Next Wed. • "Interlude" Oskar Werner

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Cinema 2

Now Thru Tuesday

SAMMY DAVIS

PETER LAWFORD

"Salt and Pepper"

Nightly ex. Fri. & Sat. at 7 & 9

Fri. & Sat. at 6-8-10

Cinema 1

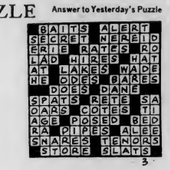
Thru Tuesday

SIDNEY POITIER

"For Love of Ivy"

Nightly at 7 & 9

NEXT TO ZAYRE'S



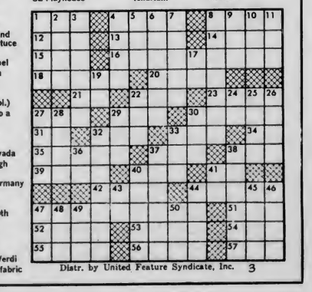
Coming Cinema 3

Campus Twin Cinemas

256-6411

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



ACROSS

1-Moccasin
4-Possessive pronoun
8-Cushions
12-Be ill
13-Region
14-Genus of olives
15-Artificial language
16-Enveloping
18-Badgerlike mammal
20-Organs of hearing
21-Exclamation
22-Conjunction
23-Verve
27-Worn
29-Emmet
30-River in Kansas
31-Chinese mile
32-Attempt
33-Possesses
34-Pronoun
35-Hawaiian greeting
37-Parcel of land
38-Race of lettuce
39-Hot one
40-Ship channel
41-Preposition
42-Solar disk
44-Liquid measure (pl.)
47-Claimant to a throne
51-Fish limb
52-Be borne
53-City in Nevada
54-Guido's high note
55-River in Germany
56-Icelandic writing
57-Corded cloth

DOWN

1-Couple
2-Opera by Verdi
3-Pieces of fabric
4-Call
5-Sea eagle
6-New
7-Dinner course
8-Own
9-Mohammedan name
10-Lair
11-Sink in middle
17-Conjunction
19-Babylonian deity
22-One, no matter which
24-Note of scale
25-Exchange premium
26-Openwork fabric (pl.)
27-Verve
28-Storage pit
29-Macaw
30-Grain
32-Playhouse
33-Torrid
36-Preposition
37-Alighted
38-Meet
40-Style of painting
41-Note of scale
43-Symbol for tellurium
44-Malay canoe
45-Baked clay
46-Break suddenly
47-In favor of
48-Free of
49-Dutch town
50-Goal

Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 3

THE WIZARD OF ID by Brant parker and Johnny hart

PEANUTS

13 OCT 3

Redmen, Blue Hens Clash Saturday in Newark

Homecoming Fans Jam Delaware Stadium

By Mike Curran
Sports Editor

Delaware will have something extra going for them Saturday when they take the field against the Redmen. For a team coming off a shut-out loss the weekend before, they'll be unusually inspired: it's the Blue Hens Homecoming.

Last year's Homecoming was attended by 13,255 fans, just about capacity for Delaware Stadium. Fans saw the Blue Hens almost blow a strong Temple team off the field in the first half. Temple came back to win, though, with a strong fourth quarter.

This time around, the Blue Hens are hoping for a total game effort; they intend to revive an inconsistent offense.

"I was disappointed with our offense," Blue Hen Coach Tubby Raymond said after his team's 16—0 loss to Villanova last week. "Backs went the wong way, we missed assignments and just generally played poorly on offense."

The defense is another story. Delaware shut out Hofstra in the first game of the season and held

SAM BRICKLEY—Halfback

Villanova to a 7—0 score until midway through the fourth quarter. Three times the Blue Hen defenders stopped Villanova inside the ten-yard line.

In a remark that just as easily could have come from UMass coach Fusia, after the UMass Buffalo game, Raymond said, "Our defense played well at times, but the offense put a great deal of pressure on the defense by its inability to move the ball."

The Delaware offense has been plagued by fumbilitis so far this season. The ballcarriers have handed over the pigskin six times in only two contests.

Tom DiMuzio, a scrambling runner, will be starting at the helm for Delaware. He likes to work the belly series with sophomore fullback Chuck Hall, the Blue Hens' leading ground gainer.

Jim Layarski and Dick Kelley are the fullbacks. Kelly is Delaware's leading receiver with five catches good for 114 yards.

JOHN FAVERO—Linebacker

Ron Withelder, who usually gets double coverage from the opposition, will be operating at spread end. Mark Lipson is the hard-blocking tight end.

Tackles Scott Campbell and Chip Vaccarino, guards Hank Vollendorf and Conway Hayman, and center Jon Geisler make up the offensive line which is geared for rush blocking.

The Delaware defense, particularly the defensive backfield, has been strong so far this season. The Hen secondary has come up with four interceptions and has allowed only one touchdown pass.

Ron Klein, Chuck McCallion, Dick Keller and Bob Masin will be the deep backs in Delaware's 4—3—4 defense. Klein has accounted for two of the four Blue Hen interceptions.

Perhaps Delaware's biggest asset is its fine linebacking corps. John Favers, a 6', 215 lb. junior, is the best of the lot. He'll be calling the defensive signals for his team-mates. Captain Bob Novotny will be manning one of the spots along with sophomore Reagan Beck.

A Veteran defensive line has Jim Scelba and Ted Gregory at the end positions and Paul Capo and Chuck Avery as the defensive tackles.

Sam Brickley is the kickoff return specialist while McCallion, Klein and Sonny Merkel share the punt return duties. Jeff Lippincott handles the conversion attempts and Lee Emmons is the Blue Hen punter.

On the whole, Delaware has a sound, veteran football team which has escaped major injuries so far this fall. It will take a strong UMass effort to beat the Blue Hens before the Delaware Homecoming fans.

REDMAN RANTINGS

Good seats for the contest, which starts at 2 p.m. Saturday, are available at the Ticket Office, Room 251, in Boyden. All seats are going for $3.50.

The U Mass team will be leaving Friday morning for Newark, Delaware. They'll stay at a Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge Friday night and return to Amherst after the game on Saturday.

Getting a Line on Series

DETROIT AP — Bleacher seats at Detroit's Tiger stadium went on sale Wednesday morning, but the first prospective customer took no chances. He had been outside the ticket window 41½ hours before the sale opening.

"I've been betting on the Tigers for 10 years," said first-come, first-to-be-served Uriah Payne, 39, of Detroit. "I won quite a bit this summer, so I thought I could at least pay 'em back and show up."

Another Detroiter, Earl Bass Jr., claims to be a professional line stander. He said he has attended every World Sereis since 1956, and has stood in lines in New Yrk Pittsburgh, San Francisco, St. Louis, Chicago, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Baltimore and Boston.

But when Bass showed up at 9 a. m. Tuesday, he found himself shut out on the front rank. Some 39 amateur lineStanders were there ahead of him.

Last Night's Intramurals

Independent Division
American League
WHWL 37—Handbooks 6
LoBos 21—Cleavers 0
Adams 16—won by forfeit over Adams 22 Residence Hall Division
South League
Maples 26—Eagles 0
Pines 14—Grants 0
Maroons 29—Oaks 0
North League
Redwoods 31—Pied Pipers 6
Barracudas 35—Brigade 1 6
Broncos—won by forfeit over Hemlocks
Central Tower League
Smashers 27—Can Cools 18
Ironmen 39—Lions 18
Spartans 31—Bruisers 0
South Tower League
Senators 21—Commanchees 12
Colt 45's 16—Terrors 12
Bulldozers 26—Crushers 6
North Tower League
Panthers 31—Leopards 27
Mags 16—Cougars 14
Patriots 20—Jaguars 0

BACK IN THE LINE-UP

Bill Byron and Dennis Gray have recovered from injuries and will join the Redmen against Delaware.

Yankee Conference Leading Pass Receivers: Jerry Grasso, 22, and Ed Sarno, 31. Grasso has 6 for a total of 79 yards. Sarno has 7 for 47 yards.

Tonight's Intramurals

Pit	Time	Teams
1	6:30	Aces vs. Brigade
2	6::30	Redwoods vs Pied Pipers
3	6:30	Oaks vs Maroons
4	6:30	Black Bears vs. Trojans

Celtics Cut Two Players

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics eliminated Mel Beard, a free agent from Fort Valley, Ga., and Thad Jaracz of Lexington, Ky. for their squad yesterday.

Beard, largest man on the squad at 6'9", played college ball at Norfolk State.

Jaracz, a 6'6" cornerman, was the Celtics' fifth draft choice. He played at the University of Kentucky.

Boston resumes its National Basketball Association exhibition play with a contest against the Philadelphia 76ers at Burlington, Vt., Saturday night.

More Sports on Page 11

Football Statistics

Rushing Offense

Player	Att	Yds	Ave
Clements, Conn.	48	203	4.2
Wheeler, RI	36	128	3.7
MacDonough, Vt.	34	127	3.7
Lavell, Mass.	37	91	2.5
Benner, Me.	33	90	2.7
Farrell, Me.	23	82	3.5
Petrillo, Conn.	24	81	3.3

Passing Offense

Player	Att	Comp	Int	Pct	Yds	TD
Wing, Me.	37	17	1	.459	103	0
Petrillo, Conn	23	10	1	.435	121	2
Adams, Mass	61	25	2	.409	255	2
Beatty, NH	17	7	1	.412	89	0
Robustelli, Conn	25	10	1	.400	120	0
Caswell, RI	58	22	3	.379	228	0
Simpson, Vt	40	15	4	.375	156	0

Leading Pass Receivers

Player	No.	Yds	Ave.	TD
Walker, RI	10	146	14.6	0
Stramm, RI	9	92	10.2	0
Sarno, Mass.	7	47	6.7	0
Grasso, Mass.	6	79	13.1	0
Lawrence, Vt	6	64	10.6	0
Tortolani, Conn.	6	64	10.6	0
McGarry, Mass.	5	74	14.8	0
Benner, Me	5	42	8.4	0

Kicking Specialists

Player	Pat's	Fg's	Pts
Quackenbush, Me	0(0)	2(2)	6
DeWitz, Conn.	3(4)	0(2)	3
Collis, RI	0(0)	1(2)	3
Scheralis, Mass.	3(3)	0(1)	3
Farnham, Vt.	1(1)	0(0)	1

Leading Punters

Player	No.	Ave.	Lg
Tiner, Conn.	12	38.3	44
Peterson, Vt	15	37.3	66
Spinney, RI	13	36.6	52
Benner, Me	17	35.7	45
Warnock, Mass.	18	35.1	61
Weisbusch, NH	8	34.4

Punt Return Leaders

Player	No.	Yds	Ave.	Lg	TD
DB Sullivan, Me	6	85	14.2	49	0
Peterson, Vt	3	35	11.7	14	0
Canzani, Conn.	4	44	11.0	24	0
Parnell, Mass.	6	56	9.3	40	0

Kickoff Return Leaders

Player	No.	Yds	Ave.	Lg	TD
Zito, Conn.	3	131	43.7	98	1
Peterson, Vt	6	120	20.0	24	0
DB Sullivan, Me	3	52	17.3	19	0
Parnell, Mass.	7	109	15.6	26	0

Leading Scorers

Player	TD	EP	FG	PTS
Becker, Mass.	2	0	0	12
Clements, Conn.	2	0	0	12

Conference Standings ALL

YC	W	L	T	W	L	T	Pts	Opp
Connecticut	1	0	0	1	1	0	35	31
Massachusetts	1	0	0	1	1	0	21	24
New Hamp.	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	21
Rhode Island	0	0	0	0	2	0	9	38
Maine	0	1	0	0	2	0	6	27
Vermont	0	1	0	0	2	0	9	52

Top Performers Cited in YC

Rhode Island fullback Tom Wheeler, Maine linebacker Mark Richardson and Connecticut halfback Vinny Clements were chosen as the top offensive, defensive and sophomore players in the Yan Con for their performances last Saturday.

Two UM footballers appeared in the nominations: fullback Ed Sarno on offense and linebacker Bill Byron as sophomore player.

WORLD SERIES

Financial Facts

Attendance — 54,692
Net receipts — $430,580.85
Commissioner's share — $65,587.13
Player's share — $219,596.24
St. Louis club share — $36,599.37
Detroit club share — $36,599.37
National League share — $36,599.37
American League share — $36,599.37

The Index would like to announce that the 1968 yearbooks are available in the Index office in the Student Union. All students who have not received their books, may pick them up anytime. The Index office is located on the second floor balcony to the left of the RSO office.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS

VOL. XCVII, NO. 32 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1968

MDC Photo by Mike Alpert

The Education Marathon lasted from noon to midnight; it attracted what observers called "the greatest show of campus interest, in anything, in quite some time." Pictured above, students play in a folk sing.

School of Ed. Displays Wares In Marathon

By Richard W. Story
Education Editor

The School of Education yesterday ran its day-long Education Marathon. In an atmosphere of the most exhilarating bustle and excitement to visit this campus in quite some time, Dean Dwight Allen set the program's pace with his opening remarks at 12:15 (prefaced with the contributions of a wandering guitarist), as he talked passionately of the School as being "Very much still in design."

Speaking off the cuff, but with the familiarity born of years of hard thought and planning, he outlincd the School's program for the year to come, and the afternoon's program in particular. Nothing was static and a great many of the answers are still to come in—Indeed, the questions are still lacking an accurate formulation. Nevertheless, it was clear, both from the Dean's comments and the proceedings as the afternoon wore on, that the process now underway out there on North Pleasant Street would result in a school of education unrecognizable to anyone familiar with past and present practice in this regard.

Dean Allen likened the Marathon to a Nigerian pedlar who travels with his incredible variety of wares strapped to his bicycle, on full display to everyone. The analogy was a most apt one. A variety of staff and doctoral students, such as few other schools can boast, were set up to do their things—and do them they did. From an hour of rather abstracted discussion of corporate models and structural schema to an hour of engaging music and song, from the Theater 2000 to black-white encounter groups, and from TV-assisted micro-teaching to varied films, the School put the dazzling variety of human imagination and resource that has been gathered together on public display.

Crossing the threshold of the building is an experience—carpenters are spread out at the doorways transforming the architecture; and other mechanics are installing early components of a system the later units of which are still in design. Such is the situation with the School's whole curriculum, said Dean Allen. Despite the uncertainty of the air-conditioning, however, there is certainty in the unifying commitment which has brought one hundred people together for the first time that is a basic and unshakeable faith that education and teacher-training can be made an exciting and relevant experience in these times. The Dean and the School are dedicating themselves to the proposition that the hum-drum mediocrity that has characterized so much of American education and teacher-training must and can be discarded. It is to

(Continued on Page 2)

Viet Hawk LeMay Joins Wallace On Independent Party Ticket

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis E. LeMay joined George C. Wallace as his vice presidential candidate Thursday and urged more military pressure on North Vietnam.

Attacking what he said was an American policy of "no will to win," the famous flying general of World War II said he, too, would rather talk than fight.

But, he said, "When you get in it, get in it with both feet, and get it over with as soon as you can."

"I think there are many cases when it would be most efficient to use nuclear weapons," said LeMay, described by a military biographer as the "architect of systematic destruction" for his bombing raids on Germany.

"I'll be damned lucky if I don't appear as a drooling idiot whose only solution is to drop atomic bombs all over the world," LeMay said later.

"I don't think it would be necessary in Vietnam. I've always said that" he went on. "But I dont think they are going to negotiate at Paris until we twist their arm a little, more."

Wallace, introducing the stocky, hard-driving father of the Strategic Air Command, said he had always admired LeMay's blunt language.

"In Gen. LeMay we have a man who, through close personal contact, has a working knowledge of the aims, the goals and the capabilities of our nation's enemies as well as her friends," Wallace said.

"I might add here that he, unlike some of our so-called high level diplomats, recognizes the difference between the two."

MDC Photo by Bill Dickinson
GEORGE WALLACE

LeMay, without the cigar he usually has clamped in his teeth, said, "Some of my friends are surprised at my being here today. I am somewhat surprised myself."

Wallace has stressed in his speeches that, should peace negotiations fail, he would seek to end the Vietnam war "militarily and with conventional weapons."

Flying from Pittsburgh to Indianapolis with LeMay accompanying him, Wallace said he was convinced he and his running mate saw eye to eye on the issue of nuclear weapons.

"Gen. LeMay has told me privately," Wallace said in an interview, "that he is against all war. He said to me, 'We can't have a third world war: a third world war would destroy civilization.' And he said the best way to prevent it is to be strong militarily."

Med School Details Set, Dean Tells Pre-Med Society

By Sue Hamilton

Dr. Lamar Soutter, Dean of the UMass Med School addressed the members of the Pre-Med Society last night in the Public Health Auditorium. Dr. Soutter outlined the progress which has been made in the plans for the school, and explained some of the aims of the school.

The architectural plans for the Med School, which will be located in Worcester, have been completed and approved, he said, and construction on the Medical Science Building will begin in November of 1969.

Sixteen applicants will be accepted for the first two classes, he said. These students will be taught in a small building on the corner of the property which will be renovated for that use. Dr. Soutter explained. The Med Science Building and hospital will open in 1972, and will accommodate a class of up to 100 students entering that year.

Plans for the school include a 400 bed hospital to be attached to the Med Science Building. An automated library is being planned which will computerize classification and processing of materials, Soutter explained. This library, he continued, will have three floors, with 306 compartments designed for study, and use of slides, taped lectures and movies.

No living quarters, Soutter said, will be provided for the first two years. Apartments will be constructed, however, for the years which follow.

The admission requirements of the school, Soutter said, will be very simple. Full credit will be given to advanced placement, he said. Students must have one year each of college English, physics, organic chemistry, and

(Continued on Page 3)

MDC Photo by Dick Kline

Student Senate Elections, yesterday, saw the traditional last minute politicking. Incumbent Joe Kilmartin talks with coed, as former Senate President James Collins looks on. See Page 2 for election results.

4 OCT

MDC Photo by Mike Alpert

One of the Highlights of the Marathon was a singing class taught by a grammar school music teacher. This event was one of the most "fun things I've done in a long time," according to one participant.

MDC Photo by Mike Alpert

Children, the focus of much of Education's thought today, participated joyfully. Here, two children watch a movie on a make-shift screen.

MDC Photo by Mike Alpert

A huge sign on the side of the Education Building proclaimed the showplace for that department. Innovations, plans for the future, and the progress of the school where showcased.

The Marathon

"Education On Display"

(Continued from page 1)

this overarching goal that the excitement, visualized by the Marathon, will be bent.

The Marathon cannot but be considered a success — for its planning alone to have reached the relative perfection which it did is a sign of success. But then, for the Marathon to come off as it did—filled lecture halls and auditorium, jammed hallways, excited reactions and all—cannot help but say that there is a powerful new spirit in the School of Education that will be doing wonders for the campus, the community, and the nation.

Senate Election Results

COMMUTERS
Penegat	157
Steinberg	169
Barabe	222
Turnpek	220
Feeney	247
Leavett	169
LeBeau	241
Kentfield	169
Chisolm	188
O'Brien	118
Patecky	168
Van Kleek	200
Meehan	172
Singleton	61
Ryan	220
Chiselo	21
Hayes	234
Clarity	156
Wilson	81
Sknok	204
Packard	155
Martin	200
Ridley	180
Davenport	195
Capeless	169
Passel	40
Woodcock	208
Papalaca	226
Malewski	43
Zaltzman	165
Galjeax	107
Bebinef	145
*Moran	252
PATTERSON (2)
Pat Beharry (incumbent)	132
Ellen Moran (present senator)	90
Write-ins	6
Blank	1
Void	0
THATCHER (1)
Ferdi Gunduz	20
Peter J. Reilly	16
Mike Chrobak	32
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	1
GORMAN (2)
Phil Rosen (incumbent)	94
Stafford Sheehan	97
Glenn Elfers	74
Geoffrey A. MacDonald	20
David Larson	12
Write-ins	6
Blank	0
Void	0
BAKER (2)
Perkins	69
Delpha	47
Nazzaro	81
Forman (incumbent)	88
Write-ins	8
Blank	0
Void	0
HAMLIN (1)
Milt S. Blaut	9
Curtis Hamilton	29
Steve Carroll	66
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	0
BRETT (2)
Chard C. Bonito	48
Cott T. Thomson	68
Peter Finn	39
Paul Harold (incumbent)	6
Paul E. Canham	15
Write-in	0
Blank	3
Void	1
JOHN QUINCY ADAMS LOWER (1)
*Kurklian (write-in)	74
Other write-ins	16
Blank	1
Void	1
VAN METER NORTH (1)
*LaRochele (write-in)	35
Miller (write-in)	22
Ryan (write-in)	14
Curan (write-in)	6
Other write-ins	7
Blank	0
Void	10
BUTTERFIELD (1)
*Stephen Chiolli	52
Write-ins	1
Blank	0
Void	2
ADAMS (Upper) (1)
Johnson	62
Reid	28
Write-ins	1
WASHINGTON MIDDLE (1)
Donovan	20
Berman	17
Write-ins (Staples)	57
HILLS NORTH (1)
Deverton C. Cochrane (inc.)	100
Write-ins	9
Blanks	2
Voids	0
JAMES (1)
*Michael J. Krause	72
Robert Diffenderfer	70
Write-ins	2
Blanks	1
Voids	0
JOHNSON (1)
*Kathy Sousa (incumbent)	27
Write-ins	5
Blanks	0
Voids	0
CHADBOURNE (1)
*Peter Blanchet (incumbent	83
George L. Rogoski	26
Write-ins	0
Blanks	0
Void	0
MACKIMMIE (2)
Daniel Madden	50
*Roland T. Sharillo (inc)	65
Nick Brown	25
MARY LYON (1)
*Farrell	54
Quaglieri	34
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	0
LEACH (1)
*Hanlon	57
Write-in	4
Blank	0
Void	6
CRABTREE (1)
Ravgiala	38
Holmes	18
Lewis (write-in)	24
Blank	0
Void	8
CANCE (2)
*Raskind	59
Mandigo	36
Anderson	24
*Fox	46
Write-in	7
Blank	0
Void	1
KENNEDY LOWER
*Johnson	49
Write-in	2
Blank	1
Void	0
CALVIN COOLIDGE LOWER (1)
Meiranon	33
Broomfield	17
*Persson	34
Write-in	0
Blank	1
Void	0
JOHN QUINCY ADAMS MIDDLE (1)
Kathleen M. Gwiazda	48
Judith A. Belizia	10
Write-in	2
Blank	0
Void	1
JOHN ADAMS MIDDLE (1)
Mark Smith	49
Charles Kelly	9
Bernard Kaplan	36
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	6
BROOKS
*Joyce Zilinski	51
Write-in	1
Blank	0
Void	1
VAN METER SOUTH (1)
*Sheryl J. Gilmore	62
Carol Lee Andrews	36
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	0
HILLS SOUTH (1)
*Wayne Sawchuck	39
Write-in	2
Blank	1
Void	1
JOHN ADAMS LOWER (1)
Brian Woodrow	23
John Silva	20
Ronald Gould	44
*Stephen Walt (incumbent)	45
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	1
LEWIS (1)
Cullinan	48
Kinner	47
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	1
GREENOUGH (1)
Hildebrand	27
Verrochi	42
Write-in	0
Blank	1
Void	1
COOLIDGE UPPER (1)
Kennedy	97
Write-in	1
Blank	1
Void	0
MELVILLE (1)
MacNatt	39
*McCourt	60
Write-in	0
Blank	0
Void	2
G. WASHINGTON LOWER (1)
Ryerson	6
Anderson	41
White	56
*Dudash	49
Write-in	0
Blank	6
Void	4

McCarthy Backer

Lowenstein Seeks Campaign Help

NORTHAMPTON—Allard K. Lowenstein, generally acknowledged leader of the "Dump Johnson" movement spoke before about 1,000 at Smith College Wednesday night. He told the audience, composed mostly of area college students, that "To cop out is not the style of this generation, that will change the world."

The New York Democrat, a leader in the "McCarthy for President" campaign, asked students for help in his campaign similar to the kind they provided Senator McCarthy. He promised transportation and housing to the audience if they would go to the Fifth Congressional District in New York to campaign for him.

Lowenstein also discussed the issues and candidates in this year's elections.

He condemned Hubert Humphrey's qualified pledge to halt bombing North Vietnam as "aid and comfort to the enemy", although he indicated he would support Humphrey, provided the Vice-President changed his Vietnam policy. However Lowenstein expressed his belief that there is no sign of change. He supports the McCarthy belief that the bombing halt should be unconditioned and immediate.

In discussing the Republican candidates, Lowenstein labeled Spiro T. Agnew, "the man who makes everyone else look so good".

Lowenstein stated that he would support abolition of the draft, as well as making the conscientious objector status broader so to include those who believe that war is morally wrong.

He also told the audience that they should go out and support local candidates, as well as those from their own home towns.

Also speaking in the Smith College Program were retired Generarl William Wallace Ford of Leverett, and John Fitzgerald. Both are McCarthy supporters. Ford told the audience, "We are the loyal opposition, no less loyal than opposed." He also asserted that dissent is "the great bulwark of democracy" in this country. Fitzgerald, who was a local delegate to the Democratic convention urged the audience to "remember what Lowenstein did for McCarthy."

Literature Lecture Series Opens; Thomas Mann Featured

On Thursday, October 3, 1968, at 8:00 p.m., Bernard Pike presented a lecture on Thomas Mann in the first of a number of Comparative Literature lectures. A group of about 60 students and faculty attended.

Mr Pike is a professor at Cornell University. He dedicated his lecture to a late friend and professor at Cornell. Mr. Pike is currently writing a book entitled Thomas Mann and the Problematic Self.

Mann's novel Confessions of the Confidence Man was the topic of the lecture. Mr. Pike called this novel Mann's "freest, least encumbered novel."

Mann began to write the novel early in 1910, left it for one year, then left it to resume work 38 years later in 1951. In spite of this time lapse, the story follows smoothly Mr Pike suggested that Mann stumbled on the idea for the novel in youth but could only finish it in later age

Pike saw an analogy between Mann and the artist in his novel. He said that Mann felt separated from life, and his reconciliation with life was a slow process

Although the novel takes place from 1875-1895, Pike said it was a "pre-dated novel." it is removed from the threatening upheaval of the 20th century.

Pike further said that Mann "lived suspended between two worlds and felt at home in neither of them." Mann and his main character are "operating consciousnesses' in a world different from other people's.

Among Mann's other works are The Holy Sinner, Death in Venice, and The Magic Mountain.

Questions were asked and answered at the end of the lecture.

Those unable to take the Peace Corps Language Aptitude Test at the regularly scheduled time, may do so Saturday at 9 a.m. in SBA 116.

Army Stages Coup in Peru; Student Violence Erupts

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peruvian troops overthrew the troubled government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry in an apparently bloodless coup Thursday, but within hours student mobs were battling with troops and police in the streets.

Whisked off by plane to exile in Buenos Aires, Belaunde, 55, declared on arrival that he had been overthrown "by a barracks coup, not by the armed forces of the constitutional government."

It was announced in Lima, however, that Gen. Juan Velasco, army chief of staff and president of the joint chiefs, had been made head of the revolutionary government.

The coup came 12 hours after Belaunde had installed a new 11-member Cabinet, the seventh in his five-year-old regime. It was reported later that the Cabinet had met in the Foreign Ministry Building to condemn the coup.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy told newsmen that all Americans in the capital were safe and there appeared to be no reason for concern.

The coup was quiet, swift and without violence. Led by a column of tanks, troops burst into the presidential palace at about 2 a.m. Their leaders took over in the name of the revolutionary regime and Belaunde was ushered out of the building shouting at his captors "you are the traitors."

Presidential guards were replaced by soldiers carrying Sten guns, while troops and units of the national police took up stations in the parade ground in front of the palace and at key intersections throughout the city.

As the early morning traffic began, the situation was calm. Radio stations broadcast without comment a communique from the armed forces announcing the coup. Soldiers and secret police entered the radio stations, apparently to prevent broadcasters from inciting the public.

By 9 a.m. the Plaza de Armas was filled with people, mostly young men from the universities. They began taunting the soldiers with shouts of "traitor".

As the crowd grew, police launched a tear gas barrage and then sent a water cannon vehicle rolling toward the gathering. The stream of water sent the youths sprawling.

After the water truck passed, one group of students attempted an assault. But a policeman bowled a tear gas grenade into the group, scattering them.

A mob of youths then headed down the main streets of Lima, tearing down signs, smashing windows and setting fire to cars.

La Colmena, one of the main thoroughfares, looked like a battlefield.

Young men tried to gain access to the roofs of hotels and other business buildings, hoping to hurl bricks at police below. But most were apprehended.

A Sign of the Times?

Sports Reporter McCarthy Interviewed at Series

ST. LOUIS (AP — Sen. Eugene McCarthy fired as many strikes yesterday as Bob Gibson when he made his first appearance on the field at the 1968 World Series in his role as a baseball writer for a national magazine.

Here's the way the banter went as McCarthy talked with a large gathering of lesser-known writers, television commentators and members of the Detroit Tigers:

Reporter: You played first base in college, didn't you?

McCarthy: Yes, but they ruined first base when they started using that big glove. Anybody, even an outfielder, can play first base with it. That's when they started to down-grade first base, when outfielders started playing there.

Reporter: What kind of a hitter were you?

McCarthy: I was a better fielder than hitter. But I was a long ball hitter in my league—I hit a lot of long fouls. I guess you could say I was a pretty fair hitter.

Reporter: Anything in politics comparable to Gibson?

McCarthy: Not this year.

Reporter: How do you like being a correspondent?

McCarthy: I'm not really a correspondent. I'm a commentator.

Reporter: What's the difference?

McCarthy: A commentator doesn't even have to see the game.

Reporter: Where did you play baseball in college?

McCarthy: St. John's in Minnesota. In our league the key guy was the scorekeeper.

Reporter: Have you asked any writers for advice?

McCarthy: A senator never asks for advice. He pronounces.

Reporter: How's it been so far?

McCarthy: I kept saying yesterday, 'I think the better team should win,' and everyone wanted me to say 'Best team.'

● Med School Details Set

(Continued from Page 1)

physiology, and one semester each of sociology and anthropology are recommended. No rigid curriculum has been established, he added.

"All other things being equal", he said, "an applicant from UM would be accepted over one from another school."

Dr. Soutter hopes to encourage and provide opportunity for recreation. Facilities for sports are accessible to the school, he said. Through sports and activities, he said, the school hopes to provide a healthier sort of life for its medical students.

MLK Holds Open Meeting

By John J. Poirer
Staff Reporter

The Martin Luther King Social Action Council welcomed fifty students to its first open meeting Thursday night in Morrill Auditorium. The Rev. Mr. Ronald Hardy opened the informal gathering by applauding the students present "who" he said "had taken the first step towards solving the problems which face the campus and community".

Gil Salk, interim secretary of the MLK Council, reviewed past and present projects of the Council and outlined activities in which volunteers are needed. Some of these are:

- A literature table in the Student Union, which will sell books and periodicals relevent to the civil rights movement.
- A committee to investigate possible unfair ratios of black-to-white workers in on-campus construction projects.
- A group to organize local boycotts of California grapes and grape products in sympathy with vineyard strikers.
- A bus to transport volunteers to Springfield for tutoring children in ghetto areas.

Over 350 students volunteered for this activity last week at a meeting of the Northern Educational Service branch of the King Council.

Transportation to the Services of North Congregational Church at 10:00 a.m. and Immanuel Lutheran Church at 10:30 A.M. is provided free of charge for students of the University. A Western Mass. bus is chartered to pick up students at various points around the campus. The schedule is as follows:

For the North Congregational Church Service at 10:00 A.M. bus stops at 9:40 A.M. Fearing and University Drive (SW)

9:42 A.M. Fearing and Sunset (Hi Riser) (SW)
9:44 A.M. Sunset and N. Hadley Rd. (WFCR) (SW)
9:47 A.M. Hills House
9:49 A.M. Orchard Parking Area, Webster House
9:50 A.M. Greenough House
9:55 A.M. North Pleasant Street, Hamlin House

For Immanuel Lutheran Church Service at 10:30 A.M. the same route is followed beginning at 10:10 A.M.

Transportation from the churches is provided back to campus. For further information call 549-0500 or 549-0322.

WANTED:

Advertising Salesman

for the DAILY COLLEGIAN on Commission Basis

Inquire COLLEGIAN Office

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Offices of the Daily Collegian are on the second floor of the Student Union on the University campus. Phones are 545-2550 (news), 545-0344 (sports), 545-0311 (business and advertising), and 549-1311 (editor).

Entered as second class matter at the post office at Amherst, the Daily Collegian publishes five times weekly Monday through Friday during the academic year except during vacation and exam periods; three or four times a week following a vacation or exam period or when a holiday falls within a week. Accepted for mailing under the authority of the act of March 8, 1879, as amended by the act of June 11, 1943. Printed by Hamilton I. Newell, Inc., University Drive, Amherst. Subscription: $10.00 per year, $5.50 per semester.

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

Czech Communist Party Plans for 'Humane Communism' Seem Doomed

Tanks are only one of the visible signs of Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Two Soviet soldiers in long winter greatcoats guard a tank encampment just off the main highway leading out of Czechoslovakia.

An amphibious armored car makes its way through civilian road traffic, carefully observing a yield sign.

Here and there a truck full of Soviet soldiers runs off a side road.

These are the visible signs of the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia. Only the country's top leaders know what is going on behind the scenes. The public suspects the worst.

There is little hope for what lies ahead. Little by little the Czechoslovak Communist party's attempts to make communnism humane seems doomed.

There are recurring rumors that the Soviets want the top liberal Communists out, including party chief Alexander Dubcek.

Only the tremendous support he and his associates received from the 14 million Czechs and Slovaks has kept them in office during the past six weeks.

But time is on the Soviets' side. Already there are reports that ambitious second ranking men within the party organization are willing to follow the Soviet line in return for the top jobs.

So far, there have been no political arrests but it seems the Kremlin wants a show trial of "counter revolutionaries" in Czechoslovakia. Moscow radio, in its broadcasts to Czechoslovakia, keeps talking about the "counter-revolution." In a new attack Wednesday, the Soviet press said K231, the club of political prisoners of Stalinist times, has gone underground.

The club was one of two that the Soviet Union accused of being anti-Communist and the core of a new political opposition to the Communist party. The other was KAN, the club of committed nonparty members.

The Czechoslovak government banned both under the terms of the Moscow protocols, signed by Czechoslovak leaders following the Aug. 20–21 invasion.

Under terms of the same agreement, some prominent officials of the Dubcek regime have already resigned. Most important for the country's future probably is Deputy Premier Ota Sik, father of the economic reform that was to have made Czechoslovakia more competitive in Western markets and make it able to participate in the West's technological revolution.

The Soviet-led military occupation has put a halt to any large-scale cooperation with Western private enterprise. The Kremlin has made it clear it wants Czechoslovakia to face the East economically as well as politically.

How will it end? Westerners think Czechoslovak conditions eventually will closely resemble those in Hungary.

This would mean that Soviet troops would remain, though out of sight. The press would be strictly controlled.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Mr. A. Dan Tarlock will be on campus, University of Massachusetts, October 9, 1968, to interview prospective law students. Indiana University offers an excellent opportunity for faculty contact, interdisciplinary study, and participation in the life of a cosmopolitan university with unusually fine cultural programs. The Law School offers a wide variety of financial aid to qualified students. Please contact your Pre-Law Advisor for more detailed information on interviews.

BICYCLE AUCTION

Saturday, October 5

South Terrace — Student Union

11:00 A.M.

INSPECTION AT 10 A.M.

Bike descriptions available at Lobby Counter of Student Union

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA SORORITY

Invites all freshmen and upperclassmen to an

OPEN HOUSE

at

Memorial Hall

Sun., Oct. 6 – 2:00-3:30

Curtis LeMay Named As Wallace's Running Mate

By Fred S. Hoffman
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—"Curt LeMay turned out to be right so much of the time. But he disqualified himself as an adviser because of the ultimates he proposed."

So spoke a top Pentagon official of the McNamara era, looking back on the days when Vietnam war policy was being debated in secret government councils.

This one time civilian official, now out of public life and preferring anonymity, said Gen. Curtis E. LeMay "was always six to nine months ahead of where we finally got."

But, he said, the one time Air Force chief of staff and now vice presidential candidate on George C. Wallace's third party ticket "wanted to do a helluva lot more than we could have accepted . . . like bombing China."

LeMay was an opponent of "gradualism" in the Vietnam war almost from the outset in 1962.

An out-spoken soldier, LeMay ruffled many civilian officials and senior officers of other services.

But never, during his four years as Air Force chief, did he carry his policy differences to the public platform or to the press, except when he was being questioned by congressional committees — and this was within the rules.

Everybody knew LeMay had deep splits with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, and they always thought an explosion would come. But it didn't.

Not until after LeMay retired on Jan. 31, 1965, did he begin to speak out.

It was apparent from what he told The Associated Press last year that he had been pressing for bombing North Vietnam since about early 1962 — three years earlier.

"We have been using air and naval power in a piddling manner," LeMay said in 1967.

"If we had done what we are doing now five years ago, as I recommended, the shock effect might have stopped them then, but it's too late for this now."

Since then the air war has been throttled way down—which is the opposite direction from the one LeMay advocated in the past.

The 61-year-old retired general, who has been running an electronics firm in Chatsworth, Calif., bears the public image of the embodiment of The Military Man.

The image has been burnished with legends and tales of LeMay's crustiness.

These days, the stocky LeMay looks more like a prosperous banker than he does a former command pilot who was the architect of the fire bombing of Japan in World War II and the builder of the Strategic Air Command.

Amherst Officials Make Plans To Alleviate Water Shortage

The ban imposed last week by the Amherst Board of Selectmen has begun to produce some results—a reduction from the four billion gallons of water a day which was previously used. However, Amherst town officials are still concerned over the depleted condition of reservoirs, and special meetings were being conducted to discuss possible emergency action to be taken if the current dry spell continues. One of the more seriously affected reserves is the Pelham Reservoir

Among possible action to be taken is a connection with the Hadley water mains, an act which would require installation of a pump since Amherst's distribution system is considerably higher than Hadley's. Also under consideration is the possibility of tying in a test well in Belchertown.

On Tuesday, the 24-hour consumption was 3,033,300 gallons according to records of the Department of Public Works, on Wednesday this had declined to 2,899,400 gallons. The main source of water is now from artesian wells which are unable to fulfill the entire demand.

Town officials point out that only a heavy rainfall of several days duration can really alleviate the present situation. As one town official commented, "Maybe we'll hold a rain dance on the common."

U.S. Senate Votes Money Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate gave overwhelming approval Thursday to a record $71.9-billion defense appropriations bill after beating back efforts to trim funds for a missile defense system and to impose other cuts.

A 55-2 roll call sent the measure to conference with the House which voted $352 million more for the Defense Department.

The over-all measure allocates, in rounded sums, $24.3 billion to the Air Force; $23.2 billion to the Army; $20.4 billion to Navy; and $4 billion to various other defense agencies.

An estimated $25.8 billion of the total will go for Vietnam war costs but the Pentagon is expected to request supplemental funds later.

Before Thursday's votes rejected efforts to cut $6 billion from the bill, it already had been reduced $5.2 billion from President Johnson's original request—but it remained the biggest single money bill ever voted by the Senate.

The Sentinel ABM system is slated to cost about $5 billion ultimately and is designed as a protection only against a limited nuclear such as Red China is expected to be able to launch in the 1970's. Its advocates do not claim it would be effective against a massive attack by the Soviet Union.

FEATURE STAFF MEETING MONDAY NIGHT 7:30 P.M. NORFOLK ROOM STUDENT UNION

FUN WORKING IN EUROPE

Jobs Abroad Guaranteed

BRUSSELS: The Int'l Student Information Service, non-profit, today announced that 1,500 GUARANTEED JOBS ABROAD are available to young people 17½ to 40. Year-Round and Summer. The new 34-page JOBS ABROAD magazine is packed with on-the-spot-photos, stories and information about your JOB ABROAD. Applications are enclosed. LANGUAGE-CULTURE-FUN-PAY-TRAVEL. For your copy send $1.00 AIRMAIL to: ISIS, 133 Rue Hôtel des Monnaies, Brussels 6, Belgium.

Come to the AMHERST TOWER

For Fine Italian Pizza, Subs, and Dinners

Open 11 a.m. to 1 a.m.
Sat. and Sun. open 11 a.m.
Fri. and Sat. until 2 a.m.
Call 253-7100
256-6667

Amherst Gym Teacher Retires

Richard G. Van Petersilge retired Monday (September 30) from the physical education staff at Amherst College after 43 years involvement in all facets of the Amherst athletic program.

"Van came to the College in 1925 with a deep belief in the value of competitive athletics. At Deerfield Academy he had played football, basketball, and baseball and then while attending Northampton Commercial College he played basketball, the only sport then offered. "I've always had a deep interest in sports and I wanted to see others benefit as fully from them as I have," Van says, stressing the enjoyment of competition and the contribution to an individual's physical conditioning.

To his successor, Terry L. Serrell, Van will turn over file after file recording in detail how 43 classes of Amherst men have met and mastered the physical fitness and swimming tests required of all students before graduation. As guardian of the College's physical education requirements, Van's records, like those of the academic deans, have on occasion caused students some anxiety before receiving their degree. He remembers well, for example, the "student" in his mid-40's who returned to pass the swimming test that after 25 years remained the only obstacle between him and an Amherst B.A.

The greatest change in Amherst athletics during his long tenure has been in the facilities, Van says, recalling that when he came as secretary to the department of physical education the athletic office was in Appleton Hall and the gymnasium was the present Pratt Geology Museum. "We had a swimming pool and a few squash courts. The gym floor was tiny with the track on a balcony surrounding the gym."

By comparison, athletic facilities at the College today include a fully-equipped gym, swimming pool, squash and tennis courts, indoor athletic field, hockey rink, and playing fields for varsity and intramural sports.

Van also finds a change in today's student-athlete. "He is bigger and stronger than those in previous years. He is also better trained by the time he gets to college." Van feels further that Amherst students in the 1960's are more conscious of physical fitness than were their predecessors.

Perhaps Van's most important contribution to Amherst athletics has been in the intramural program which now encompasses competition in 15 sports. Until 20 years ago, the program was run by the students themselves. But with its growth and a growing student body, too, greater efficiency and systematization was needed and Van took charge, from scheduling events to keeping records and point standings for the annual competition among student and faculty teams. He is given much of the credit for development of the comprehensive intramural program which has gained Amherst national recognition.

The years during World War II were perhaps the most unusual during his long tenure, he says, because of the presence on campus of the military and the changes the war brought to all areas of college life. It was then that Amherst instituted a very difficult obstacle course which was used as preparation for military training. "The course was one of the most challenging in the nation. It really took a lot out of the boys to go through the whole thing, but it toughened them up and increased their agility and stamina," Van recalls. A by-product was that he met such sports celebrities as John Pesky, Johnny Sain, and Ted Williams, all of whom were under his direction while they participated in the Navy pre-flight training program on the Amherst campus.

Looking ahead, Van expects that the four acres surrounding his house on Pomeroy Lane in South Amherst will continue to keep him plenty busy. And he intends, too, to be in close touch with the sports programs at Amherst that have been so much a part of his life for so long.

September 30, 1968

Broadway Dance Theatre To Perform in Bowker

—The University of Massachusetts will host the Mary Anthony Dance Theatre in concert Saturday, Oct. 12, at 8:15 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium.

Director of the Dance Theatre and Studio, Miss Anthony has appeared in the dance concert world on Broadway and in television where she served as choreographer for the religious series "Lamp Unto My Feet" and "Look Up and Live" from 1957 to 1959. She has returned to television since that time as an occasional guest choreographer for the series.

Her Broadway credits include appearances in "Up in Central Park," "Rip Van Winkle" and "Touch and Go." Miss Anthony staged and danced the leading role in the latter production in London, a role which led to an opportunity to choreograph a succession of Italian musicals in Rome. From 1960 to 1961 she served as choreographer for the weekly Italian TV program "Canzonissima."

The Mary Anthony Dance Theatre has appeared at the leading American Dance Festivals in Connecticut, Jacob's Pillow and New York City, and has toured throughout the country. The group's most recent appearance was at the Windsor Mountain Theatre at Tanglewood in a series which included a performance at the famous "shed" on Tanglewood on Parade. They are the first dance company to perform at the "shed."

The Dance Theatre features Ross Parkes as the leading male dancer. He is also soloist with the Pennsylvania Ballet.

Sponsored by the University Fine Arts Council, the concert is open to the public with a small admission charge. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Protesters Silent At HUAC Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — An antiwar protest leader witness refused to answer questions on whether he was a Communist Thursday at hearings by a House subcommittee on un-American activities.

An undercover police agent charged the groups that planned the riotous Chicago demonstrations during the Democratic National Convention favor violent overthrow of the U.S. government. He quoted one Yippie leader as saying all the presidential candidates should be killed and the government toppled.

Rep. Richard Ichord, D—Mo., chairman of the subcommittee, said earlier testimony had cited 21 Communists as participants in the Chicago disorders last August. He did not identify any of them by name.

Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman was arrested as he tried to enter the congressional building wearing a shirt with a stars and stripes design. Two other protesters also were seized by police.

Robert Greenblat, a Hungarian-born immigrant, walked out of the hearing after refusing to answer questions on his role as coordinator of the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

Dr. Quentin B. Young, a physician who helped organize medical care for the protesters injured in the street battles with Chicago police, refused to answer a question on whether he is a Communist.

Young said the question was "an unconstitutional invasion of my rights" of privacy. He cited the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of speech and the right of peaceful assembly.

Ichord told the Chicago doctor that the First Amendment was not sufficient to shield him against being charged with contempt of Congress.

The subcommittee chairman said he didn't know whether contempt charges would be brought against Greenblat for his walkout.

Greenblat's mobilization committee was one of four protest organizations which undercover police agent Robert L. Pierson testified share the goal "to violently overthrow the government of the United States."

Pierson named the others as the Youth International Party Yippies, the Students for a Democratic Society, and the Black Panther Party.

Pierson infiltrated the protests as a personal bodyguard to bearded Yippie leader Jerry Rubin, whom he quoted as saying, "We should take the government over just as Russia did."

Rubin has been subpoenaed to testify, but Ichord left open the question whether he would actually be called when the hearings resume Friday since charges are still pending against the Yippie leader as a result of the Chicago disorders.

Fighting Intensifies; Olympics Stay Open

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Troops hunted room by room for snipers while tanks patrolled downtown streets Thursday after the bloodiest fighting of Mexico's student revolt. The turmoil prompted an anxious meeting of International Olympic officials, but they decided to open the 1968 games Oct. 12 as planned.

Savage clashes between student rebels and the forces of President Gustav Diaz Ordaz' government Wednesday night left a death toll variously estimated at 20 to 40. Hundreds of others were injured and thousands jailed.

Rioting has shaken Mexico City since mid-July when students struck to back up such demands as elimination of the riot police corps, and a guarantee of university autonomy. The harassed government ordered an army takeover of the University of Mexico last month.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, announced the Games will go on as scheduled after an emergency committee session.

"We have conferred with the Mexican authorities and we have been assured that nothing will interfere with the peaceful entrance of the Olympic flame into the stadium on Oct. 12, nor with the competition which follows," Brundage said in a statement.

Sierra Club To Meet Monday

The Sierra Club will have an organizational meeting Monday at 7:30 at Social Hall in the U-Mass Newman Center.

The program will include introduction of members and guests, orientation to the work and objectives of the club, and selection of the chapter's conservation committee members.

Sierra membership is open to faculty members, staff people, students and other conservationists of this entire region. Membership dues include the club's conservation bulletin.

Plans call for a Sierra Club Conservation Conference at the University's Alumni Memorial Hall Nov. 23 and 24. Further information is available from Dick Ryan, 19 Pleasant St., South Deerfield; or F. Stanley Mikelk, 203 Hampshire House.

Speaking of HANGOUTS

Fri.-Sat. The Red Gertrude Good-Time Banjo Band

Sunday 9:00-1:00 John Morgan & his 12-String Guitar

Ha-Ha Ha

Tues. Wed.-Thurs. Rock - Soul ANDY JAY & The Collections

Ha-Ha Ha

Free champagne for the ladies 8-10 p.m.

THE RED GERTRUDE

1270 Memorial Ave. West Springfield Across from Exposition

Amherst Tower

Order 5 pizzas

Pay for 4

FREE DELIVERY

Call

253-7100

256-6667

DANCE

TONIGHT AT 8:00

with

THE RANDOM SAMPLE

STUDENT UNION BALLROOM 75c

Get A Date For Homecoming Now!

SPONSORED BY ALPHA PHI OMEGA

MAMA'S PIZZA

103 N. Pleasant

FREE DELIVERY

Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

253-9858

● Index

More than 1,000 copies of the 1968 Index are awaiting the claims of their rightful owners, says their custodian, Lowell H. Fitch, Pre-Law '69.

"They're available to all holders of blue cards, in the Index office on the mezzanine of the Student Union."

Lowell reports that 2,700 copies have been mailed to last June's graduates, from the printing plant at Hannibal, Mo. About 8,000 have already been distributed on campus. The total press run of the 1968 book was 11,800.

Editor of the 414-page yearbook was Richard H. Sadowski of W. Springfield. He is now a dental student at Tufts University.

NOTICES

INTERNATIONAL FOLK DANCE GROUP
Dancing every Friday, 7-11 p.m., Davis Ballroom, Davis Center, Smith College. Open to anyone, no experience necessary. No admission charge.

NEWMAN CLUB
Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte, plus Road Runner cartoon. Tonight 8:30 and 9 p.m., Social Hall. Members free, Non-member, 50c.

BELCHERTOWN VOLUNTEERS
A free bus will leave for Belchertown from the Student Union Saturday at 1:15 p.m.

ASTRONOMY CLUB
Meeting Monday, Oct. 7, Hasbrouck 109, 8 p.m., to plan activities for the coming year. Everyone is invited.

SCIENCE-FICTION LIBRARY
Books, comic books, tapes, magazines waiting for you to take them out! Open Mon.-Fri., 6:30-8:30 p.m., 109-111 Hampshire House, near Southwest.

SCIENCE-FICTION CLUB
Come to our first "non-meeting" meeting for fun. Discuss your favorite authors, ask questins. Membership applications will be taken. 8 p.m., Norfolk Room, SU.

LOST
Vicinity of Hatch, brown, leather pocketbook. Contains ID, etc. If found, please notify Rose Eidlin, 103 Van Meter.

Beige umbrella (brand new) in the Hatch between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Thursday, October 3. If found, please return to SU Lost and Found or call Tammy Pomeroy at Sigma Delta Tau.

Pair of prescription sunglasses (impossible to see through), in the vicinity of Bartlett and the Student Union. Reward! Call 253-7691 (off-campus).

PINNING
Pat Hatfield '69, Eucene Field to Lonnie Brown, Phi Kappa Nu, Brown University '69.
Cynthia Giovanni '71, Coolidge to William Carey '70, Hamlin.

ENGAGEMENT
Mimi Chow '69, Pierpont to Kam Fook Tse, Asst. Professor, Syracuse University.

PROJECT TEN:

The Pains of Growth

A dream which has the possibility of becoming a working reality is a description for Project Ten. This year, disgruntled upperclassmen have been given the chance to open this pilot program in higher education. Its purpose is to provide a more flexible, less pressured academic atmosphere, in which students can cultivate closer and more meaningful relationships with one another. For the upperclassmen who have effected the project, it is an opportunity to prove to the establishment that education is not necessarily strict regimentation, but more a give-and-take process. A wild idea? Yes. A promising one, also.

From its start on September 5, Project Ten has been a confusing proposition. Lack of organization among project students has created uncertainty as to which direction the project will move. But this lack is to be found in any social experiment. To be sure, many of the project students have tried diligently to create cooperation and organization. This concern can be only a promising asset to the stability and goal of the project.

The sense of freedom engendering responsibiltiy seems to be the central drive of the project. Its atmosphere has been conducive to free expression as well as constructive action. The periodical Newsletter put out by project students shows an awareness and desire to rectify problems within the project. Hopefully the paper will become its strong voice. Free thought also abounds in the publication Overdose.

To create closer human feeling, the floor counselors are helping the students set up Human Value Seminars. Small groups of men and women will meet once a week in one or the others' corridor. The first seminar was a promising success. There were skits and music. The fact that the bulletin boards in Moore and Pierpont are always covered with literature can only imply much activity within the project.

Non-project students (upperclassmen) who live in a separate wing of Moore and Pierpont have vague and mixed feelings of what the project is doing. That should not be difficult to comprehend when even project members are not sure. One upperclassman feels that those in the project think they are special and somewhat superior to the rest of the university. This view is held by a significant proportion of upperclassmen.

In contrast sophomore Artie Machia suggests, "Project Ten, besides being a group of unapathetic freshmen, is an experiment that could do much to foretell the communal structure of the university in the coming years." This view is held by an even more significant number of upperclassmen.

Project Ten is a risk. But a risk—many of them in fact—is needed to change our present educational system. When student dissent is so continuous, intense, and widespread, it is truly time to re-evaluate the present learning system. Project Ten is an attempt to seek a more congenial way of learning.

S. S.

Law and Order

In their campaign for the Presidency, all three major candidates have emphasized the need for "law and order". Certainly our nation needs law and order but more important is our need for a society in which rights and opportunity are equal for black and white alike.

Vice-President Humphrey, a long-time proponent of equal rights legislation has even taken up the "law and order" call. After the debacle of Chicago when he could have denounced "law and order" as his rallying charge and perhaps gain many needed votes, the Vice-President preferred to praise the Gestapo-like tactics of Mayor Daley's police. This was his golden opportunity to call for equal rights for dissenters as well as other minorities.

Richard Nixon, ever the political pragmatist, has clearly perceived that many people in this nation are willing to hide the ills of our country's cities under the guise for a need for "law and order".

George Wallace, the champion of the lower class working man, has gone so far as to say that he would station soldiers armed with bayonets within a few yards of each other in the nation's capital to preserve "law and order". It should be noted that Washington, D.C. is a predominantly black city. He has completely overlooked the deplorable conditions of our ghettoes in his impassioned pleas for "law and order".

Perhaps these candidates would change their pleas considerably if they were forced to live in a Harlem or a Watts for any period of time. They would realize why law and order is necessary in our cities. They would not call for "law and order" but a cure for the tinder-box conditions which set the stage for riots when the slightest aggravating condition occurs in almost any one of our nation's ghettoes.

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Mark Silverman '71
EDITORIAL DAY EDITOR ..... Nancy Bourgoin '69
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69

News Staff: Pat Frances, Ruth Lovelace, Anne Giardine, Sharon Samules.

Editorial Staff: Steve Selby, Michael Darman, Doug Packer.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"You And I Were Old Capitol Hill Colleagues Too"

INSIDE REPORT:

Behind Ball's Resignation

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The Abruptness of George Ball's exit from the Johnson administration to join Hubert Humphrey's sagging presidential campaign concealed deep and growing alarm over the President's handling of the Paris peace negotiations, despite official statements to the contrary.

In last week's announcement of Ball's resignation as U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, both the President and Ball sought to explain the precipitous departure from the UN as the result of Ball's conviction that Richard M. Nixon lacks the "settled principles" needed in the presidency.

But even if this was the central reason for Ball's sudden decision to quit, the fact remains that within the past month Ball has bitterly complained to close friends about what he regards as Mr. Johnson's stiffening on the question of an unconditional bombing halt. He is convinced that this stiffening has gravely compromised the U.S. negotiating team in Paris.

Specifically, Ball has said privately that the President's actions at the late-July Honolulu meeting with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu wrecked a careful diplomatic probe by Ambassador Averill Harriman. Harriman is the President's chief agent in the bogged-down Paris talks with the North Vietnamese.

Although precise details are highly confidential, there is reason to believe that a break in the Paris talks was imminent just before Mr. Johnson went to Honolulu for his conversations with Thieu. These culminated in an extraordinary hour - and - a - quarter tete-a-tete between the two heads of state on July 19 which no one else attended.

If there was a memorandum of conversation (known in the diplomatic trade as a Memcon) of this long and private talk, it is a closely-guarded document both here and in Saigon. In Washington, details of the long talk are known only by a very few of the President's most intimate advisers. Thus, the precise agreements made by Mr. Johnson in return for concessions by Thieu are still a state secret.

But Ball and some other members of the President's official family believe that this conversation contained certain agreements that convinced the Communist regime in Hanoi the U.S. was not bargaining in good faith at Paris.

Acordingly, the careful diplomatic initiative then being nurtured by Harriman and his aides in Paris was pulled up by the roots.

Partly as a result of this, Ball has confided to intimates that Humphrey was placed in an intolerable political bind. Further, this bird was closed tighter by Mr. Johnson's repeated contradictions of Humphrey whenever the Vice President claimed to see some small glimmer of light at the end of the tunnel.

That, then, is the background of Ball's much-criticized decision to desert the United Nations only one day after his confirmation by the Senate as chief U.S. representative to the new meeting of the General Assembly.

Ball's first job for Humphrey was to help write his Vietnam speech on Monday night so as to minimize charges that Humphrey was selling out the Paris negotiations.

Ball first talked with Humphrey about this speech two days before he quit the UN. He spent much of last weekend conferring with Humphrey on the West Coast. He then returned to Humphrey's side in Salt Lake City at noon on Monday to put in the finishing touches, along with speechwriter Ted Van Dyke, Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien, and Humphrey aide William Welsh.

He was, in fact, indispensable as Humphrey spelled out the main difference between his own position and Mr. Johnson's: that, while the President demands specific deescalation, or a quid pro quo, from Hanoi as a condition for stopping the bombing, Humphrey is willing to assume good faith without Hanoi's spelling out a quid pro quo in advance.

Although this difference is a major one in the careful diplomatic language of Paris, the immediate political reaction at home to Humphrey's speech enough to accomplish its purpose: enough to accomplish it purpose: persuade the sullen McCarthyites to work for Humphrey and force Nixon to say specifically how he would end the war.

As Humphrey's newest adviser, in short, it's just possible Ball may soon yearn for the relative peace and quiet of the UN.

(c) 1968 Publishers-Hall Syndicate

COMMENT:

South Vietnam and Cambodia

By Fran Van Dinh
College Press Service

A recent visitor to both South Vietnam and Cambodia told me: "What a difference! Cambodia is a paradise of Peace and Dignity and South Vietnam a hell of war and degradations!"

"Yes, the war and the deprivations in South Vietnam are temporary, but peace and dignity will be permanent in Cambodia as long as Prince Norodom Sihanouk continues to lead," I answered.

Nothing speaks more loudly about the difference in the situation of these two neighboring countries of South East Asia than a document released in the magazine Le Sangkum published in Phnom Penh. (The Director of the magazine (in French) is Prince Norodom Sihanouk himself, the Head of State of Cambodia). It is a letter (in Vietnamese) written by Lt. Vuong Tan Dat of the South Vietnamese Air Force to the Head of State of Cambodia.

On June 29, 1968, Lt. Dat and his observation plane bearing U.S. insignia landed in Kompong - Cham in the Cambodian territory. (This was not the first time a South Vietnamese officer left the "hell of war and deprivations" for the "paradise of peace and dignity." Several others have done so in the past. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi (now in exile in Washington, D.C.) took refuge in Cambodia in November 1960 with his friends when his attempted coup d'etat against the late Pres. Ngo Dinh Diem failed.

Lt. Dat's letter reads as follows (translation mine):

His Royal Highness Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Head of State of Cambodia.

Your Royal Highness,

I have the honor to address this request to Your Royal Highness and ask Your Highness to accord me the rights of political asylum in your honorable country.

Since 1960, in order to fight for the independence and the liberty of my country, I enrolled myself in the Air Force of So. Vietnam. At the end of 1961, I graduated and have fulfilled many missions all over the territory of South Vietnam. In the course of my duties during these missions, I realized more and more clearly the vicious schemes of the American aggressors.

They have maliciously threw their money under the disguise of aid to interfere gradually in and trample on the sovereignty of my country. They have done so with the evil intention of using my fatherland as a base for aggression against the whole of Indochina.

Ever since I was conscious of these realities, I knew how unfortunate I was. Moreover, there is a group of leaders who are eager to receive the American money and are willing to be the American agents and to escalate the fratricidal war, using the Vietnamese to fight against their compatriots according to the wishes of the American imperialists.

Since then I know how fortunate is the Kingdom of Cambodia, thanks to the farsightedness of Your Highness as the Head of State. You have perceived the schemes of the U.S. aggressors and courageously refused all their attempts to buy you. You took on yourself the leadership of your country and you have built it into an independent, truly neutral state thus bringing freedom and prosperity to all your citizens without accepting any interference whatsoever from any foreign country in the sovereignty of Cambodia. This accomplishment forces my admiration as well as that of almost all officers of the armed forces of So. Vietnam who intend some day to get away from the hands of the imperialists and their agents and to find asylum in your country.

Because of this intention, I was arrested and jailed by the Military Security for over four months beginning August 1967, at the same time I was suspended of my rights as a pilot. After having obtained my limited freedom and after much thinking, I used the opportunity of the preparations by the Air Force personnel for their Air Force Day to be held on July 1, 1968. I proceeded without authorization to Dalat, 300 kilometers from Tan Son Nhut, took away a plane on special mission there and flew to Combodia according to my wishes.

In leaving South Vietnam, I have left behind my old parents, my wife and my three young children.

For the reasons above, I am now separated from my family, from my country. I beg Your Royal Highness with your known kindness, with your generosity as large as the sky and the seas to take compassion on my case and to grant me asylum in your honorable country.

At the same time, may I also ask that if and when my father, my mother, my wife and my three children succeed in reaching me here, they too will receive the same favor.

We will ask Your Royal Highness the permission to go back immediately to our country when our fatherland is liberated from the aggressors, will regain its independence and will establish its neutrality as they exist in Cambodia.

I beg Your Royal Highness to accept here the expressions of my respects and my profound gratitude.

Signed: Lt. Vuong Tan Dat

Lieutenant Vuong Tan Dat's request was granted by Prince Norodom Sihanouk who also gave him out of his own pocket 100,000 riels (Cambodian piasters).

Two Virtues of Wallace

By Douglas Packer

Yes, George Wallace, the racist candidate for President of the United States, does have two virtues. Emotion and honesty. Whether your feelings are joy or hatred toward Wallace you cannot deny the fact that he exploits these feelings to their fullest expression. John Kennedy had this capacity as did Martin Luther King, Bobby Kennedy and Gene McCarthy. These men issued hope and positive emotions from us while Wallace reaches for hate and negative emotions. However, I prefer this to the dull and obnoxious political rantings of Humphrey and Nixon. Controversy, whether sparked by a Malcolm X or a George Wallace, is better than the non-emotional stagnation of a Nixon or Humphrey.

Wallace provides us with concrete evidence of the hate and total disregard for our fellow man which is so evident in America. The Kerner Commission told us that the sickness in our country is due to racism, white racism. But white Americans couldn't believe that they were racists, and the Commission's report was ignored.

However, there is no ignoring George Wallace. One out of five Americans would vote for Wallace and the number will increase by election time. White America, both North and South, is racist, just ask a black man. But I am sure the black man prefers Wallace's racism to the Northern kind. At least Wallace is honest. A quality which both Humphrey and Nixon seem to lack.

Humphrey was once a leading liberal and an outstanding orator. But now he has failed the American people by not laying it on the line. He has failed to get Big Daddy Lyndon off his back and has resorted to the Nixon tactic of irrelevance; therefore we must write him off.

Nixon is not even worth discussion. He stands alongside the Everett Dirksens, J. Edgar Hoovers and Strom Thurmonds of America. He is to be written off as well.

We are left with George Wallace. Wallace is disgusting and abhorrent to anybody with an ounce of compassion. I hate him and everything he stands for. It is exactly these emotions on which I base my case. Hate is good when directed against an evil such as Wallace and racism.

In an interview on television Wallace was asked exactly what his views were on segregation. Wallace replied that God made two separate races, Black and White and therefore they should remain separate. Whether you laugh or cry at his statement you are nevertheless expressing an emotion which you could not possibly have toward Humphrey or Nixon, they are neuter.

Now you say Hitler also instilled tremendous emotion. Does that make him virtuous? Obviously not.

The emotions that you feel toward Wallace are the initial step toward asking yourself why you feel these emotions. If you honestly answer why you feel these emotions you will inevitably reject Wallace and his philosophy.

One cannot let personality and emotion cloud the issues for which a man stands. However, since a candidate's emotional appeal or distaste is connected with the issues he stands for, it should not be discounted in voting for the President in any election year.

Thinking of Not Voting...

By Dave Baskin

Many sensitive, disappointed people today are thinking of not voting in November, or of voting for a dream ticket with no chance of winning, rather than voting for Hubert Humphrey. By doing so they wish to make known their disgust for the two major candidates and the nominating system.

This line of thinking may result in tragedy for the nation. If these people want the reforms begun in 1960 to continue, if a flexible foreign policy not based on "light and darkness" theories is desired, then the Vice-President is the only logical person to vote for. Only he or Nixon can win.

Politics is the "art of the possible. "Upset as we may be, we must realize that there are millions of people in America whose votes are influenced by their fears, their pocketbooks and old war memories instead of by reason and justice. HHH must appeal to this majority, even if it means ignoring the intellectual community and young non-voters.

The events surrounding his nomination-power politics, deals, police brutality—are unfortunate but they should not cause us to ignore our responsibility to choose the best of the possible winners as President.

John Kennedy courted Southern leaders in 1960, and FDR accepted a real Bourbon as vice-president in 1932. Yet, both were great presidents. In politics, as in life one must compromise in order to achieve anything.

Some dissidents feel that a Nixon presidency would be preferable to Humphrey since the Democrats control Congress. A look at the Dixie-Republican power today, and the imminence of conservative congressional victories negates the belief that liberals could temper Nixon. And if they could, do we want four years of stalemates?

One of Nixon's deepest faults is that he puts his party above the country's needs, and himself above all else. Thinking, well-meaning Americans should not put their ideology and desire for revenge above the nation's welfare by throwing away sorely needed votes, thus assuring Nixon's election.

It has been asserted that HHH lacks courage. Yet he is the man who championed civil rights in 1948, originated the Peace Corps, cleaned up crime in Minneapolis in 1945, and along with Orville Freeman and Eugene McCarthy reformed Minnesota politics. He still has courage but today, in order to keep America on a liberal course at home and abroad, he must appeal to all the people. We, his original constituency should realize his problem. We are not the only voters in the U. S.

Such dream candidates as Rockefeller, Lindsay, and Kennedy have rallied to the side of their party's nominee. In view of this, those who supported Gene McCarthy and plan to vote for him in November should consider the possibility that he, with his enormous moral force, may come out for Humphrey at a crucial point in the campaign. Certainly he will not want to be responsible for the election of Nixon. Does the liberal, concerned community?

Humphrey is the best choice we have of the candidates who can win. Crippled by Wallace in the North, trailing Nixon among the flag-waving and "law-abiding" voters, he needs all the support he can get. If we don't want the black move toward equality frustrated, if we want the problem of the poor attended to, we must vote for Humphrey as the only candidate committed to these goals.

We must hope that he is playing semantics about Vietnam, remembering the sentiments of voters in hawkish states, whose support he needs. Humphrey is no JFK or FDR but as Ted Sorensen said "He is the least likely to sink us all."

IN EUROPE:

Student Unrest

By Brian Braun
College Press Service

(This is the fourth in a series of articles written by Daily Illini Executive Editor Brian Braun.)

The degree to which European universities adhere to the concept of "in loco parentis" is manifest in a spectrum of official administration doctrines.

The forms of university-imposed student restrictions in Europe follow roughly the same outlines American administrators have adopted in the past. In the United States, these regulations have taken the form of restrictions on where students may live, when they must return to their dorms at night, visitation bans and drinking, smoking and automobile regulations.

While many Italian, Spanish and Greek universities have been painfully slow in abandoning the "in loco parentis" thesis, several newer British universities have chosen a laissez faire attitude toward non-academic student life.

The administration of Keele University, one of the newest English institutions, is representative of this new concept. A school with an enrollment of roughly 1,500, Keele has trusted the student with his own private life.

Only freshmen are required to live in university housing and no closing hours are kept in any of the university's dormitories. Visitation (men are allowed in women's rooms and vice versa) has been unregulated by the university since its inception.

According to the students at Keele, few problems have resulted from the position taken by the administration.

Barbara Dew, a senior at the university, said, "Most of the students are serious enough about their educations to take care of themselves. The men and the women know they have to be up for classes the next day and most of them get in at reasonable hours. As for men going into women's rooms, all I can say is that it doesn't happen too often—what can you do when there's a roommate around? You can always do what you want anyway somewhere more private. One thing I should tell you though, is that almost all the students at my university live on campus even though they don't have to—it's the best housing around."

In direct contrast to the system at Keele is the situation which exists at many universities in Italy and to an even greater extent, Spain.

The University of Barcelona keeps close tabs on each of its students. In addition to regulating student housing, the administration restricts the speech of the students by taking action against persons who 'speak out against the interests of the university or government. The sentences may take the form of expulsion from the university, army service, trial in civil court, or lesser punishments.

In addition, students find their dorms closed tight at 12 p.m., visitation is not permitted, and no student organizations which might threaten the dictates of the faculty are permitted.

Student Vietnam War Protests Growing More Militant

By D. Gareth Porter
College Press Service

Vietnam's anti-war student activists have grown increasingly militant this year despite the heavier price of openly opposing the government. If they wish to speak out strongly against the war, students face the choice of risking a long prison term or joining the National Liberation Front or its allies.

Some of the student leaders have already chosen the latter alternative. Several leaders of the Saigon Student Union in 1967 joined the NLF during Tet. Several of Hue's student activists, traditionally more militant, joined the Front before the end of last year.

It is difficult to get accurate information on how many students are actually working for the clandestine Alliance of National, Democratic and Peace Forces or its student affiliate, the Saigon Students Committee for Peace, both of which have aligned themselves with the Front as an alternative to the Thieu government. One political figure well-known for his anti-war stand believes that the figure is probably no more than 100. Student leaders themselves admit that only about ten percent of the approximately 25,000 university students in Saigon even know or care about the Alliance and its purpose.

Anti-war activists, however, have clearly been driven to a position of advocating the overthrow of the military government by a Communist-led coalition of forces. One student leader interviewed at the Student Union headquarters, still filled with refugees from the May offensive, said,

"The future role of the generals who rule the country depends on how they respond to the people's wishes for peace. If they do not give the people peace, they will be lost."

Reunification Becomes Topic

Militance was also reflected in his position on the future reunification of North and South Vietnam. Far from speaking vaguely of a ten-, fifteen-or twenty-year period before reunification, the student said without hesitation, "Reunification will take place within five years, at the most. Most people believe that all Vietnamese are one, North and South."

The activists are not typical of Saigon students. It is usually estimated that only about 10 percent of the university students are politically active. Most of them have little respect for either the Saigon politicians or the generals, and they have been perfectly willing to let someone else die if if they can avoid military service. But since nearly all of them are from middle-class families, most students also find a victory by the Viet Cong unacceptable.

They are also quite insensitive to the social cleavages and conflicts which underlie the present war. When beginning students at Saigon University were asked by an American teacher of English to write a composition on the racial problem in the U.S., comparing it with Vietnamese social problems, very few mentioned the gulf between the urban middle class and the peasant, between Vietnamese and Chinese, or between Vietnamese and Montagnard tribesmen.

The anti-war movement is limited by the inherent social class composition of the student body. Little interest is generated by the elections for positions in the Saigon Student Union, the organization representing students of the 14 divisions of Saigon University. But the left-wing opponents of the war seem to be in a majority among those who are more involved in politics.

Anti-war students have been elected to the executive committees of the various faculties of the university over the last two years, and since these representatives in turn elect the powerful seven-man executive committee of the Saigon Student Union, the anti-war movement has dominated it during that time.

Student Union Involved

The Student Union has been involved in social action as well as politics, having mobilized about 500 university students to contribute labor regularly in refugee relief after Tet Offensive and the May offensive. At one refugee center this summer, I saw students teaching refugee children in a school which they had begun on their own.

Anti-war activity has run in cycles, depending on the political circumstances of the moment. Last year, students were mobilized by the results of the Presidential Election, which were denounced by Buddhists and student leaders as fraudulent. Opposition to the election was coupled with calls for a negotiated settlement of the war.

Late last September, members of the executive committees of the four universities at Saigon, Can Tho, Da Lat and Van Hanh organized a seminar and demonstration, then issued a statement demanding the cessation of the bombing of North Vietnam, a ceasefire, the withdrawal of foreign troops and negotiations to reunify the country. Within the same week, students demonstrated in front of the National Assembly and tore up the board displaying the names of those elected in Presidential and Senatorial elections.

As a result of these and other demonstrations, the chairman of the Executive Committee of the Saigon Student Union, Ho Huu Nhut, and six other student leaders were arrested and spent some time in jail before they were drafted into the army. At the beginning of the Tet Offensive, all seven joined the Viet Cong.

Soviet Press

A new cycle of student anti-war activity began early last summer, not with demonstrations but with public statements. After a long silence on the war, the official newspaper of the Student Union, with a circulation of about 5,000 published an editorial both strongly anti-war and anti-American. At the same time, the Student Union's Executive Committee issued a statement urging that the war "must cease by negotiation in order for the nation not to be destroyed." It called for a "realistic peace solution" acceptable to both parties. Within a month, the editor of the student newspaper was arrested and later sentenced to five years at hard labor.

The main reason for the timing of these statements was the impending general mobilization under which most students would lose their draft deferments. Students called on members of both houses of the National Assembly to protest the mobilization and to demand how long they would permit the war to go on. They also consulted political figures like Tran Van Tuyen and Au Truong Thanh, who had spoken out for a negotiated settlement based on the participation of the Viet Cong in elections. But the effort to deflect the mobilization law failed.

Prospects for the student anti-war movement in Vietnam are worse than they have been since the fall of Diem. Prevented from demonstrating, severely limited in what they can publish, and continually harrassed by police, who frequently enter their offices to search for subversive materials, the activists still remaining in Saigon are frustrated but determined. Asked what they could do to influence the government's policy, one student leader replied firmly, "We can only demand peace, again and again."

(Editor's Note: D. Gareth Porter, who teaches political science at Manchester College in North Manchester, Indiana, had just returned from Vietnam, where he wrote for CPS this summer. This story was first in a series describing the war and the country as he saw them.)

PICK YOUR OWN APPLES
McIntosh $1.50 ½ Bushel
SWEET CIDER 50 cents half gallon

Presidential Campaign Explored on WFCR

Amherst, Mass. — Connecticut Valley's five college radio station WFCR-FM (88.5mc) will begin broadcasting live and in stereo the Five College Forum public affairs series with its focus on the 1968 Presidential Campaign starting Monday, Oct. 7, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Monday night's program will view the political scene in retrospect. William Havard, chairman of the UMass department of government, will serve as anchor man for the series. For the first program, he will be joined by George Kateb, professor of political science at Amherst College; Francis Smith, Dean of Arts and Humanities at Hampshire College; John Fenton, UMass Commonwealth professor of government; and David Mayhew, professor of political science at Yale University.

Participants in the series will be drawn from the faculty of the five area colleges and will vary with each program. The format will be informal with emphasis on candid conversations reflecting the viewpoints of the panelists.

Future broadcasts on the campaign include "Foreign Affairs and the Campaign" (Oct. 14); "The Cities and the Campaign" (Oct. 28); and "The Candidates and Where They Stand" (Nov.4).

The Turtles
will appear in Springfield Municipal Aud.
Court Square, Springfield, Mass.
on October 11, 1968, Friday evening
at 8:30 p.m.
TICKET PRICE: $2.50, 3.00, 4.00
For tickets send remittance to:
ST. FRANCIS Chapel, 254 Bridge St., Spfld.
or call:
733-3101

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

PI BETA PHI will hold an Open House Tea
on SUNDAY, OCT. 6 in the Colonial Lounge
of the
STUDENT UNION
2:00-3:30 p.m.

LAST CHANCE to Dance to the
BOSS TWEEDS
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 5 -- 8 - 12 P.M.
S.U. BALLROOM

Estela Olevsky In Concert Tonight

Estela Olevsky, music faculty member and acclaimed concert pianist, will perform in concert tonight at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium, as a part of the UMass faculty recital series.

Berg's Sonata, Opus 1 (1908) and Chopin's Sonata No. 3, Opus 58 (1844) will be part of the musical entertainment to be performed by concert pianist and music faculty member Estela Kersenbaum Olevsky Friday, October 4, at 8 p.m. in Bowker Auditorium. The concert is being presented by the UMass faculty recital series.

Mrs. Olevsky's program will also include Albeniz's "Navarra", Ravel's "Valses Nobles et Sentimentables," and Ginastera's "Malambo."

At the age of eight, Mrs. Olevsky made her concert debut in Buenos Aires. After studying piano at the National Conservatory there, she received her masters degree there as the youngest graduate of the conservatory. She studied composition with the distinguished composer Alberto Ginastera and completed her music education by receiving top honors in orchestral conducting at the Teatro Colon.

She has toured the world with her husband, violinist Julian Olevsky, with whom she recorded for King Records of Japan. Her New York debut was made with the Mozart Orchestra. Music critics have hailed her for her "magnificent musical and virtuoso level of performance, her inate musical gifts and accomplished pianism, and her great command of pianistic resources, nuances and color.

John Mitchell Appointed Director of Journalism

By Rose Miller
Staff Reporter

UMass Professor of Technical Writing John H. Mitchell has been appointed by Russell K. Alspach, head of the English Department, as director of journalism and technical writing, in a move towards expansion of the communications curriculum.

Prof. Mitchel defines his new job as "an administrative procedure to co-ordinate and clarify verbal communications offerings". He heads a seven-man committee made up of Department of English members and the section of journalism within the department that is involved in the co-ordination of courses.

No changes in course offerings or requirements are expected next semester, he said.

Prof. Mitchell defines his new co-ordination might lead to a School of Communication at U-Mass, the structure of which would make all phases of communication a "working entity". But, Prof. Mitchel said, he cannot foresee, even after the courses are clarified and need known, that UMass will have a School of Communication for several years.

On the committee with Mitchell are: Professor William O'Donnell of English, Professors Barney Emmart, Arthur Musgrave and Dario Politella of the journalism section, and Alvin F. Oickle, lecturer in journalism, all of the Department of English, and Jack Dean, editor-in-chief of the Collegian.

The committee met twice in September and at its October meetings will prepare the spring semester offerings.

Prof. Mitchell received his bachelor of science degree from Bowdoin College in 1943 and his master of arts from Harvard University in 1947. He came to U-Mass in 1950 and was later chief writer and assistant professor of chemistry and systems analysis at the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, D.C., and at the Systems Research Laboratory, Tufts University, respectively. His consulting experience included part-time work with Boeing Airplane Co., Standard Electric Co., John H. Breck Co., Hamilton Standard Corp., Harza Engineering and Union Carbide Corp. among others.

Prof. Mitchell is a member of the Society of Technical Writers and Publishers, the Society of Presentation of Technical Information (London) and the Society of Technical Publications (Honorary) in London. His awards include the Metawampe Award in 1966.

In December, Prof. Mitchell will represent the United States at a communications symposiun in Israel.

MDC PHOTO STAFF
WEEKLY MEETING
TUESDAY,
6:30 P.M.

MDC Education Staff
Meeting
Sunday, 6 October
7:30 p.m. Collegian Office

Amherst Tower
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4
FREE DELIVERY
Call
253-7100
256-6667

CONCERN Holds Signature Drive

Recently a group of politically active students who worked this last spring and summer for Senator Eugene McCarthy's campaign, have organized a group called CONCERN. The new group is presently involved with the formation of a fourth party movement in Massachusetts. The fourth party movement is designed to offer a viable alternative to the Humphrey, Nixon, and Wallace tickets.

Offering more than a mere chance to register a protest vote, the statewide fourth party movement plans to create a permanent political force which will embody the spirit and advocate the goals of the New Politics.

Currently, CONCERN is sponsoring a signature drive in support of an open ballot in Massachusetts. The success of the petition, which is being circulated throughout the state, is considered as a major goal of the fourth party in this state.

BLOW YOURSELF UP TO POSTER SIZE
Get your own Photo poster. Send any Black and White or Color Photo. Also any newspaper or magazine photo.
PERFECT POP ART
Poster rolled and mailed in sturdy tube. Original returned undamaged. Add 50¢ for postage and handling for EACH item ordered. Add Local Sales Tax. No C.O.D. Send check cash or M.O. To
A $25.00 Value for
2x3 Ft-$3.50
3x4 Ft.-$7.50
PHOTO MAGIC
Frame for 2x3 Ft. Poster only $3.50
210 E. 23rd St., Dept. 341 New York, N.Y. 10010
Dealer inquiries invited

Berkeley and UCLA Plan Rallies In Support of Cleaver's Lectures

BERKELEY (CPS) -- University of California uproar may encompass more than the Berkeley campus in protest against the university's Board of Regents and California Governor Ronald Reagan.

Student rallies have been scheduled this week on both the Berkeley and UCLA campuses in the wake of a weekend board meeting which limited black militant Eldridge Cleaver to one campus lecture appearance this fall.

The UCLA academic senate met over the weekend to denounce the move, and the senate at Berkeley is expected to take similar action this week.

Cleaver, widely known as Minister of Information of the Oakland-based Black Panther Party for Self-Defense, Presidental candidate of the Peace and Freedom Party, and author of the best-selling "Soul on Ice," a book on the Negro experience in America, had been scheduled to deliver a series of ten lectures on racism on the Berkeley campus as part of an experimental course in race relations.

No sooner had word of his scheduled appearances gone out than outraged cries were heard from Republican Senatorial candidate Max Rafferty, presently the state's Superintendent of Public Instruction, and from California Governor Ronald Reagan.

Reagan linked the appointment of Cleaver to "asking Bluebeard the Pirate, the wife-murderer, to be a marriage counselor," and demanded that the Regents rescind the appointment. Rafferty called Cleaver a "racist bigot" and said if he were allowed to lecture the state's educational system was in need of complete overhaul. Even Jesse Unruh, Speaker of the California Assembly and usually a supporter of the university, said he thought the appointment unwise.

The State Senate approved a resolution censuring the university for inviting Cleaver to lecture, and Reagan threatened a "legislative investigation of the university from top to bottom" if the Panther were allowed on campus. It wasn't, he said, that he thought the students weren't responsible enough to be able to hear whomever they chose, but that the state taxpayers would not stand to see their money going for such purposes.

The Regents, obviously hoping to calm the fires from both sides, approved a resolution by President Charles Hitch, head administrator of the university's nine campuses, which limited Cleaver (and the other participants in the seminar) to one appearance rather than ten.

Several of the Regents expressed their reservations about Cleaver and his lecture engagement, but said they would not vote to ban him entirely because of "the danger in letting the Regents start naming who could and could not appear as lecturers".

Students and professors on the university's campuses agreed with that principle, but not with the Board's action. Nettled by the Board's willingness even to debate the issue, which they consid er an encroachment on academic freedom and an intellectual restraint, they see the "compromise measure" allowing one appearance as only a token gesture meant to pacify them. Students, who regard Cleaver as an articulate spokesman for today's militant blacks, say such a token is not enough. More moderate faculty members, who are ambivalent to Cleaver's presence, are equally angry; their anger stems from fear that the Regents' practice of listening to every muttering from the State House about academic affairs and interfering with teachers and curriculum will become common.

FEATURE STAFF MEETING
MONDAY NIGHT
7:30 P.M.
NORFOLK ROOM
STUDENT UNION

MDC CLASSIFIED

PERSONAL

6,000,000 mentally retarded people in the United States have enough problems without you adding to them. "But I'm not doing anything," you say. THAT is the problem! Join the UMass. Belchertown Volunteers for the mentally retarded—to do something. 546-9783

To a freshman girl in J.Q.A. or Coolidge, Uncle Sammee Munichullio of Holiday Inn says "Hi, Girl Welcome to U. of M." 10/4

The Academy Award winning film classic Music Box is coming to this campus! 8t 3rd

FOR SALE

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily ad 10/16

MY JADE CASTLE—Handmade dresses, hand woven ponchos & Hand knit sweaters from Equador, etc. 69 North Pleasant Street over Mutual Hardware. Tu-Fri, 12-6, Sat. 10-6, 253-5412 10/7

HELP WANTED

Banjo player experienced in Gay 90's Sing-Alongs, Dixieland, Ragtime. Call 544-6722 eve's. 10/3

College students earn $60 a week for 3 eves and Sat. Scholarship grants avail. Call 584-7467 10/4

FOR SALE — AUTOMOBILE

Must sell 1965 MG 110 4 doors sports sedan, 4 cylinder, 4-speed, radio, back up lites, extras! 30 plus M.P.G. dark green, excellent condition, 35,700 miles Best offer. Call 549-1318

'57 Ford—Very good condition new tires (not retreads), new ball joints recently installed, engine and transmission in excellent condition. Carburetor recently rebuilt. Engine timed and tuned ready to drive—even muffler and tailpipe only 4 mos. old—A good buy for only $250.00. Call evenings 549-0939. 10/3

1961 Chevrolet Impala, 2 dr. hotp., 283, auto., P.S., $425 or best offer. 253-3628 10/8

1966 PORSCHE 912 22,000 orig. miles, Excellent condition throughout. Gray with black interior. Headrests, Blaupunkt AM, Koni shocks. Call: Don Thimas, 546-6428 after 6:00. 10/10

ROOMMATES NEEDED!

Need female roommates to live in huge new furnished house with fireplace for $50 per person per month. For information, contact Leslie Gallese at 467-7918 any time. 10/8

WANTED

Banjo Band—Contact Social Chairman at 542-2186. 10/8

Cocktail waitress, pleasant atmosphere. Call 546-8180 or 584-6543. 10/7

FUN WORKING IN EUROPE

GUARANTEED JOBS ABROAD! Get paid, travel, meet people. Summer and year 'round jobs for young people 17 to 40. For illustrated magazine with complete details and applications send $1.00 to The International Student Information Service (ISIS), 133, rue Hotel des Monnaies, Brussels 6, Belgium.

Booters Go After Second Season Win Against BC Eagles

By Walt Stachura
Staff Reporter

Looking for its second straight victory of the young season, the UMass soccer team travels to Boston College today to take on the Eagles for the first time in varsity soccer competition.

This game could be an excellent test of the overall capabilities of the Redman booters. Although only in their second season of varsity soccer, the Eagles compiled a 7—5—1 record against strong opposition last season and should be even tougher with a year's experience behind them.

One factor which could hurt the Eagles is a lack of experienced returning lettermen. Like the Redmen, the Eagles must rely on inexperienced sophomores and juniors in many positions with only 7 lettermen returning.

STEVE KRAMER
Seeks Second Straight Shutout

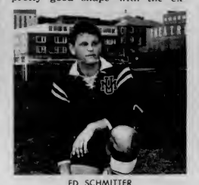
Al Villegas and Roman Martinez are two returning forwards which will give some experienced scoring threats in the front line.

JOHN MERCURY
Defense Play

Martinez, a native of Cuba, tallied nine points last year, while Villegas came up with eight points.

Filling out the front line are John Carroll and Ken Daggett. Carroll scored BC's lone goal in a 2—1 loss to Tufts in the Eagles opener last Saturday.

Likely starting at the halfback slots for the Eagles are Rick Hill, Frank Sapienza and Tom Bonaccorsi with Pete Oberto giving one of these players an occassional rest.



Ken Cuhna, Stan Wasowski and Barry Cahil are the starting fullbacks with Martinez falling back from his forward position to play fullback when needed.

Gerard Battista will be the starting netminder for the Eagles.

Gyorgy Lang, head coach of the Eagles, is a native of Hungary with some coaching experience in that country. He favors a good passing club with strong balance between the offense and defense.

UMass soccer coach Peter Broaca contends that the biggest factor in today's game will be the Boston College soccer field. It is shorter and narrower than normal with a wind tunnel formed by the nearby tennis courts.

Physically, the Redman are in pretty good shape with the exception of Marty Mughogho. Mughogho was injured in the Maine game last Saturday, and his knee was still bandaged during practice this week.

ED SCHMITTER
Full Back Support For Kramer

If Mughogho is unable to play, Wilkie Ward is expected to take the halfback position with Steve Blanchette moving into Ward's vacated wing. The switches seemed to work fairly well in several scrimmages between the Freshmen and varsity held this week.

Steve Kramer will start in the UMass goal and will be looking for his second straight shutout of the season. He will get the defensive support of his fullbacks Ed Schmitter, John Mercury, Bob Dubiel and Ed Sanborn.

Freshman coach Ray Cieplik will lead the little Redmen into action for the first time this season tomorrow. The frosh booters square off against Franklin Pierce College starting at 10:30 at varsity field.

Hockey Meetings

Varsity hockey meeting, Monday, Boyden 251 at 7 p.m.
Freshman hockey meeting, Thursday, Boyden 251 at 7 p.m.

Mickey Lolich Belts First Home Run As Tigers Tie Up World Series, 1-1

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mickey Lolich spent the morning wondering if he'd be able to pitch. By late afternoon, the St. Louis Cardinals were convinced he could pitch . . . and Lolich was starting to believe he could hit, too.

"I almost didn't pitch at all," the paunchy Detroit southpaw said yesterday after hurling the Tigers to an 8-1 World Series victory over the Cardinals and slamming the first home run of his professional baseball life.

"Overnight, I developed an infection in my groin," Lolich said. "When I came to the park today I was quite groggy. The doctor said I'd probably be able to pitch for a while but I might lost my strength after five or six innings.

"I thought Manager Mayo Smith might go with somebody else. Now I'm sort of glad he didn't."

Lolich stopped the Cardinals on six singles, struck out nine and hit one of three Detroit homers off loser Nelson Briles, a third inning solo shot into the left field seats. Lolich was so surprised, he missed first base and had to retrace his steps before circling the bases.

When Lolich returned to the Tiger dugout he received the usual congratulatory handshakes.

"But they were shaking their heads a lot, too," he said. "I've never been known to hit a ball to left field. I think everybody was as stunned as I was."

Dr. Clarence Livingston Tigers' club physician, examined Lolich and gave him medication before giving him the go-ahead to pitch.

Lolich, who also stroked a single and drew a bases-loaded walk, didn't run out of gas until he reached the dressing room after squaring the Series at one victory apiece.

"I'm quite tired," he admitted. "I could go in the clubhouse and fall right asleep."

The 28-year-old pitcher, who also does some skin diving, sailing and pistol shooting and plays the banjo right-handed, compiled a 17-9 record for the Tigers during the season.

He batted only .114, however, and had only four extra base hits—three doubles and a triple—in six years with the Tigers.

GNOMON 5¢ first copy of a page

SELLS 3¢ each 2nd thru 10th

XEROX 2¢ each 11th on up

COPIES 103 N. Pleasant St. Amherst, Mass. 253-7393

Students in Mrs. Whaples section of Music 101 can hear required works on WMUA. At least one assigned work will be played on each Musicale program, heard Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:30. In addition, students taking music courses are advised to request music during WMUA's Classics program, heard Sunday nights from 7:00 to 11:00.

George Hungerford, host.

THE DISTINGUISHED VISITORS PROGRAM

Presents

JOHN KENNETH GALBRAITH

Speaking On:

"The Anatomy of Turmoil"

● TONIGHT ●

8:00 P.M., MAHAR AUDITORIUM

Little Redman Footballers Out to End Plebes' Win Streak

By Steve Shamban
Staff Reporter

UMass freshman football goes bigtime as Coach Dave Kelley's Little Redmen square off against the Army Plebes at West Point this afternoon at 3:30 p.m.

Coach Kelley in his squad's first big outing would like nothing better than to put a stop to Army's current three game winning streak.

The Little Redmen, who have been practicing since Sept. 6, will probably start Marty Evans at quarterback. Evans, a good passer, can expect, however, to split playing time with two other quarterbacks, Wayne Casey and Bill Bush.

Casey is the best runner of the three, while Bush, who neither passes as well as Evans nor runs as well as Casey, does each well enough to be considered the best all-around player and has that intangible known as leadership.

The tailback will be Art Harris, 5'10, 198, a former All-State player as a schoolboy in New Jersey, who has the speed of 9.7 in the 100. Harris is adept at running inside and outside and has a lot of desire.

Angelo Denardo will be the wingback. He's 6', 195, and is a good blocker with good hands. A former Western Massachusetts Athlete of the Year, Dick Cummings, 6', 220, will get the nod at fullback. Cummings, a good blocker, will be spelled by Lenny Fitz, a 9.8 speedster. Mike Sawyer will spell Harris at tailback while Steve Burkovitch will sub for Dehardo at wingback.

John Hulecki, a mini-Milt Morin at 6'3, 215, will start at tight end. One should not get the impression, however, that he is another Milt Morin, although he does possess many of the same abilities. Walt O'Malley, 6'1, 190, who has run the 100 in 9.5, will start at split end.

The interior line, where Kelley feels the game will be won or lost, will have Bob Dunlin, 6'3, 220, and Mike Popavitch, 6'4, 230, at the tackles with Dan Kelley, 6', 208, and Gene Smith, 6', 205, at the guards. The center will be Ron Marino, 6'2, 215.

On defense, Curt Bristol, 6'2, 212, and Dave Levine, 6'1, 215, will start at the ends. The tackles will be John Case, 6'5, 240, and Steve Greany, 6'1, 218, while middle guard will be manned by a 5'9, 220 pound blockbuster, Bill De Flavio.

The linebackers will be John Borderud, 6'2, 210, and John Sabulis, 6'3, 190, while the cornerbacks will be Bob Cabreille, 5'10, 180, and Jim Kiley, 6'3, 195. Jim Keating, 6'3, 195, will start at safety, and the chief or roving back will be Brian O'Malley, 6'2, 200.

The Plebes who have lost their first two games, 14-13, to Buffalo, and 21-14, to Villanova, do not appear to be as strong as last year's squad, which featured halfback Billy Hunter and edged UMass 22-1. Sophomore Hunter returned a punt for 90 yards and a touchdown two weeks ago in Army's win over The Citadel.

The Little Redmen can expect the Plebes to throw 10 to 15 passes, mostly on the option, and an over-all off-tackle power offense. They do have a good place kicker who could be a factor in a close game and will go with the same 52 monster defense which UMass utilizes. The Plebes biggest advantage will probably be the fact that they've been together since July and have played two games.

Based on what he has seen in practice, Coach Kelley felt that "We have more depth than in the past." There are 65 players on the squad, so presumably there is a fair amount of talent on hand. Overall team speed he termed as "above average", but his judgment is based on the presence of three sub-10 second sprinters on offense. As far as execution goes, Kelley felt that it is average but he's also hoping for improvement.

He's also looking for a win this afternoon to avenge last year's one point loss and the 13-9 and 6-0 defeats of previous years. He feels he's got a shot at it. "It's a good one each time we meet them, and this should be a ringer-dinger," he stated while cautiously pointing out that his Little Redmen "are totally unproven."

Runners Seek Second Win at Northeastern

Tomorrow the UMass cross country team faces another tough opponent when they take on Northeastern in Franklin Park at Boston.

Both teams own a 1-1 record with the Redmen beating Providence and losing to Harvard and the Huskies beating UNH and also losing to Harvard.

The Northeastern team has a good strong nucleus of sophomore runners led by Larry Josephs, Mike Small and Ken Fallon, all of whom finished in the top 15 in last year's frosh cross country New England's meet.

Northeastern has improved greatly since their opening 15-48 loss to Harvard according to U-Mass coach Ken O'Brien. They more recently trounced UNH, 17-41, and are classified by Coach O'Brien as one of the top five teams in New England.

The varsity Redmen, although not physically peaked after a tough week of workouts, will be mentally keyed up for the Northeastern meet. Last year the Huskies handed the Redman varsity a 28-40 defeat, and their frosh beat the Little Redmen, 28-29. This year's varsity would like to avenge these losses.

As of now, the Redmen enter the meet with two big question marks. Senior Paul Hoss and sophomore Leo Duart are both ailing. Hoss, the top Redman in last Saturday's meet has missed three days of practice due to muscle and tendon strain. Duart is trying to recover from a bad cold. Without the services of these men, UMass' chances of victory will be in jeopardy.

While these two members of the team have been added to the injured list, the names of Bill Donaldson and Dave Evans have been removed from it, as they start to run true to form.

Also on the positive side five top UMass runners have looked good in practice. They are Charlie Lang, Marc Gelinas, Ron Wayne, Tom Derderian and Larry Paulson.

Coach O'Brien says two or three of his runners will have to cover the 4:70 mile New England's course in between 23:00 and 23:10.

Hoss and Lang have run 23:07 for the course.

The Northeastern frosh team is a slight pick over the UMass frosh. The Little Huskies lost to Harvard, 19-38. The Little Redmen lost to the Harvard frosh, 18-41.

The top men on each team are even according to Coach O'Brien. For UMass they are Don Dunsky and Wayne Lucass. For NU, they are John Flynn and Paul Carnes.

The meet will probably rest on the third, fourth, and fifth men on each team. This group from UMass is Mike Cowles, Ron Swasey and Bruce Blackburn.

J.D.F.

RON WAYNE

Reserve Monday Night For the MOVIE at the

English Pub

Don't forget our coat and tie policy
Fri. & Sat. nights after 6 p.m.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

PAC HERS PADS
ALL AREA OLEA
IDO INCLOSING
RATELEAGS
HA AND ELAN
ESS ANT OSAGE
LI TRY HAS IT
ALOHA ATE COS
NONE GAT TO ATEN PINTS
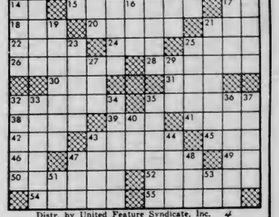
PASTEBOARD FIN
RIDE RENEE ELLA
ODER EDDA REP



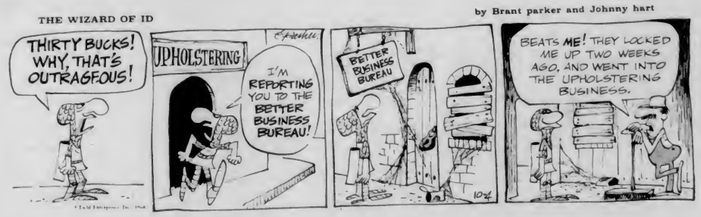
ACROSS

1-Blouse
6-Tally
11-Schoolbook
12-Smaller
14-Teutonic deity
15-Instruct
17-Sun god
18-Three-toed sloths
20-Retail establishment
21-Pronoun
22-Strokes
24-Torrid
25-Cry
26-Silvers
28-Flight of steps
30-Genus of grasses
31-Sea eagle
32-Catkins
35-Rest
38-Poison
39-Definite article
41-Petitions
42-Finish
43-Cook in oven
45-Place
46-Near
47-Goatlike antelope
49-Prefix: down
50-Kind of dance
52-Carpenter's tool
54-Rail birds
55-Attempted

4-Communists
5-Facts
6-Begins
7-Quote
8-Number
9-A state (abbr.)
10-Weirder
11-Harvests
13-Inclined roadways
16-Cry like dove
19-Remuneration
21-Atrocious
23-Scottish cake
25-Perverts
27-Dine
29-Golf mound
32-At right angles to keel of ship
33-Insect
34-Weasels
35-Vacation place
36-Sowed
37-Chemical compound
40-Cut of meat
43-American ostrich
44-Row
47-Mongrel
48-Capuchin monkey
51-Negative
53-Pronoun

DOWN

1-Continued story
2-Exclamation
3-Cyprinoid fish



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Cinema 2
Now Thru Tuesday
SAMMY DAVIS
PETER LAWFORD
"Salt and Pepper"
Nightly ex. Fri. & Sat. at 7 & 9
Fri. & Sat. at 6-8-10
Cinema 1
Thru Tuesday
SIDNEY POITIER
"For Love of Ivy"
Nightly at 7 & 9
NEXT TO ZAYRE'S
Coming Cinema 3
Campus Twin Cinemas
256-6411

DEERFIELD
DRIVE-IN THEATRE
ROUTE 5 & 10
SOUTH DEERFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS
TEL. 665-8746
FRI. • SAT. • SUN.
JULIE CHRISTIE • GEORGE C. SCOTT
Petulia
...the uncommon movie.
TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.-SEVEN ARTS
SUGGESTED FOR MATURE AUDIENCES
also
RICHARD EGAN
in CHUBASCO
Showtime 7:30
Feature first on Sun.

THE WIZARD OF ID

by Brant parker and Johnny hart

4 OCT 4

Injured Redmen Set Sights on Blue Hens

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
Sports
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1968
Page 12 Vol. XCVII, No. 32

Redmen on the Warpath

FOOTBALL — vs. Delaware, at Newark, Del., tomorrow, 2 p.m.
SOCCER—vs. Boston College, at Chestnut Hill, today, 3 p.m.
CROSS COUNTRY—vs. Northeastern, at Boston, tomorrow, 2 p.m.
FOOTBALL (FR.) — vs. Army, at West Point, N.Y., today, 3:30 p.m.
SOCCER (FR.) — vs. Franklin Pierce, at home, tomorrow, 10:30 a.m.
CROSS COUNTRY (FR.) — vs. Northeastern, at Boston, tomorrow, 2 p.m.

Last Night's Intramurals

TOUCH FOOTBALL SCORES
FRATERNITY LEAGUE
SPARTAN LEAGUE
PLP 19, DC 0
PSD 19, TC 12
KS 25, ZN 0
TROJAN LEAGUE
QTV 20, SPE 0
LCA 13, TKE 12
ASP 26, PSK 6
ATHENIAN LEAGUE
TEP 15, BKP 12
PMD 56, ATG 0
AEP 34, APO 0
EAST LEAGUE
Rams, Flaming A's, forfeit
INDEPENDENT LEAGUE
NATIONAL LEAGUE
Bulldogs 26, BX 14
Roadrunners 25, SM's 0
Little Fellas 42, Bouncing F's 20
TUG OF WAR SCORES
Aces, Brigade, forfeit
Redwoods 2, Plep Pipers 0
Maroons 2, Oaks 0
Black Bears 2, Oaks 0
Trojan 2, Black Bears 0
Plep Pipers, Brigade, forfeit

Football Tapes To Be Aired

The Redmen take to the airwaves again Sunday, as the taped highlights of tomorrow's football game will be televised on Channels 22 in Springfield, 32 in Keene, N.H. and 14 in Worcester.

If the World Series is not rained out Sunday afternoon, the Redmen will be seen at 11:30 p.m. If the Series is not televised, the program will be seen at its usual time, 1 p.m.

Strong Delaware Defense Could Be Trouble for UMass

By Jan Curley
Assistant Managing Editor

Tomorrow's game against the Delaware Blue Hens is "a must game" according to Coach Vic Fusia. If the Redmen lose this one, they could be shaky for the rest of the season, but if they win, things could be looking up. Game time is 2 p.m. in Newark, Delaware.

The Redman defense, the sore point of the season so far, is still on the weak side. Fusia has had to shift his offensive lineup due to an injury to Jim Nangle Thursday night. Nangle will definitely not be starting, but he will be making the trip down to the Blue Hens coop. Dick Donlin has been moved into Nangle's slot.

Mike Cooney will be playing tackle also, a shift from his usual left guard position. Another shakeup in the line is Pierre Marchando, recovering from an injury, to left guard. Bob Sheehan, center, and Bruce Fulton, tight end, will be in their places. Nick McGarry will see action as the starting tight end.

The backs remain intact: Tim Adams, quarterback; Jerry Grasso, wingback; Craig Lovell, tailback and Ed Sarno, fullback.

Nangle is suffering from a bruised knee, but Coach Fusia hopes that the 48 hours will be enough to heal the injury. The team will be working out at Rutgers University this afternoon, and Nangle's performance then will be the deciding factor whether he sees any action tomorrow or not.

ANDY GUARINO
Redman Tackle

Donlin's status is also questionable. He worked out last night with the team and is scheduled for a start as offensive strong tackle.

The offense is in better shape than the defense, physically, but the offensive players have learned two positions to give some depth. Fusia said, "We're no better physically than last week. In fact, we're in worse shape because of the injuries sustained at Buffalo."

Right now, every thing is hanging on how fast the players with minor injuries can come around. If some of these players can get back into the lineup, then, according to Fusia, "We could go into the Delaware game with a half decent lineup."

On the pessimistic side, or maybe with the memory of the shellacking the Redmen took in Buffalo still fresh in his mind, Coach Fusia said, "Things are not as bright as I would like them."

The Delaware defense annihilated Hofstra in their first game of the season 35-0, but last weekend, things weren't clicking for the Blue Hens. Villanova shut them out, 16-0. The Blue Hens have their lineup in good shape physically, according to Fusia.

DICK DONLIN
Redman Tackle

It's also Homecoming for the Delaware crowd, and as Fusia lamented, "No matter where we go, we always seem to run into something, a Dad's Day or Homecoming. Something that makes the other team reach a higher emotional peak."

No team likes to lose their Homecoming game, and for the Redmen this will be a pivotal game. "Injuries, or not," Coach Fusia said, "we must go beyond our potential to win. It's a must."

If the Redman defense can heal, they should be stronger because of "just a little more man power," said the Coach.

The defense remains the same as at Buffalo last week with the exception of Marty Scheralis. Andy Guarino, a middle guard will be moved into the left tackle slot. Randy Robinson, right end, and Steve Rogers, this week's Varsity 'M' club picks for offense, will be in their regular positions.

Mark Toner, right tackle, John MacLean, middle guard, Larry Fortunoof, left line backer, Bill Byron, right linebacker, Don Dotson, chief or roving back, and Bill Frye, left corner back will see action defensively.

Bill Frye at left cornerback, and co-captain Mike McArdle right cornerback, will round out the defensive unit.

JOHN FAVERO
Blue Hens' Defense Star

PIERRE MARCHANDO
UMass Guard

Probable Starting Lineups

UMASS — OFFENSE				DELAWARE — OFFENSE
83 Warnock, SE	Sr.	6'2	200	81 Withelder, SE	Jr.	5'9	170
71 Cooney, LT	Jr.	6'	225	72 Shetzler, LT	So.	6'1	210
67 Marchando, LG	So.	6'1	225	63 Vollendorf, LG	Sr.	5'10	195
50 Sheehan, C	Sr.	6'6	250	54 Vaccarino, C	Jr.	6'	225
62 Fulton, RG	Jr.	5'11	200	70 Phillips, RG	So.	6'	215
78 Nangle, RT	Jr.	6'3	205	64 Hayman, RT	So.	6'4	235
80 McGarry, TE	So.	6'5	210	87 Lipsom, TE	Jr.	6'3	200
14 Adams, QB	Jr.	6'	175	19 DiMuzio, QB	Jr.	6'1	200
22 Grasso, WB	Jr.	6'	185	45 Kelley, HB	So.	5'10	175
40 Lovell, TB	Jr.	6'	194	48 Cazarski, HB	Jr.	5'10	165
31 Sarno, FB	Jr.	6'	230	32 Hall, FB	So.	5'11	190
DEFENSE				DEFENSE
85 Robinson, RE	Sr.	6'	200	80 Scelba, DE	Sr.	6'2	205
81 Becker, LE	Sr.	6'4	200	74 Camp, DT	Sr.	5'10	210
60 Guarino, LT	Jr.	5'11	215	78 Cornelius, DT	Jr.	6'	205
77 Toner, RT	Jr.	6'1	205	90 Handley, DE	Jr.	6'	210
61 McLean, MG	Jr.	5'10	205	62 Barberi, LLB	So.	6'2	210
55 Fortunoff, LLB	Jr.	6'1	205	64 Favero, MLB	Jr.	6'	210
53 Byron, RLB	So.	6'3	218	60 Novotny, RLB	Sr.	5'10	195
33 Dotson, Chief	Jr.	6'	190	41 Klein, LCB	So.	5'11	175
24 Frye, LCB	Sr.	5'9	185	36 Keller, LS	Jr.	6'	185
45 Rogers, S	Jr.	6'2	190	16 Merkel, RCB	So.	6'	170
25 McArdle, RCB	Sr.	6'	190	29 Masin	Jr.	5'7	185

METAWAMPE'S GRID PICKS

Metawampe thought he had a bad week last week with all the things that happened. Sunday night he was the most woeful soul on the UM campus after the scalping heroes of Amherst were stamped by a wild heard of Bulls. Maybe the screaming Eagles will have better luck this week, against the Bulls, but the Redmen only have to face the Eagles eventually.

If his average doesn't come up this week, a new approach will be taken. But the old prognosticator's refusal to make any kind of a sporting wager on the World Series must be indicative of something. Like maybe a lack of confidence.

MASSACHUSETTS 24, DELAWARE 15 The Delaware Blue Hens lay some eggs, as the UM offense finds its legs.

BOSTON COLLEGE 27, BUFFALO 20 Eagles will have their hands full, and brother, they find it no small Bull.

MAINE 14, VERMONT 10 Coach Abbott's tears will finally end, Black Bears loss streak stops at ten.

CONNECTICUT 21, NEW HAMPSHIRE 14 Petrillo's passing makes the cats bleed, as Huskies take the Conference lead.

HOLY CROSS 16, DARTMOUTH 7 In the ancient Fittin Field blight, the Indians go down without a fight.

WEST VIRGINIA 22, PENN STATE 20 Mountain courtry ain't exactly classy, but the Lions get dented in their well-oiled chassis.

PURDUE 30, NORTHWESTERN 21 Purdue continues in its Number One fame, the Wildcats ain't exactly Notre Dame.

MISSISSIPPI 17, ALABAMA 7 Oh Lord, Bear, why art thou blue? George Wallace will take care of you.

RICE 15, TENNESSEE 14 Vols should be ready to find the Owl, but they are surprised by a Wise Owl.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA 28, MIAMI 10 The California climate makes Hurricanes loose, but the Trojans' answer is Orange Juice.

Pennsylvania 20, Brown 13
Cornell 19, Rutgers 7
Harvard 21, Bucknell 6
Pittsburgh 21, William & Mary 7
Yale 26, Colgate 14
Temple 17, Boston University 8
Rhode Island 35, Southern Conn. 0
Duke 10, Maryland 7
Florida 18, Mississippi State 3
The Citadel 7, Furman 6
Georgia Tech 14, Clemson 10
Virginia 21, Davidson 12
Virginia Military 24, Villanova 21
Kansas State 13, Virginia Tech 12
Indiana 21, Illinois 7
Notre Dame 35, Iowa 14
Iowa State 17, Colorado 13
Kansas 40, Nex Mexico 16
Michigan 28, Navy 7
Minnesota 14, Wake Forest 0
Missouri 20, Army 15
Ohio State 28, Oregon 7
Toledo, 22, Ohio 19
Western Michigan 7, Bowling Green 0
Michigan State 14, Wisconsin 10
So. Methodist 27, No. Carolina St. 14
California 24, San Jose State 6
Utah State 37, Montana 12
West Texas 28, Montana State 21
Oregon State 17, Washington 14
Texas A&M 14, Florida State 7
Auburn 7, Kentucky 3
Louisiana State 21, Baylor 0
Georgia 28, South Carolina 7
Southern Mississippi 7, East Carolina 6
Tulane 23, Tampa 19
Vanderbilt 17, North Carolina 7
Louisville 33, Dayton 14
Miami (Ohio) 28, Kent State 7
Tulsa 35, Southern Illinois 19
Wichita State 20, Drake 0
Xavier 34, Marshall 14
Houston 42, Cincinnati 20
New Mexico State 35, Lamar Tech 12
North Texas State 21, Memphis St. 17
Texas 28, Oklahoma State 7
Texas Christian 22, Arkansas 21
Texas Tech 14, Colorado State 7
Texas, El Paso 35, Arizona 21
Air Force 10, Stanford 6
Washington State 21, Utah 8

Boston University, who narrowly missed being upset by Maine last week, faces a tough Temple team which earlier this season crushed Rhode Island, 28 — 0. B.U. playing its own Astro-turf will start a sophomore at quarterback Danny Luca. The Owls, who are the defending Middle Atlantic Conference champions, have halfback Mike Busch and quarterback John Wailer as their main offensive weapons.

P.P.

Opponents Face Stiff Opposition

Two Yankee Conference games and an important intersectional duel highlight this weekend's action of UMass opposition.

Connecticut meets New Hampshire this week in Durham. The Huskies are coming off a grueling contest with Yale, hampered by several key injuries. Included in the UConn injury list are quarterback Pete Petrillo and co-captain and star linebacker, Henry Palasek. New Hampshire, meanwhile, looked impressive last Saturday while bowing to Dartmouth.

At Orono, Maine, the Maine Black Bears hope to give their Coach Walt Abbott his first coaching win when they meet Vermont. The Bears, who have yet to score a touchdown this season, are banking on a big passing game from quarterback Dave Wing. The Catamounts have had a hard time getting their offense rolling this season as they have scored only seven points in two losses.

In the big independent clash, Boston College opens its home season before a reported sellout crowd when they, the Eagles, meet the University of Buffalo. The Bulls, as you must know, shutout UMass last week while B.C. walloped Navy, 42—15. The Eagles will be counting on the running of Dave Bennet and the throwing of Joe Marzetti while the Big Bulls will be relying on Denny Mason's passes to Dick Ashley and the carries of Ken Rutowski.

In a key New England clash, Holy Cross opens its home season at modern Fittin Field when it takes on Dartmouth. The Crusaders narrowly missed upsetting Harvard on television last week. Phil O'Neil, the Holy Cross quarterback, was outstanding. He will have to be in top form as he tests a tough big Green defense.

The disappointing Rhode Island Rams, after two straight losses, are home Saturday against Southern Connecticut. The Rams lost last week to Brown when a two point conversion attempt failed in the final seconds. Larry Caswell, URI's star quarterback, has been inconsistent in his first two games, Southern Conn. lost much of its strength to graduation but features a fine rusher with sprinter speed in Vin Russell and a All-New England safety Ed Manjuck.

The Massachusetts
Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
VOL. XCVII, NO. 34 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS MONDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1968

Galbraith And ADA Endorse Humphrey for President

So many people turned out to hear Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith Friday night in Mahar, the lecture had to be moved to the Cage. Highlight of the speech was his announcement that ADA would come out in support of Vice President Hubert Humphrey for president.

John Kenneth Galbraith, Harvard economist and former aide to President John F. Kennedy, hinted at his forthcoming indorsement of Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey during a lecture to 3000 persons in Curry Hicks Cage Friday night.

Galbraith, a strong supporter of Sen. Eugene McCarthy and former chairman of McCarthy's economic advisory board, said, "I'm going to one day soon have to confess my intention to vote for Humphrey."

The Harvard professor, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), predicted that group's indorsement which was made Saturday. "I would sense an indorsement of the Vice-President, and I will abide by whatever they say."

A last minute change of lecture halls was made by the DVP Council when the unanticipated large audience attempted to squeeze into Mahar Auditorium which was a 500 seating capacity.

Throughout his lecture, entitled "The Anatomy of Turmoil", Galbraith made references to the presidential race.

"There couldn't be a better, or worse, time talk about turmoil. Turmoil is what we have in the U.S., but the contours of the conflict are unclear," he said.

"It is evident in the universities and in the relation of the intellectual community and government, expecially where foreign and military policy is concerned."

Galbraith called the incidents in Chicago during Democratic National Convention "another episode in the realignment of political groups. The U.S. is in the most advanced stage of this realignment and there are certainly elements of disorder in this change."

Galbraith drew an enthusiastic response from the audience with caustic comments on Chicago police action during the convention.

"My hotel room was the one that was raided in the McCarthy suite by police when they claimed someone had dropped dead fish on them. I had already gone home," he said.

Galbraith said the "disintegration of the political equilibrium" stems in part from "spending cautiously on helping the poor but handsomely in containing communism."

"The source of tension in the city is the least favored part of our society, the Negro, or as now preferred, the black," he said.

"The old consensus about Communist containment has gone away," he said. "In Vietnam the peasantry remains aloof and alienated and the U.S. has been unable to affect the course of events. The Saigon government remains principally achieved in avoiding combat."

Galbraith concluded, "I would suggest that it is far better that we have the conflict of change that we are going through than the stability of reaction."

Nixon Claims Federal Funds To Drain Treasury To No Avail

NEW YORK (AP)- Republican Richard M. Nixon said last night that vast new government programs for the cities and the poor would "drain the federal treasury to soothe the public conscience" and would fail.

"The present administration has been so transfixed by federal power that it has ignored the power of the people," the GOP presidential nominee said in a radio speech on voluntary citizen efforts to improve life in America.

"The next President must move consciously and deliberately to inspire those voluntary efforts that bring freedom alive," Nixon said.

The speech was one of a series of nationwide radio addresses Nixon has built into his White House campaign. Time for the speech was purchased from the American Broadcasting Co.

He said the first instinct of many Americans troubled by turmoil in the cities has been to demand vast new government programs-such as "a Marshall plan for the cities," an idea advanced by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

"Yet even at best, these government programs would only scratch the surface of need," Nixon said. "They would... leave untapped the greatest reservoir of neglected resources in American today: the energies and the spirit of the American people themselves."

Nixon said government must play an important role but is "only part of the mix.

"We need to enlist the energies of that dynamic four-fifths of our economy represented by private enterprise, and we also need to enlist those millions of Americans who stand ready to serve and to help, if only they knew what to do and how," Nixon said.

"As government has strained to do more, our people have felt constrained to do less."

The recorded speech was broadcast as Nixon took a day off from the campaign and relaxed in New York.

Students To Be Polled On Foreign Languages

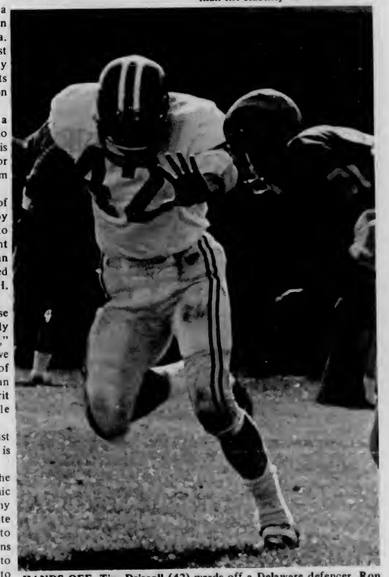
Undergraduates will be polled this week for their views on language requirements and instruction in the University.

The Daily Collegian, in cooperation with the Committee on Foreign Language Instruction (of CAS), will print a questionnaire in tomorrow's, Wednesday's and Thursday's issues of the paper this week. The simple six-question form is to be deposited in a collection box to be provided in the lobby of the Student Union.

The Committee of Foreign Language Instruction was created, as its name indicates, to discuss and make recommendations on the problems affecting the study and teaching of foreign languages in the College of Arts and Sciences.

However, whether you are in A CAS major or not, the Committee would greatly appreciate the help you can give it by filling out the form to be provided. The subject of requirements is a timely one this Fall; and the question of the language requirement is always one on which students have strong feelings.

Editorial Reflection



Something New, Something Blue

By JACK DEAN
Editor-In-Chief

Three years ago, possibly to this very day, I arose at 6:30 a.m. one crisp Autumn morning and set out for town to proofread copy for the Collegian, then a tri-weekly newspaper. This experience was to influence my life like no other.

Since then the University population has increased by five thousand or so, buildings have appeared and roads have disappeared, and the once peaceful cow college of the Pioneer Valley has become a bustling city complete with skyscrapers, highways and construction.

(Continued on Page 6)

HANDS OFF- Tim Driscoll (42) wards off a Delaware defencer, Ron Keller (36) with a straight arm as he picks up 16 yards in the second quarter of Saturday's game at Newark, Del. UMass's efforts didn't pay off, however, as they went down to defeat at the hands of Delaware, 28-23. See pages 10-12 for stories and pictures.

AWOL Soldier Removed From BU Sanctuary

FBI And Police Seize Kroll

BOSTON (AP)--More than 100 FBI agents and Boston policemen converged on Boston University's March Chapel early Sunday to remove a young soldier listed by the Army as a deserter.

Pfc. Raymond Kroll, 18, of a suburb of Walla Walla, Wash., was removed from the chapel where he had been since seeking "sanctuary" last Tuesday, without serious incident.

Witnesses said there were 300 to 400 supporters of Kroll in the chapel at the time.

Kroll was half carried from the church by FBI agents and turned over to Army officials. He later was taken to Ft. Devens. The Army identifies him as a deserter from Ft. Benning, Ga.

The FBI agents and Boston police gathered on Commonwealth Avenue outside the chapel at about 5:30 a.m. About 15 minutes later the operation was over.

Agents brushed past some Kroll supporters and entered the chapel. As they moved up the aisle, they removed persons lying on the floor and put them in pews.

Agents stood at the pew entrances so the persons could not get out.

Kroll was sleeping with about six other persons in a room behind the chapel's alter when the agents entered.

Boston police, who were led by Lt. Morris Allen of the tactical patrol force, guarded outside doors of the chapel during the removal.

FBI agents were led by James L. Handley, special agent in charge of the Boston office. The FBI said they acted at the request of the Defense Department.

Officials at Ft. Benning said Kroll was reported absent without leave last July 14 and was declared a deserter Aug. 12.

Kroll entered the chapel last Tuesday with a 22 year old Marine, who left voluntarily several hours later, saying there was a "circus atmosphere" at the chapel.

Kroll's supporters during his "sanctuary" included students from Boston University's School of Theology and members of the Boston Committee for Religious Concern for Peace and the New England Resistance, both active in antiwar and antidraft activities in the Boston area.

Curious Hundreds Join Concerned

A brilliant full moon illuminated the sky above Boston Saturday night as thousands of college students "looked for something to do."

The main lobby of the "700" dormitory complex of Boston University on Commonwealth Avenue was a melting pot conglomeration of bell bottoms, beards and ivy.

"What's going on?" "Not much. Want to go to the Chapel? It's a good show."

Across Commonwealth Avenue at BU's Marsh chapel, hundreds were congregating. A rock band utilizing the Chapel organ covered any vestiges of solemnity which are generally associated with religious edifices.

Several grinder and pizza wagons parked along the street fought the hunger sustained in the weary waiting battle the students underwent to get into the chapel.

"The band is doing the last number in this set. Please show any kind of student identification to the person at the door. There will be about an hour wait before we let the next group in" a youth shouted to the crowd standing outside the chapel.

Inside, hundreds had packed themselves in, more out of curiosity than sympathy for the 18 year old army deserter who had been seeking "sanctuary" since Tuesday.

"During the week kids just walked by going to their classes and no one really paid much attention but there's nothing better to do tonight so they're coming to chapel" a coed remarked.

A group of "hell's Angles type" youths, complete with black leather jackets, one brandishing a large bullwhip, paced relatively unnoticed around the Chapel courtyard.

Infrequently students with blankets and sleeping bags were allowed quick entrance to the chapel by the "officials" on duty and moved past the waiting line of students to take their place "on stage".

All in all, it was a pretty good show although most of the audience had hoped for a more accomodating time for the final act, the "bust by the feds", than ' their 5:30 am Sunday arrival when only the actors remained.

SOUTHWEST ASSEMBLY ELECTION RESULTS

Kennedy Upper - Larry Kravits
Middle - Roger Harvitz
Lower -
Coolidge Upper - Toni Zographos
Middle - Karen Stevens
Lower - Barbara McKee
J.Q. Adams Upper - Susan Shane
Lower - Marsha Dion
John Adams Upper - Mark Chase
Washington - Middle William Walsh
Lower - Jim Motroni
Emerson - Florinda Iascone
James - Ray Stetson
Melville - Linda Johnson
Thoreau Nancy Doyle
Project 10 - Jeffery Silva, Elliot Margolis
Moore - Pierpont - Andrew Eliot
Cance - Michael Linde, Dave Stanton
Patterson - Merle Soroco, Joan Roumeles
MacKimmie - Stewart Ehly
Crampton - Linda Bernstein

SENDOFF Plans Weekend

At a meeting of the SENDOFF committee chairmen last night, sophomore class president Joe Tabacco said, "We have plans for the biggest Sophomore week-end on the eastern seaboard, featuring the number one rock group in the nation.

..."For the right price the most popular new group can appear here in a double concert Saturday night. with 4500 seats per show, we can keep the cost of tickets to about $3.00, pay them the terrific amount they want and still manage between $6000 and $7000 profit."

Concert chairman Martin Shapiro promises "the two biggest concerts on campus this year", at a minimum cost.

Stressed was the importance of a really big name to draw a lot of off-campus attention. The idea of a double concert, with the price of tickets kept at a minimum, would offset the expense of the group. Tabacco was enthusiastic, "This week-end has so much potential. If a group is rated no. 1 in the country, there are certainly 9000 people who will want to see them. We see the cost of the entire week-end as an unbelievable $10."

Tabacco stressed the importance of committee unification and cooperation early to insure success for SENDOFF and Campus Chest. While in previous years, goals have been around $1000, Campus Chest chairman Dick Palumbo says this year the sophomores will shoot for "between $2000 and 3000 in the four days that Campus Chest exists".

Hopes are for the send-off concert Friday night to feature "Spanky and our Gang" and comedian Richard Prior with tickets at $2.00 In addition to the big Saturday night concert other entertainment suggestions included a brunch or a dinner for Sunday, a WMUA request booth at the "Hatch", a raffle for a date with the queen, a dance opposite the Saturday night concert, and the possibility of a special event. Tabacco explained "I'm thinking of something as big as a concert but not one". He sited the Harlem Globetrotters, featured last year at SENDOFF as an example.

To date the theme of Sophomore Week has not been decided. Soph Vice-President Betsy Pugh suggested, "Incorporate the spirit of goodwill in the Christmas season with the spirit of giving."

Tabacco closed the meeting with "Walk out of here with enthusiasm. We have something really big, but we have to work now for success in December. We're going to enliven this campus for a week-- Sophomore Week".

Uncle Sam still needs you

BUY U.S. SAVINGS BONDS, NEW FREEDOM SHARES

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

Fill your home with music, not with equipment.

Model Eleven-W

The KLH Model Eleven--W is the least expensive, least obtrusive way to bring high-- performance stereo into your home.

It's a small, inexpensive stereo phonograph system that delivers performance far out of proportion to its size and cost.

There's a custom--built Garrard record changer with Pickering cartridge and diamond stylus, a powerful solid--state amplifier, and two of KLH's unique miniature full--range speakers. Plus jacks for plugging in a tape recorder or radio. All inside three small and handsome oiled--walnut cabinets that tuck away anywhere.

It's the easiest way to fit a maximum of music into your living room--and your budget.

MDC CLASSIFIED

The Academy Award Winning Film Classic Music Box is coming to this campus!

1961 Chev Byscane, GCYL; Std. Trans. Manual Str, Brakes, Heater Defroster. Dependable $300. Call 253-7589

1966 PORSCHE 912/5 22,000 orig. miles, Excellent condition throughout. Gray with black interior. Headrests, Blaupunkt AM, Koni shocks. Call: Don Thinias 546-6428 after 6:00

1961 Cheverolet Impala, 2 dr. hdtp, 283, auto, P.S., $425. or Best Offer. 253-3628

Banjo Band. Contact Social Chairman at 542-2186.

NEED FEMALE ROOMATES TO LIVE IN HUGE NEW FURNISHED HOUSE WITH FIREPLACE FOR $150 PER PERSON PER MONTH. FOR INFORMATION, CONTACT LESLIE GALLESE AT 467-7918 ANY TIME.

THE ATTIC IN THE ALLEY
Next to Leather Shed
Used Furniture-lamps
Bric-a-brack
Beautiful Junk-etc. etc.
11:00 a.m. to 6:00 Daily

Cocktail waitress
Pleasant atmosphere
call 546-8180 or 584-6543

FEATURE STAFF
MEETING TONIGHT
7:30 p.m.
NORFOLK ROOM
Student Union

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Mr. A. Dan Tarlock will be on campus University of Massachusetts, October 9, 1968, to interview prospective law students. Indiana University offers an excellent opportunity for faculty contact, interdisciplinary study, and participation in the life of a cosmopolitan university with unusually fine cultural programs. The Law School offers a wide variety of financial aid to qualified students. Please contact your Pre-Law Advisor for more detailed information on interviews.

FENCING
LEONARD TURK
Fencing Master
at
The Academy of Dance Arts
103 North Pleasant
Amherst 256-6650
or call
549-0888 253-2670
Evening classes

Columbia University - Aftermath Of Turmoil

Cox Reports Examines Whys And Hows

Cox Report (Ed. Note- The following is the first part of a series from the New York Times on the Cox Report concerning the Columbia University demonstrations.)

The April uprising started and grew haphazardly. As it developed to the final academic cataclysm, its entire character was altered.

The long series of turbulent demonstrations beginning in 1965, which were tolerated by most of the university community, leaves a tragic sense of the inevitability of the final escalation. Packing the lobby of Hamilton Hall--even the somewhat ambiguous obstruction of Dean Coleman's liberty--was scarcely different from the earlier confrontation in John Hay Hall or the sit-in following the C.I.A. demonstration.

S.A.S.'s (Student Afro-American Society) decision to evict the whites and barricade the doors in a demonstration of black student power--one of the key turning points--was a response to an occasion thrust upon the black students. With each successive day the uprising gathered its own physical and emotional momentum.

We reject the view that ascribes the April and May disturbances primarily to a conspiracy of student revolutionairies. That demonology is no less false than the naive radical doctrine that attributes all wars, racial injustices, and poverty to the machinations of a capitalist and militarist "Establishment."

Student revolutionists within S.D.S. (Students for a Democratic Society) planned turbulent confrontations and revolutionary tactics. They manipulated facts in ways that created distrust and bred unwarranted antagonism. There apparently was occasional talk of wider revolution to overthrow the present political system.

A very few revolutionists may have been in dead earnest. More, we suspect, were half in dreamland, feverishly discussing domantic tactics but hardly contemplating realistic execution. Part of the responsibility for the disturbances rests upon the revolutionaries consciously seeking to subvert and destroy the university but their total number was small-- much less than the full S.D.S. membership-- and their activities were only the catalyst that precipitated a deeper movement.

(By the same token our comments concerning the above group should not be applied to the much larger number who seek fundamental change in the established order without embracing doctrinaire revolutionary theory and tactics.)

By its final days the revolt enjoyed both wide and deep support among the students and junior faculty and in lesser degree among the senior professors. The grievances of the rebels were felt equally by a still larger number, probably a majority, of the students.

The trauma of the violence that followed police intervention intensified emotions but support for the demonstrators rested upon broad discontent and widespread sympathy for their position.

The record contains ample proof of this conclusion. The very number of students arrested in the buildings-524 Columbia students in the first action-is convincing. Many more had been in the buildings earlier. Some of the latter were doubtless curiosity seekers. For others in both groups the affair probably had many of the elements of the once-traditional spring riots and subsequent "panty raids."

But even after discount is made for those elements, the extent of active participation in violent and unlawful protest is significant.

The existence of broad underlying unrest is also shown by the progress of the seizures. The action of the black students in Hamilton Hall was entirely independent of S.D.S.

The seizure of Avery Hall by architectural students was their own movement. The occupation of Fayerweather Hall, in which a large part of graduate study in the social sciences is centered, was apparently spontaneous, no evidences of an S.D.S. connection has come to our attention.

A campus poll reportedly boycotted by those in the buildings showed that 74 percent of the participants favored "end gym construction," 66 percent favored severing ties with I.D.A. (the Institute for Defense Analyses), and 37 per cent even favored amnesty for all students involved in the demonstrations.

The events after the police "bust" point to the same conclusion. The emotions excited by the brutality must have polarized opinion. There would be a tendency to put unjust blame upon those who called for police intervention rather than those -- chiefly from S.D.S. -- whose deliberate efforts to provoke disruptive turbulence made it almost inevitable that police action would be required.

Despite these complex cross-currents, the extent and persistence of the ultimate reaction against the university administration is adequately explained only by the presence of strong but latent dissatisfaction quickened by the violence of

Demonstration Brings Changes In Columbia Administration

There have been changes in Columbia's administration and policies since the period studied by the Cox Commission in its report.

These shifts include the replacement of the university's top leadership, the beginning of an urban and minority affairs program, an "open-door policy" for the hearing of student grievances, and a proposed greater voice for the faculty in university affairs.

Last year, Columbia students had two basic goals when they stormed the office of the university's president, held three officials hostage for 26 hours, took over five buildings and eventually forced the 117,500 -student university to suspend all classes.

The goals were the halting of work on the gymnasium that Columbia had begun to build in adjacent Morningside Park, and the severance of the university's ties to the Federally sponsored Institute for Defense Analyses.

Student Victories Apparent

They appear to have won real, if officially unacknowledged, victories on both issues.

Work on the gymnasium has been halted since the spring, with no talk of its resumption, and the university has only the most tenuous link, if any, with the Institute for Defense Analyses.

The university was already withdrawing its institutional affiliation with I.D.A. when the student protests began. Dr. Grayson Kirk and William A. M. Burden, a university trustee, remain on the I.D.A. board, but Dr. Kirk is no longer president of the university and Mr. Burden's relationship to the institute seems of little importance to either students or administration.

There is no doubt that Dr. Kirk's resignation in August was prompted by the student demonstrations. The major symbol of student dissatisfaction on the embattled campus, he announced that he was retiring "to insure the prospect of more normal university operations during the coming academic year."

It is also clear that student demands to be heard figured in the choice of both Dr. Kirk's temporary successor, Dr. Andrew W. Cordier, and a new dean of Columbia College, Dr. Carl F. Hovde.

Dr. Cordier, acting president of the university, displayed his own brand of confrontation politics by walking unexpectedly into the midst of a crowd of about 700 students gathered on a campus lawn for a rally.

Moreover, he has maintained a sort of open-door policy, meeting with leaders of the radical Students for a Democratic Society, as well as other university student representatives, and listening to their demands and complaints.

ADD — DROP DEADLINES ANNOUNCED

The last day to drop a course without penalty is Oct. 11. (Courses dropped between now and Oct. 11 will be noted by "W")

Are you disgusted by the Humphrey-Nixon-Wallace "Choice"?

Join CONCERN

All students interested in the formation of a 4th party invited. Meeting Wed. October 9, 8:00 Worcester Room, Student Union

Due to a distinct lack of telephone facilities at Pierpont (5-0615) business with PI BETA PHI SOROITY may be conducted at the following numbers:

6-6722 6-6820
6-8344 6-8418

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

Rapp's Delicatessen
AND RESTAURANT
79 S. PLEASANT ST. next to Peter Pan
OVERSTUFFED SANDWICHES
Delicious Salads -- Desserts
HOT CORNED BEEF--HOT PASTROMI,
SMOKED ROAST BEEF, PICKLES--CHEESE CAKE
BAGEL'S and CREAM CHEESE
FREE DELIVERY
Every night 6--11 p.m.
Phone 256-6759
Sunday-Thursday -- 11:00 a.m.-1:00 a.m.
Friday-Saturday -- 11:00 a.m.-2:00 a.m.
BIGGEST AND BEST GRINDERS IN TOWN

Mrs. Olevsky Gives Piano Recital

Both musicians and friends of music were given a treat Friday night at the concert of music faculty member, Estela Kersenbaum Olevsky. Mrs. Olevsky's ability as a pianist was further enhanced by her poise, charm, and warmth that generated throughout the evening.

She began with a floating performance of Alban Berg's Sonata, opus 1, which displayed great taste for the pseudo–impressionistic nature of the work. Mrs. Olevsky's delicate touch and nuances were quickly and rightfully so, abandoned in the Chopin Sonata no. 3. Here was truly a portrait of the real Chopin - romantic, fiery and grandiose. Her technique and command of the passages were only overshadowed by the flawlessness in interpretation of the melodic lines.

The second half of the program included works by Albeniz, Ravel and a composition by Ginastera, an instructor of Mrs. Olevsky. Her Argentinian background aided in the "at home" feeling that was generated in the Albeniz and Ginastera.

Mrs. Olevsky's performance displayed a clarity of line so that one needn't have known the works to have understood them. One impression that was felt after hearing this performer was a great desire to have her play Beethoven or Mozart, we hope in the near future.

She was recalled three times, received a presentation of flowers and was given a standing ovation.

Smith Professor To Lecture On Resistance to Government

When is resistance to an established government justified? Is it justified in America today?

In a lecture to be given in Sage Hall, Smith College tomorrow night at 8 p.m. Professor Klemens von Klemperer will offer his criteria for such resistance. Titled "Mandate for Resistance: The Case of the German Opposition to Hitler," the lecture will examine justifications for the German anti-Hitler effort, and will have implications for the student resistance movement in this country.

"Active resistance," von Klemperer maintains, "can be used as a last resort in a critical case, after all peaceful and constitutional means have been exhausted. Resistance without a proper mandate leads to anarchy. It does away with law and constitution."

He sees Hitler's rise to political power as having a "highly questionable mandate." Von Klemperer notes that Hitler brought the downfall of a functioning republican government in Germany, and that his military actions had the same results in other countries.

The lecture presents the case for the "belated, grand gesture" opposition to Hitler of the aristocratic, conservative forces in Germany. Von Klemperer notes that it came when Hitler's government was near collapsing and "in extremis."

In commenting on the relevance of his position on the justification for resistance to American student demonstrations, outlined in his lecture, the professor sees "an overreadiness of the younger generations here to advocate all forms of resistance in a society in which there are still avenues open for legal actions, speaking out, and dissent."

He emphasized that "as long as there is a legal and working constitution, resistance is destructive; these avenues for protest must first be exhausted."

He sees "a projection of youth's attitudes toward their parents on society at large." He believes they are "very much in rebellion against affluence" in a society "with a breakdown of parental authority and a lack of principles amid affluence."

With the balance of different forces and rising groups - such as the Negro minority - in our pluralistic society collapsing, says von Klemperer, the demonstrating youths are seeking authoritarian guides, such as Mao's writings, not freedoms.

Von Klemperer was critical of a simple "law and order" solution to demonstrations by youths. "Just law and order means a highly unAmerican authoritarian social pattern - like the pre-1918 German state. Law and order can be just a nice euphemism for fascism.

"I may not like what the students are doing, but it is a quest to participate in and understand their society and the lack of balance in its elements."

Teacher Strike Looms in N.Y. Again

NEW YORK (AP)- The threat of another teachers' strike against the 1.1-million- pupil New York City school system loomed yesterday after the leader of the teachers emerged from a closed meeting with a Board of Education committee.

A vote of union chapter chairmen for new strike authorization still was scheduled for Monday afternoon.

"If they break their word, there's a strike," said Albert Shanker president of the 55,000 member AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers, as he left the meeting.

"It will last until we win," he said. "It's going to be a long, hard one. The teachers won't return on the basis of a worthless piece of paper again."

Shanker referred to previous agreements with the board that provided for the return of a group of disputed teachers to a Brooklyn experimental school district. The efforts of the teachers to enter the school and, once in, to teach, were rebuffed by protestors and the local governing board.

The strike was called off for two days early in the term, but reimposed when a crowd of Negro parents and demonstrators prevented the disputed teachers from entering the schools.

The Yellow-Billed Wordpicker doesn't write words. It helps you remember them.

The Scripto Wordpicker is a marking pen that pinpoints names, gleans words, and highlights them all in bright yellow. You don't use it to write down the words you have to remember. You use it to write over them.

The Yellow-Billed Wordpicker.
It reminds you how smart you should be.
And for 49c, you shouldn't have to be reminded to buy one.

Scripto

Spend Monday Night
at the Movies at
The English Pub
tonight featuring:
3 Silent Movies
. Conquest of the Pole
. Missing Millionaire
special added attraction Matchmaking Mama

It does 0 to 150 in 8.1 seconds. So we don't hand over the keys to just any kid that comes along.

CAN YOU QUALIFY

Visit The Naval Aviation Team On Campus Oct 7,8, & 9 In The Student Union

Make Arrangements To Take The Aviation Selection Tests

Be A Naval Aviator

Fly Navy

GIVE ... so more will live
HEART FUND

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

BREAKING UP IS HARD TO DO - The Boss Tweeds played their last date Saturday night at Coolidge.

The Charge Of The Light Brigade

By Nancy Gillis
Fine Arts Staff

According to Producer Neil Hartley "It is difficult to make a long film stay interesting", and his latest film, "The Charge of the Light Brigade", proves the veracity of his statement. Tony Richardson, after his magnificant "Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner" and "Tom Jones" has fallen far below his high–level mark for cohesion and message delivery in his latest film.

"Light Brigade" is aimed at proving false the nobleness Tennyson and tradition have accredited to Victoria's army, showing through a focus on the Light Brigade the pomp and circumstance, the incompetence, and the injustices that circulated in Britania's famed forces.

The film is submerged in irony; into enthusiasm for battle comes the folly of time-honored tradition, the attitude of caring not for men but for protocol. Richardson's use of strict realism to show this folly is excellent and necessary to break the myth: he portrays the brutality to the enlisted man as well as the conceit of a commander in view of his own officers in an army which can be bought or handed down from father to son.

Into this colorful but inhumane scene walks David Hemmings, the noble Captain Nolan, whose message is to build an army whose men will fight because they are paid well, not because they are beaten to it. Nolan is a military fanatic, in love with war and its glory, yet wishing for a civilization which realizes that war is destruction, not a game. This dichotomy in his character is never resolved, and it is his false message which orders the Light Brigade to a suicidal attack.

Yet with all this presented, Richardson does not reach the necessary degree of cohesion needed for his dragging film. He utilizes the Victorian society backdrop effectively, he shows in gory technicolor the horrors of battle, and to the last frame proves the ignorance which can be present in command. The film ends with England's aged generals astride their horses amid the death of the battlefield, passing–the–buck for the faulty order.

The reason for the lack of cohesion is that Richardson begins and ends his film well, but loses it in–between. He mixes satire and supposed drama as a tossed salad and presents it with no definitive dressing. The use of animated Victorian period cartoons adds to this confusion. In the opening credits, it is amusing and effective, yet during the film it is so overly used to cover up epic stretches of a mobile army and society's reaction to the Crimean war that it becomes comic.

Opposed to this is the stark realism of war. Both elements are literally thrown at the viewer and neither resolves itself.

Richardson has attained his purpose of righting the wrong of Tennyson's immortal poem, and proving the folly of war, yet is this worth over two hours of near total boredom and the "small" budget of $5.5 million? For the same purpose the money could have been given to the Resistance.

Adult Ed Offers Series On Racism

"Racism in America" will be the topic of a series of lectures and group sensativity sessions given as part of the adult education courses offered this fall at Amherst Regional High School.

The course is designed to heighten our awareness of the racist attitudes, both obvious and subtle, which many of America's cherished institutions are believed to have perpetuated throughout the years. Beginning October 8 and meeting on each Tuesday evening from 8 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the high school, the eight week course will consist of: October 8 –– a quick history of the racial scene, Gil Salk of the University of Massachusetts; October 15 - religious and church aspects, Rev. Arthur Walmsley, Grace Episcopal Church in Amherst; October 22 – educational aspects, Bill Madaus of Upward Bound; October 29 – economic aspects, Larry Johnson of the University; November 5 and 12 – group sensativity discussions led by Al Winder of the University and his colleagues; November 19 – political and legal aspects, George Salzner of the University; November 26 – local aspects, John Spencer of Amherst.

The course is open to members of Amherst and surrounding communities for a $3 registration fee.

NOTICES

Ski Club

Meeting tonight at 8 at Hasbrouck 20. Officers will be elected for the coming year and a talk on buying ski equipment will be given.

Astronomy Club

Meeting tonight at 8 in Hasbrouck 109, to plan activities for the coming year. Public welcome.

Sci–Fi–Libe

Monday – Friday, 6:30 -- 8:30 p.m., 109–111 Hampshire House near SW. Books, comic books, tapes, magazines and fanzines waiting for you to take them out.

Gamma Sigma Sigma

6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nantucket – Norfolk Rm., SU Executive board meeting at 6 p.m.

Communications Disorders Club

7 p.m. Tuesday in Bartlett Rm. 119. Organization meeting and elections. Refreshments served – everyone invited.

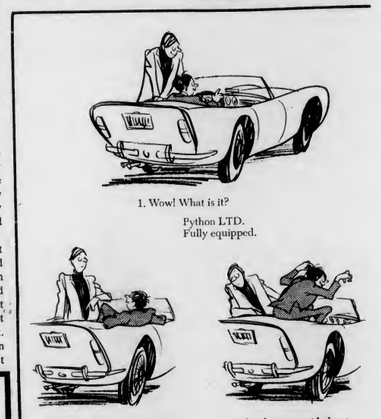
S. D. S.

8 p.m. Wednesday Commonwealth Rm., SU Open meeting – everyone welcome.

Lecture (in French) Monday at 5 p.m. Emilie Noulet, writer–in–residence: "la Poesie hermetique au vingtieme siecle". Browsing room, Library.

Psychology Colloquium

Monday at 4:30 p.m. in Memorial Hall Auditorium: EFFECTS OF SOME SEQUENTIAL VARIABLES ON DISCRIMINATION AND POST–DISCRIMINATION PERFORMANCE. Speaker: Dr. John Donahoe, associate professor of psychology, University of Kentucky.



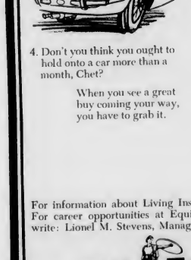
AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

THE TURTLES

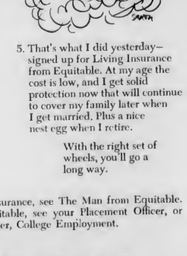
will appear in Springfield Municipal Aud.
Court Square, Springfield, Mass.
on October 11, 1968, Friday evening
at 8:30 p.m.

Ticket price: $2.50, 3.00, 4.00
For tickets send remittance to:

St. Francis Chapel, 254 Bridge St., Spfld.
or call: 733-3101



1. Wow! What is it?
Python LTD.
Fully equipped.



2. What happened to your Viper Mark IV?
I just couldn't identify with that car.

3. That's what you said about the Sidewinder Eight.
But a Python is something else. Four-on-the-floor, six-barrel carb, console tach... and what a steal!

4. Don't you think you ought to hold onto a car more than a month, Chet?
When you see a great buy coming your way, you have to grab it.

5. That's what I did yesterday—signed up for Living Insurance from Equitable. At my age the cost is low, and I get solid protection now that will continue to cover my family later when I get married. Plus a nice nest egg when I retire.
With the right set of wheels, you'll go a long way.

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Lionel M. Stevens, Manager, College Employment.

THE EQUITABLE

The Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States
1285 Avenue of the Americas, New York, New York 10019
An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F © Equitable 1968

Editorial Reflection

Something New, Something Blue

(continued form page 1)

But perhaps one of the more important changes to take place in this three year period has been the development of a daily newspaper on campus. Opposed by many in its beginning it soon took hold and proved to be one of the few organizations able to keep pace with the rapid growth of this school. And indeed throughout this period, it has been one of the only organizations to continually project the needs of a campus of 30,000 and to constantly work with this future in mind.

This year the Daily Collegian found itself confronted with a problem that would affect not only this year's production, but also that of years to come. Two years of phenomenal growth have more than doubled page output, and both Associated Press and campus news now demand immediate dissemination. Because of this volume and the necessity for fast production, the editors have taken a close look at business ties taken for granted by generations of editors.

And so after 26 years, the Daily Collegian Board of Editors has voted unanimously to leave Hamilton I. Newell, Inc. of Amherst, and award our $100,000 printing contract to Student Times, Inc. of Boston. The decision was not made lightly. It was made with the same careful consideration of present needs, coupled with the projection of future needs, which has always been the guiding force behind Daily Collegian policy decisions.

What does this mean to the campus? It means before noon delivery for the next week or two, and once all the "bugs" are straightened out, it means an 8 a.m. daily delivery- a morning newspaper.

It was not without mixed feelings that I initiated and led this modernization movement. Memories such as my first proof-reading experience are hard to forget, and friendships which have meant so much to me are hard to put aside. But in order for our newspaper to keep pace with this growing university, we must have a printer who is willing to keep the same pace.

Today marks the beginning of what we hope will be a new, productive, exciting era in campus communications. Within a month, there will be even more interesting innovations, all in the best interests of the student body.

But as the Daily Collegian marches optimistically into the future, now and then I shall cast a melancholy glance over my shoulder at the past which has made us what we are.

War Comedy

"The vaudeville generals cavort on the stage
And shatter their audience with submachine guns
And Freedom and Violence the acrobat clowns
Do a balancing act on the graves of our sons
While the tap-dancing Emperor sings "War is Peace"
And Love the Magician disappears in the fun
And I wave goodbye to murder
And smile hello to the rain."
—from "Goodbye and Hello"
by Tim Buckley

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

CHIEF PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Mike Alpert 69
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69

ISSUE EDITOR ..... Jan Curley '69
EDITORIAL DAY EDITOR ..... Kathy Biggane '70
NEWS STAFF ..... Donna Wadsworth
John Hickey
SPORTS STAFF ..... Peter Pascarelli '70

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"I Don't Get Involved In Senate Matters Like Supreme Court Appointments"

©1968 HERBLOCK

Inside Report

The $700,000 Outrage

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON -- A tantalizing $700,000 in Democratic party funds sequestered somewhere in a secret Manhattan bank vault is being kept away from the threadbare Humphrey campaign, despite its desperate need, by command of Lyndon B. Johnson.

This startling fact is widely known and bitterly resented among the chieftains of the Democratic party. They do not for a moment accept the official explanation that the kitty cannot be spent for partisan purposes because of legal impediments.

Substantial though it is, the $700,000 won't make the difference between victory and defeat for Vice President Humphrey. But the odd little mystery surrounding this money reflects the surrealistic relationship between the White House and the Humphrey campaign. It also symbolized the mess at Democratic party headquarters inherited by Humphrey from his boss.

The story begins in the autumn of 1965, when Mr. Johnson's consensus politics was relatively undiminished and corporate fat cats were eager to pay tribute. Richard Maguire, then treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, cooked up a fund-raising gimmick as his valedictory before quitting the job.

Having raised about $1.5 million by selling tax-deductible advertisements in the 1964 national convention program, Maguire published a book called "Toward an Age of Greatness" with ads sold to corporations at a tax-deductible $15,000 a page. The take was around $600,000.

But even before the money came in, unfavorable publicity was generated. The advertising gimmick was quite properly condemned as a device to circumvent two troublesome federal laws--one barring political contributions by corporations, the other prohibiting tax deductions for political contributions by anybody.

Moreover, eyebrows were raised at the high percentage of defense contractors and regulated corporations (railways, airlines, a pipeline company) that chose to buy the ads. As a result, the money was not spent but put in trust in New York--its exact whereabouts and trustee still a deep mystery.

During the 1966 campaign, a detailed plan to spend the funds on non-partisan voter registration was vetoed by the White House. Subsequently, no attention was paid to the fund until after the Democratic convention in Chicago, when Humphrey's severe money woes became obvious. Reports circulated at Humphrey headquarters that some $200,000 would be released for voter registration on a non-partisan basis.

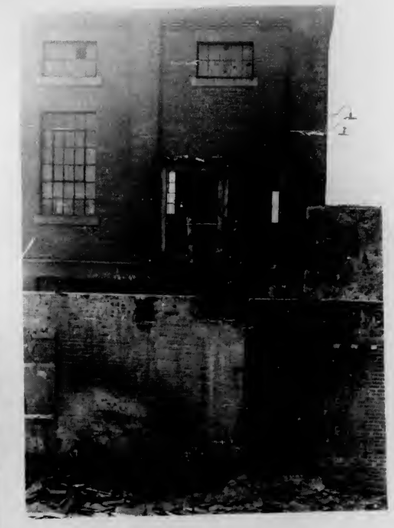
In fact, four separate schemes for spending the money in a supposedly non-partisan way on voter registratio --thereby freeing desperately scarce party funds for other objectives--were presented to Mr. Johnson's operatives. Actually, there is substantial legal opinion that the money, now amounting to around $700,000 after drawing 5 percent annual interest, could be spent for avowedly partisan purposes without fear of prosecution.

Lawrence F.O'Brien, the new Democratic National Chairman, even dispatched a personal emissary to New York to see if at least a small portion of the money could be released. But the word from LBJ men has been that not one cent will be released until the President says so, and--up to now--the President doesn't say so.

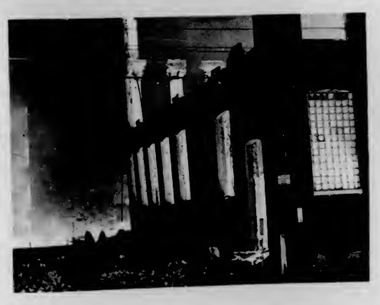
Just what Mr. Johnson does have in mind for the money no one can be sure. A report that he is saving the funds for post-election rehabilitation of the Democratic parts is scarcely credible. More likely, though unsubstantiated, is the report that it will eventually find its way into the Johnson library in Texas. The only hard fact is that Mr. Johnson denies it to the Humphrey campaign.

Official explanations for this travesty coming from the Humphrey men now in command at the Democratic National Committee are pathetically lame. The claim that the money was never really the National Committee's is patently absurd. The so-called "Committee on Voter Education and Registration" which published the 1965 book was from the start a paper creation of the Democratic National Committee.

Fire Wreaks Havoc In Bondsville



The worst fire in recent Western Massachusetts history has left a three-quarter mile, twelve-building complex in rubble, and has left more than 400 people jobless.



The Bondsville fire did an estimated $10 million damage and raged out of control for more than ten hours as five hundred firemen fought to contain it. One out of three families in Bondsville was affected by the work loss, the factory complex being the only major employment source in the area.

Firemen were hampered by high winds, low water pressure, and fire hoses burning or melting from radiant heat. When the first fire company was prepared to attack, three fourths of the complex was involved in flames. Nearby houses were damaged and destroyed when they caught fire from radiant heat and flying sparks. The scene was declared a disaster area Saturday, and representatives of Governor Volpe and state agencies were meeting with Bondsville selectmen to discuss financial aid from state funds. It was believed that federal aid could not be given to Bondsville residents.

Text and Photos by Don LeBlanc

AP News Analysis

On The Campaign Trail With The Presidential Candidate

Richard M. Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) - Richard M. Nixon and his men are acting like astronauts on countdown, marking off the days until Nov. 5, anxious lest a malfunction develop in a presidential campaign which has so far been smooth and comfortable.

As they view the situation, only a major blunder on the Republican side or a dramatic breakthrough on the Democratic could bar Nixon's path to the White House.

They expect neither, but are on guard against both. Thus, for example, there is what amounts to a contingency plan set for operation should Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey attempt to sever his attachments to the administration's Vietnam war policy. It is simple: Humphrey would be accused of turning his back on what he has stood for for four years.

So, when the Democratic nominee appeared to be moving toward a break with his speech on bombing, Nixon quickly suggested that his rival might be undermining the peace talks now being conducted by his own administration.

Nixon himself has made clear that until the election is over-and likely beyond that time-he is not going to disclose any specific plan for future war policy.

The Republican nominee and his advisers agree that Humphrey can be expected to gain ground, in organization-style politics and in the public opinion polls, before the election now little more than four weeks away. But they do not think they can be overtaken.

There are two clouds on the Nixon horizon:

—The Nixon organization is worried about the inroads third party candidate George C. Wallace may make in the electoral vote, particularly if he captures border states which the Republican nominee had counted on winning. Nixon has said repeatedly that he hopes to do well in states on the perimeter of the South.

—There is concern, too, at the possibility that Humphrey could marshal his Democratic forces and carry some of the major states which Nixon regards as vital. There are seven on his list of crucial targets: California, Texas, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. He has claimed to be leading in all of them. And he can be expected to spend virtually all of his time in those states during the last days of his campaign.

A key Republican concern is that a combination of those developments could deny anyone an electoral majority and send the presidential decision to the House of Representatives.

There is also the spectre of overconfidence, the recollection of Thomas E. Dewey's defeat two decades ago. Nixon insists that will not happen.

Hubert H. Humphrey

WASHINGTON (AP)- It was a turning point in Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign.

And the vice president had been up most of the night talking and arguing about the phrasing of his Vietnam speech.

Now, after little more than three hours sleep, he stalked into a morning meeting of Utah Democrats at a Salt Lake City hotel to give a little pep talk. His face was drawn with fatigue. But he stuck out his jaw. He looked pugnacious-and he was.

"I am out here trying to carry this campaign as a sort of Lonesome Ranger all by myself. Well, I'm going to tell you that the bandits are descending on the village. The Lonesome Ranger isn't enough... somebody better get out and help... we better start manning the barricades."

That was one week ago and as one Humphrey insider confided, "I've never seen the vice president so low."

The night before in Seattle he'd had tough going against hecklers. A national poll showed he had dropped a couple more notches. Campaign money was tight.

"I'm going to tell you very frankly," he acknowledged to fellow Democrats, "if the election were held today we wouldn't have a prayer... but the election isn't being held today."

A few hours later Humphrey drove over to a television studio and with tension high delivered his conditional bombing halt speech on Vietnam. Humphrey and his strategists knew that this was the issue plaguing his campaign and that time was growing short.

Until the early hours of the morning there had been what was described as a sometimes heated discussion of the wording and even the placement of paragraphs in the speech which ultimately left Humphrey's views less that ablolutely certain.

Some advisers favored eliminating the condition for a bombing halt-feeling that a clean and emphatic break with Johnson policy was needed. But Humphrey has been said to have insisted upon it. Some advisers were obviously not happy.

Nevertheless, one aide said later "the speech turned the key in the lock... the kind of campaign money that comes in small checks is starting."

If the speech turned the key in the lock Humphrey's succeeding venture into the South-into Tennesse, Florida and North Carolina-inched open the door. Humphrey's speeches were sharper. The crowds were bigger and more enthusiastic. Humphrey was obviously bouyed. He whaled opponents Richard M. Nixon and George Wallace with Gusto.

George C. Wallace

(AP) --George Wallace's campaign managers sense a new surge of momentum for their candidate as a result of his choice for his vice presidential running mate, Curtis LeMay.

Wallace strategists are waiting anxiously, some of them smugly, for publication of the next national poll.

They believe LeMay's entrance was perfectly timed, that his presence on the ticket gives the Wallace candidacy a national tone and legitimacy it may have lacked, and that the former Air Force chief's stand on nuclear weapons will be fully acceptable to voters if they understand it.

Paraphrased from LeMay's utterances thus far, that stand is this:

Nuclear weapons are no more than conventional weapons with a bigger bang; it would be strategically foolish to tell an enemy in advance that the weapons would never be used; if circumstances warranted it they should be used; such circumstances do not now exist in Vietnem.

If LeMay's candidacy inevitably injects a new issue into the campaign it also, so Wallace strategists feel, helps erase the sectional, one-issue stigma publicly attached to Wallace's third-party effort.

They regard Vietnam as secondary to domestic law and order as a campaign issue anyway, and so they believe any harm LeMay might cause the ticket will be solidly outweighed by the plus features.

LeMay plans to break away from the Wallace entourage this week and begin campaigning on his own. "He might even take the controls of his campaign airplane now and then" said Bill Jones, a Wallace aide.

LeMay was first approached for the second spot on the ticket six weeks ago at a meeting in Sacramento, Calif., with Earl Morgan, a Birmingham, Ala., lawyer and chief Wallace assistant. The retired general's candidacy was nailed down at a secret meeting last Monday in Chicago where Wallace was campaigning.

Whether by accident or design, Wallace's long-delayed announcement of a running mate came at a time when he was receiving more national attention than ever before.

For the seven-state campaign trip that began in Chicago and ended in Baltimore, Wallace had to charter two additional prop-jet airliners to accommodate the accompanying news corps which suddenly tripled in size.

Messages of encouragement, most of them containing contributions, have steadily increased in the mail room of Wallace's Montgomery, Ala. headquarters to about 15,000 a day, says his aides. He also has received, they say, a flood of letters and telegrams complimenting him on his choice of LeMay.

These factors, plus the crowds that seem to grow increasingly enthusiastic, feed Wallace's ever-growing confidence.

You can't get any closer.

Some men think the only way to get a good, close shave is with a blade.

If that's what you think, we'd like to tell you something about the Norelco Tripleheader Speedshaver®.

In a very independent laboratory, we had some very independent men shave one side of their faces with a leading stainless steel blade, and the other side with a new Norelco Tripleheader.

The results showed the Tripleheader shaved as close or closer than the blade in 2 out of 3 shaves.

The Tripleheader has three rotary blades inside new, thin, Microgroove™ heads that "float," so it follows your face, to shave you closer.

The Tripleheader has a pop-up sideburn trimmer. A handy, coiled cord. And a 110/220 voltage selector.

It comes in both a Cord and a Rechargeable model.

And it won't pull or nick or cut.

Because it shaves your beard.

Not your face.

Norelco® you can't get any closer

©1968 North American Philips Company, Inc., 100 East 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10017

AMHERST TOWER

FREE DELIVERY

Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

SINGING SOLDIERS- The Soldiers' Chorus of the United States Army Field Band performed in Northampton Wednesday.

U.S. Army Band

Uniformed Musicians In Northampton

The internationally famous U.S. Army Field Band appeared in concert Wednesday night at John M. Greene Hall in Northampton. Sponsored by the town of Northampton, the concert attracted many local residents as well as a number of Army ROTC cadets from the University of Massachusetts. Playing a varied selection of music (including classical, broadway, military marches and a highlight number "Voice of Freedom") the band was considered "excellent" by many in attendance. Performing with the band was the famed "soldier's Chorus," a vocalist group included in all Army field band concerts.

The Army Field Band is the official touring musical representative of the Department of the Army and is known as the "Kings of the Highway." Before performing in John M. Greene Hall Wednesday night the band played for several Northampton and area schools during the day. The Washington, D.C. based band is conducted by Maj. Hal J. Gibson, Maj. Gibson has more than 25 years experience in military music.

During its twenty-year history the United States Army Field Band has appeared in all fifty states, Canada, Mexico, Europe and the Far East. Its purpose is to use music as a "international form of communication" to make new friends for the United States and the Army.

Highlights of the Band's tour have been performances in Carnegie Hall (the first military band to perform there in full-dress), Hollywood Bowl, two World's Fairs, and four Presidential Inaugural parades.

Mitterand Rejects Socialist Leader Role

PARIS (AP)- Opposition leader Francois Mitterrand, runner-up to President Charles de Gaulle in the 1965 elections, announced Sunday he would not seek a leadership post in the new Socialist party being formed by France's non-Communist left wing.

His withdrawal from top political leadership was considered a direct result of setbacks the opposition suffered in France's May-June social crisis and the June elections.

As president of the Federation of the Left, Mitterrand led the combined Communist and non-Communist left opposition against De Gaulle in 1965 and picked up 45 per cent of the votes.

Late in May, Mitterrand, 52, was criticized for failing to take the initiative in the widespread student and workers' unrest.

He has announced De Gaulle would have to resign because of the crisis and he was ready to head a "provisional government."

But instead the Gaullists assuaged the crisis and won an unprecedented majority in the elections, causing the Federation of the Left to lose 61 of its 118 seats in the National Assembly.

"I can understand the polls," said Mitterrand. "I am not deaf. But I do not need to be comforted. I will have opportunities to fight against Gaullism anywhere."

He said he would be member of the new Socialist Party as long as it sticks to the ideals of socialism and democracy.

Let's join forces.

Apart we're not much. Nothing, in fact.

Together we're a team. One of the greatest. The Aerospace Team.

World's largest science and engineering organization...

Enroll in the Air Force ROTC Program on campus. You may qualify for financial assistance and flight instruction while you're in school.

In fact, let's get together and talk over grants—they could pay for your tuition, books, and give you $50.00 a month.

When you graduate, you'll be an officer...you can combine doctor, engineer, lawyer or B.A. degree with an exciting Space-Age career.

You'll know exactly where you're going.

Together, there's practically nothing we can't do.

Even fly.

U.S. AIR FORCE ROTC (A.U.)
BLDG. 500 (ARTOI)
Maxwell AFB, Alabama 36112
Interested in Flying ☐ Yes ☐ No

NAME: AGE:
PLEASE PRINT
COLLEGE:
MAJOR SUBJECTS:
CAREER INTERESTS:
HOME ADDRESS:
CITY: STATE ZIP
RCP-89

Shuttle Service Extension Sought

Old man winter is fast approaching the UMass campus with his penetrating winds and low temperatures, deep snows and wet slush. Though the shuttle service, provided by the Administration January through March of last year, will hopefully be continued again this winter, Robert Kittle, of the Treasurer's Office, is attempting to provide extended service for the campus.

He hopes for a bus service that will extend from early fall until at least April. He feels this extension is necessary because "there is a time presure, despite weather conditions, on students, expecially on those who have to park in F lot. The distance of parking facilities and even of some dorms, from classes, creates a real discomfiture for students." Paul. W. Brubacher, Asst. Dean of Students agreed with Kittle on the necessity for continuation of this service, "especially in the bad months, when snow and slush increase the time it takes to get to classes." Brubacher felt on the other hand, that the buses should run only on a reduced schedule during the fall and early spring.

The main problem facing Kittle in his fight for this extension of bus service is the lack of busses and the money to buy new ones and pay more drivers. Richard Burke, Supt. of Maintenance, explained that as far as labor was concerned there was no problem. "The problem," he stated, "was with buying the buses and with maintenance replacement." At present the University owns 2 busses which must also be used for field trips. Burke and Kittle both stressed the need for at least two more buses, for as Burke explained "the use of the present buses for a shuttle often forces the various departments of the Univ. to go outside to get buses for field trips."

As far as funds are concerned, Kittle commented "if we are to have a good shuttle system, it must be one that is self-liquidating." He explained that money from the University is impossible because of an already tight budget and "money forthcoming from the state is highly unlikely." Kittle therefore suggested that the mondy be provided by the students and faculty through a fee assessment attached either to their semester bill or to their auto registration. Burke argued that "kids would object if all were to be charged." He suggested that tokens be sold at various points on campus. These in turn would be deposited as one entered the bus. The money thus collected would be put towards maintenance costs and the acquisition of new buses in the future.

Kittle said that the best possible shuttle system would involve four to six buses covering two routes and running at 10-15 minute intervals throughout the day and possibly during the evening.

Two of Sextuplets In Serious Condition

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND (A.P.) Two of the five surviving THORNS sextuplets were reported in "serious condition" Sunday because of feeding problems.

Obstetrician Margaret Shotton said the babies were Lynne and Ian, the first two born to Mrs. Sheila Thorns, 30, last Wednesday. One of the sextuplets died shortly after birth.

Dr. Shotton said the two babies were refusing milk. She said they were returned to intravenous feeding, but this could not be prolongued for more than two or three days.

"They are in a phase of crisis," said Dr. Shotton. "They got over the first phase, which was getting them to breathe. Now they are in the second phase, which is getting them to feed properly.

"They could improve or they could suddenly go down at any time."

AMHERST TOWER

FREE DELIVERY

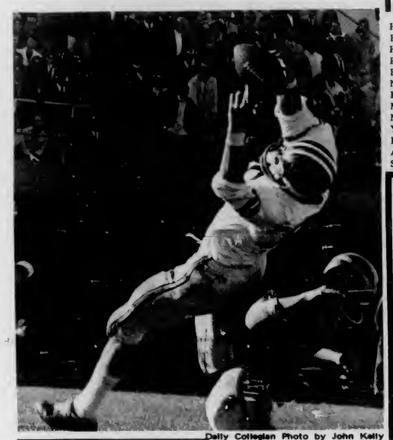
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

Little Redmen Outplay Army Plebes Win Football Opener 12-10, At Point

It was Custer's Last Stand all over again as frosh football coach Dave Kelley's Little Redmen ambushed the Army Plebes 12–10 Friday afternoon at West Point. Of course, this was not quite as convincing a victory as that at the Little Big Horn, but is was nevertheless a victory, and anytime a UMass team beats Army it should be a time for cheer.

Although the score does not indicate it, the statistics show that UMass dominated the game and only a few mistakes and bad breaks prevented the Little Redmen score from being higher.

In gaining an awesome total of 380 yards rushing, UMass out–first downed the Plebes 19 to 9 and ran up 426 yards in total offense. Army intercepted one pass and recovered four out of five UMass fumbles, instrumental factors in stopping several UMass drives.



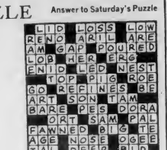
The scoring summary is fairly short. A 25 yard field goal gave Army a 3–0 lead at the end of one quarter but UMass came back to take a 6–3 halftime edge on field goals of 42 and 38 yards by Dennis Gagnon. In the third quarter, following the recovery of a Little Redmen fumble, the Plebes scored on a 40 yard pass, kicked for the extra point and took a 10–6 lead.

The game continued as a stalemate, but UMass with four minutes remaining in the last quarter, commenced a 60 yard drive which culminated in Lenny Fitz' two yard touchdown plunge with the winning points.

To say that the Little Redmen scalped the Plebes would be a misnomer but they did outmuscle them in the line, and this Coach Kelley felt was a main factor in the victory. He had special words of praise for his hard hitting defense which held the Plebes to 65 yards on the ground and for his offensive backs, fullback Dick Cummings in particular, for the impressive running ability they exhibited.

SOCKING TO ALL football fans is a Delaware cheerleader who is celebrating her Blue Hen triumph. Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

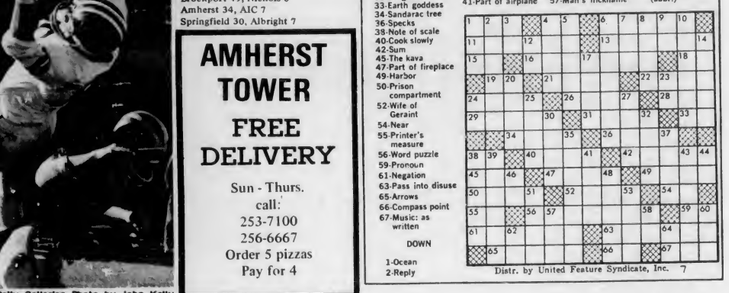
Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly



This Week's N.E. Action

Harvard 59, Bucknell 0
Boston College 31, Buffalo 12
Holy Cross 29, Dartmouth 17
Penn 17, Brown 13
Boston Univ. 7, Temple 0
New Hampshire 17, Connecticut 10
Rhode Island 33, Southern Conn. 8
Maine 28, Vermont 0
Northeastern 36, Colby 8
Yale 49, Colgate 14
Brockport 49, Nichols 0
Amherst 34, AIC 7
Springfield 30, Albright 7

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

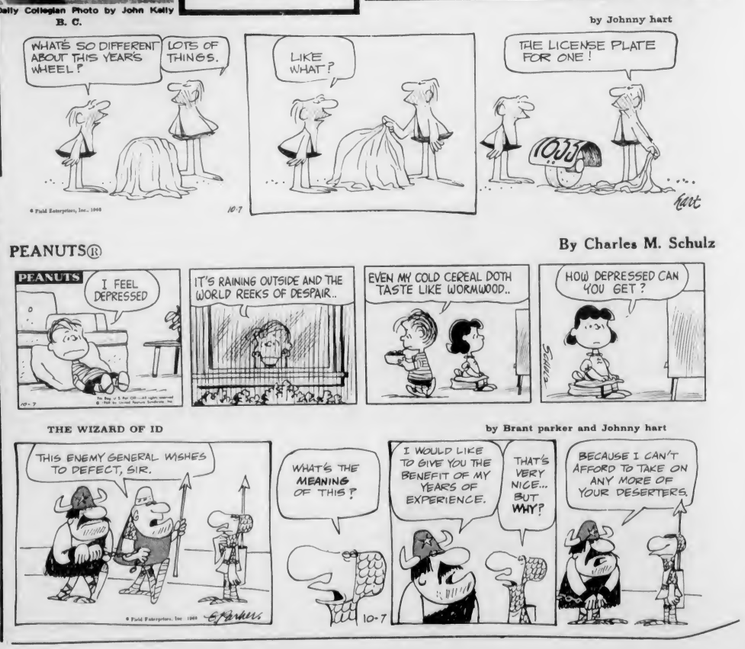


CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

ACROSS
1-Posed for portrait
4-Parent (colloq.)
6-Sedate
11-Begrudges
13-Intractable person
15-Conjunction
16-Communication
18-A state (abbr.)
19-Pronoun
21-Soapstone
22-Twirl
24-Liquefy
26-Wild oxen of Tibet
28-Those holding office
29-Lowest deck of a vessel
31-Invigorates
33-Earth goddess
34-Sandarac tree
36-Specks
38-Note of scale
40-Cook slowly
42-Sum
45-The kava
47-Part of fireplace
49-Harbor
50-Prison compartment
52-Wife of Geraint
54-Near
55-Printer's measure
56-Word puzzle
59-Pronoun
61-Negation
63-Pass into disuse
65-Arrows
66-Compass point
67-Music: as written

DOWN
1-Ocean
2-Reply
3-Video (init.)
4-Encounter
5-Appraise critically
6-Heaped up
7-Label
8-War god
9-Pronoun
10-Challenging
12-Prefix: not
14-Wash lightly
17-Strike
20-Girl's name
23-Greek letter
24-A month (abbr.)
25-Rocky hills
27-Blemish
30-Strokes
32-Cease
35-Amends
37-Portico
38-Hurried
39-Smoothed
41-Part of airplane
43-Painter
44-Army officer (abbr.)
46-Man's nickname
48-Wearies
51-Den
53-Small valley
57-Man's nickname
58-Parent (colloq.)
60-Afternoon party
62-A continent (abbr.)
64-Postscript (abbr.)



Distr. by United Feature Syndicate, Inc. 7

PHOTO STAFF MEETING
TUESDAY NIGHT
6:30 p.m.
ESSEX ROOM-Student Union

Car Buffs do it!

English Leather®
For men who want to be where the action is. Very racy. Very masculine. ALL-PURPOSE LOTION $2.50, $4.00, $6.50. From the complete array of ENGLISH LEATHER men's toiletries.

UMass Booters Crush B.C. Eagles 8-0 Brown Paves Win With Five Goals

Sophomore sensation Duane Brown scored five times in leading the UMass soccer team to an 8–0 trouncing of Boston College Friday at the Heights. It was the second straight shutout victory for the Redmen in two tries.

Brown's kicking accounted for the first five Redmen goals. He scored once in the first quarter, once in the second, twice in the third and his final in the fourth.

The game was close in the first half with the Redmen holding a slim 2–0 lead on Brown's first quarter tally with a pretty assist.

Brown made a fine individual effort to score his second goal as he dashed down the field and kicked in a shot from close range.

After the halftime break, the Redmen seemed to do everything right and the Eagles seemed to do no right as the Redmen scored six uncontested tallies.

Brown started the second half scoring explosion for the Redmen when he booted in a short shot after Wilkie Ward fed him a perfect pass in front.

The Redmen kept up the pressure throughout the third quarter and it payed off with Brown's second score of the quarter. His fifth and final tally of the game, early in the fourth quarter, completed a great day for the soph inside.

Mike Korpita joined the scoring parade with his first goal, an unassisted effort midway in the final quarter, which upped the count to 6–0.

A few minutes later, Korpita blasted in his second goal, another unassisted effort, which gave the Redmen an insurmountable 7–0 lead.

Bruce Allen kicked in the final UMass tally late in the game with Larry DeFelice helping to set up the score with a fine pass.

Steve Kramer and Tom Malone combined to chalk up the second straight shutout for the Redmen. Kramer played the first three quarters and Malone relieved him in the fourth. UMass soccer coach Peter Broaca felt that the whole team came up with a great effort during the game and played exceptionally well as a unit.

Besides the great performance of Brown, Broaca said that sophomore Rich Matuszczak was "outstanding as usual" and that Dick Meyer came up with "one of his best efforts."

About the only disappointing part of Friday's game, was the loss of soph wing Marc Cantor with a badly sprained ankle suffered early in the first quarter. Paul Bregoli played well in place of Cantor but Marc will be missed if he is out of action in the Redmen's next game, this Saturday, at home against UConn.

Rich Meyer — Win Coach's Praise — Rich Matuszczaic

First Time Since 1962
Harriers Edge N.U. By One Point

BOSTON — For the first time since 1962 the UMass cross–country team has defeated Northeastern University. The Redmen edged out the Huskies 27–28 to take a 14–13 lead in the series that dates back to 1934.

The Redmen victory was achieved without the services of top runner Paul Hoss who has been sidelined with an injury.

Winning the race was UMass sophomore Ron Wayne, who covered the 4.7 mile course in 22:54, the fourth fastest time ever run on the course. Wayne was followed over the line by NU soph Larry Josephs. Just behind Josephs were Leo Duart and Charlie Lang from UMass, placing third and fourth respectively. Duart ran the course in 23:13 and Lang in 23:29.

The Redmen's final two point scorers were Marc Gelinas finishing 9th and Tom Derderian 10th. Gelinas ran 23: 59 which is his fastest time ever on the course. Derderian was only 18 seconds back of teammate Gelinas.

Sixth for the UMass squad was Dave Evans who improved his time on the course by 20 seconds. Seventh for UMass was Larry Paulson.

The Redmen harriers showed a lot of fight in battling back in the meet. After the first mile NU had 12 of the top 15 runners. However Wayne, Duart, and Lang moved to the front of the pack and Gelinas and Derderian charged by seven men over the last two miles to supply the needed points for victory. The runners were up for the meet and it showed as the top five men improved on an average of 37 seconds per man from last week's race.

Along with the varsity, the Little Redmen also handed the Northeastern frosh a defeat. The victory for the frosh, their first of the year, was the first UMass frosh victory over the Huskie pups in four years.

The Redmen frosh, who averaged an improvement of 32 seconds a man from last week, were led by Don Dunsky and Wayne Lucas who placed first and second. Dunsky ran the course in 16:31 with Lucas three seconds behind in 16:34. They were a half a minute ahead of NU's first finisher.

The next UMass finishers placed seventh through 13th with only 26 seconds separating the seven men. Steve Whicher placed 7th, Al Mangan 8th, Bruce Blackburn 9th, Mike Cowles 10th, Ron Swasey 11th, Don Brigham 12th, and John Morse 13th.

UMass varsity and frosh both meet UConn next Friday at Storrs, Conn. It will be the first conference confrontation this year for the Redmen and it could prove to be the toughest.

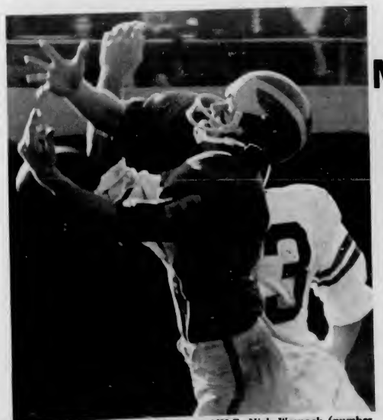
Gibson Routs Tigers

DETROIT (AP) —Bob Gibson charged through rain, mist and delaying tactics to a record seventh straight World Series victory Sunday, 10–1, a rout that gave the St. Louis Cardinals an overwhelming 3–1 edge over the Detroit Tigers.

The game, delayed 37 minutes at the start and held up for 1:14 in the top of the third inning, was played through drizzle and amid antics that bordered on the ridiculous.

At one stage, at the end of the fifth inning, plate umpire Bill Kinnamon consulted with his brother umps and summoned both managers to a home plate meeting, apparently to cut out the semicomic antics designed to take advantage of the rain. It rained hard for over an hour when play was stopped in the third with Gibson holding a 4–0 lead. The Tigers fans in the crowd of 53,634 chanted "Rain, rain, rain" in hopes that the game would be called off, but play finally was resumed, although it had started to drizzle again before they were ready to go.

The Tigers tried to stall in the fourth when first baseman Norm Cash went over to talk to pitcher Daryl Patterson, only to run into objections from umpire Kinnamon. Orlando Cepeda, who was on first, then attempted to steal second with a 6–0 lead and was an easy out.



In the Tiger fourth, Willie Horton walked away from the plate to dry his hands only to have Kinnamon stand watch on him. Kinnamon again stood watch when Jim Northrup went back to the dugout to change bats.

Willie Horton dropped Mike Shannon's easy fly ball in the fifth, but the umps ruled he had held it long enough and lost control when he tried to throw. It was after Julian Javier singled and was an easy out trying to steal second that Kinnamon called for his conference with the other umps and the two managers.

Gibson, who struck out 17 while beating 31–game winner Dennis McLain in the opener, had no opposition on this cold, damp Sunday afternoon. McLain lasted only 2 2–3 innings and was charged with six hits and four runs. At the end, many Tiger fans had walked out on their heroes.

Lou Brock, who opened the assault on McLain with a lead–off homer in the first, tied his own Series record with a seventh stolen base in the eighth inning and also contributed a double and a triple. At the end of the day, he was hitting .500 with eight hits in 16 at– bats.

The steal in the eighth came after he doubled with the bases loaded, driving in three runs. He was halfway to third on the long hit when de decided to go back to second base. Press box observers figured he might have missed second base. Then he stole third, his seventh of the Series and his 14th in Series play.

AN INCH WHICH SEEMS LIKE A MILE- Nick Warnock (number obscured) misses a futile last minute pass attempt.

A.P. Lists N.E. Top Ten

BOSTON (AP)—Here is how the Top Ten in The Associated Press college football poll fared Saturday:

1. Boston College, 2–0, beat Buffalo, 31–12.
2. Yale, 2–0, beat Colgate, 49–14.
3. Dartmouth, 1–1, lost to Holy Cross, 29–17.
4. Harvard, 2–0, beat Bucknell, 59–0.
5. Holy Cross, 1–1, beat Dartmouth, 29–17.
6. Massachusetts, 1–2, lost to Delaware, 28–23.
7. Connecticut, 1–2, lost to New Hampshire, 17-10.
8. Springfield, 3–0, beat Albright, 30–7.
9. The Boston University, 2–1, beat Temple, 7–0.
10. New Hampshire, 1–1, beat Connecticut 17–10.

Frosh Win Their Soccer Debut, 7-1

Led by Lindo Alves, the University of Massachusetts freshmen soccer team, romped to a 7–1 victory over a varsity team from Franklin Pierce College Saturday morning. Alves, with four goals, and John Russo with two, led the Redmen to a 7–0 halftime lead.

The frosh put constant pressure on the Franklin Pierce goalie with 37 shots and only several fine saves on his part kept the score in single figures.

It was a close 1–0 game at the end of the first quarter, but three goals by Alves, two by Russo, and one by Bruce Malinowski put the game out of reach in the second quarter. Abatino scored the only Franklin Pierce goal on a penalty shot at the start of the third period. The remainder of the game saw no further scoring as both teams substituted freely.

Coach Ray Cieplik was pleased with his team's effort in their first outing. He praised the fine defensive work of the fullbacks and also the hustle of halfbacks Augie Calheno and Bobby LaFontaine. "It was a fine team effort", he added, "and we controlled the ball throughout. I was satisfied with our first game and I expect us to get better."

Tonight's Intramurals

Delaware Catches UMass In Last Half, 28-23

Redmen Lose Leads Twice Rogers Intercepts Four

By MIKE CURRAN
Sports Editor

NEWARK, DEL- UMass blew second half leads of 13-[illegible] and 23-14 enroute to a 28-23 loss to the Delaware Blue Hens before an enthusiastic, capacity, homecoming crowd here Saturday. The heart-breaking loss dropped the Redman record to, 1-2, and took the luster off a brilliant individual effort by safety, Steve Rogers.

The reason for the defeat was simple. UMass' injury-riddled defense could not stop the hard-running Delaware attack. In particular, the Redmen could not stop Blue Hen sophomore halfback, Dick Kelley.

Kelley, in one of the greatest performances by an opponent player in the last decade, picked up 217 yards in 28 carries. Most of the yardage came on a criss-cross play which Delaware executed to perfection time after time.

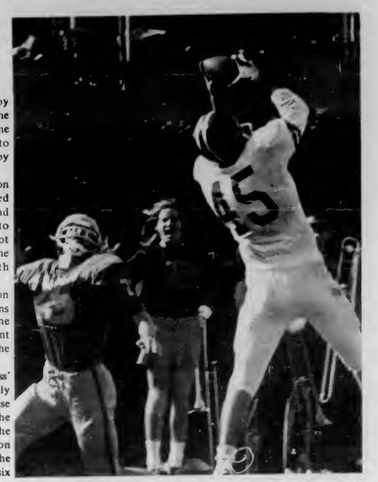
A ninety-yard kickoff return by Sam Brickley on the opening play set the tone of the game. The Blue Hens got off only one play, amid two penalties, before Rogers grabbed an errant Tom DiMuzio toss.

Then followed a series of three fumbles in less than five minutes, all within UMass territory. Delaware ended up with the ball and eventually tried unsuccessfully to kick a field goal.

A few seconds later the visitors recovered a loose ball in Hen Territory only to fumble it away two plays later. The home team was in a very generous mood, however, handing the ball over once more on a blown handoff.

This recovery by Andy Guarino resulted in six points for the Redmen. Tim Adams hit Nick Warnock who moved the ball up to the Delaware five after breaking an ankle tackle. A pass interference call, on second-and-goal moved the ball to the one-yard line, and from there Craig Lovell dove in for pay dirt.

Marty Scheralis' extra point attempt sailed just wide of the uprights leaving UMass with a 6-0 edge at the close of the quarter.



The action was a little more professional in the second period. Delaware began to move the ball with some consistency, but two [illegible]erceptions by [illegible] their efforts. The [illegible]ese was turned into the second Redman score thanks to an 88 yard march engineered by Adams.

The drive which started on the visitors 12 yard line featured the running of Tim Driscoll and Lovell and a 20 yard Adams to Nick McGarry pass. Driscoll got credit for his first score of the year on a four yard burst with 3:12 left in the half.

A 30 yard Dimuzio to Ron Withelder aerial got the Hens moving towards the end of the half. But Rogers stepped in front of a Delaware pass to keep the home team off the board.

After intermission UMass' crippled defense was finally cracked. The Redman offense chose to sit on the lead and the tactic backfired miserably. The Hens maintained a field position advantage, took possession on the UMass 36 and then scored in six plays.

Withelder took an 11 yard pass from Dimuzio then buttonhooked in for the score. Redman rover Don Dotson then blocked the extra point conversion attempt by soccer style kicker Jeff Lippincott to maintain the visitors seven point advantage.

HAULING IN ANOTHER interception is UMass' Steve Rogers (45) as he steps in front of Delaware's Jack Tracey (25), Looking on is a Deleware cheerleader.
Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

A John Favero interception started the Blue Hens on their second touchdown march. Kelley was the backbone of the drive as he got off runs of 14 and 25 yards. DiMuzio's four yard bootleg made it 13-12 and a three yard keeper on the two point conversion put Delaware ahead, 14-13 much to the delight of the homecoming crowd.

With defeat staring them in the face, UMass' offense finally got moving again. Lovell broke away for an 18 yard gain on a crucial third down play to keep the sputtering Redmen machine going. Jerry Grasso, Bruce Cochrane and Lovell carried the ball to the Delaware 22 and on a second down play McGarry took an Adams aerial at the 12 and went in to regain UMass' advantage.

Another Guarino fumble recovery resulted in UMass points a few minutes later. The Redmen gained possession at the Delaware 24 yard line moved to the ten and then set up for a field goal.

Scheralis' 35 yard shot was straight and true and the junior's first field goal of the season couldn't have come at a better time. UMass was back on top with a nice 23-14 lead with only ten minutes to go in the game.

Jim Lazarski brought the Delaware fans to their feet on the ensuing kickoff. For the second time Steve Parnell made a touchdown saving tackle.

Kelley moved the ball to the UMass ten yard line on some fancy running. Rogers saved the visitors again with his fourth interception a beautuful one-handed job at the goaline which he returned to the 16.

Sophomore Quarterback Sinks Redmen

By PETER PASCARELLI
Assistant Sports Editor

NEWARK, DEL.- After 51 points, 723 total yards, seven interceptions, 13 fumbles and 12 penalties, it was the play of Delaware's sophomore quarterback in his first varsity experience, that brought UMass' 28-23 loss on Saturday.

It was homecoming in Delaware and the alumni got quite a show. It wasn't exactly the best football ever played, but no one could complain it was dull.

A 90 yard return of the opening kickoff set the tone for what proved to be one of the most heartbreaking defeats ever suffered by a UMass team.

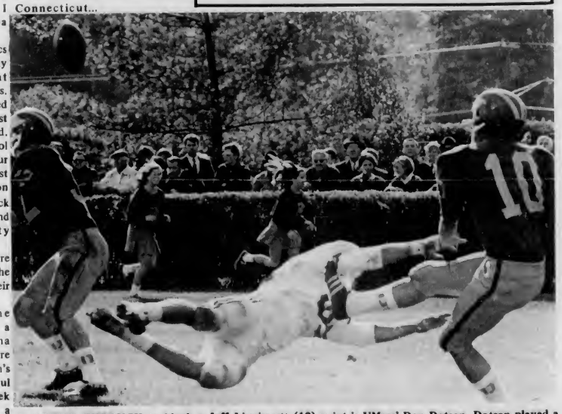
Bob Buckley was the sophomore signal caller who went about wasting a 300 mile Redman bus trip. Buckley was pressed into service when the starting Blue Hen quarterback sprained his hand in the third period. All the Philadelphia native did was pass for one score and score one himself.

Ironically, on Buckley's touchdown pass, Raymond had sent in an entirely different play. It was fourth and two situation late in the fourth quarter and Delaware was on the UMass 25. Raymond wanted to run over right tackle something that the Blue Hens did all day with success.

Raymond's play did not reach Buckley and the quarterback instead passed to the left to his split end Ron Withelder. Raymond said of the play selection, "It was probably the worst possible call he could have made in that situation. We wanted to keep away from the wide side of the field. So he went and threw out there. I guess that shows you what a genius I am."

Raymond previously was an assistant at the University of Maine so he is familiar with UMass football. "We regard them as high as any team we will face," said Raymond, "and personnel wise probably they are the best we meet."

The Delaware coach had never seen Tim Adams before, but he liked what he saw in his first view. "I didn't have any idea how good he really was, but Adams showed me an awful lot out there today," said the coach.



Raymond tried to figure out what caused the rash of fumbles that plagued both teams. "There was a lot of hitting that's for sure. It could have been the inexperience of the quarterbacking or it could have been the fact that it was the first cold weather of any kind we faced. But if I really knew, I wouldn't work. That sure was a burlesque."

Buckley's last second heroics and the overall sloppy play overshadowed some great individual efforts on both sides. Delaware's Dick Kelley gained 217 yards on the ground, just three short of a Delaware record. UMass' Steve Rogers set a school record by intercepting four passes. Tim Driscoll in his first extensive action of the season averaged five yards a carry. Nick McGarry caught four passes and scored his first varsity touchdown.

But homecoming in Delaware wasn't exactly the best way the Redmen could have spent their Saturday.

Redmen Rantings- The Homecoming queen was a Wilmington junior Regina Pearce... Last Year's Delaware queen married the Blue Hen's quarterback of last season Paul Linzeball... For the second week in a row the Redmen had a unique place to play as they were forced to claw their way through a forest of bushes that were all around the locker room entrance... Delaware place-kicker Jeff Lippincott put on a pre-game show by kicking 50 yard plus field goals... Seven UMass cheerleaders made the long trip... UMass missed an extra point conversion for the first time in ten games when Marty Scheralis missed his kick in the first period, hampered no doubt by a gusty wind... The crowd of 13,261 set a Delaware attendance record... On one weird play, a Delaware end caught a pass,fumbled it, lost the fumble and then regained it once again to gain seven extra yards... Benner led Maine to a 28-0 win over Vermont ending the Bear's losing streak at ten... Larry Caswell led Rhode Island to an easy 33-8 win over Southern Connecticut...

More Sports Page 10 and 11

CRASHING THROUGH to block a Jeff Lippincott (10) point is UMass' Don Dotson. Dotson played a strong defensive game throughout.
Daily Collegian Photo by John Kelly

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian
A FREE AND RESPONSIBLE PRESS
VOL. XCVII, NO. 22 UNIVERSITY OF MASSACHUSETTS TUESDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1968

Politics '68

Big Three Stump in Hub

Humphrey

Nixon

BOSTON (AP) — Two presidential candidates are scheduled to visit Boston this week, and the third plans an appearance next week.

The American Independent Party's George C. Wallace will be the first to arrive. He is scheduled to speak at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday from the bandstand in the Boston Common.

The Democratic nominee, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, is scheduled to address the National Association of Druggists at 11:45 a.m. on Wednesday.

Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon plans to be in Boston October 17 and 18 for a telecast, motorcade and rally.

Wallace is scheduled to arrive at Logan International Airport at 2:45 p.m., go to the Charlestown Navy Yard about one hour later, and then to the Common for his speech.

Humphrey's plans call for him to leave Boston immediately after addressing the druggists, who are holding their convention here.

Richard B. Olson, executive director of the Massachusetts unit of United Citizens for Nixon–Agnew, said Nixon plans to make a telecast in Boston October 17. The motorcade and rally are planned for the next day.

Senators Would Halt Bombing

WASHINGTON By Associated Press — Although their terms vary widely, at least half of the 100 U.S. senators say they favor some plan to end all American bombing raids on North Vietnamese territory.

Included in this group are 3 Republicans and 24 Democrats who say they want the bombing ended unconditionally, at least as an experiment to test the reaction and sincerity of the Hanoi regime.

Eleven of these senators are seeking re-election this year.

Their position is opposed strongly by 18 senators – 10 Republicans and 8 Democrats – who say they are against what one of their number terms "lifting the umbrella" of air support over U.S. combat troops in the field.

Twenty-three of the 85 senators reached in an Associated Press survey said they favor a halt—but only if North Vietnam responded with reciprocal action that appeared to offer chances either for de-escalation of the war or compromise at the bargaining table in Paris. This group includes 16 Democrats and 7 Republicans.

All of those reached were asked if, and under what terms they could endorse a bombing halt.

Apollo Astronauts Termed Fit Shot Set For Friday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) – America's three Apollo 7 astronauts Monday were pronounced ready to fly by a team of medical specialists, as work on their spaceship proceeded smoothly toward a Friday liftoff for the nation's first manned space trip in 23 months.

Meanwhile in Washington, James E. Webb put in his final day as administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The space agency reins which Webb has held firmly for nearly eight years Tuesday will be handed to a less controversial man, Dr. Thomas Paine, deputy NASA administrator since last March.

A three-man team headed by Dr. Alan Harter, chief medical officer for NASA.s Kennedy Space Center here, declared Apollo 7 astronauts Walter M. Schirra Jr., Donn F. Eisele and Walter Cunningham physically sound after a thorough 4½-hour examination.

Navy Capt. Schirra, Air Force Maj. Eisele and Cunningham, a civilian astronaut, are scheduled to blast off at 11 a.m. EDT Friday for a mission lasting nearly 11 days in earth orbit to prove Apollo spaceships are safe to fly to the moon.

"If everything works out like it was engineered, we probably have no problems," said Cunningham. "I think our job is to find out, 'will they really work like they were engineered?' "

Court Upholds Call-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) – The Supreme Court Monday turned down a challenge to President Johnson's mobilization of reservists and freed the Army to send 256 soldiers to Vietnam.

Eight justices joined in the action and gave not one word of explanation for their ruling.

The ninth, Justice William O. Douglas, dissented and said the Army had not lived up to its promise to the reservists.

The reservists lodged the following claim: That in being called up for 24 months as units they were not given credit for active duty time some already had served as individuals.

See Columbia Report page 5

Volpe Asks Bondsville Be Declared Disaster Area

BOSTON (AP) – Gov. John A. Volpe asked President Johnson Monday to declare the Bondsville section of Palmer a disaster area.

The governor acted after meeting with state and community officials on problems caused by the fire that destroyed a 12-building industrial complex Friday night, with a loss estimated at up to $20 million.

The governor, in a telegram to the President, said Palmer faces "problems of water shortage, pollution, rodents and unemployment."

Palmer selectmen agreed Monday to propose that the town create an Industrial Finance Building Commission to rebuild the plants ravaged by the fire.

Board Chairman Leo St. Armand said no decision had been made whether to build the plants on the ruins of the old ones or start at another site nearby.

The fire, fed by 40 m.p.h. winds, also damaged nearby homes. An estimated 50 persons were left without jobs and 25 persons were homeless.

Volpe said the Division of Employment Security had already set up an office at Palmer to aid those out of work. The Division of Veterans Services also plans a special office to aid veterans.

The Palmer building commission will be able to work with state officials to issue revenue bonds to rebuild the factories under a state economic development law passed only last year.

Over a third of the residents of Bondsville lost their jobs in the Saturday night fire, one of the worst in the history of the state. Much of the Town burned to the ground, leaving many families homeless. Low water pressure and strong winds hampered firefighters during the blaze. Picture on right shows residents watching their town go up in smoke.

—MDC, Photo by Don Leblanc

8 OCT 68

Foreign Language Questionnaire

Committee on Foreign Language Instruction
QUESTIONNAIRE
Class year —— Major ——

1. Have you completed your foreign language requirement?
Do not face one ——, Yes ——, No ——

2. Do you feel that the knowledge of a foreign language is an essential part of a university education in the last third of the 20th century?
Yes ——, No ——.

3. Which of the following would be most useful to you: rate your choices in order of importance, 1, 2, 3, etc.
——Ability to follow a conversation in a foreign language.
——Ability to participate in a conversation in the foreign language.
——Ability to read for pleasure in the foreign language.
——Ability to read in your field in the language.
——Ability to write a simple letter.

4. How did your training in foreign language contribute to the achievement of these goals? Check one.
——A great deal.
——Not very much.
——Not at all.
——About as much as other courses help in other areas.

5. Do you think that more of your foreign language training should have been done before graduation from high school?
——Yes, ——No.

6. Did your foreign language placement test score enable you to receive 3 or 6 credits toward graduation?
——Yes, ——No.

7. Your comments: (Attach an additional sheet if necessary)

Please return this completed form to the box provided in the lobby of the Student Union on Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday. Thank you.

Committee on Foreign Language Instruction

STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT AND CIRCULATION

1. Date of Filing
October 7, 1968
2. Title of Publication
Massachusetts Daily Collegian
3. Frequency of Issue
Daily - 5 days a week
4. Location of Known Office of Publication
Student Times, Inc. (Printer), 719 Bolyston Street, Boston.
5. Location of the Headquarters or General Business Offices of the Publishers (not Printers)
Student Union, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.
6. Publisher
Students of University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Mass.
Editor
J. Harris Dean, 35 Kendrick Place, Amherst, Mass.
Managing Editor
Donald A. Epstein, Washington Tower, UMass, Amherst, Mass.
7. Owner
Owned and operated by the students of UMass.

A. Total No. Copies Printed	10,000
B. Paid Circulation	0
(1) Sales through dealers and carriers, street vendors and counter sales.	250
(2) Mail subscriptions	250
C. Total Paid Circulation
(Balance prepaid by Student Fees)
D. Free Distribution (including samples) by mail, carrier or other	9,650
E. Total distribution	9,900
F. Office use, left over, unaccounted, spoiled after printing	100
G. Total (Sum of E & F—should equal net press run shown	10,000

DVP REBROADCAST
For those people who missed the DVP of JOHN GALBRAITH
"THE ANATOMY OF TOIL";
WMUA will rebroadcast, in its entirety, a tape of the Galbraith program. The rebroadcast will begin at 9:30 p.m. on WMUA, TONIGHT

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Mr. A. Dan Tarlock will be on campus University of Massachusetts, October 9, 1968, to interview prospective law students. Indiana University offers an excellent opportunity for faculty contact, interdisciplinary study, and participation in the life of a cosmopolitan university with unusually fine cultural programs. The Law School offers a wide variety of financial aid to qualified students. Please contact your Pre-Law Advisor for more detailed information on interviews.

Columbia Violence Predicted, SDS Division Adds Problems

NEW YORK (CPS) - Amid occasional outbursts of violence and periods of fitful indecision, the elements of a new confrontation at Columbia are quietly beginning to build.

Two weeks ago, in a relatively peaceful action, campus radicals led by Students for a Democratic Society closed down the opening day of registration. Then last week of classes, following a noisy march and brief stoning of the university's chief administration building.

In the process, the participants, many of them veterans of last spring's rebellion, have begun to rediscover their former militancy.

On the broader questions of strategy, however, the radicals remain openly divided. A small but vocal minority of SDS, mostly members of its labor committee, argued long, and at time persuasively, that the campus struggle should be linked this fall with the plight of the city's working classes. That position was eventually defeated in favor of keeping the focus centered on the university, but as one student said, "We exhausted ourselves settling it."

The same lines of division have been evident in recent discussions of future actions. Labor committee supporters are backing a proposal for a mass trial at which both the striking students and the administration would present their cases before a jury composed of students, faculty and members of the Morningside Heights community.

If the administration refuses to appear, the radicals would present their charges anyway in a mock tribunal which would lead ultimately to a finding of guilt and "expelling and stopping the trustees."

Those opposed criticize the proposal as being unnecessarily theatrical and simply unworkable. They support instead the pattern followed last year in which people were organized through educational programs and mass rallies around the dominant campus issues: secret defense research, expansion into the community and repression of the student movement.

That is certainly the pattern emerging in the developments at Columbia. The current administration policy of non-confrontation, which at first seemed to undermine the militance of many students, now seems to be having the opposite effect. Last week students were willing to stone a building whereas the week before they stopped at simply blocking a doorway. The power vacuum created by the administration is now drawing into an atmosphere of permissiveness which is challenging the students to more and more dramatic action.

When that moment arrives, the moves toward conciliation being taken now appear part of a strategy to discredit and isolate the radicals from potential future support of sympathetic moderates. If the strategy is successful the administration could control the situation to the point that it could even call in police to crush a confrontation before it could develop into anything more serious.

There are signs, however, that the present soft-line policy has not been a total success. Many students remain angered by the city's refusal to follow through on the university's request to drop some of the charges. District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, who has so far blocked that move, the students point out, is after all, also a university trustee.

Other students are disappointed that the university has not asked that all criminal charges be dropped and that it has not offered reinstatement to all those suspended.

One issue that seems to be picking up more support is the question of university expansion into the community. A major catalyst in the spring uprising was the attempt to stop construction of a gym on a portion of a public park in Harlem.

One of the concessions won by the students was the temporary halt of those plans. But meanwhile, the university is moving swiftly on plans to develop a 40-block area north of the campus which will displace nearly 10,000 low-income residents to make room for a manufacturing-research complex which will include middle-income housing almost exclusively. Equally objectionable is the fact that the contract to build the $180 million project has been let to contractor Percy Uris, another university trustee.

For the moment, however, things remain quiet. The weather in New York these days is pleasantly warm and sunny. But things will change. Perhaps this time we are headed for a long hot winter.

Are you disgusted by the Humphrey-Nixon-Wallace "Choice"?
Join CONCERN
All students interested in the formation of a 4th party invited.
Meeting Wed. October 9, 8:00
Worcester Room, Student Union

Wilkes Defends Book Sale Site

"UMass is no longer a small institution. We simply outgrew the Commonwealth room in the Union." said Mr. Bud Wilkes, book department manager of the University Store. That apparently was the deciding factor in the decision to move the sale of textbooks from the Union to the Physical Plant this semester.

Other reasons for the move included a lack of storage space and the construction being carried on near the student union. The Physical Plant offered room, most of the needed facilities, and back-up space for the books. It was also in a more attainable location for delivery men.

A variety of problems were encountered by both students and book store employees. Long lines at the cash registers were attributed to a lack of help in the store. A summer recruitment effort for students ended with "a good turn-out, but not good enough" according to Mr. Wilkes.

Mr. Wilkes felt that the plan to keep the store open until nine o'clock for the first few evenings worked very well. Students were able to schedule trips more to their convenience and crowds were reduced as a result of this. Parking space was available and those students with cars found access to the store especially easy.

The Physical Plant belongs to Property Control, and has been reserved for university storage after October 5.

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

THE PRE-DATE DROP
JUST ONE FRESHENS BREATH INSTANTLY!
Binaca
CONCENTRATED GOLDEN BREATH DROPS

Wallace Sees Army Guarding Capitol If Elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — George C. Wallace said Monday that if he is elected president he would move up to 30,000 troops into the nation's capital to stamp out crime in its streets.

"I don't care what it takes, this city is going to be safe," Wallace declared.

The former Alabama governor carried his third party campaign to within sight of the White House as he delivered a major foreign policy speech at the National Press Club. He capped the speech with a call to crush out crime in the capital city, which has a predominantly Negro population.

"We're going to put some troops in this city," Wallace said. "You're going to be able to walk the streets if it takes 30,000 troops."

Wallace took a get-tough attitude as he spelled out his goals in foreign affairs and urged an end to what he called a "no win" policy in Vietnam.

The American Independent candidate called for a military victory in Vietnam if the Paris peace talks fail. He urged an end to foreign aid to nations helping Communist countries and demanded reduction of trade with Cuba by this country's allies.

Wallace backed improved aid for Latin America and said: "We will see that the principles of the Monroe Doctrine once again become the cornerstone of American policy in this hemisphere."

He said he would be willing to go to a summit meeting with the Soviet Union and that the United States should not subordinate its interests to the United Nations.

Wallace

And he asked an end to economic sanctions against the white government of Rhodesia. Wallace said he is dedicated to peace and he said the best way to achieve it is to maintain military superiority.

Asked at another newsmen's meeting under what circumstances he might drop the atomic bomb if president, Wallace replied, "We will never have nuclear warfare in this world."

He made this statement at a United Press International newspaper editors' conference. Wallace said he wanted the United States to open up such a military lead over other nations that none would dare attack. He added, "I would not consider nuclear war at all in Vietnam."

He hurled charges of treason at antiwar protesters who fly Viet Cong flags and call publicly for a Communist victory in Vietnam.

At the National Press Club, Wallace was given a certificate of appreciation—a tribute he did not receive when he spoke there in 1964. He had lashed out at the club for denying him the customary certificate, yet granting it to Cuba's Fidel Castro and the Soviet Union's Nikita Khrushchev when they spoke there. Wallace accepted the certificate in good humor and said, "I'm going to take back what I said on national television that you could take the certificate and you know what you could do with it—I see you framed it."

Smith Prof to Speak In Europe This Year

Peter I. Rose, professor of sociology and anthropology at Smith College, will leave this week to begin a series of lectures and meetings in four European countries.

To meet with sociologists studying comparative ethnic relations at the Institute of Race Relations in London, he will also be at Stockholm's Institute of Ethnography. Also on his agenda are speaking engagements at the universities of Leicester in England, at Amsterdam and Utrecht in The Netherlands, at Copenhagen in Denmark, and at Lund, Stockholm and Uppsala in Sweden.

Rose will also speak to Smith College clubs in London and Rotterdam.

He is on sabbatical leave from the college this year. Upon his return to Northampton on November 1, he will resume a study of "Presistent Themes in the Comparative Study of Intergroup Relations."

Smith Lecture

Smith College Professor Klemens von Klemperer will examine justifications for the German anti-Hitler effort this week.

Von Klemperer said that his lecture, "Mandate for Resistance: The Case of the German Opposition to Hitler," will have implications for the student resistance movement in this country.

The lecture will take place Oct. 8 at 8 p.m. in Sage Hall and the public is invited to attend.

The lecture is the 11th of the Katharine Asher Engel series at Smith. This lectureship was established in 1958 by the National Council of Jewish Women to honor the memory of Mrs. Engel, a Smith graduate.

MDC Photo Staff
Weekly Meeting Tonight
6:30 p.m.
Essex Room
SU

English Advisors Available

If you would like advice on what courses to take, or your record gone over to see that you are getting your requirements completed properly, or have ideas on what the English department can do to better serve you, or would just like to talk to an upperclass major, Student Advisors await you in room 380 of Bartlett Hall. A representative will also be present on Tuesday nights 7–9 at Eugene Field 103 and on Monday nights 6:30–8 in Mr. Hunt's office (Coolidge lobby) in the Southwest area.

S.D.S.
OPEN MEETING— WED
OCT 9— 8PM
COMMONWEALTH ROOM

AMHERST TOWER
FREE DELIVERY
Sun - Thurs.
call:
253-7100
256-6667
Order 5 pizzas
Pay for 4

The C's tree-
for a multitude of gifts pens (cards
lighters ribbons
candy
oil lamps
bows
clocks film
notebooks
THE THREE C'S
191 No. Pleasant St.

Fleurs de Rocaille means
Rock Garden Flowers
the fragrance to be shared available at
COLLEGE DRUG
4 Main St.

We don't show movies
.... but our service is still first class.
gnomon copy service
103 North Pleasant Street
Store No. 9
Amherst, Massachusetts
Phone 253-7393
5¢ for the 1st copy of an original
3¢ each for the 2nd-10th copies of an original
2¢ each for 11 or more copies of an original
XEROX copies by gnomon

Happiness is . . .
John Morgan
every Friday night
at
THE ENGLISH PUB

It does 0 to 150 in 8.1 seconds.
So we don't hand over the keys to just any kid that comes along.
CAN YOU QUALIFY
Visit The Naval Aviation Team On Campus Oct. 7,8, & 9 In The Student Union
Make Arrangements To Take The Aviation Selection Tests
Be A Naval Aviator
Fly Navy

Time To See Realities

The question confronting many electoral statiticians today must certainly be: Where have all of the Democrats gone? How can it be that a Democrat is running third in a Presidential race–behind two very conservative candidates. It was only four years ago that the liberals of the United States greatly outvoted the conservatives.

Only six months ago there was talk of a great exodus of Republicans to the Democratic party as many young people and anti-war people began to unite behind Eugene McCarthy . The McCarthyites were accepted and admired by the "old school" because they were working in the common political tradition. It is unfortunate that the same "old school" could not see their way to accepting some of the McCarthyite ideals, but the question still remains: Is this country still to continue in the Liberal tradition–the tradition of the Democratic Party.

It is time for those "disaffected" McCarthy Democrats to realize the realities of the present political situation. If we are to continue with liberal reforms in this nation there must be a solid Democratic vote for Hubert Humphrey.

G.T.J.

Awareness

"If yesterday was a day of awareness, I'd hate to see a day of apathy."

It's always the same old story, isn't it? Apathy runs rampant and who could care? Certainly not Joe Umie. He has much more important things to do. He can relax with a beer while his brothers get beaten until they bleed and get herded like cattle by Chicago's finest? He can watch while they get blown to smithereens by those precious bombs made in the good ol' USA; he can watch them starving at the rate of 400,000 a day in one country alone.

But then there is always the non-conformist to deal with. He has to go and screw up everything. He just has to CARE. The idiot has to go and start organizations like Smile and Concern and S.D.S. and the MLK Council, and then he actually has the nerve to expect people to join them! Can you imagine?

Well, what do you say that next week you try an experiment? See if the Drake can possibly survive without you for a few hours, and instead spend the time at a meeting of an "action organization". It certainly can't hurt you, and you may be surprised to find that "caring" doesn't necessarily have to be a down.

A Thought in Passing

Now that the full complexity of the interchange between Fraternity Freeway and Interstate 92, the Lederle Thruway, can be seen (but perhaps not appreciated), and now that the extent and magnificence of the greensward around the Fort and SBA rivals that of the White House and U.S. Capital, now perhaps the time has past to ask how such an outlandish extravagance ever came to be contemplated, much less ever built.

That the ghastly imagination of our road designers, coupled with the grisly competence of the Puffer Construction Company, and laced with $900,000 can work nightmares is now all too apparent; but do we need it? I would suggest that we most emphatically do not.

RWS

The Massachusetts Daily Collegian

Student Union — University of Massachusetts — Amherst, Mass.

BOARD OF EDITORS

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF ..... J. Harris Dean '69
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Donald A. Epstein '70
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Charles W. Smith '69
EXECUTIVE EDITOR ..... Sue Wallace '69
SPORTS EDITOR ..... Mike Curran '69

TODAY'S STAFF

Issue Editor: Pat Flanagan; Rose Miller, Kathleen Rose, Sharon Trombley, Marlene Ricker, Sports Editor: Steve Ross; Editorial Editor: Karen Aude, Staff Tom Johnson, Kathy Biggane, Richard Story.

Undergraduate newspaper of the University of Massachusetts. The Staff is responsible for its content and no faculty members or administration read it for accuracy or approval prior to publication.

Editorials signed "The Editors" represent the views of this paper, decided upon by a majority vote of the editorial board. Unsigned editorials represent the views of the editor. They do not necessarily reflect the views of the faculty, administration, or student body as a whole. Signed editorials, columns, reviews, and letters represent the personal views of the writers.

"Did You Notice The Expiration Date Here?"

Inside Report:

LeMay's Mushroom Cloud

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

TOLEDO, Ohio ––As George Wallace finished his speech to a rally at the baseball park here, a news correspondent approached the speaker's platform in hopes that Gen. Curtis LeMay would expand his views on the use of nuclear weapons.

LeMay was willing to oblige with answers, but Wallace definitely was not. Joe Fine, Wallace's able young political lieutenant, declared that the General was not available. The reporter was hustled away by Secret Service agents.

The incident, coming less than 12 hours after Wallace unveiled the semi-legendary bomber commander as his running-mate , reflected the compulsion by the Wallace camp to muzzle LeMay following his Goldwaterish musings on nuclear arms. Thus, LeMay had cast a small, mushroom-shaped cloud on the Wallace movement, inadvertently posing a threat to it that neither Democratic nor Republican politicans could concoct.

It is, assuredly, only a threat. If LeMay is prevented from meandering off in more nuclear-flavored barracks-room talk, no permanent damage may be done the Wallace revolution. Nevertheless, LeMay's selection represents a deviation from Wallace's populistic strategy that has proved spectacularly successful.

All year long, Wallace had some key advisors–notably, Seymour Trammell, his fundraiser – have eyed Republican LeMay as a means of broadening their appeal among upper-income upper-class voters.

But when Trammell made overtures to the General during the summer, LeMay declined (because, in the private opinion of the Wallace camp, he underestimated Wallace's potential strength). That produced a sigh of relief from some Wallace insiders, who doubted LeMay could convert the Republican gentry to Wallace. They favored a populistic running-mate –former Gov. Albert (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky–to reinforce Wallace's working-class appeal. Although Chandler was vetoed by right-wing ideologues supporting Wallace, the Wallace campaign has taken on the earmarks of a white working man's movement. The Northern union member–resentful of his government, union leaders, and the Negro – has turned to Wallace. And Wallace, while not changing basic positions, has become more populistic in tone.

Wallace no longer describes himself as a "conservative" in speeches. He is unequivocally on record against "right-to-work" laws. He makes favorable references to Robert F. Kennedy, a hero to many working men now backing Wallace. His campaign plane carried a dozen local union leaders from Alabama who are exhibited in Northern industrial cities.

Sometimes Wallace's populism is overt. By removing the tax exemption for giant foundations, he tells rallies, "you could lower the working man's tax." While mixing populistic rhetoric with appeals for law and order, Wallace refrains from sabre-rattling. If the Vietnam war cannot be won by conventional weapons, he implies, we will have to get out.

Just as this strategy was reaching full flower last week, Gen. LeMay had a change of heart. He was disturbed the old aviator told Wallace men, about Nixon's dalliance with Rockefeller Republicans (although Wallace men suspected LeMay also was influenced by Wallace's rise in the polls). Having found a Vice President, Wallace privately warned him to weigh his words to the press at the unveiling in Pittsburgh.

To no avail. While actually opposing nuclear weapons in Vietnam, LeMay blundered by ruminating in public about their hypothetical employment. Newmen searching for a Wallace weak spot had a field day. At rallies in Indianapolis and Toledo that afternoon and evening, LeMay was silenced and appeared with Wallace as a mute, unsmiling totem.

What to do with LeMay the rest of the campaign is undetermined. One plan would keep him away from the press and schedule him in private meetings with fat cat Republicans, thereby preventing him from scaring the wits out of Wallace's working men.

Pathetically, LeMay's garrulousness is now the best hope of the traditional parties that Wallace will yet decline. With neither local organization, patronage, nor a professional staff, Wallace is running second in electoral votes and is prevented only by Hubert Humphrey's weakness from becoming a possibility to run first. Even with the threat of LeMay's mushroom cloud, Wallace is the political miracle worker of the year.

Part 1-Most Were In Dreamland

Columbia Report Blames Students and Administrators

(Ed. note: The following is part one of a four part series summarizing the Cox Report, the official report concerning last spring's disturbances at Columbia University.)

The April uprising started and grew haphazardly. As it developed to the final academic cataclysm, its entire character was altered.

The long series of turbulent demonstrations beginning in 1965, which were tolerated by most of the university community, leaves a tragic sense of the inevitability of the final escalation. Packing the lobby of Hamilton Hall–even the somewhat ambiguous obstruction of Dean Coleman's liberty–was scarcely different from the earlier confrontation in John Hay Hall or the sit-in following the C.I.A. demonstration.

S.A.S.'s (Student Afro-American Society) decision to evict the whites and barricade the doors in a demonstration of black student power–one of the key turning points–was a response to an occasion thrust upon the black students. With each successive day the uprising gathered its own physical and emotional momentum.

We reject the view that ascribes the April and May disturbances primarily to a conspiracy of student revolutionairies. That demonology is no less false than the naive radical doctrine that attributes all wars, racial injustices, and poverty to the machinations of a capitalist and militarist "Establishment."

Student revolutionists within S.D.S. (Students for a Democratic Society) planned turbulent confrontations and revolutionary tactics. They manipulated facts in ways that created distrust and bred unwarranted antagonism. There apparently was occasional talk of wider revolution to overthrow the present political system.

A very few revolutionists may have been in dead earnest. More, we suspect, were half in dreamland, feverishly discussing domantic tactics but hardly comtemplating realistic execution. Part of the responsibility for the disturbances rests upon the revolutionaries consciously seeking to subvert and destroy the university but their total number was small– much less than the full S.D.S. membership– and their activities were only the catalyst that precipitated a deeper movement.

By its final days the revolt enjoyed both wide and deep support among the students and junior faculty and in lesser degree among the senior professors. The grievances of the rebels were felt equally by a still larger number, probably a majority, of the students.

The trauma of the violence that followed police intervention intensified emotions but support for the demonstrators rested upon broad discontent and widespread sympathy for their position.

